High Frosh Dance October 20 Opens Social Activities

In honor of the Low Freshman class, the first dance of the semester will be given in the Gold Room of the Fairmont Hotel, Friday night, October 20, from 9 to 12 o'clock, Dean Edwin C. Browne announced last week.

Orchestras for the occasion are now being auditioned by honorary chairman, Marilyn Brunton, last semester's Associated Student President.

Admission is by one Associated Student card per couple and must be presented only by the owner, who is entitled to bring one guest

As the dance will be semi-formal, the no corsage rule will be in effect.

Dates For Late Student Entrance Tests Given

New students who have not taken the Subject A and Otis entrance examinations must take them Thursday, October 12, from 9 to 12 o'clock in Room 100, J. Paul Mohr, registrar, announced last week.

Vocational Interest and High School Content tests will be given Wednesday, October 18, from 9 to 12 o'clock in Room 204.

Because entering men and women are required by college regulations to take these tests before being officially enrolled, Mohr added, they will be excused from classes.

Today And Tomorrow

By President A. J. Cloud

"Today is important to me, but tomorrow counts more."

That remark was made to me recently by a young man who had just returned to his homeland after having seen 16 months of service in Pacific fighting zones, and who had been honorably discharged as the result of partial disability. He had resisted the temptation to accept an offer of employment at a high rate of pay because he was looking ahead to "tomorrow," and was eager to prepare himself adequately through additional education.

Further conversation with the young man led to information that he had found how to make an appraisal of himself, and, in consequence, had fixed a goal toward which he proposed to guide his course in life. That objective required advanced education. For that reason, he took interest in conferring with persons qualified to advise with reference to an educational program fitted to his needs.

That illustration serves to drive home the thought that the problems bearing upon us as individuals and as a people demand that we keep our eyes, not only on the present, but on the future. Those problems are unprecedented. The destiny of millions is now being determined perhaps for centuries ahead A new tomorrow is in the making In that coming age, education will assume even a larger share of influence in the growth of our democratic social structure than it has in the past. As an eminent authority on international relations, Secretary of State Cordell Hull, has said, "Education has a role of the first importance to play in building the foundations of a just and lasting peace."

Nominations For Associated Student Offices Set Tomorrow At 11; Deadline For Petitions Friday; Voting Oct. 19

Nomination of candidates for Associated Student offices will be held tomorrow at 11 a. m. in the center court by the flag pole. Petitions to run for office may be secured from the office of Dean Edwin C. Browne. Deadline for filing of petitions is next Friday at 3 p. m.

A candidates' rally will follow on Monday, October 16, at 10 a. m. This also will be held in the center court. The purpose of the rally will be to introduce to the students, the new students in particular, the candidates for the various offices. A short campaign speech will be given by each candidate.

Elections for all offices will be held Thursday, October 19.

Offices open are Associated Student President, Vice-president, and Secretary; Associated Women Student President, Vice-president, and Secretary, and Associated Men Student President, Vice-president, and Secretary.

Qualifications for the various offices are as follows:

The President of Associated Students shall be a member of the High Sophomore Class. He (or she) must have carried 12 or more units in his last regular semester and maintained an average grade of C or better. The Vice-president and Secretary must have the same qualifications with the exception that they may be Low Sophomores. Qualifications for AMS and AWS are not yet definite.

Rules for the student elections are drawn up to protect each candidate and to prevent the elections from becoming a campaign of excessive financial expenditures.

The rules are as follows:

1. There shall be no cash outlay by candidates or by others in their behalf.
2. No public address systems will be allowed
3. There shall be no printed matter distributed.
4. There shall be no electioneering within 100 feet of the polls.
5. Each candidate shall be restricted to two posters on the campus.
6. There shall be no off campus advertising with the exception of two uniform size posters per candidate, which may be secured from the committee publicity chairman, or must be approved by the publicity chairman to be placed in the Junior College Student Store and The Ram Shack.
7. There shall be no election cards of any kind distributed.
8. There shall be no gratuities of any kind offered.

Failure to observe these rules will result in immediate disqualification.

48 A Cappella Choir Members Earn Pins

Forty-eight members of last semester's A Cápella Choir received awards in the form of pins last week, marking a new type of recognition by the Associated Students for the many college programs given by the choir.

Provision for the awards was made at the beginning of last semester, and quallfications for receiving the pins were turned over to Flossita Badger, choir director. These qualifications were based on attendance at practice and participation in a majority of college and outside programs.

Those receiving pins are as follows: Carol Aarce, Audrey Armstrong, Beatrice Baer, Frances Bell, Ella Jane Boggs, Barbara Britton, Chloe Carrillo, Gloria Clavora, Robert Coehlo, Sally Coppinger, Violet Desmond, Martha Donzelli, Virginia Franz, Mary Alice Gilroy, Miriam Goshtigian, Pearl Greenberg, David Greene, Lorraine Hedman, Barbara Healy, Barbara Henshaw, Joe Jachetta, Edith Kennard, John Lepla, Charles Loughridge, Miriam McCormick, Vera Miller, Ethel Mervis, Melva Niles, Gene Orlandi, Joyce Pope, Helen Rasmussen, Doris Reeves, Caroline Righetti, Madelle Rosenberg, Ernest Rubke, Helen Schiavone, Kenneth Schildt, William Schlager, Barbara Sholz, Douglas Shull, Barbara Slickman, Alma Beth Taylor, Betty Lou Wylie, William Thompson, George Tripodes, Howard Vore, Helen Wheeler and Naomi Withers.

New manager of the choir, elected at the end of last semester, is Ernest Rubke. The choir meets Tuesday and Thursday at 12 o'clock in Room 200 and carries one unit of credit.

Openings still exist, particularly in the tenor and bass sections. Membership, however, depends on successful auditions which may be made by arrangement with Miss Badger.

Next Guardsman Will Appear October 18

Although the first issue of the Fall 1944 Guardsman appears today, regular publication day will be Wednesday of each week.

Therefore, the next issue of The Guardsman will be Wednesday, October 18.

Letters-to-the-editor, refer to the Ram's Horn column on Page 2, must be submitted to The Guardsman, Room 134, by 10 o'clock on Thursdays.

The Spectator

ANCIENT and dazzling Bagdad is the setting for the latest technicolor production we previewed last week, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's Kismet starring Ronald Colman and Marlene Dietrich.

Plot concerns a handsome widower, who promises his daughter that she will some day marry a member of the royal family. Prince of Beggars, as her father is known, has an adventurous time attempting to fulfill his pledge.

Not appreciating the efforts made for her, the young lady and a gardener's son fall in love. Following the pattern, the father also has his heart captured by the so-called Queen of Dancing Girls.

Magic, harems, charging soldiers, elephants, and a wicked Grand Vizier are included in the thoroughly complicated situation.

No audience should be surprised when it is discovered that the gardener's son is none other than the youthful Caliph of Bagdad in disguise. And, of course, his sweetheart is made queen of all Arabia.

The generous ruler gives his father-in-law a kingdom plus the woman who danced in a costume of gold.

Dashing beggar is portrayed by Colman, while the beautiful Dietrich plays opposite him as the dancing girl. Younger Hollywood pin-up models still cannot be compared with her.

The advisability of casting such fine stars in the photoplay can easily be questioned.

However, where interest may be lost in the weak but amusing story, brilliant stagings and Marlene Dietrich will surely hold the moviegoer's attention.

Kismet will prove a good evening's entertainment and may be considered as one of the best motion pictures of its type.

SOMETHING MUSICAL

Carmen Cavallaro has put forth a new 12 inch recording for Decca that should well be listed as a collector's item. Enrollo or Voodoo Moon has an exceptionally fine Afro-Cuban rhythm and a fair melody.

Although Cavallaro's appearance at the Mark Hopkins was not considered as entirely successful, this is certainly one of the best releases in months.

Few popular pianists today can duplicate the technique and quality of Cavallaro's playing.

Harry Owens, who has somewhat slipped lately, is making an album for Capitol containing Maui Girl, My Tane, Laughing Song, Aloh No Wau I Ko Maka, Down on Ami Ami Isle, Little Butch, Sweet Leilani and Farewell Mailini.

Although the few other Capitol albums have been of poor quality, Owens introduced most of the tunes and should have an above average group of records.

Trolley Song has been recorded by the Pied Pipers but has not been put on the music stores' racks as we go to press.

Student Activity Program Continues

ONCE again, a war-time freshman group enters the college. These newcomers soon discover that the so-called "rah rah" days of campus life ended with the attack on Pearl Harbor.

Although many people hold an optimistic outlook toward the rapid conclusion of hostilities, the Allied Command has repeatedly publicized the fierce struggle ahead.

For this institution there lies first one course, that of arduous scholastic work.

It is an acknowledged fact, however, that an extra-curricular program is also an important phase of a well-rounded education. Therefore, past semester activities will still be continued under the auspices of the Associated Students.

If there were not such an association, The Guardsman could not exist and operate as an organ of news distributed to all men and women here.

Not only does the organization enable the paper to be published but also permits the college to have rallies, dances, clubs, sports and the services of the A Cappella Choir.

Particularly, valuable experience may be gained by the participation in an active and representative student government.

Coming elections will determine which individuals will administer the legislative powers that govern and supervise the affairs, policies, properties and conduct of the Associated Students.

Upon those elected, will depend the success of the organizations mentioned above as well as additional student functions. For only when a person is well guided in both academic and social fields can college be considered a worth-while proposition.

Letters To The Editor

RAM'S HORN

ALTHOUGH The Guardsman does not attempt to exist as a national daily paper, or copy a magazine such as Life, it carries a feature that every free-thinking, democratic publication should contain.

That department is the letters-to-the-editor, known in this college perfodieal as The Ram's Horn.

This first issue finds the column devoted to clarification of its purpose and to making clear to all students what correspondence will be accepted.

It should be understood that the editorial staff is made up of clear-reasoning, average human beings and cannot run competition to the Good Will Hour and the Mediation Board.

Letters requesting advice for love affairs, what to do with cinch notices, and whether Jasper will take "worried" to the AMS-AWS dance, will have to be forwarded to the above mentioned, reliable institutions.

However, a real opportunity is offered in this column for discussion, information that is not necessarily of a news category, welfare, and any constructive criticism concerning student organizations, The Guardsman or the college itself.

All correspondence must be typewritten, bear the writer's name, although if he requests, his name will be withheld; must be comparatively short and must be delivered to Room 134.

The editor has, in the interests of the college, entire jurisdiction over non-publication of any letter.

To prove how representative the newspaper is, even members of the faculty can expect to have th queries and statements treated with the greatest of respect and care.

"It is true that war makes special demands, but when we sacrifice a natural resource without imperative need, we are selling the birthright of future generations. Cities bombed and devastated can be rebuilt, but a forest of redwood or Douglas fir once destroyed cannot be fully restored in a century."
—Dr. Robert C. Miller.

"In terms of the preservation of human lives, by training boys and girls to do things quicker and better than the enemy, and so win, the American schools have repaid their country every dollar invested a thousand times over."—Lt. Clarence Irwin, Naval Training School, Dearborn, Mich.

Passing The Buck

By Henry P. Buckingham

IN the past few years the world scene has deviated little from the usual cycle it has followed throughout its time. A tyrant has risen to power, conquered much of the world's territory, fought for it, and lost it again. Perhaps this cycle, from which we are just emerging, has covered more territory and been swifter than any preceding cycle, but it remains, basically, the same.

The national scene has, however, veered away from the course that it has tended to follow since its conception.

We have witnessed the rise of a third and menacing political party. This party is menacing to the other two parties and to the constitution because its beliefs do not stem from the constitution but rather drive toward a central government so strong as to control labor, capital and the middle class.

There have been other third parties, but all have remained of insignificance as far as absolute control is concerned.

The formerly two strongest parties are slipping slowly and quietly into the background. This is particularly true of the older of the two parties, the Democratic Party.

The Democratic Party of twelve years ago exists in name only and has been replaced physically by the new State Socialistic party. Few Democratic Party members have dared raise their voices against the new order. Few attempt to rally and regain control of the party because they know that their action would be futile.

The only party members to raise their voices against the stealing of their party have been the southern Democrats of Texas. The Texas Democrats refused to be led and consequently were quickly disposed of. Others do not notice for fear that they will meet the same political fate.

Some men of the new order openly admit their position while others prefer to hide in the shadows that so mysteriously enshroud political campaigns. The third party has received more and more power as it has aged. Its far-reaching hand controls the life of every American. Probably the laborer and the union man suffer more than the capitalist, because the union man is denied, by partisan union leaders the right of free vote.

The voters will decide in November whether they accept the third party or not. They will not decide however the validity of that party.

Women Will Meet Wednesday To Name WAA Officers

Inauguration of a new plan for organization of the Women's Athletic Association will be effected Wednesday at 3:10 o'clock in the women's gymnasium, when an open meeting of interested women will be held to organize a program and name leaders for the year.

Former council officers will outline the type of program WAA should plan, Bobbie Mercer, who headed last semester's council and will preside at Wednesday's meeting, said. Bertha Mae Keller, WAA adviser, and Laurine Bergin, women's physical education instructor, will assist in greeting the women.

According to present plans, election of officers will be made from among those who volunteer to serve, and sports managers will also be chosen.

New students are invited to attend the meeting, but Miss Mercer particularly urged former students to attend to help organize sports for women.

In the past WAA has supplemented the regular women's physical education program with sports and playdays with other colleges and local high schools. These activities are traditionally climaxed by a tourney day at the end of the semester, when awards are presented and sports playoffs conducted.

The sports are carried on through the organization of sports clubs under the direction of elected managers, and are in the fields of archery, badminton, basketball, bowling, volleyball, ping-pong, swimming, rjding and hiking. Fifteen women must sign up for each club to insure organization.

Provided that interest is as great as has been anticipated by advance reports, Miss Mercer promised that coeducational intramurals and tournaments for mixed couples will be set up in tennis, badminton and ping-pong.

Organization of WAA under a council of officers in place of the generally elected president, vice-president and secretary, was begun only last semester.

Women's Physical Ed Classes Start Wednesday

Classes in physical education for women will not begin until Wednesday.

Preceding their opening, health examinations will be conducted by Dr. Alice Potter, women's physician, for new women students today and Tuesday in the women's gymnasium.

This announcement was made last week by Bertha Mae Keller, chairman of the department, who emphasized that examinations are given by appointment. Late registration appointments must be made in the women's gymnasium.

Late registration signups and program changes in physical education will not be made before Wednesday, October 11, either, she added.

Grades Withheld For Failure To Take Health Exam

Importance of health examinations for all college students was given added emphasis this semester with the decree announced last week by J. Paul Mohr, registrar, that semester grades will be withheld from new students failing to meet the college requirement for health examinations.

Examinations are conducted by physicians assigned to the college. They are given by appointments made during the registration procedure, except in the case of new students whose appointments are made before registration. Special heart, lung, or orthopedic examinations are arranged if needed through the facilities of the San Francisco Health Department.

Initial health examinations are stressed as the first step in the physical fitness program of the college, which step depends on every student knowing his health status, Bertha Mae Keller, women's physical education instructor, declared in commenting on the registrar's office ruling.

"Since the college health program is planned to meet the needs of college students, they should make the most of their opportunities while here," she said.

A new regulation for women's physical education classes concerns absences and their subsequent reduction of grade. One unexcused absence in any midterm period equals a C, two equal a D, and more than two equal an F. An unexcused absence, Miss Keller explained, is one for which no note has been brought from home or physician to the instructor from whose class the student was absent. An absence caused by illness and with the proper note, does not have to be made up.

Gym Lockers Must Be Cleared Out By Wednesday

Summer school students who have not cleaned out their lockers in the women's gymnasium were warned last week that locks and any materials in the lockers will be confiscated beginning Wednesday.

The warning, coming from Bertha Mae Keller, chairman of the women's physical assignments for this fall will be made at the second meeting of classes upon presentation of a combination lock.

Posing the $64 question, "What are lockers for?" Miss Keller, on request, gave her own answer:

"Lockers should be kept locked to avoid unnecessary loss of valuables. To those who have charm bracelets, purses, books, and other articles, may I say, 'Lock them up!'"

Two first year women at Saint Mary-of-the-Woods College, Indiana, are fourth generation freshmen at the college.

Big Wartime Grid Turnout Heartens Ram; Washington, Camp Parks Beaten

With the largest wartime football turnout of the college, the prospects of a victorious Ram soared higher and higher. Many ups and downs have befallen the Ram in the last two years, but fate seems to have been kind to him this year and provided him with something to shout about.

Two games have already been tucked safely away, Washington 0-SFJC 20, Camp Parks 2-SFJC 12, and the mighty Ram marched to Modesto last Friday night. Details of that game were not available for this issue of The Guardsman.

According to Lee Eisan, head coach of the Ram team, players constituting the first and second teams are Quarterbacks John Perry, Balboa; George Newell, Richmond;

Fullbacks: Frank Reed of Alameda; Bob Seiler of Jefferson. Halfs: Al Gorbenko, Perry Midbust, Joe Sheehan, all from Poly, and Joe Kane from Lowell.

Centers: George Fabian of Commerce and Bill Gebbes of Lincoln; Ends: Bill Poole and Glenn Stevens from Fremont, John Lopeman from Washington, and Jim Crown of Richmond;

Tackles: Vic Pudlowski of Washington, Frank Fields, Oakland; Bob Mills and Jack White from Lincoln; Weak guards: Ed Tomaselli of Lowell and Tiny Ghiorzi of Commerce;

Running guards are Charles Bodemer, Livermore; John Mapelli, Richmond, and Ted Noble, Mission.

Other members of the team are Noel Waxman, Washington; Bob Quin, Lowell; Keith Harper, Mission; Herman Liekermau, Lowell; Don Madsen, Lincoln; Walt Mooromsky, Lowell; Bill MacGurn, Lincoln; Peter Milat, Castlemont; Sidney Solomon, Washington; Donald Grant, Mission; Simon Lowell, Lowell; Al Soularger, Alameda; Bud Tehaney, Lincoln; Pat Fenney, Lowell; Al Box, Oakland; Lee Drew, Oakland; Perry Charlton, Oakland; Jack Zukerknown, Washington; Lou Van Vliet, Lowell; Bill Sanfillippo, San Jose; Frank Van Houtte, Lincoln; Don Saroff, Commerce; Ver Butler, University; Carl Franzen, University; Alfred Flour, Vallejo; Fred Pierce, Sacred Heart; Lou Fratessa, Sacred Heart; Don Hayser, Norphlet.

Perhaps the greatest blow to the Ram was the loss of Otis Williams, star back, Williams heard the call of his uncle about a week ago and is now a member of the armed service. Williams starred in the games against Washington and Camp Parks.

The only two games definitely scheduled for the future are the games with Menlo Junior College on October 18, played at home, and with Cal Ramblers played at Berkeley on October 21.

Mountain Climbing Part Of Gym Program

Although not officially listed in the college catalog, a daily unit connected with physical education classes offers training in Mountain Climbing Techniques.

The course over which the climb is made, and for which no ski lifts are provided, runs along no ivy covered slope, but is traditionally (sometimes farcically) known as Hello Walk, the path leading from the gymnasiums to the main college building.

Last year's record climb was clocked at three minutes from gymnasium to the third floor of the college, and expectations are that by Christmas time the existing record will be cut through intense competition, not to speak of eagerness to reach classes ahead of schedule.

Women students get the break on rainy days. At such times they are not foreed to practice mountain climbing but instead meet in the main building, where a bulletin is posted outside the telephone operator's booth announeing the place of meeting.

Since most students here are familiar with the peculiar climatic conditions surrounding the bay area and pneumonia hill in particular, they are expected to have no trouble distinguishing between a rainy day and one graced with a bracing and dripping fog. Classes meet in the gymnasium on the latter type of day.

Basketball, Boxing On Men's Sports Program

Men's sports offered in addition to football are basketball and boxing. Varsity basketball practice will start on or about November 1. Details are available from Lee Eisan at the men's gymnasium.

Intramural basketball will offer, as usual, a stiff competitive league among the various organizations of the college. If this year's intramural follows past intramural competition, there is certain to be a spirit of revenge assumed among the various members of fraternities and clubs. An adviser for the intramural competition has not yet been decided upon, but many have high hopes that Jack Brady will accept the direction.

Boxing reaches its climax on the night of the AMS boxing tournament. Anyone interested in the art of fisticuffs can apply to Eisan in the men's gymnasium.

Talent Bureau Will Be Active Again

Revival of the college Talent Bureau and continuation of a series of student programs during the Music 30a course highlight the music front of the college this semester.

The talent bureau was first organized several semesters ago, when the Associated Student officers requested a central agency for providing student entertainment at rallies and assemblies. It was later dropped, but Flossita Badger, adviser to the bureau, agreed to organize it again this semester at the request of the Executive Council and because so many requests from outside groups are made for college talent.

First step in setting up the bureau, Miss Badger said, will be through the voice class, where there is obvious opportunity to prepare programs, although all types of entertainment are desired. This class meets at 10 o'clock Tuesday and Thursday in Room 200.

Through the bureau, performers for USO, club, and other service organizations are expected to be provided when such clubs request entertainers from the college.

The series of musical programs in the Music 30a class, is a continuation of those begun last semester, when the hour would occasionally be devoted to appearance of student talent.

Music Club Reception For New Students Slated October 25

Opening activity of the college Music Club, the traditional reception for new students, is slated to take place Wednesday, October 25, at 3 o'clock, in the college cafeteria.

This arrangement was made by Melva Niles, club president, who stressed the fact that the reception is intended for all new students, not solely those interested in music.

A program of music and refreshments will highlight the afternoon, Miss Niles said.

Membership in the music Club itself is not confined to music students, Miss Niles added, but is open to all those interested in music.

This semester, sponsorship of the club will be shared by Flossita Badger, music instructor, and Madison Devlin, orchestra instructor.

Miss Niles was active during the summer vacation singing in USO programs throughout the city.

Isn't There A Paper Shortage?

Breaking all existing wartime attendance records, the enrollment of the college swelled to 600 entering students.

Amid the noise and confusion, one entering student, Lorraine Hanahan, pictured at right, seeks the safety of a corner while she contemplates an answer to one of the six tests from Hades.

The six entrance exams have been the Nemesis of entering freshmen since the beginning of the college, and, regrettably, will continue to be so for the rest of time.

Through some quirk of nature, some students flunk these exams. It is a sad day when a reluctant student mournfully seats himself in the Subject A class or the Math 51 room.

To all students who are subjected to this barbarous form of torture, a deep rooted feeling of commiseration is extended. To those who escape from the clutches of the barbarians there is only to say, "You lucky devils, you."

Applications Now Taken For Part-Time Jobs

With demand still great for clerical, office, sales and semi-skilled part-time help, the college placement office, directed by Edward W. Larson, will receive student applications in Room 155 from 1 to 4 p. m., except Tuesdays, until further notice.

The manpower shortage still exists in the Bay Area, Larson said, and the part-time student worker eases the emergency. Industrial and government establishments are anxious to obtain older and more mature students, particularly those on the college level of instruction, he added.

Larson advised students interested in obtaining part time work to apply early and to have their college programs sufficiently planned and worked out on an hourly basis so that an accurate measure of outside working time can be given the potential employer.

Dish Gardening Course Added To Floriculture Schedule

Introduction of a new floriculture course, Dish Gardening, cataloged as Floriculture 80, is made to the college this semester.

Under the direction of John Herman, floriculture instructor, students will make dish or tray gardens which will be sent to the various army and navy hospitals.

The course is offered Tuesdays from 12 to 2 in Room 405 and again from 2 to 4 o'clock, and carries two units of credit. A display of dish gardens is now in the large showcase in the main hall.

Ten Graduates Awarded Scholastic Honor Pins

Alpha Gamma Sigma permanen membership certificates and gold pins were awarded to ten students at the last commencement exercises in June.

They are Audrey Armstrong, Betty Attwater, Barbara Caswell, Lily Gyr, Arthur Jue, Ruth Nell, Anne Rabinowitz, Shirley Rodgers, Marie Sochner, and Phyllis Sosich. Miss Caswell and Jue were the commencement student speakers.

Locker Requests Due Next Week; 3 In 1 Edict Holds

Applications for lockers will be accepted beginning Monday, October 16, Edward H. Redford, head counsellor, announced last week.

The edict of three students sharing a locker is still in effect, he said, because otherwise there are not enough lockers for all.

Women students apply for locker cards to Dean Margaret Dougherty, while men students will apply to Claude Silva or Redford in Rooms 148 or 149. No cards will be distributed before October 16, Redford emphasized. The cards entitle the holder to a specified locker.

After October 16, Redford added, lockers will be distributed from Rooms 148 or 149 after 2 p. m.

Devlin To Give Instruction In Photography Technique

Inauguration of a new course, Photography 71, which concerns camera technique, developing and printing, was announced last week by Madison Devlin, instructor for the subject.

Group will meet every Tuesday and Thursday from 1 to 4 o'clock in Room 36, receiving 3 units of credit toward graduation.

Devlin stated that students enrolled in the class will have an opportunity to use the college's darkroom which is well-stocked with excellent equipment.

During the summer months, Devlin assisted Ansel Adams, noted photographer, in taking pictures of Yosemite National Park and surrounding country.

Aida Selections Head First Music Hour Program

First meeting of the Music Appreciation Class, Music 7a, is scheduled for tomorrow when selections from Verdi's opera, Aida, Nonegger's Pacific 231 and the Swan Lake Ballet by Tschaikowsky will be presented Madison Devlin, instructor, said last week.

Meeting in Room 200 every Tuesday at 9 o'clock, the course is also for non-music majors as it is designed to give the average student greater familiarity with operas and symphonies, Devlin added.

Breakfast, Lunch Served In Cafe

Both breakfast and luncheon service in the college cafeteria will be continued this semester, Fred Spiess, chef instructor, said last week.

Breakfast will be served from 9 to 10:30 o'clock, while luncheon will begin at 11 and end at 1:30 o'clock, Spiess added.

Registrar J. Paul Mohr commented that these hours have been found most satisfactory in catering to the needs of the greatest number of students.

That all students be reminded of the current shortage of help, which necessitates that persons eating in the cafeteria bus their own dishes and endeavor to keep the room as clean as possible, was stressed by the cafeteria management.

Meals in the cafeteria are prepared by merchant seamen, who are taking special training as cooks, bakers and stewards for the Maritime Service here.

Hilda Watson Named Caterers' Group Secretary

Having been the first woman admitted to membership in the local branch of International Stewards' and Caterers' Association Incorporated, Hilda Watson has now been appointed secretary of the San Francisco office.

Mrs. Watson is chairman of the Hotel and Restaurant Division at the college and coordinator of war training for maritime cooks and bakers which conduct the cafeteria here.

Controller Urges Early Submission Of Budgets

Budget request from all college organizations should be submitted to the controller at the bank at the earliest possible date so that the Executive Council will be able to pass on them, Luther Lyon, college controller, announced today.

Request forms must be made out in triplicate, according to Edwin C. Browne, dean of men. The budgets must be detailed and approved by the faculty adviser of each organization desiring financial support.

The college bank is situated in Room 188 and is open throughout the week from 11:45 o'clock in the morning to 1:30 o'clock in the afternoon.

Little Theater Group Gets Added Stage Equipment

Added facilities in the form of a full size stage were granted to the college's Little Theater group this summer by the Board of Education Ruth Somers, drama instructor, said last week.

Mrs. Somers pointed out that a complement of theatrical lighting fixtures is also on order for the college and is expected to be delivered soon.

The three unit drama course, Speech 42a, meets Tuesday and Thursday in Room 209 from 1 to 3 o'clock.

It has been the practice of the students to present three one-act plays and one three-act production each semester.

Student Elections Tomorrow

Enrollment Totals 1261 Here; Evening Division Has 500

Enrollment figures reached a wartime high of 1261 men and women by Friday, J. Paul Mohr, Registrar and Director of Personnel, said last week. Of these approximately 700 were new students, more than 900 women.

The evening courses, held at Everett School building, have more than 500 men and women signed up, Dean Edwin C. Browne reported. He also commented that he was glad to see so many people still interested in further education, although war has changed the course of so many lives.

Following filing of registration books Monday and yesterday, change in programs will require formal use of blue slips provided for that purpose, Mohr said.

Such slips may be secured from the registrar's office, must be signed by course instructors and the adviser, and then must be submitted to the registrar's office. Programs can be changed until Wednesday, November 22, provided instructors give their consent.

Removal of incompletes ineurred last semester must be effected by Friday, November 3, Mohr warned

High Sophomores To Elect Officers Tomorrow Too

High Sophomore class elections will be held tomorrow in Room 133 at noon, Dean Edwin C. Browne said last week.

Officers to be elected to office are President, vice-president and secretary. Class advisers are Phylis Haley and Thomas D. Wilson.

Because of the wartime emergencies no other classes will have officers unless there is an urgent request, Dean Browne said.

Bisio, Gorbenko, Thompson Will Battle For Presidency; Polls To Open At 11

In a surprise move, the already heated contest for Presidency of the Associated Students reached the boiling point Friday when three candidates petitioned to run for the highest student office.

The candidates are Robert Bisio, Al Gorbenko and William Thompson.

Election of Associated Student officers, Associated Women Student Officers and Associated Men Student Officers will take place tomorrow. The polls will be located in the cafeteria and will be opened from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Other candidates for offices are Associated Student Vice-president, Roberta Mathews and Joan Ponting. The lone candidate for Associated Student Secretary is Virginia Franz. She will therefore automatically go into office.

Candidates for Associated Women Student offices are President, Yvonne Bordegaray and Lois Robinet; Vice-president, Barbara Chambers and Gail Todd, and Secretary, Frances Davey and Elizabeth Sutten.

Candidates for Associated Men Student offices are President, Robert Seiler. Seiler also automatically assumes office as there are no opposing candidates. Vice-presidential candidates are Richard Bunker, Don Giannini and Robert Mills, and Secretary, Elmer Hagland and Collin Tooley.

Chairman of the Election Committee, which has complete control over the order of the election, is Pat Farren. Members of the committee are Ed Clinton, Charles Baker and Ernest Rubke. The Election Committee is responsible for the carrying on of the election and the interpretation of the rules governing the election. The committee has the power to disqualify any candidate for failure to comply with the following rules:

1. There shall be no cash outlay by candidates or by others in their behalf.
2. No public address system will be allowed.
3. There shall be no printed matter distributed.
4. There shall be no electioneering within 100 feet of the polls.
5. Each candidate shall be restricted to two posters on the campus.
6. There shall be no off campus

Rally Today At 10

Candidates for Associated Student offices will be introduced to voters this morning at 10 a. m. in the men's gymnasium. All classes will be dismissed.

Entertainment will be provided to promote interest in today's game with Menlo.

Melva Niles Sings For Music Program

By special request of the students in the Music Club, Melva Niles, its president, although in charge of the program for the traditional reception for new students, will also appear in a solo number

The reception is being held not solely for music students, nor only those interested in music, but for all new students, Miss Niles emphasized. It will take place on Wednesday, October 25, at 3 p. m., in the college cafeteria.

Other numbers on the program will include Spanish dances by Amanda George and piano solos by Helen Wheeler. A few quartet numbers will probably also be featured.

Chairman of the committee on refreshments is Barbara Heeley. Publicity is being handled by Dave Greene. In charge of decoration and reception will be Virginia Franz and Barbara Scholz.

Flossita Badger, co-sponsor with Madison Devlin, emphasized that faculty members are invited, although no special invitations will be sent to them.

Music Hour To Feature Tannhauser Selections

Highlighted on the Music Hour program scheduled to meet next Tuesday, is the Overture and Venusberg Music from Tannhauser, Madison Devlin, instructor in the course, said last week.

Other selections expected to be heard are excerpts from Die Walkure.

The class meets every Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock in Room 200 and is not confined to those taking the course for credit, Devlin pointed out.

Freshman Informal To Have Hackett's Band Friday Night

Radio star Ray Hackett and his orchestra will be the main attraction at the dance honoring High Freshmen in the Gold Room of the Fairmont Hotel this Friday night, Marilyn Brunton, honorary social chairman, announced last week.

Associated Student card owners will be admitted and are entitled to bring one guest. Students from San Francisco State College are also invited, Miss Brunton said, and will be admitted on presentation of their student cards.

Marilyn Brunton

Social affairs for the occasion are being taken care of voluntarily by Miss Brunton, last semester's Associated Student president, with the advice of Dean Edwin C. Browne.

Miss Brunton stressed the fact that the dance is informal, not semi formal as was originally announced. This means, she added for the benefit of confused students, that women are not expected to wear long dresses. Because the dance is informal, the no corsage rule stands.

College Groups Should Submit Budgets Early

All budgets should be submitted to the controller at the college bank as soon as organizations have definite plans formulated, Luther Lyon, controller, said last week.

No penalty will be imposed, however, if budgets are handed in as late as the third week of the semester, he added, if it is impossible for an organization to make definite plans promptly. All items must be enumerated accurately and approved by each organization's adviser before budgets are submitted to the bank.

War Bonds and Stamps will be sold at the bank from now until further notice, Lyon said.

Application forms for "Series E" bonds may be secured at the bank window. A payment is made and a receipt issued, he explained, and on the following day, the receipt should be turned in at the college bank in exchange for the bond.

Washington Sends Most Low Frosh

By Henry Buckingham

Of the 607 new students enrolled during regular registration, top honors go to George Washington High School. There are 64 entering students from Washington.

Second place goes to Lowell High School with 47 members of that alumni registering here. Third place has been conceded to Lincoln with the entrance of 43 of its graduates.

Runners-up in order are: Commerce, 39; Galileo, 37; Mission, 30; Balboa, 29; Polytechnic, 27, and at the bottom, Girls' High, with 7 entering students.

Private and Parochial schools of San Francisco sent a total of 63 new students.

From the East Bay public schools came a total of 105 students, while schools located in places other than San Francisco and the East Bay are represented by a grand total of 116 new students.

Passing The Buck

By Henry P. Buckingham

PARTY SYMBOL

The donkey, or the synonym if you prefer, is in the middle of the stream. The poor, tired, old donkey has been floundering in the middle of the stream for 12 long, hard years. Thrice one end of the donkey has been changed but no one, as of yet, has ventured to suggest which end.

Now, this tired, old donkey asks for four more years to get out of the middle of the stream. It would seem to be a poor donkey that coudn't cross a stream in such a length of time, or perhaps donkeys were not built for forging streams.

There is often great disagreement as to the amount of sense a donkey possesses, but even the most radical, who hold to the negative, have to agree that it would take little judgment on the part of the belated animal to keep moving until he reaches a place where the current is not so swift.

Since the donkey has not been capable of reaching either bank in 12 years, but has persisted in holding the middle, then the situation may be looked at from still a different point of view.

The stream the donkey is wallowing in is not only swift but treacherous. The donkey has barely been able to withstand the steady, swift flow. Now, however, a hundred springs have joined to feed the river, and the volume carried has caused many cross currents.

There is the cross current of "politics and party first." This in itself has proved a hazardous factor in the course of the donkey. The donkey, or the clique, that composed the donkey, has resorted to a slap stick form of comedy to divert, in a naive way, attention from the pertinent facts.

Skeletons, which every party closet contains in droves, have been brought forth and cast in the supporting roles of opponents. Sympathy from dog lovers has been asked. People who enjoy travel have been called upon for understanding. Suggestion has been made that isolationists compose the whole of the opposition, when in reality both parties have isolationists, and both must accept their minority presence as a necessary evil.

The American people have been subjected to a form of campaigning that belongs in burlesque and not in the serious business of electing a President of the United States.

When the future of the world as well as the future of the nation rests in the hands of the men who head the government, the plans for that future should be discussed. A general outline of each candidate's plan should be presented by each candidate so that the voters of America can decide before the November election which plan seems to fulfill the requirements of a good world.

Sarcasm, slander and cheap comedy will not decide the future of this nation. No matter how much one enjoys a good joke there is a time and place for them, and it is not in a national election.

" . . . But Please Vote."

SO that Associated Student leaders may be elected for the present semester, men and women of the college will vote tomorrow.

Currently, great interest is being shown toward the coming national presidential election, for its outcome will influence the lives of everyone in the country.

Similarly, the culmination of activities here will certainly affect all persons enrolled in this institution of learning.

Individuals who will become officers are to compose the Executive Council, which supervises the functions of the Associated Student government.

An important duty then lies ahead for those who do not emerge victorious.

It will be their task to promote a vigorous opposition that will remind the council to fulfill its obligations faithfully and effectively.

The very essence of democracy is popular control. Only when it prevails can the wishes of the majority be expressed through proper representation.

Yet the right to cast a ballot does not necessarily constitute a republic. It is the free and honest manner in which the election is conducted that makes it one.

Rules governing the college's campaign, therefore, were established not only to protect candidates, but also to give entering freshmen an opportunity to survey the proceedings without unwarranted political interference.

Whether the democratic system of decency will be preserved is as much the college's responsibility as it is the nation's. In both cases, it depends entirely on the number of voters.

As the newspapers of the city stressed last year, "Vote as you please—but please vote."

The Spectator

PRESTON STURGES has come up with another winner in his long line of sparkling film fare. This time it's with Hail the Conquering Hero. Many of the usual Sturges characters are in this one. Old favorites like Eddie Bracken and William Demarest make a good picture better.

The story concerns a marine who, because of a severe case of hay fever, is discharged from the corps without seeing any action.

One of his buddies who has a mother mania doesn't want to see the discharged marine's mother hurt, so he and the old sarge form a conspiracy to show the home town folks what a hero they have.

Of course the home town folks go off the deep end and draft the bogus hero for mayor. Then things start to hum and the picture gets interesting.

Eddie Bracken plays the part of the phoney hero and is his usual funny self. William Demarest, fresh from his excellent performance in The Miracle of Morgan's Creek, is better than ever. The supporting cast is headed by Freddie Steele, the former pugilist, who turns in a bangup performance.

Editor, The Guardsman:

May I propose a salute to the staff of the San Francisco Junior College cafeteria? They all deserve a big handshake for the excellent example of efficiency and organization that was demonstrated during the opening lunch period of the term. Realizing that it was the first day of the semester, I decided to go to the Student Store for my lunch, but changed my mind and took a chance on the cafeteria. Did I get a surprise! The service tables were laden with delicious food, steaming hot, and they contained such a variety, I

DISCussions

ALTHOUGH Stan Kenton's recording of And Her Tears Flowed Like Wine was released only a few weeks ago, it has already achieved some little success.

Despite this success, Kenton's arrangement proves that he has absolutely gone commercial. Gone are the indignant reeds and the screeching brass. All thought of sincerity has been abandoned. This tune was written by Kenton with the sole thought of lucre in mind.

The vocal is done by Anita O'Day assisted by the boys in the band who chant the chorus.

On the opposite side is How Many Hearts Have You Broken? Only the opening chords are reminiscent of the early Kenton style.

Victor has finally reissued the Goodman Quartet's version of Moonglow. The quartet features Goodman, Hampton, Wilson and Krupa. It has been a big favorite since originally recorded in 1938.

Unlike the usual jam session, this recording is both spontaneous and simple. Teddy Wilson, who plays such scholarly jazz piano, carries the record as he displays the sparkling, clean touch which rates him as one of today's three great jazz pianists.

Gee, Baby, Ain't I Good to You, an old Don Redman tune, is revived by the King Cole Trio. Done in their usual style, it features Oscar Moore's unique stylings on the guitar and Nat Cole's vocal. I Realize Now, more of the same, is sided with it.

Decca has two recordings, which will be released any day. They are Bing Crosby's version of I'll Remember April and The Warsaw Concerto as rendered by the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra. Both should be huge successes, as the selections are poignant and the artists are masters.

Not new but much sought after is Victor's album entitled Starmaker. Now available, it features old Tommy Dorsey releases such as Swingin' On Nothin', Everything Happens To Me, Oh, Look At Me Now, and Swing High. It should be very pleasing to the many fans of Sinatra, Stafford, Haines, Elman, Rich, and the Pied Pipers.

Because the army road show, Winged Victory, is due in town around October 30, the Decca album of the same name is enjoying an increased sale. It consists of music both written and conducted by Dave Rose. 'Tis rumored that Joe Bushkin, formerly the pianist with Tommy Dorsey, will conduct the pit band during the San Francisco engagement.

WAA Names Four To Council; Sports Begin Friday

Following temporary organization of a Women's Athletic Association council last week, a second meeting will be held this Friday when basketball and volleyball will begin at 3:10 o'clock in the women's gymnasium.

At the same time WAA officers from among the four council members will be elected.

The council, which will act in a governing capacity, to organize women's sports, is composed of Cordelia Van Scoyoc, Janiee Beanston, Sue Miles and Joan Ponting.

Six sport managers were named as follows: Archery, Adeline Olson; Bowling, Helen Nelson; Basketball, Sue Miles; Tennis, Joan Ponting; Horseback riding, Anita Geiger, and Badminton, Jean Galez.

Women are expected to sign up for these sports immediately on the bulletin board of the women's gymnasium.

WAA expects to supplement the regular physical education program by having sports and play-days with other colleges and local high schools. Temporarily the plan is to have at least two play-days a month, with Bertha Mae Keller, WAA adviser, officiating at one, and Laurine Bergin, physieal edueation instructor, at the other.

At the end of the semester the activities will be traditionally climaxed by a tourney day, when awards will be presented and sports playoffs conducted.

Rams Keyed To Blast Menlo From College Field Today; Lineup Same As Against Modesto; Two Games To Go On Schedule

Today at 2 o'clock on the college athletic field, one of the best Ram teams that the college has seen for a long time will go into action against Menlo Junior College. Hopes for a victory run high, as this is one of the strongest squads that the college has had for many a year.

Starting lineup will be praetieally the same as in the Modesto game, aecording to Coach Lee Eisan.

Center: George Fabian of Commerce.

Guards: Ed Tomaselli of Lowell and Charles Bodimer of Livermore.

Taekles: Bob Mills and Vle Pudlowski, both from Washington.

Ends: Jim Crown from Riehmond and John Lopeman from Washington.

Fullback: Bob Seiler of Jefferson.

Quarterback: George Newell of Richmond.

Lefthalf: Perry Midbust of Polyteehnic.

Righthalf: Joe Kane of Lowell.

So far this season the squad has been playing bang-up football with two victories and one defeat. Decisive victories have been won against both Camp Parks and the Washington High School squads.

Against Modesto, however, the Rams was not such a happy fate. He was beaten by a score of 12 to 7, the one touchdown being made on a recovered fumble by Bob Mills in Modesto territory, run through for a touchdown.

Playing on the Modesto squad was one of the college's former stars, Dale Jackson. He is best remembered for the fine playing he did on the Beta Tau touch tackle team. Jackson is now playing end, and gave the Rams a few bad moments during the course of the Modesto game.

There are two more scheduled games to be played this season, one with the Cal Ramblers, California's freshman team, on Saturday, October 28, in the Berkeley Memorial Stadium at 12 noon. The other is to be played with Sacramento Junior College on Memorial Day on Sacramento's home grounds.

Joe Coleman Enrolls In Class Of 1962

By Henry Buckingham

Proof that the enrollment of the junior college will in future years reach inestimable heights is given by the registration this week of Joseph Coleman in the class of 1962.

Young Joe, in a reeent interview, reluctantly pushed aside a copy of Barnaby, and explained that he is planning to become the star of the Ram football team, captain of the track team, captain of the basketball team, and possibly if his interests run that way, eaptain of the swimming team. If he has time he will aecept the Presidency of the Associated Students and be editor of The Guardsman.

Joe is the 12 day old son of Mr. and Mrs. Gris Coleman. Mrs. Coleman is Gertrude Bolton Coleman, member of the college history staff, now on leave. For the football record, Joe was born October 7 and weighed in at seven pounds.

Joe further requested, in a moment when his mother could not overhear him, that he be signed up now in all snap courses offered Fall, 1960.

The University of Kansas dedieated its new $250,000 Military Science building on December 10.

• Servicemen News?

Editor, The Guardsman:

Having heard Dean Browne mention that he is the recipient of many letters from former students now in the armed forces serving overseas, it has occurred to me that the publication of exeerpts from some of these letters would, most likely, be of great interest to the students.

If Dean Browne could be persuaded to provide The Guardsman with suitable portions of these letters, they could, perhaps, constitute material for a separate and regular column. Reading in their own words what our men in the various fronts are experiencing, would, I am sure, foster a greater feeling of eloseness with our fellow students and the college as a body.

• Advice To Freshmen

Editor, The Guardsman:

Being a freshman, I'd like to know if the freshman class is allowed to have class officers. If we do, how are they elected and what are their duties? Another thing that is a great puzzle is, have we a freshman adviser that we can pour our hearts out to, or do we do that to our own counselor?

—A Bewildered New-comer.

Editor's note: No class officers other than for the high sophomore class have been elected in recent semesters. There may be a change in this policy this semester. Both the dean of men and the dean of women, in their respective offices, are noted for their sympathetic understanding of student problems.

Intramural Sports May Begin In Six Weeks

Intramural sports will be getting into full swing in about six weeks, according to Lee Eisan, men's physical education director

Eisan is expecting a large turnout because of the increased enrollment over last year, and basketball and boxing will be the major sports in which the men will participate.

A definite date has not been set for swimming as yet. All men unable to swim will be given special lessons during the last three weeks of the semester, Eisan said.

Chorus Added To Music Program

Nucleus Drawn From Over Large Choir

Signup; Members May Get Honor Awards

Marking a new venture in the regular college music program, a Women's Chorus will be organized this semester under the direction of Flossita Badger, college music instructor.

Nucleus of the chorus, Miss Badger said, will be drawn from the A Cappella Choir candidates, who number 70 now, with only 15 of them men. The choir, one of the best known college groups, will definitely not be abandoned this semester despite rumors to that effect, but may be smaller than in past semesters.

The chorus will be limited to 45 women, and enrollment is still open, Miss Badger said. It will meet at 11 o'clock in Room 204 Tuesdays and Thursdays, carries one unit of credit and is listed as Music 11a.

Applications for participation in the chorus may be made through Miss Badger in Room 200 any time, although regular signups are scheduled for tomorrow in Room 204 at 11 o'clock.

The choir, where enough women will be retained to make a balance of men's and women's voices, is closed to additional women applicants, Miss Badger emphasized, but men may still sign up, in fact, indications are that they will be given a rousing welcome.

Average wartime compositions of the choir is about 45 members. It meets this semester at 12 o'clock Tuesdays and Thursdays in Room 200 and carries one unit of credit.

Recognition that was granted the choir last semester by the Executive Council in the form of pins is expected to be extended to members of the Women's Chorus. Qualification depends on participation in college and outside appearances.

Pins awarded the choir members last semester may be obtained from Miss Badger in Room 200. Pins will be mailed to those not now registered here.

Hours Changed Cafe Breakfast

Hours during which breakfast will be served in the cafeteria have been changed to 8:30 to 10 o'clock, with lunch service from 11 to 1:30 o'clock, according to Helen Warnock, cafeteria manager.

A new messmen's class was started last October 10, Mrs. Warnock said, and Jack Routson, former chef in the United States Maritime Service, is the instructor of this new group, composed of 15 members.

During a period of a year and a half, 600 merchant seamen have been employed in the college cafeteria, preparing meals. These men, all having seen previous sea duty, received higher ratings because of the eight week course they took at the college.

After students finish their meals they are asked by Mrs. Warnock to carry their own dishes to the bus station located in the center of the cafeteria.

College Offers First Step To Hollywood

By L. J. Smith

For years Hollywood has taken unknown actors and made them famous overnight. Suddenly the actor becomes a name in bright lights, makes the dollar sign his trademark and fairly wallows in luxury, for there is money in acting.

Any man possessing the desire to be famous can have his first step on the ladder of success sponsored by the college.

The college drama group is suffering from an acute man shortage, Ruth Somers, drama instructor, reported last week. Opportunity lies in a class graced by 15 lovely females longing for the sight of a single male.

Regardless of the shortage of much-needed actors, the show must go on and plans for three one-act plays and one three-act play each semester are in progress.

No Experience Needed For Photography Course

That beginning instruction for those who have no photography experience is being offered every Tuesday and Thursday from 1 to 4 o'clock in Room 36 was announced last week by Madison Devlin, instructor for the subject.

All necessary material, including an excellently equipped dark room, is being furnished, with the exception of cameras. Box cameras are accepted during the primary stages of the course.

Talent Bureau Auditions Will Start This Week

Requests from college organizations and service clubs for entertainers have warranted the reopening of the college Talent Bureau this semester, according to Flossita Badger, music instructor.

Auditions will start this week, although a definite date has not yet been announced. Appointments may be secured at any time from either Miss Badger or Madison Devlin, orchestra instructor.

Singers of both popular and classical music, instrumentalists, monologuists and variety entertainers can be used.

A card index file system will be used to catalog the talents of those students who are accepted. This method will provide an accurate record of available performers.

It is expected that through the offices of the Talent Bureau entertainment for college rallies can be efficiently planned.

Pink Slips Await Parking Violators

Parking on the center circular bus route and either the north or south ramp is absolutely verboten. Violators of this edict will find those gayly colored pink slips attached to their windshields beginning today.

Through an agreement with the Municipal Railway the bus will continue to terminate its route at the front door only so long as this drive is free of parked automobiles.

The north and south ramps are for delivery trucks and other business vehicles. Exceptions to this rule are granted only at the discretion of Dean Edwin C. Browne. Both students and faculty must abide by these rules.

The college has provided ample room for students and faculty members to park their cars. This parking area is the road circling behind the college.

The drive is well provided with white lines to designate where and how students and faculty should park. The area is a one-way drive and should be entered from the south entrance only.

Parking regulations will be of greater importance this semester and will be enforced more strictly than in many past semesters. The large registration at the college has presented many of the pre-war parking difficulties, and in pre-war days these difficulties were met through the enforcement of the parking regulations and by complete cooperation of students and faculty.

Locker Applications Now Accepted After 2 O'clock

Students who overlooked getting lockers Monday may obtain them any day after 2 p. m., Edward H. Redford, head counsellor, said last week.

The rule of three students sharing a locker is still in effect, he added.

Locker cards for women students may be obtained from Dean Margaret Dougherty, but men students should apply to Claude Silva or Redford in Rooms 148 or 149.

All lockers are good for one semester then new applications must be made.

advertising with the exception of two uniform size posters per candidate, which may be secured from the committee publicity chairman, or must be approved by the publicity chairman to be placed in the Junior College Student Store and The Ram Shack.

7. There shall be no election cards of any kind distributed.

8. There shall be no gratuities of any kind offered.

Failure to observe these rules will result in immediate disqualification.

Immediately following elections the Executive Council will have its nucleus. It is automatically composed of the newly elected Associated Student President, Vice-president and Secretary, the AWS and AMS Presidents.

Library Hours Same As Last Year--8 To 5

Library hours, this semester as in the past, will be from 8 to 5, Marcus Skarstedt, librarian, said last week.

Students have free access to the stacks, Skarstedt explained, and those who wish to take out books for home reading may do so over a two-week period. Books may be renewed if necessary.

Reference books are kept behind the loan desk and may be borrowed for two hours in the reading room or overnight. All reference books may be reserved ahead of time at the loan desk

Behind the loan desk is the periodical room. More than 200 periodicals are subscribed to, and students are welcome to enter the periodical room to read them whenever they wish.

Skarstedt added that since the establishment of the library more than 24,000 volumes of books have been accumulated. Of these 3,000 were added last year.

A list of all new books is posted in the reading room each month, and the new books are placed on the exhibition rack in the center of the library.

Gold Seal Bearers Can Be Honor Society Members

New students who are Gold Seal bearers are eligible for one semester's membership in Alpha Gamma Sigma, Scholastic Honor Society, according to Edwin A. Cranston, society adviser

Membership requirements for returning students are 30 grade points with a minimum of 12 units, excluding physical education.

Cranston announced that he will interview applicants in Room 340 during his office hours.

Announcement of the first meeting of the society will be made later.

Book Exchange Will Not Operate This Semester

Because of the lack of sufficient womanpower, the opening of the college Book Exchange will be postponed until next semester.

The exchange was formerly held in Room 103, where students could bring texts, sell them at their own prices, which is the initial difference between the college exchange and the student store method, and buy new books.

The Woman's Service Society under the direction of Verrel Weber, has conducted the exchange successfully in previous semesters.

String Bass, Trombone Viola Players Needed

String, brass, trombone and viola players are greatly in demand to complete the college orchestra, which is under the direction of Madison Devlin.

Devlin is confident that students playing any such instruments will immediately enroll, for such instruments will be provided.

Music 15 (Orchestra) meets every Tuesday and Thursday at 11:10 in Room 200, and carries 1 unit of credit.

Bisio Will Head Associated Students, Announce Plans; Mathews Wins; Parks Upsets Franz To Take Secretary Post

In one of the most hotly contested elections in many a semester, Robert Bisio defeated Al Gorbenko and Bill Thompson for the presidency of the Associated Students last Thursday.

Bisio immediately announced his plans as follows:

1. Reorganization of Club Advisory Board.
2. The Welfare Committee will be in charge of rallies and dances.
3. All class offices will be reorganized.
4. More dances.
5. Publication of a new handbook.
6. New trees.
7. Furthurization of old college traditions; installment of new ones.
8. Preparation for the return of the pre-war enrollment of 3000.

Bisio received a total of 195 votes. Gorbenko placed second with 127 votes, and Thompson trailed with 104 votes.

Roberta Mathews defeated Joan Ponting for the office of Vice-President of the Associated Students. Miss Mathews polled 227 votes to Miss Ponting's 192.

A still closer race was the contest for the office of Secretary of the Associated Students. In that race Patty Sue Parks defeated Virginia Franz by the small margin of 22 votes. Miss Parks polled a total of 222 votes while Miss Franz trailed with 200 votes.

Bob Bisio

Another close contest was taken by Yvonne Bordergaray. Miss Bordergaray defeated Lois Robinet for the office of Associated Women Student President by 24 votes. Miss Bordergaray received 150 votes and Miss Robinet 126 votes.

The new AWS Vice-president is Barbara Chambers. Miss Chambers received 173 votes, while her opponent, Gail Todd, collected 104 votes.

Frances Davey captured the office of AWS Secretary by defeating Elizabeth Sutton, 169 votes to 107.

Robert Seiler was uncontested for the office of Associated Men Students President, and he officially assumed office after the elections last Thursday. Seiler received 127 votes. A grand total of 147 men voted.

Richard Bunker defeated his two opponents, Robert Mills and Donald E. Giannini, for the AMS Vice-presi-

Guardsman Again Wins All-American Honors

All-American or top honors were awarded The Guardsman's Spring semester issues by the Associated Collegiate Press last week in the organization's semi-annual rating of college newspapers.

Papers are rated by reaching a previously established standard, rather than through competition with one another.

All make-up, which consists of headlines, typography and printing, is stressed as being important by the judges.

Critics who judge the entries also demand above-average news stories, features, writing, editing, editorials, columns and a lively sports page.

This is the fifth time that The Guardsman has been evaluated as All-American.

Last Fall's and a past semester's publication were estimated as First Class or excellent. However, the All-American is the highest honor that can be bestowed upon a periodical holding membership in the association.

Only one other paper received this award in the present rating.

Talent Bureau Auditions Set Friday In Room 200

Auditions for the college Talent Bureau, which was reopened this semester because of an urgent need for entertainers, will be held Friday in Room 200 from 2 to 3 p. m.

The bureau, which is under the sponsorship of Flossita Badger, music instructor, and Madison Devlin, orchestra instructor, will provide a record of performers in the college.

Singers, dancers, instrumentalists, and specialty entertainers of all kinds will be welcome, Miss Badger said last week.

Through the Talent Bureau, students will have an opportunity to entertain at college functions, the USO, and other service clubs when calls for performers come in.

Officers For CAB Will Be Elected Tomorrow In 133

Officers will be elected for the College Advisory Board at a meeting of all club representatives tomorrow at 12 o'clock in Room 133.

Bob Bisio, newly elected Associated Student president, will preside over the meeting until the president is elected.

"All clubs failing to send representatives to the meeting will have serious difficulties," Bisio stated emphatically.

The Club Advisory Board is an organization formed to sponsor new and small clubs and plan activities of its own. It also elects a representative to the Executive Council and controls granting of charters.

To obtain official recognition, a college organization must present its charter to the board, which, if it approves the charter, then recommends that the Executive Council grant official recognition.

Thanksgiving Holiday Changed To Nov. 23

Because Governor Earl Warren recently proclaimed that Thanksgiving in California will be observed Thursday, November 23, instead of November 30, the college calendar will be changed accordingly.

President A. J. Cloud made this announcement last week so that students who work on college holidays may make necessary changes in their plans early.

The confusion over the date of Thanksgiving apparently resulted despite Congressional action in 1942 which decreed that Thanksgiving should always fall on the fourth Thursday in November. This year is one of few which has five Thursdays.

Ram Second String Whips State 13 To 0

In an unscheduled game against State College the Ram second and third strings administered a trouncing last Thursday. The final score was 13 to 0.

Playing on State's junior varsity was a well known Ram alumnus, John Scharetg, who before going to State had played on the Ram eleven.

The most surprising note of the game was struck when the Rams made a conversion good. That makes the average on conversions thus far about one out of six, a not very enviable record.

Music Club Program For New Students Today In Cafeteria

Leading the reception schedule which the college Music Club offers today to all new students and faculty members, the music program will start promptly at 3 o'clock in the cafeteria, Melva Niles, club president, emphasized last week.

Details of the program were not available at press time, but performers are the same as announced last week, with the addition of Howard Vore, who will entertain the club guests with guitar selections, Miss Niles said.

Other numbers include Spanish dances by Amada George and piano solos by Helen Wheeler, and solos by Miss Niles, the college's outstanding vocalist.

Melva Niles

Miss Niles again stressed the fact that the reception is not solely for new students interested in music, but for all new students, and that refreshments will be served following the music program.

Committee members in charge of the afternoon are Barbara Healey, refreshments; Dave Greene, publicity; Virginia Franz and Barbara Scholz, decoration.

High Sophomore Class Activities Threatened

Because of lack of interest on the part of members of the High Sophomore class, all activities, including the traditional class formal, were threatened with cancellation last week.

Evidence of the lack of interest was the failure of High Sophomores to attend a meeting scheduled for last Thursday to elect officers. The meeting was called by Dean Edwin C. Browne in an effort to get class organization under way.

At the request of several individual class members, Dean Browne agreed to allow another date to be set for an election attempt. This date will be announced later.

Only once before has a High Sophomore class failed to meet to elect officers. Last Fall, administrative action demanded that a petition be signed by a representative number of class members before permiting organization.

Passing The Buck

By Henry P. Buckingham

THIS column has been cleared with Sidney.

The P. A. C., that great patriotic organization, headed by the outstanding American, Sidney Hillman, is attempting to turn the vote of the American people into a systematized P. A. C. plan whereby anyone may run for office but only a P. A. C. backed candidate can win.

At one dollar per head, sheep may climb aboard the Red (with some white and blue) wagon and ride, it has been promised, to certain victory.

Sidney's plan has met with the complete approval of many of the C. I. O. locals mainly because people like their jobs and prefer to keep them. Sidney isn't really a had egg; he was just laid on the wrong side of the ocean.

In fairness to Sidney, who is often termed Communist, let us review Sidney's past and see the truth of the charges.

First, Sidney admits himself that he is a believer in pressure politics. Sidney first entered the scene in 1936. He was then secretary of Labor's non-partisan league. John L., the brow, Lewis was its chairman. The A. L. P. was its New York affiliate.

The A. L. P. wasn't a bad outfit. It supported Roosevelt in 1936 and Dewey for district attorney in 1937. David Dubinsky, then president of the A. L. P. and the strongest single influence in New York, had one dislike that was to prove disastrous for him personally. He didn't like Communists.

After the Communists' decisive defeat in 1936, those bewildered boys were looking around for a place of shelter. Much to Dubinsky's dismay, they picked the A. L. P.

In 1939 the A. L. P. disapproved the Moscow-Berlin alliance and advocated a program of preparedness for the United States. Things began to happen fast.

Hillman, then collaborating with Knudsen and the OPM, left Washington and rushed to the Empire State to try and patch things up for the New Deal. Up to this time the left wingers had been calling Roosevelt a "war-monger" and Dubinsky a "Wall Street Lackey." Came the Russo-German war in 1941, and the left wing did a somersault and lauded Roosevelt.

The right wing and Dubinsky still supported the New Deal but refused to agree with the left wing and the Moscow influence. Sidney gained interest in the A. L. P. and saw a neat stepping stone.

Hillman became undisputed leader of the left wing of the A. L. P. The right wing of the A. L. P. under Dubinsky dropped the A. L. P. and adopted the title of Liberal Party in May, 1944.

Dubinsky was left, as Hillman had planned, holding the bag. But what a bag. In it and still in it,

Freedom Of Expression

MUCH slanderous and disreputable matter has been brought forth concerning the national presidential election.

It is unfortunate that those involved cannot remember that freedom of speech and press should fall within intelligent and respectable limits during campaign months.

With November 7 rapidly approaching, name-calling practices increase in ferocity. Original issues are now almost forgotten and in their place appear immaterial accusations.

Repercussions from this situation are being experienced even in this non-partisan newspaper, only to a smaller and less violent degree.

Recently this periodical's sole column on world affairs criticized a political party. Of course, these views are those of the writer and do not necessarily express the opinions of the editorial staff.

As this publication can only allot space for one personalized section on politics, it may seem to some that not all sides to the various topics are being presented.

This is not correct. Letters-to-the-editor department was created for just such a situation.

In this issue of The Guardsman, under the Ram's Horn, the opposing factions justifiably give their interpretations of the policies now under dispute.

Thus this college paper has recognized the advantages of an unbiased press. For in a constitutional government, the rights of the citizens must be honored and their voices heard.

This is a privilege afforded the people of the United States, a priceless opportunity that must be preserved.

It is fitting that the Associated Students' official organ of news be one of the instruments of furthering tolerance and free expression in this country.

The Spectator

TILL We Meet Again, a film which portrays the heroic resistence of the French underground, will soon be released to the public.

This is a story of the various ways that the patriots aided the pre-invasion stages of the Allied war effort, without which help much of our invasion strategy wouldn't have succeeded.

The plot tells of an American flyer shot down over France, where the underground comes to his rescue.

The American is hidden in a convent until the underground can smuggle him back to England. He is to carry very important information back with him, information which will help the invasion.

As the American cannot speak French, one of the sisters at the convent offers to guide him to the coast. They travel along posing as man and wife, through the French countryside.

Of course the Gestapo closes for the kill, only to be foiled by the gallant sacrifice of the sister.

Ray Milland takes the part of the American flyer, and Barbara Britton, a newcomer to the screen, plays the part of the sister from the convent.

Letters To The Editor

RAM'S HORN

• When In Rome?

Editor, The Guardsman:

The column, Passing The Buck, has brought the dark ages to life and placed blame on an undeserving Democratic Party; therefore, the buck must be passed back to its rightful owner.

Lumbering, stumbling, too heavy for any tedious job, too uncertain of his weight and ability to take a definite step forward, the elephant goes along as he has for years, fearing change, new ideas and the clever little donkey.

Our famous donkey may be in the middle of the stream; still it is far better to be in the middle continually fighting to free oneself of the cross currents than never to start or pause and bathe in a typical elephant fashion. A request for four more years has come to our ears, and few have been too short sighted to notice that it will be four years to free our country of the remaining small traces of depression left by the Republican Party.

Mr. Buckingham has mentioned that sarcasm and slander will not decide the nation—how true. My question is: How can he afford to

DISCussions

DOING away with many former expensive collector's items, Victor is re-issuing more than a hundred old popular hit recordings a month. Numbers by T. Dorsey, Shaw, Ellington, Goodman, Hampton and Spanier are featured. Fans will be glad to hear shipments will be constantly arriving in town until January.

One of the new Victor re-issues is Love Me or Leave Me as done by the Benny Goodman orchestra of the late thirties. It boasts of a fine tenor sax solo by Vida Musso. On the opposite side is the Goodman Trio's arrangement of Exactly Like You. Lionel Hampton sings the vocal.

As Winged Victory is due in town in a few days, it is only fitting that the album of the same name should be reviewed. The album consists of two 15 inch recordings. On one record is Winged Victory and My Dream Book of Memories, both Dave Rose tunes. The other record has The Army Air Corps Song sided with the Wiffenpoof Song. Each number displays a fine Rose string section and a large choral group of army personnel.

The army orchestra wasn't allowed to record, because of union restrictions, but the chorus on the discs is definitely army. When the show comes here, it will be on its way up from making a movie in Hollywood. It will stay here three weeks and then continue on the road until next April. If the show is equal to the quality of the music, it should be well worth seeing.

Having recorded for Eko, Howard Frederick and his band of gold have gathered quite a local group of rabid fans. Currently, his version of The Nine Twenty Special is making the rounds. Using Pete Rugulo arrangements almost entirely, the band has a definite new style.

Rugulo, now stationed at Fort Scott, has and is doing arrangements for Stan Kenton and Hal McIntre. At present the band is appearing at 170 Valencia Street every Friday night. Although the band now has a crude attack, it is one to watch, for as soon as it has developed smoothness, it will surely go places.

An apology should be made to the readers of this column, if any, for Crosby's version of I'll Remember April is pitiful. Using a breathing technique that would rival Skinnay Ennis, Bing sounds old, tired and defeated. Considering his cracking of his voice at inopportune times and using old, abandoned Sinatra styles, Bing is definitely off his usual form on this recording.

Club Cavalcade . . .

By Dorothy Burley
And Carol Kripp

•Alpha Delta Epsilon: The college art society has started the new semester with 20 members. A party is planned for this Friday.

•Alpha Lambda Chi: The sorority is making plans for its second rush party which will be a breakfast-barbecue on November 5.

•Beta Phi Beta: The first joint meeting of the fraternity will be with the Alpha Lambda Chi sorority this Friday.

•Chinese Club: Everyone is invited to attend the club's skating party which will be at Rollerland, 55th Street and Telegraph Avenue in Oakland. The date is November 12, and the admission is 45 cents.

•Epsilon Epsilon Epsilon: The traditional pledge week of the fraternity will take place from October 30 to November 3. John Martin, recently discharged from the army, has returned to the college and is once more an active fraternity member.

•Forum Club: Meeting for election of officers will be held at Adviser Dorothy Mercer's home, 2251 Jackson Street, this Friday at 8 p. m. The subject for discussion at this meeting will be the Presidential Election. There will be speakers on behalf of Norman Thomas, Thomas E. Dewey and Franklin D. Roosevelt. Everyone is invited to attend.

•Home Economics Association: Instructor Frances Mount has invited all students of the Home Economics Department to attend a Hallowe'en party at the Residence Club tonight at 7:30. Women planning to attend are asked to see Mildred Fusco, president of the association, or to sign up in Room 158 as soon as possible.

•Kappa Phi: The second rush party of the sorority will be a dinner given by the alumni on Sunday, October 29. Ella Nowell, business department, is the new sponsor.

•Phi Beta Rho: There will be a meeting tonight to make further plans for a second rush party which will take place on November 2.

•Theta Tau: The sorority's first rush party will be a coffee at the St. Francis Hotel tomorrow night. Recent announcement was made of Alice Hilliker's marriage to Ensign Myron Du Bain, a former Beta Tau, and of Dorothy Burley's engagement to Lieutenant Collins Orton, also a Beta Tau.

•Engineering Society: The club's first meeting of the semester will be this Sunday, October 29, at 10:30 a. m. at the home of the faculty adviser, William Mayo, 510 Crestlake Drive. Nomination of officers, a discussion of future policy, and refreshments will be the major business of the day. All students of mathematics, physics and chemistry as well as engineering are invited to attend.

•Music Club: First meeting Monday, October 30, 8 o'clock, at the home of Howard Vore, 200 Kenwood Way.

Cal Frosh Game Saturday

Rams Trounce Menlo 24 To 13; Newell-Cronn Combo May Decide Rambler Tilt

Fulfilling the high hopes of victory which the team had resting on its shoulders, the Rams took the Menlo team last Wednesday to the score of 24 to 13.

One weakness that showed up in the game was the Ram inability to make conversions good. Too many football games have been lost through this inability, and perhaps a little more practice on conversion kicking wouldn't do any harm.

The first quarter had hardly opened when quarterback George Newell shot a nice 25 yard pass to right end Jim Cronn, who carried it over for a score of 6.

There were no more fireworks until the second quarter, when three touchdowns were scored. The Newell-Cronn combo clicked again with another 25 yard pass that went over for a touchdown. The third throw for paydirt went to Jack White, who trotted over for a score. A short three minutes later, Pete Milat broke away for a 30 yard gallop that got over the line for the team's final score.

At the beginning of the second half the Menlo men's attack began to click. With a series of passes and reverses from deep within their own territory they marched over for a touchdown. They made their conversion, giving them a score of 7.

Menlo's second touchdown was made on a blooper, the likes of which has never been seen before.

The Rams had the ball on their own 20, when a bad pass from center bounced off the helmet of one of the men in the backfield. A Menlo man jogged through the line, caught the ball on the bounce and carried it over for a touchdown.

If the Newell-Cronn combo, which synchronized so well in the Menlo game, can keep its good work in the Cal Rambler tussle this Saturday, the Rams should come through with another victory.

Kickoff is at noon this Saturday in the Berkeley Memorial Stadium.

The Ramblers are composed entirely of freshmen, but one must remember that the Cal varsity is also mostly freshmen, and the varsity doesn't play such a bad game.

If the local eleven does score a victory, it would be a definite feather in the team's cap, as this is one of the strongest teams that the Rams have come up against.

Coach Lee Eisan gave the following lineup as the probable Ram starters:

Center: Dick Wilson; Guards: Charles Bodimer, John Mappeli; Tackles: Vic Pudlowski, Ed Tomaselli; Ends: Jim Cronn, John Lopeman; Fullback: Bob Seiler; Quarterback: George Newell; Lefthalf: Perry Midbust; Righthalf: Joe Kane.

The final game on the schedule will be with Sacramento Junior College on Armistice Day on Sacramento's own home grounds.

make such a statement when the Republican candidate spends time and energy filling the world with the most slanderous speeches in history and Buckingham, himself, has put a perfect example of sarcasm and slander in our college paper.

The age old totalitarian practice of taking one sentence from an opponent's speech and misconstruing the original meaning has been freely used by the Republican candidate in a vain attempt to direct attention away from much published facts.

In my opinion, Mr. Buckingham's synonym for donkey might best be applied to Mr. Buckingham. When in Rome do as the Romans do, so I have answered in a language that Buckingham will well understand, for he has become euphiustic and his column has lost all semblance of clear reasoning.

WAA Elects Officers; Sue Miles New Leader

Sue Miles was elected President of the Women's Athletic Association for the current semester, at a meeting held last week. She will represent the association on the Executive Council.

Other officers, who from WAA's governing council, are Cordelia Van Scoyoc, vice-president; Joan Ponting, secretary and Janice Beanston, treasurer. All four council members were active in athletics here last year.

Bobbie Mercer, former WAA treasurer, submitted the semester budget at the same meeting which the council approved. This budget will supply the gymnasium with athletic equipment and needed funds for playdays.

WAA Basketball, Bowling, Riding Begin This Week

Three of the six Women's Athletic Association sports will start this week, times to be announced on the bulletin board, Bertha Mae Keller, WAA adviser, said last Friday.

These sports are basketball with Sue Miles as manager, bowling with Helen Nelson as manager, and horseback riding with Anita Geiger as manager.

The other three sports, badminton, swimming and tennis, will not start unless the quota of 15 members is filled, Miss Keller said, and today will be the last time for signups.

AMS Renews Feud With Faculty Team

Still stinging from the 16 to 15 softball defeat they had to absorb last year, the Associated Men Students, under the leadership of President Bob Seiler, asked for revenge this year by formally issuing a challenge last week to the male instructors of the faculty.

An answer to the challenge of the AMS is expected next week from Jack Brady, captain of the victorious faculty team of last year.

Seiler already has a tentative lineup selected. It is as follows: Joe Kane, first base; Ed Tomaselli, second base; Charles Bodemer, third base; George Newell, shortstop; Dick Wilson, left field; Vic Pudlowski, center field; Perry Midbust, right field; Dick Bunker, catcher, and Bob Seiler, pitcher.

The same old slogan, "We can beat the faculty anytime, anyplace, anywhere, rain or shine, war or peace," still holds, Seiler said.

Block SF Men To Elect Officers Tomorrow

To elect new officers for the coming year, a meeting of the Block SF Society will be held tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock. Former Society president and newly elected leader of the Associated Men Students, Bob Seiler, will preside at the meeting.

Seiler urged all the members of the varsity football team to attend, although only the old members of the society will be allowed to vote.

Officers of the society last year besides Seiler were Al Gorbenko, vice-president; Donald Tong, secretary, and Joe Spillane, Executive Council representative.

is a complete and organized labor party. In it is Earl Browder, who, thanks to Sidney, won the A. L. P. primaries. In it is a dainty little group of racketeers and mobsters not far removed from their predecessors, the prohibition boys. Controlling and clearing through Sidney is Moscow.

The fact that Hillman's A. L. P. does not believe in the two party system does not make it foreign. The fact that it does resent the existence of the middle class makes it un-American.

Alpha Gamma Sigma Plans Meeting Tomorrow At 1

First meeting of the Alpha Gamma Sigma Scholastic Honor Society for this semester will be held tomorrow at 1 p. m. in Room 256. Edwin A. Cranston, society adviser, asked that all the members attend the meeting.

Only two entering students have applied for membership in the society on the basis of a high scholastic record in high school. They are, Marilyn Zeto and Gwendolyn Slovenko.

All new students who are Gold Seal Bearers or who have an equivalent scholastic record were urged by Cranston to apply for membership.

Cranston announced that the following students met the requirements for membership in the Alpha Gamma Sigma during the Spring semester:

Muriel Anderson, Audrey Armstrong, Gertrude Ash, Betty Attwater, Marilyn Blake, Virginia Bunting, Marian Cahill, Mary Calhan, Audrey Cameron, Barbara Caswell, Gloria Clavora, Betty Clement, Lorraine Cleveland, Lillian Cozine, Ruth Dahlgren, Violet Desmond, Edith Dresdner, Elizabeth Eichler, Peter Garlaeff, Lorraine Gay, Jeanne Gliebe, Barbara Grant, Lily Gyn, Edward Hee, Arthur Jue.

Harry Kiefer, Alice Kung, Him Lai, George Lohneis, Clara Luccearini, Marcella McMackin, Mary Ella Maguire, Laura Miller, Mary Patterson, Blanche Regalia, Quinton Robertson, Lois Robinet, Shirley Ro[illegible] Pauline Short, Shirley Sillinerl, Charles Smith; Peggy Stewart, Jean Stohl, Eudora Sutton, Alma Taylor, Jean Tomrell, Constance Trigonis, Jack Troy.

During the summer semester, the following students met the requirements for membership: Lois Beckman, Stanley Bell, Jacqueline Glessner, Fred Lahn, Thomas Linney, Isabel MacLeod, Nadine O'Brien, Michele Perks, Henry Stashik, Claire Stewart, Helen Taylor.

Four students met the membership requirements during both the spring semester and the summer semester. They are Beatrice Baer, Josephine Butala, Albert Horn, Carolyn Righetti.

Membership requirements are a total of 30 grade points with a minimum of 12 units, excluding physical education.

dential office. Bunker polled 65 votes, Mills polled 50 votes and Giannini trailed with 32 votes.

In the hottest contest the college has seen in its history, Elmer Hagland and Collin Tooley slugged it out till the counting of the final vote. Hagland defeated Tooley by the very small margin of 3 votes. Hagland received 75 votes and Tooley followed close behind with 72 votes.

It has been suggested that a portion of the Trinity College campus in Washington, D. C., be turned into a poultry farm to help in the shortage of poultry products.

The Dean's Nightmare

Although warning was issued last week that pink slips (tags, according to Dean Edwin C. Browne) would await parking violators, some drivers continue to fail to take the warning seriously.

Illustrated above is one of the nightmare reasons for the Dean's warning. It was drawn in 1941 by Nadan Chiladoux, Guardsman artist now with the army, for the same purpose for which it is resurrected now—to avoid accidents, damage and congestion.

Those were the days before construction of the circular drive back of the college provided ample and convenient parking space (now sometimes over-run with glass).

No excuse now exists for hazarding repetition of the nightmare suggested above, Dean Browne warned last week, repeating that the official Police Department tags will be decorating the windshields of cars parked in violation of the no hill parking edict.

Exceptions to this rule, allowed by the Dean, are indicated by a notice on the windshields of the cars excepted.

Dean Browne also suggested that the football field has other purposes than to serve as a parking lot. The greensward, undampened until last week, is for football and baseball. Tracks made in the turf by faculty and student cars that have been seen parked there, interfere, he pointed out, with the prescribed uses for the field.

Three Million Building Plan Up For Adoption

Approximately three million dollars may be expended within the next six years for the development of the college, provided the budget submitted by the Board of Education recently to the Board of Supervisors is approved.

For the cafeteria and the administration building purposes, $962,000; to be used in the building of an auditorium, $495,000; for renewal of library book stock, $625,000.

For the men's gymnasium there is to be $124,000; for the women's gymnasium, $179,000. For ground development, $290,000 is provided, and for the expansion of the playground, $250,000; $250,000 is alloted for a proposed swimming pool.

Edwin E. Niccolls, deputy superintendent in charge of physical properties for the school department, said that all these figures are tentative and that some changes in the proposed projects may be made because of conditions prevailing at the period when such improvements are scheduled to become effective.

Drake University recently received $200,000 from the Gardner Cowles foundation to build and equip a science building to be known as Harvey Ingham science hall.

College Enrollment Reaches 1280 Mark

College enrollment figures up to date are approximately 1280, according to Mary Jane Learnard, assistant registrar.

Any student who changes his program must do so by filling an official change of program slip, Miss Learnard said. These slips are obtainable at the registrar's office.

She also emphasized that registration in all classes has been closed; however, courses can be dropped until Wednesday, November 22, with the exception of the 8 week business courses, which cannot be dropped after Friday, November 3.

All incomplete grades incurred last semester must be removed by Friday, November 3, she cautioned.

Boris Goudonouv Selections Featured On Music Hour

Featured on the music hour program for next Tuesday, October 31 is the Coronation Scene from the opera Boris Godonouv by Moussorgsky, with Feador Chaliapin, basso, the soloist, according to Madison Devlin, instructor in the course.

Also presented will be the Marriage of Figaro by Mozart.

The state public library at Leningrad, Russia, recently received a shipment of books from the University of California.

Placement Office Urges Early Job Applications

Applications for work during the Christmas holidays are now being taken, Edward W. Larson, placement director here, announced last week.

Students were urged by Larson to make applications early in anticipation of the holiday rush. Manpower clearances are necessary before any interviews for Christmas jobs are made, he warned. These clearances are issued by Larson.

Among a wide variety of part time jobs offered by the placement office is a heavy demand for women who can take shorthand, do clerical work, type, or operate office machines. For the men students, jobs are open of the semi-skilled and labor class. Work is offered either on Saturdays or afternoons and Saturday.

Applications for Post Office jobs are not open yet for Christmas. Notice will be given through The Guardsman, Larson promised, as soon as definite information is received. The placement office is in Room 155 and is open from 1 to 4 p. m. daily except Tuesdays.

Steps In Cork Industry On Exhibit Here

Exhibited briefly last week in the first floor case near the college entrance were some of the results of the four-year California cork oak planting program in which certain state agricultural interests see beginnings of "a potential ten million dollar industry" that may eliminate dependence on European impoit.

Highlights in the planting and harvesting of cork, now an essential material for the army and navy, were brought to the college in photographs and actual cork products through the courtesy of John Brucato, agricultural manager of the San Francisco Water Department, Public Utilities Commission. Rough cork logs and steel saws for cutting them, cork particles of many uses, a life buoy and the photographs of California (Millbrae) plantings were exhibited to San Franciscans the week previous in the City Hall Rotunda.

John E. Ross En Route To Cairo For UNRRA

John E. Ross, economics and sociology instructor now on leave, has been appointed to the Balkan mission of the UNRRA and will leave for Cairo en route to Yugoslavia, a letter to President A. J. Cloud recently disclosed.

Ross, who was co-sponsor of the Forum Club while here, will serve in the civilian capacity of chief distribution officer from this country.

Dr. Alonzo F. Myers, chairman of the higher education department of New York University school of education, is chairman of a special commission to study and prepare plans for an international education organization.

CAB Names Chambers Leader; Charters Due By Wednesday

Barbara Chambers was elected president of the Club Advisory Board at a meeting last week of all club representatives.

Other officers elected were Bob Seiler as Vice-president and Anita Gieger as secretary.

"Charters for new clubs may not be submitted after Wednesday, November 8," Miss Chambers immediately decreed.

CAB rules provide that a college organization must present its charter to the board before it is recommended to the Executive Council which grants official recognition.

Application blanks, which must be filled when submitting a charter, are being distributed by Bob Bisio, Associated Student president.

"The Club Advisory Board is the most influential organization in the college," Bisio stated.

Seventeen clubs were recognized last year. They are as follows:

Alpha Delta Epsilon, art society; Alpha Gamma Sigma, scholastic honor society; Alpha Lambda Chi, sorority; Beta Tau, fraternity; Bible Study Club; Chinese Students' Club; Engineering Society; Forum Club;

Home Economics Association; Kappa Phi, sorority; Newman Club; Omicron Phi Pi, economics honor society; Phi Beta Rho, sorority; Pi Mu Gamma, pre-medical; Pi Mu Nu, pre-nursing; Tri Epsilon, fraternity; Theta Tau, sorority.

College Radio Presents Program Today At 9:45

Commemorating the discovery of San Francisco, a program featuring Alphonso Zirpoli will be presented over the college's radio system from 9:45 to 10 o'clock today, President A. J. Cloud announced last week.

Today was recently set aside as San Francisco Day by the Board of Supervisors.

At one-time Assistant United States District Attorney for this area, Zirpoli is the brother-in-law of former graduate Fred Campagnoli, who is now on duty somewhere in the South Pacific.

Navy Lieutenant Campagnoli married Ernestine Cervelli, who was also Associated Student Vice-president here in Spring, 1943.

Music Hour Features Scheherazade Tuesday

Rimsky-Korsakow's ever-popular Scheherazade Suite will be the theme of next Tuesday's music hour program, Madison Devlin, instructor of the course, announced last week.

Because of the numerous requests, all four parts of the melodic suite are scheduled to be played.

Ex-Council Names Committees, Grants Budgets; Frosh May Elect Officers

With all members attending the first meeting last week, the Executive Council named four standing committees, discussed whether freshmen would be permitted to elect class officers, and granted four budget requests.

Although the Welfare, Finance, Judiciary and Publicity committees were established, only the name of the chairman of each group was issued by Bob Bisio, president of the Associated Students.

Bisio announced that Ed Clinton would head the Welfare Committee, which will take charge of the rally commissioner and yell leader posts this semester. No reason for this procedure was offered.

Finance committee's functions will be handled by Orve Chandler, while Charles Baker will assist the student-government in judiciary problems.

Virginia Franz, last Spring's Associated Student secretary, was appointed to further college publicity. Social, Publication and Scholastic committees still have to be organized by Bisio.

That the council establish an Award Committee that would have jurisdiction over pins, medals and blocks given to students in various activities, was suggested by Luther Lyon, college controller.

This plan received encouraging comments but was tabled for further investigation.

Because the freshman class now totals more than 600 students, Bisio stated that he thought they should be allowed to elect leaders.

However, the proposal met with opposition when Roberta Mathews, vice-president of the Associated Students, said there was no actual duties for freshman officers.

As there was no action taken, additional discussion is expected at the regular roll-call tomorrow in Room 133 at 11 o'clock.

The council also transferred $6,000 from the general reserve fund to the undistributed budgets. Lyon then submitted four requisitions.

Granted appropriations ran as follows: Administration, $100; Controller, $100; Dramatics, $100, and Men's Athletic Council, $900.

High Sophomores To Hold Election Tomorrow At 12

High Sophomores will have another opportunity to elect class officers tomorrow at 12 o'clock in Room 133.

Tom Wilson, class adviser, will preside at the meeting until the elections are completed.

This is the second attempt to organize the class so that a budget may be submitted to the Executive Council to provide for traditional Sophomore Week activities. A meeting set for October 19 was unattended by class members.

AMS To Give Barn Dance November 18

Associated Men Students will lead off their semester activities with a barn dance Saturday, November 18, Bob Seiler, AMS president, said last week.

As yet the location for the dance has not been decided. All students of the college will be welcomed, Seiler explained.

Admission will be, as usual, one Associated Student card per couple.

Other AMS activities planned last week by Tom Wilson, AMS adviser, and Seiler, are two mixer dances in the cafeteria. The Associated Women Students will cooperate with the AMS in both affairs. No definite dates have been set.

"We may posisbly have a bonfire rally on November 10, before the football game with Sacramento Junior College," Seiler said.

The AMS and AWS dance has been tentatively set for December 30, but no location has been decided upon so far.

Boxing matches, three-man intramural basketball championship, badminton and entertainment have been temporarily set for January 31 as the climax to AMS activities for the semester.

AWS To Entertain Women At Dessert Party This Friday

Associated Women Students will honor freshmen with a dessert tea for college women this Friday, November 3, in Room 158. It will be held from 1 to 3 o'clock, according to Yvonne Bordegaray, AWS president.

Miss Bordegaray urged all freshmen to attend the tea, that they may become better acquainted with their officers.

The committee for the tea includes the AWS officers, Barbara Chambers, vice-president; Frances Davey, secretary, and Miss Bordegaray.

The following women compose the rest of the committee: Bessie Angelos, Charmaine Beckman, Florence Bordegaray, Pat Davis, Virginia Franz, Dolores Fauss, Ramona Frechette, Mildred Fusco, Anita Geiger, Doris Gibson, Gene Heinle, Pat Hutchings, Beverly Jack, Carol Kripp, Cornelia Mason, Bobbie Mathews, Catherine May, Claire McGlenon, Bobbie Mercer, Sue Miles, Anita Morholt, Tina Paladini, Patty Parks, Jeanette Polonsky, Joan Ponting, Lois Robinet, Beth Sutton, Gail Todd, Connie Trigonis, Cordelia Van Soya and Norma Wong.

Organizations Must Submit Budgets To Controller

Although a definite date has not been set for submission of budgets, Luther Lyon, controller, urged that all organizations get their budgets in as soon as possible as figures are being drawn up to present to the Executive Council.

Bobby Ford—A War Veteran At 16

By Theodora Wong

He is sixteen, he is at the college after being twice overseas, and after the whole war's over, he wants to go back to school.

That is the Tom Sawyer story of stubby, bright-eyed Bobby Ford, youngest member of the Maritime Service crew in the college cafeteria, who left the seventh grade at Weleetka, Oklahoma, and by claiming his age as 18, became a U. S. army air force private in 1942.

Bobby Ford

Although he was in khaki for more than a year, it was with the merchant marine and not the army that Bobby went overseas. Late in 1942 as he was almost ready with tetanus shots under his arm and overseas equipment packed, to embark with the 23rd Transport Squadron, a major checked Bobby's age and found he was not yet 15.

Bobby was left behind at Morrison Field, Florida, to work in the armor school. Professional pride came to Bobby and his buddies when newspapers printed the story of Doolittle's raid on Tokyo—they recognized the same B-25 planes they had repaired months before.

After his discharge from the army November 25, 1943, Bobby came west to work in a shipyard, but instead he shipped out first on a tanker, and the second time on a Liberty ship, seeing marines and

Passing The Buck

By Henry P. Buckingham

THIS WEEK'S FIRECRACKER

This column has completed the most successful week in its short history. Opinions expressed by its many readers have been both pro and con. Opinions always have and always will be acceptable, and they are welcomed by this columnist and the entire staff of the paper. This column has used a policy of free press coupled with the columnist's sincere belief in the facts printed.

At 6:15 p. m. on Wednesday last this columnist received an anonymous telephone call. The person making this call referred to herself as a student of the San Francisco Junior College. She proceeded to call this columnist a yellow journalist, and in no uncertain terms threatened this column with "exposure."

In another anonymous call, to the faculty adviser of The Guardsman, she informed the flabbergasted faculty adviser that this columnist was a member of the Hearst Newspapers' payroll, that this columnist did not write his own material but received his columns from a professional writer of the Hearst staff. In short, this columnist was referred to as a stooge of the Republican party and a tool of the Hearst Syndicate.

It is the opinion of this columnist that such utter stupidity could not and would not come from one of our Associated Students. Other proof substantiates this. Indeed, we would like to believe that the call came from a crackpot, so often the nemesis of political writers.

To the radical or crackpot or whatever the woman is, the following is emphatically addressed: If you will divulge your name to us, and we are certain that you haven't the intestinal fortitude to do so, we will promptly have you arrested for using a public communications system for personal threats and slander of The Guardsman and this columnist.

YOU HAVE YOURS

But our opinion was and still is that the next president of the United States should be THOMAS E. DEWEY.

We have pointed out that the men behind Roosevelt are cause enough not to vote for him, let alone his foreign policy and personal failures. If, when you step into the voting booth, you can honestly say that you agree with Flynn, Hague, Kelley, Hillman, Hannaghan, Truman, Barkley, Welles, Gahagan, Pepper and a fourth term for any man, then pull the lever you are completely tied to.

FINISH

And now this column closes the books on a national election, undoubtedly the most eventful in the history of the college. It leaves many friends and some enemies; enemies only because they think that all people should agree with their opinion.

The greatest thing in this world is not so much where we stand as in what direction we are moving.—Oliver Wendell Holmes.

Greatest Force In World—Education

USING the slogan, Education for New Tasks, American Education Week will begin this coming Sunday. During that period, meetings and special events are planned in which various topics concerning the week's general theme will be presented and discussed.

These activities originally started in an information campaign that was established to draw the citizen's attention to a critical condition which resulted from the first World War.

Institutions of learning then experienced an acute shortage of instructors, which caused the closing of thousands of schools.

With academic circles today warning that an identical situation may soon arise, public enlightenment concerning these problems is absolutely essential.

Therefore, a purpose of American Education Week is to insure efficient preparation of the people so that the United States will not repeat the same tragic mistakes that followed the last fierce conflict.

Logically, the immediate job ahead is to help bring the war to a rapid and decisive conclusion. Realizing a full responsibility toward the fight against the enemy, colleges have contributed eight million trained men and women for positions in industry.

Equipment of individuals who will govern themselves intelligently and confront issues successfully is the principal goal of the country's educational program.

As a recent Washington booklet emphasized, "If this nation values its own future, it must awaken to the power of the greatest force in the world—education."

THE Princess and the Pirate, the latest Bob Hope movie comedy, takes place aboard the Mary Ann, a ship sailing from England to America during colonial times. On board are Sylvester the Great, a one-man sideshow, and an erstwhile princess who is taking it on the lam from the old country.

Before they have a chance to get acquainted, the Jolly Roger appears over the horizon, and the Hook, a notorious pirate, sweeps down with his swashbuckling crew to take possession of the Mary Ann.

The rest of the show relates the antics of Sylvester the Great and the pirate crew aboard the Mary Ann.

Hope is the one-man sideshow, and the princess is Virginia Mayo. Victor MacLaughlin is good as the notorious Hook. Sprinkled around through the cast are such favorites as Walter Slezac and Walter Brennan as an old 4F pirate.

This is another great Hope opus which is as good as Sam Goldwyn and technicolor can make it. The Princess and the Pirate is replete with good gags and lush tropical scenery, and it's good for a lot of belly laughs.

Letters To The Editor

RAM'S HORN

• Sturdy And Staunch He Stands

Editor, The Guardsman:

As a student I am somewhat confused by the editorial policy of our college paper. Since ours is a tax-supported public school, it is strange that the political viewpoint expressed by our school columnists is entirely Republican, to the extent of making the paper appear a small edition of the EXAMINER. The inspiration of my outpouring is Mr. Buckingham's concern with political elephants and donkeys. May I remind him that the elephant he so admires, has the smallest mental capacity in proportion to the largest body in the animal kingdom? What a fitting symbol for a political party that has contributed Harding, Coolidge, Hoover, C. Luce, depressions, unemployment, and an attitude on foreign affairs, which encouraged Fascism and World War II! On the other hand, the donkey is a sturdy and staunch animal able to climb the steepest mountain paths with heavy burdens. This same donkey is the symbol of the Democratic party which has carried out nation through the most dangerous days of an elephant-caused depression and war.

If we have a free press, Mr. Editor, how about publishing this as a reflection of the sentiments of the Democratic students of the college, of which there are plenty!

DISCussions

DUKE ELLINGTON is so fine, so advanced that it is only correct to devote at least a few paragraph to reviews of some of his many recordings. If the reader will note all of the following tunes may not be listed under the Ellington banner, but his influence is very, very obvious.

First of all, Bluebird has re-issued Passion Flower as done by an Ellington group under the direction of Johnnie Hodges. The Duke is present at the piano and is accompanied by many of his more apt pupils.

Billy Strayhorn, Ellington's protege, is the creator of this amazing composition, which features weird and unusual harmony. To understand it all, the listener must review it with perseverence. It is so involved that many will pass it off as being meaningless. On the contrary, it has so much meaning.

To get really technical, it is a combination of French impressionism and the use of a coming phase of modern jazz, that of the fuller use of chromatic harmony. It exhibits the amazing slurring ability of Hodges and the bass work of the late Jimmy Blanton. Whether with a group or not, Blanton always played IDEAS. This is definitely not a record to be listened to casually but rather one to be studied intensely.

On the other side is Going Out The Back Door. It, too, features the work of Blanton. Although he died when he was only 19, Jimmy was accepted by every student of modern music as an absolute genius. He started his own school of thought and brought the bass fiddle into its own as a solo instrument.

Moon Mist, a Victor re-issue, was written by Mercer Ellington, the Duke's son. This record is hard to describe, for everyone who hears it will come away with a different impression, if any at all. It features the electric violin of Ray Nance, who regularly plays trumpet with the band, and Lawrence Brown's legit trombone. Hodges' work can't be classified either, for he is so completely individualistic that he can't be compared with anyone else.

C Jam Blues, which is sided with Moon Mist, is just a parade of soloists. There's Rex Stuart with his aroused cornet, Sam Nanton and his tricky trombone, and Barney Bigard.

Rams Smash Cal Ramblers

Power Play, Pass Tally For 13 To 0

With a series of passes and runs, Lee Eisan's Rams ran up a score of 13 to 0 to smash a Cal Rambler team that was fighting every moment of the game last Saturday.

In the first quarter, quarterback George Newell threw a 25 yard pass to right end Jim Cronn who went over for a touchdown. The touchdown was called back however because of penalties. Not discouraged by this setback, the Rams, with a series of powerhouse plays, marched the ball down to the one yard line, where Captain Joe Kane took it over for the touchdown. The conversion was not good.

No more scoring was made until the fourth quarter, when Newell caught a punt and ran it back for 25 yards. With the ball on Cal's 20, Newell threw a pass into the end zone which was scooped up by right end Bill Brennan for another touchdown. The conversion was good, made by a pass thrown by center George Fabian to Cronn.

The Cal team played hard football all through the game, but even so were able to get into Ram territory only once. This was largely due to the fine defensive work done by the Ram line. The backfield was never badly bothered by any of Cal's forward wall, because of the excellent line play.

With two more games to go, neither of which should give the Rams more trouble than did the Ramblers, the Ram eleven has an impressive season already on the record.

Of six games played, only one was a loss, that against Modesto in which the Rams counted for 7 against Modesto's 12. A review of the other games shows the Rams taking Washington High for 20 to 0, Camp Parks for 12 to 2, Menlo for 24 to 13, and Saturday the Cal Ramblers 13 to 0. The sixth game saw the Ram second and third strings playing State's varsity and making good 13 to 0.

Brady Accepts AMS Game Challenge

Jack Brady, captain of the triumphant faculty softball team of last year, officially accepted the challenge that Bob Seiler, Associated Men Student president, issued last week through The Guardsman.

Brady was surprised that the challenge was not given to him by Seiler personally, but he has high hopes that it will be done next year. It seems that Brady likes lip arguments with challenges.

Because of lack of manpower, Brady is uncertain whether the faculty can field a team representative of the faculty's past performances. Several members have departed from the educational grind.

"I will try my best to field a team," he said. "We are not backing out."

A date is indefinite until a faculty team is assembled.

Brady is keeping his fingers crossed that the tentative lineup he announced will be able to play. The men of the AMS will shake in their boots when they read the following lineup: Instructors Oscar Anderson, Jack Brady, Madison Devlin, Lee Eisan, John Gerstung, Edward Sandys, Jules Fraden, Glenn Noble, and Llewellyn Snyder reads like a Yankee roster of the hey-days. A prominent name is missing from the faculty team. Dean Edwin C. Browne is still taking vitamin capsules following last year's game.

Bisio To Name Intra Sports Director

That a student intramural sports director and staff will be appointed soon was announced last week by Associated Student President Bob Bisio.

To date, plans are indefinite, but the Associated Men Students have said that they intend to get the college's women students interested in intramural sports activities. They expect to have the new program running in full swing within a few weeks.

Fullest cooperation was asked for by Bisio of all of the college's clubs and organizations, as soon as they start functioning.

Plans as tentatively scheduled are to have all men's intramural under the control of the AMS President, Bob Seiler, and the women's under AWS President, Yvonne Bordergaray.

WAA's First Playday Friday With Washington

First play-day of the Women's Athletic Association will be held this Friday with Washington High School in the women's gymnasium at 3:30, Sue Miles, WAA president, said last week.

A second play-day is tentatively scheduled at San Mateo Junior College, which requested that the WAA here meet at San Mateo either the latter part of November or the first of December.

Four other junior colleges within the bay area are expected to be represented, and badminton, archery, tennis and basketball will highlight the day's activities.

Three WAA Sports Activities Scheduled

With a signup of approximately 20 women in each of three Women's Athletic Association sports, the association's semester activities were definitely started last week.

The complete schedule was approved by Bertha Mae Keller, WAA adviser.

Bowling, which started last Tuesday, will be held every week from 2:30 to 5 p. m. at the Lincoln Bowl. On Monday afternoon, at the same time, tennis and badminton, under the managership of Jean Fitter, are played in the women's gymnasium.

Swimming Removed From Physical Ed. Program

Swimming is not to be included in women's Physical Education this semester, Bertha Mae Keller, women's physical education instructor, announced last week.

Any woman who is unable to swim, however, may learn via the Women's Athletic Association which includes swimming as part of its activity.

Ram Gridmen Engage Hollister Saturday

A Ram team that has seen only one defeat so far this season will play a game with Hollister this Saturday. The kickoff will be at 12 noon.

The other definitely scheduled game is with Sacramento Junior College, to be played as has been said before, at Sacramento.

If the team can come through with winners in these two games, this will have been one of the most successful wartime seasons that the eleven has seen. In fact one might venture to say that this has been one of the Ram's most successful seasons in the college's history.

Cork: A Critical War Material And Necessary Peacetime Commodity

By L. J. Smith

Speaking with well deserved authority, John G. Brucato, superintendent Agriculture Division of the San Francisco Water Department, and George D. Greenan, supervisor of the Cork Project in California for Western Crown Cork and Seal Corporation discussed California's newly acquired cork industry here last week.

During the interview it was disclosed that cork is vitally needed for cartridge plugs, bomb parts, and gaskets during wartime, and has also many common peacetime uses.

Until a few years ago, cork oak trees, grew unnoticed throughout California, and the United States shipped needed supplies from the Mediterranean countries. Reaching full maturity in 20 years, the tree may then be stripped of virgin bark every four years.

Brucato himself became interested in the new industry about one year ago and has undertaken many worthwhile experiments in addition to his complete jurisdiction of 60,000 acres of land which is leased out for agricultural purposes.

The exhibit on display last week in the front hall of the college and the City Hall has created widespread interest.

Greenan expressed a general hope that within the next score years "a sufficient number of trees will be growing in California producing enough bark to take care of western requirements, and that with projects under development in other states it will eventually free America from its dependence upon Europe for this vital material."

American Ed. Week Begins Next Sunday

American Education Week is planned for the week of November 5 to 11, inclusive, in accordance with plans laid down by the Citizen's Committee, headed by Mayor Roger D. Lapham.

The week's activities are sponsored jointly by the American Legion, the United States Office of Education, the National Congress of Parents and Teachers, and the National Educational Association.

To bring into emphatic view the many problems that beset the educational functions, the following topics have been chosen for discussion: Bettering Community Life, Building Worldwide Brotherhood, Developing an Enduring Peace, Education of All People, Enriching Our Cultural Heritage, Improving Schools for Tomorrow, and Preparing for a New Technology.

"The theme for the honored week—'Education for New Tasks'—is highly appropriate in view of the present world conditions," said Chester R. MacPhee, temporary chairman of the San Francisco Citizen's Committee.

Plans for college participation have not been decided upon as yet.

Drama Group Casting Parts For Letters To Lucern

Casting of Letters to Lucern, by Fritz Rotter and Allen Vincent, the first three-act drama of the semester, is under way, Ruth Somers, college drama instructor, announced last week.

The opening date of the play is indefinite, but it is expected to be within five weeks, Mrs. Somers said.

Those included in the cast are Marcia Drains, Arlene Engeran, Frances Erceg, Evelyn Hanson, Betty Howard, Gloria Kane, Hilda Macomber, Rosalie Rhode, Celeste Rose, Midge Redmond, Marvelle Smith and Gail Todd.

Among the men who volunteered for non-credit to help ease the manpower shortage are Emmett Roger, Gilbert Black and Louis Field.

soldiers in action in the South Pacific. The only "action" at sea, he said, was the first time he heard a general alarm on board ship. Amid the clanging bells and noisy shouts, Bobby was the first to reach deck from the cook's galley. However, only an Allied plane was flying overhead, and nothing else for alarm was sighted the rest of the trip.

Like other Maritime Service men now at the college, Bobby is studying for a higher rating and will complete his course November 17; then he'll go back to sea.

Cafeteria Fountain Open Until 2 O'Clock Daily

An additional half hour of cafeteria fountain service has been announced by Helen Warnock, cafeteria manager.

In the future, breakfast will be served from 8:30 to 10 a. m., lunch from 11 to 1:30 p. m. and fountain service until 2 o'clock.

America Votes!

Presidential Preferences--And Why

EDITOR'S NOTE: Since the subject of the next president of the United States is a highly controversial one, The Guardsman herewith presents opinions of prominent students representing both sides. The Guardsman makes no attempt to side with one or the other. Read them both, then decide for yourselves the better candidate.

Dewey

On the evening of November 7, I, like most other Americans, will be at my radio eagerly listening to the national election returns pouring in from all over the nation.

I shall be rooting for Tom Dewey.

My reasons are manifold:

I shall be hoping fervently for Dewey's election, because under President Dewey we shall have at least a chance at the unity which the New Deal has never been able to bring this nation—unity of purpose and outlook, of spirit and of mind.

Because Tom Dewey as President will be a people's executive who will see to it that the will of the people be imposed upon the government rather than the will of the government on the people.

Because Dewey in the White House will be firm and courageous, independent and uncompromising as he has shown himself to be throughout his career and the recent campaign.

Because he will not be hampered in his foreign relations by personal acquaintances which could embarrass him at a time when the best for America demands harsh, realistic diplomacy.

Because he is young, vigorous, typically American.

Because I as an American resent the part that certain questionable political forces and individuals are playing in this election.

Because, in the words of the Republican campaign slogan, "It's Time For a Change"—as it always is, the American way. For change is the one cure for the graft and corruption, be they on a large or small scale, that are the inevitable travelling companions of political groups in power.

Thus as I see it, the only certain course for America is with Thomas E. Dewey—for otherwise her future shall be fraught with uncertainty and trepidation.

—Edwin M. Clinton, Jr.

Roosevelt

We are for Roosevelt in this election.

Our reasons are derived from a desire as citizens to see the truth prevail—a desire to see a better world. One has only to view our President's record to know how he feels about a better world.

It was under the Roosevelt administration that we obtained maximum wages, minimum hours of toil, social security, unemployment compensation and federal insurance of savings and deposits. It was the Roosevelt administration that helped Negroes through a score of agencies, and established the Fair Employment Practices Committee. It was the Roosevelt administration that fought for the soldier vote against organized opposition.

All these things stand out clearly on his record in the past. As for the present, it is a unity which Roosevelt has achieved among the United Nations that is winning this war, and will win the peace.

Our President's opponents denounce his recognition of the Soviet Union, but his supporters know that without this recognition this war would never have been won.

His opponents use a technique of "anti-Communist" incitement, and his supporters know that Communism is not an issue in the election. That such a campaign threatens the good-will and cooperation that now exists between the United States and the Soviet Union.

America's future belongs to all Americans whether they are first generation, tenth generation, or naturalized citizens such as Sidney Hillman or our own state treasurer, Charles Johnson.

We have gone far since the days of depression, of war veterans being clubbed and shot, of long lines of unemployment with fear, hatred and discouragement in their hearts!

All this was accomplished under our enlightened democratic leader, President Franklin Roosevelt.

—Judy Land and Louis Nathanson.

Social Committee Plans Class Dances This Month

Although plans for the college social events this semester have not yet been completed, freshman and sophomore dances will be held in November at dates to be announced later Roberta Mathews, Associated Student vice-president, said last week.

The Social Committee has been set up to aid in efficiently planning rallies and dances. The committee is composed of Miss Mathews, Don Giannini, Dolores Fauss, Kay Taylor, Soli Lunden and Vern Harley.

Miss Mathews also hopes to reorganize the Women's Service Society book exchange, which in previous semesters enabled students to buy and sell books at their own prices.

All committees and social organizations in the college must be handled through Miss Mathews.

Deadline For Removal Of Incompletes Friday

This Friday marks the last day students can remove an incomplete from the previous semester with a grade higher than a D, Registrar J. P. Mohr warned last week.

The first mid-term period ends Friday, November 10, with adviser-student meetings scheduled the following week.

All students who plan to graduate this fall must file a petition by Friday, November 3, Mohr warned, so that records can be checked by graduation.

The last day that courses can be dropped is Wednesday, November 22, the day before Thanksgiving.

Enrollment figures have reached the 1293 mark. This includes 854 women and 439 men students, Mohr added.

Post Office Job Requests Taken Now

With applications for post office jobs during the Christmas holidays now being received, positions as mail handlers, clerks and possibly drivers are open to all able-bodied students of the college who are citizens of the United States, Edward Larson, placement director, said last week.

"Students should make their applications at an early date in order to have a more favorable position on the job lists as well as to avoid the last-minute rush," Larson warned, adding that both men and women students must have in their possession a War Manpower Commission Clearance. The post office will not accept any applicants who do not have available clearance (Form B) certificate. This document is obtainable at the Placement Office, Room 155.

Many students who have worked in essential industries during the summer months, Larson pointed out, have received from the employer upon leaving the job a paper signifying that they have been given a release so that they may return to full-term class.

This document, however, he explained, is not enough in itself to clear a worker for a new job. A new clearance and specific referral paper must be obtained in order to indicate to the new employer that the worker has satisfied all requirements of the Manpower Commission rulings.

All men students are required to have this document (form B) upon being referred to any type of work regardless of whether it is full-time or part-time, essential or unessential. Women students need this Form B only in instances where they are referred to an essential job.

Barbara Baer, Troy, Lahn Head Alpha Gamma Sigma

Barbara Baer was elected president of Alpha Gamma Sigma at the first meeting of the society last Thursday. Other officers are Jack Troy, vice-president, and Fred Lahn, secretary- treasurer.

Since this was the first meeting of the fall semester, no definite activities were planned, although the significance and routine of AGS was discussed.

There are now 30 regular members and five associates (those who have applied on the basis of a C.S.F. record in high school).

Room 343 is now available to all A.G.S. members every day from 9 o'clock on.

Women's Chorus Names Dolores Parodi Manager

Election of officers for the newly organized women's chorus was completed last week when Dolores Parodi was named manager, Arlene Engeran, assistant manager, and Virginia Franz, secretary.

The chorus now numbers 46, with openings for a few more, Flossie Badger, chorus director, said this week. It meets at 12 o'clock Tuesdays and Thursdays in Room 200 and carries one unit of credit, listed in the curriculum as Music 11a.

A few members of last semester's A Cappella Choir have still not called for their pins, Miss Badger added, and they are available in Room 263 or Room 200.

Petitions To Run For Class Leaders Due Friday At 3

Petitions to run for class offices must be filed in the Associated Student office, Room 169, by 3 o'clock this Friday, Bob Bisio, Associated Student president sponsoring the class elections, said last week.

This marks the first step in resuming class organization and directly follows action of the Executive Council last week providing for election of class officers.

Elections will be held Friday, November 17, with the location for voting to be announced later.

Offices to be filled are president, vice-president and secretary of the Low Freshmen, High Freshmen and Low Sophomore classes. High Sophomores have already chosen their officers.

Bisio urged responsible students to run for their class offices, saying, "We want a big turnout to centralize student organization in the classes."

Radio Workshop Begins Program Series Monday

Under the direction of Marie Weller, radio instructor, and sponsored by the Associated Men Students, the radio workshop will present a series of programs of student interest beginning next Monday, November 13, at 10 a. m., over the college's public address system.

"Your School and Your People" will be the theme of the series, in which officers and members of various organizations in the college will participate.

The half hour programs will be broadcast over the public address system from Room 147, but will be heard only in the library.

Saga Of Moses Jones—Or Light That Failed

The lights in Room 136 grew dimmer and dimmer and dimmer. Little Moses Jones grew sleepier and sleepier and sleepier. Finally little Moses Jones, unable to restrain himself from his favorite hobby, passed into the land of dreams and Harems and Hedy Lamarrs. The lecture flowed forth and filled the room; the walls resounded; the rafters shook but little Moses was left untouched by the verbal vibrations.

No blame can be placed on poor little Moses Jones. No blame can be placed on the unfortunate lecturer who had dual obstacles to overcome. No, the blame must be placed squarely on the failure to replace "dead" lights in Room 136.

Students To Meet Advisers Nov. 16; Procedure Changed

With the first mid-term period ending this Friday, advisers are to be consulted by all students at some time Thursday, November 16, Edward H. Redford, head counselor, announced last week.

The procedure differs from last year in that instead of meeting advisers in specified rooms at specified hours, students are responsible for seeing their advisers some time during the day. Not only will cinches be given out, but also appointments for interviews in any assistance that may be needed in straightening out programs. Cinches will not be mailed to the parents of new students as in the past, Redford said.

Advisers who are not free except at the 11 o'clock hour, usually set aside for student-adviser meeting, will meet their advisers then in specified rooms to be listed next week.

Letters are currently being mailed to parents of each entering student, giving the name of the adviser. These students should check to find out their permanent adviser, who need not necessarily be the one who signed their program, Redford said. There will be no change in advisers for former students.

The last day to drop courses is Wednesday, November 22. All students who change their programs must fill out a change of program slip, obtainable at the registrar's office.

Students were reminded by J. Paul Mohr, registrar, that Thanksgiving holiday is Thursday, November 23. Classes will be held as usual on Friday, November 24.

High Sophomores Name Dave Greene President

Dave Greene was elected president of the High Sophomore class at a class meeting last week, with Bob Bisio, Associated Student president, presiding.

Other offices were filled by Marilyn Brunton as vice-president and Jean Crenshaw as secretary.

Greene immediately announced that the semester activities will include the traditional Sophomore Queen contest and the High Sophomore formal.

"Outstanding events of the semester will also include a High Jinks, Sophomore Sneak, and participation in intramural sports," Greene promised. Details for the above plans will be announced at a future date.

The Frosh-Soph Brawl, which has not been among the activities for the past several semesters, will also be omitted this semester because of the manpower shortage.

Executive Council In 4-2 Decision Permits Election Of Class Officers, Approves Five Standing Committees

That freshmen and low sophomores will be permitted to elect class officers for the present semester was authorized by the Executive Council in a four to two decision last week.

Bob Bisio, president of the Associated Students, recommended that the proposal be passed because freshmen leaders will enable more students to participate in college affairs.

However, some members felt that officers elected without specific duties to perform would prove a useless procedure.

Following a short discussion, a roll-call was conducted and the proposition was approved by a majority. Whether it was a wise policy of the student administration to put forth these measures some feel is questionable.

Final election plans were not announced but are expected to be formed at the next meeting tomorrow. Elections will likely be scheduled for the end of the week.

Bisio presented the names of members for the five standing committees, whereby the council immediately approved the selections.

The Welfare Committee, headed by Ed Clinton, will include Lois Robinet, Phil Bernauer and Dave Greene. Virginia Franz' publicity group will consist of Doug Hutchins, Henry Buckingham and Gene Boger.

Chairman Charles Baker, Bill Mundy and Collin Tooley will compose the Judicial Committee, while Ory Chandler will be assisted in financial matters by Vern Harley and Bob Onofoto.

Don Constine will be in charge of publications.

Although Don Giannini was appointed yell-leader by Bisio, he will still be under the jurisdiction of the Welfare organization.

Eckert's Grape Juice Poster Wins Honors

By Theodora Wong

William J. Eckert, instructor in advertising art here, was notified recently that he is one of a small number to receive honorable mention in a nationwide postwar advertising poster competition among professional artists, sponsored by the McCandlish Lithograph Corporation in Philadelphia.

Designed for advertising grape juice, his entry depicts a large mural type figure holding a colorful bunch of grapes. It is now on display in the East, and with others selected from the competition, is eligible for sale to any interested advertiser.

Before coming to the college as an instructor, Eckert worked for many years as a mural decorator in Denver and Los Angeles, and at one time was advertising art director with Fox West Coast Theaters.

The college advertising art curriculum of which he is instructor, is noted for its success in preparing students for and placing them in commercial positions with advertising agencies, printing houses, lithograph houses, newspapers, department stores and art services.

Club Charters Must Be Submitted Today

All charters and constitutions for college clubs must be presented to Barbara Chambers, president of the Club Advisory Board, or to Bob Bisio, Associated Student president, in the student office, Room 169, by 3 o'clock today.

To be recognized as an official college organization, all clubs must present a charter to the CAB, before it is recommended to the Executive Council which gives the final decree.

Recognition, Miss Chambers explained, provides official sponsorship of a club by the Associated Students and publicity of club activities in The Guardsman.

Application blanks, which must be filled when submitting a charter may still be obtained in the Associated Student office.

CAB activities will begin with a turn-about dance on Saturday, December 2, Miss Chambers announced last week. Details for this event will be released when definite.

College Armored Unit Loses Parking Battle

The frown on Dean Edwin C. Browne's face curved to a bright little smile last week as he fondly viewed the victorious results of the "Park in the Parking Zone" battle.

No parking complaints have been received since the parking cartoon was printed in The Guardsman. The situation has definitely improved; V-8's no longer turn into tanks, model A's have dropped their half tracks, all are on level ground; all is well, Dean Browne pronounced.

Dean Browne extended his congratulations with the hope that the parking situation will continue in the current satisfactory manner.

Passing The Buck

By Henry P. Buckingham

YESTERDAY the people of the United States went to the polls and cast their vote for the man that they believed to be the best. The candidates fought the short but bloody battle that always precedes elections. People were on either side of the fence, and each disliked the other equally. Politically we have held a civil war.

Today the results of the "people's choice" have been bared. A man has been given the power of president for the next four years. The people on the winning side will undoubtedly follow the man for whom they have rooted. Those on the losing side may be reluctant to accept the choice of the majority. The loser must accept not exeept the winner.

By this we do not mean that losers should all become a bunch of hypocrites. To many losers, their convictions are so profound that it will seem impossible to them that they can accept the policies of the winner. Of course, they shouldn't forget all that they have fought for (unless they are isolationists). Of course, they shouldn't turn on themselves.

They must, however, remember that we are fighting a war. A war, the nature of which is almost inconceivable to the mind of man. They cannot let political principles interfere with their individual participation in the fight for final and complete victory.

Our house divided now would prove a disastrous thing. The losing candidate will undoubtedly rally to his country's call and support his President in our all-out victory campaign.

Today is a day when peoples the world over are envious of our United States. They are envious because they know that in their country a political war could not be fought so bitterly for so many weeks yet the day after it is over find the people so completely unified and so willing to accept the sovereign right of the majority.

Perhaps you say that we are waving the flag. If we are, then we like it, for where is there a better flag to wave?

VINEGAR VACATES

"Vinegar" Joe Stilwell has vacated the Orient and that theater of operations. The reason or reasons seem to be locked in the shrouds of Washington.

As most have sensed, the war in China has not been going as it should. The causes may be narrowed to a few. It has been vaguely declared and cleverly masqued—this recall. If has been attributed to a clash of personalities on the part of General Stilwell and Generalissimo Chiang.

Have some of the boys in Washington fouled up? Has the Generalissimo refused complete cooperation? Did Stilwell refuse to cooperate? Did Lord Louis Mountbatten have a hand in the recall?

Will we, the people, receive an explanation, or will we be kept in the dark as we have in the past?

Maturity And Objectivity Necessary

IN most everyone's mind at the present time there is the question as to whether the United States will remain a permanent ally of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics.

As an outcome of the present hostilities, Russia may assume the position of the dominant power of Europe.

There are a number of Americans who have a great fear of Russia's political structure. What some fail to realize is that the Soviet Union's government is far removed from the principles of Marx and Lenin.

Classed as a dictatorship of the proletariat, it actually embodies a peculiar form of socialism with absolute rule in the hands of Josef Stalin.

Russia may become the greatest menace the earth has ever known, yet it can equally become a major force helping to further peaceful living. This is one of the many problems in the international scene today.

Therefore, there is a vast need for students of university level to approach these same problems with mature and objective understanding.

An individual who is familiar with the world, its people and their relationships with each other is equipped to offer constructive plans for the future.

Subjects such as history, political science, sociology, economics, psychology, mathematics and languages can assist in gaining the required information. Hygiene and physical education will keep citizens healthy and erect. Science explains the physical basis and the relative position of life itself. English enables a person to express his ideas in a clear cut and intelligent manner.

Only through education can mankind transmit to other generations the knowledge, ideals and beauty that have thus far been discovered.

The Spectator

THIS war has certainly produced a lot of melodramatic pictures, and The Conspirators is no exception. It's nothing more than a glorified version of follow the leader.

Vincent Van der Lynn, a Dutch underground agent, escapes into neutral Portugal in an effort to get to England, and immediately the chase begins. From the moment he lands in Lisbon, until the final reel, someone is continually following someone else.

He is contacted in Lisbon by an agent who takes him to Quintinella, the brains of the outfit.

The German legation keeps informed of his every movement and is out to get him. Of course, our hero foils the dastardly plot and escapes from their evil clutches.

The cast is the usual secret agent cast, with Paul Henreid as the Dutchman, Sidney Greenstreet and Peter Lorre as the agents in Lisbon. Hedy LaMarr is around to supply the heartthrob.

The Conspirators is the usual run - of - the - mill suspense drama, but it's good for an evening's entertainment.

Brownell

DISCussions

TWO weeks ago poor San Francisco, which has been made to suffer the total indifference of the local Mickey Mouse bands, was rocked from its very foundations by Lionel Hampton and his group of mad men.

Hampton and his band played with complete sincerity and gave one the impression that whether an audience had gathered together or not, Hampton and Co. would have been there regardless. In fact, Hampton got so wrapped up in his work on the vibes that his isolation from all commercialism was exhibited by his grunts and groans, which stimulated him on to new improvisations.

The climax of this torrid session was the playing of Flying Home, which was interpreted by ten rhythm, nine brass and ten reeds. Ten rhythm is something never before attempted in this region and is typical of the advanced ideas of Hampton. The whole outfit was amazingly wonderful with the exception of the assinine antics of the pianist of the group. This was the only fault of an otherwise perfect entertainment bill.

Since the present recording ban is still in effect, Freddy Martin has become a co-partner in a new record company. The first release of this new outfit will be The Trolley Song as sung by Georgia Gibbs. Miss Gibbs has long been a featured singer in radio.

Night and Day, as done by Frank Sinatra, has been reprinted and is soon due at the record shops. This swooner's delight is backed by the egg dodger's version of Lamplighter's Serenade. Frankie is so far ahead of the rest of the field that it does seem a shame he can't record with Stardahl arrangements. His current styling of Ol' Man River is sooooo fine.

Jo Stafford has just put her latest efforts on wax for Capitol. Title of this work is I Didn't Know About You.

Having worked with Sinatra, she possesses many of the same fine qualities he does. She is a very fine technician, although there is definitely no character or depth to her voice.

It is still worth giving a listen to, for it is in the same class as her versions of Give Me Something to Remember You By and Someone to Love.

Letters To The Editor

RAM'S HORN

• False Pretenses

Editor, The Guardsman:

We have received reports that a group of students have been soliciting money under our name. This is to state that the persons involved are not members of the fraternity and do not have our sanction in this nefarious practice. The Beta Tau does not resort to these tactics to obtain funds for our treasury. We wish to ask the Associated Students not to aid such people by giving them money.

Merrill Bird,

• Call For Doctor Pep

Editor, The Guardsman:

What has happened to our class spirit? Our class meetings are poorly attended, anemic and failing in accomplishment. College spirit is born within the classes. If we can achieve a strong, vibrant class spirit we can be sure that our college spirit will be strong.

We know that there is a war going on; that our college attendance is way below normal and that many of us are working on outside interests with little time available for extra curricular affairs. That is why we should hit the ball a little harder and faster than in normal times.

WAA Has 84 In Sports; San Mateo Playday Next

The Women's Athletic Association was pronounced by members well under way this semester with 84 sign-ups to date for the various sports offered.

Playdays are to be held twice monthly, Susan Miles, president of the WAA, said last week.

The actual number enrolled in each sport is not as yet definitely known. Managers, however, have been chosen and are as follows: Tennis, Joan Ponting; badminton, Jean Fitter; basketball, Millie Jurjevich; bowling, Helen Nelson, and riding, Anita Geiger.

Second play-day of the association will be held the latter part of this month with San Mateo Junior College in San Mateo, according to Miss Miles.

She urged students interested in a play-day program, including badminton, archery, tennis and basketball, to sign up immediately on the bulletin board of the women's gymnasium.

Transportation to San Mateo will be provided by the college, Bertha Mae Keller, WAA adviser, promised.

Perry Midbust Named Intra Sports Director

Perry Midbust has been chosen the new intra-mural sports director, Bob Seiler, Associated Men Student president, announced last week.

Among his new duties will be included the formation of the three-man hunch teams.

Seiler emphasized that those holding college blocks for basketball cannot enter intra-mural tournaments. He added that winners of the semester tournaments will be awarded medals.

Rain Hits AMS Vs. Faculty Game Date

High hopes for a definite date for the softball fracas between the Associated Men Students and the male instructors of the faculty received a jolt with the arrival of Jupiter Pluvius. It all depends on Mother Nature's conscience as to when it will be suitable weather for the game.

Since Jack Brady, faculty captain, has been given the honor of setting the date for the tilt, he wants the best weather possible.

"While we are going to trounce the AMS," Brady remarked, "we want nice weather, so more students will see the game and know who has the better team."

The faculty team is almost complete with the exception of the science instructors. Brady is worried since the game will be played in the afternoon when the science classes hold laboratories.

One rumored and good solution is to excuse all classes for the time it takes the game to be played. In as much as the game is played only once annually, there will not be much class time lost on such activities. Both teams will need the support of their respective professions.

Basketball Meeting Called Next Monday

With the season expected to start in mid-December, basketball will get under way with a meeting next Monday afternoon, November 13, in the men's gymnasium. Practice will start immediately.

This announcement was made last week by Coach Lee Eisan, who expressed confidence that the Ram basketball teams will engage in as successful a season as the Ram gridmen. Time of the meeting, he said, will be posted on the gymnasium board.

An immediate signup of men will insure sufficient time for practice, Eisan said, and probably a fuller season than that of last year can be expected.

Ram Invasion Of Sacramento Saturday To Take Form Of Aerial Blitzkrieg

With a series of smashing successes behind them, the Rams move on to Sacramento on this Saturday, Armistice Day, hoping to administer a trouncing that will long be remembered by the Sacramento eleven. Kickoff will be at 8 p. m. at the Sacramento Municipal Field.

Probable starting Ram lineup, according to Coach Lee Eisan, will be center, George Fabian; guards, John Mapelli and Charles Bodemer; tackles, Ed Tomasello and Bob Mills or Vic Pudlowski; ends, Jim Cronn and Pete Pira or Bill Brennan; fullback, Bob Sieler; quarterback, George Newell; lefthalf, Perry Midbust; righthalf, Joe Kane.

The outstanding strength of Eisan's eleven this year has been the blitzkrieg aerial attack of quarterback Newell.

Newell's good right arm has brought about a series of touchdowns that have kept the team out in front all through the season.

Another factor that has been noticeable throughout the season is the strong offensive and defensive play of the line.

In the Cal Rambler game this was easily seen because at no time during the game was the Cal eleven within striking distance of the Ram goal line.

Women May Get Credit For Swimming at YWCA

Although swimming is not given on the women's physical fitness program this semester, it is offered as part of the Women's Athletic Association, Bertha Mae Keller, women's physical education instructor, announced last week.

Swimming instruction is available for all women students on Tuesday and Thursday evenings at 6 p. m. at the YWCA pool, on Sutter Street.

Extra credit will be extended to students who are interested, Miss Keller said, adding that all those who wish to participate may sign up on the women's gymnasium bulletin board this week.

Rams Take Hollister In Stride 16 To 6

Against a surprisingly strong Hollister team, far better than was suspected, the Rams came up with another victory last Saturday, the score at closing time reading: Rams 16, Hollister 6.

All through the first quarter Hollister held and almost ran over the Ram eleven, and it wasn't until the second quarter that the local college team began to click.

Sparkplugged by fullback Chuck Seeger, the team went down the field at a tremendous rate and went over for a touchdown. The touchdown was made by Seeger on a spinner through center that left Hollister team high and dry. The conversion was made good with a pass from George Newell to Jim Cronn.

The second touchdown was made in the third quarter by the team's other fullback, Bob Seiler, who powerhoused over from the four-yard line for the last score of the game. The conversion was made by another Newell to Cronn pass.

A round of applause should go to Seeger and Seiler, fullbacks, who scored both touchdowns and played excellent football.

Santa Rosa Game Added To Ram Schedule Nov. 17

Although the Ram fracas with Sacramento this Saturday was expected to mark the close of the season locally, a game with Santa Rosa Junior College was added last week to the schedule.

Set for Friday, November 17, at Santa Rosa, the game will be played at night, with the kickoff at 7:30 p. m. It will probably be the final Ram encounter.

College Library Subscribes To Many Foreign Magazines

By Pamela Sampson

Russian, Indian, Canadian, Latin-American and British publications figure among the more than 200 periodicals received at the library, according to Marcus Skarstedt, librarian.

Most noteworthy of these are The Inter-American, Canada At War, Britain, The Manchester Guardian, and various Russian, Indian and British bulletins.

In the center of the library is an exhibition rack in which new books are displayed. Of nearly 40 books on view, in which biographies predominate, only a few are fiction. Of the latter there is a Treasury of Great Russian Short Stories, and More By Corwin, the second named of which contains 16 radio dramas by Norman Corwin.

For those who enjoy solving puzzles, there is At Ease! a whole book of brain teasers compiled by Jules Leopold. A slim book of poetry by Mark Van Doren, called The Seven Sleepers, will very likely be in great demand.

Topical, and of great national interest, is an authoritative record of his years in Japan by former U. S. Ambassador Joseph C. Grew, entitled Ten Years In Japan. Along similar lines is Balkan Journal by Laird Archer. Certainly to be read is The Curtain Rises, by the internationally famous journalist, Quentin Reynolds. An excellent study of a great American is made in Yankee From Olympus, Catherine Drinker Bowen's biography of the late Justice Holmes.

Men are sure to go for First Fleet, a story of the U. S. Coast Guard at War, by Reg Ingram, and a copiously illustrated survey of the merchant navies of the world, by Critchell Rimington, entitled Merchant Fleets.

Of general interest will be Paul de Kruif's The Fight For Life, and My Life With The Enemy, concerning her life in Japan, by Phyllis Argatt. To the feverishly airminded is directed a warning by C. B. F. Macauley entitled The Helicopters Are Coming, from which one gathers that they won't be coming for quite some time yet.

Books are obtainable from the library during the hours of 8 to 5 o'clock.

Social Committee Sets Class Dance Dates

Dates for the class dances were announced by Roberta Mathews, Associated Student vice-president and Social Committee chairman, last week.

Friday, December 8, is the date of the high Freshman dance, and the low Sophomores follow with theirs on Friday, January 5, 1945. The high Sophomore formal, crowning all events, will be held Saturday, February 3. Locations will be announced later.

All class presidents and vice-presidents will be on the Social Committee for their class dance, Miss Mathews declared.

$400 Essay Contest Planned

Hotel Division Students In Service Send Gift To Bulletin Editor

For the past two years, an eagerly welcomed report from home has each month followed graduates of the college hotel division to all parts of the world. To men seattered in the armed forces, a mimeographed Monthly Bulletin, published at the college, tells the latest gossip of former co-workers and news of the division's constant part in the war effort.

Putting out the bulletin is the gratifying one-woman job (and only a small part of her regular duties) of Claire Lippert, secretary of the division. From V-mail letters and interviews with "the boys" home on furlough or leave, she compiles her copy and submits it to the local censorship office before typing steneils, mimeographing the bulletin, and sending it on to APO's and FPO's.

Recently a former merchant seaman student of the hotel division, Thorne Holmes, now a patient in the San Francisco Marine Hospital, initiated a project to show appreciation for the work of the Monthly Bulletin's editor.

Holmes, Helen Warnock, manager of the college cafeteria, and Ursula Stanton, former student, personally wrote a suggestion to all graduates who read the bulletin.

The result was a gift of a handsome electric record player and two albums of classical recordings—joint appreciation to Miss Lippert from the boys everywhere for whom the Monthly Bulletin serves as a link with home.

Larson Urges Early Applications For Christmas Post Office Jobs

With Christmas rapidly drawing nearer, employment applications are still being accepted at the placement office by its director, Edward Larson.

The United States Post Office is continuing to receive applications from college students for part time work as mail handlers, clerks and possibly drivers, Larson disclosed. He urged all students seeking such employment to consult him at his office in Room 155, without delay.

"Judging from experience had last year, those who applied too late for employment were not able to obtain it, and those who are interested in obtaining Christmas work at the Post Office this year should make arrangements to do so at an early date," Larson said. He stressed the necessity for War Manpower Commission Clearances by students desiring to obtain work. Clearances may be obtained at the placement office.

The only other requirements for Post Office work are that the prospective employees should be citizens of the United States, and strong enough to handle heavy packages and sacks.

Larson added that department stores are also making an appeal for student helpers who are able to work after school hours and to help in preparation for the Christmas rush period.

Forum Club To Discuss Women And Equal Rights

Having chosen the topic, Do Women Have Equal Rights? the Forum Club will meet this Friday at 160-A Randall Street, according to Gertrude Land, newly elected chairman. Speakers will be Mary Yarger, who will speak on Women's Place in the Home, and Ed Whaley, who will talk on Women's Place in the World.

Miss Land expressed her hopes that the outstanding achievements of the club would encourage new members to take an active interest. She commented on the performances of the club's former members, some of whom have had their own work published. John Ward, one of the former editors of the Forum Magazine, has recently been awarded a scholarship at Columbia University; he also has the distinction of being chosen coauthor of a new book on folk ballads by Richard Dyer Bennet.

Marie Antoinette Wilson, another former member, has received one of the three largest scholarships at the University of California for working toward her doctorate.

At the last meeting of the club at adviser Dorothy Mereer's home, the national election was discussed and Barbara Hart was elected Secretary.

submitted eight requisitions so that budgets could be established. Granted appropriations ran as follows:

A Cappella Choir, $225; Alpha Gamma Sigma, $30; Associated Women Students, $390; Club Advisory Board, $165; Dean's Fund, $25; The Guardsman, $1700; Orchestra, $25, and Women's Athletic Association, $175.

Intramural's budget will remain tabled until newly assigned sports director, Perry Midbust, can become familiar with the semester's program.

AMS Barn Dance Will Be In Campus Gymnasium

Date for the Associated Men Student traditional barn dance has been definitely set for Saturday, November 18.

Location for the dance has tentatively been set for one of the college gymnasiums, Bob Seiler, AMS president, said last week.

A bonfire rally, previously scheduled for this Friday night, has been cancelled.

Seiler also announced that the sports night scheduled for January 31, has been cancelled and a men's smoker will take its place.

Dr. Clark George Kuebler was inaugurated president of Ripon College on December 7.

Four S. F. Colleges Eligible To Enter

An opportunity for students in four San Francisco colleges to compete in an essay contest was announced last week by President A. J. Cloud.

Two $100 bonds will be awarded for the best essays on Post War Plans for Civic and Commercial Betterment of San Francisco, and two $100 bonds will be given for the winning essays telling How We Can Improve the Present Distribution of Farm Products.

Committee members who will decide contest rules are Father Dunne, president University of San Francisco; Dr. Alexander C. Roberts, president San Francisco State College, and President Cloud, and a representative from San Francisco College for Women, to be named later.

John G. Brucato, Superintendent of Agriculture Division of the San Francisco Water Department, offered to sponsor this contest to give the city of San Francisco a thorough knowledge of the younger generation's plans for the future.

AWS Outlines Four Semester Activities

Semester plans for Associated Women Students, made by Dean Margaret Dougherty and Yvonne Bordegaray, AWS president, provide for at least four events.

In conjunction with the Associated Men Students, AWS members will sponsor a mixer dance in the cafeteria at a date to be set later.

An address to women students about nursing to be given by a New York Nursing Association representative is scheduled for Tuesday, November 21.

To acquaint high school seniors with the college, a tea will be given for them January 12.

Final AWS event of the semester is expected to be a character dance at the Residence Club, December 30, jointly sponsored by the AMS.

Nutcracker Suite Heads Music Hour Program

Highlighted on the music hour program for next Tuesday, November 14, is Tschaikowsky's familiar Nutcracker Suite, Madison Devlin, instructor, announced last week.

Les Preludes by Franz Liszt will also be presented, if there is time, he added.

Students wishing to visit music hour programs at 9 a. m. Tuesdays in Room 200, are invited to attend, Devlin said.

Alpha Gamma Sigma Meets Tomorrow At 11 O'Clock

To discuss definite plans for a club picnic, Alpha Gamma Sigma members will meet tomorrow in Room 343 at 11 o'clock sharp, according to Barbara Baer, president.

Stressing the fact that all members should make it a point to attend, Miss Baer said that present plans call for a picnic at Lake Temescal, in Oakland.

Barn Dance, Sports Rally Highlight Week's Activities

AMS Traditional Affair Saturday In Men's Gym

Men in plaid shirts and jeans and women in customary farm clothing will swirl in merriment around the floor of the men's gymnasium this Saturday night at 8 p.m. at the traditional Associated Men Student barn dance.

"Dig out your overalls and straw hat and come prepared for an evening of humorous dancing and amusing entertainment," Bob Seiler, AMS president, urged last week.

The committee appointed by Seiler includes Dick Bunker, Ernest Poggi Chuck Boderman, Joe Kane, and Pat Carlson.

Admission is as usual by one Associated Student card per couple.

"In the past year the plans for the semi-annual affair have been drawn up by the combined efforts of the AMS and the Associated Women Students, but this season the old tradition of past years for the men to sponsor this funster alone has returned," Seiler said.

Semester's First Mixer In Cafe Also Friday

First mixer dance of the semester will be held Friday afternoon from 2 to 4 o'clock sponsored by the Associated Men Students.

Location of the dance is the north room of the college cafeteria, and all students are invited admission free, Bob Seiler, AMS president, said last week.

One purpose of the mixer, in addition to the usual fun provided for such an occasion, Seiler explained, is to lead student interest toward the AMS barn dance the following night.

Music will be by record, Seiler added, of which an excellent selection is promised.

Talent Bureau Auditions To Be Held Friday At 2

A second period of auditions for the college Talent Bureau, reopened this semester, will be held this Friday, November 17, in Room 200 from 2 to 3 p.m., Flossita Badger, college music instructor, announced last week.

Those chosen as members of the Talent Bureau after the last audition were Gene Boger, Geraldine De Groot, soprano, and Pat Harris, bass.

Singers, dancers, instrumentalists, and specialty actors are particularly in demand for college and outside entertainment, Miss Badger said.

Mary Taylor Swoboda To Address Women On Cadet Nurse Corps Tuesday At 10

Mrs. Mary Taylor Swoboda, representative of the National Nursing Council for War Service and the United States Cadet Nurse Corps, will again address women students here at 10 a.m. next Tuesday, November 21, in Room 100.

Following her address, she will interview women interested in nursing at 11 a.m. in Room 170 and will speak with nursing advisors at 1 p.m.

Mrs. Mary Swoboda

Early in January of this year Mrs. Swoboda spoke at the college as part of a nation wide endeavor to recruit 65,000 student nurses this year for wartime replacements caused by acute needs of the Army, Navy and civilian health agencies and is returning with the same cause in mind and to interest women students in preparation of post war careers.

The United States Cadet Nurse Corps offers free professional education to qualified women students. Recruits receive free tuition, free maintenance, outstanding gray and scarlet street uniforms and a monthly stipend during their entire training in accredited schools of nursing. In return, recruits promise to remain active in essential military or civilian nursing for the duration of the war.

Mrs. Swoboda is a graduate of Mount Holyoke College of South Hadley, Massachusetts, and of the Yale School of Nursing. She has also studied psychiatric and mental nursing at Butler Hospital in Providence, Rhode Island. At present she is Mental Hygiene consultant of the Springfield, Massachusetts Visiting Nurse Association and lecturer on mental hygiene in nursing at Boston University.

Students Must Follow Schedule, Meet Advisers For Interviews

To clarify any confusion in semester programs, make appointments for future interviews where needed, and incidentally to receive any cinch notices, grades of D or F, all students are expected to see advisers tomorrow.

Differing from procedures of past semesters, no specified meetings will be held at a set hour for student-adviser meetings, Edward H. Redford, head counsellor explained.

Some instructors, however, who have no free class hours during the day, will meet their advisees in rooms specified at 11 o'clock. Others will be available at the hours and in the rooms listed below.

Redford emphasized the fact that the purpose behind this semester's meetings is more than the usual distribution of grades lower than C. He also added that the responsibility of students meeting their advisers rests entirely with the student.

Preceding the day set for the meeting, a letter was sent to the parents of each new student informing them of the adviser's name. The reason for this action was that many student programs were signed by instructors other than the permanent adviser. Returning students have the advisers they had last semester.

Place and times when advisers may be located are as follows:

Cecil Aggeler, 11 to 12, Room 56; Richard Allman, all day, Room 160; Flossita Badger, 11 to 12, Room 200, 2 to 5, 9 to 10, Room 263; Edwin Cranston, 11 to 12, 2 to 5, Room 340;

Nothing But The Best For Those Who Stray

By Theodora Wong

Lightly with the showers come cinches.

Cinches, for those who still don't know, are those marks of distinction stingily doled out by reluctant instuctors to students whose midterm grades strayed so far from the expected (and desired) as to indicate these students deserve nothing but the best—cinches.

Cinches will be given out tomorrow.

Diverging from last year's procedure, cinches will further be distinguished by privacy henceforth, and will no longer be called out to waiting mobs of students gathered with their advisers.

Students are responsible for seeing their advisers some time tomorrow and if necessary, they also may make appointments for a personal interview concerning programs, grades and futures.

Cinches will not be mailed to the parents of new students as in the past. The powers that be have determined that the gentle young things themselves may break the news.

Pre-Football Game Program Friday; Classes Excused

To create interest in the college-Santa Rosa football game, a rally will be held Friday at 11 o'clock in the men's gymnasium, Don Giannini, yell leader, announced last week.

Dismissal of classes for the rally is assured by clearance with J. Paul Mohr, registrar.

The rally will be concluded with the singing of the college hymn. For those who are new to the college, the hymn and the With An S yell are printed below.

Alma Mater of our hearts
Blessings be thine ever
Though we travel distant parts
Lose thee we will never.
For on mem'ry's sea of years
Thou wilt ever sail
Here's a toast through shining tears
To thee Hail! Hail!

Alma Mater dear to us
On Balboa's strand
Bind our souls in sacred trust
Guide us mighty hand.
All through life we'll see thy light.
Thee we'll never fail
Here's a pledge old Red and White
To thee Hail! Hail!

College To Have Banner; Bisio Reprimands AMS

Although full attendance at the regular meeting last Thursday was lacking, the Exeeutive Council passed a proposal enabling Yell Leader Don Giannini to buy a college banner, and granted four budget requests.

Approved appropriations ran as follows: Executive Council, $50; Publications, $325; Rally Commission, $45, and the Social Committee, $606. Balance in the undistributed fund now amounts to $1,039.

Because the Associated Men Students' budget had not yet been received, Bob Bislo, president of the Associated Students, said that he hoped the AMS was not conducting an "inefficient, unorganized and unrepresented" policy toward college government.

"If the Intramural program does not also begin to function properly and immediately," Bislo added, "drastic changes will be made."

Passing The Buck

By Henry P. Buckingham

MANY Americans seem to hold doubt regarding the integrity of our ally Russia. On one hand are the war-mongers who say that eventual war with Russia is inevitable. On the other hand are the pacifists who advocate that such a thing as war with Russia in the near or distant future never was and never will be possible.

Both seem to be treading on dangerous and rocky terrain. Of course war with Russia, as with any nation differing in its political theories to such an extreme, is very possible and very probable if measures on both sides are not taken to prevent just such a disastrous occurrence.

The outstanding issue of the moment appears to be Russia's attitude toward captured and/or liberated countries.

From the Russian point of view the situation is fine. Naturally the Russian government, no matter how noble its intent with regard to the rest of the world, is thinking, as it should, of Russia first.

No one doubts the great contribution that Russia has made to final and complete victory. It cannot be said that Russia has not made, with the exception of China, the greatest sacrifice of any of the major powers.

The apparent if somewhat cold-blooded, conclusion must be that Russia has done this primarily for Russia. When the Nazis swept onto Russian soil, the Russians were not concerned with saving the world. They had one goal in view, the preservation of Russia. This natural instinct precedes or spearheads noble aims and revenge.

A few months ago when Russia completed the self-preservation stage the residual noble program was entered into. Now the noble and revenge stages overlap. When victory comes to all of the allied armies in Europe, the United States and Great Britain have promised to return former governments of all of the liberated countries.

The Russian government has made no such declaration. Rather it seems to favor a "losers weepers, finders keepers" adjustment whereby "we have it and you try and get it."

Adding all of this up, subtracting Churchill and dividing by Roosevelt, the answer comes out with Russia in the upper bracket. The blame cannot and must not be placed on Russia. Russia has done what in Russia's eyes has been the most advantageous. The blame falls heavily and squarely on the shoulders of the United States and to a lesser degree the shoulders of Great Britain.

A sound conclusion would indicate that it is still within our power, although time is short and slipping by fast, to throttle Russia down to our pace and our aims. We also conclude that if Russia does not made definite declarations of liberation, then we, to protect ourselves first and others second, must help her decide, by diplomatic persuasion, that she has quite enough already and needs no more.

Six Year Presidential Term Theory

NOW that the turmoil and excitement of the eleetion has subsided, there is one issue that should be analyzed intelligently.

Many confused voters entered the polls wondering whether they were selecting the right man. Opposition to a fourth term, backed by tradition, along with the usual mud-slinging, created serious doubts in the minds of some citizens.

Placing the blame on the constitutional fathers for neglecting to foresee the potential strength of political organizations, cannot excuse the present day fallacies of party machines.

Although a solution to this condition appears somewhat radical and startling, a question has arisen as to the benefits of a six year presidential term without re-election.

Investigation shows that the plan embodies convincing and favorable arguments.

Both the Democratic and Republican groups would introduce new candidates every six years. These men, in order to be elected, would be compelled to offer the country constructive programs free from political interference.

Not having to consider his actions in the light of campaigning for a second time, the nation's leader could confront domestic and international problems with determination and non-partisan influence.

Worry of approaching elections would then no longer be of any consequence to a president.

On the other hand, the advisability of proposing such an amendment to the constitution today can be readily challenged.

This stimulating theory deserves the careful consideration of all students, for on their shoulders rests the future of America.

• College History Wanted

Editor, The Guardsman:

Of the 600 new students, who have entered SFJC this fall, very few know, or have any idea about the past history of the college and The Guardsman. The site which was chosen for the construction of the building must have an interesting background. Other objects of interest are the murals found in the lobby of the college and also on the sides of the buildings; these too should be explained.

With the above mentioned items explained, I am sure that the new students will take a greater interest in the student activities, not only in college but also out of college.

DISCussions

THREE years ago popular ballad singing started and ended with Bing Crosby. He was the tops, the unimpeachable, the king of all kings and most important of all, he was without serious competition.

A year ago a newcomer was fighting his way to the top. A former band vocalist, he had finally gone out on his own and had become an over night sensation in New York. Suddenly he was coming to Hollywood to make a picture.

Hundreds of frantic girls greeted him at the railroad station and mobbed him. He was their ideal. THEIR king of all kings. Why? Because he symbolized youth. Down-with - the - old - and - up - with - the - new was the cry of 'teen age men and women all over the country.

Hollywood critics, however, greeted him with discouraging remarks to the effect that they KNEW he wouldn't last.

Youth stood by him until he had completed his first picture and then sat back and gloated as favorable reports came in from the whole nation. Mothers and fathers were beginning to take notice. The songs from his picture were forging their way to the top of the hit parade.

What makes him so great? First of all he has perfected the smoothest and longest breath control ever exhibited in modern popular music. A typical example of this is his styling of Without A Song. Notice, the next time you hear it, how he builds to the climax of the bridge and then continues on with the next two phrases without taking a breath. If you don't believe this isn't difficult, sing any song Crosby has recorded, then try this particular passage, and ten to one you'll find that you were able to sing the Crosby version and not our sensation's.

As far as range goes, listen to the recording he made with Harry James of All Or Nothing At All. On this disc he ends the last chorus with F sharp above high C. Could Crosby do this? No.

There has been much talk about his phrasing. Bing is also a past master at this, but this new crooner is just as good if not better. An example of this is the technique he employs on his records of Everything Happens To Me and This Love Of Mine.

The pay off of it all is that Bing Crosby helped to finance his musical education. Who is he? Frank Sinatra.

The Spectator

METRO Goldwyn Mayer has released another film in what seems to be a series for Greer Garson and Walter Pidgeon. This time it's Mrs. Parkington, a period picture of the 19th century.

The story starts out in 1938, and through a series of flashbacks, is carried back into the last century.

Major Agustus Parkington, a very rich New Yorker, marries Susie Gharham because her mother was killed and she has no one to take care of her.

The Major shows Susie a fabulous life, and she gradually becomes the mistress of his great fortune.

When the Major dies, Susie is left as head of the Parkington family. Of course the 20th century branch of the family is just waiting for Mrs. P. to die so they can get their hands on the inheritance, but Mrs. Parkington surprises them all at the end of the film.

Walter Pidgeon is good as the Major, but Greer Garson is better as Susie. The supporting cast is headed by Edward Arnold and Cecil Kalloway.

San Francisco

Tale Of Two Cities

By JACKIE WALLACE

When I was asked to write an autobiography, the first thing that came to my mind was the change that has taken place in my life since I moved to San Francisco. It is hard to believe that the difference between two cities could have such an effect on a person's attitude.

Although I refer to myself as a San Franciscan, I have actually lived three-fourths of my eighteen years in Portland, Oregon. Portland is, according to population, the twenty-fifth largest urban community in the United States, which places it in the classification of a city. Actually it is a small town in almost every respect. It is a lovely place as far as appearance is concerned. Almost every home has a beautiful garden and a large front and back lawn. The streets are lined with trees, and roses grow so profusely that anyone can easily understand why Portland is called "The city of roses." Warm summer nights find families sitting on their front porches or their neighbors' front porches chatting and gossiping. Each family knows its neighbors for blocks around, and the whole atmosphere is that of a small town. In spite of these facts the whole story of my life to date is a story of my love for San Francisco.

At the time of my first visit to San Francisco I was only seven years old. However, within three brief weeks I came to love it for its hills, its bay, its crowded streets, and an unknown quality which I termed "Atmosphere." With each succeeding visit I realized more and more that this "Atmosphere" was nothing more nor less than the tolerance and democracy that are necessary in a large city where one comes in contact with all different types of people. The snobbery, cliques, and insincerity that seemed so prevalent in a small town society were against my nature. I could not stand belonging to a clique if it meant that I had to be snobbish or subtly aloof to other people. There was never a time during my life in Portland that I was happy with my associates in school.

When I was about fourteen years old we moved to San Francisco. I was surprised during my first day of school to see how anxious everybody was to cooperate and to make me feel at home. Within a week I had as many friends as I had ever had in Portland. I was surprised at the way people who didn't even know me would start a conversation on the street car. When I asked someone where a certain street was, he or she would go to the utmost of pains not only to tell me but also to show me the way. San Francisco contained as much democracy and friendship in a block as Portland had in its whole area.

This may seem more like an advertisement by the Chamber of Commerce than an autobiography by Jackie Wallace. And yet, I'm sure that if you could realize how happy and enthusiastic I have been these last four years, you'd agree that my reactions to San Francisco have been a very important influence in my life.

Editor's Note: Why write if what you write is not going to be read? Certainly good arguments can be advanced for "just writing"; however, most people write to communicate ideas to others. To provide students in English classes an outlet for their written expression, The Guardsman hopes to include a similar insert several times a semester. The material in the present issue was selected from the regular assignments of English 21a classes, and the illustrations were contributed by members of the Advertising Art Class.

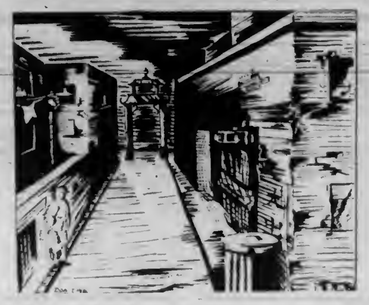
That one learns as much from other students as from professors is a credible point of view. Do not dismiss lightly your ubiquitous fellow student who may come from another part of the world or be of another nationality. To one who is aware, the other fellow offers a never ending source of information and enjoyment.

Backward Glimpse: On Youth Depends Progress

By RITA FUNG

From cradle to grave, one undergoes many changes in one's character, personality, ideals and ambitions; I am no exception. Digging into my past, I found that many seemingly, insignificant events played an important role in molding the kind of person I am today. The sights I've seen and the places that I've been to greatly affected my development.

In 1932, my family and I embarked on the steamship Hoover for China. To me, this trip was a gala affair. I thoroughly enjoyed the excitement involved in the necessary preparations, and I eagerly looked forward to this new adventure in a strange land with a childish delight. On the day of sailing, I was, for the first time, confronted with the sight of sadness and dejection; for, before me, crying shamelessly, were many Chinese of the older generation bidding farewell to their loved ones. Of course, it was natural to see tear-stained faces at such times of parting; but, what I saw later aroused my deepest sympathy toward these helpless people of my race.



As soon as we were en route, I and my brother, Wallace, started on an exploration of the gigantic ship. What contrasts I saw! In the first class compartments where the American tourists were quartered was the typical picture of gaiety; hilarious laughter, soft, drifting music and the clinking of wine glasses could be heard. But in the third class compartments—the cheaper or lower class quarters—silence reigned in a melancholy atmosphere. Huddled in secluded corners, the desolate, Chinese old folks were having their dinner. They were eating from tin plates! On every face, a continuous rivulet of tears dripped into the plates of meager fare. What a pitiful sight!! Here they were, old and weak, away from their loved ones whom they would never again see; no wonder they were so sad! For the rest of my journey and up to the present, I've tried to be thoughtful, tolerant and understanding of the old people, even though my feelings are hurt sometimes.

Reaching China, we landed in Hongkong. There we visited friends and relatives and saw the various sights. As we had not had time to become acclimatized yet, my brother and I were miserable with a strange sickness. So-called doctors who were really quacks tended us, prescribing useless herbs and black magic hocus pocus. Although what little medical care we had was in vain, we regained health through some unknown miracle.

After that narrow escape, we went to Shanghai and other cities and towns. I was shocked by the realization that China was almost wholly slums!

Chinatown's Back Alley

Glamortown

Prelude To Future

By JAMES WONG

Visitors remember Chinatown as one of the most interesting and picturesque spots of San Francisco. But the picture I retain is our stuffy, cramped two-room apartment. There were five in the family—my father, mother, older brother, a younger sister, and myself. All of us were born there. When I was old enough to have a faint knowledge of life, I met reality around the corner. The first thing that struck me was the poverty of my surroundings. The terrible conditions of housing exposed the people to all sorts of diseases. It's hard to imagine, but living in our back room was another family consisting of three people. Two families were living in two rooms and using practically the same utensils for eating and the same beds for sleeping! The stairs, being made of wood, were cracked and creaky. I had passed many a miserable winter in that room because of no heating facilities. The walls and ceilings were made of cheap plaster which caused leaking rain water to stain and blotch the appearance of the room. Where there is a broken-down and unsanitary house, one is sure to find rats. There were rats and more rats! One could turn in any direction and see a rat-hole. Is it a wonder that such a vivid picture remains stamped in my mind?

As I grew out of my "short pants," I began to realize that the conditions of my birthplace exist everywhere. I discovered to my dismay that practically all Chinatown was slums. I found out during one of my trips to relatives in Chinatown that a whole floor of tenants used only one bathroom. Even to me, at that time, it was unsanitary. In one of the rooms, I saw an old man sitting on a chair, which was the only piece of furniture in the room. I believe that he slept on a thin mattress which was lying on the floor. The fact that newspapers were scattered around the vicinity of the mattress indicated that he used those newspapers to keep himself warm. The situation in Chinatown was dreadful! Some back alleys smelled of garbage and refuse. Many a time I have detoured an alley because of the gaseous odor, when I could have saved time by walking through it.

Growing into manhood, I found that the living conditions in Chinatown had deteriorated still further. Chinatown today is San Francisco's number one tuberculin spot. The Chinese are really not an unsanitary people, I feel. They were forced by circumstances to live in the slums. My objective, therefore, is to be a doctor to aid my people in their sufferings.

MORALE is the most highly important of any military attribute. But we must produce a type of morale that results from self-respect through discipline, intensive training, and adequate leadership.—Lieut. Gen. Dwight Eisenhower.

Exodus

And Then-America

By RUTH KAY

Eleven years ago the little man with the black mustache took over the government of Germany. At that time I was living the life of an average German child, together with my parents, brothers and sister. Nine years later, I am living in San Francisco, the life of a typical American college girl.

My father was a rather well-to-do business man, co-owner of a large chain of department stores. Mother worked with him at the store, and my oldest brother managed the Italian branch of the stores. My sister and other brother and I went to school in Germany for several years after Hitler came into power.

Being very young at that time, my sister and I never realized how our lives were being changed. We were in the third grade in school when a decree was issued that all Jewish children could henceforth no longer attend the public schools.

That was the clue for the exit. With heavy hearts, my parents sent us, that is, my sister, brother and me, to Switzerland, where we lived with one of our aunts. Mother and Dad, in the meantime, sold out their business and decided that we were to move to Belgium. But it was not as easy as it sounds; they learned that it was impossible to establish permanent residence there. Since my oldest brother lived in Italy, and it was possible to move there, we went to Genoa, where my sister, brother and I went happily to school in a small Italian resort place.

Oh, I loved the easy-going life in Italy; and, as all children do, I mastered the language very quickly. Forgotten were my schoolchums from Germany—I was completely happy, talking with my hands, in true Italian fashion, to my new dark-haired friends from school.

I lived in Italy for two years, but still the mustached madman would not allow us peace. Through his influence, Mussolini, dictator of Italy, issued a similar decree, prohibiting Jews to attend schools. And once more my brother, sister and I went to Switzerland, while Mother and Dad packed our belongings for the second time.

There was only one country left for us to go—a country of which I had only heard or read about in my history lesson, a country where liberty and the pursuit of happiness were the governing principles. To that country we turned. And so, early in the morning of May 8, 1939, I saw from aboard a Dutch ship the Statue of Liberty. Mother had tears in her eyes, and young as I was, I realized that this would be a new beginning, a new life for all of us.

What happened after that is not very important. There was no special reason for our moving to San Francisco, other than the fact that we had heard how beautiful the city was, and how kind the people were: more easygoing than those of the East.

Once more I had to learn another language, get used to new customs, acquainted with a new environment. It was not hard; however, all the people with whom I came into contact did their best to make life easy for me, and the rest of my family.

And the years went by, and very seldom do I think back to the time when I lived on the other side of the Atlantic. And now I am going to college; my ambition is to become a Social Service Worker. I think that I shall never return to the country of my birth. I have no friends nor relatives there, and I know, or should I say hope, that all the old familiar places are no longer the same. But fate has often played tricks on me. Could it be possible that I shall return to Germany, in the service of the American government as a reconstruction worker, teaching the Germans the democratic ways of life? Could it be that in this way I can repay America for having opened her arms and taken to her heart a refugee girl?

A Caucasian's Reaction

The Superiority Of Negro Streetcar Conductors

By DELLA CORNISH

He was not chosen for his superiority, but merely for his availability in a time of labor shortage. Nevertheless, the negro streetcar conductor is manifestly superior to his Caucasian brother.

The reason for this entire discussion stems from the observed fact that the white man customarily takes precedence over the negro. Hence, the desirable white employee is now engaged in a more attractive type of work. It is not unnatural that the white conductor of the day should often represent the literal scrapings of the white manpower barrel. The abundant resources of 20,000,000 negro citizens have been pitifully neglected.

Supposing the all-over average of efficient workers to be the same in both races, it is evident that the negro conductor should be the better. Not only is there a wider choice among negro labor, but the employer feels more of his ancient power when interviewing the prospective negro carman, who still occupies the role of suppliant.

This same enforced meekness of the negro is largely the very cause of his individual superiority. When serving a hurried, inconsiderate public, the negro "stands up" better every time, as compared to the aforementioned "scrapings" of the manpower barrel.

Of course, the negro is more courteous and more self-controlled; and, in consequence, more efficient. The public emotional tantrum is an unknown luxury to the downtrodden. He is fortunate to be tolerated by the public. Degradation has made him more mature, as well as meek.

On the other hand, we have the temperamental and arrogantly independent white employee, who feels free to ask you to go to the devil in case you criticize his service. Give me the negro conductor any day. He makes life on the crowded war-time streetcar much less painful.

Backward Glance

All around was destitution and poverty! People, too helpless to work, begged in the streets for pennies. Others ran miles pulling rickshas for a small sum. Diseases spread alarmingly because of the lack of good sanitation. Scientific medical care was unheard of in this great country. The mortality rate was increasing. I asked myself: "Can nothing be done?" This question kept preying on my mind all the way back to America.

American education has taught me many useful things, not only book-learning but something else too. Today in college, I am preparing for the field of pharmacy and my brother for the field of medicine. I've seen China's backwardness, and I am determined to do my little bit in the future to correct it. China's progress depends on her youths; I, and other Chinese young people like me, will not fail her.

Melting Pot

Heredity, Environment

By ALAN CHAIMOV

Whoever called the United States the melting pot of nations was very right. My grandparents, for instance, came from the fields and plains of the Ukraine, from the strange land of Australia, and from the mountains and fjords of Norway. One grandfather fled Russia to escape service in the army. The grandparent from Scandinavia was a sailmaker by trade. He looked to America for a place to make a home and to raise his family. He accomplished both, excelling especially in the latter; he reared thirteen sons and daughters, and even adopted another girl. He was a kind and generous man, whose great virtue of kindness prompted him one cold winter day to give his coat to a beggar who had none. Pneumonia struck him, and in a few days he was gone.

My other grandfather was equally as good at rearing a family. Although he only had two sons, they made up in quality what they perhaps lost in quantity. One son was a clerk in a railroad office. In the same office was a daughter of the sailmaker. These two met, became friends, and after the World War were married. Their first child was a boy whom they named Alan. My father was happy that his first born was a boy and a beautiful one at that.

Several months later, influenced by the California Chamber of Commerce and by the order from the railroad, we moved to Sacramento. It was here that I first received recognition in the field of music. In a series of brilliant steps I arose to the position of conductor of the kindergarten orchestra. I was widely acclaimed, and I remember my teacher saying that I would go places. The next month I went to Portland.

For the next twelve years I lived in Multnomah, a suburb of the city of Portland. Multnomah lay far enough outside of Portland to be in the country, yet close enough to the city for easy shopping. I attended school there for nine years with the same boys and girls. I was acquainted with everyone in the community. Multnomah was like a big family whose members worked and played together. I think these factors made my life in that little town the happiest it has ever been.

The only real trouble in my life has been sickness, school-work, and little sisters. The sickness aggravated the homework, and the little sister aggravated me.

We outgrew our home in Multnomah and moved to the east side of town. I changed high schools when we moved. This new school had swimming pools, tennis courts, and a large campus. It was a real campus with acres of well kept lawns and groves of evergreens. I thought I would graduate from the school and then go to Corvallis, but in 1942, after I had attended only one year, we were called to California again. Ever since then I have been a prisoner on this peninsula, breaking away from time to time to journey to God's country, where, for a few days I can really live again.

WAA Plans 3 Inter College Playdays, Names Committees

Plans for women's sports events are completed although exact dates have not been decided, Susan Miles, president of the Women's Athletic Association, announced recently.

Colleges to enter events with the WAA members are San Francisco Women's College, State College, San Mateo Junior College and Catholic High.

The annual WAA playday tourney has been scheduled for the last of January, at which time awards will be made and some sports playoffs concluded.

Committees for playdays were named last week.

Janice Blanston, Millie Jurjevich and Loys Daskarolos are in charge of refreshments; Cordelia Van Scoyoc, Milena Jurjevich will supervise decoration and preparation; Jean Galez and Jean Fitter are the service committee, and Grace Pias is the head of the clean up committee.

Archery is offered one hour per week or on Wednesdays from 2 to 4, and bowling will be at the Lincoln Bowl at 3 o'clock on Mondays. Basketball and volleyball are on Friday from 2:30 to 4 and the tennis tourneys are scheduled for Monday at 3 o'clock.

Women Warned Again To Take Physical Exams

Repeating the warning issued from the registrar's office early this semester, Laurine Bergin, women's physical education instructor, reminded women last week that those failing to take their physical examinations will have all grades withheld at the end of the semester.

Nine women have failed to appear at scheduled appointments. These students will be notified, Mrs. Bergin said, and failure to keep appointments will result in the penalty previously announced.

WAA Offers Swimming At YWCA Wednesdays

Although swimming is not given on the women's physical fitness program as it was last semester, it is offered as part of the Women's Athletic Association extra-curricular program, Bertha Mae Keller, women's physical education instructor, announced last week.

Swimming is available on Wednesdays from 3 to 4 at the YMCA pool, on Sutter Street, and blocks will be awarded at the end of the semester to students who participate in the complete program, Miss Keller said. Admission is 25 cents with Associated Student card.

No extra credit will be extended for this class.

The registered physical education swimming class at 6 o'clock, which is now closed, she emphasized, will have the usual credit extended to them.

Rams Set For Santa Rosa

George Newell demonstrates how he will heave long forty yard spiral passes in the Santa Rosa game next Saturday.

Season Final Friday Stars Newell, Cronn

For the last scheduled tussle of the season the Rams will fight it out with Santa Rosa Junior College. The game will be played at Santa Rosa this Friday. Kickoff is scheduled for 7:30 p.m.

Starting lineup will probably be center, George Fabian; guards, John Mappeli and Charles Bodimer; tackles, Bob Mills and Vic Pudlowski; ends, Jim Cronn and Pete Pira; fullback, Bob Seiler; quarterback, George Newell; lefthalf, Perry Midbust; righthalf, Joe Kane.

With the exception of Ed Tomasello, who is leaving for the Coast Guard, this is same lineup that was featured for the Sacramento game.

Expected to feature again this Friday as they have in the past are the Ram victory pass combination, George Newell and Jim Cronn. Their average in the pass department stands at two to one, about ten passes completed in fifteen attempts.

Much of the success of the combination can be directly credited to the outstandingly strong Ram line, one of Coach Lee Eisan's best.

The Santa Rosa game should be another win—for the team, for Santa Rosa is reported weak in all departments. With the Ram's strong line and passing attack Santa Rosa should give the eleven no trouble.

This is how Jim Cronn of the Newell-Cronn combo will receive those forty yard passes in the Santa Rosa game.

Rain Still Postpones AMS-Faculty Feud

While the rain in San Francisco continues to erupt from the heavens, the date of the Associated Men Student Dodgers vs. the Faculty Yankees is still uncertain.

Jack Brady, faculty leader, expressed the hope last week that the game will be played during Thanksgiving week.

The AMS, under the tutoring of President Bob Seiler, are out for sweet revenge. They are patiently waiting for the official date. Line-ups for the AMS "Dodgers" remains the same.

Hopes are high that the proper officials take into consideration the proposal that classes be dismissed during the game. A splendid turnout for both sides will mean that the players will play good ball.

Basketball Begins With Two Returning Lettermen

Telescoping the end of the Ram football season, basketball started last Monday with a meeting of all turning out and initial practice.

Two lettermen from last year's squad are expected to spark a team composed largely of raw material. They are Bob Seiler and Al Gorbenko.

Thus far only one definitely scheduled event is on the basketball calendar. Coach Lee Eisan will take his men to the annual Modesto tournament in January.

Last year's squad found most of its competition with service teams in the bay region, and a similar round of games is possible this year, Eisan indicated last week.

Eisan also predicted that before the Modesto tourney he will have 15 men able to take on all comers.

Uncle Sam Pokes Hole In Ram Forward Wall

By Dee Williams

In just about a week Uncle Sam, in the guise of official orders from the United States Coast Guard to Ed Tomasello, first string tackle on the Ram varsity, is going to accomplish what grid opponents have failed to do all season—poke a hole in Coach Lee Eisan's forward wall.

Tomasello, a stalwart in Eisan's line, will leave to don traditional blues next Tuesday.

Seventeen year old Ed, a former Lowell High and Chase Private school student, has temporarily suspended plans for entering St. Mary's College after his work on the college campus.

Blond, five feet ten inches and bashfully handsome, Ed has been listed by Bob Braehman of the San Francisco Examiner's Sports staff as "a better than average junior college gridder."

Floods Wash Out Sacramento Game

A flooded Sacramento field caused cancellation of the Ram-Sacramento Junior College football encounter scheduled for last Saturday. Although no confirmation could be given, the possibility of scheduling a game later this month still exists, with the added possibility of its being played here.

Should no other date be arranged for Sacramento, the Ram Gridmen will close the schedule with their game this Friday at Santa Rosa, Coach Lee Eisan said Monday, quashing all rumors of additional games.

The Santa Rosa fracas through last Friday was not expected to give the Ram eleven too bad a time. Since then, however, three men will be found missing from the Ram lineup.

Perry Midbust, star left half, who has played fine football all season, will be in the hospital for several weeks. He was also recently appointed intramural sports director in an effort to coordinate all intramural activities. Whether or not a successor will be named to take his place has not been decided yet.

As the result of an injury during scrimmage last week, Vic Pudlowski is out of the Friday game. Pudlowski was first string tackle.

The third loss to the Rams is tackle Bob Zuckercorn, who leaves college this week for Seattle.

Coach Eisan has not yet released the names of those who will replace the three men.

Block letters were not awarded last year to football team members, but because of the heavier schedule this season and the success of the Ram team, football managers were confident that blocks will be awarded this year. The decision depends, however, on action of the men's Athletic Council.

When a new fire escape was planned for East hall on the Northern Montana College campus at Havre, WPB would release no iron or steel for its construction. So now East hall boasts a fire escape made of wood! At any rate, NMC students contend they can reach the ground before the escape burns down.

Classes To Elect Officers Tomorrow

Music Dept., AWS Plan Christmas Fete

In a pioneer move, the Associated Women Students and the college music department will present the first off-campus college program, a Christmas Festival, Thursday, December 7, at the Century Club, Franklin and Sutter Streets.

Parents of students here, friends of the college and all students are invited admission free, and the program will start at 8:15 p.m.

Featured and supporting the body of the program will be the newly organized Women's Chorus, under the direction of Flossita Badger. The college orchestra, directed by Madison Devlin, will also present a group of numbers and will play Christmas carols. Soloists and special features will be announced later.

Preceding the off-campus program, the traditional college Christmas hour is scheduled for 11 o'clock December 5, in Room 136. It is expected to be a preview, a shorter version of the festival, providing community singing of carols which will not be included at the December 7 event.

Participation of the Music Club, particularly in the matter of assisting the AWS in completing arrangements for and ushering at the festival is also expected. For this purpose, the Music Club meets tonight at 8 o'clock at the home of Melva Niles, president, 1282-24th avenue. All students interested in music are invited, Miss Niles said.

Welfare Group Collects Books For Seamen

Under the direction of Chairman Ed Clinton, the Welfare Committee last Monday began a drive which will last two weeks for the collection of books to be donated to the Merchant Marine.

To urge students to contribute books they are no longer using, there is a poster display in the first floor case near containers for all books contributed. Books may also be brought to the Associated Student office, Room 169.

"The drive being conducted in the college is strictly for Merchant Marine fighters," Clinton stated.

The idea was suggested to the Welfare Committee by Victor Di Suvero, former student here, now serving in the Merchant Marine in the Philippine Islands.

Di Suvero was born in Turin, Italy, where he attended elementary school until 1935, when he went with his family to China. There Di Suvero attended a preparatory school, St. Louis College, in Tien-tsin. The Di Suveros escaped from China in 1941, just before the United States declared war.

Speaking five languages, Di Suvero enrolled in this college for the Fall semester, 1941 at the age of 14, and again attended during the summer of 1943, when his education was interrupted by his enlistment in the Merchant Marine.

22 Toss Hats In Ring For Voting At 10 O'Clock; Candidates Listed

Exceeding all expectations the class spirit of the college has surged to great heights. Following the announcement by Bob Bisio, Associated Students president, that class offices would be reopened this semester and each college class would elect officers, 22 petitions were received last Friday.

Pat Farren, student in charge of the elections of class officers, has also expressed great satisfaction in the way that students have responded to the call for more pep and life.

All elections will be held tomorrow at 10 a.m.

The Low Freshmen will elect their officers in the library. The High Freshmen will meet in Room 100. Room 136 will be the scene for Low Sophomore elections.

Candidates for offices are as follows:

Low Frosh, for President—Donald C. Saroff, Sandy Gianella, Allan Moss and Neil Coe; for Vice-president—Josephine V. Grimaldi, Fred Pierce, Patricia Mountanos; Secretary—Marie Wettin and Rose Murphy.

Candidates for High Frosh offices are President — Patricia Farren and Magdalen Rogers; Vice-president—Jeanne Williams and Elaine Hyman; Secretary—Denyse Grosser, Beverly Jack and Constance Taigonis.

Thirteen Clubs Apply For CAB Recognition

That 13 clubs filed their charters to the Club Advisory Board was announced last week by Barbara Chambers, CAB president.

Charters were accepted from the following clubs: Music Club, Alpha Lambda Chi, Women's Service Society, Engineering Society, Theta Tau, Bible Study Club, Tri Epsilon, Kappa Phi, Beta Tau, Block SF Society, Beta Phi Beta, Alpha Gamma Sigma, Phi Beta Rho.

Those clubs who were recognized last semester but failed to submit their charters are Alpha Delta Epsilon, Chinese Students' Club, Home Economics Association, Newman Club, Omicron Phi Pi and Pi Mu Gamma.

Clubs that failed to submit charters but wish to become recognized by the Executive Council, must appear before the CAB giving reason for not having charter in by deadline date.

Haydn's Surprise Symphony On Next Music Hour

Scheduled to be played at the next Tuesday music hour program is Joseph Haydn's Symphony in G Major, better known as the Surprise Symphony, Madison Devlin, instructor, announced last week.

Devlin added that he hoped more students would respond to his invitation to visit the music appreciation class, as he believes they would enjoy it.

The class meets every Tuesday at 9 o'clock in Room 200.

What's In A Name? Or Why The Guardsman

By L. J. SMITH

Why was The Guardsman named The Guardsman?

Back in August 1935 the first issue of the San Francisco Junior College newspaper was titled Emanon, which, when spelled backward, meant No Name. A chance to name the paper and win an Associated Student card was offered in a contest sponsored by the college.

Students chose the name, and the first official issue of The Guardsman appeared on September 27, 1935 as a full size seven column newspaper with a staff of 69.

The spring of 1939 found the paper appearing twice a week with advertising sold for one dollar per column inch. Spring of 1942 came and The Guardsman, meeting early war crises, was published once a week. Late in the same year it was cut to five columns in size and appeared 10 times.

In 1943, The Guardsman was cut to its present size, but with smaller headline type, less space between the lines and no advertising, last less than one column of space.

The word Guardsman has no particular meaning except to signify the guarding of a free non-partisan publication, both meanings being constantly in the minds of the present staff which is 25 genil strong.

Disabled Students To Get Job Training

Students with physical handicaps can now receive special training for jobs through the State Department of Education, Bureau of Vocational Rehabilitation.

To aid students here, a representative of the bureau, Howard B. Wolcott, will be in Room 150, Mondays, Tuesdays, and Wednesday, November 27, 28, and 29 and December 4, 5, and 6 from 11 to 2:30 o'clock.

The purpose of the bureau is to prepare people with physical disabilities for jobs in which the physical handicap will not be a vocational handicap. Tests to analyze what is needed and to discover interests, capablilities and desires are given if needed to complete the information on file at the college.

Students with disabilities such as injury, loss, or diseases of the eyes, loss of hearing or deafness, lung diseases, cardiac disabilities, including malfunction of parts, amputated limbs, or bone diseases receive help. Physical restoration through surgery or artificial appliances such as glasses or hearing aids when they are needed for the successful carrying out of the job may be given.

The bureau will give vocational counseling information supplementary to the college counseling and placement staff.

The service is free of charge, and men, women, veterans, or non-veterans may take advantage of it.

The bureau, which has been in existence for 24 years, has its offices at 515 Van Ness Avenue, Room 515 from 9 to 10 a.m. and 4 to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Cafeteria To Be Closed All Day November 24

Luncheon will not be served in the college cafeteria Friday, November 24, the day following the Thanksgiving holiday, Helen Warnock, cafeteria manager, announced recently.

Classes will be in session on Friday, however, the registrar's office warned.

Mrs. Warnock added that the closing of the cafeteria that day includes the closing of the fountain.

AGS Society To Have Rain-Or-Shine Picnic

That the Alpha Gamma Sigma Society will have a rain-or-shine-picnic at Lake Temescal in Oakland this Sunday, was announced last week by Beatrice Baer, president of the society.

Faculty guests will be Annemarie Delfs, Henry Soule, and club adviser Edwin A. Cranston.

An announcement from Occidental College was received by Cranston recently concerning scholarships offered for 1945 and 1946. There are five freshman honor scholarships and two junior college scholarships available for both men and women.

College Will Campaign For Sixth War Loan Drive December 4, 5, 6; Chairman Lois Robinet Sets Quota At $30,000

Joining the rest of the nation in a drive to carry the Sixth War Loan over the top, the college will conduct its own campaign here December 4, 5 and 6, with a quota set at $30,000.

Lois Robinet, newly appointed chairman of the Welfare Committee, will head the drive, which is expected to be conducted similarly to that of last year.

Named chairman by Bob Bisio, Associated Student president who directed last year's drive far beyond its quota, Miss Robinet selected as her assistants Ruben Bassian, Virginia Franz, Mildred Hoffman, William Lamery, Barbara Mercer and Beth Sutton.

Complete details for bond purchases have not been released as yet by Miss Robinet. The first step, however, will be distribution of applications Monday and Tuesday, November 27 and 28, by several students who will also deliver five minute speeches in college classes.

Applications will then be submitted to the college bank, and unless special instructions are given, will be sent by registered mail directly to the owner's address by the Bank of America. Payment may be made by cash or check.

In setting the $30,000 quota, the committee pointed out that it could be easily met if each student buys one $25 bond. Last year's quota was $15,000, but $20,750 worth of bonds was sold.

Club and class competition sparked the drive then, and the same procedure is expected to be followed this year.

Chinese Club Asks CAB Recognition

The only club to submit a charter last week was the Chinese Club, according to Barbara Chambers, president of the Club Advisory Board.

Six clubs that were active last semester have still failed to reapply for charters. They are Alpha Delta Epsilon, Forum Club, Home Economics Association, Newman Club, Pi Mu Gamma, and Pi Mu Nu.

Clubs will not be officially recognized by the Executive Council until charters have been approved by the board.

Complete details regarding the dance, sponsored by the Club Advisory Board at Sigmund Stern Grove on Friday afternoon, December 1, will be announced at a future date.

Drama Group Needs Swiss Aid For Play

The cast of Letters to Lucerne, soon to be presented by the college drama group, is in search of students who can help develop an authentic setting for the play.

Swiss students in the college may be able to supply practical ideas of scenery and dress for this three-act play set in a private girls' school in Switzerland, said Ruth Somers, drama instructor.

Mrs. Somers, and the cast, will be grateful to any Swiss students who will call on them with suggestions in the Little Theatre, second floor, at the south end of the building.

Ed Clinton Resigns Top Welfare Position

Because of other responsibilities, Ed Clinton, Welfare Committee chairman, resigned his post last week. Lois Robinet, assistant, was immediately named chairman.

Before leaving office, Clinton expressed appreciation for student response to the current book drive for Merchant Marine members.

Miss Robinet announced that the books will continue to be collected throughout this week. Those who want to contribute books may put them either in the container in the case on the first floor of the building, or bring them to the Associated Student office, Room 169.

AWS And AMS Sponsor Character Dance Dec. 30

Associated Women Students and Associated Men Students will sponsor a Character dance on Saturday night, December 30, at the California Club, 1750 Clay Street, according to Yvonne Bordegaray, president of AWS, and Bob Seiler, president of AMS.

Admission is as usual by one Associated Student Card per couple.

Seiler explained that the costume should represent some character from a book, funny paper, movie, or the radio, such as Tom Sawyer, Mickey Mouse, Lana Turner or Superman.

A second AWS-AMS mixer dance is scheduled for Wednesday, November 29, in the north room of the cafeteria from 2:30 to 4 o'clock, to which all students are invited, with no admission charge.

Music will be by recordings played by Eugene Boger, who supplies the equipment and records. Boger promised to play records requested, provided he has them.

Close Of Essay Contest Scheduled For January 2

Deadline for submission of essays for the recently announced contest, sponsored by John G. Brucato, superintendent of the Agricultural Division of the San Francisco Water Department, is January 2, 1945, President A. J. Cloud announced last week.

Essays may be given to Edna Denhart, secretary to President Cloud, in Room 130.

Awards for the best compositions on Civic and Commercial Betterment and on How Present Distribution of Farm Products can be Improved, are four $100 war bonds, donated by Brucato.

The judges named to select the winning essays are President Cloud, Father Dunne, president of the University of San Francisco, and Dr. Alexander C. Roberts, president of San Francisco State College.

Competition is open to students at three above named San Francisco colleges. The San Francisco College for Women has withdrawn from competition entirely, because of its present war program.

Disabled Students Will Get Interviews In 170

Interviews with disabled students for jobs through the Bureau of Rehabilitation of the State Department of Education will be held in Room 170 instead of 150 as was previously announced.

Beginning next Monday, H. B. Wolcott, representative of the bureau, will be in the college Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays of the next two weeks from 11 to 2:30 o'clock.

The plan of the bureau is to find jobs for students in which the physical handicap will not be a vocational handicap, and to give training where needed. Veterans, non-veterans, men and women may take advantage of this free service.

If Eating Is Habit—Bring Lunch Friday

By THEODORA WONG

Any turkey in the house?

The college administration (unofficially) hopes there'll be enough at home to go into sandwiches for you and you.

The administration (officially) re-emphasized last week that because of a personnel shortage, the cafeteria will be closed all day Friday, following the Thanksgiving holiday tomorrow. Thus hopeful rumors are squelched, for both luncheon and fountain service will be closed.

Council May Support Inter-High School Basketball Tourney

With the program receiving favorable and encouraging comments from all members, the Executive Council last week tabled a plan in which the council would financially support an inter-high school basketball tournament.

This action was thought necessary since a fully detailed budget must be submitted by the plan's sponsor, Lee Eisan, physical education instructor, before official sanction is finally given.

Although the college will not actually participate in the sport events the business will be handled directly through the student administration.

Eisan stated that the games will be scheduled for the evenings during the Christmas holidays and admission will be charged, with the proceeds to be deposited into the college's undistributed fund.

Additional facts concerning exact dates, location and remaining details are expected to be announced this week.

There was little doubt that the proposition would not be passed by the student officers, Bob Bisio, president of the Associated Students, said, following the discusison.

Because these were the last two important budgets to be established for the current semester, the council cheerfully and immediately granted a $275 appropriation for the AMS and $295 for High Sophomore activities.

New Class Presidents Hold Meeting Tuesday

New class presidents elected Monday are requested by Roberta Mathews, Associated Students' vice-president, to attend an important meeting next Tuesday at 11 o'clock in Room 113.

Miss Mathews stressed the fact that class presidents must not fail to be present at this meeting, at which any plans for class activity will be discussed.

Happy Holiday Theme For High Frosh Hop

Happy Holidays has been chosen as the theme for the traditional High Freshman Hop. The dance will be held at the Century Club of California from 9 to 12 on December 8.

Roberta Mathews, vice president of the Associated Students, emphasized the fact that a good orchestra will be engaged for the occasion.

Admission is the usual fee of one Associated Student card per couple. The committee for the dance has not yet announced whether the date will be formal or semi-formal.

Passing The Buck

By Henry P. Buckingham

A VERY pretty sign has been painted on the door of Room 169. It reads, Student Body. Although the validity of this sign and a discussion thereof does not constitute national or international politics it has become an issue of local, very local, discussion. Since technically it does deal with politics, its review in this column would seem fitting.

Consider the total number of students in this college as constituting 100 per cent. Of the total attendance, 100 per cent belong to the student body. In other words, every student in the college is a part of the student body of the San Francisco Junior College.

Now with this 100 per cent group there is a unified organized group composed of approximately 95 per cent of the student body. This group's official title is The Associated Students of the San Francisco Junior College. The Associated Students have a constitution and a representative body of officers—we are told.

The student body has not, does not, and never will have either. Since neither is related in purpose or result, neither can use the other's name.

Perhaps this all seems a little trivial to you. Some may take it as a personal insult or as an insult to certain "high officials." It is not. Our only intent (and for once "Our" means not only this columnist but the entire staff) is to clarify this situation, and the very childish or high schoolish habit of referring to a college student organization as the "student body."

The term student body appears to be a hangover from the grand old high school days. In most high schools the name for student organization is "student body." Too many persons seem to, or prefer to, bring this high school trait to college with them.

We believe that the present political machine in power should, as it promised, inject tradition into the circulatory system of the college. The tradition, as the bosses of the machine promised, will not only be of an independent nature but will also follow some of the unwritten laws of other institutions. Undeniably, the organizations of other colleges are Associated Student organizations. We would definitely like to see this tradition instituted in the college.

Probably some will be heatedly aroused with anger when they read this and they will immediately rush to the poison ink bottle and dash off a dozen paragraphs of hate and contempt for The Guardsman. Please do, we love letters, especially the poison kind.

Why build these cities glorious if man unbuilded goes? In vain we build the world, unless the builder also grows.—Edwin Markham.

Named chairman by Bob Bisio, Associated Student president who directed last year's drive far beyond its quota, Miss Robinet selected as her assistants Ruben Bassian, Virginia Franz, Mildred Hoffman, William Lanery, Barbara Mercer and Beth Sutton

Complete details for bond purchases have not been released as yet by Miss Robinet The first step, however, will be distribution of applications Monday and Tuesday, November 27 and 28, by several students who will also deliver five minute speeches in college classes.

Applications will then be submitted to the college bank, and unless special instructions are given, will be sent by registered mail directly to the owner's address by the Bank of America Payment may be made by cash or check

In setting the $30,000 quota, the committee pointed out that it could be easily met if each student buys one $25 bond Last year's quota was $15,000, but $20 750 worth of bonds was sold

Club and class competition sparked the drive then, and the same procedure is expected to be followed this year

Chinese Club Asks CAB Recognition

The only club to submit a charter last week was the Chinese Club, according to Barbara Chambers, president of the Club Advisory Board

Six clubs that were active last semester have still failed to reapply for charters. They are Alpha Delta Epsilon, Forum Club, Home Economics Association, Newman Club, Pi Mu Gamma, and Pi Mu Nu

Clubs will not be officially recognized by the Executive Council until charters have been approved by the board

Complete details regarding the dance, sponsored by the Club Advisory Board at Sigmund Stern Grove on Friday afternoon, December 1, will be announced at a future date

Drama Group Needs Swiss Aid For Play

The cast of Letters to Lucerne, soon to be presented by the college drama group, is in search of students who can help develop an authentic setting for the play.

Swiss students in the college may be able to supply practical ideas of scenery and dress for this three-act play set in a private girls' school in Switzerland, said Ruth Somers, drama instructor.

Mrs. Somers, and the cast, will be grateful to any Swiss students who will call on them with suggestions in the Little Theatre, second floor, at the south end of the building.

Ed Clinton Resigns Top Welfare Position

Because of other responsibilities, Ed Clinton, Welfare Committee chairman, resigned his post last week. Lois Robinet, assistant, was immediately named chairman

Before leaving office, Clinton expressed appreciation for student response to the current book drive for Merchant Marine members

Miss Robinet announced that the books will continue to be collected throughout this week. Those who want to contribute books may put them either in the container in the case on the first floor of the building, or bring them to the Associated Student office, Room 169.

AWS And AMS Sponsor Character Dance Dec. 30

Associated Women Students, and Associated Men Students will sponsor a Character dance on Saturday night, December 30, at the California Club, 1750 Clay Street, according to Yvonne Bordegaray, president of AWS and Bob Seiler, president of AMS

Admission is as usual by one Associated Student Card per couple.

Seiler explained that the costume should represent some character from a book, funny paper, movie, or the radio, such as Tom Sawyer, Mickey Mouse, Lana Turner or Superman.

A second AWS-AMS mixer dance is scheduled for Wednesday, November 29, in the north room of the cafeteria from 2:30 to 4 o'clock, to which all students are invited, with no admission charge.

Music will be by recordings played by Eugene Boger, who supplies the equipment and records. Boger promised to play records requested, provided he has them.

Close Of Essay Contest Scheduled For January 2

Deadline for submission of essays for the recently announced contest, sponsored by John G. Brucato, superintendent of the Agricultural Division of the San Francisco Water Department, is January 2, 1945, President A. J. Cloud announced last week.

Essays may be given to Edna Denhart, secretary to President Cloud, in Room 130

Awards for the best compositions on Civic and Commercial Betterment and on How Present Distribution of Farm Products can be Improved, are four $100 war bonds, donated by Brucato.

The judges named to select the winning essays are President Cloud, Father Dunne, president of the University of San Francisco, and Dr. Alexander C. Roberts, president of San Francisco State College.

Competition is open to students at three above named San Francisco colleges. The San Francisco College for Women has withdrawn from competition entirely, because of its present war program

Disabled Students Will Get Interviews In 170

Interviews with disabled students for jobs through the Bureau of Rehabilitation of the State Department of Education will be held in Room 170 instead of 150 as was previously announced

Beginning next Monday, H. B. Wolcott, representative of the bureau, will be in the college Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays of the next two weeks from 11 to 2.30 o'clock.

The plan of the bureau is to find jobs for students in which the physical handicap will not be a vocational handicap, and to give training where needed Veterans, non-veterans, men and women may take advantage of this free service

If Eating Is Habit— Bring Lunch Friday

By THEODORA WONG

Any turkey in the house?

The college administration (unofficially) hopes there'll be enough at home to go into sandwiches for you and you.

The administration (officially) re-emphasized last week that because of a personnel shortage, the cafeteria will be closed all day Friday, following the Thanksgiving holiday tomorrow. Thus hopeful rumors are squelched, for both luncheon and fountain service will be closed.

Council May Support Inter-High School Basketball Tourney

With the program receiving favorable and encouraging comments from all members, the Executive Council last week tabled a plan in which the council would financially support an inter-high school basketball tournament.

This action was thought necessary since a fully detailed budget must be submitted by the plan's sponsor, Lee Eisan, physical education instructor, before official sanction is finally given.

Although the college will not actually participate in the sport events the business will be handled directly through the student administration.

Eisan stated that the games will be scheduled for the evenings during the Christmas holidays and admission will be charged, with the proceeds to be deposited into the college's undistributed fund.

Additional facts concerning exact dates, location and remaining details are expected to be announced this week.

There was little doubt that the proposition would not be passed by the student officers, Bob Bisio, president of the Associated Students, said, following the discussion.

Because these were the last two important budgets to be established for the current semester, the council cheerfully and immediately granted a $275 appropriation for the AMS and $295 for High Sophomore activities.

New Class Presidents Hold Meeting Tuesday

New class presidents elected Monday are requested by Roberta Mathews, Associated Students' vice-president, to attend an important meeting next Tuesday at 11 o'clock in Room 113.

Miss Mathews stressed the fact that class presidents must not fail to be present at this meeting, at which any plans for class activity will be discussed.

Happy Holiday Theme For High Frosh Hop

Happy Holidays has been chosen as the theme for the traditional High Freshman Hop. The dance will be held at the Century Club of California from 9 to 12 on December 8.

Roberta Mathews, vice president of the Associated Students, emphasized the fact that a good orchestra will be engaged for the occasion.

Admission is the usual fee of one Associated Student card per couple. The committee for the dance has not yet announced whether the date will be formal or semi-formal.

Passing The Buck

By Henry P. Buckingham

A VERY pretty sign has been painted on the door of Room 169. It reads, Student Body. Although the validity of this sign and a discussion thereof does not constitute national or international politics it has become an issue of local, very local, discussion. Since technically it does deal with politics, its review in this column would seem fitting.

Consider the total number of students in this college as constituting 100 per cent. Of the total attendance, 100 per cent belong to the student body. In other words, every student in the college is a part of the student body of the San Francisco Junior College.

Now with this 100 per cent group there is a unified organized group composed of approximately 95 per cent of the student body. This group's official title is The Associated Students of the San Francisco Junior College. The Associated Students have a constitution and a representative body of officers—we are told.

The student body has not, does not, and never will have either. Since neither is related in purpose or result, neither can use the other's name.

Perhaps this all seems a little trivial to you. Some may take it as a personal insult or as an insult to certain "high officials." It is not. Our only intent (and for once "Our" means not only this columnist but the entire staff) is to clarify this situation, and the very childish or high schoolish habit of referring to a college student organization as the "student body."

The term student body appears to be a hangover from the grand old high school days. In most high schools the name for student organization is "student body." Too many persons seem to, or prefer to, bring this high school trait to college with them.

We believe that the present political machine in power should, as it promised, inject tradition into the circulatory system of the college. The tradition, as the bosses of the machine promised, will not only be of an independent nature, but will also follow some of the unwritten laws of other institutions. Undeniably, the organizations of other colleges are Associated Student organizations. We would definitely like to see this tradition instituted in the college.

Probably some will be heatedly aroused with anger when they read this and they will immediately rush to the poison ink bottle and dash off a dozen paragraphs of hate and contempt for The Guardsman. Please do, we love letters, especially the poison kind.

Why build these cities glorious if man unbuilded goes? In vain we build the world, unless the builder also grows.—Edwin Markham.

For America's Sons And Daughters

TO help pay the tremendous cost of the struggle against the enemies of all freedom loving people, the government has again requested financial aid from its citizens.

Adopting the slogan, "Our Country is Still at War—Are You?" the treasury department must raise fourteen billion dollars by December 16, the conclusion of the Sixth War Loan Drive.

Five billion dollars of this critically needed amount will come from private individuals, such as the men and women of this college.

Particularly, the Associated Students should realize, for both personal reasons and commercial protection, that bonds are the safest investment in the world.

By increasing purchasing power when their maturity date is reached, bonds will be effective in winning and preserving the peace.

Not only do they insure a peaceful and economically sound future, but bonds will also put each person's loan regardless of denomination, into immediate action.

Thus, a 50 cent stamp will buy enough blood apparatus to save hundreds of wounded soldiers. Ten cents will procure sufficient oxygen to enable a bomber pilot to stay above enemy pursuit planes for 40 minutes.

As the campaign nears a victory in Europe, more bonds than ever must be bought since fighting Japan alone will place an even greater strain on the nation's treasury.

Money will be required to reduce the many expenses of supply and occupation, to bring back troops, to build more hospitals and rehabilitate the casualties.

Americans at home should offer thanks tomorrow, Thanksgiving Day, for the opportunities that bonds afford both them and their sons and daughters who are on foreign battlefields.

Letters To The Editor

RAM'S HORN

• For The Magazine
Editor, The Guardsman:

I was greatly surprised to find such an interesting piece of work as The Magazine Section in The Guardsman. The stories were full in content and educational. They gave proof that there are many students in the college that have a talent for writing.

Also I was glad to see the dream of allowing students, other than the staff of The Guardsman, get a chance to have something printed. Let's have much more of the same.

—P. U.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Full credit for selection of material for the Magazine section should go to Edward E. Sandys of the English Department.

• Against The Magazine
Editor, The Guardsman:

I was quite surprised, to say the least, when in your November 16 issue I discovered an insert had been added. After reading it thoroughly, I began to wonder about

DISCussions

A COUPLE of Saturdays ago Henry Busse, the Korn of the trumpet, and his band made a transcription for Standard. Working on the assumption that the reader might be interested in what a transcription is and how it is made, your reporter will devote his all to bring this vital, one-in-every-home message to him. Since everyone has at one time or another been exposed to the Busse treatment, no space will be devoted to the describing of his style. It should be enough to say that he recorded Evelina, Operatin, Cherokee, Rose Room, and other less popular tunes.

A transcription is a sixteen inch disc recorded at about half the speed that a commercial record is. On orchestra transcriptions, approximately ten tunes are recorded to a side. Since these transcriptions aren't available for public consumption they may only be heard over the radio stations that purchase them. Allowing time for a Figurine reducing commercial, one of these transcriptions can constitute a full fifteen minute radio program.

How are they made?

As soon as the band has set up, a frantic appearing individual comes rushing through a door with thousands of mikes in his arms. He sets them where he knows they are most needed and plugs the mike cords into the wall. Accomplishing this, he rushes into his booth, tests the mikes, and smiles.

He is the engineer and is treated most kindly by everyone for he can turn a sensational number into the worst turkey by simply forgetting to turn up the volume on the vocal and solo mikes. Fundamentally, his main job is to balance each section with the other in regards to volume and clearness.

The band then plays the tune to be recorded while the engineer adjusts his volumes and sets his levels. When everything is satisfactory, the engineer phones the recording department, gives them a recording time, and signals the band to stand by. At the precise recording time the band leader is cued and the music gets under way.

The recording that is made at this time is called the master and all pressings and copies are made from it.

Classroom Classics

AT the rate of something like once a day, students reveal to their instructors an unsuspected (in fact an entirely unconscious) sense of humor. The results of their confucion (pardon, confusion) of words, spelling and phraseology at least gives the faculty some lighter moments in the grind of reading papers.

The Guardsman here begins a column presenting a few of the choicer boners that are classroom classics.

For instance, Smetana composed an opera, The Bartered Bride. One naive student wrote lengthily of "The Battered Bride."

Another came close to truth when he described Clovis, emperor of the Franks, as a "rootless and brittle" ruler. Of course, he meant ruthless and brutal, in case you didn't know.

Perhaps the best we can offer this week is as follows: "Churches are places where the congregation does a lot of preying." If you don't get it, look it up in the dictionary.

Bunker Heads Intra Tournament; Brady Faculty Director

Appointed student director of intramural sports last week, Dick Bunker immediately announced beginning of activities in the form of basketball competition Tuesday, November 28.

Bunker replaces Perry Midbust, recently injured in football scrimmage and expected to be out the remainder of the semester.

At the same time, and to build the intramural competition back to its previous strong place in the college athletic program, Jack Brady was named faculty director by the administration. Brady formerly directed all intramural activities.

The system of qualification for competition previously used by Brady will be revived and provides that entry blanks for team play must be submitted to him in the men's gymnasium not later than Friday, November 24. Team names should appear on the blanks, Brady said.

Any fraternity, club or independent group of five men will be eligible to participate, the directors pointed out last week, adding the warning that each team should have at least one substitute.

Limitations to entries include the regulation that a person can only play for the team in which his name is listed, and that anyone earning his block letter in varsity basketball here will be ineligible for the tournament.

Tournament play will be conducted on a round robin schedule, and all schedules will be posted in the men's gymnasium. Teams will be assigned definite times to play, Bunker warned, and they must play at the times named.

two main things. First, does an insert of this type belong in a college paper and does it balance well with the rest of the paper? Before developing my answers to these questions I would like to say that to me the articles were well written and edited.

However, I wasn't very impressed by the timeliness or the interest of the topics chosen. I am in whole hearted agreement with the idea behind the publishing of these compositions but feel that more care should be devoted to the selection of these writings in regards to interest of the topics. In fact, one article was very well written and was even timely but the subject discussed was just too controversial. Another criticism was that the main impression I received was that this insert was just a means to an end and was not published in the interest of all the students. An insert of this type definitely doesn't balance with the rest of a paper unless the selection of material is well thought out. This wasn't.

Rams Smother Santa Rosa

Twelve Turn Out For Basketball

With 12 men, four of them veterans, working out in the men's gymnasium daily, the basketball season officially opened for the Rams last Monday. Director of Athletics Lee Eisan said that he expected more to sign up but that he would keep the squad down to the best 15 men.

Two additional veterans joined the ranks Monday, bringing the total to four. Previously, Bob Seiler and Al Gorbenko had been counted on to spark the Ram team. Seiler, although injured last week in football scrimmage, is expected to return for the balance of the casaba season.

Donald Tong, forward, and Chuck Shea, also forward, are the other two returning from last year. Both are lettermen but have had less experience than Seiler and Gorbenko.

The Rams will play in the Modesto Tournament on January 4, 5 and 6. They will also play games in the men's gymnasium and in the gymnasiums of the other schools. According to Eisan, competition will include Modesto, Sacramento, Marin and Menlo Junior Colleges and the Junior Varsity team of the University of California.

Team manager for the season is William Thompson, who will be assisted by William Thomford.

Under their direction a new managing system will be used. A managing staff, composed of the managers of baseball, football and basketball and their assistants, will insure the presence of a manager and an assistant at each practice and game. The need for a change in the system was due to the fact that the managers have not always been able to come out to all of the games and practice games because of classes.

WAA Plans Traditional Christmas Party Dec. 8

One of the few traditions that have been regularly observed at the college is the Women's Athletic Association Christmas party. It will be held Friday, December 8, at this college, according to Susan Miles, president of WAA.

Basketball and volleyball are expected to be played. After the games there will be refreshments, and a Christmas tree will add the holiday spirit.

Dates for three WAA playdays with other colleges were not yet definitely settled, Miss Miles added. Indications are that the invitational playday at San Mateo Junior College, tentatively planned for November, will be postponed to December.

Final Score 18 To 12; Newell-Cronn Combo Clicks Once Again, Saves Game

Climaxing the season in a burst of glory the Rams defeated Santa Rosa Junior College with a score of 18 to 12 last Friday night. The game was a passing duel between the two teams, but the Newell-Cronn combination emerged victorious.

Before the first quarter had properly started, the Santa Rosa squad slipped over two passes that were both good for touchdowns, and the score stayed at 12 to 0 until the beginning of the third quarter.

In the third quarter, the Ram scoring rampage began as the Newell-Cronn duo began to function. A beautiful 20 yard pass from George Newell to Jim Cronn brought the team its first taste of paydirt.

Until the beginning of the fourth quarter the score remained 12 to 6, and the prospects for the Rams looked pretty black. But again the passing combination of Cronn and Newell swung into action. A pass that looked as if it went at least 35 yards was taken over by Cronn for another touchdown. Then once more for another touchdown, the duo went into action, and again Cronn went over the line bringing the score to a total of 18 to 12.

With the winning of this game the season closes, one of the most successful wartime seasons that the Ram Eleven has seen. The team has played six games and lost only one and that one was to Modesto. The whole squad deserves a well earned round of applause for the fine football they have played throughout the past season.

Injury Stops Seiler's Football, Basketball

Bad luck in the form of an injured foot has knocked out the Ram's star fullback, Bob Seiler, for the rest of the season. Seiler, who has played fine all through the present football schedule, intended to play basketball also. However, this injury may stop him from taking an active part.

With both Seiler and Perry Midbust, also fullback, out because of injuries, responsibility of the fullback department in the Santa Rosa game rested on the shoulders of Chuck Seegar, who proved his ability as fullback in the Hollister game.

The Princeton University Press will publish a monumental collection of the writings and correspondence of Thomas Jefferson to mark the two-hundredth anniversary of Jefferson's birth. The writings, consisting of 13,000,000 words in fifty volumes, will cost $344,300 to produce and will be partly financed by the New York Times.

Intramural Entries Due November 24

Those interested in the opening intramural round robin must have their entries in by Friday, November 24, according to Intramural Director, Jack Brady. Schedules for basketball competition and play will be announced soon. Entries will be accepted every day by Brady in the office of the men's gymnasium. Managers of club or independent teams should fill out the application below, Brady said.

Name of college organization represented .....

If independent team, name of team .....

Manager of Team: Name ..... Address ..... Phone .....

Captain of team: Name ..... Address ..... Phone .....

Name of Players 1 ..... 2 ..... 3 .....
4 ..... 5 ..... 6 .....
7 ..... 8 ..... 9 .....
10 ..... 11 ..... 12 .....

In entering this team I understand that none but members of this college or college organizations are eligible to compete.

If a student is a member of your organization, he is not eligible to compete unless his name appears in the above list.

I realize that because of studies it may be impossible to have the same players on the field each time our team plays, but I shall make every effort to have a team present.

Today Deadline For Program Changes; 47 Petitions To Graduate Approved

Today is the last day on which to drop a semester course, Mary Jane Learnard, assistant registrar, warned last week.

Any student wishing to drop a course must obtain the proper change-of-program-slip at the registrar's office, have it signed by the instructor in the class that he wishes to change, and then secure the approval of his adviser.

Miss Learnard added that 47 petitions to graduate in February have been filed and approved. They are Ruben Bassian, Robert Bisio, Marilyn Elanor Blake, Edla Jane Boggs, George Arnold Brenk, Orvin Earle Chandler, Catherine Clotilda Chu, Elaine H. Corcoran

Franklin Dea, Albert Donabedian, Mary Helen Fong, Marie Louise Foster, Ramona Louise Frechette, Anita Celine Geiger, Arleen May Go, Vernon L. Harley, Beatrice Jean Henry, Alice Elaine Hilliker, John H. Hind, Lawrence H. Johnson, Betsy W. Keaton Fred Richard Lahm, Gertrude Snider Land, Mary Y Leong, Thelma Ruth Main, Lloyd Val Margoit, Roberta Georgia Mathews.

Gloria Ann Mollo, Marian Y. Moy, Wanda Natucci, Helenann Nutter, Eva Olander, Gerd Synore Olsen, Jessie Owyang, Wultina Ann Paladini, Mary Elizabeth Patterson, Christina Plessas, Blanche Eva Regalia, Carolyn Marie Righetti, Harold Jacob Schneider, Helen Barbara Taylor, Leonie T. Van Deusen, Helen Louise Wheeler, Howell Lloyd Williams, Iola Marie Wilsey, Norma L. Wong, and Davis B. Woodward.

Ex-Marine Beauchamp Winner On Budda's Hour

Howard K. Beauchamp, ex-marine now a student at the college, was the winner of Budda's Amateur Hour on October 28. He is now eligible to compete in the finals to be broadcast December 9, at 9:30 p. m. over station KFRC.

Beauchamp is 20 years old and was stationed for 10 months on Guadalcanal prior to his honorable discharge in October, 1943. He classes his type of singing as romantic baritone, or "Frankie Stuff."

Tooley Replaces Hagland As AMS Secretary

Colin Tooley last week was appointed AMS secretary pro tem by Bob Bisio, Associated Student president, following the departure from college of Elmer Hagland, elected secretary.

Hagland is taking a leave of absence to step into a local war job. Tooley will fill the vacancy left in the executive department of the AMS until the Executive Council decides on a permanent appointee.

Faculty Association Tea Set Today In Room 108

The college Faculty Association announced last week that the first faculty get-together will be the faculty tea today from 2:30 to 4 p. m. in Room 108.

Frances Mount and her cooking class will supply the refreshments. J. R. Herman, floriculture instructor, will provide the floral decorations for the occasion.

Christmas Festival Selections Chosen

Selections for the college's first off-campus program, the Christmas Festival, scheduled to be presented at the Century Club Thursday, December 7, were announced last week by Flossita Badger, director of the women's chorus.

A double quartet and soloist will sing a special arrangement of Oh Holy Night, and Schubert's Ave Maria will be presented by a double trio of bass, alto and soprano voices.

The college orchestra, sponsored by Madison Devlin, will play Patrol of the Tin Soldiers, by Ganne; Poupee Valsante, by Boldini, and several Christmas carols.

One Spanish and two French carols will be sung by the chorus; Helen Wheeler, pianist, will play a few Chopin selections; Melva Niles, soprano, is vocal soloist, and Deborah Burstein will be narrator for the evening.

The processional preceding the festival will be led by candlebearers Barbara Lee Eisan, daughter of Coach Lee Eisan, and Devlin's son, Bill.

Sponsors of the program are the Music Department, the Associated Women Students and the Music Club.

The traditional college Christmas hour, scheduled for 12 o'clock Tuesday, December 5, in Room 136, is expected to be a preview of the festival and will provide community singing which will not be included in the December 7 event.

Stores Still Want Part Time Help In Sales, Stock

That stores are still anxious for college men and women to apply for employment in sales and stock capacities was disclosed last week by Edward Larson, placement office director.

Many stores are anxious to place students of 18 years and older, particularly those who have had past sales experience, he said, while for those not wishing to sell, jobs are available in the stock rooms as cashiers and wrappers.

Larson also revealed that some stores have gone to great trouble and expense in arranging for classes to be conducted to instruct their employees in the different phases of work, especially selling. Students employed by these stores, and attending these classes will continue to draw pay, Larson emphasized.

Since those classes are already in session in several of the larger stores, Larson urged that all students interested make prompt application.

Although no definite deadline has as yet been set for either store or post office jobs, Larsen stated that for the remainder of the month there would undoubtedly continue to be a demand for Christmas vacation work.

Special stress was made by Larson of the fact that in addition to store and post office work, there is the usual steady demand for part time jobs in offices and factories, covering many fields and skills.

Northwestern University, housed in single wooden building when it was founded 93 years ago, now boasts 31 buildings.

College History: Steps In Building Balboa Park Into 55 Acre Campus

By L. J. SMITH

When San Francisco obtained title to the site of land that is now bordered by Phelan Avenue, Ocean and points north and east, no one dreamed that it would one day be the site of a city's junior college.

What happened between 1854 and 1935 is city history, and what happened between 1935, when the college was founded, and 1940 when it was located on the historic site of land, is college history.

Attending college classes was a problem in the fall of 1935, for morning classes were held at the University of California Extension Building, 540 Powell Street, and afternoon classes met at Galileo High School. Enrollment hit 1,487, while 81 instructors stood ready to fight for glory.

Students were quick to realize that torture was unnecessary and soon began to dream of a college all their own. Early in January, 1936, locations were considered and students voted, four to one, in favor of the Ingleside neighborhood. Balboa Park became the future home of the college.

Mayor Angelo J. Rossi turned the first shovelful of earth on April 25, 1937, while students cheered hopefully. Classes came and went, but 1939 found 3,100 weary students meeting in 25 different places. Finally, contractors guaranteed that the college would be ready for the 1940 fall semester.

Carpenters ran rampant through the halls, painters sang merrily as they worked, and 3,200 students walked up the new steps early in September, 1940. Instructors carried on, classes defied hammers and plaster for a month, then our butterfly emerged from its cocoon—completed on October 6, 1940.

When the Japanese attacked Pearl Harbor in 1941 and war was declared, the college met wartime demands by offering night and special classes needed by the citizens of San Francisco.

At present there are nearly 1300 students enrolled and 83 instructors continually striving to teach the new generation

Engineering Society Has Guest Speaker Tuesday

All students majoring in engineering, mathematics, chemistry and physics are invited to hear a guest speaker of the college Engineering Society next Tuesday, 11 to 1 o'clock, in Room 136.

Speaker will be Harry Chin, San Francisco assistant chief of production for United Airlines, who will preview the coming postwar aerodynamic developments of America.

Chin will illustrate his talk with a film shown concurrently.

At its last meeting, the Engineering Society elected for president Charles Riley; vice-president, Quin Mess, and secretary-treasurer Barbara Henshaw.

Today Deadline For Program Changes; 47 Petitions To Graduate Approved

Today is the last day on which to drop a semester course, Mary Jane Learnard, assistant registrar, warned last week.

Any student wishing to drop a course must obtain the proper change-of-program-slip at the registrar's office, have it signed by the instructor in the class that he wishes to change, and then secure the approval of his adviser.

Miss Learnard added that 47 petitions to graduate in February have been filed and approved. They are Ruben Bassian, Robert Bisio, Marilyn Elanor Blake, Edla Jane Boggs, George Arnold Brenk, Orvin Earle Chandler, Catherine Clotilda Chu, Elaine H. Corcoran.

Franklin Dea, Albert Donabedian, Mary Helen Fong, Marie Louise Foster, Ramona Louise Frechette, Anita Celine Geiger, Arleen May Go, Vernon L. Harley, Beatrice Jean Henry, Alice Elaine Hilliker, John H. Hind, Lawrence H. Johnson, Betsy W. Keaton Fred Richard Lahm, Gertrude Snider Land, Mary Y. Leong, Thelma Ruth Main, Lloyd Val Margoit, Roberta Georgia Mathews.

Ex-Marine Beauchamp Winner On Budda's Hour

Howard K. Beauchamp, ex-marine now a student at the college, was the winner of Budda's Amateur Hour on October 28. He is now eligible to compete in the finals to be broadcast December 9, at 9:30 p. m. over station KFRC.

Beauchamp is 20 years old and was stationed for 10 months on Guadalcanal prior to his honorable discharge in October, 1943. He classes his type of singing as romantic baritone, or "Frankie Stuff."

Tooley Replaces Hagland As AMS Secretary

Colin Tooley last week was appointed AMS secretary pro tem by Bob Bisio, Associated Student president, following the departure from college of Elmer Hagland, elected secretary.

Hagland is taking a leave of absence to step into a local war job. Tooley will fill the vacancy left in the executive department of the AMS until the Executive Council decides on a permanent appointee.

Faculty Association Tea Set Today In Room 108

The college Faculty Association announced last week that the first faculty get-together will be the faculty tea today from 2:30 to 4 p. m. in Room 108.

Frances Mount and her cooking class will supply the refreshments. J. R. Herman, floriculture instructor, will provide the floral decorations for the occasion.

Christmas Festival Selections Chosen

Selections for the college's first off-campus program, the Christmas Festival, scheduled to be presented at the Century Club Thursday, December 7, were announced last week by Flossita Badger, director of the women's chorus.

A double quartet and soloist will sing a special arrangement of Oh Holy Night, and Schubert's Ave Maria will be presented by a double trio of bass, alto and soprano voices.

The college orchestra, sponsored by Madison Devlin, will play Patrol of the Tin Soldiers, by Ganne; Poupee Valsante, by Boldini, and several Christmas carols.

One Spanish and two French carols will be sung by the chorus; Helen Wheeler, pianist, will play a few Chopin selections; Melva Niles, soprano, is vocal soloist, and Deborah Burstein will be narrator for the evening.

The processional preceding the festival will be led by candlebearers Barbara Lee Elsan, daughter of Coach Lee Elsan, and Devlin's son, Bill.

Sponsors of the program are the Music Department, the Associated Women Students and the Music Club.

The traditional college Christmas hour, scheduled for 12 o'clock Tuesday, December 5, in Room 136, is expected to be a preview of the festival and will provide community singing which will not be included in the December 7 event.

Stores Still Want Part Time Help In Sales, Stock

That stores are still anxious for college men and women to apply for employment in sales and stock capacities was disclosed last week by Edward Larson, placement office director.

Many stores are anxious to place students of 18 years and older, particularly those who have had past sales experience, he said, while for those not wishing to sell, jobs are available in the stock rooms as cashiers and wrappers.

Larson also revealed that some stores have gone to great trouble and expense in arranging for classes to be conducted to instruct their employees in the different phases of work, especially selling. Students employed by these stores, and attending these classes will continue to draw pay, Larson emphasized.

Since those classes are already in session in several of the larger stores, Larson urged that all students interested make prompt application.

Although no definite deadline has as yet been set for either store or post office jobs, Larsen stated that for the remainder of the month there would undoubtedly continue to be a demand for Christmas vacation work.

Special stress was made by Larson of the fact that in addition to store and post office work, there is the usual steady demand for part time jobs in offices and factories, covering many fields and skills.

War Manpower Clearances are still required for the obtaining of all jobs. These are available at the placement office in Room 155.

College History: Steps In Building Balboa Park Into 55 Acre Campus

By L. J. SMITH

When San Francisco obtained title to the site of land that is now bordered by Phelan Avenue, Ocean and points north and east, no one dreamed that it would one day be the site of a city's junior college.

What happened between 1854 and 1935 is city history, and what happened between 1935, when the college was founded, and 1940 when it was located on the historic site of land, is college history.

Attending college classes was a problem in the fall of 1935, for morning classes were held at the University of California Extension Building, 540 Powell Street, and afternoon classes met at Galileo High School. Enrollment hit 1,487, while 81 instructors stood ready to fight for glory.

Students were quick to realize that torture was unnecessary and soon began to dream of a college all their [illegible]. Early in January, 19[illegible] were considered and [illegible]d, four to one, in [illegible] Ingleside neighborhood. Balboa Park became the future home of the college.

Mayor Angelo J. Rossi turned the first shovelful of earth on April 25, 1937, while students cheered hopefully. Classes came and went, but 1939 found 3,100 weary students meeting in 25 different places. Finally, contractors guaranteed that the college would be ready for the 1940 fall semester.

Carpenters ran rampant through the halls, painters sang merrily as they worked, and 3,200 students walked up the new steps early in September, 1940. Instructors carried on, classes defied hammers and plaster for a month, then our butterfly emerged from its cocoon—completed on October 6, 1940.

When the Japanese attacked Pearl Harbor in 1941 and war was declared, the college met wartime demands by offering night and special classes needed by the citizens of San Francisco.

At present there are nearly 1300 students enrolled and 83 instructors continually striving to teach the new generation.

Engineering Society Has Guest Speaker Tuesday

All students majoring in engineering, mathematics, chemistry and physics are invited to hear a guest speaker of the college Engineering Society next Tuesday, 11 to 1 o'clock, in Room 136.

Speaker will be Harry Chin, San Francisco assistant chief of production for United Airlines, who will preview the coming postwar aerodynamic developments of America.

Chin will illustrate his talk with a film shown concurrently.

College Christmas Hour Tuesday At 12 Previews Festival

As a preview to the college's first off-campus program, the Christmas Festival, the traditional Christmas hour will be held next Tuesday, December 5, in Room 136, at 12 o'clock, Flossita Badger, college music instructor, emphasized last week.

The piano sololst, the featured vocalist, the special trio, certain selections by the women's chorus, and Deborah Burstein, narrator, will not appear on the Christmas hour here.

This portion of the program will be reserved for the Christmas Festival to be presented at the Century Club Thursday, December 7, at 8:15 p. m.

However, the community singing of favorite carols will be the main event of the Christmas hour and will not be included in the December 7 program.

The traditional processional, Adeste Fidelis, will be led by candlebearers Barbara Lee Elsan, and Madison Devlin's son, Bill.

A double quartet, with soloist Patricia McCormiek, will sing a special arrangement of Oh Holy Night, and the college orchestra, sponsored by Madison Devlin, will play March of the Tin Soldiers, by Pierne, and Waltzing Doll, by Poldini.

Miss Badger will direct the Women's Chorus in two groups of songs.

An English carol, Merry Christmas, will constitute the recessional.

All students of the college are invited to attend both the Christmas hour and the Christmas Festival and join in the spirit of the season.

AWS-AMS Sponsor Mixer Dance Today In Cafe At 2:30

Popular bands, tunes, and plenty of F. Sinatra will be heard at the mixer dance to be held today in the north room of the cafeteria from 2:30 to 4:30. p. m.

Sponsors of the dance are the Associated Women Students and Associated Men Students.

Yvonne Bordegaray, president of AWS, and Bob Seiler, president of AMS, announced that all students are invited, with no admission charge.

Since the music will be by recordings played by Eugene Boger, who supplies the equipment and records, tunes may be requested.

The AWS-AMS Character dance is scheduled for December 30, at the California Club, with admission of one Associated Student card per couple, according to Miss Bordegaray and Seiler.

New Year's A Holiday, But Not The Day After

By Priscilla Shaw

Although inadvertently omitted from the college calendar, January 1, commonly known as New Year's Day, will not be a day for classes, Mary Jane Learnard, assistant registrar, explained last week.

Miss Learnard emphasized that classes close for the Christmas holidays Friday, December 8, and resume on December 26. Classes as usual are scheduled for the remaining days in the weeks of December 26 and January 2.

Heralders Of Yuletide Spirit

$30,000 Bond Quota Here Will Send 8 Bombers To Tokyo If Drive Succeeds; Sales Begin Next Monday In Room 155

Prowling the skies from Leyte in the Philippines to Tokyo, eight bombers will fly on gasoline bought with the $30,000 to be raised from the college's participation in the Sixth War Loan drive beginning Monday, December 4 through December 6.

This announcement was made last week by the Welfare Committee, in charge of the drive here. At the same time, the committee completed arrangements for actual bond sales.

Sales will be conducted from 9 to 1 o'clock in the employment office, Room 155, under the direction of Harry Nelson and Mozelle Milliken, of the faculty. Margaret Flournoy, stenography instructor, will supply typists to fill out bond applications.

Payment for bonds may be by check or cash, the committee said, and all checks should be made payable to the Bank of America.

Yesterday a display explaining the drive was placed in the center showcase on the first floor. Mimeographed articles pertaining to the bond drive written by students in English classes will be available in the main hall tomorrow and Friday.

Class and club competition will be on a percentage basis; that is, a large number of students bringing in bond buyers may count more heavily than a big sale brought in by one student. Therefore, it is important, Miss Robinet said, that many students participate.

Credit for bonds may be divided so that part will go to a class and part to a club if the purchaser so desires. Promised awards to winning clubs and classes will be announced later, the committee said.

Tree Project Nears End With New Appropriation

That the much planned, much worked on tree planting project will be completed by the end of this semester was proudly announced last week by Bob Bisio, president of the Associated Students.

One hundred dollars has been set aside for the purchase of Italian Pine trees which are due to arrive early in December. Thomas Church, college architect, has approved final plans for an archway of trees to shelter the curved front walk and approaching driveways.

To assure correct growth the entire area must be watered to soften the ground, a two foot hole for each tree must be dug, filled with loam and left overnight. Lastly, a five foot stake must be erected beside each hole before digging may begin.

Supervising and responsibility have been accepted by committee members, Bernard Jack, chairman; Charles Riley and Donald Dashner.

Council May Give Class Leaders Vote

Creating a heated controversy among the usually complacent Executive Council members, Edward E. Sandys, English instructor, last week requested that class presidents be given an official position and vote on the council.

Although Sandys offered numerous reasons why the proposed action was necessary, he was met with strong opposition as well as support.

Legislation of this nature may only be established in the form of an amendment to the constitution of the Associated Students and will require a two-thirds affirmative vote by both the council and the student members, or a petition and two-thirds student vote.

If the proposition does receive a majority sanction, it will alter the now standing charter which provides for a ten-member administrative group.

Coe, Farran, Bird Win Class President Posts

A high spirited low freshman class last week turned out to elect Neil Coe as president, Frederick Pierce as vice-president, and Pat Curtiss as secretary.

High freshman offices were taken by Pat Farran as president, Elaine Hyman, vice-president, and Beverly Jack, secretary.

Low sophomores elected Merrill Bird as their president, Angelo Asaro as vice-president, and Charles Riley, Jr., as secretary.

Because the election committee, headed by Miss Farran, refused to give out actual figures, there is no way of reporting whether voting was representative.

The election committee gave as its sole reason for not releasing actual figures, "We don't want anyone's feelings hurt!"

Welfare Group Collects 300 Books, Magazines

Approximately 300 books and magazines were contributed to the book drive for Merchant Marine seamen, Lois Robinet, chairman of the Welfare Committee, announced last week.

Magazines and mystery books made up the majority of the contribution. Some fictional and a few non-fictional books were also among the collection.

Passing The Buck

By Henry P. Buckingham

BI-ANNUALLY, we, the students, elect a president of the Associated Students. The president assumes office; the constitution waits to guide him. It is within the power of the students to amend the constitution when a revision seems necessary.

Last week we were informed that the constitution might be revised so that newly elected officers could become members of the executive council. This calls to mind that old proverb, "Two wrongs don't make a right."

Of the few weak arguments in favor of the new proposal, about four in number, two seem to be weakest and automatically void any thought of passing the amendment. These weakest of arguments are to make the newly-elected presidents familiar with parliamentary law and give the new presidents something to do.

Let us proceed to tear down these arguments bit by bit. Argument number one: Give these new officers experience in parliamentary law.

This argument seems almost slanderous to the new officers. These officers presented themselves as candidates because they believed that they were well-equipped to preside over their respective classes. If these recently elected presidents do not already know and understand parliamentary law, then what in blazes are they doing as presidents of college classes? Assuming that they do not know law, then we strongly advise them to obtain a good book on parliamentary law, preferably Roberts Rules, from the library and read it cover to cover.

Point number two: As members of Ex-Council they will have something to do.

Now isn't this ducky. The college is turned upside down with the excitement of electing class officers. Our president advocates the idea and comments on the great improvement that will be made. People dash here and there. Classes are dismissed. The officers are elected and installed. Things slowly return to normal. People go around with a satisfied look on their pans. Then suddenly we sit on the tack of realization, realization that we have elected officers. We have coronated them to rule over an empireless empire. There is nothing for them to do.

ADDING INSULT . . .

The election committee in charge of counting ballots refused to release any figures concerning the votes received by each individual. They feel that some person's feelings might be hurt. This is absurd. Most candidates like to know how close they have come, and by knowing how close they came they can judge whether they would be likely candidates in the future.

Losing candidates may purchase OKI DOKI IPSI PIPSI, Two-for-fifty HARI KIRI KNIFES in The Guardsman office. (Approved by Farm Women's Journal.)

Shall This College Go Bureaucratic?

OF vital importance to the Associated Students, is the proposition that will enable the four newly elected class presidents to grasp a permanent position and a vote on the Executive Council.

Since the constitution provides that the administrative body consist of a maximum of 10 members, not the proposed 14, the unwarranted procedure of establishing an amendment would be required.

Advocates of the program assume that the plan will create a more abundant college spirit.

Not only will the action permit neglected individuals to become familiar with parliamentary law before accepting higher posts, but it will offer class leaders the needed stimulus to appear at council roll-calls.

Finally, the plan's backers state that allowing these people to vote on governmental business, will furnish the urgently requested "something to do."

Although the arguments favoring the theory seem admirable and somewhat convincing, investigation proves that an amendment of this nature will bring about unnecessary, bureaucratic legislation.

Adding four seats to the student cabinet representing groups already represented, will not produce the spirit that is wistfully expected to surge forth.

Parliamentary training under such a scheme might be gained, however, one and only one low freshman could receive benefit, for there are certain executive tasks in the Associated Student organization available to all other men and women.

Because meetings are open to any person sufficiently interested to be present, it is shameful that an "invitation" must be extended to class officials to encourage their attendance.

If everyone will interpret the current issue intellgently, its ultimate defeat may be secured, thereby insuring a proper and efficient administration.

Letters To The Editor

RAM'S HORN

• Symbols For Posterity

Editor, The Guardsman:

A few days ago, while browsing in the Associated Student office, I happened to notice, dusty and hidden in the corner, the shovel with which the ground for the college was broken. Further investigation revealed the cylinder in which the earth of the first shovelfull is stored for posterity. Since entering the college I have never heard mention of these symbols. Indeed it should form some sort of symbol or at least have some historical value.

The present student administration should certainly be able to use this in its attempt to further college traditions. Our very able student officers must be full of ideas and suggestions regarding this subject.

• Chinatown Story Incredible

Editor, The Guardsman:

You know as well as I do, anyone who lives in the United States has a right to exercise the freedom of religion, of speech, and of the press. For this reason I would like to contradict some of the facts or statements from an article written by one of the students here in S. F. J. C. a few weeks ago. Furthermore, I can prove to you what he said about Chinatown is not true.

This student stated that the present situation of San Francisco's Chinatown is really a slummed district with all sorts of contagious diseases. If that were true, all Chinese would carry some sort of contagious disease with them wherever they go. How come then, the rest of the students of S. F. J. C. don't get affected by these diseases when there are so many Chinese students attending this great school of ours?

As a matter of fact, San Francisco's Chinatown is considered the greatest and the prettiest Chinatown in the world—that is, not including China, of course. Every day one can see hundreds of tourists from all over the country visiting Chinese theaters, broadcasting stations, restaurants, night clubs, and numerous other magnificent spots they haven't seen before.

Consequently, the student who wrote Prelude To Future must have needed badly a great deal of materials for his English composition, or he wouldn't have made up such an incredible story about Chinatown.

DISCussions

A group of huge, round-shouldered, bruisers are standing in the entrance to a particular building that houses the offices of a certain well known uptown bonze.

Outside the building, a little four-foot individual is running up the street. Constantly he glances at his watch. He is obviously under a tremendous pressure. With each noting of the time, he quickens his step. Wheezing like an attacked victim of asthma, he appears on the verge of collapse. A last burst of speed and energy finds him cowering on the steps of the forementioned building.

Can he make it? The entrance is just a stone's throw away. Suddenly, with all of the timeliness of the tensely dramatic, he notices the bruisers standing in the doorway. They obviously have no intention of moving for their new acquaintance.

First, he quietly asks them to move so that he may pass. The mumble of the huge ones continues. Close scrutiny discloses that this mumbling is merely the conversation of these giants. Even with his Cuban heels the newcomer, is infinitesimal.

Maybe he can slip by. He only has a matter of minutes. He tries. Picking himself up from the floor, it is plain to see that he is angered.

With high, screeching tones he begins to tell these giants what he is going to do to them if they don't move. Don't they know he has to get upstairs to collect his fabulous winnings?

At first he can't even hear himself over the already established rumble of the huge ones. He yells louder and louder and louder. He is mad, he is hysterical, he is frantic with worry. Why don't these big ones move. Please, please, please! He is even exciting the nearby populous which has gathered to hear his plea. He is inspired.

The above is merely an impression drawn from Ellington's recording of Main Stem. What has the above to do with this record? The next time you listen to it, just picture the indifference of the saxes to the frantic trumpet in the background as being the indifference of the huge ones to our little friend and you are with it.

Santa Rosa Exhonerates Ram Rooters; One Jasper Clotch Held For Sign Copping

Federal agents have not been called in by the Santa Rosa Junior College. This was officially verified last week. However, it has been admitted that a special investigator was employed for the purpose of exonerating all San Francisco Junior College students and any members of Tri-Epsilon Fraternity from the sign-copping committed at Santa Rosa November 17.

The special investigator first concluded that the motive for the thievery of the sign, which graced the broadcasting booth high atop the rim of the Santa Rosa stadium, was revenge for the 1942 painting of the San Francisco Campus.

In 1942, when the Santa Rosa team visited the city, the two statues that stand on either side of the inner court were mysteriously painted. There were also numerous "S. R.'s" painted on the walks and drives around the campus.

Arrested and held for trial for the theft of the sign was one Jasper Clotch of Southeast Santa Rosa. Under merciless questioning, Clotch said quote, Bronstitch gurphlatt. I stumpsticht and scruggel, unquote. This means, when translated from the strange language of the Southeast Santa Rosans, "I needed fire wood for my poor, cold, starving football team."

Jasper's conviction can mean a fine of $1000, loss of three months' A coupons, one year's shoe ration, and suspension of his Pogo Stick driver's license.

Jasper will learn that crime does not pay.

S. Claus To Reign At WAA Party

Activities for the Women's Athletic Association will formally start with the Christmas party and playday on Friday, December 8, at 3 o'clock in the women's gymnasium, Susan Miles, WAA president, announced last week.

Playday guest for the day will be Lowell High School, and archery, badminton, basketball and tennis are expected to be played. A spirit of Christmas will prevail with Santa Claus in full regalia and a lighted tree in the gymnasium lobby. All students, both men and women, are invited to attend, Miss Miles said. After the games, refreshments will be served.

Following the party will be a practice on December 29, and starting the new year activities will be a playday, January 5, with San Francisco Women's College.

Another practice will be held January 12, and San Francisco State College will be guests for a playday on January 19. Final practice for the semester will be held January 26.

Ending the season will be the playday tourney, February 2.

4 Hopefuls, 4 Veterans Spark Ram Hoop Prospects

Basketball season opened with a turnout of 29 men. Of the 29 turnouts, only four are veterans of former Ram teams, although four very hopefuls from other schools were among the new men.

New hopefuls are Jim Cronn of Richmond, Martin Wong of Commerce, Bill Calhoun, six-foot-three Lowell guard, and Maurice Lynch of Washington, all of whom won block letters.

Prep Basket Tourney Starts Here Dec. 11

High school basketball will invade the college gymnasium for one week, beginning Monday, December 11, and extending through Saturday, December 16. The tournament is financially supported by the college Executive Council, and sponsored and managed by Ram Coach Lee Eisan.

Games will all be at night, Coach Eisan said last week, and a definite schedule will be completed for publication in The Guardsman next week.

San Francisco High Schools which have entered teams are Lowell, Polytechnic, St. Ignatius, Lincoln, Commerce, Galileo, Washington, Mission, Balboa, Sacred Heart, St. Peters and St. James.

Mill Valley will be represented by the Tamalpias Union High, and South San Francisco will send squads from Jefferson Union and South San Francisco High Schools.

The fair community of Fruitvale will have the St. Elizabeth team as its champions.

Eliminations will be played off and a final game is scheduled December 16, Eisan said. The team emerging victorious will be presented with gold watch charms in the form of a basketball. Runners-up will receive silver basketballs.

Other awards will go to an all-star team to be named by the sports writers of the San Francisco papers. Awards will also be given to the most valuable player, best defensive player, and the high scorer of the entire tournament.

WAA Archers Shoot At Stars December 8

By FRANCES ERCEG

Archers at the Women's Athletic Association Christmas party Friday, December 8, may be shooting at stars.

Novelty targets are being made by the college art department and may be anything from Santa Claus to stars on Christmas trees, Adeline Olsen, archery manager said.

Shooting will begin at 2 and last until 3 o'clock. Points will be given for direct hits, and the winner will be awarded six matched arrows, Bertha Mae Keller, WAA adviser, said, providing a nice incentive for prospective archers.

Women's Badminton Now Meets Twice Weekly

Badminton classes, originally held on Monday nights, are now held on Wednesdays and Fridays from 2:40 to 3:40, Bertha Mae Keller, head of women's physical education department, announced last week.

"If the women practice and no manager is present, they are expected to indicate their practice by putting a note in the manager's box, Miss Keller said.

Seven Teams Enter Intra Tournament

Intramural sports appear ready for a good start this week with the early entry of seven basketball teams, three from Beta Phi Beta, two from the Chinese club, one from Beta Tau, and one from the Tri Epsilon.

With this sparkling roster of big name teams, the competition should prove fast and furious.

Last year in inter-fraternity basketball, the Beta Taus proved the best team, handing a decisive defeat to the Beta Phis, who have larruped the Tri E's. However, this year, with a much heavier schedule for all of the teams entered, there can be no predictions as to the winners until the teams are seen in action.

All teams entered will compete against one another even if they are entered by the same organization.

Dick Bunker, student intramural director, warned teams that they will be assigned times to play and failure to appear will result in default. Team names should be included on the entry blank, he added, and at least one substitute should be named. A person may only play for the team with which his name is listed, and varsity men are ineligible.

Seven Out Of Eight Is Ram Grid Total

Eight games, seven victories, and one defeat make a record that will long be remembered by the college football fans and a goal has been set that will be something for future squads to equal.

The team's one loss was to Modesto Junior College, which with the help of hostile referees, managed to defeat the Rams by a score of 13 to 7. This one defeat was the only setback to an otherwise perfect season which gave the Rams a total of 121 points against their opponents' 47. This total was reached as follows:

		Rams
Modesto	13	7
Washington High	0	20
Camp Parks	2	12
Menlo	13	24
Cal Ramblers	0	13
State	0	13
Hollister	6	16
Santa Rosa	12	18
Total	47	121

One player who has been outstanding all through the season is fullback Chuck Seeger, one of the best offensive fullbacks that the college has ever had.

Most of the Ram scoring was done with passing attacks. A passing attack requires more than a quarterback who can throw and an end who can catch. It requires fast blocking and quick thinking from the rest of the team also. These requirements the Rams had, as the results prove.

Speaker Says College Vital

Nursing Representative Urges Study Of Psychiatry For Cadet Candidates

Stay in college and reap the benefits of a liberal education, was the advice stressed by Mrs. Mary Taylor Swoboda, representative of the National Nursing Council for War Service and the United States Cadet Nurse Corps, in an interview last week, following an address to the college women.

"Psychiatry is the most important field for women who plan to enter the Cadet Nurse Corps, following completion of their college training, because the greater majority of our war victims will be sufferers of mental ailments," Mrs. Swoboda said.

She also stressed the importance of Industrial Nursing for those who prefer not to enter the Army Cadet Corps. This work is the medical first aid offered in war factories and plants, and the possibility of training as a visiting nurse.

"Twenty professions in one" is Mrs. Swoboda's description of general nursing, which includes 3 years of actual ward work and department training, from which a specialized nursing job is selected.

The government considers this training as a war program, and guarantees completion of the course, even after the war, if a cadet has been registered for more than 90 days.

Opportunities for nurses are continually expanding, and nursing is an absorbing field for women, Mrs. Swoboda emphasized.

High Soph Week Jan. 29 To Feb. 3

Plans for High Sophomore week, which will be held January 29 to February 3, 1945, were completed by Dave Greene, class president, last week.

Greene said that activities for sophomore week include a picnic February 1, which probably will be at Lake Temescal, Oakland, and the traditional sophomore queen contest, ending with a formal dance at the Hotel Claremont, February 3.

The sophomore queen committee is headed by Greene, with Marilyn Brunton, class vice-president, assisting him. Committee members are Bob Bisio, Vern Harley, Ed Clinton, Virginia Franz, Barbara Healy and Jean Henry.

Each sorority will present a candidate for queen. Two additional candidates, not members of any sorority, will be selected by the Associated Students. Although as many candidates may be presented as Associated Student members wish, only two will be picked by the queen committee for final voting.

Names of all candidates must be turned in to the Associated Students office, Room 169, not later than Wednesday, January 17, the committee stressed.

The queen will then be decided by vote of the men students attending the sophomore formal on the evening of February 3. All votes will be taken and counted by 11 p. m. that evening, Greene promised, and the queen will be coronated at midnight.

The last provision is the only difference in the selection of a sophomore queen this semester. Queens of all previous contests were elected sufficiently early for them to enjoy a brief period of queenship preceding the sophomore formal. No reason was given for this change in traditional procedure.

Little Time Remains To Seek Holiday Jobs

Christmas vacation job applications may still be made at Room 155, according to Edward Larson, placement office director. He added that although no deadline has as yet been set, little time remains, and those students still interested in seeking holiday employment should not delay in applying.

That many of the men students are inquiring about driver jobs at the Post Office and elsewhere, was disclosed by Larson. He warned that the likelihood of this type of work being available during the two week holiday period is very limited.

Emphasizing again the necessity for immediate application on the part of those students contemplating taking part time store and Post Office jobs, Larson said that many of the stores have already indicated that their quota of jobs has been filled.

The requirement for War Manpower Clearance has not been waived. These are obtainable at the placement office in Room 155.

Paul Law's Band To Play For Frosh Informal Hop

Paul Law's popular orchestra and vocalist will provide the music for the High Freshman Happy Holidays dance to be held on Friday, December 8, from 9 to 12 p. m. at the Century Club.

Christmas decorations will be used, Roberta Mathews, vice-president of the Associated Students, said, and admission to the affair is one Associated Student card per couple. The dance is informal.

AMS Delays Appointment Of New Secretary

Several men have been considered by Bob Seiler, president of Associated Men Students, to fill the office of AMS secretary, vacated by Elmer Hagland.

Last week Bob Bisio, president of Associated Students, appointed Colin Tooley, AMS secretary pro tem. Since then, Bisio has withdrawn from appointing a permanent secretary, and has turned the matter over to Seiler, who is not able to name the men he has chosen for the office.

Seiler explained that the proposed men for AMS secretary will have to be approved by the Executive Council before appointment can be permanent.

CAB Holds Sport Dance Friday For All Students

Plans for the Club Advisory Board's sport dance, open to all students, were completed at a meeting last Thursday.

The dance will be this Friday at Sigmund Stern Grove from 2 until 5 o'clock, according to Barbara Chambers, president of the CAB. Music will be supplied by Gene Boger and refreshments will be served.

Three additional clubs applied for charters at this meeting, Alpha Delta Epsilon, college art society, Forum Club, and Pi Mu Nu, the college prenursing society. The Newman Club, and the Pi Mu Gamma have thus far failed to apply for charters for this semester.

College History: Motto Chosen For Length And Appropriate Meaning

By L. J. Smith

A college is not a building, it is not a campus, it is not even books and tools. It is the meeting place of inquiring minds with trained intellects.

Opportunity is placed before each and every student on the proverbial silver platter. Much is offered, and much is expected in return.

The past nine years have patiently watched an extension of activity, a widening of horizon and a constantly progressing youth that is restless and curious.

When the time came to decide upon an appropriate phrase to adorn the entrance portals of the college, discussion was the order of every day. There was a certain amount of space to be filled, just so many letters were required to fill it, and the words selected had to convey a meaning to the world. Students in college are well along the road of life and seemingly would demand a phrase with spirit and ambition.

The word truth means: agreement with reality, veracity, fidelity, fact — and the simple word free brings to mind, independent, generous, without restrain, spirited. The American way is freedom and truth, and a college in America has to be a small democracy forever teaching youth the sensible democratic way of life.

So, quite naturally, when the portals were unveiled, six words burned the minds and ambitions of those present. Words from the New Testament (John VIII, 32), words that would fit perfectly.

Six searing words, with a meaning for those who care — The Truth Shall Make You Free.

Brucato Sets 500 Word Essay Limit

Five hundred words is the limit set by John Brucato, supervisor of the Agricultural Division of the San Francisco Water Department, and sponsor of the current essay contest on post-war Civic and Commercial Betterment of San Francisco and on How Present Distribution of Farm Products Can Be Improved. Deadline is January 2, 1945.

Brucato has offered four $100 bonds as awards, half of a testamonial presented him in 1943 by 120 farmers from outlying counties on the first anniversary of the Farmers' Free Market, of which he was organizer and adviser.

Following Pearl Harbor, Brucato turned his interest to the possibilities of people growing vegetables in their own gardens, thus relieving the war efforts, so he organized and became first chairman of the Victory Garden Council, of which President A. J. Cloud is present chairman.

Because of Brucato's civic work with the farmers, he made possible the Farmers' Free Market, where producers can sell their goods, without the expense of a middle man.

As a result, at a banquet in his honor, Brucato was presented with $800 in bonds, four of which go to the winners of the essay contests, two $50 bonds for the tillers of the best winter Victory Gardens in the Laguna Honda community, and the balance to the Salesian Boys' Scholarship Fund and other civic causes.

Brucato feels that the college student of today becomes the voter of tomorrow; he is therefore much interested in the outcome of the essay contest.

Interviews Begin Today To Aid Disabled Students

Interviews for students having physical disabilities are taking place in Room 170 today and Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week by Howard B. Woleott, a representative of the Bureau of Rehabilitation of the State Department of Education.

The purpose of the bureau is to supplement the work done by the college placement office in finding jobs for disabled students in which the physical handicap will not be a hindrance. In some cases, physical restoration by the use of artificial appliances, such as hearing aids or by surgery, may be received if needed for the successful completion of the task.

AGS Offers Coaching In All Academic Subjects

Students can now receive coaching from Alpha Gamma Sigma members for the nominal fee of 75 cents an hour, Beatrice Baer, president of the society, announced last week.

Coaching in all academic subjects will be offered, Miss Baer said, and anyone interested should leave his name, address, telephone number and hour available in the AGS office, Room 343.

Instead of the customary honor society tea, there will be a tea dance at a date to be announced later.

Christmas Festival Tomorrow

First Off-Campus Concert At 8:15 In Century Club

Marking the college's first off-campus program open to the public, the Christmas Festival will be presented tomorrow evening at 8:15 in the Century Club auditorium, Franklin and Sutter Streets.

The newly organized Women's Chorus, under the direction of Flossita Badger, will be a main feature on the program. The chorus will sing one Spanish and two French carols.

Helen Wheeler, pianist, will play a selected group of Chopin favorites; Melva Niles, soprano, is vocal soloist, and Deborah Burstein will be narrator for the evening.

Schubert's Ave Maria will be presented by a double trio of bass, alto and soprano voices, and a double quartet, with soloist Patricia McCormick, will sing a special arrangement of Oh Holy Night.

The college orchestra, conducted by Madison Devlin, will play Patroi of the Tin Soldiers, by Pierne; Poupee Valsante, by Poidini, and several Christmas carols.

The traditional processional, Adeste Fidelis, preceding the festival, will be led by candlebearers Barbara Lee Eisan, daughter of Coach Lee Eisan, and Devlin's son, Bill.

An English carol, Merry Christmas, will constitute the recessional.

Sponsors of the festival are the Music Department, the Associated Women Students, Yvonne Bordegaray, president, and the Music Club, Melva Niles, president.

Members of the AWS who will complete arrangements for and assist in the ushering at the festival will include Yvonne Bordegaray, Fran Davey, Barbara Chambers, Pat Davis, Bobbie Healy, Maggie Rodgers, Shirley Whiting, and Bobbie Potts.

Friends of the college, the faculty, and parents of the students here, are invited to attend the Christmas Festival, one of the outstanding musical programs of this year.

It follows directly the traditional college Christmas hour held yesterday which served as a preview of tomorrow's program. Omitted from the program here, but included tomorrow night, are the narration preceding four numbers, solo numbers, by Miss Wheeler and Miss Niles, and several groups of songs.

Dean Browne Explains Cafeteria Not A Gym

Dean Edwin C. Browne this week expounded two facts, (1) that chairs and not tables are used for seating purposes; (2) that neither is meant for athletic equipment.

Because students have failed to use cafeteria furniture properly, four hundred dollars' worth of such furniture, once destined for uninterrupted lives of beauty and service, are now entirely out of use, said Dean Browne.

To students who at home may treat their furniture as athletic equipment, the dean wished to explain that the college isn't home.

Executive Council Fails To Agree On Presidents

Because the Executive Council could not reach a satisfactory agreement concerning the proposed class president amendment at its roll-call last week, further discussion was deemed necessary.

A special meeting was scheduled yesterday.

Edward E. Sandys, English instructor, introduced the plan two weeks ago, suggesting that class leaders be given a permanent position and vote in the student government.

Latest communique from the legislative battlefront reported that opposing factions were describing the entire measure as unconstitutional.

Orve Chandler, chairman of the finance committee, offered three hospital bills from injured athletes requesting the council to grant $165.75 in requisitions.

Since Dean Edwin C. Browne commented that a fully detailed report should have been submitted before any of the bills, only one $7.50 injury budget was established.

High Frosh Dance Friday Will Have Paul Law's Music

Paul Law and his orchestra will play for the High Freshman Happy Holidays dance to be held this Friday night from 9 to 12 o'clock at the Century Club of California, 1355 Franklin Street, according to Roberta Mathews, Associated Students vice-president and chairman of the social committee.

Because of the present transportation difficulties, Miss Mathews stressed the fact that the dance is informal, and that means street length dresses for the women and business suits for the men.

Admission is the usual one Associated Student card per couple, and students are warned that the penalty for lending their cards to outsiders is confiscation.

Seiler Neglects AMS Secretary Appointment

Because Associated Men Student President Bob Seiler has not yet recommended to the Executive Council a secretary to replace Elmer Hagland, who recently left college, the situation remains unchanged from last week.

Colin Tooley, appointed pro tem by Bob Bisio, Associated Student president, continues in that capacity. Tooley was defeated by three votes in the AMS voting for a secretary.

College's $30,000 War Bond Drive Will Close Today

With a goal of $30,000 to be reached by the end of today, drive sponsors urged students to bring in as many bond buyers as possible to carry the college's participation in the Sixth War Loan Drive to a smashing finish.

Theme of the drive is to buy enough gasoline to send a flight of eight bombers from Leyte in the Philippines to Tokyo.

At 1 p. m. Monday, only $5740 in bonds, half the daily quota, had been sold.

Among the classes which are participating in the contest are German 23 and Spanish 21, both at 1 o'clock; Political Science 35 classes at 8:15 and 1 o'clock, and Chemistry 21A and Chemistry A at 2 and 12 o'clock, respectively.

Clubs and classes which enter competition must bring their record of sales in Friday to Milton J. Polissar's office in Room 248. Results will be posted in the main showcase.

Bonds may be bought in Room 155, the employment office, from 9 to 1 o'clock. Payment for bonds may be by cash or check, and all checks should be made payable to the Bank of America.

Passing The Buck

By Henry P. Buckingham

IT IS RUMORED

Pending final approval by the Navy Department in Washington, construction will begin on a number of barracks located directly opposite the front of the college. Final plans for the barracks have been completed and submitted for the Secretary of the Navy's okay.

The barracks will be constructed in the area bordered by Phelan on the east and Ocean on the south, now the home of numerous beautiful black sewer pipes.

The Navy is undoubtedly planning on construction of these barracks as war in the Pacific grows more intense. Along about this time the male population of our college begins to frown. They mentally picture hundreds of gobs inhabiting an area only a few hundred yards away. Men, drop those frowns! Women have your compacts serviced, your nylons recapped!

If the barracks are approved they will not house gobs. They will be the new home of an undisclosed number of WAVES . . .

BEST YET

The best idea to be proposed and accepted in a long time is the new regulation regarding fraternities and their pledge weeks. Thanks must be given to Bob Bisio. Bisio suggested the new rule or rules to the administration.

Best point is that this move will probably save fraternities from the vicious bombardment they have often been subject to by various and sundry pressure groups.

Fraternity pledge weeks have long been the nemesis of instructors and deans. Pledge seasons have stretched from the opening week of college until, or in some instances, even past the first midterm period.

Under the newly adopted plan a definite week will be set aside by the administration near the beginning of each semester. During this week fraternities will be required to carry on all pledge activities.

Certain factions are thoroughly griped with this plan. Their principal objections seem to constitute nothing but that they were left out of the decision. They are convinced that Bisio went over everyone's head and made this suggestion. "A bird in the hand is worth two in the bush."

This idea has been kicked around since the beginning of fraternities in the college. No one has done anything about it. Bisio comes along and within a very short space of time has suggested it and has had it accepted by the administration.

Naturally there must be certain modifications of the new law. Certain points must be agreed upon by both administration and representatives from all fraternities involved. A sensible document must be drawn up.

This plan will also give men interested in fraternities a chance to look over each fraternity and choose the one that they like. It will put the brakes on fraternities that blindfold their prospective members and then hang a pledge pin on them.

In The Interests Of This College

MORE than 75 per cent of the men and women enrolled in this college reside in San Francisco.

With the government banning unnecessary driving, and the Key System's trains heavily burdened by war-time travel, there is no justifiable reason why the sophomores should hold their annual formal in Berkeley.

Since the proceedings are scheduled for the East Bay, many persons, because of transportational difficulties, find themselves unable to attend.

Although the affair is sponsored by the High Sophomores, and they alone decide upon the location, it climaxes all Associated Student social activities for the Fall semester.

Sophomore leaders still have sufficient time in which to cancel the now standing arrangements and offer the dance in this city.

This could certainly prove an intelligent move both from the standpoint of meeting expenses as well as conducting a socially successful event.

Another condition in existence also demanding immediate attention is the unrestricted practice of broadcasting news items, already fully covered in The Guardsman, through the public address system here.

To reluctant listeners during the lecture classes, these reports are of a highly repetitious nature.

However, when emergencies arise, such as last week's urgent appeal for blood donors, and when special programs must be presented, the radio station provides a vital and valuable outlet.

It is essentially the constant repetition of announcements that should come to an end.

A change of plans in the first case, and a change of policy in the second, would be entirely in the interests of the college.

Letters To The Editor

RAM'S HORN

• Election Results Wanted

Editor, The Guardsman:

Regarding the recent election of class officers, I think the election committee should reveal the actual figures of the election, as many voters are interested and are still waiting for the disclosures.

"We don't want anyone's feelings hurt" is no reason for the concealment. Do you think Mr. Dewey's feelings were hurt when the election figures were released? I guess not!

—B. L. W.

• Time To Start Building

Editor, The Guardsman:

You are undoubtedly aware of the fact that there is a decided lack of spirit and tradition on this campus. If this is obvious to everyone and acknowledged, why, then, is it ignored?

I feel that the fault does not fall entirely upon our student government, for the students themselves should take a little interest in the activities that are planned in their behalf. Example: The poor response to the AMS Barn Dance November 18, and the discouraging turnout at the last football rally, considering that classes were dismissed so that all students could attend. How can any student afford to ignore these privileges of, if not duties to, his college?

I have criticised. Now may I suggest a remedy or two:

First: The student government as a whole should build up a spirit of enthusiasm for, and willingness to be of service to, our Alma Mater.

Second: The students should realize that only by taking an active part in college life can they reap the full benefits of college.

Third: More rallies wherein the students can meet and come to know their leaders — rallies made known to, and enjoyed by, all.

We should remember that San Francisco Junior College as it is tomorrow will be no stronger than we build it today. What do you say, gang? It's time that we started building!

DISCussions

FOR years Art Tatum has been amazing both jazz and classical pianists with his fantastic style. Esquire magazine named him king of the piano. Sergei Rachmaninoff said that had he preferred classical music to syncopation he could have been the world's greatest pianist. The late Fats Waller once announced his presence by saying, "God is in the house tonight."

He has toured Europe, worked as staff musician at a radio station, played as accompanist, and been heard in Hollywood, Chicago and New York as featured soloist. Recording companies are constantly after his services.

At the age of 13, Tatum started to study the violin but gave it up for the piano. After five years of intense study in which he began to develop his own style, he played his first job. Never content with his efforts, he would practice from the time he finished work until noon the next day, always experimenting.

He is a pianist's pianist. In short, he has originated his own school of thought. Some critics call his work flashy and showy, but in reality every note is an expression of a Tatum idea. His blinding technique is obviously influenced by the classics. He is always attempting the impossible, and, as everyone admits, he always succeeds.

Robert Thompson, prominent Sacramento pianist, once said that Tatum plays more piano than any other twelve men, which is one way of expressing his sizzling speed.

Tatum is called a location artist which boiled down means he won't accept engagements of less than six months. He doesn't have to.

Last January, he performed at the first jazz concert ever held in the Metropolitan Opera House and as usual was an overwhelming sucess.

Completely blind in one eye, with only dim vision in the other, he never takes a hand off the keys and even plays those lightning-like runs with the backs of his hands flat.

San Francisco has been called the place where musicians go to be buried. Let's hope Tatum-on-Decca manages to get here and lifts the lid which Bondshu, Reichman and others have so firmly placed upon the coffin.

26 Ram Gridders To Get Block Letter Awards

More than half the members of this year's Ram football team are to be awarded with Block SF's, the actual number being 26. Approval of Coach Lee Eisan, the Executive Council, and the Block Society itself have all been given, and the only thing lacking now is the actual presentation of the blocks.

Al Wendroff and Vic Pudlowski will receive injury blocks. The hard working managers, Ernest Poggi and Ellis Udall are to be rewarded with manager's blocks.

Basketball Openers Put Rams Behind 3 Games; Overtime Nets Navy 59 To 50

Playing a very fast, straight shooting Navy team the Rams lost the third game of the basketball season, last Friday night in the men's gymnasium. The final score read Navy 59, Rams 50.

The starting line up for the Rams was as follows: Al Gorhenko and Pete Milat at forward, Frank Ratto and Dick Franks at guard, and Larry Laird at center. Henry Boone, Neil Coe, Bill Baseom, Al Soulages, Don Malnick and Bill Poole were first team substitutes.

With seconds in the game, Milat sank a long shot into the basket and tied up the game 46 all. The game automatically went into a five minute overtime period. From the spectators' point of view this was the most thrilling play of the game.

All of the men played well during the five minute overtime period, but the Rams could not score fast enough against the sharpshooting Navy squad.

According to a spokesman from Treasure Island, this game was Navy's twelfth straight victory. He also stated that the sea-going cage team is undefeated and untied and that this was the hardest game they have played.

Preceding the Navy game, the Rams fought a losing battle against a well organized Lowell varsity last Thursday, with the final score Lowell 18, Rams 16.

The Ram team starting line up consisted of Franks, team captain and forward, Milat at forward, Laird at center, Calhoun and Ratto at the guard positions, with Jim Cronn, Gorbenko and Bascom as first team substitutes.

In the lightweight game which followed, the Loweli weight squad defeated a Ram team made up of Boone, Coe, Malnick, Poole and Martin Wong, with Ed Luke and Soulages as first team substitutes. The final score was Lowell 37, Rams 29.

RAMS PLAY TWICE THIS WEEK

The Rams will play two games this week, Coach Lee Esan said, the Gairfield Air Base team at the air base gymnasium Thursday night at 8 o'clock and the Sea Hawks in the men's gymnasium here Friday night at 8 o'clock.

Intramural Team Entries Cut To 5

Because several entry blanks to enter the intramural basketball tournament were not submitted on time, the tournament did not start until last Monday, according to Jack Brady, faculty adviser for intramural basketball.

Only five teams, two from one fraternity, have entered the tournament. Team schedules have not been arranged as yet, according to Brady.

Beta Phi Beta (Team A), managed by Dick Bunker, has Carl Ludlow, Bill Poole, Frank Reed, Rosen, Bill Brennan, Don Harper, Dick Bunker and Pete Milat. Beta Phi Beta (Team B) is also managed by Bunker. They have on their team Paul Quandt, Ernest Carlson, Howard Beauchamp, John Lopeman, George Mirande, Charles Bodeme, and Don Saroff.

The Chinese Club, dubbed the Reds, have Philip Choy, K. Wong, Fung, Ny, John Yuen, and Benton Wong. Ed Luke is the manager of the independent team, The Legions. Members are Alfred Soulages, Leo Fratessa, Fred Brennan, Gerald Shaughnessy, William Calhoun, Luke Feeny and Donald Malnick.

The last team entered in the tourney is the outfit from the Beta Tau fraternity. Managed by Charles Baker, it boasts of Captain Colin Tooley, Bob Mills, David Valentine, John Hammill, Vic Pudlowski, Merrill Bird, Ted Noble, Jack White, Willie Willis and Bill Mundy.

Sixteen Prep Hoop Teams Enter Champ Tourney Here

San Francisco basketball fans will have a field day from December 11 to 16, when the high schools of the bay area battle for the basketball championship of the region in the men's gymnasium here.

Games will be played off on the following schedule prepared by Lee Eisan, sponsor of the tournament:

MONDAY NIGHT, December 11:
6:45 Galileo-So. San Francisco.
7:50 Polytechnic-St. Elizabeth.
8:55 Washington-St. Peter's.
10:00 Mission-Sacred Heart.
TUESDAY NIGHT, December 12:
6:45 Jefferson-Lincoln.
7:50 Tamalpais-St. Ignatius.
8:55 Lowell-St. James.
10:00 Commerce-Balboa.

The teams winning on Monday will play on Wednesday night, games starting at 7:30 and 8:45. Teams winning on Tuesday night will play on Thursday night at 7:30 and 8:45.

The semi-finals will be held on Friday night at 7:30 and 8:45, and the finals on Saturday night at 8:15.

WAA To Climax '44 Activities Friday At Christmas Party

Climaxing fall activities, members of the Women's Athletic Association will gather for their traditional Christmas party Friday at 3 o'clock in the women's gymnasium.

A deep mystery encircles the party this year in the form of who will be Santa Claus?

Last year, Mike Monfrooe, janitor in the men's gymnasium and now in the service, was the white-whiskered man in the little red suit. The previous year, Clare Conner, a student, took the part of the jovial fellow with the sack.

Rumor this year has it that S. Claus will be a popular, well-known college personality, known for his kindly wit.

Adding to the Christmas spirit, a lighted and ornamented tree will brighten the gymnasium lobby.

Highlighting the sports activities is the archery contest, open to all students who have signed up for the sport. Shooting will last one hour, from 2 until 3, and the student with the most direct hits will be awarded six matched arrows.

Nine women have already entered competition and are as follows:

Joan Tilburn, Jerry Yeszin, Jean Tittus, Shirly Burnett, Jean A. Ruuth, Mary Seppich, Helen Taylor, Mika Stanich, and archery manager, Adeline Olsen.

Novelty targets for the day are to be made by Laura Drake.

Refreshments will be served following the contest.

Other WAA news last week concerns Ouida Arnold, a beginner in bowling, who surprised everyone at the Lincoln Bowl by bowling a high score of 154.

By achieving the high score, she won a turkey which was pronounced by spectators quite a feat for a beginner.

Sue Miles, WAA president, also announced last week that Mary Yarger has replaced Anita Geiger as manager of the riding club.

Faculty-AMS Softball Game Just Fairy Tale; No Date Set, No Questions Answered

By Jack Long

That old fairy tale, the Associated Men Student versus Faculty softball game, is still very much in doubt. Both team captains, Jack Brady, faculty captain, and Bob Seiler of the AMS are biding their time and waiting for one to make the first move.

They remind us of two gentlemen at a barroom table, one waiting for the other to draw from the hip.

Brady's "alibis" have long gone down the drain. The impression is going around that the faculty are afraid of shaming their good names. On the other hand, Big Chief Seiler heads the other way when confronted with the usual question, "When will you play the faculty in softball?"

That seems to be the $64 question echoing through the halls these days.

Soph Queen Election Change Aims To End "Dirty Politics"

Selection of a sophomore queen at the High Sophomore dance February 3, now scheduled for the Hotel Claremont, differs from last year "to cut dirty politics between college sororities and fraternities," Dave Greene, class president, said last week.

Queens of all previous contests have been elected sufficiently early in order that they could enjoy a short period of queenship before the formal dance. This policy seems to have caused ill feelings between students, so Greene and his committee have changed the rule.

No specific reasons were given why the sophomore picnic February 1, and the dance, February 3, are to be held in Oakland, except that "it is the most convenient place to hold these affairs," Greene said.

This semester, he added, the queen will receive a small trophy instead of the usual cup given in the previous semesters.

In keeping with wartime restrictions, the dance will be a semi-formal rather than a formal. This means that women students will wear long dresses, but men students will not be expected to wear tuxedos.

Campus Tree Planting Expected After Vacation

Trees for the long-planned arch over the front driveway are expected to arrive shortly after Christmas vacation, Bernard Jack, chairman of the tree planting committee, said last week.

The trees, which are to be shipped here from a northern state have been delayed because it has been too early in the season to transplant them, Jack explained.

Planting of the trees will be performed by the project committee, composed of Charles Riley, Donald Dashner, and Jack, as soon after the holidays as possible. The staked positions will have to be approved by Thomas Church, college landscaper, before the actual planting can be done, Jack said.

There are to be two varieties of trees planted. Twelve Italian Pines will line each side of the curved driveway, and Plantanus Orientalis are to border the sides of the front walk. The trees of this variety will already be from 6 to 8 feet high when they arrive.

140 Get Vacation Jobs; Larson Urges Applications Now

Figures released by placement office director Edward W. Larson show that during the eight week period ending November 27, 20 per cent of the students here obtained employment. Of a total of 260 applicants, 170 were women, and 90 were men, making a slightly higher total than that of the corresponding period last year.

For the same period, Christmas vacation placements totaled 140, of which 60 were to retail outlets and department stores, and 80 to the Post Office. To the former will go 45 women and 15 men, while the Post Office will take 50 women and 30 men. As compared with last year, the total of Christmas vacation jobs thus far, in the same period, is slightly higher.

That these figures are in no way conclusive was emphasized by Larson. He pointed out the possibility of a heavy last minute rush to secure holiday employment by those students, who, although intending to have not yet made application.

"No deadline covering Christmas vacation jobs has been set. There remains, however, little time left for interested students to apply for, and obtain attractive jobs. There should be no delay on their part in applying," Larson warned. He added that more and more of the stores are indicating that their job quotas have been filled.

Cloud, Browne Ask Aid In Meeting Bond Goal

President A. J. Cloud and Dean Edwin C. Browne have taken a deep interest in the success of the several patriotic drives conducted by students at the college, and, as a means of encouraging effort in the current War Loan Bond campaign, last week gave The Guardsman the following joint statement:

"Students now have an excellent opportunity to participate in the War program by the purchase of War Loan Bonds. Inasmuch as large numbers of them cannot join the armed services or enter occupations vital to the prosecution of the war, they can, in this way, do their share to bring victory and a just and lasting peace."

Alpha Gamma Sigma To Offer Coaching At Request Of Students, Plans Dance In Cafe Dec. 29

Although the coaching department of the Alpha Gamma Sigma did not receive much publicity last semester, Beatrice Baer, president, said that its success in the past has encouraged new members to revive the custom.

Such subjects as mathematics, sciences and languages were the ones most in demand, Miss Baer said. Students wishing coaching should leave their names, address, telephone number, the hour most convenient for them, and the subject in which they wish help, at the AGS office in Room 343. Coaching fee is 75 cents per hour.

It has been the custom of AGS members, in the past, to coach in specific subjects. This semester, however, according to Miss Baer, the members will volunteer for the coaching positions as applications are received.

Instead of the semi-annual tea, a dance will be given by the honor society on Friday, December 29, in the cafeteria annex, from 2 to 4:30 p. m., Miss Baer added.

No specific name has been chosen for the dance, but Miss Baer said that a spirit of "greeting the new year in" will be attempted.

College History . . .

Statues Represent Science, Art

By L. J. Smith

Many students of the college will be surprised to learn that the two stone heads at the rear of the science building are of Thomas A. Edison and Leonardo da Vinci.

Both statues, chipped from limestoné, stand constant vigil over the college and represent ancient and modern science and art. Edison, American electrician and inventor, symbolizes a modern age and da Vinci, Italian painter, sculptor, architect and engineer, stares out over the landscape, standing staunchly for civilization's advance.

The head of da Vinci was chizzled at the world's fair, and later Edison's profile was done on the college campus. A favorite pastime for students of the day was watching Frederick Olmstead, sculptor, working on the project.

Months of planning preceded the first homecoming of San Francisco Junior College. Alumni were invited and a special program included a tour of the campus, entertainment and refreshment, culminated by the unveiling of the heads on April 26, 1941.

Now Edison and da Vinci gaze down on an ultra modern college life of bobby socks, blue jeans and revolutionary ideas. Perhaps, when no one notices, they raise their eyebrows and slyly smile—for they once were considered revolutionary, too.

500 Word Prize Essays Due Jan. 2; Three Colleges Competing For Honors

Five hundred words with an idea or ideas of post-war civic betterment may win for some student of this college one of four $100 war bond prizes in the current essay contest in which San Francisco State College and the University of San Francisco are also competing.

Only one month now remains for students here to prepare to take at least one or two prizes from the other colleges. Deadline is January 2, 1945, and all essays must be turned in on that day to the office of President A. J. Cloud.

Essays are sought on the subjects of Postwar Civic and Commercial Betterment of San Francisco, and How Present Distribution of Farm Products Can Be Improved.

To stimulate and gather student thought on these topics, John Bruzeato, supervisor of the Agricultural Division of the San Francisco Water Department, sponsors and offers the prizes for the competition which also has the backing of Ben Kline, Director of Finance in the city government.

Second Midterm Period Will End January 5

The day of reckoning comes shortly after the Christmas vacation, J. Paul Mohr, registrar, said last week in announcing that the second midterm period ends on January 5, 1945. This, he warned, may seem to students too soon after the vacation from Friday, December 8, through December 26.

The registrar's office has added two more names, that of Isabelle Doolan and John W. E. Trippen, to the previously published list of 47 students whose petitions for graduation were approved.

War Veterans To Complete High School Work Here

Because war-mature veterans may not wish to return to their former schools to receive high school diplomas, they will be given an opportunity to work for them at the college, Edward H. Redford, head counsellor, announced last week.

Veterans will receive recognition for their work in service, and they must enroll at the college for at least one semester.

Approximately 50 veterans are now at the college, and from one to three enter daily.

Students To Join KQW Forum Friday

Five students of college economics classes have been invited to participate in the American School of the Air on this Friday at 1:30 p. m. over CBS (Local Station KQW).

Those participating from the college are Bill Brownell, Dave Greene, Don Giannini, Margaret Holiday and Margaret Scheles.

The subject of discussion will be America Faces a Challenge of the Future. The program originates in New York, where an all star cast dramatizes pertinent questions of the day in regard to the program's subject. The program is then switched to San Francisco, where the five participants present an extemporaneous discussion.

A transcription of the national broadcast will be presented to the college at a future date.

College Pep Band Planned For Basketball Games

Plans for a small pep band to furnish music at the coming college basketball games are under way, Madison Devlin, sponsor of the band, recently announced. All students playing band instruments are urged to try out.

Instruments most urgently needed are trumpets, trombones, clarinets, basses and drums. Sousaphones and drums are furnished by the college, Devlin added.

The band is to be an outside activity, not a class, and only a minimum of practice will be required.

Complete information may be obtained from Devlin tomorrow at 11 o'clock in Room 200.

Music Hour To Feature Unfinished Symphony

Scheduled for the Tuesday, December 26, music hour program is Schubert's immortal Unfinished Symphony, Madison Devlin, instructor of the course, said last week.

Because of its length, the Symphony is to be the only selection played during the hour, Devlin explained.

Sophomore Dance This Friday At 9, St. Francis Hotel

Completing the calendar as the last Associated Student dance of the semester, an informal Low Sophomore dance will be held in the Colonial Ballroom of the Hotel St. Francis this Friday at 9 o'clock.

Robert Mathews, Associated Student vice-president and chairman of the Social Committee, said last week that all students are invited to attend, although the dance specifically honors the Low Sophomore class.

Student nurses, attending the college for pre-nursing training, are especially invited, Miss Mathews added.

Music for the evening will be furnished by Paul Law's orchestra and vocalist. Law's orchestra has often played for college dances.

Admission is, as usual, one Associated Student card per couple, and the traditional no corsage rule will be in effect.

Miss Mathews also emphasized the fact that the dance is informal, which means street length dresses for women, business suits for men.

The only remaining social event on the college calendar is the High Sophomore semi-formal, sponsored by the class and to which admission is charged.

"Screening Out" Method To Judge Essay Winners

The four final winners of the 500 word essay contest which ended yesterday will be chosen by a "screening out" method of judging in which the ten best essays from each of the three competing colleges will be turned in, and from the thirty essays the winners will be chosen.

Subjects for the contest, in which San Francisco State College and the University of San Francisco are also competing, are Postwar Civic and Commercial Betterment of San Francisco and How Present Distribution of Farm Products Can Be Improved.

John Brucato, supervisor of the Agricultural Division of the San Francisco Water Department, sponsored the contest and offered the four war bond awards.

Associated Students To Elect Officers For Two Days By Aid Of Voting Machine; Woman Candidate May Run For President

With Pat Farran appointed chairman of the election committee by Associated Student President Bob Bisio, immediate action was taken last week to provide that elections will be held two days and will be conducted by voting machine.

Dates of the elections are Thursday and Friday, February 1 and 2, from 8:30 to 2:30 in the cafeteria, with deadline for petitions Friday, January 26, at 10 a.m. and the usual nominations rally to be held Wednesday, January 31, at 10 a.m.

Offices to be filled and qualifications are as follows:

The President of the Associated Students shall be a member of the High Sophomore class on accepting office. He must have carried 12 or more units in his second mid-terms and maintained an average of C or better. The vice-president and secretary must have the same qualifications with the exception that they may be Low Sophomores when accepting office.

Qualifications for Associated Women Student and Associated Men Student officers, president, vice-president, and secretary, are not definite, but they should be at least of High Freshman standing in the term for which they are running. They should also have maintained an average grade of C in at least 12 units in the previous semester.

Although prospective candidates

AWS-AMS Sport Dance Planned For January 19

A sport dance sponsored by the Associated Women Students and the Associated Men Students will be held on Friday, January 19, at the California Club from 9 to 12 o'clock, according to Yvonne Bordegaray, AWS president, and Bob Seiler, AMS president.

Seiler announced that Howard Frederick and his band have been chosen to play for the dance.

Admission will be by one Associated Student card per couple.

Sweaters, skirts, slacks and sports suits will be the attire for the dance.

AWS Tea Jan. 12 Honors High School Seniors

To honor high school women, the Associated Women Students will give a tea on Friday, January 12, Yvonne Bordegaray, AWS president, announced last week.

All woman graduating from public high schools of San Francisco have been invited.

Miss Bordegaray said that details of the tea are not yet definite, but would be completed this week.

Ex-Council Fails To Hold Roll-Call

Because there were not enough members present to constitute a quorum at last Thursday's Executive Council roll-call, the meeting was cancelled, and further action on the class president amendment had to be postponed.

Climaxing weeks of furious debate, the council was expected to pass the amendment since a satisfactory agreement had been reached.

Both the supporting and the opposing factions had given ground last month and conceded to a compromise that would offer the four class leaders an official position on the Social Committee.

Originally, the plan enabled the presidents to secure a permanent vote and seat on the student cabinet.

However, this proposal received unexpected and strong opposition and a constitutional committee was formed which investigated the main difficulties and submitted a report that was accepted unanimously by governmental representatives.

Until such time that the proposition can be formally presented to the Associated Students for a two-thirds sanction by the council and a voting body, the legislation will be tabled.

AMS Officially Appoints Colin Tooley Secretary

After much controversy over appointment of a permanent secretary of the Associated Men Students, it was finally decided that Colin Tooley, temporary secretary of AMS, would remain in office, Bob Seiler, president of AMS announced last week.

Tooley was selected because he was the runner-up for secretary in the last AMS elections.

To Servicemen, A Green Christmas

From the junior college to hospitalized servicemen in the Bay Area, a small touch of Christmas recently went around in brandy glasses.

They were brandy glasses without sparkling brandy, but carrying the sparkling goodwill and gratitude of the students to men of the armed forces recovering from battle wounds here.

Holiday ferns and cactii and figurines, many-shaped glasses from the homes of students had been used to make gifts of green gardens in a hospital-white Christmas.

They were the creations of members of the Floriculture 80A classes under Instructor John R. Herman and, a fortnight ago, they were personally delivered by the students to local service hospitals.

International Club To Be Formed At Meeting Tomorrow

Making college history because of the subjects involved, a small group of men and women students offer an open meeting tomorrow at 11 o'clock in Room 136 to formulate plans for an organization within the college that will represent students of the 22 nationalities registered here.

Main objective of the group is to foster an exchange of ideas relating to the cultures of the 22 nationalities and three racial groups and to kindle among all students understanding and friendliness.

At an informal meeting, held last week by a few interested individuals, together with Phylis Haley and Verrel Webber, co-sponsors of the proposed organization, emphasis seemed to be placed on the fact that more objectives will develop because of the nature of the potential membership, and principal aims will be named.

The formulation of these aims in the form of a charter, subsequently to be presented to the Club Advisory Board for approval, they anticipate will be enlarged upon at tomorrow's meeting. The group unanimously expressed the hope that all students finding sympathy with its ideals will make an effort to attend the meeting.

The trend of ideas exchanged by the group led to the impression that when created the organization would offer to students a more adult approach to the problems immediately confronting them, and aid them in shouldering their responsibilities upon completing their education.

Students To Get Grades From Advisers Jan. 11

With the second mid-term period ending this Friday, all students of the college are urged by Edward H. Redford, head counselor, to consult their advisers at some time during Thursday, January 11.

The procedure will differ from that of the first mid-term advisers' meeting in that all 11 o'clock classes will be dismissed; and cinch notices as such will not be given out.

In place of the usual cinches, each students will receive a copy of his complete list of grades earned in all subjects for both the first and second mid-term periods.

Any grades of D or F issued during the second mid-term will be included on the list.

Advisers who are not free except at the 11 o'clock hour, usually set aside for student-adviser meeting, will meet their advisees then in specified rooms to be listed next week.

Passing The Buck

By Henry P. Buckingham

IT is often interesting to take stock of one's friends, both present and former. Of the latter group, filed on the shelf under E. M., an oddity crops up. We might call it Irony In the News, or I Wonder What's Become Of E. M.

This whole story is brought to mind by the current quibbling of so-called Americans questioning the right of other Americans, of Japanese ancestry, to return to the immediate vicinity. The Hood River incident rates number one as the most scandalous of all this gilt-edged sabotage.

Ewow Matsuoka was the son of a wealthy Japanese merchant of San Francisco and, not to slight any of his family, he was a nephew of the Matsuoka who was then prime minister of Japan. Ewow was American born. That would make him an American by birth and a Jap by registry with the local Jap council and by grace of the Emperor of Japan. In other words, Ewow supposedly had his choice of countries. He could stay in his native land, the land of his birth, or he could return and adopt his ancestral home.

One day in July, 1941, Pop Matsuoka hung out a "Closed" sign on his store, sold all his warehouses, canceled the lease on his home, packed his belongings and told his family, which was by no means small, that all must be ready to leave for Japan at once.

As Americans the family could object, but as Japanese they could but abide by the decision of the head of the house. They all obeyed without a moment's hestitation. That is, all but Ewow. He merely went through the motions of obeying; there was a plan in the back of his head.

The day their N.Y.K. ship was to sail, Ewow bolted. He didn't leave a note or make any dramatic declarations. He just disappeared. A frantic Jap family called in the aid of the local constabulary. The sailing date of the N.Y.K. ship was postponed. The city was combed. Finally some bright-eyed boy in blue got the idea of looking in the Matsuoka's former residence. Ewow was huddled in the basement. Cold, dishevgled and hungry, he was herded back to the steamer.

Ewow explained to reporters, who interviewed him later, that he did not wish to return to Japan, that he was an American and that he wanted to stay here. His family explained with a smile and a hiss that they would be back someday. Ewow still objected. He was pushed to the rear. The family nodded; Pop Matsuoka said "So sorry," and scraped the ground in front of those upon whom he would rather have spat.

Those staying hurried down the gangplank, and those going hurried up. The ship cast off. Someone on the first class deck again purred "So sorry," and Ewow was gone.

What, Then, Is Education?

CENTURIES have passed and men are still seeking a true meaning for the term education and the proper methods by which to enlighten the masses.

Numerous approaches to the field have been offered, and many have been tried, but there is a grave question as to what type of teaching is the most practicable for the majority of the population.

Although the academic system as it now functions has brought forth highly trained individuals, it is questionable whether it has served in the best capacity for the average mind.

Last month's Pasadena School Review published the question, "What, then, is education, and how are we to educate? As yet there is no agreement on these points. Men are not agreed as to what the young should learn, with a view either to perfect training or the best life. Nor is it clear whether, in order to bring out these results, we are to train in what leads to virtue, in what is useful for ordinary life, or in abstract science."

Since this statement is a concise summary of the problems facing the educators of this generation, it could easily have been made yesterday in San Francisco or in New York.

Actually it was made by Aristotle, the Greek philosopher, about 2300 years ago.

Thus the query is age old and remains unanswered.

. . . An Effective Beginning

NATIONS of the post-war world will be closely united by economic and social bounds. Men and women will strive together to solve international and inter-cultural problems.

It is appropriate, then, that the purpose of the newly formed international club on this campus is to create sympathy and comradeship among members of the 22 nationalities represented in the college.

Tomorrow at 11 o'clock in Room 100, students will meet to discuss and plan the future organization and objectives of this constructive movement.

To live a more abundant life, it is beneficial for all citizens to understand their relations with other peoples.

Interest and cooperation in this college activity will certainly prove an effective beginning toward such a goal.

Letters To The Editor

RAM'S HORN

• Why Berkeley?

In reply to the editorial in the Wednesday, Dec. 6, issue of The Guardsman, where the activities of the High Sophs were knocked, I would like to say this much in the defense of such activities:

The main reason for having the semi-formal at the Claremont is the expense. Where in San Francisco can a room large enough to accommodate 500 couples with the atmosphere of the Claremont, and a P. A. system already set up, be acquired for $75??

Another thing—since there is a dispute about the gas problem why couldn't a car pool be set up to accommodate the Associated Students and since The Guardsman is such a crusading paper, maybe it would be possible for you to install such a program. However, the "E" train goes directly to the front door of the Hotel Claremont.

For these reasons and a few others such as giving the 25 per cent of the East Bay kids a chance to attend a J. C. dance we'll not cancel the High Soph Formal at the Claremont Hotel.

DAVE GREENE,
Pres. of High Soph Class.

Brownell

DISCussions

SINCE the disc ban has finally been settled, Sinatra and Stordahl have again recorded. It You Are But A Dream, an adaptation from Rubinstein's Romance, was selected to start the ball rolling, by the slender one.

The vocal as always is superbly handled, and the Stordahl arrangement is proof that almost any voice can be made to sound strong and masculine if backed by the femininity of a large string choir.

Francis, who possesses much foresight in his selections, first sang this sentimental ballad to a national audience about eight months ago when he appeared as guest star on the Major Bowes' radio show, where he got his start to fame. Axel's vocalist is at his best to say the least.

On the opposite side is a convincer that only Crosby can sing White Christmas.

Ellington's composition What Am I Here For, on Victor, seems to be nothing but a discussion of just what the title implies. Everyone is having his moan and voicing his feeling of depression, until a sax solo finishes with a stirring lick that leads to the realization that everything is simple and that life can be beautiful.

Teddy Walters, who for years was guitarist with many big name bands, has blossomed out as the new Eberly replacement with Jimmy Dorsey on the recording of Moon On My Pillow. Walters gives a good imitation of Sinatra's style, although he is hampered by his limited breath control. To conclude this monkey-see-monkey-do arrangement, Dorsey throws in a few strains of poor Clair de Lune to insure a profit.

Victor has reissued the Hampton version of Central Avenue Breakdown. A favorite from the beginning, this Hampton written melody features King Cole and Oscar Moore, who have since banded together to form two-thirds of the now popular King Cole Trio. As usual, Hampton is pleasingly wild with his two-fingered piano work. Jack The Bellboy is the companion feature.

If a person waited in one place on the earth for a total eclipse of the sun to take place, he would stay there for 360 years, says D. C. H. Cleminshaw of the University of Southern California.

Playdays, Tourney Day Highlight WAA End-Semester Plans

Women's Athletic Association schedule for January and February includes playdays, a swimming meet, and ping-pong competition, all to be climaxed by the semi-annual Tourney Day.

San Francisco College for Women has been invited to participate in volleyball, basketball and badminton either this Friday or next. The old rival, State College, is scheduled to appear January 19, and a swimming meet will be held with Lowell some time in January.

February 2 will bring Tourney Day, to which Lincoln High and St. John's Catholic High have been invited. Badminton, basketball and volleyball will be the games of the day, and some provision has been made for other games that may be requested.

An inter-college ping pong tournament is scheduled soon after midterms, but Susan Miles, president of WAA, will reveal final details at a later date.

Dean Browne played Santa Claus with a southern accent at the WAA Christmas party, but fooled very few. Since his little hoax failed to pull the wool over knowing eyes, the dean returned to his own quick wit, and the party was a success.

Block SF To Welcome 26 New Members At Banquet

New members of the Block SF Society will be presented with their blocks and welcomed to the society some time this month, Bob Seilers, society president, said last week.

The men were members of the "championship" Ram football team of last fall. Twenty-six blocks are to be awarded, 22 to actual team members, two to the managers, and two to players injured early in the season.

The Block Society plans a banquet, Seiler said, to welcome the new members, and officers will be elected at the banquet.

Shades Of Past Conference Basket Play Arise; Rams Start With Marin

Basketball at the college seems to be returning to the organized competition of the Northern California Junior College Conference, with games scheduled with most of the old members of the conference. This marks the first time since the spring of 1942 that any attempt has been made to return to league play.

The first scheduled game is with Marin Junior College, to be played here Tuesday, January 16. At this time not much is known of the Marin lads so that no comment can be made.

The Rams will play two games each with Marin, Modesto, Santa Rosa, and Sacramento Junior Colleges, all members of the conference. In addition to these games the Rams will twice engaged their arch-rivals, the Gators of San Francisco State College.

The other scheduled games will follow in this order:

January 19—Modesto	here
January 20—S. F. College	Kezar
January 24—Santa Rosa	there
January 26—Santa Rosa	here
January 31—Sacramento	there
February 2—Marin	there
February 6—S. F. State	here
February 9—Modesto	there
February 10—Sacramento	there

In addition to these games, Coach Lee Eisan said that he will attempt to schedule a few practice games in an effort to polish up his cagers.

During the Christmas vacation the squad played several practice games which ended rather disastrously for the Ram net men. Only a few scores are available at the moment, and in those games the Rams broke even. They are as follows:

Radio Materiel School, Treasure Island—59, Rams—50; Sulsun Army Air Base—50, Rams—32; Seahawks—39, Rams—43; U. S. Maritime Service—39, Rams—55.

A practice game will be played here next Wednesday when the Rams engage the Heights Athletic Club team. Time of play has not yet been announced.

Washington Takes Tourney Crown In Prep Play Here

Results of the first Triple A prep basketball tourney, held last month in the college gymnasium, were very much according to form. The outcome of the coming AAA race will be expected to conform to the results of the tourney.

The defending champs, the Lowell Indians, will have some very stiff competition from the Washington Eagles and the Lincoln Mustangs if they are to retain their crown.

The tourney ended with these teams in the top three spots in the following order:

First place	Washington
Second place	Lincoln
Third place	Lowell

Intra Boxing Finals Set For This Month

Although no definite date has been set, the college will have its semi-annual boxing matches in the men's gymnasium sometime this month, Jack Brady, faculty intramural director, said last week.

As a departure from recent semesters, the final bouts will not be sponsored jointly by the intramural directors and the Associated Men Students, but by the Intramural directors alone. Intramural activities received a shot in the arm this year when Bob Bisio, Associated Student president, appointed Dick Bunker Student manager, and the administration named Brady faculty director.

Boxing practice will begin in the men's physical education classes this week to condition men for the fights.

Entries can be made now, Brady said, for the sooner they are in, the sooner a definite date can be set for the matches.

All participants, he added, must appear for a physical examination by Dr. Max Teidler, men's physician, before entering the matches. This edict applies even though previous examinations may have been made.

Beta Taus Run Circles Around Tri E 53 To 7

Beta Tau's six-man football team, defending its last semester's title, decisively defeated the Tri E aggregation by a score of 53 to 7 on the college's football field Friday, December 8.

Outstandjng for the Beta Taus were Vic Pudlowski, who called signals for the victors; Jack White, who was on the receiving end of most of the paydirt passes, and Colin Tooley, 120 pounds of scatback, who did some very good running.

Outstanding for the Epsilon boys were Hank Buckingham, who scored their touchdown, and Bob Montgomery, who called the signals.

Scoring was very light during the first half, half time score being 14 to 7, but in the second half the Betas got under way and started a scoring spree in which almost the whole team figured. In the second, Pudlowski started flinging passes to White, who personally accounted for 24 of the Beta Taus' points. Tooley did some very spectacular running and set up two touchdowns besides scoring one of his own.

After this victory, the Beta Taus are fixing their sights on the Beta Phi Betas in an effort to take them into camp, too.

Soph Queen Nominations Due Jan. 19

Class Sticks To Plan For Semi-Formal Dance In Berkeley; Picnic Cancelled

As the opening step in High Sophomore week activities, nominations for Sophomore Queen are due in the Associated Student office Friday, January 19, Dave Greene, class president, announced last week.

Nominations will be conducted as they were last semester. Each sorority will name one candidate, and the High Sophomore committee will select two from the Associated Students at large for the final voting to be held at the class dance, Saturday, February 3.

As many candidates at large from the Associated Students may be named as is desired, Greene said, and the committee will narrow the number to two.

Refusing to yield to requests to hold the dance on this side of the bay to comply with OPA admonitions, Greene stuck to the original plan and emphatically pronounced that the dance will be at the Hotel Claremont in Berkeley. (See Ram's Horn, Page 2.)

In compliance with wartime procedure, however, the dance is definitely a semi-formal, with the women expected to wear long dresses, but the men not expected to wear tuxedos.

Plans for a picnic, scheduled for February 1, have been cancelled, Greene added, and the date when dance tickets will go on sale will be decided this week by the committee.

College Only Fills Half Its Sixth Bond Quota

Nearly 50 per cent of the proposed war bond quota set for the college's participation in the Sixth War Loan Drive, a total of only $17,000 was subscribed in the pre-Christmas drive here.

The original quota was $30,000, proposed as a fund to fly a group of eight bombers to Tokyo—and back.

Individuals who turned in the largest funds were Lois Robinet, drive chairman; Beatrice Baer, Barbara Mercer and Beth Sutton, in that order.

Annemarie Delfs' German 23 class was the only one which showed majority participation in the drive.

Others assisting the drive were William Crosby, manager of the El Rey Theater, who offered a War Bond Premier at the theater; Claude A. Shull, who trained students to give bond speeches to college classes; William A. Eckert and his advertising art students; Virginia Franz, Barbara Bray, Barbara Scholz and Patricia Cullen, who designed displays and posters, and Marie Weller, who provided radio facilities.

More About Elections

are reluctant to state their intentions this early in the race, the usual rumors persist that again this semester as was the case a year ago, a woman will run for the office of president. Local politicos point out that "if you have watched the activities of the semester, those who made them successful are the ones best qualified for office."

Barrel In Hallway For Books, Magazines

The white barrel with the red cross, recently placed at the main entrance of the building, is for the books and magazines students wish to contribute to servicemen.

Men and women have been asked to drop their contributions in this barrel so that they may be distributed to servicemen. Magazines should not be more than three months old so that they will be of interest, and it is suggested that they be deposited as soon as they have been read.

Robert A. Allan, Mission District Scout commissioner, and Samuel Lansing, transportation chief, have volunteered their time to place similar barrels throughout the Mission District and to collect and bring the books and magazines deposited to the Red Cross center, located at 111 Sutter.

Pep Band Meeting Will Be Held Today At 2 O'Clock

Pep band meeting scheduled for today will be held at 2 o'clock in Room 200, according to Madison Devlin, sponsor of the band.

All students interested in joining the pep group are urged by Devlin to attend, as the band will have to be called off if not enough members show up.

Purpose of the meeting is to discuss future practices and the music to be played, Devlin explained.

Instruments especially needed are basses, trombones and trumpets.

The band, being organized for the purpose of playing at rallies and games, will play band marches and school songs.

Lack Of Club Interest Holds Up CAB Dance Plans

With only two clubs, Phi Beta Rho and Tri Epsilon, represented at the meeting of the Club Advisory Board last Friday, no further plans for the dance January 10 could be formulated.

"Advance notice of the meeting was given, so there was no excuse for such lack of attendance," Barbara Chambers, CAB president, complained.

The next meeting will be this Friday at 11 o'clock in Room 113. "Unless attendance is better at this meeting there will be no CAB dance," Miss Chambers added.

Franck's Music Scheduled

To be featured on the Tuesday, January 9, music hour program is the Cesar Franck Symphony in D Minor, Madison Devlin, instructor of the course, announced last week.

Although the only symphony written by Franck, it is, in Devlin's opinion, one of the greatest ever composed.

Library Pamphlets Offer Fun, Facts

By Pamela Sampson

Five thousand or more pamphlets, which form part of the college library, are filed in a large cabinet in the center of the reading room, opposite the entrance.

The pamphlets may be divided into three broad groups, namely advertisement, instruction and propaganda.

Instruction applies to those pamphlets put out by the Government, its agencies, and/or authorized educational groups, covering a multitude of subjects, for the information of the general public. Propaganda is used to mean war propaganda, in the form of bulletins from other countries.

A profitable and entertaining hour or so may be spent browsing among the pamphlets. From them one may learn such varied arts as how to properly arrange flowers, discreetly get rid of troublesome guests, fry a steak, or raise chickens.

The origin of our standards of length (appearing in one pamphlet) may not commonly be known; for example, that the lawful rod during the 16th century was the length of the left foot of 16 men lined up as they left church on Sunday, or that Henry I decreed the distance from the point of his nose to the tip of his thumb to be the lawful yard; or that Lake Titicaca between Peru and Bolivia is the highest navigable lake in the world.

Figures are copious enough to fill the statistician's heart with delight. At any rate, the value of the information contained in these pamphlets is not restricted to limited groups, but may be useful and amusing to all students.

Drama Group Gives Letters To Lucerne January 17, 18

Letters to Lucerne, by Fritz Hueter and Allen Vincent, the first three-act drama of the semester, will be presented by the college drama group Wednesday and Thursday, January 17 and 18, in the Little Theatre Room 209, admission free to students and faculty, Ruth Somers, drama instructor, said last week.

Four performances will take place. The first two will be on Wednesday, January 17, from 10 a.m. to 12 noon, and from 12 noon until 2 p.m. The final two performances on Thursday, January 18, will follow the same schedule.

Intermissions will coincide with the ringing of class bells so that students may also enter the threatre or leave from 11 to 11:10, and 1 to 1:10 each day if they cannot see all three acts in two consecutive hours, Miss Somers added.

The setting of the play is a boarding school in Switzerland in the fall of 1939 when World War II touches the lives of the girls who come from various parts of Europe and the United States. Tolerance and "refrain from persecution" are the keynote of the theme around which the play is built. Though serious as a whole, many comic situations also arise during the three acts.

Those included in the cast are Marcia Dains, Arlene Engeran, Fern Frizelle, Frances Ereeg, Betty Howard, Rosalie Rhode, Celeste Rose, Midge Raymond, Marvelle Smith, Patricia McCormick, Orwin Chandler, Louis Fielld, and Gilbert Black.

College History . . . Of Mosaics And Murals And How Art Was Inspired

By L. J. Smith

Everyday hundreds of men and women enter and leave through the college doors, gaze casually at the mosiacs and murals and never dream that deer hunting had a great deal to do with the work.

Timothy Pflueger, building architect, has always possessed a flair for making everyday surroundings beautiful, so when he saw an opportunity to place artistic achievement under students' noses he rushed ahead.

At the time, the famous WPA was in full swing, and Pflueger's desire for murals offered a chance for WPA artists to give their all. Temperament oozed as the capable artists swarmed over the college, planning and discussing their many ideas.

Work began; daylight hours were well filled and often lights burned far into the night as the painting and chipping progressed. Ramon Volz did his murals, while others labored over the mosaics which were done in sections and then placed on the walls. Finally, it was discovered that Fred Olmsted, sculptor, had done his bit when the murals at the front entrance were paid for by many anonymous public spirited citizens of San Francisco.

Truly, a new technique was developed, and it is a well known fact that the mosiac at the north end of the college building is the only one done in three dimensions.

But, the WPA art project was on a 35-hour a week schedule, and perhaps the late bright lights were burning while the artists conceived a plan. They worked as mad men work, and all the hustle and bustle had a purpose. For they figured the hours out perfectly finished the project and dashed off to do a little deer hunting. So, after all, the deer hunting had a great deal to do with artists' inspiration.

Ex-Council Passes Class Leader, Rally Commissioner Amendments; Associated Students To Give Final Vote Feb. 1, 2

Since the class president amendment had been revised after weeks of bitter dispute, the Executive Council last Thursday unanimously passed the proposal delivering it to the Associated Students for final ratification.

Whether the proposition will finally become an official amendment to the constitution now depends upon a two-thirds majority sanction by a voting body of students.

Most political factions on the campus are in favor of the legislation and its approval seems almost certain.

Four class leaders will then become permanent members of the Social Committee and assist in planning dances and other activities.

Another amendment that was introduced and approved by the council last week will combine, if ratified, the positions of rally commissioner and yell leader.

This action was deemed necessary because confusion and overlapping between the two posts had arisen.

Both amendments will be presented at the elections February 1 and 2, Bob Boisio, president of the Associated Students, announced following the meeting.

Neil Coe, president of the freshman class, asked if the council would grant a $250 requisition for the staging of a dance honoring the incoming freshmen.

Bisio, favoring the suggestion, addressed the student representatives from the floor of the governmental chambers, commenting on the merits of the function and how it would "push the spirit, carry the torch and all that kind of stuff."

However, the council was not in a very generous mood, for members denied the request in a four to two decision, since it would definitely conflict with finals and three dances already scheduled.

Coe, jumping to his feet and waving a finger at the council, shouted, "I have had one idea this semester, and YOU have turned it down."

No Pep, No Musicians, No Band; Sponsor Gives Up

Because of the poor turn-out at last Wednesday's meeting, there will be no pep band, Madison Devlin, band sponsor, declared.

The enthusiastic response of those students who intended to join is greatly appreciated, Devlin added.

Lack of enough brass was the essential reason for discontinuing the band.

Complying with Article Five from the constitution of the Associated Students of the San Francisco Junior College, two proposed amendments are hereby officially published at least one week before any general election.

Amendment One is to be added to Article Four, and to replace section four of that article.

"Officers of the Low Freshmen, High Freshmen, Low Sophomore and High Sophomore classes shall be elected at a date, within three weeks of the beginning of instruction of each semester, to be determined by the Executive Council. This date will be published in The Guardsman at least one week previous to the election."

Article Four, section four, now reads, "Officers of the freshmen and sophomore classes shall be elected at a date set by the Executive Council, this date to be published in The Guardsman at lenst one week previous to the election."

To be added to Article Three of the By-laws, and to replace section two a. of that article, the second part of Amendment One reads:

"The presidents of the four classes shall comprise the Social Committee, under the chairmanship of the Vice-President of the Associated Students; and each president shall be in charge of the dance given in honor of his class, under the supervision of the committee chairman."

Article Three, section two a. now reads, "The Social Committee shall be composed of the vice-president, who shall act as chairman and who shall appoint four members at large."

Amendment Two is to be added to Article Two, and to replace sections five and six of that article.

"The Rally Commissioner shall be in charge of all rallies, shall act as yell leader, and may if he so desires

Retailers To Install Selling Unit Here

A model retail selling unit will be installed in the retailing classroom next semester, according to Virginia Gohn, merchandising instructor here.

Sears-Roebuck Foundation will supply the unit which will consist of cases and fixtures for the display and storage of merchandise. The unit will be of great advantage to the students, for it will provide an adequate laboratory as well as store atmosphere.

The college will be the first California educational institute to install the selling unit.

AWS To Entertain High School Girls At Tea On Friday

Senior women of San Francisco public high schools will be entertained by the Associated Women Students this Friday at a tea to be held in Room 158 from 2:30 to 4 p. m., Yvonne Bordegaray, AWS president, announced last week.

These teas are given semi-annually by the AWS to acquaint graduating seniors with activities of the college.

Guests will be invited to inspect the buildings of the college and the usual refrshments will be served.

Schools that are expected to be represented at the tea are Abraham Lincoln, Balboa, Commerce, Galileo, George Washington, Girls' High, Mission, Lowell and Polytechnic.

The committee is under the leadership of AWS officers, including Barbara Chambers, vice president; Frances Davies, secretary, and Miss Bordegaray.

The rest of the committee includes Barbara Benn, Florence Bordegaray, Aileen Bowen, Marian Du Jardin, Ramona Frechett, Elvera Fusco, Mildred Fusco, Doris Gibson, Barbara Hergot, Winnie Kenny, Cornelia Mason, Katherine May, Anita Moreholt, Tina Paladini, Joan Ponting, Maggie Rodgers, Helen Schiavone, Kay Voltattorni, Shirley Whiting and Norma Wong.

Music Hour To Feature Grieg's Piano Concerto

Scheduled for the Tuesday, January 16, music hour program is Grieg's haunting A Minor Piano Concerto, Madison Devlin, instructor of the course, revealed last week.

The introductory theme of the Concerto is especially well known as it comprises the melody of a recent popular song.

Students To Meet Advisers Tomorrow At 11 For Grades

A complete list of grades earned in all subjects for both the first and second mid-term periods will be issued tomorrow at the 11 o'clock student-adviser meetings, at which time all regular classes will be dismissed, Edward H. Redford, head counsellor, emphasized last week.

Advisers who are free other than at the 11 o'clock hour, usually set aside for the student-adviser meeting, will meet their advisers then in the specified rooms listed as follows:

Cecil Aggeler, 11 to 12, Room 56; Richard Allman, all day, Room 160; Flossita Badger, 11 to 12, Room 200, 2 to 5; 9 to 10, Room 263; Edwin Cranston, 11 to 2, 2 to 5, Room 340; Claire Cuneo, 11 to 12, Room 158; William Eckert, all day, Room 347; Marian Escher, 11 to 12, Room 257; 1 to 5, Room 251; Margaret Flournoy, 11 to 12, 1 to 5, Room 220; Jules Fraden, 11 to 12, Room 323; 2 to 5, Room 307.

John Gerstung, 9 to 12, 2 to 5, Room 237; Virginia Gohn, by appointment, Room 222; George Green, 11 to 12, 1 to 5, Room 43; William Mayo, 9 to 12, 3 to 4, Room 114; Dorothy Mercer, 11 to 12, Room 258, 10 to 11, 2 to 5, Room 251; Joan Muscio, 12 to 1, Room 134; Andrewa Noble, all day, Rooms 306 or 335.

Ella Nowell, 11 to 12, 2 to 5, Room 223; Milton Pollissar, 10 to 12 (Friday, 11 to 12), Room 243; Thomas Porter, 11 to 12:30 (Friday, 9 to 10), Room 318; Helen Reveal, 1 to 5, Room 221; Edward Sandys, 11 to 12, Room 190; 9 to 10, 2 to 5, Room 237 (Friday, 9 to 12, Room 237); Jane Scribner, 9 to 11:30, Room 327; 3:30 to 5, Room 323; Claude Silva, 11 to 12, Room 132; 9 to 11, 2 to 5, Room 149; Llewellyn Snyder, 11 to 12, 2 to 5, Room 252.

Letters To Lucerne Unfolds Story Of War's Conflict In Swiss School

Rehearsals indicate that the cast for the college's first three act drama of the semester, Letters to Lucerne, will be ready with a smooth performance next Wednesday and Thursday, January 17 and 18, in the Little Theatre, Room 209, admission free to students and faculty, Ruth Somers, drama instructor, said last week.

The story of the play tells how World War II affects the lives and friendships of girls attending a boarding school in Lucerne, Switzerland, in 1939. Polish, French, English, and German political developments are revealed in the letters from home which the girls share each evening. These are sincere, human messages from people vitally affected by the chaotic world situation, but they soon create suspicion, persecution and intense national feeling among the girls.

When Warsaw is bombed and the Polish girl learns of the death of her parents, there is no concealing the feeling which has gradually been rising against Erna, a sensitive German student.

Four performances will take place. The first two will be on Wednesday, January 17, from 10 a.m. to 12 noon, and from 12 noon until 2 p.m. The final two performances on Thursday, January 18, will follow the same schedule.

Passing The Buck

By Henry P. Buckingham

THE civil war in Greece is no laughing matter. The citizens of Greece are at the point where any government but the old looks inviting. This unfortunate state leaves the road wide open for all comers. The British are desperately striving to quiet the whole mob and bring peace into the picture. The Greeks, tired of all forms of royalty, show a slight distrust for the British because of King George.

Enter Communism. Now it is perfectly reasonable and very clear that the communists of Greece, in cooperation with communists from other European countries, realize their opportunity. Whore there is any chance of growth, communists plant the seed. In fertile soil this seed may easily grow.

Greeks have shown themselves, throughout the course of the current uprising, to be prejudiced toward democracy. This is supported by the fact that in all parades and demonstrations by the rebels, the U. S. flag, along with the British flag, is waved high. The word, "Roosevelt," is used as a slogan by these democratic factions. Roosevelt finds its way to the Greeks as a slogan because Roosevelt represents the United States to the average Greek. A suppressed people, the Greeks listen to stories of freedom as a child would listen to fairy tales.

With the communists acting to bring about their own ends in Greece, it would indeed be intelligent for us to act just a little faster and finish just one jump ahead of other political theorists and theories.

PEARL HARBOR PLUS

Just 25 days ago Von Rundstedt's first great offensive broke loose. With it the pipe dream of quick, painless victory was shattered. Even many of the less casual observers hinted that victory would be in the year that has already gone by. All underestimated German power.

Although figures on casualties have not been released as yet, most observers agree that casualties were heavy — heavier than even Pearl Harbor, ten times heavier. This means that Von Rundstedt's offensive was the most disastrous offensive every scored on U. S. troops by a foreign power.

Also generally agreed upon is the fact that Von Rundstedt, who admittedly is a well-versed general, would not throw so much into one offensive unless he had more power to throw a second, even a third and a fourth powerful offensive. We must fully realize the fact that Von Rundstedt, unlike Hitler, is no fool. Now that he controls the German armies of the western front, we must be sure of every step we take. He will make every man, every machine, every mule, serve to the fullest to prolong the war and to bring about a peace more generous than unconditional surrender.

. . . Meeting Educational Needs

WITH some men and women of the armed forces being returned to civilian life, there has arisen among the nation's universities the problem of meeting the educational needs of those who will once again resume their academic studies.

A recent Associated Collegiate Press bulletin brings attention to a survey that was conducted by Dr. Rosco Ingall, director of Los Angeles City College.

Dr. Ingall mailed letters to schools in Southern California inquiring as to what they were doing for the discharged serviceman.

Receiving many answers to his query, Ingall pointed out that the institutions of learning were working toward one or more of the following points, many of which have been stressed by government officials.

Veterans must be given the opportunity to enter and pursue certain fields of study regardless of previous education.

Ranging from three months to a year, short subjects covering a wide selection of topics should be offered. Plans must be developed which will enable the ex-fighting man to enroll in classes at several periods during the semester.

Another difficulty that will be approached from the psychological as well as the educational standpoint involves the group of individuals who had not completed high school at the time they entered the service.

These men should certainly not be expected to re-establish themselves in the normal type of secondary school, Dr. Ingall believes, for they will be much more mature than the average student.

Facilities such as readjustment and counseling departments, agencies in close contact with industry, business and labor also have to be maintained.

These may be only the first steps in a necessary rehabilitation program, but they are basic, vital to the returning veteran and invite consideration and action on the part of all colleges and universities.

Letters To The Editor

RAM'S HORN

• It'll Flop, Mr. Greene

Editor, The Guardsman:

With less than 25 per cent of the students living in the East Bay I can see no reason why our Soph Formal should be held in Berkeley. There is the strong item of gas rationing as point against such a plan. In reply to Mr. Greene's reminder about the "E" train which goes directly to the Claremont, I do not think you could find many women at the college who would be willing to don their formals and then make the trip to the dance on the train.

Mr. Greene also brought out the item of expense. The High Soph class has as much money to spend on their dances as any other class. Thus far this semester we have had dances at the St. Francis Hotel, the Fairmont Hotel and the Century Club. I do not think that expense is such an important item concerning the High Soph Formal for this is the only dance to which admission is charged.

Mr. Greene has also planned to have the election of the High Soph Queen of the Formal. There are many students who will not be attending the dance that will still want to cast their vote for Queen. Our Associated Student dues, paid at the beginning of each semester, entitles each student to a vote in every election, yet this plan would make every student attending the dance pay for his chance to vote for Queen. Is that democracy?

It is probably too late, or Mr. Greene is too stubborn, to change the plans for the dance, but I predict this dance will go on record as a gigantic FLOP!

DISCussions

ONE of the leading radio network companies is releasing a broadcast which names Guy Lombardo's orchestra as the nation's tops: Harry James and WW. Herman should be most surprised at this startling revelation. Up to now, the majority of the fans had assumed that, among white bands, the battle was between James and WW.

The Herman crew, which has been noted so long for its blues, surprised many at its most recent performance here, for it possessed all the spirit and moxy that Kenton once, long ago, featured.

Dave Tough, the new bridegroom, Herman, and Marjorie Hyams shared the spotlight that night. Miss Hyams, jazz vibraphonist, joined the outfit in New York after being discovered with her own combo in Atlantic City by Woody. She can vibrate for us any time.

Speaking of Kenton, his latest release for Capitol is just plain stinkin'. Gene Howard, whose work is usually quite good, sounds badly in need of a good vocal teacher as he fights his way through Sweet Dreams, Sweetheart. Gotta Be Gettin', on the other side doesn't even merit a listen, although Anita O'Day tries hard. Kenton is sooo commercial.

As long as Herman and Kenton have been discussed it might be well to say something about the other name bands that have recently appeared in town.

Artie Shaw's group was horribly weak. When the sax section is drowned out by a vocal and the trombones can't be heard over the saxes it's time for a change of some sort. Probably the best procedure for Shaw would be to replace everyone but Roy Eldridge. The band will undoubtedly get somewhere, for Benny Goodman's younger trumpet playing brother, Freddy, is the new manager, and madman Eddie Sauter is one of the arrangers. Shaw is as imaginative as ever.

As for the pace setter, Harry James is still fine, although he relies very heavily upon the fact that he and Cochrane are such fine soloists. His wonderful arrangement of The Nine Twenty Special will surely be recorded. Now that the disc ban has been lifted, the next few months should crown a new king.

Ohio Cheer Section Gets Best Seats At Games

ATHENS, Ohio — (ACP) — It's an Ohio University tradition that students form a cheering section of their own at all varsity games, sitting together in reserved seats, and helping the cheerleaders urge the Bobcats on. The seats, incidentally, are the best ones in the gymnasium.

To be eligible for membership in the cheering section—and all students are eligible—the only requirement is that students attend the practice sessions given by the cheerleaders in the men's gymnasium.

Ram Five Tangles With San Mateo Friday In Matean Gym; Marin Here Tuesday

In the first "conference" encounter of the basketball season, the Rams will tangle with the San Mateo Junior College quintet this Friday at the San Mateo gymnasium at 5 o'clock. Confirmation for this game was received by Coach Lec Eisan on New Year's Day.

This game, added to the original schedule late last week, will be the first in a series with the members of the junior college conference which functiond two years ago and in which the Rams took an active part. It is an attempt to restore league competition in the wartime dormant Northern California Junior College Conference.

Eisan plans to start the game with Al Gorbenko and Larry Laird at guard, Jim Bascombe and Pete Milat at forward, and Rod Rodman at center. At the moment nothing is known of the San Mateo aggregation, but Eisan is confident that the Rams will emerge victorious.

Tonight the Rams clash with Heights Athletic Club in the men's gymnasium at 8 o'clock. In addition to this game, several more practice games are on the slate with the city's high schools.

A second "conference" game is scheduled with Marin Junior College next Tuesday and is to be played here. Starting time is 8 o'clock, and Eisan expects a preliminary game at 7 o'clock.

Other scheduled games are as follows:

December 27 the college five took on the Cal Ramblers and came out on the short end of a 33 to 20 score. The boys were cold that night at Berkeley and just seemed to be standing around the court letting the Ramblers through their defense, as most of the Cal scoring came on breakthroughs.

Legions, Chinese Club In Intra Basketball

Intra-mural basketball got off with a bang last Wednesday in the men's gymnasium, when Beta Tau fraternity was beaten by the Legions by a score of 47 to 22, and the Chinese Club triumphed over Beta Phi Beta entry, 48 to 39.

Dick Bunker, director of the tourney, said that in all, five teams have been entered and that one complete round will be played. Thus each team will play four games, one with each of the other four teams entered in the competition.

Medals will be presented to the winners of the tournament by the intra-mural department, sponsors of the contest.

Dusty And Forgotten

The beautiful trophy illustrated above in all its magnificence today remains dusty and forgotten in one of the secluded spots of the college. This reminder of the past glories of the faculty's athletic prowess, has been viciously fought over in past semesters by the students and the faculty in the AMS-Faculty softball games.

These semi-annual affairs have often reached titanic proportions with much hard feeling over the outcome. And now the glorious trophy has been kicked aside and forgotten by the two mortal enemies for the highly touted game of this semester was admitted quietly cancelled last week.

There is a slight chance that neither the AMS nor the faculty feel quite strong enough this semester to field a team worthy of their past endeavors on the college's field of honor, rather than that they have just lost interest in the trophy.

Playday Friday, Swim Meet Monday For WAA

Women's Athletic Association scheduled for this week is a play day and swimming meet, Susan Miles, Women's Athletic Association president, said last week.

Friday, San Francisco Women's College will probably participate in a play day here, unless something unforeseen happens. Sports offered for the day will be volleyball, basketball, and badminton.

A swimming meet against Lowell will be held at the Y.W.C.A. Monday. All women are urged to sign up in the gymnasium.

Other activities for the semester are a play day with State College, postponed from January 19 to February 5, and Tourney Day, to which Lincoln High and St. John's Catholic High have been invited. Various activities are being planned for these dates.

Decision Upheld For Intra Backing Of Boxing Show

Indecision which had clouded the semi-annual men's boxing show was cleared up last week with the announcement by Jack Brady, faculty intramural director, that the intramural department of the sports division will definitely sponsor the boxing show and make all awards.

In the past, the Associated Men Students have presented the show and given out awards to the participants, but because no appropriations had been made by the Executive Council for the AMS to take care of the expenses of the show, intramural managers have assumed responsibility.

Brady plans to go ahead and start the ball rolling by conducting eliminations to provide some material for the finals.

All men interested in participating must be examined by the college's physician, Dr. Max Tietler. This examination is in addition to the physical examination given to all new students following registration.

Merrill Bird, 145 champion of the college's leather pushers, and Bob Seiler, co-champ of the 150 division, are expected to compete again this semester.

Awards will be the same as in the past, miniature boxing gloves, gold for the victors and silver for the losers.

Block Society Out Of Funds; Banquet Doubtful

Because there is no money in the Block SF treasury, there may not be a Block banquet this semester for the society's new members, unless the new members are willing to dig deep into their jeans and shell out for the affair themselves, Bob Seiler, last semester's Block SF head, said last week.

Bill Thompson, manager of the football team, has been empowered to procure the awards for the members of this semester's football team. Last week Thompson said that the awards will be made at the banquet if there is to be one, and otherwise the awards will be presented later.

Former WAA Star Now With WASPS In Texas

From the University of California alumni monthly it is learned that Junerose Bellew, former student here, is now a member of the WASPS and is stationed at Harlingen Army Air Field, Texas.

Miss Bellew, who was graduated here with the class of 1936, began her pilot training under the student flying program at Cal, after recovering from a knee injury that diverted her from a physical education major.

High Soph Class Dance Tickets Go On Sale Tuesday

Tickets for the High Sophomore semi-formal will go on sale next Tuesday, January 16, Dave Greene, class president, said last week. Greene did not specify the price of the tickets nor where they will be sold.

The dance, scheduled for Saturday, February 3, at the Hotel Claremont, in Berkeley, will feature the music of Harry Thomas and his orchestra and vocalist, Lyle Stuart.

"Regardless of OPA admonitions," Greene stated, "the dance will definitely be held in Berkeley." (See Ram's Horn, Page 2.)

The dance being semi-formal, the expected attire will be long dresses for the women and business suits for the men.

Deadline for Sophomore Queen nominations which are to be made in the Associated Student office, is Friday, January 19, Greene warned last week.

One candidate will be named by each sorority, and the High Sophomore committee will select two from the Associated Students at large, making a total of six candidates. The final voting by the Associated Men Students will be held at the class dance.

Campus Archway Trees Due Here Next Week

Next week the position of the trees for the long planned campus archway will be staked by Bernard Jacks, chairman of the committee, and Charles Riley.

Thomas Church, landscape architect for the college, will be here to check on the staked positions.

The 52 trees which will arrive here from Washington during the week of January 15 are Italian Pines and Sycamores.

International Club Leaders Propose Initial Aims; Jan. 16 Meeting Set

Four specific aims were broached at an open meeting offered last week by a group of students to formulate plans for the organization here of an international, inter-racial club.

First aim suggested was that the proposed organization serve as a means of support to non-members of fraternities, sororities and other organizations who wish to run for Associated Student offices independently. Later during the meeting this aim led to much lively discussion as to whether or not the proposed organization should actively campaign against fraternities and sororities. Suggestions for and against asking fraternities, sororities and other groups to send representatives were made.

Next aim was that of breaching color, race and nationality differences through the common interest method.

Third aim was that voiced by a Negro member of the panel committee. She said that she could speak for her group in asking that the proposed organization set about achieving the participation of all students in college activities without the segregation of certain groups.

Fourth aim concerned types of activities and discussions the club would sponsor.

Next general meeting was set for next Tuesday, January 16, 11 o'clock, the room to be announced later.

Later, the acting chairman, Pamela Sampson, when asked whether she though that the meeting was as representative as expected, said:

"Although there are some 22 nationalities represented in the college, and only a very few were represented at the meeting, I feel that we have made a good start, and that we shall draw most, if not all of them, into this organization as soon as its aims become more clearly defined. At present the most attractive factor to 'aliens,' Jews, Negroes and Chinese, is that of the promotion of friendliness and exchange of ideas between members of racial and national groups among each other and with the rest of the students."

Questioned as to the somewhat bitter discussion regarding the politics of the as yet embryonic organization, Miss Sampson commented that it was unfortunate that the tacitly understood aim of tolerance and understanding was momentarily clouded under a discussion on fraternities and sororities, and added the hope that the controversy would not be given undue importance in the minds of those attending, some of whom expressed disappointment.

Victory Garden Prizes Offered

Winter Victory gardens, which have been plotted by faculty members from September 1, 1944, to March 1, 1945, at Laguna Honda and the college plots are eligible for two $50 war bond prizes, according to Mozelle Milliken, hotel and restaurant faculty member.

The top garden in each group will be awarded a prize. Points that will be judged by a committee of three to five members, to be appointed by President A. J. Cloud, are the following:

Amount of produce grown in the allotted period of time, kind and varieties used by the gardeners, amount of canned material put up from produce grown from September 1 to March 1, handling of garden space for maximum production, appearance of plot and care of plants, quality of plants, rotation of crops.

President Cloud emphasized the greater necessity for San Franciscans to raise victory gardens this year. Canned vegetables are again on the rationed list, and there is a lack of transportation for green vegetables to metropolitan markets.

More About Amendments

appoint assistant yell leaders; and he shall have one vote on the Executive Council. He shall have attained at least high freshman standing at the time he is a candidate. He shall be chairman of the Rally Committee."

This amendment cancels the former office of Yell Leader and puts all rallies under the direction of one office.

Ten Students Needed To Plant Geraniums Along Campus Walks

Planting of 550 rooted flower cuttings which will bloom into a million Martha Washington geraniums along the campus walks behind the college building is a part of a two-year dream that will be immediately realized if ten students volunteer two hours of their time in the dirt-digging, Harry Nelson, victory garden adviser, said this week.

Associated Student President Bob Bisio is recruiting the manpower necessary to place cuttings in the soil on or before February 5.

Nelson explained that planting now will give the campus, by late spring, the look of colorful reds, pinks, whites and lavenders along the 300 feet of "Hello Walk" from the flagpole down to Cloud Drive—as well as along the two side paths leading from the college building to the walk.

Three Judges Named For Brucato Essay Contest

Thirty essays have been "screened out" from more than 100 essays submitted by the two colleges finally entered in the recent 500 word essay contest.

The two colleges participating in the contest were this college and the San Francisco State College. University of San Francisco withdrew from competition.

The four final winners will each receive a $100 war bond prize which was offered by the contest's sponsor John Brucato, supervisor of the Agriculture Division of the San Francisco Water Department.

Last week a meeting was held to set up a committee to serve as part of the judges. The three judges who were selected by Brucato and President A. J. Cloud are Thomas A. Brooks, Chief Administrative Officer; Deming Tilton, director for City Planning Commission; Carol Newbergh, president of Central Council of Civic Clubs.

The ideas presented in these essays coming from young minds will be of value and interest to various organizations in the city, Brucato said, commenting on the contest.

The winners will be announced in a later issue of The Guardsman.

Former Student Awarded Nursing Scholarship

Elizabeth Eichler, a former student at the college, has recently been awarded a $50 scholarship in nursing education, Dean Margaret Dougherty reported last week. Miss Eichler is now a United States Cadet nurse at Children's Hospital.

The award was made possible by the San Francisco Council of Jewish Women in conjunction with the San Francisco Federation of Women's Clubs.

These two groups are now considering another similar scholarship to be awarded to another student of the college who is considering entering Cadet nursing.

Applications for the scholarship may be submitted to Dean Dougherty.

College History . . . Traditions, And How They Grow In Time, Sentiment

By L. J. Smith

Tradition at San Francisco Junior College?

Granted, the college is young—just a baby in comparison with the old institutions of learning in this country. Each and every university in the United States has some grand old tradition; a sheltered walk, a wishing well.

It has been whispered that San Francisco Junior College has no spirit, that tradition is lacking. No one speaks of the good old days, football bonfires are a dream, pep and enthusiasm seem to have gone with the wind, and students sit wondering why.

The science building is new, and plans for a real college campus seem far in the future, but even the present building was a dream in 1936. It has been a rather tough fight all along the line, for advancement takes time, and time does not hurry. Everything must be molded to fit; experiments must be tried over and over again. Goals are not reached overnight, some take a lifetime, but each little contribution means a forward step.

Just inside the Associated Student office is a seemingly useless shovel and a tall glass bottle filled with dirt. When that shovel dug into the ground on April 25, 1937, it was a great occasion. So great that they put that shovelful of earth in a bottle and saved it. That, some students scoff, is our tradition. It is the only visible tradition.

Students cannot say their forefathers started this college. It is being built now.

There will be a day in the future when men and women will look back and say, "Those were the good old days." Great men did not go to this college in 1898—they are attending now.

Sports Attire Decreed For AWS-AMS Dance

Sweaters, skirts, slacks and sport suits were emphatically decreed this week by Bob Seiler, Associated Men Student president, as proper attire to be worn at the California Club sport dance which the AMS and Associated Women Students will jointly sponsor Friday, January 19.

Highlight of both AWS and AMS semester activities, this dance will have the music of Howard Frederick and his band. Refreshments will be in order.

Drama Group Opens Theater Season Here With Letters To Lucerne Today At 10; Cast Will Feature 12 College Students

The opening performances of the college first three-act drama of the semester, Letters to Lucerne, by Fritz Rotter and Allen Vincent, will be presented today by the drama group from 10 a. m. to 12 noon, and from 12 noon until 2 p. m. in the Little Theatre, Room 209, admission free to students and faculty.

The final two performances will take place tomorrow, and will follow the same schedule.

Intermissions will coincide with the ringing of class bells so that students may also enter the theatre or leave from 11 to 11:10, and 1 to 1:10 each day if they cannot see all three acts in two consecutive hours.

Those included in the cast listed in the order of their appearance are Celeste Rose as Olga Kirinski, Orvin Chandler as Gustave, Marcia Dains as Erna Schmidt, Frances Ereeg as Gretchen Linder, Gilbert Black as Hans Schmidt, Rosalie Rhodes as Margarethe, Ferne Frizzell as Mrs. Caroline Hunter, Midge Redmond as Bingo Hill.

Marvelle Smith as Felice Renoir, Betty Howard as Sally Jackson, Patricia McCormick as Marion Curtwood, and Fred Pierce as Koppler.

Food Curtailments Will Affect Cafe

Cafeteria patrons can look for more drastic cuts in food quantities and somewhat monotonous menus because of limitations of present market products, Hilda Watson, hotel and restaurant head, announced last week.

The college cafeteria management is taking inventory of available ration points for the coming semester. Recent reports released by the OPA show that meats, fats, oils, sugar, canned goods, are to be more restricted.

There also is a current market shortage of cheese, eggs and poultry. Stringent scarcity of all items will cause even further restrictions on cafeteria menus, Mrs. Watson added.

"Fortunately the college cafeteria caters to a well-mannered and high class clientel, who instinctively avoid bad form of wastage, which is a great help," Mrs. Watson said.

Patrons of the cafeteria are also asked to help in conserving paper items, such as napkins, limiting their use as much as possible, Mrs. Watson concluded.

New International Club Submits Skeleton Charter

A skeleton charter was submitted yesterday at a second open meeting held in Room 204 by a group of students gathered together under the chairmanship of Bill Schlager, to organize an international, inter-racial club.

The tentative charter was drawn up and submitted by an Aims Committee consisting of Goldi Byrd, Betty Lee, Bill Schlager, Lupe Castillo, Loys Daskarolis, Lois Robinet, Barbara Mercer and Connie Trigonis, with the aid of several other interested students.

In preparation for yesterday's meeting, three unofficial meetings were held, and efforts were made to contact students of every represented nationality, inviting them to assist at the meeting.

The organization, under the co-sponsorship of Verrell Weber and Phylis Haley, has as its basic aim the promotion of understanding and friendliness and exchange of ideas among members of the 22 nationalities and three racial groups represented in the college.

LUNCHEON MATINEES URGED

During intermissions to Letters to Lucerne (11 to 11:10 and 1 to 1:10) today and tomorrow, students who wish to bring a light lunch may eat it in the Little Theatre at the above times.

California Club Dance Friday Ends AWS-AMS Calendar

Climaxing the joint affairs of the Associated Women Students and Associated Men Students, the long-awaited Sport dance will be held this Friday night from 9 to 12 o'clock at the California Club, located at 1750 Clay Street.

Bob Seiler, AMS president, said that all students are invited to the dance, including the student nurses.

Correct attire for the dance definitely will be bobby socks, sweaters, skirts, slacks and sport suits.

Howard Frederick's band, which will play for the dance, has as its drummer, Bob Thurlow, a student of this college. Frederick's band has made two records, one, a 10 inch record of Embraceable You and 920 Special, the other, a 12 inch record of Where or When, and I'll Never Be the Same.

Refreshments to be served at the dance will probably be coke or cider, Seiler announced.

There will be the usual admission of one Associated Student card per couple.

Gardeners Must List All Vegetables For Prizes

Faculty members plotting victory gardens at Laguna Honda and the college plots are asked to keep an accurate list of vegetables being gathered, Harry Nelson, Victory Garden director, said last week.

The entries are to be turned into the Victory Garden office and are to be evaluated by the advisory council.

Soph Queen Voting Here; Winner Will Be Named At Formal

After half an hour of deliberation in Dean Edwin C. Browne's office last Friday, Dave Greene, high sophomore president, capitulated to the long accepted majority rule and consented to have the Sophomore Queen election at the college on February 1 and 2 instead of at the class dance.

Voting will be by men students only, casting secret ballots, and the winner of the crown will remain unknown until the ballots are counted at the dance on February 3 at the Hotel Claremont in Berkeley.

Nominations for the Queen must be in the Associated Student office not later than Friday, January 19, Greene confirmed.

The Queen will be chosen from a group of six candidates, four representing the sororities and two from the Associated Students at large.

Tickets for the dance are on sale at the college bank at $1.50 per couple.

The dance will be semi-formal, therefore the women are to wear long dresses, but the men are not expected to wear tuxedos.

Warsaw Concerto To Head Music Selections Tuesday

Warsaw Concerto is scheduled to be played the next Tuesday morning music hour program, instructor Madison Devlin said this week.

Written especially for the picture, Suicide Squadron, it is, in Devlin's opinion, a beautiful composition, and a wonderful adaptation to the picture.

Also on the program is Bela Bartok's Contrasts.

Maria Vasquez Expresses Mexican Goodwill In Art Gift

By Theodora Wong

It's Art for goodwill's sake that appears to the left.

A slice of art and goodwill, both, is represented in this watercolor painting which shows the trees and shrubs back of the Science Building in golds and warm moss greens, and the hills beyond in smoke blues and purples. The painting by Maria Emilia Vasquez was given to the college shortly before its artist returned home to Mazatlan, Mexico.

Miss Vasquez, who has liveliness and large dark eyes, spent a year as an art student on the campus, enlarged her English vocabulary with "lousy," a word which didn't hit her own works, say students of Richard Allman's art classes.

Her 16 by 10 inch campus

Passing The Buck

By Henry P. Buckingham

THERE is an infamous newspaper syndicate in the United States that has habitually relished in arousing racial prejudices. Current on its list for arousing public sentiment is the very delicate and unfortunate situation of the returning Japanese-Americans.

It is the policy of these newspapers to rush headlong into such a situation with little or no concern for those personally affected. They conclude without hesitancy that there is only one brand of Jap, the Jap loyal to Japan.

Such a conclusion is decidedly without basis or fact. Most certainly there were and still are Japanese residing in the United States who show loyalty to their murderous kin in Japan. To stamp every American of Japanese ancestry as a traitor, a pagan and a piece of protoplasm to be looked down upon, is not only idiotic but also is in direct opposition to the principles for which we are purportedly fighting.

The method of attack used is simple. An eviction notice is served on a family living in a home formerly the dwelling of the returning citizen. Eviction notices are served in numbers every day. This is different, however; the evictee's eyes are straight while the evictor's eyes slant a little.

The whole scene warrants a good news story. A picture is taken of the family now occupying the premise. There is a picture of Mama holding little Oscar, who is ten months old. There is a picture of Pop waving goodbye to the family cocker spaniel as he drives off to work. These two pictures frame a larger picture of the little place that they call home. It is always a typical cottage. Wood construction, neatly planned garden; now slightly run down, one or two trees standing droopily by, and a wisp of smoke curling from the chimney. The wisp of smoke is important. It signifies a fire inside.

Below these pictures is a headline in large bold print which either reads, "Japs Gain Ground or "Americans Lose Foothold." Both of these are catchy. Under this is a sub-head which serves as a spring-board to the rest of the story. It reads, "Citizens to Take Steps."

The story itself is already obvious. The usual sob sister patter coupled with the reporter's frantic pleading style which subtly suggests correction of all the world's injustices.

In the last paragraph hidden under the folds of adjectives denoting sadness and pain is one straight news sentence—Curt and untouched it reads, "Awagami has two sons fighting with the Army in Italy."

If such stories of misrepresentation have to be printed, the best we can do is read and forget them. Racial prejudice is our greatest internal enemy.

Let's look for our scapegoats in Japan, not the United States.

National Fraternities Ban Hazing

FOR some strange and unexplainable reason, news of the latest National Interfraternity conference has been hidden from the attention of the public.

Perhaps this is justifiable in that interest in the proceedings is far less than in pre-war days.

However, delegates representing 60 widely known groups met last November and approved legislation that officially and absolutely banned all forms of hazing in the nation's colleges.

Inflicting a mortal wound to joyfully anticipated rush week, the resolution includes mental and physical hazing as well as paddling.

Although many fraternity houses have ceased to function during the present conflict, the few remaining organizations will be definitely forced to drop initiations from the academic curriculum.

Members of the conference have tried for years through educational means to eliminate questionable hazing practices, since they were a menace to individual students and to the reputations of universities.

Machinery for disciplining those who fail to adhere to the order has now been established for future semesters.

In placing responsibility on local administrative officers for the prohibition and enforcement of the edict, it is hoped that hazing will be buried deep in the annals of educational history.

Yet, this order does not in any way affect fraternities at this college as they are not in affiliation with national bodies. Whether students here will be influenced by the actions of their bigger brothers cannot be predicted.

It may prove wise to follow the pattern of the leading fraternities throughout the country.

They have given the controversial problem much study and though they do not desire to curtail good fellowship, they have deemed it as important to remove unnecessary and somewhat dangerous activities from college life.

Letters To The Editor

RAM'S HORN

• I Touched Frankie

(Editor's Note: The following letter was addressed to William Brownell, writer of DISCussions. His answer immediately follows.)

Mr. Brownell:

From following your column, DISCussions, one gathers that you are an ardent admirer of that current sensation, Frank Sinatra. I was fortunate enough to have had the pleasure of meeting Frank on the set of Anchors Aweigh, at M-G-M Studios this summer.

I found him a friendly, pleasant, unassuming, and wholly likeable chap who took a few moments out from picture making to talk to us about his children. Perhaps his popularity is derived from the fact that he is typically representative of what we all like in a young American who has attained the heights of success.

I wished to say that he merits all the enthusiasm shown for him and his work in your interesting comments on popular music. As you say, I may not be with it, because I can't get as much out of a disc as you show in your interpretation of Main Stem.

At any rate, girls, I touched Frankie.

—E. L.

Dear E. L.:

Sinatra not only rates my enthusiasm but the enthusiasm of all popular music fans and musicians. He has affected the whole industry. At present Haymes, Como, Johnston, and Russel all have featured spots on nation-wide broadcasts and, with the exception of Russell, have their own shows. Sinatra, himself, made all this possible by establishing crooning as an art and by making the whole nation crooner conscious.

Thank you for your enlightening

DISCussions

THE current re-issuing policy that the leading recording companies are following is probably the most constructive activity that has been undertaken in a long time. Take for example the records contained in the Bunny Berigan Memorial Album.

One disc is the theme of the late Berigan, I Can't Get Started, which for years was almost unobtainable and even when it could be purchased was nearly prohibitive because of the cost. Now it appears with seven other sides for a very reasonable figure. Both Berigan's work and this record are so well known that any comment here would be superfluous. However, for those not too well informed but interested, there is an extremely intriguing discussion within the album itself.

Louis Prima relates the story of a poor starving individual on his version of One Meatball. The plot is so fantastic that one would swear Perelman, Crazy Like a Fox, had a hand in it. Imagine a fugitive from society slinking into a well-established eatery and while his neighbors are enjoying huge tasty-thick steaks covered with catsup, sitting down to an immense supper plate which is just overflowing with one lone meatball. And you get no bread with one meatball. Most disturbing.

A recording which displays the inabilities rather than the good qualities of an orchestra is Artie Shaw's latest. Ac-cent-tchu-ate The Positive features Shaw, Eldridge, Imogene Lynne and the wonders of a good microphone pick-up. Nothing inspiring, just harmless. On the other side is Jumpin' on the Merry-Go-Round. This also spotlights Shaw, and entirely as a relief measure Barney Kessel's guitar and Dodo Marmarosa's piano are added. It should be interesting to watch Shaw climb to the top again.

For weeks Private Cecil Gant's disc of I Wonder has been number one on KRE's Top Two. Despite the fact that technically it sounds as if it were recorded in a barn, this blues tune is fine because the mood of the vocal rather than the phrasing is sincere. Also playing the piano, Gant makes it interesting with his double time breaks, clean touch, and odd timing. Anyone interested in learning how to obtain this disc should get in touch with The Guardsman as E. L. did.

Please, Everybody . . .

The Trolley Song

By SUSAN MILES

Step forward in the car please. There is plenty of room in the front. Please step forward. There are other people who want to get on. I'm sorry folks; that is all. We're full up. Lady, get off the step. Take the next car. What? The last conductor told you to take the next car. Well, he was right. Take the next one. Here we go. Hold on.

Third Street next. Third Street. Let the people off please. Don't stand near the doorway. Please move forward in the car. There is plenty of room in the front. Who am I trying to kid? Why no one, sir. There's plenty of room up front. Go up and see for yourself.

Lady, please take your hand off the top of the cash box. People have to put their fare in, and so do you. I know you must hold onto something, but please, not the box. Lady, you only put a nickel in. The fare is 7 cents. Well then, see the mayor, but please put your 2 cents in.

Fourth Street next. Fourth Street. Please let them on. Move forward in the car. There is plenty of room in the front. Lady, this transfer is no good. It is punched Powell and Market, not Fourth and Market. So you walked down to Fourth to get a seat. Then why is it punched 1:30. It's almost 6 now.

Everybody please step forward in the car. What did you say lady? Speak a little louder. Oh, that man is bothering you. Well, that is your business, not mine. He has gone forward in the car now, anyway. That kind of people is about the only kind that does move forward.

Please, everybody, move forward in the car. There is plenty of room up front. Fifth Street next. Fifth Street.

Appointment With Three Hundred Words

By PATRICIA COLLINS

Today, Monday, November 18, 1944, I am sunk in the depths of the greatest depression. I condemned my English teacher as a cruel, heartless and entirely thoughtless man. Had he no thought for my nervous system? Surely he must realize that I am always busy on the weekend and very tired Monday nights. But there it is again, that dreaded assignment of a three-hundred word composition that haunts me with a fear which no ghost could inspire.

Philosophizing to myself I dragged my unwilling body upstairs to my inner sanctum of learning. As usual, my inner sanctum was strewn with records, and I stooped with creaking knees to drag My Man and Jim out from under the bed. I lost my balance and sat on Torchy Tess! To calm my nerves and eliminate any profanity, I switched on the radio. "Stay on the job," a voice bellowed. This was too much. I dug through the mess on my desk, tore a piece of paper from my binder and with a pencil in my teeth and no thoughts in my head, I concentrated, although I have never actually visited the gate of deep concentration.

The silence in the room was ghastly. We of today live in a bawling, screeching world in which silence is looked upon as a totally disturbing influence; therefore, I grabbed the nearest record and as the needle dug the curves the soothing strains of I Lost My Sugar in Salt Lake City flowed out.

Thus stimulated, I made a few scratches with my pen which were to serve me for a title.

In the inner chamber of my somewhat smooth brain, I seemed to recall that an outline was mentioned as an aid to composition.

Time marched on I neared my final goal of three hundred witty words—well anyhow, I neared my goal of three hundred words.

Step Forward!

"Maybe That Letter Will Come Tomorrow"

By CONNIE WITT

I wrote a very important letter to Russ, an old friend of mine. When I sent my letter off to him on Saturday afternoon, one week and two days ago to the very minute, I tried to figure out exactly how long I would have to wait for his answer. I reasoned that he would probably get my epistle on Monday, write me on Tuesday, send the letter on Wednesday, and then on Thursday I would get it. I thought then that I was allowing plenty of time. But, since then I have changed my reasoning at least scores of times.

Thursday arrived—no letter. Well, I thought, perhaps I had not been conservative enough in my estimate. Friday came. No letter—Maybe he hadn't gone into town since he was staying so far out, I reasoned. I chewed my finger nails down to the elbow. Perhaps, though, he hadn't gone into town until Wednesday, wrote on Thursday, and didn't go in to mail it until Saturday. Sunday. No letter—no mail delivery anyway so I wasn't too worried. Monday, NO LETTER! I tore every hair out of my head. I wondered if I should write him once more. Maybe I'd get a letter tomorrow. I've given up reasoning, almost given up hoping.

Now I have started figuring from a different angle why I have received nothing from him. A thousand thoughts have run through my mind. Perhaps he didn't get my letter . . . perhaps he got it, but couldn't understand it . . . perhaps he got it, understood it, but couldn't understand me . . . perhaps he got it, understood it, understood me, but didn't like it . . . perhaps he got it, understood it, understood me, liked it, but didn't like me . . . perhaps he got it, understood it, understood me, liked it, liked me, but didn't know how to write . . . I give up!!!

The Guardsman Magazine

Editor's Note:

In the first issue of The Guardsman magazine, some of the students in English 21A classes told you a little about themselves and their early surroundings. As a balance to the somewhat serious note of that issue, the editor has chosen a sampling of humorous essays for this issue.

These essays were not written especially for the magazine, rather they, along with hundreds of others, were submitted by students in fulfillment of regular written assignments in English.

Take Me Out

To The Ball Game

By MIDGE REDMOND

I turned on the radio, settled back in my chair, and prepared myself to enjoy a half-hour of "Soothing Melodies That Linger in Our Hearts Throughout the Years," as I always do on Saturday afternoons at three. But I was blasted out of my chair by the excited voice of a well-known sports commentator, who was simply carried away by the last play made by Preobrajenski. Preobrajenski actually hit a ball thrown by that magnificent pitcher, Rottenburgstien, clear over the fence, and walked around the diamond for a home-run, which clinched the game for the "Chips."

Then and there I decided I might just as well give up my Saturday afternoon relaxation and crawl into my hole for the rest of the season.

Now, don't get me wrong, I enjoy watching a good ball-game as well as the next person, but I just cannot stand listening to someone else tell me about one. It's torture! I want to be out there throwing pop-bottles at the umpire with the rest of them. Somehow, I don't get the same satisfaction out of tossing porcelain vases against the wall. It's usually so messy; and the wall doesn't know what it's all about anyway. Tossing vases leaves me with an empty feeling in the pit of my stomach, so I usually go outside and take it out on the neighbor's dog. This leads to complications, and I don't advise you to try it even though he did get away with an important part of your new suit the last time you tried to sneak into the house at three in the morning. There are vet bills to pay, and sometimes, if your neighbor is sufficiently nasty, there is the S.P.C.A. to deal with.

However, those aren't the only reasons I object to "Radio Ball-games." Ah, no, it goes much deeper than that. Half the time the commentator gets so wrapped up in watching the game himself that he forgets all about you, and with no pangs of conscience whatsoever leaves you suspended in mid-air during "the most spectacular play of the game," as he tells you some five or ten minutes later. As you can see, this has a bad psychological effect upon the listener, who after five minutes of balancing half-way between his chair and the radio has developed a terrific cramp in both legs, and is unable to move at all.

Maybe now you can understand why I had a slight fit when I turned on the radio last Saturday afternoon. Whenever I think of baseball, I think of porcelain vases; whenever I think of porcelain vases, I think of the neighbor's dog, the S.P.C.A., and worst of all, a severe case of leg cramp. I can't stand it, I tell you! Where in the devil is my hole?

New Doors Or Vitamins—Something Must Be Done

By ROSE CELESTE

Something must be done! Have you seen fragile five-foot girls try to open the front doors of San Francisco Junior College? Have you yourself pushed, but to no avail? Even the men, those that are still here, sometimes have to watch the long-awaited bus come, and then go, because even their strong shoulders aren't enough.

Readers, your school building is new; it is modern: it is beautiful; but the front doors do not open. Are you going to fight for lighter doors, or are you one of the lazy, disinterested students, who use the back or side doors? If you are: Shame! Are the doors of our beautiful school to remain closed until either the school slips from its lofty position on the hill or the famed balmy breezes of San Francisco cease to blow? No! Perish the thought. Our doors shall open—never let it be said the San Francisco Junior College has a closed-door policy.

But how? Shall we build a wind-break in front

Ringius Vs. Phys. Ed.

Her Teacher Is A Man!

By HELEN RINGIUS

I have always felt a bit embarrassed because of an innate lack of enthusiasm for organized sports, either as a spectator or participant. In schools it seems to be taken for granted that everyone enjoys them, and any exhibition to the contrary labels one as "uncooperative," having "anti-social tendencies," or any of the other pat phrases used by teachers who have no comprehension of your feelings in the matter. My colleagues always seemed to enjoy playing anything they were told, and so I tried my best to appear to be "one of the girls."

Theoretically, I acknowledge that schools should have physical educational programs. It develops all sorts of things besides muscles, such as sportsmanship and clean living; in my case the primary product seems to have been an aversion to women athletic directors. It is eight years since I graduated from high school, but my memories of all the Misses So-and-So are still lumped in the adjective, "ogres." Some of them must have been quite charming, socially, and my judgment is no doubt distorted and unfair; but I was overwhelmed by a martyr complex, and felt that the whole program was designed to torture me. I further developed a talent for deceit, which consisted of feigning illness and forging notes to avoid taking part in the fun.

I still cannot understand why I insisted on going to camp every year with the Camp Fire Girls, which was one merry round of games. I suppose I forgot from one year to the next, and the idea of going someplace sounded exciting. My pet peeve was swimming. I hate getting my hair wet and my ears full of water, but when the whistle blew, I cringed and fell in. One day, when I was particularly "fed up," I went so far as to deliberately cut my hand with a boy scout knife; thus, it required a bandage, and I could stay ashore instead of paddling miserably about.

At long last the school system and I have come to terms; I am now twenty-five years old and no longer required to include Physical Education in my program. From the foregoing, one would think I would never go near a gym again unless hog-tied, and yet, I signed up for two days a week.

I have tried to analyze the inconsistency of my action and have decided my antipathy was mainly the result of being forced to do something, and continually being told that I was having the time of my life. There are also three other good reasons for my choice: I love to take showers; it's good for my figure; and—I'm still a bit wary—my teacher is a man. Let bygones be bygones, but just call me "Bittersweet!"

A Coed's Nightmare

After an early morning workout under Jack Brady, the Ram Coed views the pathway to the halls of learning as a perilous mountain. To save the hearts and legs of the fairer sex from the arduous climb, an architect has planned a sky-chair, artistically envisioned above by Douglas Hutchings. It is hoped that this will be an asset in providing a broad education.

In A Hospital Ward A Song, A Smile—Tears

By MELVA NILES

We were to present our show as best we could along the narrow aisle of the hospital ward. A long row of beds was on either side. The show was on,—and off to a good start. Arlene started playing the old favorites on her accordion, causing a few soldiers to drum their fingers to the rhythm of the tune. The dancer and monologist were also a great success. As the soloists were going through their routines, I looked at the men trying to get an idea of their physical conditions. From my personal survey I found that most of the cases were not as gruesome as I had previously pictured. Most of the men were suffering from mental and physical exhaustion.

A few bars of music were played as an introduction to my song. I felt uneasy in my stationary position, so, as I sang I walked by each bed. Smiling at the fellows brought me great satisfaction, for I could see in their eyes that they were thankful for my friendly attitude.

But, there was one fellow who failed to respond to my smile. He was a young negro chap who was lying motionless in his bed. No, he was not too ill to move, but for some reason my songs did not seem to reach him. While ending my song, I racked my brain to discover some song that would please this lad.

Then I remembered George Gershwin's Summertime. Singing that brought me a true musical thrill, for I forgot myself, and all the people around me,—all but one. The only thing that mattered was bringing a smile to the negro's lips. I emphasized my dialogue trying to give it the feeling it deserved. At the end of my song I stepped closer to the young and tired negro, a thankful smile was on his face . . . as I looked closer, I saw more than a smile on the negro's face, I saw tears in his eyes.

of the school. But that would not be beautiful. The heavy offenders could be replaced with screen doors, but they would be too noisy.

Only one solution is left. The students must be made stronger. Vitamins must be issued to each and every student who cannot push at least 50 pounds against a raging gale of 50 per.

Students, step up and take your pill—feel the new strength pour into your weakened muscles; feel the new muscles develop, and then; and then: you, all by yourself, will open the front door at San Francisco Junior College.

Benchley And I

In The Sports World

By JEAN MAPLES

Good fellowship—the key to happy living! And the key to good fellowship? Sports, of course! There's nothing to equal a ripping game of cricket of an afternoon on the dank lawn, nothing like a round of golf in the country chill, early morn. (Please, may Benchley and I settle for a bit of parchesi in the living room at twilight?) Athletics is the builder of strong men; physical strength and a spirit of fair play are the rewards of sports enthusiasts (excluding the spectator-sportsman who is minus the muscles.) I must go in quest of other fun, I guess; for I, like Bob Benchley, am not in tune with the sports calendar.

Scheduled for two classes in sports this semester, one in soccer, the other in mountain-climbing, I shall probably be obliged to partake of the glories of the sports world whether I like it or no. Since I am the type that likes to run and think about nothing at the same time, I shall probably find soccer a little confusing, as it involves running, kicking the ball, and exercising the grey matter simultaneously.

Every game has its rabid supporters, wise in all the tricks, all the rules, and all the methods, when such as I enter the sacred circle, only to bunt the ball a lusty nine inches, there is the very "dickens" to pay, not to mention a nasty hellow from the select.

A solution might be to evade the issue by lightly prancing from the immediate scene of activity, joining with others upon the outer edge of the game. Or one might stand ecstatically examining the toes of one's shoes, while the ball sails by.

Naturally, a blackened eye and a broken toe are not the only out-croppings of soccer. Like every other sport, it is conducive to the aforementioned good fellowship and fair play. (There are violators, nonetheless, who would just as soon clout their opponents in the head as on the foot. Of these, beware!)

The course in mountain-climbing hardly bears mentioning, since it merely requires bodily exertion and an excellent condition of the respiratory system. A thorough physical examination is necessary before one may enter this course; nothing, however, is demanded of the mental processes.

Perhaps, one day, Benchley and I shall go down in history as defenders of the glories of soccer and snapping the cookie. Perhaps we shall, by valiant struggle and by reading of the rule-book, end all fears of having our teeth knocked out and our noses pushed in. Ours will be the final victory over the world of sports. But just now—silence, please! This game of parchesi is very exacting, and it's my move.

• Stubborn Mr. Greene

Editor, The Guardsman:

My dear anonymous D. B. Thank you for your character sketch. I agree with you most heartedly, that Mr. Greene is a very stubborn man. For a year and a half I have withstood San Francisco's disapproval of an East Bay dance. Finally I found myself in a position to have a dance in the East Bay and give the students over there a chance to attend. I might mention in passing that for three years there have been no dances in the East Bay and yet the students from there manage, without complaining of gas rationing, to attend most all student affairs on this side of the Bay.

As for the voting proposition, I am merely trying to raise the prestige and standards of the Soph Queen contest by eliminating sorority "cut throat" deals, machine and organized politics, and cliques from getting their candidate elected. Is that not being democratic??? True, every student pays four dollars at the beginning of the semester, entitling them to attend all functions on the part of the Associated Students. However, the Soph Formal is a class activity and its whereabouts is left to the discretion of the High Soph officers, with a minimum cost of $1.50 per bid.

I am indeed sorry for those unable to attend the dance for I will personally guarantee a wonderful time to all.

That stubborn character,
Dave Greene.

• Firm, Honest, Fearless!

Editor, The Guardsman:

During the last few weeks, there has been an intense controversy appearing in The Guardsman. It seems many students feel that Mr. Greene is unwisely handling his powers.

The true issue, whether these discontented students will face it or not, is one of college spirit. Greene has given the college a chance to come out of hiding and display this spirit. The party at fault is the dissatisfied group, not Greene.

Mr. Greene, who has been called stubborn, is in reality fearless, honest, and firm. Many persons in his situation would have compromised long ago but Greene refused and still refuses because he is right.

Boxing Show Set To Follow State Game February 6

Interest in the semi-annual boxing matches increased considerably last week when Coach Lee Elsan scheduled the event on a date to tie in with the second Ram-Gator basketball game.

The game, with light-weight teams as contenders, is timed for 7:30 p. m. Tuesday, February 6, in the men's gymnasium, and the boxing finals will follow immediately thereafter.

This cancels the plan to have the bouts follow the final playoff of the intramural basketball tournament winners, a playoff that is no more than tentative anyway.

Boxing classes began last week in the men's gymnasium, but no contenders have as yet been named definitely. Semi-final bouts will probably occur the last of this month to determine the finalists.

Eisan repeated his warning that no one will be allowed to enter the ring who has not had a complete physical examination by the college physician, Dr. Max Tietler. This examination is in addition to the required one taken following registration here.

As in the past, winners of final bouts will be awarded gold keychain gloves, and losers will receive silver gloves.

Rams Meet Powerful Modesto Cagers Friday, Clash With State Saturday

Renewing their feud with their cross-town rivals, the Rams mix with the Gators from State College this Saturday night at Kezar Pavilion in what promises to be a hard fought battle from whistle to whistle.

Because of the traditional rivalry, games between the two colleges are closely contested no matter what class of teams either college fields.

In the past there have been many surprise upsets because of this rivalry, so that it is never safe to predict the outcomes of any Ram-Gator game.

At the moment very little is known of the Gator squad outside of the fact that their perennial star, Ken Murray, who has played for State more seasons that many former Rams care to remember, is still on hand.

The probable starting lineup for the Gators was released last week by the State publication, The Gater, as follows: Diggins and Hanson at guards, Murray and Mohr at forwards, and Patrick at center.

In a clash which may well find them on the very short end of the final count, the Rams will meet the Modesto Pirates this Friday at 8 o'clock in the men's gymnasium here.

Coach Lee Eisan, pointing out the fact that the Pirates will probably prove to be the strongest quintet the Rams have faced this season, recalled the fact that the buccaneers came out on top in the Northern California Junior College tournament held at Modesto recently.

Modesto is expected to have the advantage of a tall team, the rangiest player towering to a six-foot-seven-inch mark. Against the Pirates Eisan plans to throw his best team, composed of Larry Laird and Bill Calhoun at guards, Jim Bascombe and Pete Milat at forwards, and Red Rodman at center.

Calhoun, who does his best work on rebounds under the basket, is expected to be a large factor in the Ram offense. Dick Frank, another member of the varsity squad, won't be any drawback to the Ram cagers either.

Eisan declared last week that several members of the varsity squad had been dropped from the team for failure to show up for practice. Among them is Al Gorbenko, veteran first stringer of last season.

Conflicting Exam Dates Cancel WAA-State Playday

The women's play day with State College is being cancelled for this semester because of conflicting midterm examinations, Susan Miles, Women's Athletic Association president, declared last week.

In a ping-pong tournament January 5, the following WAA members proceeded to the semi-finals: Janice Beanston, Carolyn Burns, Pauline Browne, Marion Doby, Susan Miles, Adeline Olsen, Millie Jurjevich, and Barbara Mercer.

Following the ping-pong tournament, there will be a play day with Balboa High School Friday, January 26. Among the sports to be featured that day will be badminton, basketball, and volleyball.

Concluding the activities for the semester will be the Tourney Day, Friday, February 2. Invitations have been extended to St. John's Catholic High and Lincoln High for the day. Archery, volleyball, badminton, and basketball will be offered for sports.

Blocks May Be Awarded At Banquet—Or Rally

Block SF awards will be presented to 22 members of the football team at a proposed banquet in the latter part of the month.

In case the banquet is definitely called off, Lee Eisan, Block SF faculty adviser, announced that they would be presented at a special rally on the campus.

Awards are being presented early in the semester because in past semesters there were other sports such as soccer and golf in which competition was not completed until the last week or two of the semester.

Rams Pound Out 47 To 32 Decision Over San Mateo

The Rams pounded out a 47 to 32 decision over the San Mateo collegians last Friday in a Northern California Conference game at San Mateo.

Bill Calhoun was outstanding defensively, effectively squelching all San Mateo scoring attempts. Frank Ratto, Rod Rodman, and Dick Francks were playing a bang up offensive game, Rodman and Ratto accounting for 25 points of the Ram score.

Intra Basketball Play Lax; Chinese Club Leads

The intra-mural program which started out with such a gust of enthusiasm seems to have cooled down quite a bit. Last week two games were scheduled for Tuesday, but because the director of the tournament had more important things to do, he cancelled the games.

The Chinese Club and Beta Tau had teams on the court, so they played anyway. After a hard fought game, the Chinese Club emerged the victors by a score of 31 to 23. This victory put them in the lead of the tourney by virtue of their two wins.

Deadline Shifted For ASSFJC Officers

Ex-Council Conducts Routine Meeting

Conducting a short and uneventful meeting last Thursday, the Executive Council approved two remaining requisitions for this semester's activities.

Bob Bisio, president of the Associated Students, suggested that the council establish a $25 budget for itself since some expenses had currently arisen.

Student representatives granted the budget as well as a $50 appropriation for the college basketball team.

That a balance of $250 still remains in the undistributed fund was pointed out by Luther Lyon, controller.

It is doubtful that any more important legislation will be introduced until the elections next February and a new cabinet enters office.

However, the recently announced political aims of the international club were questioned and somewhat criticized by the members, following the roll-call.

Whether the council will officially discuss the club's functions or take action is undetermined.

Part Time Workers Again Needed For Office Jobs

That the temporary part-time job lull following the Christmas vacation has picked up, has been disclosed by Edward W. Larson, placement office director.

Emphasizing the fact that there is the usual steady demand for full-time workers, Larson urged that all students who, at the end of this semester, will have completed their courses and who intend to seek employment should do so through the placement office, Room 155, at their earliest convenience.

"Foresight in job planning is essential," Larson said, adding that a careful survey of the job market on the basis of a student's abilities and previous experience is important that he may be properly placed.

Stores and offices are still seeking men and women students for part-time employment, offering jobs as typists, stenographers, as well as labor and semi-skilled, Larson added. That men are sought for exclusively Saturday work was also disclosed by Larson.

Business Picks Up In Lost, Found Dept.

Lost (and found)—volumes of knowledge, piles of collegiate mode, objects of sentiment.

In other words, books, student clothing of all types, and pieces of jewelry are some of many stray articles that have crossed the desk of Dean Margaret Dougherty.

A score of books found about the campus have been returned to their owners, said Dean Dougherty. Likewise, scarves, coats, mittens, umbrellas—and even a roll of film.

No less than 35 wallets and purses have been retrieved through the office of the dean of women, according to the records—a proof of student honesty.

If you, too, lost a possession—you may find it there in Room 125, through the grace of an honest finder.

Final Exams Scheduled To Begin February 12

Final examinations, the culmination for students of a semester's work, will begin in three and a half weeks, the registrar's office announced. Examinations are scheduled for the week of February 12.

To students whose grades are below par, faculty advisers are urging a final spurt in study effort.

Also announced by the registrar's office this week is the addition of the names of Inabelle L. Doolan and John W. Tippin to the list of applicants for graduation certificates.

Petitions Due Next Wednesday; No Hats In Ring Yet; Qualifications Listed

Deadline for the filing of petitions for Associated Student offices has been moved ahead two days from Friday, January 26, to Wednesday, January 24, at 10 a. m., Bob Bisio, president of the Associated Students, announced last week.

No petitions have been filed to date by prospective candidates probably because mid-term grade points are still being computed and students are not certain of the necessary qualifications.

Offices to be filled and qualifications are as follows:

The President of the Associated Students shall be a member of the High Sophomore class on accepting office. He must have carried 12 or more units in his second mid-terms and maintained an average of C or better.

The vice-president and secretary must have the same qualifications with the exception that they may be Low Sophomores when accepting office.

Qualifications for Associated Women Student and Associated Men Student officers, president, vice-president, and secretary, are not definite, but they should be at least of High Freshman standing in the term for which they are running. They should also have maintained an average grade of C in at least 12 units in the previous semester.

A rally, to be held Wednesday, Janary 31, at 10 a. m., will start the election proceedings, at which time candidates will make short pre-election speeches stating their platforms.

Two days, Thursday and Friday, February 1 and 2, from 8:30 to 2:30, in the cafeteria, have been decided on for actual voting and the largest turnout in college history is expected. For the first time in several semesters, the election will be conducted with voting matchines, and Bob Bisio, present president of the Associated Students, has promised instruction to those students who are not familiar with their operation.

It was also announced by the election committee that a rally chairman will be elected at the general election. Qualifications provide simply that the candidate be a High Freshman at time of candidacy.

Radio Classes On NBC 11:30 Saturday

Students of the college's radio production class will be guests of the National Broadcasting Company this Saturday, when they will appear on the Opportunity Theatre from 11:30 to 12 noon.

Three out of four presentations of the Opportunity Theatre originate in NBC's Radio City. The object of the program is to present a new student to radio.

Some of the regular staff of KPO, featuring John Grober, announcer and actor, who will give the radio class some pointers and hints on radio acting and announcing, will appear during the visit, Marie Weller, college radio instructor, said.

A special tour of the Radio City studios will climax the visit.

Drive To Continue For Service Books

To continue the collection of books and magazines for servicemen, the white barrel at the main college entrance will remain there indefinitely, according to sponsors Robert A. Allan, district Scout commissioner, and Samuel Lansing, transportation chief.

More Volunteers Needed To Plant Geraniums

With only five volunteers offering to join the campus geranium planting crew, an appeal for at least six more "gardeners" was issued last week by Harry Nelson, faculty director of the project.

The five volunteers are Robert Cook, Frank Chowak, Dave Freidenberg, Bob Beck and Jim Coleman.

The present plan is for planting to begin sometime between February 1 and 15, or as soon as the danger of frost is over. Martha Washington geraniums will outline the campus' main walks, Nelson said, and by late spring, blossoms of many varied colors will brighten the now bare hill.

John Herman, college landscape and dish gardening instructor, raised the plants for the project.

College History . . . The Current Lament For Forgotten Wooden Ram

By L. J. Smith

They smile and casually remark, "Oh, yes, the wooden Ram and then everyone forgets about the whole affair for another year.

The Ram which causes so many varied comments, resides at present in a dusty corner of the men's gymnasium. But, it was not meant to be so.

About the same time San Francisco Junior College was being constructed, Dudley C. Carter, famed carver of wood, was spending his time carving enormous wooden statues at the world's fair. No doubt some sweet-minded person expressed an interest in the new college, and said famous artist decided that his good deed for the next several years was staring him in the face.

Carter proudly caressed his recent glorious achievement and foresaw several hundred college students gazing in admiration at his statue. Perhaps he also swelled with pride as he thought of the glances of gratitude and appreciation he would receive. For Carter had decided to give San Francisco Junior College a Ram, carved completely out of redwood and weighing one ton, to be used as the college mascot.

November 10, 1911, rolled around.

The college was dedicated and amidst many excited exclamations, the wooden Ram was unveiled. Everyone was so proud.

So proud in fact that exactly three months later no one could remember what happened to the thing.

During the process of cleaning the men's gymnasium, the tiny mascot was rediscovered in a forsaken corner. Then it was promptly forgotten for another year.

By 1942 most of the faces were new and few knew of the tradition behind the favored gift. It was then that a newcomer suggested the statue should be moved to a more desirable spot, and everyone was in favor until they discovered that one ton of wood was a lot of wood.

And so the story goes. Once each year, almost to the day, some bright, young genius happens upon the wooden idol and gives birth to a marvelous plan. Something should be done, but not a finger moves.

A few have suggested that the Ram should adorn a favored spot inside the stadium as soon as it becomes a reality, but a stadium is far in the future, and the Ram sleeps on in his quiet, dusty corner.

Deadline To File Officer Petitions Is Set For Today

With the deadline for the filing of petitions for Associated Student offices set today at 10 a.m., no prospective candidates had officially filed by last Monday, Bob Bisio, president of the Associated Students, disclosed last week.

Appointment of an election committee was confirmed last week, when Bisio announced that in addition to Pat Farran, previously named chairman, Ed Clinton and Don Giannini will serve.

Although no official petitions to run for office have been secured from Dean Edwin C. Browne, several students have revealed that they have intentions of participating in the election, Bisio added.

For the office of President of the Associated Students, only two have announced that their hats will be in the polltical ring. They are Lois Robinet and Robert Mills. Miss Robinet's candidacy confirms persistent rumors that a woman student would run for the highest student office.

Thursday and Friday, February 1 and 2, from 8:30 to 2:30, in the cafeteria, have been decided upon for actual voting, and one of the largest turnouts in the college's history is expected.

For the first time in many semesters, the election will be conducted with voting machines, and Bisio has promised personal instruction for the benefit of those who are not familiar with their operation.

High Sophomores To Give Cement SFJC To College

Plans for the erection of a cement monument, similar to the big "C" on the hills in back of the University of California, and containing the initials S F J C, will be placed on the campus grounds as a remembrance of the present High Sophomore class, Bob Bisio, president of the Associated Students, announced last week.

An important problem that remains to be solved by the class is the site to be selected for the proposed monument. The archery range, directly in front of the gymnasium has been under consideration, but the property is owned by the San Francisco Park Commission.

Plans reveal that the construction will have raised white cement letters on a background of red cement.

City architects, Timothy Pflueger and Thomas Church, have approved the idea, and a small financial allotment is expected to be passed by the Executive Council.

Quarters Under Construction Across From Campus Will House 1056 WAVES; Unit To Have Lounge, Theater, Gym

Within five months the construction east of the college, across Phelan Avenue, will stand as quarters for 1000 enlisted WAVES and 56 officers.

This information was released last week by Lieutenant Commander Doris Westcott, Director of Women's Reserve, United States Navy.

News of the proposed construction was exclusively carried by The Guardsman on December 6, 1944.

Regulation quarters, as prescribed by the Bureau of Personnel in Washington, D. C., will make up the self-contained unit. There will be a lounge in each quarters where the WAVES may spend their leisure time out of uniform. Pianos, radios, records, cards, books and magazines are among the many forms of amusement to be found in these lounges.

Partitions will divide the buildings into cubicles, Commander Westcott said, each cubicle to contain two double bunk beds, lockers, and a chest of drawers with a mirror.

Among the features at the WAVE unit will be a large lounge in which visitors may be received and entertained. There will also be a combination theater and gymnasium where first showings of movies will be given at a nominal fee.

The WAVES will eat in a regular mess hall, the meals to be served cafeteria style on regulation divided trays; however, there will be an officers' mess for the WAVE officers.

A ship's company of about 60 WAVES will live and work at the unit, and the remainder of the enlisted personnel will be working at various Navy jobs throughout the city.

Commander Westcott said "the WAVES are looking forward to being able to associate with the students of San Francisco Junior College."

G. Clotch Warns Of Towel Shortage

Grenadine Clotch, sister of Jasper Clotch of Santa Rosa fame, recently issued a directive from her local OTD branch (Office of Towel Distribution) stating that an acute shortage of towels is inevitable if the "teen-agers" and other infantiles' unrestricted use of dish towels for head-gear is not curbed.

Miss Clotch pointed out that in addition to this serious towel shortage, 384½ homes have been dashed on the rocks. The happy households were rent asunder when tired, hungry husbands came home to find meals uncooked because dishes had not been washed for lack of towels to dry them.

Miss Clotch made no mention of the style and appearance of towels about the cranium.

Lois Robinet Heads Blood Donor Drive Here Next Week

Students of the college will receive a forceful appeal to pledge a pint of their blood for wounded servicemen during the week of January 29-February 2, Lois Robinet, chairman of the Welfare Committee, announced this week.

The scheduled drive is the first blood appeal conducted here and is sponsored by the Associated Students in cooperation with the Red Cross Blood Donor Center.

By arrangement with Mrs. Jesse C. Colman, Red Cross representative, the committee has secured a bus to transport students from the college to the blood center at 2415 Jones street at 2:15 p.m. on the following dates: Tuesday, February 6, and Thursday, February 8. Thirty students are wanted to form each busload.

Other appointments to give blood will be made to suit the individual student.

Miss Robinet stressed the Red Cross requirement that donors between 18 and 21 years of age present a Red Cross minor release signed by parents or guardian. However, the requirement is waived for married women in this age group. No one under 18 is acceptable. For all donors, minimum weight is 110 pounds.

Assisting Miss Robinet in the drive are Doris Sellers, Barbara Mercer and Beth Sutton.

Only Four Candidates In Soph Queen Contest

With no nominations made from the Associated Students at large, only the four sororities will be represented in the High Sophomore Queen election, Dave Greene, class president, announced last week.

The four candidates, whose names were submitted last Friday, are Jeanne Williams, Kay Voltattorni, Yvonne Ferreboeuf and Jacqueline Wallace, who were chosen by the four sororities of the college.

Election is scheduled Thursday and Friday, February 1 and 2, with men only voting.

Identity of the queen will not be revealed until her coronation at the High Sophomore dance at the Hotel Claremont, in Berkeley, Saturday, February 3.

Publicity for the candidates will consist of photographs taken by Madison Devlin and one poster displayed at the student store by each contestant.

Tickets for the dance are on sale at the college bank at $1.50 per couple.

Passing The Buck

By Henry P. Buckingham

Oh where, oh where, has my woolly dog gone,
Oh where, oh where, can he be?
He's touring around in a transport plane,
And all his travels are free.

Blaze Roosevelt, the poor, unfortunate canine who has had to bear the brunt in rather harsh news stories of the past few days, is, like Hoover, a victim of circumstances.

Blaze, a native of England and a former member of the House of Canines, is a direct descendant of Lord Bon Fire. His great grandfather, Sir Flint Sparks, was keeper of the flame, and his uncle on his mother's side was Colonel Hel-Fire, head protectorate of the lamp standards for which all of the oil was brought to China.

Blaze's progenitors were not only ladies and gentlemen of the court, but many entered the literary field. The hounds in the fifth line of Sir Walter Scott's Hunting Song were ancestors of Blaze's mother on her maternal side.

It was only right that officers of the A.T.C. bow to this product of nobility and let him ride on our planes carrying super-essential materials. However, it does seem that he should have been given, not an A priority, but diplomats' rights.

Perhaps the greatest insult that was paid to our hero was the fact that he was delivered in a truck. Usually such visiting dignitaries are driven about in shiny black automobiles, not by majors, but by generals and secret service men. Such an affront may have dire consequences concerning our diplomatic relations with Great Britain.

The slight inconveniences caused the enlisted men involved in the incident may be easily overlooked. For the record, and not because the reasons were at all tangible, here is what happened to one, Seaman Leon LeRoy—according to Sailor LeRoy:

LeRoy, who was rushing from his duties as a gunner on a navy tanker to the scene of his father's death, was removed from the plane at Memphis. He hitch-hiked from Memphis to Dallas. Somewhere en route he lost his leave papers. This is insignificant as it only cost him two days and a roundtrip excursion from Dallas to Little Rock. After the S. P.'s were certain he wasn't a deserter, he was released. After this release he went to the A.T.C. office in Dallas and finally secured another ride on a plane coast bound.

If all the facts of the story are true, we trust Elliott's face is not only red but BLAZE-ing.

To retrain business and professional men for supervisory positions in war industries Stanford University is offering a training program in management practices in war industries.

Forge Our Dimes Into Silver Bayonets

THAT no victim of polio, regardless of age, race, creed or color, shall go without care for lack of money is the pledge to which the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis is dedicated.

With professional, business and civic groups, members of the armed forces, and all organizations active in community life now contributing to the annual March of Dimes, the foundation will be able to continue to lead and unify the struggle against the dreaded disease.

Last summer's epidemic in Hickory, North Carolina, showed the great extent the foundation can play in stemming tides of infection that periodically sweep the country.

Of the 344 patients stricken and treated in Hickory, only 12 died. An extremely low figure for such an outbreak.

Sixty-eight per cent of the individuals given treatment made complete recoveries, with the remainder suffering from residual paralysis.

At least 50 per cent of the recuperating children will make sufficient progress to fulfill normal and abundant lives once again.

Not only was prompt and competent medical service offered, but a 170-bed hospital, which ordinarily would require years of planning and building and hundreds of thousands of dollars, was erected in the unbelievably short period of eight weeks.

This "Miracle of Hickory" was brought about through the efforts of the National Foundation, its branches and the American people, who each year gratefully give donations to support the cause.

Half of the subscriptions go directly to the foundation which uses the funds for research, education and programs for the prevention of poliomyelitis.

Staffed by volunteer workers, the local chapters receive the other half of the money to assist in payment of hospitalization, medical and nursing facilities and for orthopedic appliances.

Associated Students of this college need not be reminded of the importance of these vital and commendable activities.

As a bulletin describing the present campaign concluded, "Let us forge our dimes into silver bayonets with which to carry the fight . . . to the finish!"

Letters To The Editor
RAM'S HORN

● Let Us Ban Hazing

Editor, The Guardsman:

Whether the so-called "Big Brothers" will lead the fraternities of our college in banning the hazing of fraternity pledges is the question now at hand. Why do they have to lead us? Why can't we ban initiations ourselves?

Each and every one of us can give our own reasons for and against this problem. It seems very silly to waste time and effort in something that is quite detrimental to a college when there is a war going on. If every one of us would put the energy that must go into hazing into usefulness for the war effort, much would be accomplished.

Do you think our boys over there fighting would like to know that while they are getting the real "hazing" we sit at home and play around at it. I don't think so.

It is a wise and right thing to ban rush week—at least for the duration.

—G. C.

● Let Us Not Ban Hazing

Editor, The Guardsman:

Ban college fraternity hazing? Frankly, I don't think it is any one person's business. Too many are affected, and many opinions are to be considered.

Hazing is part of college life, and as a general rule is enjoyed thoroughly by pledges and members alike. It lends spirit to an ideal and makes the eventual goal appreciated. Our soldiers are fighting for the right to keep little things like this alive—the right to be young and happy. It is just a

LOUIS PRIMA has recorded the old but now extremely popular Confessin'. Although his vocal is nothing to rave about, the sax-section chorus is absolutely maddening. Darting in and out of seemingly impossible passages, and not losing a man, they finally build to a frantic last half chorus to convoy a dirt-heart trumpet to an emergency landing so Van Johnson can't say, "I've lost my ship." Incidentally, Van will croon And There You Are in his next picture. Should be most moving.

Harry James' new disc is entitled The Love I Long For. James, who gets so much out of his string choir, uses it to full advantage on this mournful ballad. The vocal is nothing but fine and is a timely reminder that sensitive phrasing has finally come into its own as a school of thought. Hear tell that James has just added eight new strings to his group. Four on a cello and four on a viola.

Of all the stupid, asinine centers of entertainment, San Francisco sure takes the cake. Take a look at the bands that play to a full house in our modern, supposedly up-to-date hotels. Mickey-mouse, mickey-mouse, mickey-mouse.

It's an old story but just to make an argument stronger, about two years ago Bob Crosby's engagement at a very popular Market Street hotel was cut short because the patrons didn't approve of his type of music. Of course at the same time Del Courtney, of all people, was wowing them in another ball room at the same hotel.

The pay-off occurred about a week ago when the Esquire Jazz Poll Broadcast originated from New York, Hollywood and New Orleans. Tatum, Billie Holiday, and Lose-lip Lewie the Armstrong were coming up when our local radio station cut it off for a commercial show. It has been said before, and in this column, that San Francisco is the place where musicians go to be buried. This city is soooo vilely corrupt and dated. If only The Duke or The Hamp or even The Voice would hit town!

WAA-Balboa Playday Here Friday; Survey Underway

A playday with Balboa High School will be held this Friday at 2:30 in the women's gymnasium, Susan Miles, Women's Athletic Association president, said.

Games, sports and the regular WAA activities will feature the afternoon's activities, and refreshments as usual will be served.

That the WAA is conducting a survey to find out if there will be enough women interested in the organization for its continuance next semester was announced last week by Miss Miles.

Questions to be asked in the survey are as follows:

1. Are you interested in sports?
2. What sports? List suggestions.
3. How many afternoons a week?
4. Do you plan on working next semester after classes?
5. If you do work, would you still be interested in coming out one afternoon a week?

Sports that are offered by the WAA are basketball, volleyball, bowling, swimming, softball and riding.

Dates for the semi-finals for the ping-pong tournament have not yet been disclosed.

Seiler, Byrd May Defend Titles In Boxing Tourney

Action galore is promised when the men of the college square off in an expected five-bout intramural boxing tournament scheduled for Tuesday, February 6, after the State basketball game in the men's gymnasium.

Because of time required to set up the boxing ring the bouts will get under way 10 to 20 minutes after the State game is over.

Bob Seiler, middleweight champion, and Merrill Byrd, heavyweight champion, are expected to return to the leather pushing ring this semester to defend their respective titles.

Other possible entries are Colin Tooley and Bill Nightingale, Lee Eisan, intramural adviser, announced last week.

The names and weights of the other boxers have not yet been disclosed. Eisan stated that he is having a tough time matching the men evenly, but said that there would be at least five fights, which will give the crowd an exciting evening.

The judges and referees for the fights have not yet been chosen. Dr. Max Teitler, the college physician, will be in attendance.

"We'll have them in top notch condition for the show," Eisan said.

Awards to the winners will be gold miniature boxing gloves, while silver gloves will go to the losers.

There is still time for men interested in the show to sign up if they do so as soon as possible. Sign-ups are to be made with Eisan.

● Magazine Section Praised

Editor, The Guardsman:

Once more I have been very pleased by seeing a magazine section published in The Guardsman. To make my expression of feeling short and sweet—may I say "Bravo, it's a marvelous idea."

But—just as you accept student opinions and plans in the Ram's Horn, you should accept literary achievement at random. Why not give students an opportunity to submit their "brain children" of their own free will. Short stories, poetry, etc., would be a nice addition and perhaps a regular magazine section, say once a month, could be published.

This little paper carries a lot of power and is definitely a leader—how about leading off again?

Rams Romp 55-32 Over State Quintet; Bascombe Hits 13

Romping to their fourth straight victory by a score of 55 to 32, the Rams put up a much improved quintet as they took to the hardwoods last Friday night against the college's mortal foe, the Gators of San Francisco State.

In a foul-studded game—there were 32 of them—the Rams swamped the Gators to pull away to an early 22 to 14 first half lead.

Jim Bascombe and Jim Rodman were offensively outstanding for the Rams, Bascombe coming through with a total of 13 points to be high point man for the night. Rodman was hot on his neck with 10 points to come in second.

Bill Calhoun played his usual good game and did brilliant backboard work.

The Gators never were able to get started. The first string was kept in for the entire game, and only one substitution was made in an effort to keep the score down.

In the preliminary, the State junior varsity managed to sneak out a close win over this college's junior varsity, the Lambs, by a score of 38 to 41. High point man for the Red and White was Kenneth Ng with 5 field goals and 3 foul shots to his credit.

Intra Ping Pong Signups Set Today, Tomorrow

Intramural ping pong tournament play will begin as soon as signups are completed. These signups must be made in the men's gymnasium by the ping pong table today and tomorrow, Lee Eisan, instructor, warned last week.

Women's Athletic Association members are also conducting a ping pong tourney, with finals due soon. No indications were given as to whether finalists would engage in coeducational playofsf.

Block SF Meets Friday To Decide Banquet Fate

To decide whether Block SF Society members will hold their semi-annual banquet this semester, the group will meet this Friday at 11 a.m. in Room 142, Bob Seiler, society president, said last week.

Main decision to be faced is collection of necessary funds to hold the banquet, Seiler said, and the place. Restaurants under consideration, provided funds are collected, are Monaco's and the Riveria. The latter was the scene of last semester's banquet.

Should the members decide not to hold a banquet, Lee Eisan, block society adviser, indicated that he will hope for a special block rally where the 26 recipients of blocks from football will be presented with their awards.

Manpower Shortage Forces Santa Rosa To Cancel Games

Coming as a serious blow to the attempt to restore competition in the Northern California Junior College Conference was the surprise statement by Dick Bliuret, Santa Rosa coach, that because of inroads made by the draft his basketball squad had withdrawn from all competition.

This action necessitates a complete revision of the Ram schedule, as two games had been slated with Santa Rosa, one today, a second Friday.

The new schedule is as follows:

January 31—Sacramento ..... Here
February 6—S. F. State ..... Here
February 8—Sacramento ..... There
February 9—Modesto ..... There
February 14—Menlo ..... There
February 16—Modesto ..... Here
February 21—Menlo ..... Here
February 23—San Mateo ..... Here

Immediately after the second game with S. F. State on February 6, which starts at 7:30 p.m., a ring will be put up and the semi-annual men's boxing show will get under way.

Following is the complete text of Bliuret's letter:

Mr. Lee Eisan,
Basketball Coach,
San Francisco Junior College.
Dear Lee:

It has become necessary for me to cancel the basketball games scheduled with San Francisco Junior College for January 24 and 26.

Our squad has been disbanded since enough manpower is unavailable. The draft has taken seven of my squad of eleven men, making it impossible to continue the basketball season.

I am sorry this step is necessary for we were looking forward to the games with your team. From the looks of things at present, athletics are out for the remainder of this semester and possibly the balance of this school year. I notice Marin is in the same condition. Regards.

Sincerely,
DICK BLIURET.

No Games Played, Set; Intra Competition Flops

Because of apparent lack of interest on the part of participants and the student manager of the intramural tournament, a second week has gone by and still no more games have been scheduled or played.

The basketball tournament, which started out with plenty of enthusiasm behind it, now seems doomed to a dismal fate unless something is done to snap the whole tourney out of its lethargy.

At the end of last week, Dick Bunker, student Manager of intramural sports, was unavailable for comment.

College History . . . Ex-Council Keeps Student Government Free

By L. J. Smith

"So that government of the people, by the people and for the people shall not perish from the earth . . ."

And, just as the great historians of this country drew up a constitution, so the great historians of San Francisco Junior College drew up a constitution. The students organized and became the Associated Students, discussed their problems and solved them in order.

A constitution committee, appointed in September, 1935, made a very thorough study of student needs and approximately two months later produced the rules which govern the Associated Students today. These rules are appropriate, authoritative and governing, meant to give students liberal rights.

When the Associated Students demanded control under representation, the Exeeutive Couneil was born. The Executive Couneil is the administrative and legislative body of the association and "shall be responsible for and shall have final authority in the supervision of the affairs, policies, properties and conduct of the association." Over this council presides the President, with the Vice-president, Secretary and Treasurer of the Associated Students and six representatives, completing the membership.

Polley making and law making, a body representing the Associated Students, the Ex-Council develops citizenship and leadership responsibility. Under the supervision of a faculty adviser, student representatives approve and control all student affairs. The council carries authority and prestige with the faculty and is based upon democratic legislation.

Most things pertaining to or affecting student welfare come before the couneil. Any man or woman interested in the student government is invited to attend all meetings of the Ex-Council, for it is truly the representative government of the students.

Just as a democratic country resolves, so a democratic college realizes that the government of the students, by the students and for the students shall not perish from the campus.

International Club Charter Proposes Open Membership, Friendliness Aims

Highlights of the skeleton charter submitted by the chairman and aims committee of the proposed international club at a second meeting last week included the statement of purpose, and the unrestrictive nature of the membership, making the latter open to all students, alumni and faculty of the college.

The purpose, after some discussion, was approved to "carry out activities designed to promote friendliness and mutual understanding, and thereby integration among our fellowmen."

Discussion at the meeting centered mainly around the outline charter, which was approved as submitted, except for a minor amendment respecting the duties of some of the officers.

Governing body of the organization will consist of a president, chairman, secretary, treasurer and a panel committee.

No date was set for the next general meeting. Acting chairman Bill Schlager said that the date and hour of the next meeting would be announced over the Public Address system.

The organization, under the cosponsorship of Verrel Weber and Phylis Haley, is as yet, nameless, a condition they heartily deplore, and they have urged that suggestions for a suitable name be submitted without delay.

Coast Guard Movies Shown Tomorrow At 11

Two movies will be shown by the Coast Guard tomorrow at 11 a. m. in Room 100. They are entitled Task Force and Normandy Invasion.

All students are invited, but the films are described as being of special interest to 17 year old men who might consider joining the Coast Guard.

Women's Choral Group Schedules Feb. 8 Dinner

Plans for the Women's Chorus traditional semi-annual dinner are now completed, Flossita Badger, chorus director, revealed this week.

The dinner is to be held Thursday, February 8, at 6 o'clock at the Tower Restaurant, Miss Badger said.

Presentation of music award pins to eligible music students is one of the purposes of the dinner held at the end of each semester.

Victory Garden Program Awarded National Honors

From the National Victory Garden Institute Incorporated in New York comes word that the college has been awarded the National Victory Garden certificate.

The college victory garden program is under the direction of Harry Nelson.

Presentation of the certificate is to be made through the local office of the National Victory Garden Institute Incorporated. The certificate is given in recognition of the college's distinguished record in encouraging victory gardens and home food preservation.

In diseussing the gardens on the campus, Nelson called attention to the faet that these gardens have been developed under the direction of Thomas R. Porter, botany instruetor.

The most widely grown winter vegetables in the Laguna Honda and college plots are those of the eabbage family and leafy crops, broccoli, brussel sprouts, cauliflower, and lettuee. Root crops, including earrots, beets, turnips and parsnips, are doing very well if they were planted by October, Porter said.

AWS Leaders Collect For March Of Dimes

In the current March of Dimes campaign to aid victims of Infantile Paralysis, the Associated Women Students did their part by collecting dimes throughout last week for the cause.

Yvonne Bordegaray, AWS president, and Frances Davey, AWS secretary, collected the dimes for the first part of last week, and two volunteers from the women students of the college, Bobbie Mereer and Lois Robinet, collected the dimes for the latter part of last week.

Cooperation of the students was very good, Miss Davey said.

The amount collected was not disclosed.

Volunteers Still Needed To Plant Campus Geraniums

Volunteers are still needed for the impending geranium planting project, Harry Nelson, faculty adviser of the plan, announced this week.

As yet only five students have offered to help. At least five more will be neeessary to handle the job, Nelson said.

Those who volunteered are Robert Beck, Frank Chowack, Robert Cook, Jack Graves and Jim Coleman.

A definite planting date has not yet been set, but it is expected to be some time between February 1 and February 15, Nelson added.

Meanwhile, the long awaited trees are expeeted to arrive from Washington, D. C., within the week. Plans for planting and arranging are then expeeted to progress rapidly.

Future For College Rodents Looks Slim

By Priscilla Shaw

San Francisco may be exposed to an over exeess of hungry rodents, but the future for the college rodents looks mighty slim.

With all the new restrictions and limitations on such things as cheese, sugar, meats and fresh vegetables, the neighboring college rodents, who may be waiting for their evening meal, will be disappointed when they find that even college students are conserving.

The neighborhood rodents will waste away.

The pieture isn't quite that bad for eafeteria patrons. There may be euts in food quantities and a monotonous menu now and then, but patrons still ean purehase well balaneed meals at the cafeteria.

College Blood Donor Drive Will Continue Through This Friday

Signups for the Blood Donor Drive sponsored by the Associated Students in cooperation with the Red Cross Center will continue through Friday, aceording to Lois Robinet, chairman of the Welfare Committee.

Applications are being filed in the cafeteria at the following times: Wednesday, 11 to 2; Thursday, 10 to 2, and Friday, 11 to 2.

Arrangements have been made to transport students from the college to the Blood Donor Center at 2415 Jones Street on the following days: Tuesday, February 6, and Thursday, February 8, at 2:15 p. m.

Miss Robinet reminded students that parents and friends are urged to pledge their pint of blood through the college, and individual appointments ean be made.

Students who have volunteered to assist in enlisting donors are as follows:

Edwin C. Browne Leaves To Take Higher School Job

In swift action last week, the Board of Education acting on recommendation of Superintendent of Schools Curtis E. Warren, named Dean Edwin C. Browne coordinator of Personnel for the San Francisco Public Schools, effective last Wednesday.

Dean Browne, a graduate of the University of California following undergraduate work at the University of Washington, came to the junior college when it was opened in 1935 after serving as vice-principal of Santa Barbara Intermediate High School, Superintendent of Schools in Rogue River, Oregon; Principal of Yreka Union High School and Principal of El Dorado County High School, in Placerville.

The college administration, coincident with action of the school board, requested Edward E. Sandys to assume the duties of the deanship.

Sandys eame to the college from Santa Monica Junior College, following teaching experience at Palo Alto High School and Beverly Hills High School.

He received his degrees from Stanford University, after undergraduate work at George Washington University and Oberlin College. He also took graduate work at Stanford, University of Southern California and the University of Washington.

In his undergraduate days he was a member of the erew at George Washington, played football at Oberlin and Stanford and was a member of Delta Chi fraternity at Stanford.

In commenting on leaving the college, the new Coordinator of Personnel Browne said:

White Barrel In Hall For Books—Not Trash

By Norma Smith

White elephants and white barrels are food for thought. A white elephant, however, is something no one wants at any time, and this particular white barrel is not wanted by anyone now.

The barrel appeared shortly after the drive for books for the Merchant Marine Library. It was to be used to collect books for the Red Cross, but nothing was done about that, and there the barrel sits like any well mannered white elephant.

Instead of a handy container for contributions to this worthy eause, it has turned into a general leanto and eatch-all. In fact, the only things missing from the white barrel in front of the telephone switchboard are the badly needed and desired books for the Red Cross.

Campus Bank Will Close February 9 For 2 Weeks

That the college bank will be closed from Friday, February 9 until Wednesday, February 21, was announced last week by Luther Lyon, College Controller.

Lyons warned that small cash items to be charged against budgeted activities must be cleared before the bank closes on February 9.

Students were urged by the banking staff to buy enough car tickets to cover the period the bank will be closed.

Mills, Robinet In Race For Associated Student Leader; Campaign Rally Today

Led by Bob Mills and Lois Robinet, contestants for the office of Associated Student president, 18 candidates will state their platforms at a rally today at 10 o'clock in the men's gymnasium.

All regular classes will be dismissed, J. P. Mohr, registrar, announeed.

Following the rally, tomorrow and Friday, students will vote by machine in the eafeteria from 8:30 to 2:30, and a large voting response is expected.

Other candidates for offices are Associated Student vice-president, Angela Asaro, Jean Crenshaw and Beth Wilcox.

Three students, Betty Lee, Marcellee Sandus, and Claire M. Stewart, will run for Seeretary.

The lone candidate for the office of Associated Women Student President is Barbara Chambers, who will automatieally enter office. The same applies to Henry P. Buckingham, who is running for Associated Men Student Vice-president, and Howard Slaughter, candidate for Associated Men Student Seeretary.

Lois Robinet

Candidates for other Associated Women Student offices are Vice-president Gay Corgiat and Mildred Hoffman and Seeretary, Anne Le Noir and Marie Wettin.

Bob Mills

For the office of Associated Men Student President, Neil Coe will run against Victor Pudlowski.

Unopposed by any other candidate, Charles Shea Jr. will assume the office of Rally Commissioner.

Chairman of the Eleetion Committee, which has complete control over the order of the election, is Pat Farran. Members of the committee are Ed Clinton and Don Giannini. The

Amendments Up For Ratification

In addition to the election of Associated Student officers, two amendments will also be presented for ratification tomorrow and Friday.

Amendment One is to be added to Article Four and reads:

"Officers of the Low Freshmen, High Freshmen, Low Sophomore and High Sophomore classes shall be elected at a date within three weeks of the beginning of instruction of each semester, to be determined by the Executive Council. This date will be published in The Guardsman at least one week previous to the election."

This amendment changes the constitution only in that it sets a time limit for election of class officers.

To be added to Article Three of the By-Laws, the second part of Amendment One reads:

"The presidents of the four classes shall comprise the Social Committee, under the chairmanship of the Vice-President of the Associated Students; and each president shall be in charge of the dance given in honor of his class, under the supervision of the committee chairman."

This amendment, growing out of heated controversy earlier in the semester, specifically names class presidents as members of the Social Committee.

The second amendment combines the offices of Rally Commissioner and Yell Leader and reads as follows:

"The Rally Commissioner shall be in charge of all rallies, shall act as yell leader, and may if he so desires appoint assistant yell leaders; and he shall have one vote on the Executive Council. He shall have attained at least high freshman standing at the time he is a candidate. He shall be chairman of the Rally Committee."

Cadet Nurses Here May Apply For Scholarship

Cadet nurse students were advised last week by Dean Margaret Dougherty to apply immediately if they wish to be considered for a $50 scholarship offered by the San Francisco Council of Jewish Women in conjunetion with the San Francisco Federation of Women's Clubs.

Sole limitation for eligibility is enrollment in a nursing school.

Passing The Buck

By Henry P. Buckingham

FRUGAL Filtch wearily hoisted himself from bed. A hand encircled the alarm clock and dashed it to the floor. He staggered cross the room, tripped on a nail-studded fraternity paddle and caught himself in time to halt in front of a picture of his woman, Serpentine Snig. "Ah, Serpentine, thou who wearest mine pin."

At the same moment many blocks away, Serpentine pulled the curlers out of her hair, carefully placed it on her head, put in her teeth, stole to the kitchen, wrapped a still damp dish towel around her head, tied it under a massive lower jaw, picked up her books which included The History of Economics, Hygiene, Physiology and Forever Amber, drank a short glass of Stunwa and set sail for Balboa Park.

Sometime later, in fact, much later, Serpentine and Frugal climbed the 10th Ave. bus. Hand in hand they tripped up the steps, through the doors, and came to rest leaning against the silver pole. The crowd buzzed hither and thither. Posters cluttered the walls. Today was election day.

Downstairs the line formed for balloting. Frugal's vote had, of course, been promised to his fraternity brother, Q. Oscar Boom, even though he knew the opposing candidate was a better one.

Serpentine fondly drew a dish-pan hand over his fraternity pin and agreed with his choice for president, vice-president and secretary. The glint in her cross eye twinkled with sincerity.

To the side and slightly to the left of the line stood Erbar X. Giffel. Erbar, his henchman and campaign managers, slyly passed out C 5 coupons. What a lovely day was this to put friends in office.

Al K. Hall, one rabid Erbar X. Giffel supporter, barked reasons why Giffel should be elected. "No matter what Erbar has or hasn't, he has Habba," and the word was chanted over and over, "Habba, Habba, Habba, Habba, Habba," the phonograph record voice pleaded, "Habba."

By this time Frugal had reached the voting machine. He stepped inside. Lever upon lever confronted him. Taking out a sheet that had been circulated at a recent meeting, he noted which levers to pull. Frugal opened the curtains and passed out, to the room. He cleverly handed the paper with voting directions to Serpentine.

That afternoon when most classes were adjourned and others had been skipped, Serpentine and Frugal waltzed down the hall by the silver pole and out to the bus. As they sat there on the rear seat of the pulsating vehicle amid the sweet odor of carbon monoxide, they were proud to say that they had done their bit for election day.

Frugal looked up at Serpentine, and when he finally caught her cross eye he whispered, "Isn't it a pity our boys lost the election." Then with a smile he added, "Have you any sandwiches in your knapsack."

Students Should Study Past Records

TOMORROW and Friday, men and women of this college will enter the voting booths to cast their ballots for the individuals who will supervise the affairs, policies, properties and conduct of the Associated Students for the coming semester.

Presenting their various platforms and promises, the candidates will speak at a rally today at 10 o'clock.

Some legislators, as in other campaigns, will endeavor to persuade voters that they alone can grant to the college the prewar spirit that once prevailed.

These politicians may appear quite convincing in their assurances of a new upsurge of spirit when they take office, but the dances and rallies designed to create this spirit will fail surprisingly.

It must be remembered that spirit is similar to democracy in that it cannot be imposed upon any people. Spirit can only arise from the consciousness and the will of the Associated Students.

Until peace again is restored to the world, college life cannot and should not return to its former pattern.

Therefore, it is the candidate who offers a realistic, sound and timely program, who will enable the student government to function effectively.

Initiative is also a most important qualification for the person conducting administrative duties, but it must be accompanied by intelligence and judgment.

For example, clever organization, planning and efficient direction of vital effort in the worthy activities was exemplified by this semester's blood donor and sixth war loan drives.

Only through analyzing the past performances and platforms of the prospective officers, can each student vote with the knowledge that his was a properly chosen ticket.

A Man Who Does Work Of Three Men

"A MAN who does the work of three men" is the way Edwin C. Browne has frequently been described. The Guardsman staff, knows full well that in any situation where information is needed and hard to get, the solution is always, "Ask Dean Browne."

Not only has The Guardsman staff leaned on Dean Browne since its first moment of existence, but every organization in the college has requested his aid.

The Guardsman takes pride in speaking for the whole college when it wishes Edwin C. Browne all the success that it knows will be his in his new position.

At the same time, The Guardsman, again speaking for the college, congratulates the administration upon having requested so capable and student-interested a man as Edward Sandys to assume the duties of Dean of Men.

Letters To The Editor

RAM'S HORN

• More Power to Greene

Editor, The Guardsman:

After sitting back and watching the mud-slinging over the issues concerning the election of the Soph Queen I've finally decided to add my unasked for opinion.

Somehow I feel that a great number of the students agree with me when I say that I am very definitely in favor of holding the voting here.

No matter where the dance is held there will still be some students who will not be able to attend, thus not have a part in determining who the lucky girl will be.

So I say, more power to Dave Greene for consenting to have the election here—now we'll elect the girl who is really the choice of ALL the men students!

DISCussions

THE names of the top three male and female crooners follow with a little comment here and there. Onward!

Sinatra	Garland
Johnston	Daley
Haymes	Stafford

Johnston rates second choice, for he possesses the most beautiful natural voice. He does ballads extremely well and can top Bing at any novelty tune. Also he is more reliable and consistent than any other male crooner.

Sinatra? He's a sissy actor now and as so much space has already been donated to him it will have to be sufficient to name him as king. Ay, such hands!

Haymes has the most masculine full voice but quite often is careless and insincere. The main reason for his great improvement over his band days is his new mike technique. Now he stands closer to the mike, and since he uses less volume, he can concentrate more on phrasing, enunciation, and quality.

And now here's where the trouble really begins! The gals. Judy Garland is it. She possesses so darn much down-to-earth sincerity. Moreover her quality is rich, vibrant, and wholesome. The deciding factor is her ability to increase and decrease her vibrato at will. Only Lawrence Tibbett can match her at this.

Cass Daley puts all the gals to shame in the audience contact department. Hutton might just as well quit now. Cass's arrangements of Together and Mean To Me are priceless.

Stafford is the female Sinatra. She just barely rates over Dinah Shore, and this is because of her fine selections of tunes and constant recording policy, not because of a superiority of voice or technique. Shore is the gal Haymes, and her best asset is her ability to turn out a good vocal any and every time.

As for the rest of the male field, Russell who is next in line is followed by Bing and Herb "Flamingo" Jeffries in that order.

Back to the feminine department. Eileen Barton, Sinatra's protege, just beats out Ginny Simms. In the gut-bucket field Billie Holiday and Tony Pastor still hold their own.

The Duke is finally here!

Champs Will Defend Titles

Seiler, Bird Re-enter Ring Here In Boxing Tournament Tuesday Night

By Bob Montgomery

Bob Seiler and Merrill Bird, two time champions, return to the ring in the men's gymnasium next Tuesday night, February 6, to defend their titles.

The occasion is the intramural boxing tournament which will follow the State basketball game. It will consist of at least five hotly contested bouts.

At the last tournament Seiler and Jack Conway were decided co-champions in the middle-weight division, and Bird won the welter-weight title through a decision by the judges.

Each bout will consist of three 2 minute rounds. In between each round will be a longer rest period, since the sluggers have not been in training long enough to be fully fit.

The following names and weights of the men who have signed up for the bouts as of last Friday: Bird, 150; William Nightingale, 210; David Valintine, 136; Seiler, 157; Henry Boone, 156; Frank Fields, 195; Charles Shea, 117; Raymond Meier, 154; Jack White, 185. Several more are expected to enter the finals.

The following list of names is the sport staff's guess as to the probable lineup:

Merrill Bird vs. Henry Boone.
Frank Fields vs. Jack White.
Bob Seiler vs. Ray Meier.

Bird will probably depend mostly on his ability to dart in with a fast attack and quick foot work, while Boone will count on a slugging right hand and a good defense. The second bout between Fields and White will probably show a slugging offense on the part of both fighters.

In the other bout, Seiler will probably depend mostly on jabbing with his left until he has a good opening for his powerful right hand. His opponent, Meier, will probably have the offensive in the first two rounds.

Jack Brady, intramural adviser, and Edward Sandys, acting dean of men, will act as judges for all the bouts, while Lee Eisan will be the referee throughout the whole tournament.

Stan Burroughs has been named official timekeeper for the fights. Dr. Max Teitler will be the physician in charge.

Bunker Promises Action On Intramural Basketball

Dick Bunker, student director of the intramural activities, promised to get some action on the intramural basketball tournament and revive the now dormant competition.

The five teams originally entered will still compete some time this week in the hope of producing a winner before the boxing show next Tuesday. Thus if the tournament ends in a tie, a playoff may be played the same night.

Hi School Women In WAA Tourney

Women from two San Francisco high schools will participate in the semi-annual Women's Athletic Association Tourney Day this Friday in the women's gymnasium.

Both Lincoln High and St. John's Catholic High Schools have been invited to send representatives.

Badminton, volleyball and basketball are some of the sports to be played, Susan Miles, WAA president, said last week.

The women who are eligible for blocks will be named and their blocks will be presented provided their final grades meet award requirements. Approximately 15 awards will be given.

These blocks are triangular in shape with an S. F. on them. In the lower left hand corner, smaller triangles are placed, indicating the individual sports for which the award was granted.

Women's Athletic Assn. To Be Active Next Spring

Results of the survey taken last week prove that there still is an overwhelming enthusiasm to keep the Women's Athletic Association active next semester.

Most popular sport for the women in the college now is swimming. This report is based on the survey. Tennis, badminton, bowling, riding, basketball, volleyball, archery and softball also rated high and are listed in the order of their popularity.

Least popular sports are ice skating, bike riding, hockey, ping pong, roller skating, dancing, golf, crew and sailing.

Susan Miles, WAA president, said that if all the women go out for activities next semester as they indicated in the survey, the WAA will have a very successful semester.

Block Banquet Cancelled; Meeting Called Friday

Failure on the part of members to attend a recent Block SF meeting has resulted in cancellation of the semi-annual society banquet, Bob Seiler, president, announced last week.

There will be a meeting of the society on Friday, February 2, in Room 142 at 11 o'clock. All members are urged to attend, especially those who were members of this semester's football squad.

Rams, Sacramento Cage Game Today; State Next Week

The Sacramento cagers come to town today to do battle with the Eisanmen in the college's gymnasium in one of the more important games of the season. The victor in this encounter will have a slight edge in the race for cage honors in the Northern California Junior College Conference.

A split with Modesto and Sacramento will give the Rams the undisputed lead in the wartime casaba league.

Very little is known of the Tule district hoopsters at the moment outside of the fact that the Panthers defeated Chico State by a small margin, and Chico in turn trounced San Francisco State. By comparison, the Rams stand a good chance to bring home the conference honors for the first time since 1936.

Next Tuesday, February 6, the Rams again meet the San Francisco State College team in the men's gymnasium in an effort to trounce their perennial rivals again. The Gators aren't up to former standards and this shouldn't be too tough a game for the Rams.

Games remaining on the Ram schedule are as follows:

February 8—Sacramento	There
February 9—Modesto	There
February 14—Menlo	There
February 16—Modesto	Here
February 21—Menlo	Here
February 23—San Mateo	Here

Intramural Contest Will Be Completed By Feb. 16

With eleven signed up for the men's intramural ping pong tournament, Coach Lee Eisan promised last week that matches will get under way immediately and be completed before the end of the semester, February 16.

Times for the matches will be posted in the men's gymnasium.

Those signed up are Charles Allen, Carl Chadwick, Frank Fields, Edwardo Zalaya, George Fabian, Bill Calhoun, Harold Lansing, Chuck Martenson, Dick Francks, Vic Pudlowski and Norman Panting.

Former Football Manager Wolf Killed In Action

Private Paul Wolf, U. S. Army, formerly a student at the college and manager of the 1943 football team, was killed in action somewhere in Germany on November 25, 1944. He was awarded the Purple Heart posthumously, which was presented to his parents who reside at 1531 California Street, San Francisco.

Elks Club Sponsors $5000 Nat'l Contest

Five thousand dollars in scholarship awards will be given by the Elks National Foundation Trustees in their nationwide contest for the "Most Valuable Student," for which students of the college are eligible.

Prizes offered this year are:

	Men	Women
First prize	$600	$600
Second prize	500	500
Third prize	400	400
Fourth prize	300	300
Fifth prize	200	200
Five $100 awards	500	500

Those who are interested in entering this contest should be residents within the jurisdiction of the Elk Order.

Applications should be sent before March 1, 1945, to Secretary of the California State Elks Association, Edgar W. Dale, 315 10th St., Richmond, California.

Since the Foundation Trustees do not furnish application blanks, they have outlined essential details of information desired. Students interested in meeting the requirements may obtain the necessary information either from Margaret Dougherty, dean of women, or Edward Sandys, acting dean of men.

Scholarship, citizenship, personality, leadership, perseverance, resourcefulness, patriotism and general worthiness are the criteria by which the applicants will be judged.

In the past three years California has succeeded every year in winning some of the national awards. Last year three California students won awards in the contest.

Placement Office Offers Fulltime Job Guidance

Students contemplating taking fulltime jobs at the end of the semester were urged to seek guidance at the placement office, Room 155.

Edward W. Larson, placement director, emphasized the need for expert advice, even of those students who already have jobs awaiting them, regarding War Manpower Clearances.

Pointing out that although there is at present a relative boom in jobs because of the war, Larson reiterated the importance of acquiring certain basic skills, such as typing, shorthand, office routine, bookkeeping, operating certain machines, and even those of a manual nature while the opportunity presents itself, in order "on the day of reckoning" to be retained among those in whom skill and experience will be held in their favor.

Music Scheduled For Choral Group Dinner

Entertainment for the Women's Chorus semi-annual dinner will consist of three musical numbers supplied by college music students, Flossita Badger, chorus director, announced this week.

The dinner is to be held at the Tower Restaurant Thursday, February 8 at 6 o'clock.

Yvonne Ferrebocuf Kay Voltattorni Jacqueline Wallace Jeanne Williams

Winner To Rule Over Semi-Formal Saturday Night At Claremont Hotel

A queen to reign for two hours will be elected by the men students of the college tomorrow and Friday at the same time and place as the election of Associated Students.

Voting for the queen will be done by ballot, not by voting machine, Dave Greene, High Soph president, said.

Candidates for the soph queen are Kay Voltattorni, Jeanne Williams, Yvonne Ferrebocuf and Jacqueline Wallace.

Identity of the queen will not be announced until the coronation at 11 p. m. at the High Sophomore semi-formal, when she will be presented with the Sweetheart Trophy by Greene, and the Beta Tau perpetual trophy by Merrill Bird, Beta Tau president.

The dance will be held this Saturday night in the Spanish Room of the Hotel Claremont at Berkeley from 9 p.m. to 1 o'clock.

Harry Mason's orchestra and vocalist, Lyle Stewart, have been chosen to play for the dance.

The usual corsage ban for college dances will not be in effect for the formal, and attire for the dance will be semi-formal, meaning long formal dresses for the women, and business suits for the men.

Committee for the dance are the High Sophomore class officers, Marilyn Brunton, vice-president, Jean Crenshaw, secretary, and Greene.

The rest of the committee includes Barbara Healy, Virginia Franz and Jean Henry.

—And Now The Draft Takes College Coeds

By Gloria Papazian

The first draft of women has come to the college.

Because of the manpower shortage, it has been found necessary to draft four women students of the college to assist the few men who volunteered to plant geraniums on Hello Walk.

The "volunteers" are Judean Young, Iris Henry, Jean Simmons and Yvonne Lyons. The young men who will be assisted by the new gardeners are Robert Beck, Frank Chowack, Robert Cook, Jack Graves and Jim Coleman.

The planting will take place when Harry Nelson, faculty adviser of the plan, gives the volunteers the "go" sign and when the plants arrive.

International Group Ratifies Club Charter

Ratification of the charter of the international club was accomplished yesterday at a third open meeting under the chairmanship of Ed Clinton.

Charter's highlights refer to purpose and membership.

The first is to "carry out activities designed to promote friendliness and mutual understanding, and thereby integration among our fellowmen."

Membership is unrestrictive. It is open to all students, alumni and faculty of the college.

Discussed also was the selection of a name for the organization, which thus far has no official name.

Because of forthcoming final examinations, no definite date was set for the next open meeting. It is expected that the time of the next general meeting will be announced over the public address system.

War Bonds To Be Awarded For Best Winter Gardens

Two $50 war bonds are to be awarded to contestants having the best victory gardens at Laguna Honda and the college plots through the winter.

Since the war some 1000 adults from all kinds of professions have been working victory gardens on these two locations.

All contestants for the war bonds were given record sheets to keep up to date. Information required for entries is date planted, seeds and plants, crop and variety, length of rows, number of rows and yield. All entries, for those who wish to compete, must be in by March 1, Harry Nelson, victory garden director, said.

The reason behind these winter victory gardens is to prove that San Francisco can grow vegetables during the winter, Nelson explained.

Election Committee is responsible for the carrying on of the election and the interpretation of the rules governing the election. These rules will stand as published last week in The Guardsman. The committee has the power to disqualify any candidate for failure to comply with them.

Hill Site Chosen For Cement Letters

Site of the proposed cement letters has definitely been decided on, Bob Bisio, president of the Associated Students, and originator of the plan, announced this week.

The hill north of the archery range has been chosen, providing permission can be secured from the owners to carry out the project there.

Bisio explained that this would be clearly visible from all the future buildings of the college. This is especially true of the stadium which is to be built in the form of a horseshoe on the present archery range and will face north.

"If we are given the go-ahead signal by the San Francisco Park Commission, which owns the property, we will approach the Executive Council for an appropriation, and the project will be carried out this semester," Bisio continued. "If not, the plan will have to be put aside until such a time that the funds can be secured, or another chosen."

The letters are to be staked out either today or tomorrow by Bisio and assistants in order to ascertain how they will look. They are to be 12 feet long and will carry out the college colors—white cement letters on red.

ASSFJC Officers Receive Traditional Service Keys

In a routine meeting of the Executive Council last week, Bob Bisio president of the Associated Students, awarded the traditional keys to the student officers for their service to the college government this semester.

Bisio presented the awards with little ceremony, immediately dismissing the roll-call since there was no further legislation to come before the council members.

It has been the custom of the Associated Student organization to grant small signets to its leaders every semester with the position and initials of the recipient engraved on the back of the key.

informal goodbyes and farewells, in fact, I hardly think it necessary to say either, since I hope to return frequently to the college and keep up the warm friendships that have made my experiences as Dean of Men most delightful and helpful. With all the wealth and education in the world at one's command there is nothing to compare in value to the sincere friendship of those with whom one lives.

"I know that my feet may take me in many directions from the college, but my heart will always have an office in Room 123, where I have learned so much from those I have been supposed to teach. Mills Gets ASSFJC Presidency

Bob Mills

Crenshaw, Lee Win By Large Margin; Voters Fail To Pass Rally Commissioner Change

By Robert Ball

In an election that followed definite trends from the tabluation of the first returns, Robert Mills defeated Lois Robinet for the presidency of the Associated Students last Friday.

Mills immediately disclosed, when interviewed, that he had no statement to make concerning his platform.

With a total of 297 votes, Mills defeated Miss Robinet, who followed with 175 student votes.

Bob Bisio, vacating president of the Associated Students, announced that "there was a very poor turnout, with only 496 students voting." He urged the new officers "to do your best, and work for the good of the college."

For the office of Associated Student vice-president, Jean Crenshaw, with a total of 212 votes, defeated Beth Wilcox and Angela Asaro, who followed with 166 and 81 votes.

Betty E. Lee defeated Mareellee Sanders and Clair M. Stewart for the office of Associated Student Secretary. Miss Lee polled 220 votes, while Miss Sanders followed with 136 votes. Miss Stewart trailed with 103.

Uncontested, Henry P. Buckingham assumed the office of Associated Men Student vice-president, with a total of 108 votes.

The new Associated Women Student President is Barbara Chambers, who received 278 votes. She was unopposed. Howard Slaughter, who also ran uncontested, captured the office of AMS Secretary.

Mildred Hoffman defeated her opponent, Gay Corgiat, for the office of AWS vice-president. Miss Hoffman polled 165 votes, and Gay Corgiat followed with 136 votes.

Anne Le Noir captured the office of AWS Secretary by defeating Marie Wettin, 172 to 141.

In a steadily increasing gain, Victor Pudlowski defeated Neal Coe with a grand total of 104 votes. Coe trailed with 35 votes.

As for the amendments, Number 1, setting a time limit on the election of class officers, was passed, receiving 312 votes in favor of its ratification, 128 against. The second amendment, combining the offices of rally commissioner and yell leader, was defeated, 296 to 163.

Students Will Have Final Grades First Day Of Registration

Final semester grades will be given to students when they register for the 1945 spring semester on Monday, February 19, J. Paul Mohr, college registrar, announced this week.

Students who do not intend to return to the college should leave a self-addressed, stamped envelope for forwarding of their grades, Mohr said.

College registration dates are Monday, February 19, for old students, and Tuesday, February 20, for new students. Students whose names fall between L and Z, inclusive, will register between 9 and 11 a.m., and A through K between 1 and 3 p.m. The time schedule will be followed both days.

Mohr also reminded students to have their pictures taken if they have not done so before, and requested that students who intend to graduate in June make their application at the time they register.

Cafeteria To Remain Open During Finals

The college cafeteria will remain open for breakfast from 9 to 10 a.m. and luncheon from 11 to 1 o'clock during finals week, February 12 to 16, and the two days of registration, Monday, February 19, and Tuesday, February 20, Hilda Watson, head of the hotel and restaurant division, announced last week.

Jeanne Williams Crowned Queen Of High Soph Class

Jeanne Williams

The balloting, which was perhaps the closest in Soph Sweetheart history, placed candidates in the following order: Jeanne Williams, Queen; Jacqueline Wallace, Kay Voltattorni and Yvonne Ferreboeuf.

Robinet Recruits 125 Volunteers For Blood Drive

More than 125 students pledged participation in the recent Blood Donor drive at the college, according to Lois Robinet, chairman of the Welfare Committee.

A busload of 30 students is scheduled to leave from the college to the Blood Donor Center tomorrow at 2:15 p.m. The bus that left yesterday was also filled to capacity.

Although the drive ended last Friday, students who were unable to sign at the college may go to the Red Cross. These pledges will be credited to the college. Miss Robinet also asked students to bring in more outside donors. She added that prospective donors who are under 21 must have signed releases.

Lois Robinet

Miss Robinet expressed her deep appreciation for the fine work done by the students who offered their assistance in this drive.

College Bank To Close Feb. 9 Through Feb. 21

The college bank will be closed for business starting this Friday, February 9, until Wednesday, February 21, Luther Lyon, controller, warned last week.

"The week in which finals are to be given, the bank will be closed so that any student who will be in need of a car ticket should purchase it before Friday," Lyon added.

All organization bills charged against this semester's student budget must be in by Friday to assure payment, Lyon said.

Bisio Postpones Project For SFJC Cement Letters

Postponement of the college letters project is necessary because of lack of time remaining in the semester, Bob Bisio, Associated Students President emphasized. "It is expected that the initial plans will be put into effect early in the new semester."

Chorus To Receive Awards At Dinner

Gold, lyre-shaped pins will be presented to 37 music students as a highlight of the Women's Chorus traditional dinner tomorrow evening, 6 o'clock, at the Tower Restaurant.

Terminating the semester's choir activities, the dinner will feature a violin solo by Barbara Schultz, a duet by Melva Niles and Flossita Badger, a piano solo by Andra Tegelberg and the vocal trio of Barbara Slickman, Adele Weiss and Miss Schultz, and Lorraine Gay, accompanist.

Chorus pins will be presented to the following: Nina Barron, Edla Jane Boggs, Josie Culp, Geraldine De Groot, Marguerite Dumont, Virginia Franz, Lorraine Gay, Anita Geiger, Jacquelyn Glessner, La Vern Harbison, Lorraine Hedman, Margaret Holiday, Betty Jorgensen, Rosalie Koenigsberg, Carol Kripp, Jeanne Lash, Alice Leong, Lamarr Lewis, Marjorie Martin, Patricia McCormick, Melva Niles, Dorothy North, Myrtle Pietschmann, Florine Rhea, Lois Ruegg, Helen Schiavone, Barbara Schultz, Genevieve Silva, Barbara Slickman, Agnes Spouse, La Verne Spring, Andra Tegelberg, Adele Weiss, Henriette Wilby, Gertha Williams and Mary Yarger.

Chorus officers for next semester are Adele Weiss, manager, and Miss Schultz, secretary.

Music Program Friday To Be Semester's Last

Last music program of the semester open to the college will be presented Friday at 1 o'clock in Room 100, according to Flossita Badger, music instructor.

Helen Wheeler, outstanding student pianist, will give her last performance before transferring to the University of California. Two vocal soloists, Adele Weiss and Geraldine DeGroot, and Lorraine Gay, accompanist, are also on the program.

Although planned primarily for History of Music 30a students, the performance is open to any student or faculty member interested in hearing it, Miss Badger said.

Passing The Buck

By Henry P. Buckingham

February 1, 1945

TO write a column predicting the future of Henry Wallace would definitely be foolish. To say that Wallace's future will be serene and peaceful would really be going off the deep end. There are, however, some definite conclusions that may be drawn regarding the current Wallace-Jones Senate upheaval.

Henry Wallace is far from being the apple of the southern Democrats' eye. To be more explicit, we might say that he is the worm in the apple as far as the South is concerned.

To this block of southerners add all the conservative Democrats, those who are not New Dealers but have strung along just to keep the party intact. These conservatives would like to see, in 1948, a quiet, submissive gent on the throne. The southerners have many a local boy they could dust off and nominate.

Wallace first climbed onto the wagon in 1936 when he signed a few million dollars worth of checks and played 10-0-Win with the farmers. He swung the farm states into line against Landon, which in itself was quite fortunate.

For this deed Wallace was Knighted, in 1940, with the Vice-Presidential nomination. Henry, who, contrary to popular and accepted opinion, is nobody's fool, already had visions of being the 33rd President. While all this was going on, Sid Hillman and all the other boys with Red paint on their fingers hove into sight.

Wallace switched from being the farmers' roulette wheel to become an extreme left winger of the CIO. He saw, with the CIO as a booster, all kinds of possibilities. Unfortunately for Henry, the conservatives weren't asleep. In the Democratic Convention of 1944 Wallace was, by the master surgeon, knifed in the back.

For awhile Henry was gloomy. Could his world be tumbling about him? But no. One spark barely burned: Henry fanned it with all kinds and sorts of campaign speeches for the boys who had so neatly inflicted a wound upon him. For this act of heroism-under-fire-while-wounded Wallace received not the Purple Heart but a promise of appointment. Any appointment. The spark flared into a fire with limitless fuel.

Of course, Secretary of Commerce is the most likely spot for a man with political ambitions. As Secretary of Commeree, Wallace would have power to give away all kinds of door prizes to the little business men. Wallace realizes that the farmers are no longer behind him, but with war-time prosperity have switched to the Republican party . . . as evidenced in the last election. Also Wallace knows that the CIO and friends gained by handouts are the only ones who will put him up for nomination.

Aside from the seriousness of the office and the responsibility that goes with it, the died-in-the-wool Democrats know what kind of a candidate Wallace would make, and are they scared!

Peace . . For Japan's Economic Rulers?

WITH the Russian forces already deep inside eastern Germany and the American armies continually battering the western borders of the Reich, an earlier conclusion of hostilities may be expected in contrast to the bleak prospect of last month's disastrous break-through.

An early capitulation of the Nazis would release critically required allied troops and materials for the struggle in the Pacific.

This additional strength in men and supplies would help shorten the fight against Japan and could also influence certain individuals in Nippon to sue for a premature and a somewhat compromising peace.

Whether the United States would ever entertain such a proposal cannot be determined now, yet it is comparatively simple to understand that some Japanese factions will not favor an economic AND a military defeat.

Since Japan opened her doors to Admiral Perry many years ago, four families have monopolized the nation's shipbuilding, munitions, machinery, warehouses, trading corporations, refineries, breweries, engineering firms, insurance concerns and vital banking institutions.

These families, the Mitsui, Mitsubishi, Sumitomo and Yasuda, control the business of Japan.

Most powerful and predominate is the House of Mitsui, which dates back over three centuries. Revolutionizing the system of commerce, the Mitsuis easily became the country's greatest money lenders.

Although Americans are familiar with the Mitsubishi fighter planes, few realize that the family owns the famed Nippon Yusen Kaisha Steamship Company, usually referred to as the NYK line.

The successful Kwantung Army leaders, returning from Manchuria in 1931, crushed the four alliances' political influence and placed the army fascists in governmental positions.

Hopeful of great profit from the proposed war industries, the seemingly respectable "big four" supported the Kwantung.

As the allied invaders near the shores of Japan, it may well be the four families who will attempt to overthrow the Kwantung war-lords and beg for a negotiated peace to salvage the remains of their economic holdings.

Letters To The Editor

RAM'S HORN

● Book Barrel

Editor, The Guardsman:

In The Guardsman of January 31 a front page article criticized the student body's ill treatment of the J. C. book barrel. We should like to call to your attention the fact that the barrel was recently filled to the top by J. C. students during the week of the Alpha Gamma Sigma Book Drive Dance and that it had to be emptied in order to provide room for future contributions.

—J. T. and B. B.

Editor's Note: Although The Guardsman in no way attempted to criticize the successful efforts of Alpha Gamma Sigma, the four-day collection of books during the week of December 29 by a small group of students does not change the fact that for more than a month, the barrel's purpose has been ignored by the Associated Students.

As the story in this paper stated last week, "the only things missing from the white barrel in front of the telephone switchboard are the badly needed and desired books for the Red Cross."

● Discussions

Mr. Bill Brownell,
c/o The Guardsman.

Dear Bill:

In Wednesday's DISCussions, you so aptly expressed my very own sentiments about the way the local station cut short the Esquire Poll Broadcast, that it elicits this short note from me. I had just glutted myself with the offerings of "B. G." and the "Duke," and snuggled down deeper in my Ol' Rockin' Chair, eagerly awaiting "Ol' Satchmo," and then they perpetrated their dastardly deed! I jumped up, and frantically twirled the dial of my radio, but to no avail; my set

DISCussions

THE three hottest selling tunes on the market today, if closely observed, all seem to bear the listing of Ellington as composer. I Didn't Know About You is merely an adaptation of the earlier Ellington composition entitled Sentimental Lady with a new bridge and a couple of new notes thrown in here and there and also some fine Bob Russell lyrics. Almost every big name has recorded it so far.

For the vocal fans, Jo Stafford appears to hold the balance of popularity, while from the arrangement angle Ellington, himself, and Horace Henderson are fighting it out. Henderson was hired to do his arrangement by Lena Horne, who sings the vocal, but Miss Horne had the wisdom to push the musical accompaniment rather than to grab the spotlight for herself. The Horne-Henderson team at this date is enjoying just a slight edge.

The other two melodies are I'm Beginning to See The Light and Don't You Know I Care. Harry James, Johnny Hodges, and a guy named George got together with The Duke on the first. For a very sharp contrast in styles, listen to the Ellington version and then contrast it with the James disc and take your pick. The schools of thought displayed are so different that absolutely no comparison can be made. Just take your pick.

Don't You Know I Care, as done by The Duke, is another fine vehicle featuring Hodges and Hibbler. Again it is simply a choice between two artists as to which has the best recording, for Jo Stafford presents the most intense competition on this one. But doesn't she always?

The first swing tune that Stordahl and Sinatra have recorded since they both left Dorsey is Saturday Night. Lotsa that old spirit. Let's see Tibbett mess with this one when it reaches The Hit Parade. Sided with this is I Dream Of You. Sinatra's pronunciation is almost funny, but still it is convincing because it is so naive. For instance the highlight of the vocal is the way in which he substitutes WONE for WON'T in the verse.

Rum and Coco-Cola in reality have quite a punch, but when the Andrews Sisters mess with it, a cup of tea has just as much kick. You Vex Me, hey. Happy finals.

Block Letter Winners Given Awards Last Night

Twenty-six new members were added to the Block SF society after the intramural boxing tournament last night in the men's gymnasium.

After several weeks of debate, Lee Eisan, faculty adviser, and Bob Seiler, Block SF president, finally decided that because of insufficient funds it was better to present the new members with their awards last night.

Injury blocks were awarded to Vic Pudlowski and Al Wendroff. The manager's blocks were awarded to Ernest Poggi and Ellis Udall.

All of the new members were chosen from the football team because it was the only important sport featured and completed this semester.

WAA Heads Lauded, Will Continue In Office Temporarily

Women's Athletic Association officers of this semester will continue to serve until the WAA is organized next semester.

Commenting on the work of these officers, Bertha Mae Keller and Laurine Bergin, WAA advisers, said:

"We believe it timely to commend the excellent leadership of the WAA officers this fall semester. The officers to receive this commendation are president, Susan Miles, and her able assistants, Millie Jurgevich, Cordella Van Scoyoc, Janice Beanston, and the various club managers. The women have planned the details of playdays and carried out the routine business of WAA in a fine way. They have helped coach the teams."

In further explanation of the recent questionnaire surveying interest in women's sports, Miss Keller pointed out that the typical co-ed desires varied sports, but because of wartime work, they have not been able to come out to practice. Another difficulty in carrying out the usual program is the limited number of instructors, and the fact that many students carry full programs.

Last Friday 12 students from St. John's and 12 from Lincoln High School participated in the Tourney Day, the concluding WAA activity of the semester.

Sixteen Women Awarded WAA Block Letters

For their participation in sports in the Women's Athletic Association, 16 women will receive blocks, Susan Miles, WAA president, said last week.

They are Oida Arnolds, Janice Beanston, Jean Fitter, Virginia Wells, Pauline Emes, Alma Pucci, Vera Dukmus, Irene Brown, Carrolyn Burns, Adeline Olsen, Helen Nelson, Loys Daskarolis, Cordeia Van Scoyoc, Millie Jurgeuvich, Susan Miles and Marion Dobie.

The awards will be given to upperclass students this Friday in the women's gymnasium. Freshman awards will be given at a sports rally which the association plans for orientation week next semester. This delay is required in order to find out if their grades qualify.

Sports next semester will be offered daily from 3 to 4 o'clock, and the gymnasium will be used for the required physical education classes at all other hours.

Playdays will be held on Fridays or week days from 3 to 4:30 o'clock.

Badminton, tennis, ping pong, basketball and softball will be organized to play San Francisco State College in about a month.

First classes at North Texas State Teachers' College, Denton, were held on the second floor of a hardware store.

Two Crucials Face Rams This Week; Quintet Smashes Sacramento 48-46

Two crucial games confront the Ram cagers this week when they make a quick trip tomorrow to the capital to meet the Sacramento five in a return engagement and journey to Modesto Friday to tangle with the Valley Pirates.

These games are crucial because Modesto, Sacramento and this college are the strongest conference teams competing this season.

If the Red and Whites can manage to pull out victories over these two teams the Rams will be almost assured of the Northern California hoop crown. The other teams entered in the race, Menlo and San Mateo, shouldn't give Coach Lee Eisan's hoopsters much trouble, as they are more or less the weak sisters of the conference for this season.

The Rams take to the road once more Wednesday, February 14, for their first game with Menlo, playing in the Menlo gymnasium. They take on Modesto again Friday, February 16, in the Ram gymnasium.

The concluding conference games are scheduled Wednesday, February 21, with Menlo and Friday, February 23, with San Mateo, both games to be played here.

The Rams last week outclassed a fast Sacramento five in the last two minutes of play by virtue of a tip in by guard Bill Calhoun and thereby cinched their second straight conference game by the small margin of two points. The final score was 48 to 46.

The entire game was a slam-bang, action-packed affair, the first half ending with the score 25 to 23 in favor of the Rams.

The Sacramentons started a fast cannonball offensive and played a hard, fast game throughout, but the superior defense of the Eisanmen managed to hold down the hard-driving river city team to give Ratto and Tom Rodman a chance to pile it on for the Rams.

The second half was as close as the first half, neither team having much of an advantage, and up until the final seconds of the game it was anybody's ball game.

Going into the final stages of the game, the score was all tied up at 46 all, when Calhoun, in a scrimmage under the Sacramento basket, managed to tip one in for the winning bucket. From there on in the Rams tied up the Sacramento offense and put the game on ice.

Women Must Attend Last Phys. Ed. Class Meetings

Women students are required to attend the last meetings of the physical education classes Wednesday, February 7, and Thursday, February 8 (rain or shine), to check in equipment and to empty lockers.

If any student needs a recheck in health or medical advice, it will be possible for her to see Dr. Alice Potter Thursday, from 1 o'clock to 4, February 8, physical education instructors said.

Women Cagers Join City League Tournament

Participation of the college Women's Athletic Association in a basketball tournament conducted by San Francisco Women's Recreation League was assured last week by WAA president, Susan Miles.

Women who have signed up for practice are Jean Fitter, Pauline Imes, Ouida Arnolds, Virginia Wells, Janice Beanston, Loys Daskarolis, and Susan Miles. Others who are interested in the tourney may sign up with Bertha Mae Keller, WAA adviser, or Miss Miles.

Practice will be held once a week in the Girls' High School gymnasium, and Mrs. G. Beanston will act as coach. Teams will play against other schools, and possibly Women's Service Units from Treasure Island.

At the end of the competition an award or trophy is expected to be given to the winning team.

Lambs Knock Sacramento Juniors 29 To 26

The college basketeers had a field day when they took on Sacramento last week, and even the Lambs, the junior varsity, came through with a win.

Theirs was a hard fought game also, and the outcome was in doubt until the last few minutes of the game, when Bud Fratessa sunk a shot to give the Lambs the victory by three points, the final score being 26 to 29.

Because of pressing business, Coach Lee Eisan was unable to arrive early enough to take care of the lightweight game, and Charles Dusio, janitor of the men's gymnasium, took over Eisan's duties for the Lambs, bringing them their first conference victory.

Legions Conceded Win In Intra Basketball

The Legions have finally been conceded the intra-mural basketball crown by virtue of four straight wins. Original plans had called for five rounds of play with each team playing four games and drawing a bye for one of the rounds.

Since every teams with the exception of the Legions has lost at least one game, however, the fifth round has been cancelled.

In the round which was played last week the Beta Tau entry scrapped out a win over the Beta Phi team by a score of 18 to 13. At the same time the Legions were salting away their championship by defeating the Chinese Club by a score of 32 to 27.

'Cosmopolitan Society' Selected By Intern'l Group

The recently organized college International group voted to adopt the name, "Cosmopolitan Society," officially at the last general meeting to be held this semester.

Details as to the requirements for membership were discussed. It was agreed that membership should be divided into active and inactive categories. Only the active members will be able to participate in the voting for election of officers.

According to the ratified constitution, elections will ordinarily be held preceding the last fortnight of the semester. Because of the impending finals, however, it was deemed necessary to postpone them until the beginning of next semester.

In preparation for the Cosmopolitan Society's first meeting, to be held within two weeks after the opening of the new semester, Bill Schlager was elected chairman.

Schlager announced that the policy of unrestrictive membership would be vigorously followed next semester, adding that a special effort would be made to gain the interest of freshmen.

Schlager went on to say that he and his committee hope to present a speaker who will lecture on a timely subject at the first meeting.

Announcement and details of programs planned by the society will be announced over the public address system and through The Guardsman.

Your Books Provide Overseas Hospitality

Because reading a book from your living room shelf is the nearest a combat soldier overseas may approach your mode of living, giving him a book is making him your guest for an hour or so while he relaxes from the business of war.

So say the sponsors of the White Barrel, the San Francisco Boy Scout Council, who have placed this container conspicuously in front of the college telephone switchboard.

As a matter of such long-distance hospitality, the council urges students to give good books to men overseas.

I heartily concur with you on people who prefer Courtney to Bob Crosby. I used to sit up to all hours taking it in while Bob and his boys whooped it up, and just about break my legs getting to the radio to turn off Del. You make mention that Van Johnson will croon in his next picture. Modern Helen Of Troy

By Henry Buckingham

Although she launched only one ship, Miss Barbera Querg might easily rival the legendary beauty of Helen of Troy. As shown in the above photograph, Miss Querg, who is a student in the business division of the college, is poised to smash a bottle of champagne across the bow of the S. S. Sea Beaver, which recently slid down the ways at Western Pipe and Steel.

Through the kind effort of Edward W. Larson (Placement Director of the college who secured invitations), The Guardsmen staff will witness the launching of the S. S. Sea Jumper today at noon.

The S. S. Sea Jumper is a Class C 3 cargo vessel Liberty ship. The ship, under the sponsorship of Mrs. Earl C. Elliott, will be side-launched. Western Pipe and Steel, located in South San Francisco, boasts the largest facilities for side launching in the country. Complete story of the launching of the 10,000 ton, 496 foot vessel will be published in the first issue of The Guardsmen next semester.

Volunteer Gardeners Wait For The Weather

"Can't get rid of that Jack Frost" was the wail along Hello Walk last week as 16 volunteer students still waited the lifting of fog and cold before planting varied-colored geraniums that should bloom on the campus by spring.

The volunteers are counting on planting early this month, if possible. They will work under the supervision of John R. Herman and Henry Schrumpf of the faculty.

Through Dean Margaret Dougherty and faculty adviser Harry Nelson, these additional seven have volunteered to help nine others who previously signed up: Florence Ward, Ramona Pillman, Lorraine Hanabar, Gwen Slovenko, Arabelle Smith, Rosalyn Tuska, Anita Morholt.

Returning Students Need Not Vacate Lockers

Students who are returning to the college next semester need not vacate their lockers; however, the ruling of three in a locker will still prevail, according to Edward H. Redford, head counselor of the college.

Redford suggested that students who are sharing their lockers with someone who will be leaving at the end of this semester, get a friend or someone else to team up with them, because all lockers will be checked at the end of the semester and new students will be put in to all available locker space.

Purdue University has revived an old regulation calling for cash fines for persons who walk on the campus grass.

ments constituted the major upset of the elections. Controversy had raged over the class officer amendment which was overwhelmingly favored, while little had been said concerning the second amendment which merely intended the combination of two literally synonymous offices.

Book Exchange Will Reopen Monday Under WSS Auspices

Reopening of the Book Exchange beginning next Monday was announced last week by the Women's Service Society, exchange sponsor. It will be conducted in the check room next to the bank on the main floor from 11 to 12:30 and 3 to 3:30 o'clock.

Students wishing to sell books will name their price and leave the books at the exchange office, Sue Miles, service society president, said. Those wishing to buy books may request them, and if the books meet with their approval, they may purchase them at the amount specified by the seller.

An entirely non-profit organization, the society has served students several semesters since its inception six years ago. For about a year inactive, the group agreed to conduct the exchange again this semester at the request of students.

No announcement was made at this time as to how long in the new semester the exchange will remain open.

Newman Club Charter Approved By Ex-Council

With barely enough members attending the meeting to constitute a quorum, the Executive Council last week administered one of its final official acts by approving the charter of the Newman Club.

Bob Bisio, president of the Associated Students, commented that the organization had not completed its full membership until a short time ago, making it impossible for the group to submit its charter and meet the deadline set by the Club Advisory Board.

"Keep Up The Society" Is The Wish Of Hotel And Restauranters In Service

By Priscilla Shaw

Word comes from Africa, Greenland, South Pacific, Italy and all points on the compass from the college alumni to "keep up the society."

The society is the Hotel and Restaurant Society which consists now of the one active member enrolled here. This society, however, has some 100 members scattered all over the world. Corporal Raymond Forbus, from Hugo, Oklahoma, is the sole member left to carry on the society.

Corporal Forbus is attached to the Mare Island Hospital and he is attending the college under the Vocational Rehabilitation Act. He spent nearly 34 months in the South Pacific in the Marine Corps, where he was wounded.

The Hotel and Restaurant Society has been locally inactive since the Merchant Marines have become the college culinary artists. But the alumni were most enthusiastic when they heard Corporal Forbus wanted to become a member now. Letters from alumni all over the world are encouraging the Corporal to keep the society going until they get home again.

Before the war the society was a semi-social organization, and it provided social life for students interested in hotel and restaurant work. It also provided contacts for jobs after graduation.

Although technically listed as inactive, in a most unique way it is one of the most active of organizations. Secretary Claire Lippert once a month mails a mimeographed bulletin to members of the society now in the services all over the world.

These members write in telling of their experiences and excerpts from their letters form the nucleus of each bulletin. All copy is submitted to censorship authorities before being mailed out.

Corporal Forbus may not have a hard time deciding who is going to be president of the society, and business meetings may be boring when he talks to himself, but he can say he is "keeping up the society."

Gilbert, Sullivan Program Tomorrow

Enrollment Hits 1409 Mark; Signup Books Due Today

Wartime registration figures had reached a new high last week when 1409 students enrolled. Figures were not compiled yet to show numbers of new and returning students respectively.

Entering students who registered last Tuesday, February 30, will file their registration books completely and properly filled out in the college library today, J. P. Mohr, registrar, warned this week.

Any students wishing to drop a course after the book has been filed must obtain the proper change-of-program slip at the registrar's office, have it signed by the instructor in the class that he wishes to change, and then secure the approval of his adviser.

Last day for the filing of petitions for graduation, and for removal of incompletes from previous semester with grades higher than D is Monday, March 19.

Registration Still Open For Evening Courses

Evening courses under college auspices are now being held at the Everett School building, Church between 16th and 17th Streets, from 7 to 10 p.m., Mary Jane Learnard, assistant registrar, announced last week. Registration is still open.

College credit is given for all work satisfactorily completed, and the courses are open to high school graduates and to other persons beyond 18 years of age.

Courses offered are as follows: Anthropology 21b. (4 units), Business Administration 26a. (3 units), Chemistry 60 (4 units), Economics 40 (3 units), Economics 41a (1½ units), Economics 42b (2 units), English A (2 units), English 9b (2 units), English 30 (2 units), Floriculture 80a (2 units), French 21 (4 units), Gardening (2 units), Geology 22 (3 units), History 37a (3 units), Mathematics 21a (3 units), Physics 22a (3 units).

Political Science 7a (3 units), Psychology 7 (2 units), Semitics 21a (1½ units), Slavic Language 21b (3 units), Sociology 21a (3 units), Spanish 21 (4 units), Spanish 22 (4 units), Speech 21a (3 units), Speech 21b (3 units).

The Everett School building may be reached by taking the J or 22 car to the building, the K, L or M car to Market and Church Streets, or the 33 bus to Church and 18th Streets.

Noted Savoy Company Will Sing Popular Opera Excerpts In Campus Library At 1

Although the famed composer team might have shown surprise at the studious setting for their immortal operettas, the Savoy Opera Company will present an hour program of Gilbert and Sullivan selections in the college library tomorrow at 1 o'clock.

Currently appearing at the Bush Street Theater, the Savoy artists will sing excerpts from the popular and colorful scores of Pirates of Penzance, HMS Pinafore, Ruddigore and Patience.

Because the library's seating capacity is limited, Dean Edward E. Sandys suggested that the students and faculty arrive on time.

Four classes that regularly meet Thursdays at 1 o'clock will not be dismissed, J. Paul Mohr, registrar, emphasized last week.

Flossita Badger, college music director, invited the Savoy Company to appear on this campus, since the group has been giving performances for universities and other organizations in the bay area. Dean Sandys completed the arrangements here.

Narrator for the program will be Ross van Nibroc, who was formerly stage manager of the D'Oyly Carte Company. He has also been associated with the Stratford-on-Avon Shakespearean Players in England.

Singing Gilbert and Sullivan many times on Broadway, opera star Virginia Blair will be featured tomorrow as lead soprano.

Baritone Marsten Argall, hailed as San Francisco's most distinguished singer and star of New York and Europe, will also participate in the musical activities.

Youngest member of the Savoy is contralto Claramae Turner, who has soloed with this city's symphony and opera. Accompaniment will be provided by pianist George Cory, assistant conductor of the company.

College Band Needs Additional Players

Although the first turnout of the college orchestra was pronounced "promising if meagre" by Madison Devlin, orchestra director, several important instruments are lacking, and additional musicians for those already represented would be most welcome.

Students may still add the course to their programs, and, if necessary, may wait until their courses are more permanently arranged, Devlin pointed out.

The class, offering 1 unit toward graduation, is held at 11 o'clock Tuesday and Thursday in Room 200, and requires no prerequisite. However, approval of the director must be obtained.

Washington Sends Most Low Frosh

By Henry Buckingham

George Washington High School again this semester sent the most students to the college. There are 49 entering students from Washington.

Lowell dropped from second place to a three way tie for third with Balboa and Lincoln. Second place honors belong to Polytechnic. Poly followed close on the heels of Washington with 46 students.

Galileo is fifth with 33; Mission sixth with 29, and Commerce seventh with 28. Girls' High furthered the effort with a grand total of 4.

San Francisco private and Parochial schools sent a total of 26 new students.

East Bay schools repeated last semester's record by sending 105 students.

Miscellaneous (schools other than local or East Bay) sent a total of 63 students.

These figures include only those registering through last Thursday.

WSS Exchange Will Continue Through March 9 Every Day

The Book Exchange, located on the first floor corridor next to the college bank, will be continued this semester under the sponsorship of the Women's Service Society.

It will be open from 11 a.m. to 1:15 p.m. every day until Friday, March 9, Susan Miles, WSS president, announced.

Anyone who wants to buy used books or sell their old books may do so at the exchange, Miss Miles explained.

All students wanting to sell their old books should set their own price and bring them to the exchange as soon as possible. They will receive a stub to verify their ownership of the book.

On a bulletin to be posted outside of the exchange will be listed the books that have been sold and the books that are for sale, Miss Miles said.

The exchange is conducted as an entirely non-profit organization offered to give students the best possible advantage in disposing of books no longer needed and in extending the usefulness of college texts.

Standing Room Only

Eager students find the library is not only a place for hectic registration days or study, as they overflow into the ether. These Gilbert and Sullivan enthusiasts anxiously await the performance of the Savoy Opera Company. As demonstrated in Douglas Hutchings' sketch, admission will be one registration card. Time, 1 p.m. tomorrow.

Passing The Buck

By Henry P. Buckingham

LIKE the "Saucy Little Bird on Nellie's Hat," Jimmy Byrnes has once more had the last chirp.

A midnight curfew is upon us. Our office boys in Washington have once again tried to explain to us that there is a war on. They are certain that we have scarcely heard the news.

As far as a fuel shortage in some areas is concerned, the curfew may certainly be necessary. It doesn't even take a successful Math 51 student to figure out the joke about manpower.

Let's take the case of Diogenese Zip, a waiter in Ye Old Home Brew Night Club. Young Diogenese has been working from 4 in the afternoon until 2 in the morning, one hour off for lunch. Along comes Joyful Jimmy and says that our hero is wasting two good hours after 12 midnight. Jimmy then adds that he has taken ten thousand Diogenese Zips and found that twenty thousand man hours are lost each day.

True but impractical. Diogenese has been working the two hours over time to get financially ahead. Now Ye Old Home Brew Club is closed after midnight. So what? Diogenese will not go to work in an essential industry for two hours every night. Diogenese will go to bed two hours earlier and two hours poorer.

THROWING THE BUCK AWAY

France has always been a good place for Americans to spend money. Today Americans, American soldiers, are openly and admittedly gypped.

The new, would-be Joan of Arc, Charles De Gaulle, arranged the whole deal. The franc, which is worth a fifth of a cent, is the most popular of the so-called "French Money."

American soldiers are given fifty francs for every American dollar. That means that they are paid, in terms of dollars and cents, ten cents for every dollar. A soldier receiving fifty dollars a month actually has the enormous sum of five dollars to spend when he is paid in francs.

The rate of exchange to others is two hundred and fifty francs for every American dollar. This would give GI's twenty-five dollars a month instead of five. Still a gyp but almost a fifty per cent better gyp, in favor of us.

The franc has, as does all money put through the tortures of conquest-and-liberation, dropped to the very bottom of value. Inflation has caused a sad France as far as monetary values are concerned. However, there is no good reason why American soldiers should be made to pay for France's misfortune.

The wise French are putting all they can into the safe and sound American dollar. In comparison to the franc, the dollar has fluctuated very little in value. In all probability it will not fluctuate to a great extent.

Do we have to pay through the nose all the time?

Class Presidents

ELECTIONS next week will determine the officers of the Freshman and Sophomore classes. The president of each group will discover an added responsibility among his numerous obligations.

After many months of heated debate last semester, the Executive Council wisely decided that the class leaders should compose the Social Committee under the Associated Student Vice-President.

Classes technically are separate and distinct organizations from that of the Associated Students.

Certain factions, however, were not in complete agreement with the satisfactory procedure and thereby suggested legislation in which the four presidents could grasp positions and votes on the student council.

Meeting strong and justifiable opposition, this proposal was defeated, and the present compromise was adopted.

Newly elected class presidents will be officially authorized to supervise and regulate all the social activities for this campus.

Since the college's general welfare should be placed above political ambition, old grievances must not interfere with the Social Committee's efficient administration of its duties.

Red Cro

STUDENTS of this educational institution are fully conscious of the courageous and humane work performed by the American Red Cross.

Through many blood donor drives, the Red Cross has sent ten million pints of blood overseas to the armed forces since the inauguration of the service in 1941.

Hospital units, clubs, rest camps, recreational plans and disaster relief agencies are widely known to every soldier, sailor, and marine in the various battle zones.

Red Cross programs such as the first aid and nursing courses also play an important role in the war activities on the home front.

Tomorrow opens the 1945 War Fund campaign in which the Red Cross will attempt to raise at least two hundred million dollars. This request for contributions is certainly a direct challenge to all Americans.

With a figure set at more than two million dollars, San Francisco must not fall short of its quota as it did in last year's urgent appeal for funds. The goal must be met!

Letters To The Editor

RAM'S HORN

• Busmen's Holiday
Editor, The Guardsman:

I am a new freshman and I am completely happy and at home. The second morning that I came to school, the busses did not run; consequently, many students, myself included, were late to classes. The reason for not running the busses is that it was Washington's birthday.

Could you, by any chance, use the power of the press to contact Mr. Washington, who I believe is an executive of the bus line, and inform him that while his birthday may be an important date to him, that to the students it is highly inconvenient and it would be greatly appreciated if he could arrange to celebrate his natal date on weekends?

In that way students might get to classes on time, and Mr. Washington might still have his birthday. —J. Z.

• Cafeteria Praised
Editor, The Guardsman:

A great deal can be said concerning the food in the cafeteria. On entering this college in October, I was totally disgusted with the food the students were expected to eat—AND—I was not the only person to complain bitterly about it.

As the semester materialized, slowly the food took a turn for the better. Now I believe most of us can say much about the great

DISCussions

BEGINNING as if it would lead to the apex of an anti-climax of a Boris Karloff dramatic reading, Benny Goodman's recording of My Old Flame is rapidly attaining much popularity.

Eddie Sauter did the arrangement which features two of the most exciting sax licks ever recorded. A lesson in the dynamics which can be obtained from popular music concludes this orchestration. Cootie Williams is the instructor of this lesson. Although Peggy Lee sets a sincere mood with her sophisticated warbling, it is almost impossible to understand her wording.

The Victor Album, A Duke Ellington Panorama, contains eight sides which follow the Duke's progress from his early days to the present time. The disc that displays his current style has Warm Valley on one side and Dusk on the other. Hodges' slurring as on Sentimental Lady, is spotlighted on the first, while Rex Stuart's imaginative cornet is heard on the latter. Both are typical.

Incidentally, the Duke's recent appearance here was a disappointment to most, for he was strictly commercial. However, it did afford San Francisco a chance to see and hear the fastest rising vocalist of the day, Al Hibbler. His attack is savage, almost primitive. In short, he is a fine relief from the smooth, schooled style that most current crooners now use. He is at his best on I Ain't Got Nothin' But the Blues.

POLICY

Lately there has been some criticism made of this column because it has refused to review and preview all of the latest releases. Since the majority of these latest releases feature such DANDIES as Russ Morgan's There Goes That Song Again, and Crosby's Three Caballeros, and Spivak's Too-Ra-Loo-Ra-Loo-Ral, and Rum and Coca-Cola by anyone and so on, the question arises, are they really worth it?

The policy, as it has been in the past, will continue to be one of pointing out the lesser known but finer, more imaginative discs which are seldom heard. Also this column will continue, not to write down to the reader but rather to point a way to the listening of more advanced and creative works. Okay?

•Alpha Gamma Sigma: The following members helped the counselors with registering new students: Lois Robinet, Beth Sutton, Marilyn Zito, Barbara Mercer, Margaret Kay, Connie Trigonis, Gwen Slovenko and Tom Tinney.

Doris Henried, former student here and member of AGS, was recently elected to Phi Beta Kappa at the University of California.

Vienna born Miss Henried, who also attended the college for American girls in Istanbul, Turkey, was, while at the University of California, president of the Honor Students, vice president of Pi Delta Phi, Upper Division French Society and member of Alpha Mu Gamma, Lower Division Foreign Language Honor Society.

•Beta Tau: New officers are President, Al Gorbenko; Vice-president, Collin Tooley; Secretary, Vic Pudlowski; Treasurer, Bill Munday; Custodian, Jack White, and Historian, Charlie Gross.

Beta Tau plans a group donation at the Red Cross Blood Bank tomorrow. An informal dinner and smoker will be held the same evening.

•Chinese Club: A freshman reception will be held this Friday at 8 p.m. at the St. Mary's auditorium. New officers are President, Joseph Yew; Vice-president, Adeline Wong; Secretary, Mildred Lowe, and Publicity Chairman, John Chow.

Mary Millett recently passed the traditional box of candy to announce her engagement to Robert Montgomery, member of Tri Epsilon and Guardsman reporter, now in the Army Air Corps.

To celebrate the end of finals, a party was held last week at the home of Barbara Steinbeck.

•Forum Club: There will be a meeting this Friday at 2251 Jackson street. The topic of discussion will be, "Can the government provide 60,000,000 jobs without endangering our democratic system." All are invited to attend.

•Music Club: A meeting will be held on Wednesday, March 7, at the home of Melva Niles, 1282 24th Avenue. All new students are invited to attend.

Men Must Get Locks To Have Gym Lockers

Men's gymnasium lockers may be obtained by bringing a combination lock to Lee Eisan, physical education instructor. Eisan said that he would appreciate students presenting their locks to him at the gymnasium as soon as possible.

The student store is offering appropriate combination locks for one dollar; however, equally suitable locks will be accepted. Elsan stressed the fact that no inferior type will be allowed. This edict is for the students' own protection.

Chapel Of Oaks Quintet Hits Ram Cage Squad 39 To 31; Last Conference Game Against San Mateo Tonight In Gym

Led by forward Jack Abel, the Chapel of the Oaks quintet from across the bay romped to an easy 39 to 31 victory over an offensively impotent college five last Wednesday night in the Kezar pavilion.

Handicapped by the loss of Bill Calhoun, top flight Ram guard, the San Francisco team suffered an additional blow when guard Frank Ratto incurred an ankle injury during the opening moments of the contest. Being unable to cope with Abel's devastating long shots, the Rams found themselves trailing by a score of 22 to 17 at half-time.

In the second half it was Abel again leading the way, ably assisted by teammate Joe Thurston. Dick Franks, Pete Milat and Tom Rodman instigated a Ram rally late in the second half but it fell far short of its goal.

Abel and Thurston captured the high point honors for the evening with 17 and 9 points respectively. Scoring honors for the losers were shared between forward Franks and guard Milat with 8 points each.

A rejuvenated Ram quintet is expected to take the floor against San Mateo Junior College tonight at 8:15 in the men's gymnasium, with the return of Calhoun and Ratto to the lineup. With these men back, the Ram five should be more than a match for the San Mateo quintet.

In the last contest the San Francisco team had no trouble in trimming San Mateo by a score of 47 to 32. This will be the Rams' last conference game.

A game to be played with St. Mary's is being arranged for some time in the future at a tentative date.

Turnout Decides WAA Existence

—Jeopardized by the lack of enthusiasm last semester, the Women's Athletic Association's continued existence depends on the attendance of women at a meeting tomorrow at 1 o'clock in Room 136, Bertha Mae Keller, WAA adviser, and Susan Miles, WAA president, warned last week.

All women who plan to join the WAA this semester must attend this meeting. Program for this semester will be outlined and plans will be made, Miss Miles promised, provided enough women are interested in each of the varied sports.

A group of women in the college have organized a basketball team and have entered the City Recreation League. This group is not sponsored by the WAA or the college, but all women interested may see Miss Miles for details.

Play days will not be held on Fridays this semester, because of the poor attendance last semester. Plans can be made to have them held on any other day at 3, or they may be scheduled on Thursday at 1 o'clock. No activities will be held after 4 o'clock, Miss Keller said.

Most sports will be open daily except Friday for experienced players, Miss Keller emphasized, and equipment can be checked out only at 3 o'clock.

Women Who Miss Health Exams Won't Get Grades

All women are required to take health examinations. Those entering late should see Laurine Bergin, women's physical educational instructor, for appointments.

Any women who have failed to keep appointments must have new appointments made immediately, or semester grades will be withheld, Mrs. Bergin warned.

Six Bouts Fought In Intra Boxing Finals

Before a crowd of some 300, six bouts featured the intramural boxing finals held last semester. Results were as follows:

Charles Abern, 125, won over Cliff Glicksman, 124; Jim Coleman, 120, over Robert Lee, 120; Charles Allen, 130, in a draw with Dave Valentine, 135; Henry Boone, 156, over Ray Meier, 154; Jack White, 185, over Bill Nightingale, 205; Chuck Shea, 118, over Colin Tooley, 115.

Al Gorbenko New Intra Athletic Board Director

Al Gorbenko, letterman in football and basketball, was named new student director of intramural sports last week by Bob Mills, Associated Student president.

To assist Gorbenko and act as members of the Intramural Athletic Board, Mills appointed William Tamford, Henry Boone and Jack White.

Basis of the intramural sports program is individual and group competition, Gorbenko said. The latter includes such activities as basketball, baseball and volleyball, Clubs in particular are urged to enter the competition. Tennis, badminton and ping pong are also being offered for those students preferring a sport of individual skill.

Al Gorbenko

But all women interested may see Miss Miles for details.

The entire program is under the supervision of Jack Brady, men's physical education instructor. Prizes will be awarded to the leading contenders, and the Executive Council has accepted responsbility for obtaining them.

Gorbenko urged both individuals and clubs to take advantage of this program and sign up with Brady in the men's gymnasium as soon as possible.

Eisan Predicts Ram Nine Conference Standout

With at least eight veterans from last year's squad definitely signed up, Coach Lee Eisan predicted last week that the Ram baseball team would be a "conference" standout.

Signups are continuing through this week, he added, and a schedule is expected to be drawn up soon.

The eight veterans are led by diminutive Chuck Shea, second baseman and Rally Commissioner. Others are Ernie Poggi, catcher; Don Grant, third baseman; Henry Boone, shortstop; Frank Ratto, fielder and star of the Ram cage squad, and George Fabian.

Much is expected from John Lopeman, key pitcher, and Bob Ghiorzi, team mate of Fabian, in scoring Ram football touchdowns.

Tentative games have been scheduled with the University of California varsity, Eisan said, and Modesto Junior College. Dates are indefinite.

Five new curricula in business have been introduced at Rhode Island State College to qualify men and women for war industries and the armed services.

Mills Statement Urges Cooperation, Support And Spirit

"Upon taking office in this college, it was your government's expressed purpose to seek and find that very intangible thing, college spirit. It is about our campaign in that direction that I write to you today. There are a number of things that are necessary for the achievement of this much needed spirit. I should like to tell you of them.

"First, and most important, we need your cooperation and support. College government is not a closed corporation operated by a chosen few. It is a public utility for use by all. Each student owes something to his government. In return, college will pay him dividends in proportion to what he puts in. If each student on this campus will start this semester and complete this semester with the intention to support the college and its functions in every way, we will all leave this college not only with an education, but with a warm feeling of having enjoyed campus life as it was intended to be; as it is in the larger colleges.

"In talking with various students, I have heard of a number of obstacles that stand in the way. I fully realize what these obstacles are and what a problem it is to hurdle them. It means a great deal of work on the part of your government. Perhaps, it means some disappointments. If college spirit can be gained as a result, we are very willing to take on the task. All that we ask of you is your support. In the coming semester suppose that we put aside the many arguments that have been voiced and, instead, view each event that arrives as a step toward our common goal.

"During this semester, there will be bigger and better student events. College dances will be the best that can be provided. There will be more and better rallies in which more students take part. Our athletic teams will continue to have the success that they have enjoyed in the past. Many of you would have been surprised if you had attended the games last year. This year, let us all turn out for everything.

"We intend, during the coming year, to publicize student affairs in a better manner. You now have a President's Cabinet and a Publicity Committee for the purpose of establishing better communications between the government and the students.

"Each student must take a larger part in the government. Come to the council meetings; voice your opinions; if you have suggestions to make, tell them to your student officers or leave them in Room 111; and, please, get to know your fellow students. You will find them to be very interesting people. You will find that college spirit already exists If only needs nourishment."

Council Appoints Don Giannini Yell Leader

Good Will Is Theme Of "Get Together"

Making a special effort to promote friendliness between members and non-members of clubs as well as freshmen within the college, two social organizations are sponsoring a spaghetti dinner and dance to be held at Sigmund Stern Grove on Friday, March 9, from 4 to 8 p.m.

According to Maggie Rogers, chairman of the organizing committee, the need for a "get together" to acquaint members of clubs and societies with each other, as well as with non-members and the incoming freshmen, has been recognized.

Miss Rogers declared that the event would be vigorously publicized and added the hope that there would be a great deal of enthusiasm, and above all, a good turnout.

Because of the rather limited space at Sigmund Stern, Miss Rogers announced that attendance will be by ticket only. The nominal cost of each ticket will be 55 cents to cover expenses. They will be on sale until the day preceding the event.

Details of where the tickets will be sold will be announced later.

Music Curriculum Will Include College Choir

A Cappella Choir will again be included in the college music curriculum, Flossita Badger, choir director, said this week.

Absence of a choir last semester was due to a lack of male voices.

There is a great need for men, especially tenors, again this semester, Miss Badger declared. Those students interested in signing up for the class, which meets at 11 o'clock on Tuesdays and Thursdays, may apply for auditions in Room 204 at that time.

The Women's Chorus is off to a splendid start, Miss Badger said. New officers of the chorus are Adele Weiss, manager; Pat McCormick, assistant manager; Barbara Schultz, secretary.

A chorus tea, in honor of the new members, is scheduled for Sunday, March 11, at Miss Weiss' home.

Gertrude Land Will Be Forum Magazine Editor

Gertrude Land, prominent member of the Forum Club, has recently been chosen this semester's editor of the Forum Magazine, annual literary publication of the college.

Encouraged by the success of last year's magazine, and by the recent increase in the size of the student body, Miss Land urged that all students take an active interest in the college publication.

Contributions of poetry or prose of not more than 1500 words, as well as art contributions, will be accepted from now until the deadline.

Students who have material they believe appropriate, should leave their work with advisers Dorothy Mercer in Room 251 and John Gerstung in Room 237, or with the editor of the magazine.

March 7 Deadline For Class Officers

Deadline for the filing of petitions for the four college class offices is Wednesday, March 7, Betty E. Lee, secretary of the Associated Students, announced last week.

Offices now open for candidates are president, vice-president and secretary, of the high sophomore, low sophomore, high freshman and low freshman classes.

An election rally to be held Thursday, March 8, at 12 o'clock in the cafeteria, will open the election proceedings, at which time the prospective candidates will state their platforms.

Actual voting will take place Friday, March 9. Students will be asked to show their Associated Student cards before they are permitted to vote, Miss Lee warned.

Hello Dance Scheduled For March 8 In Cafe

Plans for a Hello Dance to be held Thursday, March 8, at 1 o'clock in the cafeteria were announced last week by Jean Crenshaw, Associated Student vice-president.

Different colored identification cards for each class will be worn all week by the students. The tallies will have spaces for signatures of new and old students and will promote a greater harmony among all students. Plans are being made to have a band for the dance, but as yet it is undecided.

Although complete plans have not yet been arranged, the Low Freshman dance will be held Friday, March 16.

Cosmopolitan Society To Meet In Room 204 Today

Cosmopolitan Society's first meeting this semester will be held today at 12 to 12:30 in Room 204.

Purpose of the society's meeting will be to welcome new members and discuss the forthcoming election of a governing body of officers.

Acting chairman Bill Schlager it is expected will announce the name of a speaker and the topic of a lecture to be presented to all students, in cooperation with the Council for Civic Unity, at a subsequent meeting.

Emphasis was placed by Schlager on the fact that the organization makes no membership restrictions.

The Cosmopolitan Society has as its purpose the promotion of friendliness and understanding among fellowmen.

Lockers To Be Assigned This Friday In Room 148

Assignment of student lockers will begin this Friday at 9:30 in Room 148, Edward H. Redford, head counsellor, said last week.

Women students are expected to apply for assignments to Dean Margaret Dougherty, while men students will apply directly to Room 148. The edict of three to a locker still stands, Redford said.

Lois Robinet Heads Welfare Committee

By prompt action of the Executive Council at the first meeting of the semested last Wednesday, Don Giannini was officially appointed Yell Leader, Bob Mills, president of the Associated Students, announced.

An innovation was introduced this semester with the appointment of a presidential cabinet by Bob Mills. Although such a cabinet was at one time designated in the constitution of the Associated Students, Mills is the first president in several semesters who has created one.

Members of the cabinet include Lloyd Klemp, Lois Robinet, Bob Ghiorzi, Magdalen Rogers and Adeline Wong.

With the officially approved nomination, by the council, of Lois Robinet as chairman of the Welfare Committee, members of the committee who will serve with Miss Robinet will be appointed at her discretion.

Other committees, committee chairmen, and members are as follows: Publicity, Donald Tong, chairman; Douglas Hutchins, Colleen McInerny, Virginia Franz and Frank Reed, members.

Finance, William Nightingale, chairman; other members are to be chosen by Luther Lyon, controller. Election, Ralph Hanson, chairman; Ernest Rubke and Ann Torres, members.

Although several budgets were submitted before the Executive Council, only one of $130 was granted to the men's physical education department.

Alpha Gamma Sigma Will Challenge Pasadena AGS

The Alpha Gamma Sigma honor society of the college has challenged the Pasadena Junior College AGS to participate in a battle of wits on the radio program, "Quiz of Two Cities," KFRC-Mutual.

Should Pasadena accept the challenge, the two teams will appear on the program from 7:30 to 8 p.m. on May 12; Pasadena AGS in the Hollywood studios, and Alpha Gamma Sigma of this college in the KFRC studios here in the city.

Beatrice Baer, president of the college AGS, has received a letter from Stu Wilson, director of the program, saying that he would be happy to arrange for the group if they would comply with a few requirements.

College Organizations Must Submit Budgets

All college organizations were advised last week to submit their semester budgets immediately to Luther Lyon, controller, to insure inclusion of requests in the total funds available.

Budgets must have the approval of organization advisers, Lyon warned, and will be acted upon when the Executive Council convenes.

Lyon also reminded students that the bank will be open daily from 11:45 to 1:30. Students may purchase car tickets, war bonds and stamps there.

Class Officer Petitions Are Due Today; Candidates To Speak In Meetings At 1 Tomorrow; Students Will Vote Friday

With the deadline set today for the filing of petitions for class officers, candidates will speak at meetings in specified rooms at 1 o'clock preceding the Hello Day dance, Bob Mills, president of the Associated Students, announced this week.

Tomorrow, at 1 o'clock, before the Hello Dance, students of the college will be introduced to running candidates who have filed petitions, and offices not contested or filed for will be chosen by open nomination.

Offices now open for candidates are president, vice-president, and secretary of the high sophomore, low sophomore, high freshman, and low freshman classes.

The low freshman class will meet in Room 100, the high frosh class in Room 190; the low sophomore class in room 194, and the high soph class in Room 111, for introduction of candidates.

Actual voting will take place Friday, March 9, in the cafeteria, from 10 a.m. until 2:30 pm. Voting will be by mimeographed ballot, and all students will be asked to present their Associated Student cards before they are permitted to vote, Mills warned.

After much debating, it has been decided that among their other duties, class presidents will be members of the Social Committee this semester.

Enrollment Figures Now Total 1450 Here

Enrollment of regular students is 1450, an increase of approximately 150 over last semester, J. Paul Mohr, registrar, said last week.

Evening classes, which are held in the Everett Junior High School Building, have an enrollment of 600.

Mohr warned that all incompletes from last semester with grades higher than a D, must be removed by Monday, March 19, and that all students planning to graduate at the end of this semester should file petitions in the registrar's office by the same date.

The last day on which students may drop a semester course is Wednesday, April 4.

Madison Devlin Appeals For String Instruments

Although the college orchestra has increased and is even more promising than before, Madison Devlin, orchestra director, stressed the fact musicians of string instruments are badly needed.

Offering one unit towards graduation, the class is held at 11 o'clock Tuesdays and Thursdays in Room 200 and only the consent of Devlin is required.

Council Meets In New Room, Approves Budget

With the second meeting of the Executive Council in its new official meeting place, Room 111, five budgets were passed by the attending members.

First budget on the list was the Social Committee's budget, for $600. This budget will pay for all associated student dances with the exception of the High Soph formal.

The controller's office was awarded 75 dollars for incidental expenses throughout the semester at the request of Luther Lyon.

Dramatics will operate on a total of 100 dollars, while baseball will utilize a maximum of 375 dollars.

The Guardsman was allotted 1750 dollars operating expenses for the semester.

It was definitely decided that the first CAB meeting will be on March 11 in Room 111.

Six members of the council were present. No meeting or business carried on at a meeting is legal unless a quorum of seven are present.

Location of the Associated Student Office has been changed from Room 169 to Room 111 on the south corridor of the first floor because, as Mills revealed, "more space was needed for the Ex-Council meetings, and for other committee functions."

Victory Garden Prizes To Be Awarded In June

In the Victory Garden Contest announced last semester, the original date for the awarding of war bond prizes for the best garden was scheduled for March 1; however, the bad weather has made it necessary for the date to be changed to the latter part of June, Harry Nelson, florticulturist and faculty adviser, announced.

Prizes are to be awarded to the best garden in both the Laguna Honda and the Junior College Community Gardens.

Contestants must be students of the college or adults living in the community of either of the gardens.

Instuctors are present at the gardens every week-end to help those that request their aid. Records must be kept by all gardeners to make an account of their spring production.

Nelson commented that last year the college was given an award for its contribution to the contest.

CAB Will Elect Semester Leaders Tomorrow At 11

Officers for the Club Advisory Board will be elected at a meeting of club representatives tomorrow at 11 o'clock in Room 111, Bob Mills, Associated Student president, announced last week. "All college clubs must have a representative at the meeting," Mills added.

The deadline set by Mills for petitions for club charters is Wednesday, March 14. "Any club failing to submit a petition by the deadline date will not be officially recognized," Mills emphasized.

Blanks which must be filed for petitions may be obtained from Dean Edward E. Sandys.

A college organization receives recognition only after submitting a petition to the CAB, which, upon approval recommends that the Executive Council grant official recognition.

Clubs and societies active last semester are as follows:

Alpha Delta Epsilon, Alpha Theta Epsilon, Alpha Gamma Sigma, Alpha Lambda Chi, Beta Phi Beta, Beta Tau, Bible Study Club, Block SF, Chinese Students' Club, Engineering Club, Epsilon Epsilon Epsilon, Hotel and Restaurant Management Society, Kappa Phi, Music Club, Phi Beta Rho, Theta Tau, and Women's Service Society.

Doug Hutchings, in his cartoon above, has illustrated the agitation and turmoil that usually accompanies the days of class elections. Election of class officers is scheduled for March 9. (See story on this page.)

Clubs Hold Dinner, Dance At Sigmund Stern For Freshmen

Under the sponsorship of two social organizations within the college, a spaghetti dinner and dance will take place this Friday at Sigmund Stern Grove, from 4 to 8 p.m. Because of limited space at the Grove, admission to the Freshman Frolic will be by ticket only. To cover the expenses of the event, the price of each ticket has been set at 55 cents.

Chairman of the organizing committee, Maggie Rogers, declared the purpose of the Frolic will be to "create understanding and friendliness among the social groups and clubs within the college, and to unify them in one common cause, which on this occasion will be to welcome the incoming freshmen."

Emphasizing the necessity for a "get together" to acquaint members, and non-members of college organizations with each other, as well as with the freshmen, Miss Rogers urged all students to attend "with or without escorts." She expressed the hope that there would be a record turnout at the Frolic.

Sale of the tickets will continue in the cafeteria from 11 until 2 o'clock each day, Miss Rogers announced.

Campus Hello Dance Tomorrow At 1:15

Starting the social activities of the semester with the idea of fostering new friendships between freshman and other students will be a Hello Dance to be held tomorrow at 1:15 o'clock in the cafeteria.

Music will be furnished by the newly formed college band which is under the sponsorship of Madison Devlin, orchestra instructor. Among the members are Lorraine Gay, Sid Solomon, and Bob Thurlow.

Different colored identification cards for each class with spaces for signatures will be worn at the dance and candidates for class offices will be introduced during the afternoon.

Plans for the Low Freshman dance to be held March 16 will be announced in the next issue of The Guardsman.

Music Hour To Feature Classical Selections

Scheduled to be played at the next Tuesday music hour, in Room 200 at 9 o'clock, are two arrangements of the Toccata and Fugue in D Minor, Madison Devlin, instructor, announced last week.

One arrangement will feature the Philadelphia Symphony with Stokowski conducting, and the other will be a recital by Biggs at the Harvard University organ.

Passing The Buck

By Henry P. Buckingham

ONE of the newest and perhaps most valuable additions to the college in recent weeks is the installation of the Cosmopolitan Society. Although the society is in the infant stage and has many shortcomings, it gives promise of being a fine example for "non-believers" of congeniality of human beings.

The society officially defines its purpose as the promotion of friendliness and mutual understanding and thereby integration among fellowmen.

Broken down, this means the abolition of national prejudices, religious prejudices and so-called race prejudices. In the college this would apply specifically to students regardless of what organizations they may or may not belong to.

Intolerance is all too frequently acquired with the three "R's." Few dare to admit the shocking prejudices that exist in our country, state, city and more locally, college.

It is the eventual aim of the Cosmopolitan Society, or any society dedicated to such fine work, ultimately to obliterate these local prejudices.

It is the task of the society to educate its members to the futility of racial prejudices and to implant in the minds of these members the necessity for carrying on the "work" once they enter the world as what is often mistakenly called Adults.

Anyone interested in Freedom and Americanism should investigate the potentialities of the Cosmopolitan Society.

OFF THE RECORD

In the last meeting of the Executive Council (which incidentally was altogether unofficial) it was decided (by members present) that Executive Council meetings should be held at 2 o'clock on Mondays.

Time and hour had originally been scheduled for 8 on Thursdays. The Thursday date was more advantageous.

The worst thing about having an Ex-council meeting on a Monday is the fact that the absolute Guardsman deadline is Monday noon. The paper comes out on Wednesday. Therefore, ex-council news, the most important news in the college, will not be released until a week and one half after it is made.

The Guardsman, which reaches all of our almost 1500 students, is the most logical means of communication between students and student government. It is the official organ of the student government. It is only proper and fitting that the ex-council meeting day should in some minute way coincide with the printing schedule of The Guardsman.

Because printers and supplies are hard to get it cannot be The Guardsman that changes, it must be the council.

If the two organizations would work hand in hand, they might get a lot more done than at the present method of action which is civil war.

Transportation

FEW San Franciscans are aware that Northern and Central California newspapers maintain a great interest in this city's affairs, policies and developments.

This is a significantly favorable sign, since the post-war world will surely bring a closer relationship among all local communities.

To increase mutual understanding for San Francisco and its trade area, the Regional Service Committee issued a bulletin concerning rural editorial comment about last year's street car merger.

The committee pointed out that the Stockton Record and other papers were largely interested in the disappearance of the five-cent fare.

As the Record declared with noticeable relief, "Visitors no longer have to know whether the street car they have boarded calls for a nickel or seven cents."

Presenting the cultural point of view on the issue, the Grass Valley Union wistfully stated that "one of the city's cherished traditions had vanished."

While the Lincoln News-Messenger proudly spoke of the "long civic strides forward for San Francisco," a Riverbank publication thought the universal transfer was well worth the loss of three cents.

Generally speaking, the majority of California periodicals favored the unification of the transit system by the voters.

One lone dissenter, however, offered the most welcome and intelligent opinion.

This farsighted paper, the Porterville Record, bravely emphasized "San Francisco's street car tangle suggests the desirability of a campaign ribbon with a star for each successful afternoon voyage down Market street, and a cluster for a voyage between five and six o'clock."

We seriously wonder what the Porterville reporters would write if they ever witnessed the torrent of courageous students pouring forth from an overcrowded Tenth Avenue bus.

Maybe these fearless seekers of education would be awarded an extra citation. They certainly deserve it!

Letters To The Editor

RAM'S HORN

• Class Schedule

Editor, The Guardsman:

Being fully aware that The Guardsman cannot directly influence the administration of the college, I'm nevertheless confident that the publication of this letter may at least cause some remedial discussion of its subject.

I fail to see why except for gym and lab classes, college lets out every day at 2 o'clock. It also passes my understanding why the courses of major importance are offered only in the morning.

Granting that a certain percentage of the students work during the afternoon, I don't see why the rest of the students who do not work part-time, and who could take afternoon courses should be subjected to an arrangement to suit those who do.

Would it not be possible for courses parallel to those offered in the morning to be given in the afternoon? I do not think it is unjustifiable to say that those wishing to, and in a position to take afternoon courses, are entitled to as much consideration as those that work part-time.

—P. A. S.

• What Class Am I?

Editor, The Guardsman:

I am a three-semester student and have been taking an average of 14 units a term.

With the class elections scheduled this Friday, I find it very difficult to determine to which class I actually belong. Since there are not enough units on my record to graduate in the regular four semesters, I know that I am somewhere between high freshman and high sophomore standing.

DISCussions

DURING the past few weeks, all of San Francisco has been reading of the fine staging of Othello that is currently appearing in town. As you probably know by now, it features Paul Robeson. However, how many of you realize that this wonderful staging has inspired a couple of gents to compose an already popular tune? Surely you have heard Othello On a Furlough.

Clearing away the stench, we find Harry James voicing his terrific predicament to the boys in the band to the tune of When Your Lover Has Gone. The boys listen until Harry has apparently finished his moan only to get up as a body of one to give him a terrific and loud ribbing.

Not content with this, Corky Cochrane then attacks James with some extremely subtle phrasing that sends poor Harry out into the night, along with Bulldog Drummond, still screaming. James attempts to be sincere at all times, but noting the title of this work, it is easy to see why it would be so hard for him, for everyone isn't married to Grable. Confessin' is on the other side.

The Ellington school of thought is finally spreading throughout the world of popular music, Woody Herman uses a combination of it and his own on his recordings of Saturday Night and I Didn't Know About You. These are easily worth your pennies.

Harry James also uses Ellington chords in his version of I'm Beginning To See The Light, but appears to be sticking pretty much to his own style.

With the draft board breathing down his neck, Sinatra is really recording rapidly. His latest release is I Begged Her, another jump tune, which is sided with What Makes The Sunset. On the latter Frankie is sure he's found the answer to what makes the sun set, but science will never, never agree with him.

A TUSCH TO

Jo Stafford for her sensitive phrasing of Let's Take The Long Way Home.

The Goodman Quintet's amusing rendition of Ev'ry Time We Say Goodbye.

Perry Como for his as yet unrecorded version of Temptation.

Club Cavalcade . . .

•Alpha Theta Epsilon: Newly named Home Economics club will give a reception tea for all new students who plan to become members, on Thursday, March 8, at 1 p.m., in Room 158.

All members are asked to be present as there will be a short business meeting for the nomination of officers.

Those who plan to attend are asked to see Mildred Fusco, president, or sign up in Room 158.

•Theta Tau: There will be a meeting tonight at 7:30 at the home of Maggie Rogers, 450 Magellan.

•Alpha Lamba Chi: The first rush affair was held at the home of Marcia Dains, 135 San Felipe Avenue, March 4.

Anne Marie Roache, former member, was married last week to Jack Byrne of the Army, who recently returned from France.

•Music Club: A meeting will be held tonight at 7:30 at the home of Melva Niles, 1282 24th Avenue.

•Alpha Gamma Sigma: Officers elected at a meeting last week are as follows: President, Marilyn Zito; Vice-president, Jacqueline Glessner; Secretary, Margaret Kay. Gold seal bearers from high school are eligible for membership and should apply to adviser Edwin A. Cranston in room 340.

Ram Nine Opens Season Against Poly March 16

Six promised and two tentatives compose the present schedule of games for the Ram baseball nine, Coach Lee Eisan said last week.

The Ram opener is set for Friday, March 16, against Polytechnic High School at the Big Recreation diamond. Time is 3 o'clock.

Other games call for tussles with Commerce High March 20, California Varsity March 24, State on March 30, Commerce again April 3, and a return with State April 20.

Tentative college games are with Menlo and Modesto Junior Colleges. Whether other "confcrence" games will be played has not yet been determined, but following the lengthy schedule of conference games for basketball, hopes were high for continuation in baseball.

Thus far 28 men have turned out, with a few more expected. The list, compiled and released by Coach Eisan, includes the following:

Gerald Shaughnessy, second base; John Lopman, pitcher; Chuck Shea, second base; Ernie Poggi, catcher; Don Grant, third base; Frank Ratto, center field; Henry Boone, third base; Tom Rogers, first base; Bob Mills, Bill Slaughter, Pete Milat, Howard Beauchamp, Raymond Meier, Howard Slaughter, Charles Allen, Bob Ghiorghi, George Fabian, Maurice Lynch, Andrew Butler, Manuel Castro and Joi Cimmarusti.

WAA Outlines New Program Of Sports For This Semester

Results of the first Women's Athletic Association meeting held last Thursday indicate a coming semester of sports activities equal to, if not surpassing, that of last fall. Sue Miles, acting president of the WAA, presided over the group outlining the new program assisted by Bertha Mae Keller, adviser.

The tentative sign-up slips for the different activities have been displayed in the women's gymnasium this past week and its result will determine the final schedule for the Spring semester.

Miss Miles has several events in the planning stage, such as inviting surrounding colleges and high schools in open competition, holding contests among clubs and staging tournaments rewarding the winners with trophies and medals.

All sport groups will meet between 3:00 and 4:00 p.m. once a week, and the proposed schedule is as follows: Monday, basketball and volleyball; Tuesday, tennis; Wednesday, badminton; Thursday, softball; Friday, bowling.

WAA Election March 15

Members of the Women's Athletic Association will meet to elect this semester's officers in a election rally to be held Thursday, March 15, in Room 136 at 1 o'clock.

Superior Board Control, Ball Handling Help San Mateo Whip Rams 50 To 42

The high-flying Bulldogs from San Mateo ran a hapless Ram quintet off the hardwood last Wednesday night in the men's gymnasium to chalk up a 50 to 42 victory in the encounter.

Ram Basketball Team Wins 13, Loses 11

Winding up one of the most hectic cage seasons in her history, the San Francisco Junior College basketball squad compiled a season's record of thirteen wins and eleven losses.

In a somewhat abridged conference season, the Rams chalked up two wins against four losses. Two conference teams, Marin Junior College and Santa Rosa Junior College dropped out of the league because of the manpower shortage. In games played against other college teams the San Francisco outfit netted four wins and five losses. Two of these victories were gained at the expense of the San Francisco State team, their ardent cross-town rivals. The summary of these games is as follows:

Rams, 20; California Blues, 35.
Rams, 55; San Francisco State, 33.
Rams, 45; San Francisco State, 33.
Rams, 48; Sacramento Junior College, 46.
Rams, 43; Sacramento Junior College, 47.
Rams, 28; Modesto Junior College, 29.
Rams, 41: Modesto Junior College, 54.
Rams, 47; San Mateo Junior College, 32.

Employing a very effective, fast break, the San Mateans were constantly penetrating the weak Ram defense to score on close-up shots. The first half saw a scoring duel between the two centers, Tom Rodman of the Rams and Jack Lamb of the Bulldogs, developing with Lamb of the Mateans getting slightly the better support from his teammates; consequently the squad from down the Peninsula forged ahead by a score of 22 to 17 at half time.

A fighting Ram quintet hit hardwood at the start of the second half and to all intents and purposes it looked as if they might walk off with the game, but the flame soon subsided and the San Mateo squad took over and glided easily into the lead at the final gun.

A deciding factor in the contest was the onutstanding backboard control and superior ball handling exhibited by the San Mateans.

Outstanding players on the Bulldog squad were Lamb, center; Joe Kane, forward, and guard Dick Wilson. Rodman, Larry Laird and Dick Franks starred for the losers.

Health Exams Reveal Grave Trends Toward Lordosis And Pronating Ankles

Women students were solemnly urged last week to come to the aid of civilization and rid their generation of lordosis and pronating ankles.

"Unless correction of these defects is made, the next generation will be one composed largely of people having lordosis and pronating ankles," authorities pronounced after studying results of health examinations given to women entering the college this semester. For the examinations reveal a startling and increasing trend toward the two above mentioned ailments.

Pressed for a statement which would indicate the cause of the nearly out of hand condition, Bertha Mae Keller, women's physical education instructor and experienced physiotherapist, blamed the spread of lordosis to the new students' "over-exaggerated emphasis on throwing their shoulders back."

The sway back, she further suggested, might be due to superfluous attempts to imitate the military or to the current mode in coiffures. Since the former is a military secret, and The Guardsman's wire for information to Grenadine Clotch, interviewed here last semester when she became head of the OTD for the prevention of misuse of dishtowels, was delayed, it was deemed advisable to skip lightly over the possible causes, pending investigation by Miss Clotch.

The problem of pronating ankles can be squarely laid to the wide variety of shoes adopted by women students without regard for the malady resulting therefrom. Pronating ankles are commonly called "weak ankles."

Lack of proper foot exercise and improper use of the feet may also contribute to weak ankles, Miss Keller hinted, meditatively eyeing the Alpsian climb to the science building, obviously seeing it as a cure-all for pronating ankles and quite probably lordosis.

The only trouble is, women are expected to climb the hill but four times a week.

Is there a way to discover which officers I should vote for in the class elections? The registrar's office is too busy to answer my questions and figure out my standing. Student officers, when questioned, smile, pat me on the back, and run for the nearest stairway.

What would you suggest? Can you tell me what class I'm in?

41 Students Join Alpha Gamma Sigma Honor Society

That 41 students have fulfilled requirements for this semester's membership in Alpha Gamma Sigma, college honor society, was announced last week by Marilyn Zito, president of the scholastic group.

Now eligible for AGS activities and awards, these students received 30 or more grade points in not less than 12 units of work last Fall.

Miss Zito also pointed out that active and past members of the club interested in appearing on the KFRC radio program, "Quiz of Two Cities," should contact Edwin A. Cranston, faculty adviser, immediately.

Officers of the club have not determined the method by which the four contestants for the broadcast will be chosen.

An invitation was extended to the AGS here by Stu Wilson, Mutual director, asking the men and women to participate on the May 12 program. The opposing quiz team will be the Pasadena Junior College branch of Alpha Gamma Sigma.

Members of this campus' AGS for the present semester are as follows: Beverly Blank, Rina Brosio, William Brownell, Alan Chaimov, Morton Colvin, Dorothy Conlan, Don Constine, Delane Corgiat, Patricia Cullen, Vonnie Dalziel, Rose Dear, Laura Drake, Peter Gariaeff, Lorraine Gay, Jacqueline Glessner, Marcella Haber, Marie Harrell, Norman Hutchings, Margaret Kay, Him Lai, Peggy Lee, Helen Leong and Mabel Leong.

Elizabeth Mann, Jean Maples, Frederick Mayer, Laura Miller, Tessie Prentice, Eleanor Prinz, Lois Robinet, Barbara Scholz, Jeanne Simons, Alma Taylor, Constance Trigonis, Nina Vasilieff, Dolores Volosing, Adele Weiss, William Whaley, Glorla Wyrsch, Rayma Younger and Marilynn Zito.

Book Exchange Closes Fri.; Shortage Of Books Near

Until the Book Exchange definitely closes this Friday, March 9, it will continue to remain active from 11 a.m. to 1:15 p.m. each day, Susan Miles, WSS president, recently disclosed.

Because too many old students are unaware that the exchange aids in the sales of used texts, the exchange is finding it increasingly difficult to satisfy the requests of many prospective buyers, Miss Miles added.

Those students wishing to sell their books should set their prices and bring their books to the exchange as soon as possible. Stubs will be given to these students to verify ownership of the books until they are sold, Miss Miles explained.

Miss Miles requested that students go to the bank and get their money as soon as their numbers are posted outside the exchange for the bank wishes to complete all transactions as early as possible.

The Book Exchange is located on the first floor of the college next to the bank.

Churchill, Stalin And Eden Will Meet At Northwestern U.; Stalin Here Now

Names make news, and so over at Northwestern University they announce that, Churchill, Stalin and Eden will meet in the next few weeks, but without President Roosevelt. Not the world-famous statesmen, of course, but co-eds bearing those names who have just registered for the new quarters.

This news, when flashed to the junior college, immediately precipitated a hurried search of last semester's files of the registrar's office in a hunt by the entire Guardsman staff for a similar world-shaking rendezvous presaged for this campus.

Alas, Stalin only was found. She (it was a she) declined to issue a communique.

Of famous names of the past who may have met at the college are Solomon, Valentine, Bonapartian and Wagner.

Names that belong together are Winter and Spring, Single and Spouse, Long and Short, Short and Stout, Meek and Meeker, Gross and Grosser. We have Butter, and that's a Comfort.

And, oh, yes. There are Dong, Doung and Dung, all of whom disclaim relation to that Daddy of the D car line.

Judges Will Announce Results Of Brucato Essay Contest Monday

Results of the 500 word essay contest, held last semester, are to be made public by the judges next Monday.

Authors of the four best essays will each be awarded a $100 bond, submitted by John Brucato, supervisor of the Agricultural Division of the San Francisco Water Department, and sponsor of the contest.

Three San Francisco colleges were originally competing for the awards, but an early withdrawal of the University of San Francisco left only San Francisco State College and San Francisco Junior College to battle it out.

The contest, having as its subjects Postwar Civic and Commercial Betterment of San Francisco, and How Present Distribution of Farm Products Can Be Improved, was inaugurated by Brucato for the purpose of determining the reactions of college students toward future civic problems.

Planned as an additional feature of the contest is a public reading of the two top essays, Monday, March 19, before the City Board of Supervisors.

The time of the meeting is tentatively set for 3 o'clock, and will be held at the City Hall in Civic Center on the second floor.

The judges, Thomas A. Brooks, Chief Administrative Officer; Deming Tilton, director of the City Planning Commission; Carol Newbergh, president of the Central Council of Civic Clubs, believe the contest sufficiently worthwhile for an effort to be made to acquaint the townspeople with the contents of the most comprehensive of the essays.

Word Lost To Culture Of Man; Also To SFJC

One word is lost in the college dictionary, resulting in a dilemma among new students.

Large signs have been placed in various conspicuous places in the cafeteria stating "Bus your dishes." The word "bus" in restaurant parlance means, pick up the dishes and carry them to the appropriate stand. As the definition is not given in standard dictionaries, it is no wonder these signs were not understood.

Students were urged by John Conrad, currently student manager of the cafeteria, to be careful with the bottles as there is an acute shortage.

AWS To Give St. Patrick's Day Tea For New Women

First social event to be sponsored by the Associated Women Students is a tea with the theme of St. Patrick's day, to be given in honor of the freshmen women students. It will be held on Wednesday, March 14, in Room 158, Barbara Chambers, AWS president, announced.

Purpose of the tea is to acquaint the newcomers with the officers and students of the college.

Miss Chambers extends the invitation to the tea especially to all freshmen and to all faculty members and women students of the college.

Details of the tea are still indefinite and will be disclosed in a later issue.

are participation in at least three-fourths of the weekly meetings, satisfactory health, good sportsmanship and a "C" average in grades. Miss Keller, who presented the block "SF" to the women earning these awards last semester, lauded the fine efforts given by the officers and members in the past and expressed her confidence for another successful season. "Considering the great number of women employed after college hours, it is remarkable to have the WAA as active as it is," she remarked.

The fourteen co-eds who received awards were Janice Beanston, Carolyn Burns, Jean Fitter, Phyllis Greenly, Mary Hall, Dorothy Gooding, Sue Miles, Helen Nelson, Ellen Nolan, Estelle Trogdin, Virginia Wells, Cordelai Van Scoyoc, Alma Pucci and Irene Mouzskis.

College Members Appear With Savoy Opera Group

Among the members of the cast at the Gilbert and Sullivan music program given last week by the Savoy Opera Company were Lorraine Calcagno, a graduate of the college, and Bettie Sanderson and Treva Nugent, who are attending the college at present.

Part Time Office Jobs Now Available For Men Students

That various jobs are available, such as typists, stenographers, comptometer operators and file clerks was announced last week by Edward W. Larson, placement office director.

The usual rise in Easter trade promises to make a greater demand for part-time employment, Larson declared. He added that "those who have special interest or previous experience will find an opportunity for making extra money."

With special reference to men students, Larson disclosed that employers are seeking men for afternoon work. The work, which would also include Saturdays, would be of a relatively heavy type, such as handling of freight, and the moving of warehouse goods.

According to Larson, one manufacturer is seeking a limited number of men for work between 4 and 8 o'clock each day, for a five day week, promising attractive remuneration. Applications for this job should be made early, at Room 155.

War Manpower Clearances are still essential for obtaining jobs. They may be secured at the placement office.

Larson appealed to students interested in obtaining work to arrange their college programs in such a manner as to have an even pattern of hours. He also urged that students should seek employment only after being definite as to their courses.

Cosmopolitan Society May Hear Civic Lecture

Initiating activities of the Cosmopolitan Society this semester, a short meeting was held last week. Acting chairman Bill Schlager announced that with the cooperation of the Council for Civic Unity, the services of a speaker to lecture here on Thursday, March 15, at 1 p.m., were being sought. Topic of the lecture will be "What schools can do to lay the foundations of world unity," Schlager said.

At the meeting it was decided to intensify the publicity of the Society, with a view to enlarging the membership. Schlager pointed out that membership is not invitational, and that all students are welcome.

Dance Honors Frosh This Friday Night At Fairmont Hotel

With dancing to the music of Paul Law and his orchestra as the order of the evening, Low Freshmen will be honored at a dance in the Gold Room of the Fairmont Hotel this Friday evening from 9 to 12 o'clock.

Jean Crenshaw, Associated Student vice-president, said that all students are invited to this first class dance of the semester. Admission is one Associated Student card for each couple.

Miss Crenshaw added that the dance will be informal which means street length dresses for women and business sujts for men. The no corsage edict will be in effect.

At previous dances for the college, music played by Law and his orchestra has proved successful. Law's vocalist will be Dolores Parodi, who is a former student of the college.

The Low Frosh dance is given each semester to honor the incoming Freshmen of the college. It has also been announced that plans for future dances are under way and will be revealed in the near future.

Beth Wilcox Wins CAB Post By Flip Of Coin

At the election of officers for the Club Advisory Board last week, a flip of a coin made Beth Wilcox president after the count of votes indicated a tie between Miss Wilcox and Ralph Hansen.

Hansen was elected Vice-president and Helen Schiavone, Secretary.

By a majority vote, the traditional ruling that established clubs must apply for charters each semester, was abolished. Only new clubs must apply for charters to receive official recognition.

Today is the deadline for submitting such petitions, Bob Mills, Associated Student president, firmly stated.

Two clubs that were formerly recognized but failed to apply for charters last semester are Omicron Phi Pi and Pi Mu Nu. These must make new applications for chartering, the board decided.

Every other Thursday at 1 o'clock has been set aside by Dean Edward F. Sandys for the purpose of club meetings. The following rooms have been assigned to the various clubs: Alpha Lambda Chi, 132; Chinese Club, 140; Alpha Theta Epsilon, 108; Music Club, 200; Phi Beta Rho, 133; Theta Tau, 190; Alpha Gamma Sigma, 194; Kappa Phi, 142; Beta Phi Beta, 191; Tri-Epsilon, 193; Beta Tau, 136; Cosmopolitan Society, 100; Bible Study Club, 312.

The next CAB meeting is scheduled for tomorrow at 1 o'clock.

Editorial

REQUEST came from President Bob Mills to "correct" a statement in last week's Guardman which read as follows:

"Six members of the council were present. No meeting or business carried on at a meeting is legal unless a quorum of seven are present."

President Mills explained that although "there are eleven members on the Executive Council, because the Block Society has not yet named a representative, six constitute a quorum."

We would like to point out to President Mills that the council is composed of ten members as follows: The Presideut, Vice-president, and Secretary of the Associated Students; the Rally Commissioner, the Associated Men and Associated Women Student representatives, the Women's Athletic Association representative, the Men's Athletic Council representative, the Club Advisory Board and Publication Board representatives. Ten—count them.

The Block Society is not represented on the Ex-Council. It never has been. Furthermore, the constitution, as the president will find it if he reads it, expressly states that "regular meetings of the Executive Council shall be held ONCE a week, and SEVEN members shall constitute a quorum."

AWS Will Entertain Freshmen Women At St. Patrick Tea This Afternoon

Freshmen women will be honored today at an informal St. Patrick's day tea, sponsored by the Associated Women Students, in Room 158 from 2:30 to 4 p. m., according to Barbara Chambers, AWS president.

Pourers for the tea will be Mary Jane Learnard, assistant registrar, and Andrewa Noble, faculty member.

Besides freshmen, all faculty members and women students of the college are expected to attend the tea.

Committee for the tea is under the leadership of the AWS officers, including Mildred Hoffman, vice-president; Anne LeNoir, secretary, and Miss Chambers.

The remainder of the committee includes Bobbie Bray, Jackie Wallace, Elsie Bertalino, Joan Ponting, Dorthe LeNoir, Eleanor Girlich, Betty Howard, Jane Boltman, Cornelia Mason, Anita Moreholt, Jean Titter, Anita Kruer, Colleen McInerney, Pat Davis, Bessie Angelos, Jackie Boyd, Fay Varetakis, Fran Davy, Bobbie Mercer, Lois Robinet, Beth Sutton, and Irene Matveen.

Choir Needs Tenors For Campus Activities

Repeating her plea for more tenors, Flossita Badger, choir director, said last week that if the needed tenors fail to materialize the A Cappella Choir will engage in no college activities.

Students wishing to join the choir, which meets at 11 a.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays, may apply for auditions at that time in Room 204.

Yell Leader Gianinni Submits Resignation

Official announcement was made at the last Executive Council meeting that Don Gianinni, recently appointed college yell leader, has submitted his resignation. Reasons for the resignation were not stated.

A new candidate for yell leader will be presented to the council by Charles Shea, Rally Commissioner, at its next meeting.

The council also approved six organization budgets.

A Cappella Choir received $220 for this semester's activities, the orchestra was allowed $25, Women's Athletic Association $100, and Administration $75, while a Dean's Fund of $250 was set aside for emergencies that may arise during the semester.

Also to be decided is the amount of service necessary for council members to receive a service key. In past years many members have attended a very minimum of meetings and still been awarded a key. An absolute minimum of meetings of attendance is expected to be set up for this semester.

Next meeting of the Executive Council will be tomorrow at 1 o'clock in Room 111. The council will meet every other Thursday henceforth.

The Associated Student constitution provides that the Executive Council shall meet once a week.

College May Have Summer Session, Offers Two Plans

Summer session will be conducted here this year pending approval of the Board of Education, J. Paul Mohr, registrar, said last week.

Because there are two possible ways of conducting the summer session, students will be allowed to express their preference in the "box" in this column.

One possibility is to have one 14-week session. This session would start Monday, June 25, and end Friday, September 28, Mohr said. The maximum amount of units a student may carry would be 14.

The other suggestion is to have two seven-week sessions. With this plan, students would be allowed to carry a maximum of eight or nine units each session. The first session would end August 10, and the second start August 13. Mohr explained, however, that students would probably have to attend classes six days a week under this plan.

In requesting student opinion, Mohr urged those wishing to attend the session to fill out the blank below immediately and turn it into the registrar's office.

Students were also reminded that the last day on which to drop a semester course is Wednesday, April fourth.

End of the first mid-term is Friday, March 23. Mid-term examinations will start next Monday.

Class Election Results In Except For Low Sophs

Bill Thompson was elected High Soph President last week, with Lydia Mills and Frances Davey chosen Vice-president and Secretary, respectively.

On order of Dean Edward Sandys, the Low Sophomores will vote again for their President and Vice-president. Doris Sellers is Secretary.

High Freshmen put Ralph Hansen in office as President, Mary Jane Force as Vice-president, and Lucille Peters as Secretary.

Tom Rogers took the Low Freshman presidential office, while Roberta Robb was named Vice-president, and Bob Selby, Secretary.

Summer Session Survey

Students interested in attending summer session are urged after reading the above story, to state their preference below, tear out the blank and turn it in to the registrar's office.

Passing The Buck

By Henry P. Buckingham

NOW they yell Heil Eisenhower. Great. They hollered something comparable about Pershing the last time. Then we believed them. Let's not this time.

This about-face to our side is a typical Nazi trick. The Nazis figure if they fool us into the belief that pristine days have returned that their chances of organizing a strong undeground will be manifoldly increased.

Some of the people of Deutschland will be truthful in their declarations of dislike for the Nazis. This will be true particularly in southern Germany.

The party rolls are smaller in this southern section. The closer to Berlin we go, the stronger the Nazi belief is entrenched. The area closest to the Nazis' immediate sphere of influence will be a maze of Nazism.

We must not be fooled into complacency. We must, this time, inflict on those persons to blame, a just punishment.

Our only evidence against individuals is captured party rolls. These rolls are small and often incomplete. However, with proper administration, the right individuals will be weeded out.

HELPFUL HENRY

Our new Secretary of Commerce went to his first cabinet meeting last week.

Stripped cleaner than a burlesque queen, Henry "bares" a name only. As Secretary of Commerce his duties are commerce, pure and simple. He has been left no complicated or dangerous toys.

Henry's champion, F. D. Roosevelt, noticed Henry, at the first cabinet meeting, sitting in the corner. Henry's rightful place is in the corner, as cabinet members are seated in order.

Asked Mr. Roosevelt, "Did you receive a message of congratulations from your predecessor?"

Answered Hank, "No," as the draft from the door behind chilled his neck.

Mr. Wallace might have added that the knife had not been returned by Mr. Jones either.

WITH WHAT AND TO WHOM?

The big question around our fair state is, what is Governor Warren? He ran non-partisan. Republicans and Democrats oppose his CIO-backed health insurance. Democrats oppose his taxation ideals, and Republicans just oppose him.

And speaking of health insurance, what goes? Warren's plan is apparently based on the same pattern that the British plan follows.

Warren argues that 38 per cent of California's draft age men were rejected. He says we must correct this. He gives us the British plan.

It is interesting to note that under the British plan 50 per cent of the draft age men were rejected in England. Strange, the ideas our boys get.

Also, will paying into a fund for health insurance actually be a guarantee against getting sick?

Dumbarton Oaks

WITH the press and radio constantly referring to the Dumbarton Oaks conference, it is unfortunate that some citizens are not familiar with the decisions made at that historic meeting.

This April, the attention of the world will be focused on San Francisco.

Since the coming peace conference is a result of the Dumbarton Oaks meeting, it would prove worthwhile to review again the decisions made last October. After seven weeks of discussion, a tentative charter was proposed which contained the following four significant provisions:

1. A General Assembly of all peace-loving nations, which would make recommendations for maintaining world peace and security.

2. A Security Council of eleven members which would have full responsibility for determining and taking action to maintain peace through pacific, economic or military means. Permanent members would be the United States, Great Britain, Russia, China, and ultimately France. Others would be chosen by the assembly for two year terms by two-thirds vote.

3. An Economic and Social Council operating under the assembly to deal with "humanitarian" aspects of international relations.

4. An international court of justice to handle justiciable disputes.

Students must remain fully conscious of these vital assurances of a peaceful post-war world. The machinery has been set in motion. Accountability now rests with the various United Nations' delegates who will meet in this city.

Parking

SINCE the beginning of the present semester, drivers have been parking cars on the north and south ramps and in courts of the college building.

Delivery trucks find it almost impossible to unload goods conveniently. Those individuals who by necessity must park on the ramps often discover that there are no available places.

Adding to the obvious confusion, automobiles have also been parked on the lawn in the courts, or driven across the lawn, needlessly ruining the grass. Sufficient space has been provided for motor vehicle owners on this campus. Drivers should only use the specified locations.

The Board of Education's recent edict banning all parking in both the north and south courts is more than justifiable. Drivers who fail to comply with the official order are subject to police control. This action is certainly in the best interests of the college.

Letters To The Editor

RAM'S HORN

• Cement Letters

Editor, The Guardsman:

Toward the end of last semester, we were beginning to work on cement SFJC letters to go on the hill above the women's gym, but because of lack of time, the project had to be discontinued. I believe that this project can be fulfilled by the current ASSFJC officers.

Here are some suggestions that might prove of help to the person who will be assigned the job. Ask Mr. Aggeler of the engineering department to stake out the letters, and when this is done contact several cement contractors and have them give an estimate for the cost of the job. Then contact Mr. Church, the city architect, for his approval. After Mr. Church's approval, see Dr. Cloud about obtaining permission from the Recreation Commission about using the property. If we cannot use the property, secure another spot.

I shall leave it up to The Guardsman to see that this project is carried out by the ex-council.

—BOB BISIO,
Past President, ASSFJC.

DISCussions

NOT a new subject by any means, but still a very interesting one, is the way in which music is recorded for films. Naturally when music is used it can't be recorded on the sound track at the same time the film is being shot, for every studio is too large for a good mike pick-up and of course the acoustics on any movie set are horrible. This is because all movie sets or stages are built like barns. The procedure, therefore, is to record the music on the sound track later and in a place where good acoustics can be had along with good mike pick-up. Of course, the same procedure prevails for an outdoor scene.

A fine example of the latter appeared in Lost In a Harem. Jimmy Dorsey and his band came parading down the middle of main street all dressed up in the most frantic costumes just blasting away for all they were worth. Out in the open a pick-up of any quality is impossible so the boys and J. D. simply went through the actions. Later when it was convenient, the band met in a recording studio minus the costumes and recorded where the acoustics were good and the mikes were where they belonged.

When one considers that Haymes, Crosby, and Sinatra stand about one inch from the mike for their radio shows, it is easy to understand that when these boys stand beneath the fair lady's balcony and croon they aren't actually recording on the sound track at that time.

In Here Come The Waves, Crosby and Tufts naturally faked or mouthed their songs and recorded later but this film goes one step further. Hutton sings a duet with herself. This is accomplished by Betty first recording on the sound track with the orchestra and then re-recording alone on top of the previous cut being careful at all times to harmonize with her first cut.

This was onee done by Sidney Bechet who can play almost every instrument in a band. Using the technique of recording on top of a previous cut he recorded eight times on the same disc each time playing a different instrument or a different part. The result was a recording appearing to feature an eight piece group.

Abe Martin says: "With auto tires wearin' out, lots of families are discoverin' a new place—home."

•Phi Beta Rho: The first rush affair of the semester was a tea held at the Hotel Claremont on March 11.

The next rush party will be held at the home of Carol Wheeler, 25 Paloma, Sunday, March 18.

Club news must be submitted to The Guardsman office, Room 134, by 11 o'clock Thursdays.

Intramural Team Entry Blanks Due Next Tuesday

Intramural activity this semester will be under way with the filing of entry blanks on or before next Tuesday, March 20, Jack Brady, faculty intramural director, said last week.

First round robin will be held among five-man basketball teams, Brady said, for which anyone is eligible to enter, provided he organizes a team.

Club and previously organized teams, however, are expected to lead off the competition.

Entry blanks, printed on this page to the right, should be filled out completely, Brady warned, and submitted to his office in the men's gymnasium. Schedules for play will then be drawn up.

Details of competition, such as scoring rules which were given much consideration last year when first listed, were not ready for release, nor was information concerning awards.

Ram Horsehide Squad Opens Season At Golden Gate Park Friday With Poly; 8 Tentative Games Scheduled Thus Far

The Ram horsehide squad will open the 1945 baseball season in Golden Gate Park against the Polytechnic High School nine this Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

According to Chuck Shea, a returning letterman from last year's team, the probable starting lineups for the opening game will be as follows:

Johnny Lopeman on the mound; Ernest Poggi, catching; Raymond Meier on first base; Gerald Shaughnessy on the keystone sack; Don Grant guarding the hot corner; Shea at short; Henry Boone in left field; Keith Harper patrolling the center pastures, and Howard Beauchamp in right field.

Although there will be only two returning lettermen from last year's varsity squad, the fact that the outlook for this season's varsity team is extremely bright can be attributed to the large turnout of talented players experienced in many of the winter leagues operating in and around the bay area.

Lopeman, key pitcher, has displayed a wealth of ability on the mound. In the past months he has been the mainstay of the Junior Seals. His battery mate, Poggi, was a member of the Junior Seals also.

The smooth play of Shaughnessy around the vital keystone sack has produced a note of optimism around Ram headquarters.

The two returning veterans, Shea and Boone, can be counted on to turn in an effective job at shortstop and left field respectively.

In the Ram's second game, the same tentative lineup will battle it out with Commerce High next Tuesday afternoon, March 20, at Harrison Field.

Other games scheduled thus far, as released by Coach Lee Eisan, are as follows:

Menlo—March 22	There
California Varsity—March 24	There
State—March 30	There
Commerce—April 3	Ocean View
Modesto—April 13	Ocean View
State—April 20	Ocean View
Menlo—April 27	Ocean View

WAA Beginners Tennis Class Still Open

Several places are still open for women students to learn to play tennis, Laurine Bergin, women's tennis instructor, announced last week. The class meets Mondays and Wednesdays at 3 o'clock.

Equipment is furnished, she added, and participation in the beginner's class may go toward credit for physical fitness or membership in the Women's Athletic Association.

Hope was expressed last week by some members of the WAA that a mixed doubles tournament might be revived this semester, particularly for more advanced players.

That Old AMS-Faculty Feud Is On Again

By HENRY BUCKINGHAM

They're either too young or too old, or so it would seem. For unknown reasons the bi-annual faculty-student game is only a remote possibility this semester.

Perhaps the "old men" have seen too much new talent (baseball) around the campus.

Perhaps the youngsters have noticed the myriads of vitamin pills imported by aging members of the faculty.

Comments Salamander Wartsnout, Captain of the Nine Old Men and Professor of Philanthropy at the college, "Our esteemed predecessors have made the thing such an ephemeral affair that we hesitate to lick the pants off the blasted pipsqueeks this year."

First Aid Ex. Friday In Women's Gym At 1 O'Clock

Women students who received an incomplete in Hygiene 22 last semester will have an opportunity to take the examination in First Aid this Friday at 1 o'clock in the women's gymnasium.

This examination will be given for students who had as instructors in First Aid J. Malianni, Mrs. A. Cross, Dr. H. Bruckner, Mrs. K. Osborn, and Laurine Bergin.

This will be the only time the examination will be given and Mrs. Bergin last week urged that all students planning to partieipate see her previous to the time set for the examination.

WAA Election Rally Tomorrow In Room 136 At 1

Members of the Women's Athletic Association will meet to elect this semester's officers in Room 136 tomorrow at 1 o'clock.

The election is an important WAA event, since the elected officers help direct tournaments as well as arrange play-days and any special activities that arise from time to time, Sue Miles, WAA president, said.

Results of the first sign-up sheets are encouraging, according to Bertha Mae Keller, adviser to the group. Because of popular demand, as expressed in the signup, softball, originally scheduled for Thursday, has been changed to Wednesday afternoon.

Bowling had the largest sign-up of all activities offered, and beginners and advanced groups have been formed. The Lincoln Bowl, Sixth Avenue and Clement Streets, will again be the center for these enthusiasts. Women should remember to obtain a membership card, Miss Keller warned, and have it with them each time they bowl, as this allows the students to bowl at a special rate.

Other sports are currently meeting once a week in the women's gymnasium, she added. The Monday class of basketball and volleyball have already elected a manager, Wanda McKenzie. Tennis players are meeting on Tuesdays, and a fast game of badminton is played every Wednesday.

Women unable to attend sports under the present schedule are invited to sign up for a different day and time when they are free. WAA equipment is available up to 4 p.m., Miss Keller pointed out, explaining that arrangements can be made to meet in a group, elect managers and stage tournaments.

Intramural Entries Due March 20

Those interested in the opening intramural round robin must have their entries in by Tuesday, March 20, according to Intramural Director, Jack Brady. Schedules for basketball competition and play will be announced soon. Entries will be accepted every day by Brady in the office of the men's gymnasium. Managers of club or independent teams should fill out the application, below, Brady said.

Alfred Fisk Will Address Students Here Tomorrow

Under the sponsorship of the Cosmopolitan Society, Dr. Alfred Fisk, instructor at the State College, and co-pastor at Fellowship Church, will address the students here tomorrow in Room 100, at 1 o'clock.

Subject of Dr. Fisk's 30 minute address will be "What Schools Can Do to Lay the Foundations of World Unity." J. Paul Mohr, registrar, will introduce the speaker.

It is planned by the society's committee that following Dr. Fick's lecture there will be a 20 minute period of discussion and questions. Discussion will be led by a specially chosen panel committee.

Commenting on Dr. Fisk's address, Acting Chairman Bill Schlager said: "The importance and timeliness of Dr. Fisk's subject cannot be too strongly emphasized. It takes on added significance, in view of the world conference to be held in San Francisco."

According to the committee, with tomorrow's meeting, the activities of the society will get under way. A second meeting is scheduled for Tuesday, March 20, at 1 o'clock. Purpose of the meeting will be to nominate members for officers of the society.

Thursday, March 22, will be set aside for voting.

Pasadena Junior College Accepts AGS Challenge

The Pasadena Alpha Gamma Sigma last week accepted the college AGS challenge to meet on the Mutual Network radio program, "Quiz of Two Cities," which will be held on May 1.

Marilyn Zito, president, announced that participants in the quiz had not been decided upon as yet, but added that AGS members interested should attend the meeting to be held tomorrow at 1 o'clock in Room 343, at which time participants will be chosen.

Miss Zito said that distribution of the student tickets has not been settled to date.

Hillside Parking Banned

Effective today, parking will no longer be permitted in the North and South courts of the college building on order of Dean Edward E. Sandys. In addition, drivers must refrain from parking on the hills on either side of the building.

Reason for such edicts is that an order came last week from the central office of the School Department banning parking in all but the circle drive between the main building and the gymnasiums. According to the central office, this step had to be taken to prevent the further damaging of the lawns, as well as the blocking of entrances to the delivery vans.

Non-compliance will, if necessary, be enforced by police tactics, Sandys warned, adding "I'm sure that no such methods will be necessary to enforce the request, if the drivers cooperate as wholeheartedly as they usually do."

Only exceptions to parking by the building will be for those issued special permits, Dean Sandys declared.

Flagrant violation, such as pictured above, of long-standing campus rules, led to the edict last week banning driving of cars through the north and south ramps to the courts flanking the college building. Time and expert care may restore the once carpet-like lawns nearly ruined by careless driving and parking directly on the grass. The drivers need not worry about parking. Clearly in view of the middle background is ample parking space.

Mills Plans To Carry On Cement Letter Project

Plans will be resumed for the erection of a cement monument containing the letters SFJC, originally suggested by Bob Bisio, Associated Student president of Fall, 1944, Bob Mills, current ASSFJC president, announced last week. (See Rams Horn, Page 2.)

Mills intends to submit the idea to the Ex-Council at their next meeting this Thursday at 1 o'clock. He stated that "this administration does intend to carry out all projects left unfinished by last semester's administration."

Last semester's plans revealed that the construction would have raised white cement letters on a background of red cement.

City architects, Timothy Pflueger and Thomas Church approved the idea of the monument, but to date their approval of the location has not been secured. Also, the go-ahead signal must be given by the San Francisco Park Commission, owners of the property.

Hundred Veterans Return To College; All Asked To Sign With Registrar

By Theodora Wong

Approximately a hundred Yanks who have marched home are marching to classes at the college.

That, at least, is the guess of Edward Redford, who heads the college office to assist veterans of World War II in getting financial aid.

Fewer than 80 veterans enrolled at the college actually have indicated their service in the armed forces when registering here, however.

The following is an official list of army, navy, marine, and coast guard veterans known to be enrolled at the college. It was released by the registrar's office with a plea for those whose names belong, but are misisng, to so inform the registrar, who wants no snafuing of the records.

Donald H. Albers, George Alvers, Remegio E. Archieletta, Benjamin A. Auyong, Alan Austin, Howard Beauchamp, Raymond Bergman, Merrill Bird, Harry Bond, John Boyd, Henry Buckingham, Edward Cantwell, Charles Chan, Paul W. Chaw, Arvord G. Clementz, Neil G. Coe, Morton R. First Entertainment Rally Scheduled For March 22

First of a series of entertainment rallies has been planned for Thursday, March 22, by Chuck Shea, rally commissioner, and Norma Busse, a freshman from Lincoln High School.

Master of ceremonies at the rally will be Tommy Conine, who has been called "the world's fastest tap dancer for his age." According to Miss Busse, most of the talent will be professional.

Among the entertainers will be Eileen Christopherson, a singer who has performed on the radio, and a tap-acrobatic team composed of Bea Dorsett and Charlie Hulse. They will give their interpretations of Turkey In The Straw.

Tone Color To Highlight Music Appreciation Hour

Next week's music appreciation hour will feature a lesson in tone color, Madison Devlin, instructor, announced last week.

Fanfare from Le Martyre de Saint Sebastian by Debussy, and Fanfare from La Peri, by Dukas will feature the tone color of brass instruments.

Mozart's Clarinet Concerto in A Major will be used to display the tone color of a woodwind.

Pastorale, by Franck, will then show the tone color of the organ, Devlin concluded.

Held in Room 200 at 9 o'clock every Tuesday, the music hour is open to all interested students.

Ferry Siren Rings Out Once More, Welcomes Bataan Heroes Home

By Grace Martinez

Every town or city has its symbol of freedom, a small "nothing" which means a lot to the citizens of that town or city. San Francisco has a symbol, too . . . it is the whistle of the Ferry Building.

Since sometime after Pearl Harbor, the Ferry whistle has rung only as a warning of approaching danger, no longer does it sound out the time—8 a.m., 12 and 4:30 p.m. Residents within hearing of the whistle missed it and longed for the day when they would hear it again without fear.

And then it did ring—not as a warning of danger, but as a greeting—an announcement.

At 11 a.m. on March 8, 1945, the Ferry whistle poured forth its greeting to the Heroes of Bataan. The blast first caused excitement. Then it brought tears to the eyes of those who could "remember when . . ."

Unlike the Bataan March of Death, the heroes were paraded up Broadway Street from Pier 15 to Columbus Avenue and then toward Bay Street and the Hospital. And all the while the ferry whistle sounded. A long, friendly sound it was.

Some day soon it will ring again to announce the end of world suffering and the coming home of "all the boys."

Yes, San Francisco has its symbol of freedom. It may only be a noise, but through its silence it made The City That Knows How the city that shows how.

Drivers To Receive Police Citations For Illegal Parking

Drastic measures in the form of police citations to be imposed on students and faculty violators of the college parking rules will become effective today, according to Edward E. Sandys, dean of men.

Orders have come from the office of the Superintendent of Schools banning parking, except on the circle drive between the main building and the gymnasiums, to prohibit blocking of entrances to the delivery vans, and to prevent further damage to the lawns.

Special windshield permits will be issued by Dean Sandys to persons entitled to them.

Drivers must refrain from parking on the north and south ramps to the courts flanking the college building, and from parking on the hills on either side of the building.

Police tactics will be used if necessary to enforce the rules, Dean Sandys warned. Ellis Udall, a student affiliated with the Police Department, has been authorized to tag the cars parked in illegal areas.

Students Want 7 Week Summer Sessions Here

Results of last week's summer session proved that an overwhelming majority of students are in favor of the two seven week summer sessions, J. Paul Mohr, registrar, declared Friday.

This plan will be placed before Curtis E. Warren, superintendent of San Francisco public schools, when he returns to the city.

Under this plan students will probably have to attend classes six days a week, but are not compelled to go to both sessions in order to get full credit. Attendance at one session gives full credit, Mohr said.

Wednesday, April 4, is the last day on which to drop a semester course. Students wishing to drop a course must apply for a blue slip in the registrar's office and get the signature of both the instructor and counsellor and return to the office.

Students are warned not to forget the last part of the procedure of returning the blue slips to the registrar's office.

Next Monday And Friday Are College Holidays

Next Monday, March 26, and the following Friday, March 30, will be college holidays, the registrar's office said last week.

Monday is set aside for the regular faculty institute, and March 30 is Good Friday.

Star-Studded Rally In Men's Gymnasium Tomorrow At 1 O'Clock; Campus Program Will Feature Popular Singers, Dancers

Sporting new red sweaters, Don Albers, Jean Kay, and Doris Pederson, newly appointed yell leaders, will head a star-studded program rally tomorrow at 1 o'clock in the men's gymnasium.

According to Chuck Shea, Rally Commissioner, Tommy Conine will be master of ceremonies of the gala affair, featuring fellow students who have frequently entertained at Army shows and the Stage Door Canteen.

Among the many stars participating are Eileen Christopherson, soprano, and Norma Busse, who will sing I'm Just a Girl Who Can't Say No and give her interpretation of Rudy Vallee's Old Sow Song.

Two other performers are a tap acrobatic dance team, Bea Dorsett and Charlie Hulse, who will give their interpretation of "Turkey In The Straw."

Entertainment rallies have been none too frequent at the "college on the hill," Shea said, and added that he is lining up more talent for future rallies. Each new rally will be bigger and better than the last, Shea hopes.

CAB Sets Club Charter Deadline March 29

Petitions for club charters for clubs which did not file last semester and for any new clubs is next Thursday, March 29, according to Beth Wilcox, Club Advisory Board president.

The ruling that established clubs must apply for charters each semester was abolished at a recent meeting of the CAB. It was also decided that only new clubs must apply for charters to be recognized officially.

No clubs will be recognized without their petitions for charters in. Petitions may be obtained from Dean Edward A. Sandys and must be returned to that office.

The Cosmoplitan Society filed a charter as a new club last week, and Omicron Phi Pi and Pi Mu Nu must make new applications for charters because they were formerly recognized but failed to file a petition last semester.

Cosmopolitan Society Hears Imminent Speaker

Opening its activities for this semester, the Cosmopolitan Society last week presented Dr. Alfred Fisk co-pastor at the Fellowship Church, and instructor at State College.

Subject of Dr. Fisk's 30 minute lecture was What Schools can do to Lay the Foundations of World Unity.

Dr. Fisk's lecture was based on three assumptions, first that "there is more than enough of everything for everybody."

Second of Dr. Fisk's assumptions was that "after the war and victory, we shall have to live in the same world together with 60 million Japanese and a similar number of Germans, and that we shall have to get along with them."

Third assumption of Dr. Fisk's was that the "basic human nature of the Japanese and the Germans is the same as ours."

Especially emphasized by Dr. Fisk were points that "world welfare must come ahead of national welfare. Vengeance can have no place in postwar arrangements, and that imperialism and exploitation of other people must go."

Dr. Fisk's lecture was enthusiastically received, and a period of discussion and questions followed his talk.

Low Sophomores Elect Grace Pisa President

Grace Pisa defeated Ernest Poggi for president of the Low Sophomore class in a second election held last Friday. Theo Mitchell won over Bert Oldham for the vice-presidency.

The election was held when it was discovered that stuffing of the ballot box had occurred previously. Action taken by the student election committee provided that the guilty student be denied participation in all college, Associated Student, club, and class organization activities.

Winter, Ringius Win $100 Bonds In Essay Contest

Robertine Winter and Helen Ringius, students here, were among four winners of the 500 word Brucato essay contest held last semester, President A. J. Cloud announced Monday.

Both wrote on the subject, How Can We Improve the Present Distribution of Farm Products, with Mrs. Winter, a student in Miriam Escher's English class, awarded first place, and Miss Ringius, student in Dorothy Mercer's class, awarded second. Prizes are a $100 war bond each.

Winners writing on the other subject, A Post-War Plan for Civic and Commercial Betterment, are both students at San Francisco State College. Kenneth A. Green, former student here, won first prize, while James Hester won second. Again both prizes were $100 war bonds.

The $400 in bond prizes were donated by John Brucato, sponsor of the contest, and supervisor of the Agricultural Division of the San Francisco Water Department.

Because of the early withdrawal of the University of San Francisco, only two remaining colleges, San Francisco State College and this college, were left to battle it out.

As an additional feature of the contest, a public reading of the two top essays was held before the City Board of Supervisors, last Monday.

Judges of the contest included Thomas A. Brooks, Chief Administrative Officer; Deming Tilton, director of the City Planning Commission, and Carol Newbergh, president of the Central Council of Civic Clubs.

Steady Flow Of Customers, Quiet Lure Of Morticians; It's A Dead Cinch

By Pamela A. Sampson

Morticians are the only people who need not get any pre-"day of reckoning" chills as regards jobs.

According to a supplement to the University of California's Daily Californian, of all employment now being offered, morticians have the least reason for worry.

It is obvious that that field can hardly be cluttered up with idle help, and best of all, the steady flow of customers cannot cease, until possibly, the Russians develop their technique for the resuscitation of the dead to the point when it will no longer be necessary to die.

The American public annually spends thousands of dollars buying the scariest of tales of horror and crime. Yet these same people who delight in blood, thick and dripping, as well as blackened tongues and bulging eyeballs, are in the overwhelming majority too preoccupied to take an employment so ideally suited to them.

As a consequence, there is a sad lack of morticians, and what with trade being as brisk as ever, the remuneration is good.

Students interested (either the chills, or the money of it), may do well to investigate the prerequisites to becoming morticians, which besides a knowledge of chemistry might entail a required reading of 2,000 or more "horrors."

Checking of job possibilities may be made with placement office director, Edward W. Larson, whose office is in Room 155.

Passing The Buck

By Henry P. Buckingham

WE NOMINATE as the most fatuous soul of March, 1945, the person in the government of the state of California who enforced a certain law last week.

The whole story came about in a super secret war plant doing super secret work. The plant is located in the East Bay. The work may not be mentioned here.

On the fateful day when the acrimonious instincts of our boys up the valley were aroused, the plant began work as usual. Along about quitting time a high ranking marine officer and a group of skilled marine technicians rushed into the offices of the magnates of the company.

The officer and the head of the company, in full agreement, went to the laboratory where the secret work was being carried on. The company bigwig explained that the marine officer carried a special order to get so many what-do-you-thinks at the earliest possible date. A plane would be ready to rush them to youknow island in the South Pacific.

Six women (the lab is staffed by women as they show great adaptability to this particular delicate work) of the crew volunteered. They signed a paper saying that they held malice toward none for working over time.

The six women and the marine technicians set to work. Around about 11 p. m. that night, when things looked bright, the light of success went out and all had to work on.

(It was not practical to call on another crew as the nature of the work demands that what one starts one must finish.)

They worked on and on and on. Finally after twenty-two and one-half hours of fatiguing work the job was finished.

The marines naturally will receive their 50 bucks at the end of this month.

The women received in addition to a free meal at a fashionable night club in the East Bay, their regular pay, overtime, double time, triple time and a bonus.

And that's not all. They also got a genuine feeling that they had done something for their country and something for their boys over there. (Most of them were wives of fighting servicemen.) To put it mildly, they were delighted with themselves. They knew they had done something extra.

So what happens? Everything goes well for a couple of days. The martyrs receive the commendation of their fellow workers. All are happy, the scene is serene.

Then some bright-eyed babe in diplomat land spots an infraction of the rule. He immediately presses two or three buttons, telephones a couple of disciples, and contacts Western Union.

Result: The company receives a telegram signed by Governor Warren. This politician's scripture states that the company will receive all sorts of ugly and distaste-

Peacetime Conscription

WHETHER the United States should embark on a program of peacetime conscription is a controversial issue greatly discussed in educational circles and the national government.

It is certainly obvious that the proposed legislation would affect academic institutions throughout the country during the post-war years.

The Associated Collegiate Press last week released a bulletin containing editorial comment of two leading university newspapers. These papers were in complete disagreement.

Condemning the Association of American Colleges' opposition to universal military training as shortsighted and unrealistic, the George Washington University news organ sustained the administration's peacetime conscription bill.

"We, the Americans of today," the paper stated, "have lifted up rifles and cannon that our fathers laid down, and have gone off to fight another war of death, destruction, pestilence and hate. We intend to see that this does not happen again.

"But unlike our fathers and their fathers before them, we intend to do more than hope and pray and put our faith in words and treaties."

Contradicting these views, the University of Wisconsin's Daily Cardinal also offered persuasive arguments.

Declared the Cardinal, "It somehow seems ironic that we can talk so much about the need to be prepared in case we should have to fight a war at some future date—and to support that theory, to bring up the fact that we were not prepared in some of the tragic battles of this war.

"Thus," the Cardinal concluded, "we take the defeatest attitude of working for a means for fighting, rather than using our energy and our ideals to organize a means for preventing war."

Both publications have advanced convincing and stimulating assumptions. For the present, The Guardsman will remain nonpartisan in its editorial policy.

The Guardsman, however, affords all students here a splendid opportunity to voice their own sentiments on peacetime conscription.

Letters, submitted to Room 134 by 11 o'clock on Thursday, will be published below in the Ram's Horn column.

We sincerely believe that an open forum in this newspaper is an effective method of insuring the democratic principles of free speech and freedom of the press.

Letters To The Editor

RAM'S HORN

● Summer Session

Editor, The Guardsman:

It seems to me that the old adage, "All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy," still stands. That is to say, if summer session began on the Monday following the commencement of the Spring term and ended on the Friday before the beginning of the Fall term on Monday, very few people, if any, could find time for much of a vacation. I know that many people will say that there is a war on and we must use all available time, but what about the men who expect to go into the service and could not possibly finish one 14 week term, where many of these could easily finish one of the seven week terms.

Here is another point I would like to bring up. I expect to go into the service at the end of this year or the beginning of next year. I would like to attend one of the summer sessions and take a short vacation and work during the other period of time. Would this be possible?

The latter plan would enable me and many others to work for a time and earn enough money for board and room and clothes. For some it would mean the opportunity to save up a little money for when they enter the service. If summer session ran straight through for 14 weeks, I am sure that many others besides me would find it necessary to drop out in the middle of the session. If the session runs for two seven-weeks periods we would probably have to go to school on Saturdays also. Now some people will say that this would deprive them of the opportunity of working on Saturdays, but surely the seven Saturdays that they would miss if they attended one of the summer sessions cannot compare with the seven full weeks of work that they would get otherwise. On the whole I think that the plan of having two seven week periods is far the superior of the two offered. —N. J. A.

Janice Beanston Heads WAA; Group Honors Sue Miles

Janice Beanston was chosen president of the Women's Athletic Association as a result of an election held last Thursday. Miss Beanston will be assisted by Jean Fitler, vice-president; Loys Daskarolis, secretary; and Ouida Arnold, treasurer.

The outgoing president, Sue Miles, conducted the meeting and was presented with a brand new badminton racket by the WAA members in appreciation of her service in the past semester.

Two more sport managers have been chosen, according to Bertha Mae Keller, adviser. They are Carolyn Burns for softball, and Virginia Wells for the bowling group.

Still very active as the basketball team composed of women students. Although not sponsored by the WAA, the players practice regularly and play against top notch competition in the Bay Area. Several practice games have taken place already, and the home team has brought back a share of the victories.

Last Thursday, the team defeated the Oakland Women's Directors 25 to 23 at the Woodrow Wilson School in Oakland. Leagues games coming up include one scheduled with the San Francisco State College Toree.

Regular players on the college team are Irene Mouzakis, Virginia Wells, Alma Price, Bobbie Mercer, Rita Arnold, Wanda McKenzie, and Miss Miles and Miss Branston.

First Aid Students Can Get Certificates

Women students who had First Aid instruction last semester are requested to see Verrell Weber, Bertha Mae Keller, or Laurine Bergin, instructors, to receive their certificates for completion of the Standard Course in First Aid.

WAA Enters Annual Coast Archery Tourney

Participation by women in the annual archery tournament among Pacific Coast colleges was assured last week by Women's Athletic Association leaders.

Competition, conducted by mail, will begin today, and deadline for submitting individual and group scores in the middle of April.

Both beginners and advanced groups will enter the shooting, the beginners shooting from 20 yards and those more experienced shooting a Columbia Round from 30, 40, and 50 yards.

Members of the WAA engaged in a similar tournament last year winning fourth place. Those interested in competing this year were urged last week by Bertha Mae Keller, instructor, to sign up immediately.

Ram Nine Tangles With Menlo In Park Tomorrow, Meets Cal Varsity Saturday

The Ram baseball squad, with one game under its belt, will enter upon its inter-collegiate schedule by tangling with Menlo Junior College tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 o'clock at Golden Gate Park and with the California Bear Varsity at Edwards Field on Saturday at 2:30 p. m.

The probable starting lineups for the games is Steve Nedermer behind the plate, John Lopeman on the mound, Ed Kenna on first base, Gerald Shaughnessy at second, Henry Boone guarding the hot corner, Chuck Shea on short, Manuel Castro in left field, Keith Harper in center, and Howard Beauchamp patrolling in right field.

Other games on the schedule so far will be played with San Francisco State on March 30, Commerce on April 3, Modesto Junior College on April 13, San Francisco State on April 20, and Menlo Junior College on April 27.

Intramural Play Begins Tomorrow

With team entry blanks for intramural basketball filed yesterday, competition begins tomorrow as provided in a schedule posted in the men's gymnasium.

Any team failing to appear at the time scheduled will forfeit the game, Coach Jack Brady, intramural director, warned last week.

The schedule provides that all games will be played after class hours, not during regular physical education class periods, Brady emphasized.

The tournament will be conducted in round robin with each team playing off games with other teams. Awards to first team winners are to be gold medals, to second team winners, silver medals.

Because some confusion has arisen concerning eligibility for play, Brady explained last week that any but a letterman who has earned his block in Ram basketball is eligible. Winners of high school blocks in any sport may participate.

Five other intramural activities are expected to be conducted this spring, Brady added. These will be touch tackle, ping pong, tennis, badminton, and boxing.

Granted sufficient interest, both singles and doubles competition will be arranged in tennis and badminton, and there is also a possibility of mixed doubles if the singup warrants it.

Ram Cagers Revive Play To Paste Marin 59 To 38

Old man basketball, who by all rights should be dead, performed a miraculous resurrection last week when the Ram quintet massacred a supposedly non-existent Marin Junior College five by a score of 59 to 38.

As far as defense goes, the men from Marin were, in reality non-existent, as the Rams scored almost at will. The San Franciscans were bolstered by the return of Bill Calhoun at a guard post who played a very effective game on the defense and turned in total of 11 points on the offense.

High point man for the contest was Lawney of San Mateo. Center Tom Rodman tanked 16 points for the Rams.

Dr. L. Richard Cipes, former instructor at the New York University college of dentistry, says there are several features of penicillin therapy which make it particularly applicable to dental use.

Nine Ram Hoopmen Recommended For Blocks

Coach Lee Eisan, boss man of this year's Ram cage squad, last week recommended the following men to receive the Block SF award for participation in the intercollegiate sport:

Thomas Rodman, William Calhoun, Richard Franks, Peter Milat, Larry Laird, Frank Ratto, and Niel Coe.

A special award to be made to Serge Gregoriev, who has left the college for the service, has also been recommended by Eisan, as well as student manager for the season, Bill Thompson.

No Track, Swimming This Spring; Tennis Maybe

Although spikes and swim suits will remain hung up this semester at the college, there is still a possibility of tennis competition, men's physical education instructors said last week.

Tennis players interested in forming a team can undertake the proceeding on their own and with the department's blessing, and Frank Reed will act as team manager. Arrangements can be made through him and should be as soon as possible if there is to be competition, Coach Lee Eisan advised.

Commenting on the absence of track and swimming among spring semester sports, both Coach Eisan and Coach Jack Brady pointed out the already well-known fact that manpower shortages affect the college sports program.

Experienced and novice athletes both are too few to make up teams of college caliber, Coach Brady explained. "It would look," he said, "as though only 'victory' will revive these once popular sports."

University of California's naval ROTC was instituted in 1926.

Ex-Council Names Don Albers To Head Yell Leader Post

In an exceptionally long and tedious meeting of the Executive Council, the Rally Commission was awarded a budget of $60 for yell-leader outfits.

The Rally Commission originally requested $250, which was cut to $50, then pleaded for $75, and finally received the $60.

Legislation included appointment of Don Albers to succeed Don Giannini as yell leader, approval of nine basketball blocks, and delegation of complete jurisdiction of block awards to the Men's Athletic Council representative.

Five budgets, in addition to the Rally Commisison budget, were voted on and approved.

They included $300 for printing Forum Magazine. Restriction that the staff appoint a business manager was imposed. Alpha Gamma Sigma received a budget of $127.50, $100 of which is to be used for two teas to honor students of San Francisco High Schools. The $27.50 will be used for pins and certificates for life members. An additional $30 for a club picnic was disapproved.

High Sophomore class requested and was awarded a budget of $300. Announcement was also made that bids for the class formal will be sold and not given away.

Associated Women Students' budget for this semester, in conjunction with Associated Men Students, received a budget of $350. An independent budget will be submitted by the AMS at a future meeting. Intramural budget for the semester is $125.

Approval of Publications Board request that keys be purchased for the editorial staff of The Guardsman, which won All-American national rating last spring.

Soph Formal Location Not Certain; Select Committee

With the first meeting of the High Sophomore class officers, plans for the Soph Formal were discussed, William Thompson, president of the class, announced last week.

Although the location of the dance has not been decided upon as yet, it will be formal, with tuxedos for the men, and formals for women students of the college, Thompson added.

A dance committee was appointed, including Bill Thompson, Lydia Mills, Fran Davey, Yvonne Bordegaray, Bobbie Mercer, and Irene Shapoff.

Music Hour Features Edvard Grieg's Concerto

Inaugurating a study of the concertos, Madison Devlin, instructor, announced that Edvard Grieg's A Minor Piano Concerto will be heard next Tuesday during the music hour at 9 o'clock in Room 200.

Grieg is the foremost Norwegian composer of recent years. His genius is close to that of the people, his work being saturated with brilliant folklore spirit, and with brilliant local coloring.

Deadline For Forum Material April 30; Assistants Chosen

Deadline for articles to be submitted to the Forum Magazine has been set for April 30, Gertrude Land, editor, announced last week.

Because of a planned increase in the size of the magazine, humorous material will be appreciated, she added.

Newly elected Art Editors of the Magazine are Constance Trigonis and Douglas Hutchings. Three Associated editors have been appointed, Mrs. Land said, but she explained that one of them might be made Business Manager. The appointed associate editors are Helen Ringuis, Mary Yarker and Gwenn Slovenko.

All college students are eligible to submit articles for publication. Compositions in prose and poetry of not more than 1500 words will be accepted, and should be turned in to Advisers Dorothy Mercer in Room 251, John Gerstung in Room 237, or to the editor, Mrs. Land said. She also said that caricatures will be accepted.

Mrs. Land added that because the magazine will be printed instead of mimeographed, the price may be raised to 50 cents.

Students Will Receive Mid-term Grades March 29

Advisers' meetings will be held next Thursday, March 29, and it is anticipated that students will receive grades at this time, according to Edward H. Redford, head counsellor.

Students should see their advisers during the 1 o'clock hour, free periods, certain laboratory classes, or during the adviser's office hours. Rooms of the advisers will be announced in the next issue of The Guardsman.

Redford warned that grades not picked up will be sent home.

A list of all students and their advisers will be posted on the first floor main bulletin board.

AMS Picnic Will Replace One Of Semester Dances

Plans for activities of the Associated Men Students have been discussed for this semester.

Uppermost of the plans was a picnic for all college students. A place for the picnic will be chosen where students may picnic, dance and play games. However, if the college students fail to show enthusiasm for the picnic, plans for it will be discontinued, Vic Pudlowski, AMS president, said.

Other plans for the semester include a smoker—joker for all men students of the college to take place at the California Club or the men's gymnasium. Refreshments will be served and guest speakers will be invited.

Traditional barn dance, given by the AMS every semester, will be given jointly with the Associated Women Students this semester. It has been tentatively set for Friday night, May 18, at the California Club. Pudlowski expressed the hope to have some local entertainment for the dance.

Art Students To Design Murals For Newly Planned Recreation Room

By Theodora Wong

Some young Olmsted, or Rivera, may blossom out with a new technique in murals this semester. He (or she) will play no small part in the college's collection of modern art. He'll be the one to design the mural or murals to be painted in the old rifle range if and when the latter is converted in to a student recreation room.

Of course, it's all been hush-hush about the new recreation room; the administration's word is that the plan is not yet "authorized," yet the subject was broached at the last executive council meeting.

However, in Room 160, where art classes instructed by Richard Allman spend occasional creating moments, the word is "go," and a score of college men and women artists are limning in their inspiration on paper.

The mural design chosen, said Allman, will be executed on 250 square feet of wall space in a special type of oil medium which will save the expense of revarnishing. Not all impractical, these artists.

"Probably about 20 students will do the work," predicts Allman.

It is hoped that plans for the mural or murals will be put up in the showcase in the main hall in a few weeks.

Colleen McInerney Crowned Queen At Victory Garden Show Last Week

To stimulate interest in the San Francisco Victory Garden Program, Mayor Roger Lapham last Thursday crowned Colleen McInerney, student here, queen of the Victory Garden Show.

The show was held in the City Hall rotunda in conjunction with the Camelia Society Show.

Miss McInerney was selected by an Executive Council vote from five candidates. A general election could not be held because of lack of sufficient time.

Carrying out the victory garden theme, the queen's throne was banked with fresh vegetables and her attractive crown was made of fresh vegetables by Ray Herman, florticulture instructor.

Exhibits from the college included a victory garden clinic under the direction of Reginald Porter which gave information on the control of common gardening pests; a victory garden booth for signups for plots under the direction of Ray Herman; an equipment display, directed by Tom Wilson; and a nutritional display under the direction of Frances Mount, which included phamphlets and information on home canning.

President Archibald J. Cloud is City Chairman of the Victory Garden Association and hopes to see the college play a large role in the gardening program.

AGS Plans Tea For High School Honor Students

Alpha Gamma Sigma will hold a series of teas honoring the High School Honor Societies this semester, Marilyn Zito, president, announced last week. The first of the teas will be held some time in May.

Miss Zito also announced that participants for the radio show, Quiz of Two Cities, to be held between the college honor society and the Pasadena chapter, were chosen last week. Those chosen were Martin Colvin, Elizabeth Mann, Gwenn Slovenko, and Ed Whaley.

Tickets will be secured for the students, Miss Zito said, but their distribution has not been decided upon.

It was also decided, according to Miss Zito, that coaching will be offered by the AGS members. Students wishing coaching should leave their names, address, telephone numbers, and subject they wish coaching in, at the AGS office in Room 345. Coaching fees will depend upon the individual coachers, Miss Zito said.

Drama Group Plans First Performance Early In May

Initial performance of the college drama group will probably be given May 9 or 10, Ruth Somers, instructor, announced last week.

Performances will be given to the high school honor students who will be the guests of Alpha Gamma Sigma, college honor society, sometime in May.

Casting is now under way and because of the large class, will probably run into next week. Several plays are under consideration.

Low Frosh Name Cantwell Dance Committee Head

Ed Cantwell was named chairman of his class dance committee at a Low Freshman meeting held last week. Purpose of the committee is to create an interest in college social affairs and also to teach dancing to those wishing help.

This plan followed an edict from Dean Edward Sandy's office after last Friday's freshman dance, in which he said, "If more spirit and cooperation is not shown at the Freshman dance, NO MORE dances will be held!"

The committee plan will be presented to the Executive Council for approval at its meeting.

Cantwell announced that the first of a series of weekly dances will be held this Friday in the cafeteria at 1 o'clock.

Campus Blood Donor Drive To Begin Next Monday Through April 6; Students May Signup Daily In Cafe; Robinet Chairman

Students will be given an opportunity to save the life of a wounded serviceman by pledging a pint of their blood during blood donor signup week beginning Monday, April 2 in the college cafeteria, according to Lois Robinet, chairman of the Welfare Committee. Time for signups is 11 to 12 o'clock each day through April 6.

To start the campaign, a returned veteran will speak at 1 o'clock, April 2, over the college radio system.

Arrangements have been made to transport students by bus to the Blood Donor Center, 2415 Jones Street, on Tuesday, April 10, and Thursday, April 12, at 2:15 p. m. Thirty are needed for each busload.

Miss Robinet urged students to secure the pledges of parents and friends. Credit for such pledges will go to the college. Miss Robinet added that because eight weeks have elapsed since the last blood donor drive, students who contributed blood at that time may now pledge again.

Red Cross regulations state that donors between 18 and 21 years of age must present a Red Cross minor release signed by parents or guardian.

Ann Akokas, Barbara Mercer, and Pamela Sampson are assisting Miss Robinet in the drive.

Advisers To Distribute First Grades Tomorrow

Students must see their advisers tomorrow during the 1 o'clock hour in the rooms listed below, or at other hours either in the rooms or during laboratory hours which can be interrupted, Edward H. Redford, head counselor, emphasized last week.

Redford added that it is hoped photostatic copies of grades will be available for students, but, if not, pinch notices will be given out. Students were warned that grades not picked up will be sent home.

Following is the list of advisers and their rooms:

Cecil Aggeler, Room 140; Richard Allman, Room 160; Flossita Badger, Room 200; Edwin Cranston, Room 100; Claire Cuneo, Room 158; William Eckert, Room 347; Miriam Escher, Room 204; Margaret Flournoy, Office 220; Jules Fraden, Room 309; John Gerstung, Room 136; Virginia Gohn, Office 222; George Green, Room 45; John Herman, Office 330; William Mayo, Room 133; Dorothy Mercer, Room 255; Joan Muscio, Office 134; Harry Nelson, Office 150; Ella Nowell, Office 223; Glenn Noble, Room 334; Milton Polissar, Office 248; Thomas Porter, Room 322; Helen Reveal, Office 221; Jane Scribner, Room 310; Claude Shull, Office 349; Claude Silva, Room 132; Llewellyn Snyder, Room 258; Hilda Watson, Office 107.

Funds From Book Sales Held At College Bank

To claim funds held for books sold through the Book Exchange this semester, the following students are requested to call at the Bank at their earliest opportunity, Luther Lyon, controller, warned this week.

The students are V. Bunting, J. Urriolazoitia, I. Goldsmith, L. Gong, J. Driscoll, G. Land, L. Montes, L. Green, R. Chin, and J. Beanston.

Council Approves Recreation Room, Grants Two Budgets

Approval of a student lounge in the old rifle range in the basement of the college was secured at the last meeting of the Executive Council. Funds for the furnishing of the room will be transferred from the Associated Students' undistributed funds.

Use of undistributed funds is planned because the council agreed that a student lounge will supply a place of relaxation for students, and that such a lounge will serve students of the college for approximately the next 10 years.

Budgets approved by the council were Alpha Gamma Sigma for $40 and $7.50 for X-rays.

The Associated Men Student picnic is still tentative. Difficulty in securing a park has been encountered. Sigmund Stern Grove cannot be used because the park commission limits the number of persons who may use the grove at one time.

Offical announcement was made by class president, Bill Thompson, that the High Sophomore formal will be held at the Claremont Hotel in Berkeley.

The next Executive Council meeting will be held at 1 o'clock tomorrow.

Army At War Art Exhibit In Museum Until Sunday

The Army at War art exhibit which is touring the country under the auspices of the United States Army, will be at the De Young Museum until Sunday, March 31, from 10 a. m. to 10 p. m.

Admission to the exhibit is free, and all faculty members, students and parents are urged to attend.

CAB Will Sponsor Clean-Up Campaign Beginning April 20

So that the college will have a clean campus when the peace conference opens, the Club Advisory Board will sponsor a clean-up campaign beginning Friday, April 20, Ralph Hansen, vice-president of the CAB, announced last week.

Heading the committees are Bill Thompson and Ed Clinton, who will supervise the individual groups assigned to different parts of the campus.

"It is most important that each club is represented at the next meeting," Hansen emphasized. CAB meetings are held regularly every other Tuesday in Room 111 at 1 o'clock.

Beth Wilcox, CAB president, again stated that no clubs will be recognized without charters. Action of the board recently provided that clubs recognized last semester would automatically retain their charters. Any not recognized or newly organized must file petitions by tomorrow.

Deadline For Dropping Courses Is Next Week

No semester courses may be dropped after next Wednesday, April 4, J. Paul Mohr, registrar, reminded students last week.

Students wishing to drop a course must first secure a blue slip from the registrar's office and get the signature of both the instructor and counsellor and then return the slip to the office. These blue slips must be in the office by the deadline, Mohr warned.

This Friday, March 30, is a college holiday, the registrar's office said, the last one this semester.

Parking Tangle Jams Truck Delivery; J. Clotch Pinched

Official announcement that chains will be placed at the entrances to the north and south courts to eliminate all violation of hillside parking was made by Dean Edward Sandys last week. Sandys emphatically stated that the police will tag all cars that are parked on the hill without special permits.

Confusion on the parking line reached an all time high last Tuesday as evidenced by the pictures at the right. The first picture graphically shows what happens when cars block the service entrance to the cafeteria. Besides the inconvenience caused the truck drivers, the danger of the large trucks loosing their brakes is great.

The car in the background has not been seen on the hill since.

As older students at the college will remember, Jasper Clotch is the culprit convicted of vandalism at the Santa Rosa Junior College last fall. If Jasper does not improve his ways and his grades, he will be dropped from the college rolls, officials warned.

Passing The Buck

By Henry P. Buckingham

THE LITTLE FLOWER of New York City has, whether he knows it or not, blossomed into a defender of the Constitution and a challenger of the supreme beings of the federal government.

The federal government has, without authority of the Constitution, promised to all violators of the midnight curfew, pandamonium and purgatory. The Supreme Court again and again has made clear the fact that despite the wartime conditions of the nation, the Constitution must be upheld.

Unfortunately, many people accept the word of the government as absolute. Such sheep-like ways made easy the trails of political victory in the "dictator countries."

Mayor La Guardia's act was prompted not by malice toward the federal government. It accomplished what Mayor La Guardia felt right, that is, that one more hour of operation of amusement spots in New York City would not in any way hinder the progress of the war.

Certainly Mayor La Guardia and New York have no desire to slow down the winning of the war. The mayor is merely doing what he feels right and what, believe it or not, is his rightful decision in New York.

The federal government does not have the direct authority to tell any city, town or hamlet how to run its night life.

For three years California was fooled into the idea that it had to have all bars closed at midnight or else. Then there was a suit in Los Angeles, and the government admitted it had slightly overstepped its authority but it earnestly requested that bars close.

Such a request was plausible, and no one wished to oppose it. How much better it would be if things were a little more above board.

Well anyway, back to the subject; namely, Mayor La Guardia and the Constitution vs. the Washington Ushers.

Mayor La Guardia opens the bars. The army and navy (army and navy are two terms applying to a couple of pals of Byrnes') immediately take action. They say, "Our boys haven't done any wrong, but you have. Therefore we are going to punish you by punishing our boys. We are not going to let them play in your backyard. So there!"

New York is a P.O.E. (Point of Embarkation). A great majority of the servicemen in New York are having their last look at home and also their last look at what is left of civilization. They can't all get in all the amusement places at the same time.

A few other fellows are having their first look at home.

We have a Congress in session. State legislatures still function. City governments exist. It is up to them to decide how to run their part of the country.

Parking

IN ACCORDANCE with a request from the college administration two weeks ago, The Guardsman published a news story and an editorial concerning the Board of Education's parking restrictions for the ramps and courts surrounding the campus.

At this time, the administration warned all drivers of drastic police control if they failed to comply with the official edict.

We thought this action justifiable and in the best interests of the college, since hill parking had damaged city property and had confused drivers and pedestrians alike.

It is now obvious that the parking situation is becoming more acute day by day. In fact, there are as many, if not more, cars parked in illegal areas than before the decree was issued.

Individuals, who by necessity must park in the courts, are still unable to find a space. Delivery trucks are parked on the lawns and in the courts, courts which are scarred with grease and tire marks.

As The Guardsman goes to press, it does not appear that the parking tangle will improve unless a firm and definite stand is taken. The student government might also attempt to assist in the solution of this problem through proper channels.

Promises of police control and threats have proved inadequate in dealing with traffic violators.

The Guardsman has used its limited influence to publicize this issue in a realistic manner. It must, however, have cooperation from the administration factions which originally released the order.

It is the moral and civic responsibility of this newspaper to bring this unfortunate condition to the attention of students here, for "a people without reliable news, is sooner or later, a people without a basis of freedom."

Letters To The Editor

RAM'S HORN

● Cafe Closing Protested

Editor, The Guardsman:

I am writing this in protest of the action last Thursday that closed the cafeteria and library at 1:15. The reason given was that a rally was scheduled in the gym at that hour.

Thursday my classes begin at 9 o'clock and run right through to 1 o'clock. My 12 o'clock class is on the third floor. By the time the class runs a few minutes over the hour and I get through the crowds in the hall to the cafeteria, I find it closed. I'm starving and irritable, and I'm certainly not going to walk down to the gym. Instead, I go home, cutting my afternoon lab class rather than collapse from hunger.

As far as closing the library is concerned, I would like to point out that there are undoubtedly several students here who had midterms after the 1 o'clock hour last Thursday. I might have had one myself, and in that case, I would have wanted to study in the library before that exam. Closing the library just because of a rally is inexcusable.

Maybe some persons have the misguided idea that shutting students out of the cafeteria and the library will naturally result in our attending a rally. They probably shout that one has no spirit if he doesn't stop everything else to attend rallies. Well, it won't work. Force of such a nature will never make a success of anything. I'm now opposed to any college function that will force me to miss my lunch. I repeat. It hardly seems fair to close the cafeteria and the library when they are supposed to be open.

—Still Hungry.

● Nazi Boundaries?

Editor, The Guardsman:

This letter is not to be interpreted as an attempt to enhance the Nazi cause. My name will vouch for that. It is, however, meant to keep you, Mr. Editor, within the realm of your actual knowledge of a situation. Actually the Nazi ferment started in the South of Germany and Munich and Stuttgart were considered the parent centers of the movement. In the North the Nazi theory is more of a disguised old fashioned Prussianism with a swastika armband. That does not make it any easier to tackle, however.

As far as "Heil Eisenhower" is concerned, this happened to my

DISCussions

AFTER the Benny Goodman Sextet's recording of After You've Gone has made the rounds, Slam Stewart should once again become an over-night sensation. Stewart is the boy who takes that outlandish bass solo. Lately he has been recording almost exclusively as a member of the Art Tatum Trio. This, in itself, should be recommendation enough for all fans who have yet to hear his work.

He is decidedly one of the wonders of popular music. Why? Because he BOWS his bass and hums off key at the same time. On this disc, however, he actually slaps the bass while playing rhythm, although he immediately switches to the bow for his solo.

There appear to be only two reasons for this. Either the tempo that had to be set was too fast and he was afraid he would tire out before it was quitting time, or Goodman ordered it. Considering that Stewart kept up with Tatum on their exciting recording of Flying Home, it seems that Uncle Benny had a hand in it.

Stewart is no genius as was the late Jimmy Blanton, but no one can deny that he is an extremely masterful technician.

Imagine seeing him standing before an audience with eyes closed, humming off key, twisting his face in various ways as he dreams up new improvisations, and sawing away like a madman. Even for a non-fan it ought to be at least humorous. How can the bass take it? How can he?

Of course in a sextet there are more than two people. Teddy Wilson and Red Norvo along with drummer Morey Field and guitarist Mike Bryan complete the remainder of the personnel.

Red Norvo was also at the vibes on Goodman's Ev'ry Time We Say Goodbye. Teddy Wilson has been at the piano in every Goodman combo at one time or another.

Wilson is, as everyone agrees, one of the five great pianists in the popular music field. The others are Tatum, Powell, Stacy, and Bushkin. Tatum is by far the greatest.

This recording should be in no way connected with the Trio's earlier discing of the same tune. On the other side is another of the Trio's renditions of Body and Soul. Since its last waxing of this tune, the Trio has changed its personnel in that Field has replaced Krupa at the drums.

New Instructor Joins Women's Physical Ed. Staff

As a substitute on the Physical Education staff, Mrs. Caleen Carter assumed her first teaching position Monday, March 19.

Mrs. Carter formerly attended San Francisco State College and Stanford University as an art major.

As Physical Education instructor, she will teach part time from 8 a. m. to 12 noon.

"I like the girls and the college very much, and am sure I will enjoy teaching here," Mrs. Carter said.

Rams To Meet State Friday

Intra Cage Play Runs To April 12

Intramural basketball is in the fore this week, with the current tourney already well underway. The signup in this sport is definite proof that college spirit is not lacking, for 10 fast teams promise to make this season one long to be remembered

Conducted in round robin form with each team playing off games with the others, the tourney is scheduled to be completed Thursday, April 12.

Signup for ping pong starts this week. If sufficient interest is displayed, Coach Jack Brady has promised that both singles and doubles competition will be arranged. There is a possibility of mixed doubles should the signup reach the wildest hopes, if not the expectations of Al Gorbenko, student intra director.

Although definite plans have not yet been announced, they are being laid for touchtackle, tennis, badminton and boxing.

The partial schedule of play is as follows:

Thursday, March 29

Devils vs. Gunners, 3 p. m.; Red and White vs. Legions, 3 p. m.; Beta Tau vs. Chinese Reds, 2 p. m.; Eager Beavers vs. Indians, 3; Beta Phi Beta vs. Tri Epsilon, 3 p. m.

Monday, April 2

Devils vs. Legions, 3 p. m.; Gunners vs. Chinese Reds, 3 p. m.; Red and White vs. Indians, 2 p. m.; Beta Tau vs. Tri Epsilon, 3 p. m.; Eager Beavers vs. Beta Phi Beta, 3 p. m.

Tuesday, April 3

Devils vs. Chinese Reds, 3 p. m.; Legions vs. Indians, 3 p. m.; Gunners vs. Tri Epsilon, 3 p. m.; Red and White vs. Beta Phi Beta, 2 p. m.; Beta Tau vs. Eager Beavers, 3 p. m.

Ram Five Beats Marin In Season's Last Game

In the last cage contest of the season, the San Francisco Junior College five scored a 48 to 39 victory over the hoopsters from Marin Junior College.

High point man for the Rams was Larry Laird who tanked 16 points. Center Tom Rodman followed with 10 markers.

knowledge only once, and the Fuehrer was a bar fly in an advanced stage of alcoholism.

Royce Brier has compared the behavior of the Germans in the occupied Aachen sector to the occupants of a police wagon after a raid in a bar. They will all tell you: "I had nothing to do with this fight. I just passed the door, when someone pulled me in, and before I knew it, I had a chair leg in my hand and defended myself against those other rowdies." That sounds like plain old fashioned human behaviorism in such a situation the world over. I think we now and then give the Germans and the Nazis too much credit for superdevilish planning for the future.

Traditional Tangle Promises A Host Of Thrills; Local Nine Hopes For Win

By Ralph Krelle

In the Big Game of the college's 1945 baseball season, the Ram nine will tangle with their traditional cross-town rivals, the San Francisco State Gators this Friday afternoon at the State Stadium in a free for all contest with no holds barred.

Having built up an ardent feud over a period of years, nothing means more to a true compatriot of the Ocean Avenue institution than to "plow under" a member of the State clan (and vice-versa).

The contest will reflect this attitude, as members of both squads will be playing for keeps. To win this game decisively would compensate for all the other setbacks that the Ram might encounter during the 1945 diamond season.

Aside from the pitching, the State squad appears to be mediocre, and the prospects of attaining the coveted victory for the Ram is bright. The tentative lineups for the contest will be: Lopeman pitching, Nedermer catching, Kenna at first, Shaughnessy on second, Boone at short, Castro, Harper, and Beauchamp in the outer gardens.

Last week's contest with Commerce High School, which was rained out, will be played on Tuesday, April 3.

Ram Tennis Team May Battle Menlo, U. C.

Late April will see a Ram tennis team in shape to represent the college. Meets will probably be held with Marin, Menlo, and San Mateo Junior Colleges, and possibly University of California.

Several racqueters, including Co-Captains Bill Coval and Frank Reed, are practicing on the college courts when weather permits, and playoffs for team positions are to be scheduled soon.

The majority of the new players are new students from San Francisco High Schools.

Coval and two teammates were the top three players on the Polytechnic team. Two former Lowell men are expected to be included, and Reed himself hails from Alameda High School.

The team could use more material, Reed, voluntary manager, said last week, urging all interested in tennis to sign up with him immediately.

Neither Coach Lee Eisan nor Coach Jack Brady, already shouldering an overloaded coaching schedule, have time to coach tennis, although last week they gave student tennis organization their "blessing."

Dr. John H. Frederick of the University of Texas predicts a network of feeder airlines after the war to service smaller towns.

Error Lets Bears Walkaway 16 To 3

An error after two outs in the second inning cost the Rams their first 1945 diamond appearance made against the California varsity last Saturday.

Seven unearned runs followed the error, and the total score thus eventually arrived at a 16 to 3 win for the Bears.

John Lopeman pitched seven innings for the Rams. Henry Boone and Gerald Shaughnessy failed to appear for the game, thus appreciably lessening the Ram strength at second and in the hot corner.

The Bears, capable of fielding a sizeable squad, put 24 men into action during the game, while the Rams used 14.

Star of the encounter was Cal's Len Liebowitz, who started the Bear runaway in the second when he hit for three with the bases loaded.

Coach Lee Eisan was encouraged with his team, despite the one-sided score, mainly because the Rams appeared with no practice games in the background. Two scheduled the previous week were rained out.

WAA Ping Pong Tourney Scheduled To Begin Soon

Latest activity planned by the Women's Athletic Association is a pingpong tournament which will take place in the women's gymnasium during the next few weeks, Janice Beanston, WAA president, announced today.

Participation is open to all women of the college and signups will be accepted immediately. Miss Beanston also remarked that the playing schedule will lend itself to the students' available time and that prizes will be awarded to the leading contestants.

After a few changes, the final schedule for WAA sports for the rest of the semester is as follows:

Basketball and volleyball, Monday; tennis, Tuesday; softball and badminton, Wednesday; bowling, Friday.

Bertha Mae Keller, adviser, reports that attendance and enthusiasm is on a high par, but as yet no play days have been planned.

The women's basketball team entered in the San Francisco Recreation League scored a recent 10 to 8 victory over the Treasure Island aggregation at Girls High School gymnasium.

Freshman Dance At Century Club Has Spring Theme

Spring will be the theme of the High Freshman dance to be held Friday, April 6, from 9 to 12 p. m., at the Century Club, according to Jean Crenshaw, Associated Student vice-president.

Officially entitled a Spring Carnival Dance it will feature the music of Art Weidner and his orchestra. Refreshments will be provided.

Miss Crenshaw said that since the motif of the dance is spring, "sports clothes will be worn; gayly colored pinafores and dresses for women, and suits with bright ties for men." In keeping with the theme, flowers such as violets and carnations may be worn by the women as decoration, Miss Crenshaw added.

The Social Committee, the members of which are Ralph Hansen, Grace Pisa, Tom Rogers, and Bill Thompson, with Miss Crenshaw as chairman, is completing plans at present for the Low Sophomore dance to be held May 4 and the High Sophomore Formal of June 2 which will end the college social activities for the semester.

Galley Dangers Many, Say Cafe Managers

Warning all students, instructors and other personnel of the many dangers involved in shortcutting through the galley to reach the cafeteria, the hotel management declared last week that it cannot be held responsible for any mishaps.

Pointing out the possibility of trespassers being scalded by a 10 gallon pot of hot soup, or getting caught up in the meat chopper, or simply slipping on newly mopped floors, the management emphasized that it cannot stop to investigate and drain off each pot of soup before serving, or dust people off.

On the subject of people's unwittingly getting caught in the meat chopper, the hotel management was eloquently silent.

Concert Hour Presents Concerto For Two Violins

Continuing the study of concertos, Madison Devlin, instructor, announced that Concerto For Two Violins in D Minor will be heard on recordings at the music hour next Tuesday.

Composed by Bach, this work will be heard as interpreted by soloists Yehudi Menuhin and George Enesco. The orchestra is under the direction of Pierre Monteux.

Drama Group To Present Lively Three-Act Comedy

Spring Green, a three act comedy by Florence Ryerson and Colin Clements, has been chosen by the drama group for presentation this semester, Ruth Somers, instructor, revealed last week.

As the class is large, the play will be double cast, and one group will give the play the first day, and the second the next.

Seventy-Six High Sophomores File Petitions To Graduate Next June

Showing an increase of approximately 26 over last semester, 76 students have filed in petitions for graduation, J. Paul Mohr, registrar, announced last week.

Mohr urged all students who are eligible to graduate this semester and haven't filed petitions to do so at once.

The following is a list of the present prospective graduates:

Ernest Baur, Charmaine Beckman, Merrill Bird, Mary Jane Blair, Edla Jane Boggs, Yvonne Bordegaray, Aline Bowen, Baverly Ruth Bryant, Carolyn Burns, Henry Buckingham, Patricia Burch, Margaret Burgett, Constance Chiveris, Annie Chow, Edwin Clinton, Don Constine, Robert Cook, Laura Jean Crenshaw, Patricia Jane Cullen, Frances Davey, Marylouise Dechery, LaVerne Ann Flonteny, Homer Raymond, Homer Vann, Kathrine Bernadette Voltattorni, Franc Lorraine Weingetz, Bethia Melba Wilcox, Edward S. Wong, Mary Ellen Yarger.

Low Frosh Plans Dancing Lessons For Students

Pending approval by the Executive Council, a plan to build student interest in college social affairs by teaching dancing to students who wish to learn new dances as well as beginners, has been presented by the chairman of the Low Freshman dance committee, Ed Cantwell.

To further student interest, weekly dances are being held in the cafeteria. Cantwell added that efforts are being made to get a college band for this purpose.

AWS, AMS To Sponsor Barn Dance May 19

The barn dance to be sponsored jointly by the Associated Women Students and Associated Men Students has been definitely set for Saturday night, May 19, at the California Club, according to Vic Rudlowski, AMS president.

Plans for the AMS picnic for all college students are underway for the latter part of May or the beginning of June.

Forum Editors Want Contributions Now

Although no definite plans have been made for the distribution of the Forum Magazine, Gertrude Land, editor, announced last week that booths will probably be set up around the college.

About 500 copies will be printed, Mrs. Land said, and they will probably sell at the price of 50 cents.

Mrs. Land reminded the students that although contributions are coming in already, material is still needed. She added that the only requirement for publication is that the article be of not more than 1500 words.

All articles should be turned in to Advisers Dorothy Mercer in Room 251 and John Gerstung in Room 237 or to the editor.

ASTRP Will Conduct Test In High Schools April 12

With the reopening of the Army Specialized Training Reserve Program, a qualifying test will be conducted Thursday, April 12, in all the high schools of San Francisco, the Army Service Forces announced last week.

The test for the selection of candidates for the ASTRP will be conducted on the one day only, and not six days a week as in the past when the test was administered by the U. S. Army Recruiting Station.

The test will be open to young men who were born after September 30, 1927, and before September 1, 1928, and who will have been graduated from high school prior to the date of their enrollment in the program. Successful completion of a quarter of a term of college will be accepted in lieu of high school graduation.

Further eligibility requirements may be secured at the office of Edward Redford, head counselor of the college.

Alpha Gamma Sigma, Forum Club Will Debate

Plans are being formulated by Alpha Gamma Sigma for a debate with the Forum Club, Marilyn Zito president, announced last week. Date of the debate has not been decided yet, Miss Zito added.

In regard to the AGS coaching program, Miss Zito said that no applications have been received yet, but she urged that students, needing help in certain subjects, take advantage of this opportunity.

Tickets for the radio show, Quota of Two Cities, to be held between the Pasadena Junior College and the college AGS on May 12, have been limited to 200, according to Miss Zito, but she said that their distribution is still uncertain.

Miss Zito also announced that the meeting scheduled for tomorrow has been called off because of student adviser meetings.

Larson Warns That "Factories Can't Employ Everybody"

Emphatically quoting the title of an article in Harper's of September 1944, Edward W. Larson, college placement director said, "Factories can't employ everybody!" He added that prospective employees should be prepared to enter the service industries.

According to C. Hartley Grattan, author of the article with which Larson strongly agreed, it will be impossible for factories to employ more than a fraction of the millions of returning veterans.

In this, however, Grattan sees no cause for despair, for according to him, a healthy postwar economy will call for proper distribution of workers among the various occupations making up that economy.

"Best distribution will be one in which the largest proportion of Americans are engaged in the service industries, and the smallest, in manufacturing industries," Grattan believes.

Service industries include transportation and communication, public service, professional service, domestic and personal service and clerical occupations.

Virginia Gildersleeve Only U. S. Educator Appointed To San Francisco Conference

By Theodora Wong

"Frank, fearless and internationally experienced" is the designation of the Washington, D. C., press for the only educator in the country appointed by President Roosevelt as delegate to the San Francisco Conference on the adoption of a charter for the United Nations.

The woman who received this high honor, Virginia C. Gildersleeve, dean of Bernard College, admits she "hates labels" and describes herself only as a "patriotic citizen."

Dean Gildersleeve was one of the founders of the International Federation of University Women and, as president for two terms, was particularly successful in handling the representatives of the smaller nations and making them feel that they had a fair hearing.

After the last war she was one of the farsighted few who insisted on "the establishment of some ordered system of international government, backed by power enough to give authority to its decrees."

A past delegate to many international conferences, she by now has "no illusions as to what one person can accomplish . . . I realize the responsibilities and shall carry them out to the best of my ability."

But she has indicated that her faith in the outcome of the San Francisco Conference is strong. And she carries to the conference the abilities of a capable administrator to meet the challenge.

College Blood Donor Drive Ends Friday

In the above illustration, drawn by Douglas Hutchings, is portrayed the ambition and expectation of the college Welfare Committee conducting the current Blood Donor Drive. The committee hopes the actual signup will exceed the long line shown above.

Students May Signup In Cafeteria From 11 To 12 O'Clock Each Day

Blood donor signups in the cafeteria will continue through Friday, Lois Robinet, chairman of the Welfare Committee, emphasized this week. Time for signups is 11 to 12 o'clock each day.

Arrangements have been made to transport students by bus to the Red Cross Blood Donor Center; 2415 Jones Street, on Tuesday, April 10, and Thursday, April 12, at 2:15 p.m. Thirty are needed for each busload.

According to Red Cross regulations, donors who are between 18 and 21 years of age must present a Red Cross minor release signed by parents or guardian. Releases may be secured at the signup table in the cafeteria.

Miss Robinet urged students to bring in pledges of parents and friends. The college will receive credit for such pledges.

Because eight weeks have elapsed since the last blood donor drive at the college, students who contributed at that time may pledge again, Miss Robinet added.

In the previous drive, conducted last semester, 125 pledged blood donations, and 85 fulfilled their pledges. Miss Robinet hopes in this drive not only to increase the number pledging but also to accomplish 100 per cent fulfillment.

Members of the committee working with Miss Robinet assisting her in signing up applicants for the blood drive in the cafeteria are Ann Akokas, Barbara Mercer, and Pamela Sampson.

Spring Carnival Dance April 6 At Century Club

Influences of the time have placed their mark on the college, for bobby socks will be worn by the women at the Spring Carnival Dance to be held Friday at the Century Club, from 9 to 12 o'clock.

Contrary to past semi-formal dances, at which formals were worn by the women, and business suits by the men, in keeping with the theme of spring, the High Frosh dance will feature bright pinafores or dresses and bobby socks. Men will wear colorful ties and shirts.

The no corsage rule, which has been in effect at all other class dances, is not in force at the Spring Carnival Dance, Miss Crenshaw added, for spring flowers such as carnations and violets will be worn by the women as decoration.

Students will dance to the music of Art Weidner and his orchestra. Apple cider will be served as refreshment.

Admission is the usual one Associated Student card per couple. Miss Crenshaw emphasized that all students are invited. High Freshman class officers, Ralph Hansen, Mary Jane Force, and Lucille Peters, will be at the door.

The Century Club is located on Franklin Street between Sutter and Post Streets.

Today Is Last Chance To Change Schedules

Absolute deadline to drop semester courses or otherwise change a class schedule is today, J. Paul Mohr, registrar, warned last week.

Procedure to drop or add a course is to obtain a blue slip from the registrar's office and get the signature of the instructor of the class concerned, the signature of the adviser, and return the slip to the registrar's office.

Books Held At Exchange For Owners Until Friday

With the Book Exchange closing for this semester on Friday, all students who have books with the exchange are urged to call for them, Luther Lyon, controller, said this week.

The exchange will be open tomorrow and Friday between the hours of 11 a.m. to 12:30 p.m., and students are warned to bring claim stubs issued by the exchange to identify themselves.

Executive Council Postpones Rally To Next Thursday

Because student club meetings will be held at the 1 o'clock hour tomorrow, the proposed student entertainment rally has been postponed until Thursday, April 12, through action by the Ex-Council last week.

The Rally Committee, including Bob Mills, Dean Edward Sandys, and Bill Thompson, appointed by the Ex-Council last week, now includes yell leader Don Albers.

Although no official budgets were passed by the council, the location of the cement letters has been decided upon. The construction will contain the super-imposed letters S. F., similar to those on the Block S. F., and will be placed in the flower bed in front of the main building of the college.

Plans were also discussed at the meeting suggesting that the college orchestra play for the spring graduation.

Plans for the student lounge are at a standstill pending action by the Board of Education. Art classes completed murals to line the walls of the room, and the paintings are expected to be on display in the show case on the first floor today, Dean Sandys said.

Navy Will Encircle Lower Tennis Court

By Theodora Wong

While WAVE barracks mushroom to the south of the campus, to the other side, around the tennis courts location, the Navy is planning housing construction which will place the college in the position of a civilian institution sandwiched by navy blues.

President A. J. Cloud disclosed last week that Navy Housing Service has requested from the San Francisco Park Commission a lease to erect buildings on approximately 12 acres of this north side city property.

Two hundred small, one-story temporary buildings are planned to meet the housing needs of Bay Area Navy families, Dr. Cloud said. These buildings will be dismantled within a year after cessation of hostilities.

The Navy selected this site only after all efforts failed to gain locations elsewhere in the city, Dr. Cloud said. Tennis courts now on the north property will not be disturbed, but construction will go on around them.

Forum Editors Sponsor Essay Contest Here

Sponsored by the Forum Magazine, an essay contest open to all students of the college is now in progress, Gertrude Land, editor, announced this week.

With the final deadline for Forum material set for April 30, the subject for the contest will be The Post-War World I Want, and a limit of 1500 words has been set. The winning essay will be published.

Mrs. Land reminded students that contributions of essays and poetry are still needed for this semester's issue of the Forum Magazine to be published probably in June.

The only requirement is that the articles be not more than 1500 words. Contributions should be turned in to Advisers Dorothy Mercer in Room 251, John Gerstung in Room 237, or to the editor.

An additional feature of the new Forum Magazine will be the designing of a new and different cover by Douglas Hutchings, Forum art editor.

Forum will be printed this year, Mrs. Land said, and will probably sell for 50 cents a copy. Tickets are expected to be sold before publication.

Passing The Buck

By Henry P. Buckingham

REBUTTAL

There has been wide misinterpretation of a column presented here March 14. This is evidenced by a letter which appeared in the last issue of The Guardsman in the Ram's Horn.

The letter explained that Nazi-ism had its conception in the southern part of Germany. Actually Nazi-ism was founded by Adolf Stocker in the last century. It was publicized by an English traitor named Chamberlain (an ancestor of Neville).

The present Nazi party, or the party as it exists today with its leaders, did have its beginnings in the southern part of Germany. A careful analysis of the situation would bring forth the fact that the south was geographically and politically a better nursery than the north. Because the party did have its childhood in the south does not mean, however, that the southern inhabitants of Germany are more indoctrinated with the causes of Nazi-ism than the people of the North, who are the real supporters of the party.

We might quote, "Birds of a feather flock together," so all the vultures flew north for more than a summer. Now let's go a step further. The "Prussian" Generals come into being in the north at the cadet school at Grosslichterfelde.

Without the Prussians the Nazis wouldn't be worth a Damarosch jive tune. We might observe in passing that the Nazis are unwittingly the tools of the Prussians such as von Rundstedt, Blomberg, Tritsel, Zeitzler, von Kluge. Hitler depends on these boys for the actual carrying on of the war.

About this north-south affair, we might conclude that the Nazis went North at an early age, and there they built up the machine that they now possess or better the machine of which they are fast being dispossessed.

Included in the letter was a paragraph stating, "I think we now and then give the Germans and the Nazis too much credit for super devilish planning for the future."

It is a well known fact that last time we gave them too little credit. We need not reiterate. Military strategists of the last war, and military strategists of this war continually warn us that the Prussians, if not the Nazis, already visualize the next war and a glorious victory.

In this case it would seem apparent that it is better to credit than discredit. Too much is better than not enough.

As far as our knowledge concerning the "Heil Eisenhower" affair, we know only what the news services release to us. We have no magic means of discovering what goes on in the German towns. We trust that no one else has "magic means" either. We thought it was self-evident that "Heil Eisenhower" was used synonomously. If it wasn't self-evident then may we explain. It was a synonym for "don't believe that smile, they may still knife us in the back."

Politics

FORMER governor of New Jersey, Charles Edison, recently wrote an article which strongly condemned college people for their inability to overcome so-called "political illiteracy."

Edison declared that university graduates know less about the processes of government than those persons lacking higher academic training.

Since Edison's article brings forth many debatable issues, we feel justified in publishing the following significant statements.

"Educated Americans, in their eagerness to make money or to get ahead in their professions, have convinced themselves that politics is too tiresome and dirty for them. If it is tiresome and dirty, their disdainful indifference is greatly responsible . . .

"If our democracy is to work, it cannot draw off the able and the intelligent to serve the central government, while leaving the incompetent and the corrupt to serve the localities and the states."

Although we are not in entire agreement with these stimulating views, they should prove challenging to the farsighted and reasonable minds of this educational institution.

We firmly believe that students do take an active and deep interest in current affairs and government problems.

Yet, if democracy is to be preserved for future generations of Americans, Edison wisely points out, each and every college student must give time and energy to civic welfare. Only then will education fulfill its obligation to the world of politics.

Courtesy

MANY citizens have cheerfully offered much criticism concerning San Francisco's transportation system and the lack of courtesy displayed by some of its employees.

It's certainly about time to place disapproval also upon the passengers who daily travel on public utilities.

Courtesy, which should begin at home, can and must be extended both ways. There is little reason for motormen and bus drivers to behave pleasantly and courteously if certain passengers fail to acknowledge the presence and general well-being of all people.

Let these streetcar commandos remember old-fashioned courtesy, and analyze their own manners before judging those of others.

Letters To The Editor

RAM'S HORN

● Debating

Editor, The Guardsman:

I am a new student here and I am wondering about something. When I was in high school all the schools were interested in entering debating and oratorical contests of one sort or another. I thought that when I entered college the interests in this field would be twofold, but instead I find that practically no one is interested at all. If all the other colleges can find time to enter into these forensic activities, why can't we do it too? I think it would be fine if we could have a school debating society that would be sponsored by one of the members of the faculty. Would this be at all possible?

● Pigs Is Pigs

Editor, The Guardsman:

Lately thore has been a great deal of discussion concerning peacetime conscription. I refer to The Guardsman editorial in the March 21 issue.

It seems that war must come, or at least our favorite pastime is killing off the excess population. Until some genius finds a way to get the human race to talk things over intelligently, there will be a war approximately every 20 years.

Peacetime conscription need not be a method of making a democracy a nation of lustful fighting men; it can be a very useful idea. If that war must come, we should intelligently condition ourselves to

DISCussions

LAST week saw the inauguration of Laura into the program sheet of almost every big name band. This modern classic should make its conspicuous entrance on the Hit Parade within the next three weeks. Taken from the original score of the movie of the same title, it consists of Rakin melody and Mercer lyrics.

Woody Herman chose Laura to be his first recording for his new boss, Columbia. One thing is definitely proved by this disc. The Herman crew are a strong unit of enthusiasm, concerned only with the Herman crew. The beauty of the selection is completely lost in the spirit of their arrangement.

The arrangement itself is a work of art. It's sooo ultra modern. The peak is hit when the terrific technical ability of the crew is spotlighted in the modulation from the opening introduction to the vocal. It's mad, exciting, and daring. Is the average listener ready for it? Modulation simply means a change of keys.

Herman is not capable of doing a good vocal of Laura, but he does succeed in carrying the assignment of this arrangement. The ending is ridiculous. What a scream.

Sided with it is an amusing version of I Wonder. This combination makes this disc a must. Both are essential to the development of modern listening.

Back to Laura. The movie seems to be the hit of many years. The tune is of the same mood as the flicker and will probably receive its true interpretation from either Ellington or McIntre. If Sinatra does it, kiss your girl goodbye. A true arrangement has to be done with restraint, for Laura in itself is art. Laura is a supreme symphony of ultimate sophistication.

NOTES

The Mercer-lyrics of Dream contain such a profound philosphy . . . Tippin' In is merely an adaptation of Don't Get Around Much Any More, which was a conversion of the original Ellington Never No Lament . . . Subtle humor is at its best on the Duke's Carnegie Blues. . . . Winchell's calling Calloway's Let's Take The Long Way Home a champ is unscholarly to say the least. . . . In answer to Betty Hutton's Stuff Like That There, Here I Is Bette.

Parrot Hitting Power Slaps Ram Nine 8 To 1

The Polytechnic Parrots flew to an 8 to 1 win over the Rams at the big ice diamond last Tuesday.

The Parrot hitting power, led by Bob Felibatto and Bob Nard, were the main factors in the defeat of the Rams. Two other factors which helped the Parrots win was the failure of the Rams to hit when men were on base, and several errors when Parrots were on base.

The lone Ram run came when Chuck Shea was on third base. With Poly ahead one to nothing, Shea pulled a trick out of his bag of tricks and stole home under the nose of Murphy, the Poly catcher.

Henry Boone, who pitched for the Rams, had good control of the ball, but did not have too much help in the infield.

Among those who looked promising during the game were Shea, John Lopeman, Pete Milat, Ernie Poggi, and Harper for the Rams—For Poly they were Hughes, Murphy, Nard, Felizzatto, Martenesa and Marlowe.

Other games thus far scheduled for the Ram nine include Modesto Friday, April 13; State again Friday, April 20, and Menlo Friday, April 27.

Previously announced games with Commerce and Menlo were rained out.

Freak Home Run In Seventh Sends Gator Nine Ahead To Nip Ram Plans 8 To 6

San Francisco State nipped the Rams, 8 to 6, last Saturday at the Harrison diamond in a game fairly well played until the seventh inning. Then Lavender of State hit a ball into left field, the ball took a crazy bounce away from the left fielder and rolled almost to the fence before it was retrieved, too late to stop Lavender on his way to a home run.

Johnny Lopeman pitched beautiful ball for the Rams, striking out ten batters. Don Grant played a magnificent game at the hot corner, besides getting a single. Henry "Boom Boom" Boone and Paul Nederman were the heavy hitters for the Rams, getting 2-5 and 2-4 respectively. The Staters received many lucky breaks, one being the above mentioned "freak" home run. As in the two games played before, the Rams lacked some of their hitting power when men were on base.

These Staters played good ball in their win: Ferceira, 3b; Roelling, p.; Lavender, cf. Ram players who were outstanding were Lopeman, p.; Grant, 3b; Nederman, c., and Gerald Shaughnessy, 2b.

WAA May Meet State In Playday April 11

Members of the Women's Athletic Association have been invited to a basketball play day at San Francisco State College on Wednesday, April 11.

Bertha Mae Keller, adviser, however, hopes to have this date postponed a few days, because the WAA basketball team is scheduled to play a Recreation League game that evening.

Annual Spring Sports Day will take place here on Wednesday, May 9, with State College the guest. Janice Beanston, WAA president, anticipates a large turnout and plans competition between the two colleges in archery, badminton, tennis; volleyball, and softball.

Both Miss Keller and Miss Beanston have again expressed their desire for more active WAA members, especially for the sports of badminton, archery and tennis.

More entrants are being sought for the table tennis tournament, Miss Beanston further reported, and she hopes to have this latter tourney functioning soon.

Jean Fitter, newly elected WAA vice-president, submitted her resignation last week to join the Cadet Nurse Corps.

The women's basketball team recently added another victory to its impressive record. A team composed of Waves, known as the Treasure Island Docettes, was the latest victim, bowing by a score of 20 to 8.

Self Started Ram Tennis Team Opens Season Today Against Poly; Marin Friday

An eager Ram tennis team, self-started and self-coached, opens its season playing against Polytechnic High School today at Golden Gate Park.

The Ram team is captained by Frank Reed, football letterman who hails from Alameda High School where he played varsity tennis for three years. Reed has, with the consent of the men's physical education department and the approval of Dean Edward Sandys, organized a team that at present consists of eight players.

The Parrots, led by Captain Frank McAdams, who is one of the top ranking junior players in Northern California, appear to be about the best balanced prep net team in San Francisco. Oddly enough, the Ram team has five Poly grads on the starting team. They are Don Cowderoy, Gilbert Black and Bill Covall, all who played for the Poly team last year; Frank Gugliemoni, who played for Poly about two years ago, and Ed Cantwell, former Poly net star and Army veteran.

The only other candidates for the team are Ken Hansen and Dick Lowenguth, both formerly of Lowell High.

Opposing Poly's McAdams in the feature singles match will be Bill Covall, who played with McAdams on the Poly team last year. Today's struggle between the two will revive a friendly rivalry that lasted all last year.

The match will consist of six singles and three doubles as follows:

SINGLES

Frank McAdams (P) vs. Bill Covall (JC).

John Hallgren (P) vs. Frank Reed (JC).

Don Gordon (P) vs. Gilbert Black (JC).

Jack Levin (P) vs. Don Cowderoy (JC).

Don Price (P) vs. Ed Cantwell (JC).

Al Detrick (P) vs. Frank Guglicmoni (JC).

DOUBLES

McAdams - Hallgren vs. Covall-Cowderoy.

Gordon-Levine vs. Reed-Black.

Detrick-Price vs. Cantwell-Guglicmoni.

Arrangements for matches against California, U.S.F., State, and other junior colleges are now being completed, Reed said. A second match is definitely scheduled for this Friday against Marin Junior College on the Marin courts.

Signups may still be made for the team through Dean Sandys or Reed.

16 Games Remain On Intra Schedule

Intramural basketball is off to a fine start, as the Indians take a seemingly fiendish joy in making their presence notable only by their absence, now forfeit their last two games for non-appearence. Obviously, the Indians feel that Coach Jack Brady will appear more sophisticated if he becomes a bit prematurely gray.

The change of part of the schedule of games to be played may be made at the time of play. This is due to some mystic power that runs rampant in the gym and is not to be construed as a lack of diligence on the part of the reporter.

Ping pong signup is still in the "coming soon" classification, but is expected the latter part of this week.

The partial schedule of play is as follows:

Thursday, April 5

Chinese Reds vs. Tri Epsilon, 3 p.m.; Legions vs. Beta Phi Beta, 3 p.m.; Gunners vs. Eager Beavers, 3 p.m.; Red and White vs. Beta Tau, 3 p.m.

Bill Thompson Heads CAB Campaign To Cleanup Campus

Plans are being formulated for the opening of the campus clean-up campaign April 20 under the sponsorship of the Club Advisory Board, Beth Wilcox, president, said last week.

Groups selected from each club officially recognized will be assigned to different parts of the campus by Bill Thompson, chosen to supervise the project.

Three clubs officially approved by the board for chartering by the Executive Council are Newman Club, Pi-Mu Nu, and Pi Mu Gamma.

Beginning tomorrow, every other Thursday is automatically set aside by Dean Edward E. Sandys for club meetings. Rooms were assigned each club for meetings, and Pi Mu Nu will meet in Room 326, Pi Mu Gamma in Room 306, Miss Wilcox said.

Parking Tangle Improves But Dean Not Optimistic

Although the parking situation has improved temporarily, Dean Edward E. Sandys expressed no optimism for its continuance unless he is given authority to issue tickets to parking violators.

A chain will be stretched across the drive and down the hill to prevent cars from being driven around the ramp, he said last week.

Dean Sandys added that faculty members have no more privilege of parking on the hill than students. A few special permits have been issued allowing some cars to park on the hill.

Bruch's Concerto No. 1 Features Next Music Hour

A recording of Concerto No. 1 in G Minor for violin and orchestra by Bruch will be featured on next Tuesday's music hour, Madison Devlin, orchestra instructor, declared earlier this week.

Soloist Yehudi Menuhin, accompanied by the London Symphony Orchestra with Sir Landon Ronald conducting, will interpret this work. Menuhin was approximately 16 years old at the time he made this recording, Devlin added.

As usual, the music hour is held in Room 200 at 9 o'clock. All are invited to attend, Devlin said.

Jasper Clotch . . . Attendance Edict Takes Him For Long Count

Jasper Clotch, student rapidly gaining fame for his misdemeanors, did it again last week.

The whole thing began when a crackdown in attendance regulations were announced by instructors following a faculty meeting March 26. The crackdown provided that faculty members could rub students from their class lists if they missed more than the equivalent of one week of class meetings, or two weeks of class meetings, or whatever, when they got right down to it, the individual instructor decided.

Beginning Tuesday, Jasper was in Dutch. According to his nearly 54 IQ understanding, his English instructor allowed 10 cuts, since the course met three times a week. His P. E. slave driver set the maximum at six cuts. His math teacher accentuated the positive of two and one half.

His language teacher, being an agreeable chap and enjoying the friendship of the students, imposed no limit, while in geology the number of cuts was at rock bottom. His Poly Sci teacher rarely took the roll, but when he did he stressed a tentative number of 15 cuts.

What with all this differentiation, Jasper bought a slide rule, two scratch tablets and six pencils. With these he decided to figure out his exact position in relation to the registrar's office and the solar system.

After long and tedious hours of figuring, Jasper finally concluded that he had one lone cut left before being tossed on the sidewalk that constitutes Phelan Avenue. Ironically, Jasper was seated in the very class in which he had one cut left.

Jasper gritted his teeth with determination. He would not cut. He would not meet his little South American girl friend, Ancho Lottie, behind the women's gymnasium.

Jasper had will power. Jasper was proud. He had not parked on the hill for a week. He had not left his car on a hill without turning his wheel to the curb. He had parked on Phelan Avenue where parking was approved.

Suddenly the loud speaker buzzed. A voice boomed forth, "Will the owner of the pink Stanley Steamer, license number 2 BO Naught 2 B kindly move his vehicle? The water department wants to tear up the street. If the car is not moved the city will tow it away and give it to the scrap drive."

Jasper was horror stricken. The only legal parking place he could find! He was on the point of hysteria. He dashed from class, zoomed down the hill and moved his car. Then he passed out.

When Jasper awakened, the class he was attending was over. He had his final cut. What could he do? How would he get back into the college? (Please mail suggestion to The Guardsman office, Room 134. They will be forwarded to Jasper.)

High Sophs Choose Claremont For Formal

Location of the High Sophomore formal has been chosen as the Spanish Room of the Claremont Hotel in Berkeley, according to Bill Thompson, High Soph president.

Date of the dance has been set for Saturday night, June 2. Formal attire will be expected to be worn by both men and women.

Although there was a great deal of opposition last semester to having the formal at the Claremont, those attending pronounced it wholly successful.

Such problems as transportation difficulties, gas rationing, and women not wanting to wear formals on the train were much debated.

As yet there have been no definite plans for the election of the Soph Sweetheart, except for the fact that the trophy which is presented to her at the formal has been ordered.

Women's Gym To Close Daily At 4 O'Clock

That the women's gymnasium will close at 4 o'clock daily was announced last week by Bertha Mae Keller, women's physical education instructor.

Students participating in outdoor Women's Athletic Association sports will have to return to the gymnasium by 3:50 p.m. All women students are asked to cooperate with this new ruling.

Marie Wettin Appointed AWS Secretary

Marie Wettin was appointed new secretary of the Associated Women Students last week by Barbara Chambers, AWS president.

The appointment followed the resignation of elected secretary, Anne Le Noir, who filed a leave of absence from the college.

Miss Wettin was chosen to take the office because she was Miss Le Noir's opponent for secretary in the last AWS elections, Miss Chambers explained.

Former Instructor Visits Here, Tells Of Sicily Invasion

Lieutenant Rex F. Harris, former instructor in the engineering department of the college, who was called into service in October, 1942, returned for a brief visit to the college last week.

After a period of training at the Great Lakes Naval Training Station and at Norfolk, Virginia, Lieutenant Harris was ordered overseas.

Lieutenant Harris served on a troop transport which formed part of a convoy sent to Africa carrying American troops which made up the forces invading Sicily.

The successful American forces moved north and set up a naval operating base in which Lieutenant Harris served with great ability as Materiel and Personnel Officer. For his "tireless and ingenious" efforts Lieutenant Harris was later awarded the Bronze Star.

Lieutenant Harris was extremely modest in recounting his experiences and committed himself only in saying that he expects to return to the college after the war.

29 Choir Members Will Sing At Temple Emanuel

Upon invitation from Cantor Ruben Rinder, 29 members from the college choir and voice classes have been selected to take part in a presentation of Mendelssohn's oratorial Elijah, Flossita Badger, choir instructor, announced last week.

Cantor Rinder will direct the production, which is scheduled for some time during the peace conference at the Temule Emanuel. Nelson Eddy will be the featured soloist heard in the role of Elijah. Miss Badger said.

Those selected are as follows:

George Ostertag, Adele Weiss, Patricia McCormick, Barbara Kroetel-ler, Barbara Britton, Agnes Sponse, Lida Branstead, Raymond Mueller, Marguerite Dumont, Howard Slaughter, Jean Crenshaw, Roland Jones, Richard Weyenth, Dorothy North, Myrtle Pietschmann, LaVerne Spring, Marjorie Martin, Florine Rhea, Jean Lash, Lois Ruegg, Beth Wilcox, Helen Schiavone, Eda Nedovi, Winifred Kenny, Martha Lee, Betty Gregg, Nina Banon, Al Rubke, and Ernest Rubke.

"Please Bus Dishes" A Slogan To Obey

"Please bus your dishes" is not a sign to ignore in these days of manpower dearth, lack of space, and the larger demands of huge student appetites, the cafeteria points out in one more plea this week to college students.

The cafeteria staff is currently suffering headaches because many students fail to take their used dishes to the southeast tables in the dining room—causing confused clutter and slowing the cleaning-up service.

"Please bus your dishes" is a necessary request, the cafeteria emphasized again.

Individual Clubs Have Special Tasks For Cleanup Week

Plans for the Club Advisory Board's campus clean-up campaign, officially opening Friday, April 20, were completed, when Bill Thompson appointed individual clubs to various parts of the campus at a meeting of the CAB last week.

Assigned to the men's gymnasium and surrounding area are Beta Tau, Tri-Epsilon and Block SF Society; the women's gymnasium was assigned to Phi Beta Rho, Lamba Chi, Kappa Phi and Theta Tau; the Chinese Club is to care for the court behind the college.

The Cosmopolitan Society and Music Club have been assigned the front lawn; the Engineer's Club has the north end of the college, while Pi Mu Nu will be responsible for the south end. Beta Phi Beta will clean the front steps, and the Women's Service Society and Alpha Theta Epsilon are assigned to the cafeteria.

The organization of a veterans club is under way. At a meeting of 30 veterans last week, Alan Austen was appointed temporary president. John DeDio and Jim Early head the organization committee. The committee's first problem is that of drawing up a constitution and choosing a name for the club.

The room numbers that have been set aside for club meetings every other Thursday at 1 o'clock are posted on the first floor.

Unless a majority of the clubs take advantage of this opportunity to have meetings on the campus, the privilege will be discontinued, Dean Edward E. Sandys stated.

Omicron Pi Phi was the last club to be chartered before the deadline.

AMS Gives Picnic, Dance This Friday In Women's Gym

Following the college's encounter with the Modesto Junior College baseball team here this Friday afternoon, a picnic and dance, sponsored by the Associated Men Students, will be held in the women's gymnasium.

Vic Pudlowski, AMS president, announced last week that the affair will start at 6 o'clock and continue to 11:30 p.m.

A gala program of entertainment is planned, including sack races, games of a varied and competitive type, and a picnic supper consisting of hot dogs, spaghetti, and Pepsi-Cola and will be served.

Vic Pudlowski

Music for the dancing, Pudlowski promised, will be furnished by recordings of top bands over a public address system. Joseph Moss, student here, is in charge of the music.

Members of the Women's Service Society, under the leadership of President Sue Miles, will direct the serving of supper.

"Since the picnic follows the baseball game against Modesto," Pudlowski said, "let's all get out and attend the game before going to the picnic."

Faculty members are invited to the picnic, Pudlowski added, and guests of honor will be the Modesto baseball team.

"Even though the picnic and dance is on Friday the 13th, every one will have a good time even if he is superstitious," Pudlowski predicted.

J. Clotch Takes Another Chance

As the philosophers and the poets say, "All is not lost that is gloomy!" So Jasper Clotch is back in class. Last week Jasper, who was a victim of the recent attendance crack down, spent his final cut moving his car.

From the gloom and depression of being expelled, Jasper conceived a plan. On Friday last he stealthily squirmed into a lecture hall. When his instructor, the one who had bounced him from class, had completed a weekly attendance chart, Jasper stuck out a hand and clotched it greedily.

"Sir," he said, "I will take this scripture to the fair one who is sweet as apple cida. I will save you the long trip to the attendance office."

Then Jasper cunningly got possession of the weekly attendance sheet, as artist Doug Hutchings shows to the left, erased his name and turned it in. Jasper has vowed to be a model student.

Campus Entertainment Rally Tomorrow To Feature Comedy Skit About Umpires; Basketball Team Will Receive Blocks

An entertainment rally, preceding the baseball game of the Rams versus Modesto Junior College this Friday, will be held tomorrow in the men's gymnasium at 1 o'clock, Chuck Shea, rally commissioner, announced this week.

Feature of the program is a comedy skit entitled How To Take Care Of An Umpire, arranged by Donald Albers, and written, produced, and directed by Tiny Ghiorzi. The cast, including George Fabien, Colin Tooley, Ernest Poggi, and Ghiorzi, will present their impresisons of various umpires that they have contacted on the Ram baseball team.

Following an address by Coach Lee Eisan, Bob Mills, president of the Associated Students, will present block awards to the basketball team.

As an innovation, Albers, yell leader, assisted by Jean Kaye and Doris Pederson, will present several new yells at the rally. Also, the With An S and the San Francisco yells will be given by the team.

All members of the Associated Students will join together and sing the college hymn. Copies of the words will be distributed.

Vic Pudlowski, Associated Men Student president, and Shea will conclude the entertainment by giving the details of the picnic-dance to be presented Friday evening at 6 o'clock in the women's gymnasium. Shea stated, "If the college loses the game with Modesto, the Ram team will have to serve all the food for the picnic."

College Blood Donor Drive Recruits 60

Sixty pledges were received in the college blood donor drive which ended last Friday, according to Lois Robinet, chairman of the Welfare Committee.

Miss Robinet emphasized that students who have appointments for Thursday at 2:15 may take the Red Cross bus directly to the Red Cross Center, 2415 Jones Street.

Students who worked at the Blood Donor Booth during the campaign are Sylvia Farber, Clara House, True Ahokas, Lynea Berthelson, Mimi Diamond, Shirley McEntee, Pamela Sampson, Juanita Jerriolagoitia, Jane Swendsen, Lorrie Burns, Dora Greenly, Betty Alten, Loys Daskarolis, and Irene Mouzakis.

Students who pledged are David R. Hall, Jim Coleman, Carl W. Mau, James Rodman, William E. Whaley, Jr., Yvonne Lyons, W. H. Piercy, Raymond Bergman, Iris Henry, Judean Young, Wallace Richardson, Nancy Brown, Isle Goldsmith, Homer Vann, June Sheehy, Illetta Jefferis, Joyce Zachariah, Maureen Brecken, Lois Stanfel, Ross Bloom, Gerald Emerson, Edna Lamas, Denyse Grosser, Ellene Quen, Shirlee Herald, Peggy R. McNamara, Ida Mae Bredeson, Howard K. Slaughter, Don Albers, Vincent Bomben, Chester B. Howard, Don Stewart, Marion Jones, Mary Kennedy, Martha Day, Robert L. Sears, Frank Yorkis, Jr., Pamela Sampson, Geraldine Yeszio, Alma Pucci, Frank Dotoli, Eleanore L. Wohler, C. Beckman, Barbara Brownlee, Betty Lee Taylor, George Zoloth, Donna Witmer, Virginia Willis, and Leona De Bique.

Council Meets In Record Time, Ponders SF Letters

In record time the Executive Council met, discussed, and adjourned last week. Discussion was held on the laying of cement for an S. F. in front of the college.

It was definitely decided that the letters would be etched in a block about 600 square feet in size.

In future years it will be the duty of the freshman class to see that these letters are cleaned and freshly painted each semester.

The block of concrete will be laid in the flower bed in front of the college. The approximate cost will be 120 dollars.

Women's Chorus To Sing At Everett Junior High

Making its initial appearance of the semester, the Women's Chorus will sing at Everett Junior High School Tuesday, April 24, during Education Week, Flossita Badger, chorus director, announced last week.

The program will be sponsored by the faculty and PTA of Everett, and the chorus will be heard in a group of four songs.

More information will be forthcoming in the near future, but it is apparent now that the program will be open to everyone, Miss Badger said.

Violinist Joseph Szigeti Featured On Music Hour

Mendelssohn's Concerto in E Minor, for violin and orchestra, is scheduled to be heard at next week's music hour at 9 o'clock in Room 200, Madison Devlin, instructor, announced last week.

Joseph Szigeti, world famous violinist, will be accompanied by the London Philharmonic Orchestra with Sir Thomas Beecham conducting, Devlin elaborated.

Passing The Buck

By Henry P. Buckingham

THE conference scheduled for this city this month has been a tentative affair. Certain groups have applied pressure to cancel it, while other groups have fought for its continuance.

The question of who gets how many votes and why dominates the scene. Continually people say, "Why don't they make up their minds about the conference?" or, "Why do they retract votes?" Always THEY. Who are these super-magicians who handle the master switch that guides our lives? Theoretically, in this county, WE are THEY.

The people are THEY. Theoretically, that is. It is plain to see that most, in their ignorance, sacrifice this right of self-government. In practice WE are not THEY because WE are lazy and prefer to recognize the existence of this THEY group.

The THEY group takes over and censors when the WE's fall asleep.

VOTES

The British Commonwealth of Nations collectively has six votes. The dominions are independent governments and as independents receive separate votes. This situation is generally accepted by all.

Russia's situation is different. Russia argues that the United States controls the South American countries. There are 21 such governments in South America.

Russia is certain that we control these South American votes, and these countries will vote as we say. Russia, of experience, claims that smaller countries near a large country are satellites and for their own protection will follow this center.

Russian newspapers were very provoked when the United States was being given the run around by Argentina. The Russian mind could not conceive why we did not go down and clean out Argentina. Russia has made it a practice to insure the support of satellite nations. Even now Russia has instituted a government in Poland, in Romania, and is building one for Finland. The objection of the United States and Britain to Russia's political moves is of no avail. Russia is fully aware that the more votes they can control the farther they can progress in the post war world.

It would be impossible to predict how the votes of the various countries will go. The general concensus is that basically the United States, South America, and Britain will vote in the same channels. If this be the fact, then it was indeed a wise and diplomatic move for our government to sacrifice the two votes which we were promised at Yalta.

If the three afore-mentioned vote blocks do not vote in the same channels, then the United States, with its lonely, solitary vote, will be left, despite its great war sacrifice, holding the well known, unfortunate bag!

Sophomore Formal

LAST December, The Guardsman published an editorial admonishing the High Sophomore class for holding its annual formal in Berkeley.

We declared, at this critical moment, that the Key System's trains were heavily burdened with war-time travel. Furthermore, the government's ban on unnecessary driving prevented many people from using their automobiles.

Because certain individuals had already made a hotel contract, even though the administration had not sanctioned the venture, the dance was held in the East Bay as originally planned.

During the Fall, 1293 students were enrolled in the college, with more than 75 per cent residing in this city. Approximately 150 persons attended the formal.

Yet, the pretentious class officers termed the affair a complete success, while fully realizing that most men and women found themselves unable to be present because of transportational difficulties.

When this semester's sophomore leaders announced that the June event would once again be given across the bay, it is surely obvious why The Guardsman and other organizations immediately opposed such action.

Throughout the past week, we conducted a short, but intense, investigation and uncovered a startling fact.

Since the San Francisco Peace Conference has created much confusion among hotels here, the Social Committee was virtually compelled to choose the East Bay for the traditional dance. According to Associated Student Vice-President, "There just wasn't any place else."

Berkeley has the sole available facilities. Although it certainly is not the most satisfactory location, it is the best that can now be obtained.

Anyway, Aloha and good wishes to the students who will confront the traffic problems alone and surge forth to establish a beachhead at the Claremont.

Letters To The Editor

RAM'S HORN

● Maughan Under The Mattress

Editor, The Guardsman:

Before censuring a condition extant in our English department, I wish to disclaim any motive of personal grudge, or "axe-grinding." This is not directed at any individual or individuals. Likewise, I say vehemently, that the two members of our English staff under whom I have studied, have shown a tolerant and helpful attitude. (They are tolerant who can hold to their own opinions, and yet sympathize with the conscientious stand of another.)

I cannot understand how Of Human Bondage could be selected as a text for English 21B. I doubt that any person in the Junior College could pick up the aforementioned novel and read it through without blushing. Surely the reader would feel a furtive and scarcely wholesome reaction from this book.

A few years back, some of us undoubtedly sat up in our rooms reading literature of the same class. At the time, we found it expedient to hide these volumes under our mattresses. Of course, mom would have thrown this literature in the ashcan! She would have made things "hot" for little Jimmy or Susie!

This gal is not closing her eyes to the reality of evil. But must I have a garbage heap before me on my study desk?

Sometimes perverted philosophers are skilled authors—does this make their work appropriate to our study?

—Della J. Cornish.

Editor's Note: Since Somerset Maugham's place in English literature is permanently assured, as well as that of his novel Of Human Bondage, The Guardsman does not feel called upon to come to the defense.

● Math 51

Editor, The Guardsman:

It is registration day. I am hustled into the library and given a series of timed tests. Among them is a math test. There is nothing new to me in this test. It consists of the fundamentals of mathematics, namely addition, subtraction, multiplication and division.

DISCussions

THE King has just recorded his greatest work to date. It is positively the best popular vocal waxed during the last ten years, possibly of all time. His Without A Song is mediocre in comparison. Within three weeks you lucky people will be able to listen to and purchase the Volce's Ol' Man River.

Sinatra on the way out? Baloney. He's just getting started. He proves that without doubt he has a full range, exciting force, and the touch that only an absolute artist possesses. One moment he's screaming his lungs out in protest and the next he confides in the listener with soft, lush tones.

Even with all his schooled qualities, his range, phrasing, breathing, Sinatra could not carry this semi-classic if he didn't possess that yearn, that plea in his voice. To some this natural quality may sound as if it is merely strain, but it really is the Sinatra cry of sincerity. No one can duplicate this quality, no one can duplicate Sinatra.

Incidentally, at this point we would like to thank J. Ahrens for flagging us down before the anti-aircraft guns could get the range. Sent? We were miles up in the stratosphere, floating in heavenly bliss.

Sinatra is accompanied by a 50 piece orchestra with Stordahl conducting. It's hard to explain why this disc is so fantastically great because the real basis for its beauty is Sinatra's natural quality.

Sided with this positive masterpiece is Stormy Weather. It's on an equal footing with Frank's earlier This Love Of Mine and Do I Worry. It isn't anywhere near Ol' Man River, but it is one of the best vocals of the day. Perry Como's Temptation is of the same stuff.

On this side the Voice is backed by a large mixed choir and the same huge orchestra. Fifty pieces. Dorsey got up in the high twenties, but fifty is unheard of.

Woody Herman is at it again for Columbia, the company that is really going places. His latest disc is Caldonia. It undoubtedly will be a big seller. Strictly a novelty, it features good solos and is easy listening. It ends with some typical drive-phrasing from Herman's brass section. On the other side is Happiness Is A Thing Called Joe. Very sepia.

S.F. State-WAA Playday Postponed To April 16

Official date for the San Francisco State College play day has been postponed to next Monday, April 16, Bertha Mae Keller, Women's Athletic Association adviser, announced last week.

Janice Beanston, WAA president, is still seeking more basketball players for this contest and requested that any women free that afternoon sign up soon.

The table tennis tourney will probably commence next week, Laurine Bergin, physical education instructor, reports. This latter tournament is open to all and sign-up sheets are still posted in the women's gymnasium. Mrs. Bergin expects a large turnout, since women may challenge entrants and compete at their convenience.

Tonight the women's basketball team plays another league game, opposing the San Francisco Girls' Athletic Club.

Netters Trim Poly, Marin

Parrots Toppled 6 To 3 In Opener; Rams Upset Marin On Home Courts 5 To 1

The college net team was off to a flying start toward a successful 1945 campaign with two wins over last week end. In their first encounter, the Ram racqueteers defeated Poly High by a score of 6 to 3. The players must have gotten their signals crossed, for only four showed up to play.

All four were victorious in singles and paired to win two doubles matches. Frank McAdams, Poly captain and number one player was toppled by Bill Covall in a close match, 6-3, 6-4. Frank Reed chalked up number two for the college by trimming Johnny Hallgren of the Parrots, 6-2, 6-1.

Reed and Covall teamed to beat McAdams and Hallgren, 6-3, 6-0. Don Cowderoy and Gilbert Black, both came through with straight set wins in singles and teamed to put the finisher on the Parrots.

In their second match, the netters went north to take on the Marin Junior College team Lack of courts and time forced the teams to abandon the usual procedure of six singles and three doubles and just play the six singles.

The Ram team took all but one of the matches to gain a victory of 5 to 1.

For awhile it looked bad for the Rams, when Al Sciaroni won the number five singles for the Mariners from Eddie Cantwell, 6-2, 6-1. Captain Reed evened things up for the Rams by trimming Bill Porter, 6-2, 6-4, while Black put the college team one up on their foes by blasting Bob Ayres, 6-2, 6-0.

Meanwhile Cowderoy and Covall became engaged in marathon matches with their cross bay rivals. Cowderoy had lost the first set 6-2 to Charles Gallagher, while Covall had eked out an 8-6 win in the first set over Don Schrocker.

Covall ran into some trouble in the second set and was defeated 6-0 to tie the match at one set apiece. While Covall was having his troubles Cowderoy began to roll and picked up the second set at 6-3. Here both college players, with luck on their side, cleaned up on the Marin opponents and triumphed in the third set. Frank Gulielmoni's opponent failed to appear and so his win by forfeit finished the matches.

The college netters had a good sized rooting section to cheer them on to victory. It was composed of five women tennis players from the college—Marion Allen, Gloria Lewis, Eldon McCloud, Yvonne Perry and Jackie Tiffin.

Captain Reed said that a return match has been planned for sometime this week at the park courts and that the U. C. date has been set for Saturday, April 28.

Rams Play Modesto Nine Here Friday

Emerging triumphant over their first junior college opponent, Marin last Saturday, the Rams tangle with Modesto this Friday afternoon at Ocean View diamond at 3 p.m.

The probable lineup will send John Lopeman in to pitch, Ernie Poggi c, Chuck Shea 2b, Jerry Shaughnessy ss, Don Grant 3b, Ed Kenna 1b, Pete Milat cf, Keith Harper rf, and Manuel Castro lf.

The Rams practically chased Marin all over the diamond last Saturday giving them a 16 to 1 trouncing.

Lopeman hurled a masterful game, striking out 22 batters and allowing only four hits. He started his strike-out spree early, when he struck out the first three batters to face him.

In the last inning he struck out two batters, with the other out coming when Poggi tagged a player coming home to score. Lopeman's battery mate was Poggi, who played a fine game behind the plate as well as at bat when he got a hit to score several runs.

Kenna was the hitter of the day, getting 3-4 and scoring 3 runs. Besides all this he played an exceptionally fine game at first base.

As usual, Grant played a beautiful game at the hot corner. Some other Rams who played good ball are Milat, Harper, Shea and Paul Nederman.

Marin made 13 errors, among which the Marin catcher made the most by dropping the third strike and over-throwing first base. The 16 Ram runs were made on only seven hits.

Commerce Mittmen Trim Luckless Rams 10 To 3

Commerce Bulldogs defeated the Rams last Tuesday at the Ocean View diamond by a score of 10 to 3.

The Bulldogs were led by the hitting of McDougall, second baseman, who hit 3-5 and scored twice. Ortez, the Bulldog pitcher, let the Rams get five hits.

As is his custom, Don Grant played a beautiful game at the hot corner, throwing runners out at first. Besides his splendid fielding game, hit 1-1 while at bat. Another Ram who played an outstanding game was Ed Kenna at first base. Kenna made a beautiful catch of a hard line drive hit directly at him. The ball could have gone for extra bases, if Kenna hadn't caught it.

Another Ram who played outstanding ball was Ernie Poggi, who caught most of the game. Johnny Lopeman and "Boom Boom" Boone pitched part of the game after the Rams were slightly behind.

Intra Cage Tourney Ends Tomorrow

Tomorrow brings to a close a very successful intra mural basketball tourney after three weeks of round robin tilts between ten participating teams. At this writing the Chinese Reds hold a slight lead over the field with a record of five wins and no defeats. The Red and Whites are breathing on the Reds' necks, however, with four wins against no losses. The Legions are also undefeated but have played only three games.

The competition is especially sharp, for at the end of this basketball rainbow is a pot filled with medals. Gold for first place, and silver for second. These medals will be presented at the end of the semester, probably at a rally, according to Jack Brady, head of intra-mural sports.

Brady also disclosed that the next intra mural activity will be six-man touchtackle football. Entry blanks will probably be printed in the next week's Guardsman, and Brady advised teams to be formed by then.

Following is the standings of the teams going into the last week of play:

Chinese Reds	won 5, lost 0
Red and White	won 4, lost 0
Legions	won 3, lost 0
Beta Tau	won 4, lost 1
Eager Beavers	won 2, lost 2
Gunners	won 2, lost 3
Devils	won 1, lost 4
Tri Epsilon	won 1, lost 4
Beta Phi Beta	won 1, lost 4
Indians	won 0, lost 5

Betty Jean Otto Joins Women's Phys. Ed. Staff

Betty Jean Otto, former coed at the College of the Pacific, Stockton, California, was appointed a member of the women's physical education staff here last week. While attending college Miss Otto majored in physical education and this is her first position. She will teach at the college from 8 a.m. to noon.

Miss Otto stated that she is very much interested in the modern dance, and while attending college she was a member of the Orchesis, a national dance honor society. Miss Otto expressed her desire to start a dance group if the college if enough women students are interested.

Mrs. Carolyn Carter, women's physical education instructor who was at the college for a short time, is now devoting her full time to art work.

Psyc Classes Enjoy Spring

This most modern method of education was used by psychology instructor Phyllis Heley, when she adjourned her psychology 21b class to the lawn on the south side of the college of a summer day last week. Although the "Stimulus does not determine the nature of the response," it was generally concedad that the response was excellent.

Five Men Enroll In Newly Opened Hotel And Restaurant Division

Five men are now enrolled in the College Hotel and Restaurant Division here, according to division heads. The division reopened this semester.

Raymond Forbus, veteran, began training last fall and was the only active member of the Hotel and Restaurant Society. He is continuing his work this semester with plans to open a small fountain in his home town, Hugo, Oklahoma.

George Ostertag, discharged veteran and Stanford graduate, attended the college division in spring, 1943, before entering the army, now returns to the hotel division to continue his education.

John Conrad and Sydney Fisher, both graduates of Polytechnic High School, came to the college from Hunters Point Naval Yard, where they were working as draftsmen. Louis Reimers entered the hotel division from Lincoln High School.

The Hotel and Restaurant Society, now automatically composed of five members, numbers several hundred inactive members, most of them now in the service in all parts of the world. The society is "kept together" by a mimeographed bulletin sent to all inactive members, edited by Claire Lippert, society secretary.

Opera House, V.W.M. Out For June Commencement

Because of the tentative length of the World Security Conference, to be held in San Francisco beginning April 25, it is doubtful that the commencement exercises will be held in the Veterans Memorial Building auditorium this June 22, as in the past, President A. J. Cloud announced last week.

It was disclosed by the general manager of the Veterans Building that all possible space, including the auditorium, will be reserved for exclusive use by representatives attending the conference.

Although other space in the city will be considered for the graduation exercises, it is expected that an auditorium of one of the city high schools will be selected as a second choice. It has also been suggested by President Cloud that the final location be left to the discretion of the graduating class.

Beta Tau Proposes Three Awards For Best Clubs

To sharpen inter-fraternity competition, the Beta Tau Fraternity advanced the idea last week of having three perpetual trophies awarded each semester among the fraternities. These trophies would be given for athletics, politics, and scholastics, Al Gorbenko, Beta Tau president, said.

The winning fraternities will be decided upon by a committee composed of the three fraternity advisers and representative college authorities at the end of each semester, Gorbenko explained.

Because plans are only tentative, criticisms and suggestions may be submitted to him, Gorbenko added.

Later I am told that I failed this test.

While talking with my advisor I am told that I am compelled to take an eighth grade course, called Math 51, for which no college credit is given. I ask why I am forced to take this course which I do not elect. I am answered with a shrug of the shoulders and the evasive answer to the effect that everyone who fails the entrance exam must take this grammar school course. I disapprove, but who am I to protest, lowly entering freshman that I am. I enroll in a math 51 class and during the semester I am permitted to take the test again—I fail to pass.

The payoff came when at the end of the semester I found out that my math and science grades had been withheld. I had a B average and was eligible for the Alpha Gamma Sigma honor society, but because I failed to pass Math 51 I was deprived of this honor. The solution to this problem is more time. Ten more minutes added to the time for this test would pay dividends to the students, the faculty, and the administration.

Forum Magazine Needs Four Types Of Illustrations

That art contributions are urgently needed by the Forum Magazine was announced last week by Gertrude Land, editor.

Art material of all types will be accepted, preferably in block print, scratch board, pen and ink, or brush and ink. The magazine pages will be 8 by 11 inches, Mrs. Land added.

Students are also urged to enter the essay contest currently sponsored by Forum Magazine, Miss Land said.

Subject of the essay will be The Post War World I Want, and a limit of 1500 words has been set.

Mrs. Land reminded students that deadline for all articles has been set for Monday, April 30, less than three weeks from now.

That articles be of not more than 1500 words is the only requirement. Contributions should be submitted to advisers Dorothy Mercer in Room 251, John Gerstung, in Room 237, or to the editor.

Sale of tickets is still undecided, but Mrs. Land added that it will probably be before publication.

Low Sophs To Hold Dance At Residence Club April 27

Scene of the Low Sophomore dance to be held Friday, April 27, is the Residence Club, 940 Powell Street, according to Jean Crenshaw, Associated Student vice-president.

The dance is to be semi-formal, which means street dress for women, and business suits for men. The no-corsage rule will be in effect.

Admission will be one Associated Student card per couple. Miss Crenshaw added that all students are invited.

Music will be furnished by Jack Seltenrich and his orchestra.

$250 In Books Handled By College Book Exchange

That $250 was handled by the bank for the Book Exchange was announced last week by Luther Lyon, controller.

Lyon stated that approximately $13 remained to be paid out to students whose books were sold.

Institutions of higher education in the United States had an increase in enrollment of 84 per cent immediately following World War I.

College Society Will Announce New Officers Today

Cosmopolitan Society election ballots will be counted today, and the results posted on the bulletin board, according to Pamela Sampson.

Candidates nominated for the office of president are William Schlager and Miss Sampson; for secretary, Chester Howard and Don Giannini; for treasurer, Adele Weiss and Lupe Castillo.

It is expected that a series of meetings will be informally held by the newly elected officers, in order to map out plans for the activities of the society.

The Cosmopolitan Society, which some few weeks ago presented the distinguished speaker, Dr. Alfred Fisk, is expected to sponsor more lectures by members of the Council for Civic Unity.

Purpose of the Cosmopolitan Society is "to promote friendliness and mutual understanding, and thereby, integration among fellowmen."

Board Of Education Grants Requisition

Approval of the use of $1000 was granted the Executive Council, and a requisition of composition flooring for the new student lounge here was passed by the Board of Education, Dean Edward E. Sandys announced last week.

Although a requisition for a stove and drapes is pending approval, many further additions are planned with the use of Associated Student funds.

It is believed that the lounge, to be located in the old rifle range in the basement of the college, will be near enough completion to open when the fall semester begins.

Students in the college art classes have completed murals to be used as decoration for the walls of the lounge. The project is under the supervision of art instructor Richard Allman. An exhibition of the completed murals is still indicated, although a definite date for the showing has not yet been announced.

Columbia Picture Studio Honors College; Fighting Guardsman To Star In New Movie

By L. J. Smith

There must have been a movie talent scout in the college.

Undoubtedly the gifted men and women running wild on the campus are numerous, and the scout felt he had discovered a gold mine. Eventually, of course, he drifted into The Guardsman office, and there discovered exactly what he had been searching for.

When reporters are rushing madly to meet the deadline, even Roosevelt could enter without notice, and so the scout sat unnoticed and stared in awe.

Freedom of the press is a strong phrase, full of meaning. Reporters fight constantly to publish the unbiased facts and keep the college informed. The scout watched The Guardsman staff, incensed at an attempt by an outsider to suppress a news story, and when he silently left, carried with him a vibrant inspiration.

Now, Columbia Picture Corporation has completed The Fighting Guardsman — starring Willard Parker, John Loder, and Anita Louise.

Public Schools Week Forum April 24

Everett Junior High Program To Feature Redford, McPhee, Conlan, Women's Chorus

In a Public Schools Week forum next Tuesday, April 24, the college will cooperate with Everett Junior High School to present three young people speaking on the subject, Youth Looks at the World of Tomorrow, President A. J. Cloud announced this week.

The discussion will be held at the Everett auditorium and Edward H. Redford, head of the college counseling department, will be moderator.

Three junior high school students will present youth's outlook for home and school and for local and federal government, summing up with the subject, What Youth Expects of the World of Tomorrow.

Responses to the student talks will be made by Dr. Curtis E. Warren, superintendent of San Francisco public schools; Honorable Chester McPhee, member of the board of city supervisors; and Lewis G. Conlan, principal of Mission High School and formerly member of the college faculty.

Flossita Badger of the college music department will direct the Women's Chorus in the following selections: Lift Thine Eyes, from Elijah, by Mendelssohn; Ave Maria, Schubert; Now is the Month of Maying, Morley, and Green Branches, Dunkley.

For the 26th Annual Observance of Public Schools Weeks, April 23 to 28, the general committee has selected the theme, Education for All America. President Cloud was named as vice-chairman on the honorary committee.

Postponed AMS Picnic, Dance To Be Friday

All plans concerning the Associated Men Students' picnic dance, postponed from last Friday, will be carried out this Friday from 6 to 11:30 p.m. in the women's gymnasium, Vic Pudlowski, AMS president, said last week.

A gala program sponsored by the AMS will include faculty and student competition, dancing and a picnic supper of hot dogs, spaghetti and Pepsi Cola. Entertainment will be furnished by recordings of top bands over a public address system.

Tentative arrangements for the Modesto-Ram baseball game, also postponed, have been announced by Dean Edward Sandys as scheduled for 2:30 this Friday at the Oceanview playground.

A faculty team has been formed to play the college team here if Modesto finds the new plans unsuitable. Lee Eisan, Jack Brady, Tom Wilson, Dean Sandys, Glenn Noble, Andy Anderson, John Gerstung, John Horwitz, Jules Fraden, Bill Mayo and Mike Aggeler will meet the Ram team at 3:30.

Ex-Council Approves Fred Mayer's Mural

Informally chosen by the Executive Council as the best of mural project which were on display here until yesterday was the center painting done by Fred Mayer.

Other murals, which were preliminary sketches proposed for the new student lounge, were done by Elizabeth Kearnan, Nancy Brown, Burton Oldham and Constance Trigonis.

The requisition of $1,000 for furnishing the lounge was approved last week by the Board of Education. Work is expected to start soon.

Discussion was also held concerning the often talked about Ram. It was suggested that the Ram be placed behind the flag pole in front of the college. At present there is no flag pole in front of the college and hopes to have one placed there are not high.

The Ram now lies buried in a dark corner of the men's gymnasium. Its coat of dust keeps it very warm.

Next meeting of the Executive Council will be on Thursday, April 19, at 1 o'clock, according to Dean Edward Sandys.

Drawing By Past Student In Washington Galleries

That a tempra drawing by Sergeant Herbert E. Raynaud, former student here, has been selected for display in the National Galleries in Washington, D. C., was announced last week by the Army Public Relations Office.

Depicting an old brick house in San Francisco, the drawing was judged best in its class of the Ninth Service Command Arts Show. Only 21 pictures in the show were chosen for the Washington Galleries.

Raynaud attended the college in 1938 and majored in art. He later completed three years at the Art Center School in Los Angeles.

While in Southern California the sergeant specialized in stage set designing. He is the son of Dr. and Mrs. H. F. Raynaud of 574 18th Avenue of this city.

Now attached to the medical detachment of Bushnell General Hospital in Brigham City, Utah, Raynaud is also editor of the post newspaper.

Club Cleanup Drive Begins This Friday At 2 In Back Court

In cooperation with the plan for a cleaner city during the peace conference, the Club Advisory Board is sponsoring a clean up campaign for the college, which opens this Friday under the supervision of Bill Thompson.

Beth Wilcox
CAB President

At 2 o'clock on Friday the clubs will meet at the back court of the college and will adjourn from there to the various parts of the campus to which they have been assigned. Each group will be individually directed by a club president or a chosen member.

Beginning five days before the official opening of the peace conference, the clean up project will continue for two weeks.

Having only eight members, the Alpha Phi Beta fraternity was refused a charter by the CAB last week. According to the constitution a club must have 15 members to be officially recognized by the Executive Council.

Because of a conflicting schedule, Helen Schiavone resigned as secretary of the CAB and Pat Brady was given the responsibility of the office.

Jack Seltenrich To Play For Low Sophomore Dance

Music for the Low Sophomore dance to be held Friday, April 27, at the Residence Club will be furnished by Jack Seltenrich and his orchestra unless plans are changed, Jean Crenshaw, Associated Student vice-president, said last week.

Address of the Residence Club is 950 Powell, Miss Crenshaw added.

The dance is to be semi-formal, which means street dress for women and business suits for men. The no-corsage rule will be in effect.

Admission to the dance will be one Associated Student card per couple. Low Sophomore class officers will be at the door.

New Veteran Group Will Adopt Charter, Wants Recognition

With the planned adoption of a charter, the newly formed Veterans' Club hopes for official recognition by the Club Advisory Board in the near future, Merrill Bird, active member of the organization, announced last week.

A committee headed by John De Dio and Jim Early are drawing up a tentative constitution and are choosing a name for the club.

Second meeting of the Veterans' Club will be held tomorrow at 1 o'clock in Room 204.

At their last meeting of 30 veterans, Alan Austen was appointed temporary president. A permanent staff of officers has not been elected as yet, Bird revealed.

Although no definite plans have been outlined, it is expected that the club will be open to all returning veterans of the college.

The purpose of the organization will be to aid veterans in finding positions, housing accommodations, and to promote a general feeling of friendliness among the group, Bird said.

Mystery Of Vanishing Men Disturbs College

By L. J. Smith

Twenty-seven men are missing!

Authorities at the college have announced that approximately 30 men have "vanished" from the college since February 19 of this year.

Several weeks ago an appeal was made in The Guardsman for veterans of World War II to make themselves known. Of the approximate 100 veterans now attending the college, only 73, whose names were published in the March 14 issue, have signed with the registrar.

If there were some plot afoot to chop off the heads of ex-service men, the situation might be understandable, but there is no such intention. Mary Jane Learnard, assistant registrar, and Edward Redford, head counselor, merely ask that these men walk into the registrar's office and admit their presence.

Miss Learnard and Redford realize that college life is dangerous and a wild rush. However, if the unknown veterans have managed to survive and are still very much alive, they are still requested to go to the registrar's office at once.

Passing The Buck

By Henry P. Buckingham

Friday Morning, April 13, 1945

The sun of this April day rises to cast the long shadow of a flag staff with a flag at half staff. In that dim shadow a nation weeps. Silently in many cases, audibly in others. It is beyond the comprehension of mortal man why their leader should be called from the role of service to immortality at this fateful moment in the history of the United States.

This column has not always agreed with Mr. Roosevelt's policies. Never did we question undying faith in the common man nor his fight for the fulfillment of the rights of the common man.

When the passions of political prejudice have died away, historians can adjudge this man of the people. His place in history is assured.

It is assured because of the humanitarian ideals which this man believed in and exemplified; it is assured because he possessed the particular quality that few men so possess—the quality of giving and passing on to his fellow Americans his doctrine of the American Way of Life.

• • •

Mr. Roosevelt's greatest domestic years may be considered as constituting the time from his first election until the year 1940. His great international years began and grew steadily to soaring heights until the moment of his tragic passing.

Mr. Roosevelt was the master diplomat, the ultimate in the polished internationalist. His wide cultural background, his broad education, dwarfed by his understanding of the forgotten man, enabled him to build about his magnetic personality more admiration than any President that preceded him if not any American that preceded him.

As all men, Franklin Roosevelt made mistakes. These mistakes will fall and suffocate beneath the good which he brought to the world. It is indeed a catastrophe that he could not live to see the peace that he so earnestly wanted to become a reality.

• • •

It is ironical that our enemy, the enemy which we have vowed to crush, should come forth with a statement so true and simple in its wording, as to be almost beautiful.

If the Japanese were not our enemy, and the world were at peace, this tribute would probably stand above all others. As it is, we may regard the contents of the statement as ours, but the designs behind it as theirs.

Radio Tokyo commented on the death of President Roosevelt:

"Nobody, not even the Goddess of Liberty in New York Harbor, has been as outstanding a symbol of the contemporary America as Franklin Delano Roosevelt."

Political liberty is the right of those who are governed to adjust their government to their own needs and interests. — Woodrow

Public Schools Week

THERE is great discussion today concerning the revolutionary steps planned for education in the post-war world. It is most unfortunate that some people, who consider themselves authorities on this subject, have not been inside a school for years.

Logically, every person should secure a comprehensive knowledge of the present forms of scholastic instruction before any drastic changes are made.

Public Schools Week, beginning next Sunday, affords all San Franciscans the inestimable opportunity of now visiting and evaluating their educational system.

President of the college, Archibald J. Cloud, last week issued the following statement in civic observance of Public Schools Week.

"American Education Week falls this year at a propitious moment. It comes at a time when the people of the United States are intensely interested in the movement toward a world peace organization which has been taking form at conferences either already held or in immediate prospect. Outcomes of the deliberations at these conferences can have little meaning unless reinforced by public opinion developed through processes of education. Colleges and all other schools, then, have a most important role in development of the spirit which must be activated, if the security organization to be chartered through these conferences shall endure."

Completely agreeing with Dr. Cloud's comments, we also believe that too few individuals actually realize the wide and varied program offered by this college.

Established less than a decade ago, the college adequately prepares men and women for further graduate study or for life vocations. It presents organized activities which effectively equip the student to take his responsible position in society.

With the city's attention justifiably centered upon the peace conference, there is the possibility that the important part to be played by the schools in the community will be overlooked.

Yet, as Dr. Cloud emphatically points out, "American Education Week provides an agency for recognition of the significance of education at this critical juncture in world affairs."

Letters To The Editor

RAM'S HORN

● Of Human Bondage

Editor, The Guardsman:

In replying to the criticism of Of Human Bondage I would like to laud Miss Cornish for signing her name. It must have taken courage! Of Human Bondage is a beautifully written, moving novel of psychological relationships, in plainer words, it is Life. How could she use the ugly term "perverted philosopher"? May I refer her to Geoffrey Chaucer and the Canterbury Tales, also the works of the 17th century novelists. The tales of the Canterbury Pilgrims are indeed of the blushing kind, but I'm afraid we don't blush very easily nowadays. Is this great artist also to take his dismal place among the "perverted philosophers"? It is sad but true that stark, naked life will open up again in Songs of Solomon in the Bible.

It looks as though "Life" is something we must face. Our competent English staff will not give "trashy" literature to the students.

Somerset Maugham made a beautiful statement about Of Human Bondage. He said, "Human Imagination is a wonderful thing. A truly good writer never goes into great detail about emotion; he paints a picture in black and white so that each person may color it with his own emotion, then hold the painting dear because it is a story of his own life created by himself. The reader becomes a novelist and wraps the story around his heart.—Mary E. Yarger.

● Intelligence Assumed

Editor, The Guardsman:

A woman once wrote an indignant letter to the publishers of a dictionery because they had dared include words of doubtful character. The reply she received was: "Madam, you must have been looking for them."

The English Dept. must feel a little startled by Miss Cornish's

DISCussions

A startling discovery has been made. The discoverer? Sigmund Spaeth. Leave us humor him. In an article, which recently appeared in a national newspaper, Spaeth stated that the reason for Sinatra's being the biggest hit of the day is that he is the most effortless vocalist of our time. He went on to say that Crosby is a better singer than Frankie (nuts), but that he tries harder. He climaxed this expose by announcing that Francis can sing so well that he doesn't have to strain. Isn't that a prerequisite for any singer?

When a vocalist strains, don't confuse strain with utmost effort—his quality suffers, and his vibrato is liable to become as wide as Bert Lahr's. Crosby's latest ballad work is definite proof of this. Note how Bing wavers on the high notes of Going My Way and The Long Way Home. Why does Bing's solid, assured quality in his low register all of a sudden become shaky, uncomfortable, and annoying when he switches to a higher register? Because he's no longer capable of singing these notes, and to even hit them at all, he has to strain. Thus his solid quality suffers and his vibrato widens and gives that shaky impression.

To say that Sinatra is one of the most effortless singers of our time is correct, but to name this quality as the basis for his complete conquest over his competitors is ridiculous. Johnnie Johnston, Perry Como, Harry Babbitt, and even Pinky Tomlin are easily as effortless.

What is Sinatra's real key to success, Brownell-style? Frankie has simply been able to interpret one hundred per cent sincerity into his singing. One seldom finds such total sincerity any where but in his mother, father, sweetheart, and best friend. Naturally when a listener finds that which he continually seeks put to the most beautiful medium of expression, song, he is thrilled. A true Sinatra swooner is to be envied rather than ridiculed, but those sweet young things who scream while looking around to see if any one is watching them should be shot, for they are the most insincere persons in existence.

Sinatra's in the flesh presentation is even better than on disc or in movie, for the way in which he utilizes his hands in suble expres-

Intra Football Begins With Signups Today; Round Robin Schedule Expected

Signups for intramural touch football will start today and continue through next Tuesday, Coach Jack Brady announced last week. The teams will consist of eight men, six regulars and two alternates.

Brady urged teams to fill out the entry blank in columns one and two on this page and file it in his office in the men's gymnasium.

Unless more than six teams sign up, in which case the tourney will be elimination, the tournament will be run off with a round robin schedule. Games will be played on Mondays, Tuesday, and Thursdays, on the practice field.

The only eligibility rules are that no college football lettermen will be allowed to play. A player can play only on one team, the one he signs up with. No cleats will be allowed, Brady warned.

Coach Brady also said that the players on the winning team will receive gold medals, while those on the second place team will receive silver ones.

Dance Rhythms Highlight Women's Physical Ed Class

The 8 o'clock women's physical education class conducted by Betty Jean Otto is devoting its full time to learning dance rhythms. Music is furnished by the piano accompaniment of Lillie Mocabee and Frances Perscheid.

The class meets Mondays through Thursdays and numbers over sixty students. At present the women are doing modern dances but plans are to devote time also to learning the polka, Mazurka, tango and waltz.

Although this is an 8 o'clock class, the women students say that the enjoyment they receive from it compensates for the early hour.

WAA Table Tennis Play Starts Today

Opening round in the table tennis tournament sponsored by the Women's Athletic Association will be played today in the women's gymnasium, Laurine Bergin, instructor in charge of the tourney, announced last week.

With four tables available, the competition is open to members of the faculty as well as students, and playing time may be set at any hour and even between classes.

Following basketball play which more or less culminated in a playday with State College last Monday, current interest is developing in softball play, although, according to Bertha Mae Keller, WAA adviser, more players are needed.

A game with Balboa High School is now contemplated, Miss Keller said, and the college team is looking for the best players available.

Women Warned To Take Health Examinations

Dr. Alice Potter will be in the women's gymnasium every Thursday from 1 to 4 p.m. for consultation. Women students who have not yet received a health examination are urged by Bertha Mae Keller, instructor, to make appointments with Dr. Potter. Grades will be held back for all students who have not received a health examination since entering the college, Miss Keller warned.

Netters "Rest," Meet Bears At U.C. April 28

The college net team enjoyed a week of inactivity last week and the possibility of another this week. The netters are pointing their sights at the mighty Golden Bear, whom they engage on the Berkeley courts a week from Saturday, April 28.

The Bears, while not up to prewar strength, are still a formidable outfit boasting three returning veterans from last year's team, Rudy Kuhn, Leo Brewenwald and Bill Potts.

Meanwhile, Ed Cantwell has been placed in charge of the college intramural matches here to determine the ladder. Cantwell reported last week that three new men are out for the team, Frank Freld, Bob Chin, and El Salvador.

Improved Ram Nine Ready For Menlo At Ocean View Diamond This Afternoon

Well launched into their "conference" competition, the Rams will travel to Ocean View again today to take on the Menlo Junior College nine. Time of play is 3 p.m.

Having shown considerable improvement in their last few games, the Rams are definitely out for the Peninsulans' hide. Expected to be on the mound again, Johnny Lopeman leads the attack, with either Ernie Poggi or Paul Nederman behind the plate.

Menlo will start with Brook and Olsen in similar positions.

The starting lineup is as follows:

S. F. J. C.		MENLO
Milat	ef	McCanles	2b
Shea	2b	Klokke	lf
Shaughnessy	ss	Frank	ss
Nederman	c	Brook	p

Castro	lf	Moffatt	3b
Grant	3b	Harper	ef
Kenna	1b	Emerson	rf
Harper	rf	O'Brien	rf

The other games on the Rams schedule are a repeat game with Marin on Friday, April 27, at Marin.

On Saturday, April 28, the Rams will play San Francisco State in a game previously scheduled for this Friday. On Thursday, May 3, the Rams encounter Menlo again at Menlo.

Intramural Basketball Finals Postponed

Because of the death of Mr. Roosevelt, the intramural basketball finals originally scheduled for Thursday, April 12, were cancelled. A new date for the games was not set, and announcement will be made as to time and place of the games.

outburst. They have complimented the students by assuming that we are intelligent young men and women, advanced beyond the lure of Snow White and The Three Bears. If Miss Cornish considers Of Human Bondage trashy, it is simply because she sees it that way!

Mr. Utter, in one of his lectures, said that an intelligent person is one who can read any piece of literature, good or bad, and still derive somethin gof value from it.

As for sneaking questionable literature under the mattress, my reply is that anyone who has not the courage to be honest about his actions and his choice of reading material has something peculiarly wrong with him.

Editors Of Forum Choose Five New Essay Sub-Titles

To clarify the original subject, sub-titles for the Forum Magazine essay contest have been decided upon, according to Gertrude Land, editor.

Those chosen were, Compulsory Health Insurance; Post-War Collaboration of Labor and Management; Compulsory Military Training; Is Full Employment an Attainable Goal, and Is Permanent Peace Possible.

The original and comprehensive subject was the Post War World I Want.

Mrs. Land also announced that prizes will be awarded to the best selections which appear in the magazine.

Some contributions of short stories, poetry and essays have been received, Mrs. Land said, but she added that art material is also needed.

Mrs. Land reminded the students that the deadline is Monday, April 30, less than two weeks away.

The only requirement for articles submitted to the Forum Magazine is that they be of not more than 1500 words.

Future Rally Indefinite; Plans Depend On Shea

Future rally plans, including those for the rally to precede the college-San Francisco State baseball game April 28, are indefinite pending clarification of the status of Rally Commissioner Charles Shea.

Shea, who is torn between loyalty to his office and the furthering of his career and who failed to appear at last week's rally, tried out for a position with the Philadelphia Phillies' baseball team last week.

The next rally, however, when it is held, will consist of all college entertainment, according to Shea.

Those students who have any talent are urged by Shea to see Dean Edward E. Sandys or him, if they wish to participate in a rally.

Trend Of Job Market Changes; Firms Employing Only Full Time Workers

That there is a definite change in the job market, was revealed last week by Edward W. Larson, placement director. "Part-time jobs are becoming increasingly scarce," Larson warned.

Present job market trend is traceable to the war, Larson said. He added that a number of firms and other business establishments, whose policy heretofore has been to employ part-time workers, are now replacing them with full time workers wherever possible.

Larson went on to say that not only is it becoming difficult to obtain part-time jobs, but that since large numbers of war workers are being laid off, it is steadily more difficult to obtain full-time employment.

Emphasizing the demand for skilled office and other workers, Larson said that there would always be employment for trained people.

Addressing himself especially to the students, Larson warned that a more realistic view should be taken with regard to the employment situation. "Over-optimistic students are headed for many disappointments unless they have some definite skill to offer," Larson concluded.

Concert Hour Features Les Preludes by Lizst

Franz Lizst's Les Preludes, scheduled to be presented next Tuesday at 9 a.m. in Room 200, will begin a new study of symphonic poems for students of music appreciation, Madison Devlin, music instructor, announced last week.

Eugene Ormandy conducts the world famous Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra in their recorded interpretation of Lizst's work.

Students who feel their musical education lacking are urged to attend this week's program and all weekly programs arranged by Devlin for student appreciation. The weekly music hour, in existence for several years, has proved successful and of benefit to students.

Pamela Sampson To Lead Cosmopolitans

Pamela Sampson was elected president of the Cosmopolitan Society last week. Chester Howard was voted secretary, and this semester's treasurer will be Lupe Castillo.

The newly elected officers and the other candidates for office held a meeting at which the duties of the new officers were discussed.

At another meeting of the six tomorrow, a definite plan of proposed activities will be submitted by Miss Sampson, who has disclosed that close cooperation with the Council for Civic Unity will be striven for, as well as with similar organizations throughout the public schools.

Former Student Sees Army Husband in Newsreel

A newsreel in a local theater proved the means through which Mrs. Henry Stanton (Ursula Koninski), former student of the college Hotel Division and Manager of the cafeteria, recently caught a glimpse of her husband, Corporal Henry Stanton, also a graduate of the Hotel Division, now serving with the American Mobile Radio Unit, overseas.

The film showed the American advance army, to which Stanton is attached, entering Germany.

Corporal Stanton, a native of Berlin, is making use of his knowledge of German by broadcasting American army orders in the language to the German people.

In the scene which followed the one showing her husband, Mrs. Stanton recognized as her cousin, a young Polish officer herding a group of German prisoners. She had not seen him since 1939.

Spring Green Comedy To Be Presented in May

Spring Green, a three-act comedy, by Florence Ryerson and Colin Clements, has been casted and will be presented to the students May 9 and 10, Ruth Somers, drama instructor, announced last week.

Members of the cast include Norma Busse, Marcia Dains, Jean Emard, Saimi Fassett, Lois Jennings, Pat McCormick, Lucille Peters, Celeste Rose, Marvelle Smith, Gilbert Black, John Blaver, Richard Cummings, Bob Lertora and Walter Mahoney.

The play will be given two days so that all students will be able to attend.

Soph Sweetheart Contest Limited To Six Entrants

Plans for the election of a High Sophomore Sweetheart have been discussed, Bill Thompson, class president, announced.

There will be six candidates for the sweetheart contest. Each sorority will select a candidate of its choice to represent the group in the contest. Two non-sorority women will be chosen by the men students of the college holding either Associated Student offices or class offices.

Although the sweetheart winner was announced at the soph formal last semester, this semester she will be named during High Soph week, which begins on Monday, May 28, and concludes with the formal on Saturday night, June 2, to be held at the Claremont Hotel in Berkeley.

The chosen sweetheart will reign as queen at the formal, and will be presented with a trophy from the Associated Students given each semester and with the perpetual trophy of the Beta Taus.

Election of the sweetheart will probably take place the week preceding High Soph week, Thompson said.

No further plans have been made for the contest, and as yet no plans have been made for other events in High Soph Week.

Brief College Program Honors Late President

Faculty and students of the college observed a minute of silence on Friday morning in tribute to the late President Roosevelt.

At 10:45 o'clock, President A. J. Cloud's voice came over the classroom public address system. He said, "We pause for a few minutes this morning for memorial exercises as a tribute to the most distinguished American of our era, the late Franklin Delano Roosevelt. The nation mourns the loss of its great leader."

Following a minute of silence Dean Edward Sandys read O Captain, My Captain, written by Whitman at Lincoln's death.

The college flag still flies at half-mast.

Student Gambling Banned; Violators To Be Expelled

Any student found gambling on the premises of the college may be expelled from classes, Dean Edward E. Sandys announced last week.

There is no restriction against playing cards in the cafeteria or around the campus so long as there is no gambling involved, Dean Sandys declared.

Nursing School Invites College Nurses To Tea

Stanford University School of Nursing has invited pre-nursing students here to a tea to be held at the Nurses' Home at 2340 Clay Street, April 20, from 3 to 4 p.m.

Pre-nursing students interested in attending the tea should see Dean Margaret Dougherty.

Victory Gardener's Sideline Results In Rabbit Versus Lettuce Contest

By Patricia French

Armed with a green thumb and 10,000 home grown seedlings, the college headquarters for the Victory Garden Advisory Council is backing the war effort with food.

More than 100 plots checker the campus and supply vegetables for 400 people most of the year round. The college supplies seeds, water, and advice, but not the elbow grease, according to Thomas Porter, botany instructor in charge of campus gardens.

Plots here are worked by "part time farmers" who include teachers, housewives, and tradesmen. Although no garden is maintained exclusively for the students, applications for individual plots may be made in Room 150.

Floriculturist Harry Nelson said that prizes for the best gardens according to production and appearance are to be awarded this summer by the council. Surplus crops cannot be sold, and uneared for gardens revert back to the college.

Adviser for the Laguna Honda Community Gardens, Dr. Eric Moeller, said that there were almost 250 plots in his area, some planted in patriotic patterns and raising everything from carrots to rabbits.

The rabbits, remarked Dr. Moeller, do not come under the jurisdiction of the council, but they are a sideline of "Pop" Bladgett, one of the section's plot holders.

Bladgett raises lettuce for his rabbits and rabbits for his lettuce. At last reports, the lettuce had a slight edge.

Sophomore Dance This Friday Night At Residence Club

Setting for the Low Sophomore dance this Friday night is the Residence Club, 950 Powell Street, where students will dance to the music of Jack Seltenrich and his orchestra from 9 to 12.

Jean Crenshaw, Associated Student vice-president, announced last week that the dance will be informal, which means street dress for women and business suits for men. The no-corsage rule will be in effect.

Miss Crenshaw emphasized that all students are invited, adding that admission will be one Associated Student card per couple. Low Sophomore class officers Grace Pisa, Theo Mitchell, and Doris Sellers will be at the door of the dance.

Members of the Social Committee which arranged the Low Sophomore Dance as well as many of the other class dances are Miss Crenshaw, who is chairman, Ralph Hansen, Roberta Robb, Miss Pisa, and Bill Thompson. Original plans of the Social Committee were to have the dance at a hotel, but because of the UNCIO conference, scene of dance was changed to the Residence Club.

Climax of the social activities planned by the committee for this semester will be the High Sophomore Formal, June 2, at the Claremont Hotel.

Executive Council Plans Kiddy Day For May 10

Announcement that the college plans a Kiddy Day was made by President Bob Mills at the last meeting of the Executive Council.

Kiddy Day, Mills said, will be Thursday, May 10. All students will be expected to dress as infants. A kangaroo court will be set up and persons not in costume will land in a jail to be set up in the center court.

Dean Sandys also emphatically stressed that "the back court is very unsightly." Although there are garbage cans provided, the area is strewn with papers. The Dean requested that "all students keep their bags off the Lawn."

Registrar Explains Delay In Summer Course Action

Delay in action by the school department on the summer session plan was explained last week by J. Paul Mohr, Registrar.

Although the two seven-week summer session plan has been presented to the Board of Education, Mohr said that approval cannot be given until all school summer session plans have been presented.

Gigantic Music Program May 31 To Spark War Loan Drive; College Song Contest Opens With Bond, Stamp Prizes Offered

As the first step in a gigantic music program timed to spark a college War Bond drive, a college song contest for which three prizes are offered, was announced last week by Flossita Badger, music instructor and director of the program.

Date of the program is Thursday, May 31, in the men's gymnasium:

The song contest, as well as the program, to be sponsored by the Music Club, Cosmopolitan Society, Club Advisory Board, and Student Welfare Committee as co-sponsors, is open to all students of the college.

First prize of a $25 war bond will be presented to the composer of the best original song. Second prize of $10 in stamps and third prize of $5 in stamps will also be awarded. Music for songs in this category need not be original, but words pertaining to some phase of college life can be adapted to some familiar melody. All prizes are donated by the Associated Students.

All types of college songs will be acceptable in the contest: rally songs, pep songs, football, or original songs of a serious nature. As the college has an official hymn, no new hymns as such will be considered.

Judges of the contest will include a representative committee of students and faculty members.

Song entries may or may not be harmonized by the composer, although all copies should be submitted on music manuscript paper with the words written in synchronization with the music score.

The contest will end Thursday, May 17, at noon. Entries may be submitted to Dean Edward Sandys' office or to Miss Badger in Room 200.

The special music program that will open the college bond drive on May 31 will feature talent from the music department of the college. Using the United Nations Conference in San Francisco as a theme, the presentation will be of a patriotic nature, stressing a feeling of international peace, security, and cooperation.

Selection of a theme song has already been made, Miss Badger said, and is A Song of Peace, arranged from Finlandia by Jean Sibelius.

Additional feature of the music program will be the personal appearance of the Alameda Coast Guard Band.

Other events scheduled are selections by the mixed chorus, the women's chorus, the college orchestra, and special solo numbers.

Details of the bond drive, including the quota, were not yet settled last week, but the Welfare Committee is expected to complete plans soon.

Guardsman Staff To Go To Press Club Dinners

With United Nations diplomats and leading newspaper personalities scheduled to speak, the San Francisco Press Club will present a series of dinners to which The Guardsman staff, among other high school and college paper staffs, has been invited.

Held each Sunday through June 3 during the World Security Conference, the dinners are open to three student reporters from all secondary school and collegiate newspapers in this area.

Prominent world statesmen will address the students every Sunday and exclusive interviews with the distinguished guests are expected.

The Guardsman's delegation for next Sunday's meeting, at which World Freedom of News is the chosen topic, includes Editor Don Constine, Managing Editor Henry Buckingham and Club Editor Beth Wilcox.

Already receiving enthusiastic cooperation from journalism departments in metropolitan San Francisco, the dinners are modeled after the Press Club's traditional "Off the Record" weekly luncheons, where noted personages dine and informally chat with press members of the city.

Forum Magazine Entries Are Due By Next Monday

All contributions for the Forum Magazine and entries for the magazine essay contest must be submitted within the next five days, Gertrude Land, editor, announced last week.

Absolute deadline is Monday, April 30, she said.

Material is coming in but even more is badly needed. All poetry compositions, and essays must be of not more than 1500 words. Humorous material will also be accepted, Mrs. Land added.

Main theme of the essay contest is The Post War World I Want. Subtitles which may be used are Compulsory Health Insurance, Post War Collaboration of Labor and Management, Compulsory Military Training, Is Full Employment an Attainable Goal, and Is Permanent Peace Possible.

Prizes will be awarded for the best works printed in the magazine. Contributions should be submitted to advisers Dorothy Mercer in Room 251 and John Gerstung in Room 237.

Publication of the magazine will be some time before June, but means for distribution of the magazine are still undecided, Mrs. Land explained.

Mrs. Land also announced that Gwenn Slovenko was appointed business manager of the Forum Magazine recently.

The Forum Magazine will be even more attractive than before as its cover will be of a two-tone design, the editor said.

Blue Pencil Wielders

Passing The Buck

By Henry P. Buckingham

AMERICAN tradition has it that a man from Missouri has to be shown. When Harry Truman was elected to the Senate he demonstrated this old adage by forming the Truman Committee.

The Truman Committee started out with a budget of $15,000, which in Senate circles isn't much to conduct an investigating committee. There were a few sceptics in the crowd who doubted that Truman would save the taxpayers money.

But Truman was from Missouri. He had to be shown. He saved the taxpayers money so well, by assuring himself and his committee members that a few "wasteful" expenditures on the defense programs might be curtailed, that the Senate never again awarded him a penny less than $100,000 for the expenses of the committee.

The Truman Committee was composed of an equal number of Republicans and Democrats. This arrangement was a good one; political strife within the committee itself was almost nil. In the words of then Senator Truman, "Our sole function is to promote the war effort."

Now Truman turns the tables. As a Senator he had to be shown. As a President he is showing. President Truman is showing the world that he can take over. Of course he has not as yet had an extensive trial with his new tasks, but his first moves, domestic and international, have met with the approval of the Washington gang.

It is true that President Truman now has the sympathy of the various parties, the people and the press. Everyone wants to be kind and sweet and help to at least plant a bed of roses... Soon there will be moans of disapproval from any that oppose his views.

So the United States must be wary. We might well revert to the old Japanese custom of saving face. We must save face before the rest of the world. Never for a moment must they think that we have doubt in him, and we must not lead others to believe that we have.

The policies of President Truman will vary from those of the late President, Franklin Roosevelt, much as two individuals vary in personality. Although the policies vary, the desired ends remain the same.

President Truman has been called by various and sundry sources the 32nd and 33rd President of the United States. For the sake of those not majoring in United States history, let's clear the whole problem up.

President Truman is the 33rd president of the United States. He is the 32nd man to hold the office of president. The whole mess came about when Cleveland was defeated for a second term but came back after Harrison for re-election.

Thus Cleveland's second time in office is regarded as a separate affair. So one man was two presidents.

Press Club Invitation

TODAY officially opens the first session of the United Nations Security conference.

Provisions set forth last year at Dumbarton Oaks are the basic principles that must insure a peaceful post-war world. The responsibility for the maintenance of these resolutions now rests with the many delegates who, at this very moment, are gathered in the opera house. —

Never before in San Francisco's colorful history has the city figured so significantly in international affairs.

In light of the momentous proposals being formulated here, the San Francisco Press Club has planned Sunday dinners to which special representatives of high school and college newspapers are invited.

Each Sunday during the conference, distinguished diplomats from among our allies and leading newspaper personalities will address the group, providing a splendid opportunity for the student journalists to interview the famous personages.

The discussion next Sunday is to concern "World Freedom of News." Other topics scheduled for subsequent meetings include Pan-American, Chinese, British, Australian and European relations.

Dick Chase, president of the Press Club, announced in regard to these activities, "Youth of today will live their lives subject to the decisions of this World Conference.

"The San Francisco Press Club," Chase pointed out, "is facilitating the work of hundreds of newspaper men and radio correspondents coming here from all over the world—and we are not forgetting the junior reporters."

Throughout the series of dinners, The Guardsman will publish weekly news articles and personal interviews with the noted members of the diplomatic corp and the press.

We will bring to the campus first hand information written and interpreted from the standpoint of the student reporter.

Only through the medium of the printed interview can the college meet by proxy and learn the opinions and individual characteristics of the world's most prominent figures.

Letters To The Editor

RAM'S HORN

● Bean Shooting

Editor, The Guardsman:

Miss Yarger saw fit to laud Miss Cornish for signing her name to a criticism of Of Human Bondage. May I laud Miss Yarger for a similar feat. I like me! Who does Miss Yarger like?

I long ago arrived at the conclusion that the entire world had an enormous amount to learn and I was just the person to enlighten it, as I and I alone knew all the answers. I now see that I was wrong. Miss Yarger knows the answers too, but Miss Cornish doesn't, because she doesn't agree with us. Does she, Miss Yarger?

I choose bean shooters at 50 paces!

—Bruce Tomlinson.

● Sweetheart Contest

Editor, The Guardsman:

After viewing your article in your April 18 issue of The Guardsman and remembering last semester's soph formal, I'd like to make a comment.

Why, please tell me, does the High Soph president, this term, like previous ones, choose the queen from a bunch of freshman girls who know nothing about the setup, but happen to have long eyelashes? I should think in all fairness to the graduating sophs that a queen would be chosen from them, after going all that way.

Why be afraid of breaking a tradition? Roosevelt did it by being nominated a third and fourth term. Why not make a change at J. C. and make a fair matter out of it?

I'm not a High Soph as yet, so I'm not prejudiced because of that. I do hope to be one some day though and I'd like to have an even break.

—Cast Aside.

Editor's Note: No sweetheart election rules have ever provided that the queen be a member of a specified class.

DISCussions

OF the three most popular versions of Sentimental Journey now on sale, Hale McIntre's is the only one completely instrumental. Belching-brass annoying Ellington-ish-saxes open the session. The sax section, which then goes on to carry the remainder of the disc, displays its advanced technical ability when it changes its characteristics to a Millerish style, Millerish of course pertaining to the late Glenn. Good interpretation of mood is given by the solo sax as it relates its message.

This arrangement is Miller and Ellington from beginning to end. McIntre's admiration for both schools of thought is the basis for this policy. Ellington comes out second best, although his influence completely dominates the rhythm. McIntre concludes with a typical Miller fade.

On the other side is another Ellington-Miller compromise. Solos that remind one so much of Tricky Sam Nanton's trombone and Johnny Hodges' alto sax are featured, as Johnny Turnbult gives a very syrupy vocal to the tune of Gonna See My Baby.

Judy Garland recently recorded Love, of all things. Such a completely original title. A genius has been at work.

The intro of this opus is enough to pale even the tannest of faces and will undoubtedly send the meek to hide. Throughout, Judy is in her usual good form as she constantly fights off the pleas of the instruments to accent its rhythm. She just refuses to give in. Stubborn. The arrangement possesses some degree of sincerity at first but soon develops into a gigantic MGM production.

About half way through this ditty the lyrics leap with fullness of meaning only to subside into words. Miss Garland adds to this predicament further by using the hammiest means of expression, over emphasis. For casual listening, excellent.

A ridiculous attempt at Laura has been made by Freddy Martin. He tries to satisfy everyone with both feminine strings and sweet saxes, but the result is only a sickening compromise between two weak sections. If Martin had used his total strength in one direction, his orchestration would have at least been strong.

New Modern Dance Class Allows WAA Credit

A new class in Modern Dance began last Friday and will be held every Friday morning at 8 o'clock in the women's gymnasium, the women's physical education staff said last week. Participants are eligible for credit toward Women's Athletic Association membership.

The class is conducted by Betty Jean Otto, recently added to the faculty, and all students are welcome, she declared, emphasizing, however, that Modern Dance does not mean Social Dancing.

The course at one time was given as a part of the WAA program, with credit allowed as for sports. This plan was discontinued until last week.

Members of the group hope to give a performance for the college sometime this semester.

Rams Lose To Maritime School Nine 7 To 5

The Rams were defeated last Saturday at Washington Park in Alameda by the Maritime School by a score of 7 to 5.

The Maritime squad took advantage of several errors made by the Rams in their victory. Ed Kenna hit 2-4, while Henry Boone hit 3-5 besides pitching splendid ball, allowing only 4 hits.

Baseballers Travel To Marin Friday, Take On Gators In Big Game Saturday

Out for their third and fourth victories in a row, the Ram nine will have a busy weekend Friday and Saturday, when they go against Marin at Marin, Friday, and engage their cross city rivals from State College, Saturday, at Golden Gate Park.

In their repeat game against Marin, the Rams are given an edge to repeat their 16 to 1 win. The probable battery for the Rams is either Henry Boone and Ernie Poggi, or Johnny Lopeman and Poggi.

The jinx that has dogged the Rams for six or seven seasons is expected to be no mental handicap in the Saturday game. Although unable to win in that number of seasons from State, the nine hopes to knock the jinx and State at one and the same time.

With a much improved backfield, the Rams should be able to make a better showing against State than they did earlier this season.

The battery for this game will probably be Lopeman pitching and Paul Nederman or Poggi catching.

The other games scheduled thus far are a repeat game with the Maritime School on Wednesday, May 2, and a repeat game against Menlo on Thursday, May 3, at Menlo.

Rams Halt Menlo Rally, Score Two In 7th To Win

The Rams made it two in a row after dropping the Menlo nine, 9 to 7, at Ocean View last Wednesday. Johnny Lopeman pitched and won his own game in the seventh inning when with one on he hit a double into left field and drove the eighth run home. Later in the same inning he, too, scored.

With the score seven to nothing at the beginning of the fifth inning, Chuck Shea 2b, Keith Harper cf, and Manuel Castro lf, were replaced by Ernie Poggi, Howard Slaughter, and Tiny Ghiorzi. The new outfield made three errors, and by the end of the sixth inning the scoreboard read 7 to 7.

In the seventh, Henry Boone hit a double into right center field, and then Lopeman drove Boone home with his above mentioned hit.

The outstanding players of the game were "Boom Boom" Boone, who hit 3-3 and scored twice. Lopeman hit 2-4 and scored once besides pitching beautiful ball and striking out eleven batters.

Also outstanding was the whole infield which played brilliant ball.

The short score is as follows:

		R.	H.	E.
S.F.J.C.	102 402 00*—	9	8	7
Menlo	000 016 000—	7	8	5

Four Events Added To WAA Calendar

Sports events crowded the Women's Athletic Association calendar last week with four definitely planned events scheduled before the end of the semester, according to Janice Beanston, president.

Leading off the calendar, the women meet Balboa High School in softball Wednesday, May 9, here. Softball, archery, and tennis highlight the program Monday, May 14, here, when the WAA engages State College in all three events.

Washington High sends its softball ten here Monday, June 4, to complete WAA formal competition.

In addition, a WAA barbecue dinner is set for Monday, June 11, at Sigmund Stern Grove.

The college basketball team lost a close decision to the San Francisco State College team, 23 to 22, during the last play day. Plans are being made whereby next year's team from San Francisco State College will be composed solely of Freshmen and Sophomores. This will then enable the college to meet opponents of equal experience.

Connie Trigonis was elected vice-president of the WAA at the last meeting, replacing Jean Fitter, who submitted her resignation.

More women are needed for formation of tennis teams to play State College. Bertha Mae Keller, instructor, said that tennis courts are available for practice Tuesday and Thursdays at 1 p.m., and Friday at 8 p.m. and 3 p.m.

UC Entertains Net Team This Saturday

Having thus far displayed their talents against other junior colleges and high school teams, the Ram netmen step into the big time this Saturday when they tangle with the University of California tennis team on the Bear courts.

The outlook for the Rams was definitely brightened with the addition of Bob Chinn, who showed up well in the St. Ignatius match last Friday. He will be counted on heavily in the big game Saturday.

Frank Fields is another candidate for the team and is battling Ed Cantwell for the number six position.

Little is known about the Cal team as their only match was canceled last week. While not as strong as usual, the Bears appear to be very well balanced and tough enough to give the best teams in the state a pretty rough time. All their players have seen action on either the Calvarsity or the Cal frosh last year.

In a final appearance before Saturday's battle, the team takes on Lincoln High today on the Park courts at 3 o'clock.

The Rams made it three in a row last Friday when they eked out a 5 to 4 win over St. Ignatius High School. Chinn and Dave Factor, also a newcomer to the team, each won a hard fought three set singles match to virtually save the day for the hard pressed Rams. Following the results:

Covall JC d Scienes SI 6-3, 6-4.
O'Connell SI d Reed JC 6-2, 7-5.
Chinn JC d Kilday SI 6-3, 3-6, 6-3.
Factor JC d Guerin SI 6-0, 2-6, 6-1.
Black JC d Roz-ynko SI 6-4, 6-3.
Perlite SI d Cowderoy JC 8-6, 6-2.
Covall-Reed d Scienes-Cote 6-4, 6-2.
O'Connell-Kilday d Factor-Chinn, 2-6, 6-4, 6-2.
Badarracco-Gordano SI d Cantwell-Fields JC 6-1, 6-2.

Ten Old Men Lose To Ram Nine 13-12; Tarzan At Bat Misses 1944 Lucky Hit

Despite the attempts of the faculty baseball men to rattle their opponents by dressing in gaudy and non-matching uniforms last Friday, the students squeezed out a 13 to 12 victory in the afternoon phase of the Associated Men Student day of entertainment.

Discounting the errors made by Baseball Coach Lee Eisan, who earned the title "Butterfingers" in the game for his play at short stop, the game was well played.

The one point win reversed the results of last year's faculty vs. AMS game in which the faculty spanked the students by one run—the score was 16 to 15—made when Dean Ed "Tarzan" Sandys, last at bat, hit a homer. Student witnesses still claim that "Tarzan" had his eyes closed, thereby connecting only through luck. He kept his eyes open last Friday.

Batteries for the Ten-Tired-Old-Men were Tom "Speedball" Wilson, "Tarzan" Sandys, and Will Bill Mayo. "Speedball" Wilson held the mound for five innings, allowing 11 runs, while "Tarzan" Sandys relieved him and held the Youngsters to two runs.

Battery for the students was Ed Kenna and Tiny Ghiorzi. Because the composition of the Youngster team was largely the same as that of the Ram varsity, the game did not constitute the traditional Faculty vs. AMS team for which a trophy exists.

Sluggers for the faculty were Jack "Powerhouse" Brady and Andy "Old Hickory" Anderson. Brilliant performances were made by "Honest John" Horowitz and "Fancy Pants" Fraden. While "Fancy Pants" waltzed around behind second base, "Honest John" spent the afternoon disputing decisions by the umpire, Campus Gardener Milani.

Newly Organized College Veterans Adopt Constitution

With the adoption of a constitution to be submitted to the Club Advisory Board, the newly formed veterans' organization held another successful meeting last Thursday, Jim Early, chairman, disclosed this week.

Among other events of the meeting, it was voted that the temporary name of the group will be the XGI Society. As the Society increases in size, another vote will be taken at which time a new name may be selected.

It has been decided that all veterans of the college other than those dishonorably discharged from the armed services (army, navy, marine corps, and coast guard) may be eligible for membership in the XGI Society. This includes former members of the WAC, WAVES, SPARS, and Women's Marine Corps. Sponsorship by an active member in good standing is also a requirement for admission into the organization.

Although no permanent officers have been elected, Alan Austen has been nominated temporary president.

High School Honor Clubs Will Attend AGS Tea Here

Tentative plans for a tea to honor high school honor societies have been made by the Alpha Gamma Sigma, Marilyn Zito, president, announced last week.

Because Ruth Somers, college drama instructor, has offered to present a play for the guest students, the dates for the tea may be May 9 and 10.

Seventy-five students are expected each day, according to Miss Zito, with students from high schools all over the city.

The purpose of the teas will be to acquaint the high school students with the college and to encourage them to attend, Miss Zito added.

Although definite plans have not been made for the AGS debate with the Forum Club, the latter will take the negative stand, according to Helen Ringius, Forum president.

Authors of Spring Green Also Authors Of Play, Harriet

Spring Green, a three-act comedy to be presented by the drama class in May, was written by Florence Ryerson and Colin Clements, who also wrote Harriet, which is now playing in San Francisco, starring Helen Hayes.

The plot of the comedy is centered about a mother and her two daughters who decide to ease the housing situation by turning part of their residence into an apartment. The apartment is taken by an Army Major who proves to be a former suitor of the mother.

When the girls discover that the Major has a son, Newton, who is coming from New York, they get excited, expecting a dashing man-about-town. Newton finally arrives, a socially awkward and absent-minded fellow with but one interest in life—earthworms and their scientific breeding.

His passion for earthworms conflicts with his passion for the belle of the town, disrupts his father's romance, and almost lands him in jail. All this adds to the humor of the play.

May performances will probably be given twice daily, Ruth Somers, drama instructor, indicated, and definite time and day announcements are expected next week.

Soph Queen Petitions Due May 14; Voting May 25

Names of all candidates for High Sophomore Sweetheart must be submitted by Monday, May 14, Bill Thompson, High Soph president, said last week.

Voting for the Queen will take place in the college cafeteria on Friday, May 25. Only men students of the college who have an Associated Student card will be allowed to cast a vote.

Winner of the election will be revealed during the first part of High Soph week, which begins on Monday, May 28. She will reign as queen throughout the week and at the Soph Formal on Saturday night, June 2.

Poll Of Opinion: Students Discuss College Rallies

By L. J. Smith

Every day friends talk about student activities. They express opinions, some violent and some casual, but these opinions are of interest. Students make up college life and spirit, and students should be given every possible opportunity to speak.

From the silver pole, the Student Store, Ram Shack, Cafeteria, hallways, college steps and The Associated Student office several voices have expressed a general feeling.

Last week, the subject was rallies —where to hold them and open discussion.

Vic Pudlowski, capable and friendly AMS president, was, as usual, quite modest and surprised that anyone should ask him his opinion. Said Vic, "Rallies should be held in the cafeteria so students could sit down. I don't know what the seating capacity is, but the walk to the men's gym is too long. There is no atmosphere. I don't like the attendance and that could be taken care of by holding them in the cafeteria. We could have a lot more student talent and they could be managed better. If rallies are held too often they get monotonous."

Annie Chow, Chinese Club member, was a bit doubtful for awhile but soon discovered nothing terrible would result after her views were published in The Guardsman. "It's bad enough that we have to go down to gym every day without having rallies there too. There doesn't seem to be enough enthusiasm — they should be in the back court, attendance would be better up here, I think."

Jewel Williams, Low Frosh, seemed extremely excited that her words were to appear in print but expressed sincere thoughts. "The men's gym is as good a place as any to hold a rally. I like them. The yell leaders should go over all the yells so students could learn them."

Merrill Bird, Veteran Club representative, paused en route to work and propped himself on the back of a booth before asking what he could do. "Don't know where else we could have a rally. I go to them but only saw one that was worth anything."

Marie Harrell of the AGS honor society, smiled thoughtfully as she was questioned. "Where else could we have them? Sometimes weather does not permit holding them outside, but, wouldn't the women's gym do just as well. This is wartime, there is no possibility for improvement unless an auditorium can be built."

A real campaigner, Madison Devlin, music instructor, spoke in unconscious agreement with the men and women of the college. "The situation is not so good. Students are not interested enough to make the long trip down to the men's gym. Usually one-tenth of the student body attends, while the rest go to the book store and the cafeteria. Ideas and enthusiasm have to come from students and the Rally Commissioner."

Music Hour To Feature R. Strauss Selections

Richard Strauss' Tod Und Verklarung, Death and Transfiguration, will be the featured work studied at the next music hour meeting at 9 next Tuesday, Madison Devlin, music instructor, stated last week.

Richard Strauss is rated today as one of the most modern radical composers. He is a master in the art of colorful orchestration and in no way should be confused with Johann Strauss, the waltz king.

Commencement Exrcises Set For Washington High

Lacking the facilities of either the Opera House or the Veterans' War Memorial Building, the college will hold June commencement exercises instead in the George Washington High School auditorium, President A. J. Cloud announced this week.

Peace conference business will occupy the two auditoriums customarily chosen for college commencement exercises.

Exercises at which 76 students will received diplomas, will be held Friday, June 22, at 7:45 p.m., Dean Edward Sandys said.

Although no speaker has yet been named for the commencement program, the Women's Chorus, directed by Flossita Badger, will sing.

Five Former Football Heroes Visit Here

By Don Cowderoy

They were heroes then. They are heroes now.

Only a few years ago they were heroes on Ram football fields. Now they are heroes of a bigger contest, their country's fight for freedom.

Last week saw the return of five of them, all former members of the college's football teams and now members of the armed forces back from the front lines of battle. Each one starred for the Ram pigskin teams while a student here. Last week they gathered here for lunch with Coach Lee Eisan.

There was Lieutenant Al Nauman, a pilot of a Navy Hellcat, who returned to the states after being forced down in his plane in the invasion of the Philippines campaign. Nauman held down the quarterback position and wore No. 77 on his jersey in 1940. He was the sparkplug of his team for the two seasons he was here, leaving before the end of the second season to join the naval reserves.

Then there was Corporal Dick Wilson. A member of the U. S. Rangers, Wilson had his feet frozen in the invasion of Attu. He starred at center for the "champs" of 1940 and was a standout man in the line throughout the entire season.

Next on the roster was Lieutenant Adrian Carignani of the United States Marine Corps, who played guard position for the Rams in the 1939 pigskin season. He participated in the island invasions of the South Pacific and had his knee shattered going into Saipan.

Perennial sophomores remember Lieutenant "Turk" Terzian, also of the Marine Corps, who had his back broken when near the Malay Peninsula in the South Pacific. He held down the important quarterback position on the '41 Ram"less" squad (won 4, lost 4, tied 1).

Completing the group was P. F. C. Dave Cunningham, who played on the 1939-'40 teams and joined the Marine Corps after being graduated from the college. He held the right halfback spot and acted in the capacity of chief pass-catcher of the team with Nauman as "disher-outer" extraordinary.

They didn't talk of their part in present campaigns. They preferred to reminisce. They remembered principally that last real football season in 1940, when they tied for the conference crown with San Mateo, and when, if Sacramento had only managed a win over San Mateo, they would have worn the champion's crown.

Song Contest Now Open For Entries, Ends Noon May 17

With the song contest ending Thursday, May 17, at noon, entries may be submitted to Dean Edward E. Sandys' office or to Flossita Badger, music instructor, in Room 200.

The song contest marks the first step in a spectacular music festival planned for presentation Thursday, May 31, at 1 o'clock in the men's gymnasium.

The music festival as well as the song contest is co-sponsored by the Music Club, Cosmopolitan Society, Club Advisory Board, and Student Welfare Committee. Competition is open to all students of the college.

Three prizes are offered for the best entries submitted. First prize of a $25 war bond will be awarded to the composer of the best original song. Second prize of $10 in stamps and third prize of $5 in stamps will also be presented. Music for songs in this group need not be original, and words pertaining to some phase of college life can be adapted to some familiar melody.

College songs of all types are acceptable in the contest, pep songs, rally songs, or original songs of a more serious nature. No new hymns of any type will be considered, as the college already has an official hymn.

Judges of the contest will include a representative committee of student and faculty members.

A similar patriotic song contest, sponsored by the music department of the college, was conducted in the spring of 1942. Kenneth Pederson, former active member of the A Cappella choir and now in the armed service overseas, was awarded first prize for the outstanding song entry of the contest.

Campus War Loan Drive Has $15,000 Bond Goal

With $15,000 set as goal in the college war bond drive from May 14 to June 1, students were asked last week by Dean Edward E. Sandys to make every effort to go over the top in sales for the successful culmination of the campaign.

An AWVS representative will sell bonds at a booth in front of Room 169 on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays, from 11 to 2 p. m., during the weeks of the drive. On the last two days, the representative will be at the college all day.

To measure progress of bond sales, a thermometer with a ceiling of $15,000 dollars will be set up beside the booth.

Climax of the bond drive is the Music Festival, Thursday, May 31.

Cosmopolitans Will Meet Tomorrow To Plan Future

A general meeting of the Cosmopolitan Society has been called for tomorrow and will be held in Room 100, at 1 o'clock.

Purpose of the meeting will be to present to the members plans for a social gathering in the early future, and to define membership.

At a meeting held last week by the officers of the Cosmopolitan Society, a tentative program of activities was drawn up. It was agreed that contact with similar clubs in other public schools and institutions would be made, and that perhaps a joint meeting of officers of all such societies would be sought for in the near future.

AWS To Entertain SPARS At Luncheon Tomorrow In Cafe

Associated Women Students will entertain four SPARS at a luncheon in the college cafeteria tomorrow at 11:45 a. m., Barbara Chambers, AWS president, announced.

Besides the AWS officers, Mildred Hoffman, vice-president, Marie Wittin, secretary, and Miss Chambers, presidents of all the women's clubs of the college will attend the luncheon. These include the following:

Barbara Chambers

Beth Wilcox, Alpha Lambda Chi; Marian Du Jardin, Alpha Theta Epsilon; Winnie Kenny, Kappa Phi; Sue Miles, Women's Service Society; Irene Matveev, Pi Mu Nu; and Maggie Rogers, Theta Tau. Miss Chambers is president of Phi Beta Rho.

After the luncheon, movies will be shown at 1 p. m. in Room 136. All women students are invited and urged to come to the movies.

Two films will be shown, one will be Battle Stations with James Cagney and Ginger Rogers, the other will be Invasions of Normandy.

Miss Chambers expresses the hope that all the women students of the college will attend the movies.

Conference Weather Ruins Half Hello Walk Flowers

Because of the freak (conference) warm weather change, the college has suffered a 50 per cent loss on the geraniums along Hello Walk, according to Floriculturist Harry Nelson.

The plants will be replaced, and students are expected to respect them on their ramblings to the gymnasium, Nelson said.

Helen Wheeler Will Make Debut As Pianist May 16

Making her debut on the concert stage, Helen Wheeler, pianist and former student here, will present a piano concert at the Century Club on May 16, at 8:30 in the evening.

The pianist, who has won high acclaim from many musical groups, attended the college for two years, where she took a special music course. She was feature soloist at the college's Christmas recital last December. Before leaving to attend the University of California this spring, she gave a recital for the music students of the college.

Executive Council Discusses New Plans For Associated Student Constitution; College Leaders May Have One Year Term

Plans for the formulation of a new constitution were discussed at the last meeting of the Executive Council. A new constitution, if ratified would follow the general pattern of the old constitution with one major exception.

In the future officers would be elected to the Excutive Council for terms of one year instead of one semester. It is argued that under the present system of selecting officers the officers elected only "get started" in their first six months.

Every six months a new council takes office. Members are unfamiliar with the systems of government. Under the new proposal there would be some members elected who would hold office for one year.

Suggestion was made that the Executive Council secure the aid of The Guardsman in propagandizing this new idea. Vic Pudlowski, president of the Associated Men Students, suggested that "The Guardsman propagandize like Hearst does."

When informed of this, editor of The Guardsman, Don Constine, remained as firm as Molotov. He made the following statement:

"The Guardsman's editorial policy is determined by the editorial staff alone, which consists of the editor, the managing editor and the news editor.

"We do not countenance propaganda; furthermore The Guardsman's editorial policy appears in the editorial on page two.

"In regard to the specific request to propagandize the election issue, the staff will print the news, and after customary thorough investigation, state its editorial opinion.

"The policy of The Guardsman, can not be dictated to, nor influenced in any manner, by outside interests, nor will it stoop to propaganda."

Also discussed at the April 26 meeting of the council was the problem of cement letters. Associated Student President Bob Mills will attempt to see Timothy Phfleuger, architect of the college, to complete plans.

Next meeting of the Executive Council is tomorrow at 1 o'clock.

Kiddy Day Postponed— May 17 Or Soph Week

Plans for Kiddy Day, which was to be Thursday, May 10, have been postponed until Thursday, May 17 or during Sophomore Week, Dean Edward Sandys announced last week.

It was formerly announced that all students would be required to abide by the rules set forth by Associated Student President Bob Mills and dress in the manner of "kiddies." This may be changed to apply only to High Sophomores, Dean Sandys said.

School Board Approves Summer Sessions Here

Following approval of the Board of Education last week, college summer sessions this year will consist of two seven-week semesters, J. Paul Mohr, registrar, announced last week.

Each session provides for a six-day week.

Although the plan has been approved, it was done with the fact that interested students would have to attend college six days a week during the summer.

The first summer session starts Monday, June 25, and ends Saturday, August 11. The second session commences on the following Monday, August 13, and continues until Saturday, September 29. Fall semester this year, begins Monday, October 1.

Supplementary list of seven prospective graduates was announced last week by Mary Jane Learnard, assistant registrar.

The seven are Charles Robert Abraham, Angela Catherine Asaro, Cathleen Patricia Bowker, Marilyn Gay Brunton, Norman F. Hutchings, Barbara Marie Scholz, and Lillian Jane Wong.

Art, Camera Classes Take Part In Exhibit

Two members of the college faculty, assisted by a group of students in advertising art, took a leading part in arranging the much-publicized San Francisco Public Library exhibit for the world peace conference.

William Eckert, head of the college advertising art department, was asked by A. D. Graves, associate superintendent of San Francisco public schools, to act as chairman of the design and installation committee for the exhibit.

To carry out the project, Madison Devlin, a member of the committee on photography, and students Nina Saharoff, Laura Drake, Pat Collin, Barbara Scholz, Douglas Hutchings, and Walter Zdasiuk, all gave their assistance.

The exhibit occupies a space on the floor of the public library, next to the children's room. It consists of a three-dimensional streamlined photographic display on the principles of American education, plus assembled works of art, handicraft, and industrial processes executed by students of all grade levels.

Passing The Buck

By Henry P. Buckingham

IN this city by the Golden Gate the Convention of good intention has started its long and perilous road to success. Predominant is the Polish situation.

This Polish conflict might well be the stumbling block if it is not ironed out and ironed out well. American and British delegations claim that the present Polish government, the Lublin Government, it not representative of the Polish peoples. Russian factions claim that the Polish government, vacationing in London, is made up of the former six families of Poland and their representatives.

The six families of Poland owned most of the land and a large percentage of the people. It goes without saying that these former "leaders" of Poland would once again hold the reins that steer, if not drive, the people of Poland.

American and British representatives do not seem to be insistent on the reinstatement of these six families. They do seem to be intent on getting to the bottom of things in Poland. The Americans and the British demand, not loudly enough, that Russia explain, in certain and uncolored terms, the setup of this Lublin Government. They also demand, in terms even quieter, that the Lublin Government be made a more representative organ. Definite evidence of representatives of both labor and wealth in Poland must be shown as at least partly making up the Lublin Mystery Men.

So while we await the outcome of this question, we wonder if (and hope not) this Convention may be only a Convention of good intention.

* * *

When the working day is finished the delegates go out for fun, so it is no wonder that the Night-dress boys from Arabia, who look more like a page from Biblical tales than contemporaries, spend evenings atop Nob Hill watching servile woman dance with king man, and so close too . . . or that Russians fight for shoe stamps . . . or that Britains wonder at the curfew . . . or that citizens and delegates sit together and read empty menus.

* * *

And while foreign flags, but allied flags, flutter in San Francisco, white flags hang dead in Berlin if not all Germany, as there too, foreign flags, hostile flags, victorious flags, rise to signal the conquering of the mighty fortress.

One by one concentration camps, camps of torture, are uncovered. Mute pitiful evidence of the savage Nazi ways sicken hardened soldiers. German citizens show little or no remorse for what they have done. Only determination to survive and repeat.

Action must accompany good intention.

Deep is the fountain of worship in human nature.—William Ellery Channing.

Soviet Asia

MANY people unfortunately possess a rather vague impression of Russia's great strength in Asia.

In an area larger than European Russia and the United States combined, the Soviets have prepared a forcible outpost of power in the Far East, fortifying the country by all possible means.

This strengthening process began in the twenties following minor outbreaks in which the Russians removed Japanese influence and personnel from Vladivostok. Soviet Asia, the imperial army soon discovered, was a land of steel and stone.

For the past number of years, Russian soldiers have become accustomed to seeing Japanese patrols across their borders. Heavily equipped Soviet units, however, are a formidable threat to any would be conqueror.

Having created an invincible military machine, Soviet Asia is now strong enough to resist aggressor nations capably.

Infantry, artillery, cavalry, tanks, submarines, torpedo boats and an air force manned by thousands of young flyers are strategically placed at important cities and ports.

Although European Russia is linked with Asia by a network of railroads, Siberia is completely self-sufficient, not only from the military point of view, but also agriculturally and industrially.

If the Japanese ever use the poor judgment of fighting the Asiatic red-star troops, the ultimate outcome of such a futile move would be quite apparent.

Kiddy Day

THIS week the student government, seemingly burdened with administrative responsibilities, graciously consented to postpone plans for Kiddy Day until May 17.

The significance of Kiddy Day and the festivities scheduled when the joyful moment arrives still remain a mystery to most students.

As The Guardsman goes to press, we have failed to gather any reliable information as to what actually happens on this occasion.

In place of the proposed activities, we humbly suggest that the campus officers sponsor an Adult Day, at which time, certain individuals of the college could pretend they were mature, educated men and women.

Until students here demonstrate sufficient maturity to provide grounds for contrast, there is certainly no point in designating one day as Kiddy Day.

Letters To The Editor

RAM'S HORN

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Letters to the Ram's Horn column may be left in The Guardsman office, Room 134, in The Guardsman mail box, 137.

Those who wish to leave letters in the mail box should give them to the telephone operator at the information booth in the hall near the main entrance.)

● Kiddy Day Fantastic

Editor, The Guardsman:

A Kiddy Day is just so fantastic it doesn't merit real consideration. Why criticize it? The simple brain who copied this simple idea is living in its own world. Why disturb it? If some students approve, fine. But I'm afraid that if those who are disgusted are forced into a jail because of not fulfilling the demand of the day, a heck of a lot of the kiddies will go home a little badly mauled; Compulsion will only lead to gang fights or mass cuttings.

—Willie.

● "Loads Of Fun"

Editor, The Guardsman:

Kiddy Day! I think will be loads of fun. After all the same old usual routine of college life, or any kind of ordinary life, tends to become boring at times. We should welcome the diversion if only for that reason.

More power to ideas like this one.

DISCussions

IT seems that certain parents of the nation feel that they have to band together in an effort to prevent "indecent" entertainment from being too widely presented before their children.

Forming many organizations, they have influenced numerous radio stations into banning different musical selections from the networks. Their weapon, of course, public sentiment.

Just recently Rum and Coco-Cola was up on the carpet for its lewd lyrics. How it could be harmful to the youth of our country when it's so obvious, is beyond this observer's comprehension. Aren't the newspapers allowed to run wild in their selection of news items and in their choice of words?

Criticism should not be directed at these parents for their desire but rather for their method.

If these parents are conscientious in their self-appointed mission why are all instrumentalists allowed to express any thought they desire without any restriction whatsoever? After all, lyrics are simply the means of expression for the vocalist. They are restricted and banned. Musicians express themselves by interpreting their views through their chosen instruments. Their music is never banned. Why? The least the parents could do is be consistent.

A typical example of one sided restraint is between Body and Soul and Passion Flower. The lyrics of The Body hide nothing. Openly they state their message. It's tame when compared with certain paternity cases, involving well known movie stars, which are freely written up in national newspapers. Why are these lyrics exiled?

On the other hand Hodge's disc of Passion Flower reeks with the lowest form of ugly filth. No restrictions. No action on the parents' part. Why?

We absolutely and positively don't foster the idea of banning Passion Flower, but we wonder if the parents and their organizations are uninformed. From a social reformer's angle The Flower should be destroyed, but from a music fan's point of view it's a masterpiece.

If these parents are going to save our ears, okay, but at this rate they are completely one-sided. The Duke's current Carnegie Blues, if closely studied, is simply just too naughty for words. Again no action.

Rams Face Busy Weekend With Netters Against State Friday, Surfriders Saturday; Nine Plays Maritime, Menlo

The toughest week of their schedule, climaxed by a match with the undefeated Coast Guard team this Saturday, faces the Ram net team this week.

The netsters meet S. F. State on the State's courts this Friday in a match that will probably determine whether or not the season is a successful one.

The next day the team plays host to the U. S. Coast Guard Surfriders on the college's own courts in Balboa Park.

The Sailors are led by Ivy Chappel and Phil Southwick, both college stars and now regarded as two of the best players in Northern California. The C. G. Captain, Bob Pay, also a top notch netter, hopes to win the Bay Area Service Team title for the second straight year. The team defeated the California Bears last week.

Hope for the Rams against State here is strong, as the match appears to be about a toss-up. The Gators were defeated by U.S.F. in their only match so far this season but still appear to have a fairly well balanced team. The State team is led by Vernon Freethy, formerly of St. Ignatius and U.S.F.

The team will go into these frays with the lineup used against Cal with possibly a few exceptions.

The future holds a return match with State in a week or two, a match with U.S.F., a return match with J.C., and matches with Washington, Mission and Lincoln High Schools.

The Rams will be very busy today and tomorrow with games slated with the Maritime School and Menlo baseball teams respectively.

Today's game will find the Rams crossing the bay to engage the Maritime School in Alameda. Although previous encounter found the Maritime winning by a score of 7 to 5, the Rams have high hopes of avenging their defeat, one of their reasons being that they will be in full strength. The probable battery for this game will be Henry Boone and Paul Nederman. The Rams have a scrappy team and the Maritime School will find the going tougher.

Tomorrow's game sends the Rams to Menlo to face the Menlo nine which the Rams previously defeated by a score of 9 to 7. Granted increasing improvement, the Rams will give the Menlo squad a bad time on Menlo's home diamond. The probable line-up for this game will send Johnny Lopeman on the mound and Ernie Poggi behind the plate. The infield will send Ed Kenna at first, Nederman at second, Jerry Shaughnessy at short, and Don Grant at third. The outfield will probably find Manuel Castro patrolling left field, Keith Harper pacing center field, and Boone guarding right field.

Only one game now remains on the Rams' schedule, that against Modesto which was previously postponed. The date still remains uncertain.

Ram Nine Beats Marin, Is Swamped By State

Last week saw the Rams break even on the diamond, winning one, losing one. They defeated Marin for the second time by a score of 11 to 8, but lost to State for the second time in six of a nine inning game by a score of 14 to 3.

In the game at Marin, the Rams emerged victorious in their third conference game in a row and thereby remain undefeated in the league.

Led by Ed Kenna, Don Grant and Jerry Shaughnessy, the Ram win on a sweltering diamond was rather rough. Kenna was outstanding in his plays at first base and at bat getting 5-6. Grant played a superb game at the hot corner as well as at bat, getting 3-5, one of these hits being a triple into right-center field. Shaughnessy played beautiful ball at second, and he also showed well at bat getting 3-3.

In Saturday's game, poor umpiring coupled with rather unfair advantage, enabled the Gators to win.

Grant stole the spotlight by his magnificent game at third base, also making a spectacular catch of a high foul ball away from third.

To date only two league games remain to be played, the Rams may have a good chance to remain undefeated in their league standing.

Whoops! Bears Not In Playful Mood, Pound Out 9-0 Win Over Ram Netters

The end of a three game winning streak came to the college tennis men last Saturday when they were overwhelmed by the powerful University of California net team.

The Bears won every match including the three doubles to gain a 9 to 0 win over the struggling Rams. The scores of each match do not indicate how close some of the matches actually were, for though some of the sets were comparatively even, the Bear netters managed to win the more important points.

For the Bears, victory against the Rams gave them their second shut out win over a San Francisco College, for it was only a week before that these same Bears gave the U.S.F. Dons a dose of the same treatment. The Bears have suffered only one defeat this season, that a 5 to 2 beating by the Coast Guard, Surfrider team.

For the college team, defeat at the hands of the Bears ended the three game winning streak that they had compiled against Polytechnic, Saint Ignatius, and Marin Junior College.

Sid White, Number 1 man for the Bears, started the ball rolling by setting down Bill Covall to the tune of 6-3, 6-0. The Ram captain, Frank Reed, was next on the list. He was dropped by Lou Brennwald by a count of 6-4, 6-0. Following this, Cal's Rosborough trimmed Bob Chinn, while Dave Factor was being set down by Bob Lyness. Ed Cantwell, playing fifth singles for the Rams, was beaten by Les Scherling, and Frank Fields dropped the last singles match to the Bears' Stanley Potts.

Following are the complete results and the scores:

White C def Covall SF 6-3, 6-0.
Brennwald def Reed SF 6-4, 6-0.
Rosborough d Chinn SF 6-0, 6-2.
Lyness def Factor SF 6-2, 6-0.
Scherling d Cantwell 6-0, 6-1.
Potts cal def Fields 6-1, 6-1.
Rosborough-Lyness d Covall-Reed 6-1, 6-3.
Scherling-Kuhn def Factor-Fields, 6-1, 6-0.
Bertschinger-Potts def Cantwell-Chinn 6-2, 6-0.

Chinese Reds Trim Legions, Win Intra Basketball Tourney

The intra-mural basketball tourney was brought to a close last Monday with the mighty Chinese Reds trouncing a tough Legion team, 36 to 21 in a fast and furious contest.

The Reds led from start to finish and appeared to be the superior team. They showed blinding speed as is traditional with all Chinese teams. The Legion five was definitely outplayed throughout. High scorer for the winning five was Henry Hong, 14 points, with Karl Minnegarode taking honors for the Legions with 10 digits.

With the Reds definitely in as No. 1, the Legions took on a strong Red and White quintet and tied for second place. A play-off game is anticipated.

As was announced earlier, the first and second place teams will receive medals at the end of the semester.

WAA Softballers Issue Challenge To Faculty

Besides entertaining Balboa High School in a softball play day here next Wednesday, the Women's Athletic Association team now feels sufficiently advanced to challenge the faculty men, Bertha Mae Keller, adviser, reported last week.

"Of course, the faculty team should exclude the men's physical education staff," she added.

No response to the challenge has yet been received.

Preparations for the State College play day here have already begun, according to Janice Beanston, president. Archery participants are practicing daily, and the softball team is improving, but tennis could use more advanced players, she said.

The women's basketball team won another practice game recently from the Southern Pacific five by a score of 24-[illegible]. Because of a three-way tie for second place, the college team will probably play two or three more decisive contests before the League closes.

Competition in the table tennis tournament is entering another week. Already the top spot on the ladder has changed names with the latest check showing Anita Hart leading, followed by Dana Mae Miller, Barbara Mercer, Carolyn Burns, Adeline Olson, Janice Beanston, Irene Mouzakis, Hilda Ghio, Sue Miles, Connie Trigonis, Gabinda Minnoz, Marie Galliett, Norma Brous, Shirley Scharof, and Pat Davis.

Women Must Keep Medical Appointments Or Else!

Women students who have not had their medical examinations were again warned by the physical education department that if their present appointments are not kept they will receive no grades at the end of the semester.

California Resorts Offer Full Time Jobs To Students

That summer jobs are beginning to open with the United States Forest Service, and in the Lake Tahoe, Feather River and Redwood country resorts, was disclosed by Edward W. Larson, placement director.

Summer employment possibilities are already being offered to men by the Forest Service. These jobs are opening in the various national forests in the State of California, mainly in the High Sierra country, and in Northern California, Larson added.

Resorts that are becoming interested in securing both men and women student help are in the Lake Tahoe region, the Feather River and also in the Redwood country.

Opportunities are also open for employment as camp helpers, camp counselors, and camp directors in both public and privately organized camps, in this section of the State, according to Larson.

Larson stated that despite the transportation problem, and gas rationing, many of the resort owners apparently are confident that they will have a good year in 1945.

Emphasizing that the regions and types of employment specified are only a few of the opportunities that can be expected, Larson advised students interested in summer employment to apply in the placement office, Room 155.

XGI Society To Nominate Officers Tomorrow At 1

A meeting of the XGI Society for the purpose of nominating and electing permanent officers is planned for tomorrow at 1 o'clock in Room 204, Jim Earley, chairman of the veterans' organization, announced this week.

"This meeting will prove to be one of the most important gatherings of the society, as all permanent officers for this semester are to be elected," Earley stated.

It has been decided in previous meetings of the organization that all veterans of the college, other than those dishonorably discharged from the armed services (army, navy, marines, and coast guard), are eligible for membership in the GI Society. This includes former members of the WAC, WAVES, SPARS, and Women's Marine Corps. Sponsorship by an active member in good standing is also a requirement for admission into the organization.

Thompson Asserts Campus Clean Up Week Failure

Coming to a close next Friday the campus clean up campaign, sponsored by the Club Advisory Board has been completely unsuccessful, Bill Thompson said last week.

Opening last Friday with plans for club members to clean various parts of the campus, little cooperation was received. After giving a "pep talk" at the CAB meeting last Thursday, Thompson expressed hopes of having a better response.

Saga Of The Petitions, Or How Clotch Became A Friend Of The Registrar

Petitions for graduation were due March 19. Occasionally however, and probably because people has such a hard time finding a major, petitions are accepted late.

On this note, our typical student, Jasper Clotch, last week struck out gaily to file a petition.

Jasper secured the use of an adding machine in the business department of the college. With this and a pen he had borrowed from a post office when he was a wee lad of 23, he set about the task of totaling units.

Now Jasper had heard a rumor that one must have a major to graduate. Not certain whether this meant that one of his relatives had to hold this particular rank, he discarded the idea of trying to capture a WAC with gold oak leaves on her shoulders.

Jasper added his Junior College units he had wangled at Podunk U., his former alma mater. He had a grand total of 91. He pondered the major question. Philosophy was a golden subject, but then geology was a green field. He had had some history, and Math 51 had presented itself as it often does. Jasper took his problem to the registrar.

He met with utter disappointment. He took his problem to the English department. Here his disappointment was Utter. He returned to the office of the Registrar. Every five minutes on the minute he tugged the right coat sleeve of the registrar. Finally he received recognition.

The registrar scanned the paper Clotch presented. Then he scanned Jasper. Then he scanned both and murmured, "Impossible."

As he sailed bodily through the door of the Registrar's office, a realization hit Clotch. He turned the paper with his total units around.

"Strange," said Jasper, "how these things happen. How could I have ever held this paper with 16 units on it upside down so that I thought it was 91?"

Panel Discussion Planned As Commencement Highlight

Commencement exercises this year will include a panel discussion by a group of six students and faculty members, under tentative plans disclosed this week by Dean Edward Sandys, chairman of the graduation committee.

Departing from the usual program of previous years, the committee will not schedule a single guest speaker, Dean Sandys said. Instead, the panel discussion will be held probably on a subject arising out of the San Francisco Peace Conference.

Commencement rehearsal will be held Friday, June 22 at 12:30 p. m. in the George Washington High School auditorium, and the exercises will take place there in the evening at 7:45. Orchestra music will be under the direction of Madison Devlin.

Students To Get Grades From Advisers On May 10

Following end of the second midterm period this Friday, students must see their advisers May 10, to receive a complete list of grades earned thus far in the semester according to Edward H. Redford, head counsellor.

Time for meetings are during the 1 o'clock hour, or at other hours either in the rooms or during laboratory hours which can be interrupted, Redford emphasized.

Men students who entered this semester may also receive a reading of their Strong Vocational Interest Tests from the advisers at this time.

Students who did not take the Otis Test which predicts ability to do advanced academic work or the Kuder or Strong vocational interest inventories may take them Thursday, May 17 at 1 p. m. in Room 100, Redford said.

Music Hour To Present Sorcerer's Apprentice

Scheduled for the Tuesday, May 8, music hour program, is Paul Dukas' Sorcerer's Apprentice, Madison Devlin, instructor of the course, said last week.

Dimitri Mitropoulos conducts the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra as it interprets this selection by means of recordings, he added.

Dukas was a minor poet of French music, midway between the literary and the impressionist conception of the art.

As usual the music hour is to be held in Room 200 at 9 o'clock, Devlin explained.

Actor Frederic March is an alumnus of the University of Wisconsin

Drama Group Gives Spring Green, Hit Comedy, Next Week

Performances of Spring Green, a three-act comedy, are slated for presentation in the Little Theater, Room 209, next Wednesday, May 9, and Thursday, May 10.

In the same manner as last semester, two shows of two hours each a day are scheduled. Time announcements are definitely expected next week.

The plot of the play concerns a mother and her two daughters who turn part of their home into an apartment to help ease the housing situation. An Army Major moves in and then, his absent-minded son, Newton, arrive from New York.

Newton has a passion for earthworms, and this conflicts with his passion for the prettiest girl in town and manages to disrupt his father's romance and almost lands him in jail. All this adds to the laugh-filled humor of the play.

Members of the cast will be named next week, Ruth Somers, drama instructor, said.

Poll Of Opinion: Kiddy Day Gets The Big Old Raspberry

The Guardsman poll of opinion this week concerned the Kiddy Day which the Ex-Council proposed to hold on May 10, then postponed to Thursday, May 17. Results show definite opposition. Forty students were asked for an opinion. Of these, thirty-two were opposed, five were in favor of and three were indifferent.

Three reasons for opposition were expressed consistently by the 32.

One pointed to the problem involving students who work after college hours and therefore would be unable to participate in the "dress up" part of the day. A second brought out the fact that students traveling a long distance to college would not wisely make themselves conspicuous. The third, held emphatically by all making statements, expressed in no uncertain terms that such activities have no place in college.

The five favoring a Kiddy Day had only one idea in mind: "I think it would be loads of fun."

A typical answer opposing the plan was as follows: "If the student officers proposed the idea, I think an admirable solution would be to have THEM dress as kiddies, and allow us (the vulgar multitude) the privilege of throwing monkey nuts at them, while THEY languish in jail—for a small charge, of course."

Pat Kiunis: all for the idea, said, "Personally I do not have any objections at all in having a Kiddy Day. I think it would be lots of fun, although I would be unable to participate because of work. I'm 100 per cent in favor of it."

Sitting on the fence, Jacklyn Tiffin responded, "Kiddy Day! It sounds swell but do you think you have the cooperation of all the college students? I don't. Of course, there is no harm in trying, it may bring the students closer to each other and arouse a little more interest."

Some of those opposed to the scheme made the following statements:

Sam Israel: "The spirit of fun is a wonderful thing. When I go to visit some friends, or go to a party, or go on a date I sometimes like to act silly and in that way have a lot of fun. But when I go to work or to school I do not go to have fun. Many serious students of the college come here, strange as it may seem, to learn, not to play. To force these students to wear idiotic costumes with "jail" as an alternative is, to say the least, unbecoming to an institution of higher edueation."

One sociable person snarled, "Nuts!"

Climaxing opinion of the 40 interviewed came from Jasper Clotch, prominent college personality. "The idea of having a Kiddy Day is not only foolish, unreasonable, out of proportion with the present world situation, wasteful, neurotic, childish, and a sad attempt at reincarnating pristine days, not befitting of a college but also the idea st-n-s."

Students To Meet Advisers Tomorrow At 1 For Grades

Students must see their advisers tomorrow to receive a complete list of grades earned this semester, according to Edward H. Redford, head counsellor.

Time for the meeting is during the 1 o'clock hour in the rooms specified below, or at other hours either in the classrooms or during laboratory hours which can be interrupted. At this time, men students who entered this semester may receive a reading of their Strong Vocational Interest Tests from their advisers.

Following is the list of advisers and their offices:

Cecil Aggeler, Room 140; Richard Allman, Room 160; Flossita Badger, Room 200; Edwin Cranston, Room 100; Claire Cuneo, Room 158; William Eckert, Room 347; Miriam Escher, Room 204; Margaret Flournoy, Office 220; Jules Fraden, Room 309; John Gerstung, Room 136; Virginia Gohn, Office 222; George Green, Room 45; John Herman, Office 330; William Mayo, Room 133; Dorothy Mercer, Room 255; Joan Muscio, Office 134; Harry Nelson, Office 150; Ella Nowell, Office 223; Glenn Noble, Room 334; Milton Polissar, Office 248; Thomas Porter, Room 322; Helen Reveal, Office 221; Jane Scribner, Room 310; Claude Shull, Office 349; Claude Silva, Room 132; Llewellyn Snyder, Room 258; Hilda Watson, Office 107.

Dr. Flippin Will Speak Here Today On Democracy

Under the sponsorship of the Cosmopolitan Society, Robert B. Flippin, executive secretary of the Booker T. Washington Community Service Center, will address students on Democracy and the Negro in Room 136 at 11 o'clock today.

Dr. Flippin, who obtained his A.B. at the University of Nebraska, his M.A. at the University of Minnesota, did graduate work at Columbia University and who played college and later professional football, will, because of limited time, begin his lecture promptly on the hour.

The lecture, to which all students are invited, will be attended by two psychology classes, and therefore, Phylis Haley, instructor of the psychology classes, and co-sponsor of the Cosmopolitan Society, urged that all other students intending to attend the lecture, appear promptly.

As co-sponsor of the Spring Festival which will be held on Thursday, May 31, the Cosmopolitan Society has taken charge of obtaining flags of the United Nations, through the cooperation of foreign-born students within the college.

College Seventh War Loan Drive Begins Next Monday With $15,000 Quota; Song Contest Has 10 Judges, May 17 Deadline

That the judges have been chosen for the college song contest which ends Thursday, May 17, at noon, was announced last week by Flossita Badgar, music instructor.

Representing students and faculty members the judges include the following:

Patricia McCormick, president of the Music Club; Bob Mills, representing the Executive Council; Adele Weiss, manager of the Womens Chorus; Beth Wilcox, of the Club Advisory Board; Pamela Sampson, of the Cosmopolitan Society; Don Constine, editor of The Guardsman; Bill Brownell, who writes the column, Discussions in The Guardsman; Miss Badger, music instructor and director of the program; Edward Sandys, dean of men; and Madison Devlin, music instructor.

With the song contest open to all students of the college, entries may be submitted to Dean Edward Sandys' office or to Miss Badger in Room 200.

The song contest is the first step in the music festival which will be presented Thursday, May 31, at 1 p. m. in the men's gymnasium. The festival is the highlight of the college bond drive.

For the best entries submitted, three prizes will be presented. The composer of the best original song will receive first prize of a $25 war bond. For second prize is $10 in stamps, and $5 in stamps is the third prize. Words, but not music, must be original for second and third prize.

Although no new college hymns of any type will be considered, all other types of college songs will be accepted.

Co-sponsoring the music festival and song contest are the Music Club, Student Welfare Committee, Cosmopolitan Society, and CAB.

Coincident with the opening of the nation's Seventh War Loan Drive, the college's participation in the campaign begins next Monday to continue for a three-week period, through Friday, June 1, according to Dean Edward E. Sandys. Quota is $15,000.

Bonds will be sold at a booth in front of Room 169 by an AWVS representative from 11 a. m. to 2 p. m. Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays during the campaign. On the last two days, the representative will be at the college all day.

Dean Sandys urged instructors and students to buy bonds at the college during the drive and said that a special effort should be made to get sales from parents and friends. These bonds will be credited to the college.

Climax of the drive is the Music Festival, Thursday, May 31.

No Business—So Council Picks On The Guardsman

Having neither pressing business nor problems of student administration on its agenda, the Executive Council passed one recommendation in its 40 minute meeting last Thursday.

Apparently piqued at the results of The Guardsman's Poll of Opinion on Kiddy Day last week, the council voted "that The Guardsman show more cooperation."

Members failed to take into account that The Guardsman introduced the Poll of Opinion into its columns at the specific request of Dean Edward E. Sandys, faculty adviser to the Council.

AGS Honors Prep School Scholars For Two Days

Honor students of San Francisco high schools will be entertained by Alpha Gamma Sigma here today and tomorrow.

Following a tour of the college, led by Marilyn Zito, A.G.S. president, the honor students will be given refreshments and entertainment in the cafeteria.

Entertainers include Norma Busse, Adele Weiss, and Pat McCormick, who will also sing, accompanied by Lorraine Gay. Ed Waley is scheduled to give his interpretation of a burlesque opera.

After the refreshments and entertainment, the visitors are scheduled to see a performance of the college play, Spring Green.

Drama Group Gives Spring Green Today In Little Theater

Performances of Spring Green by the college drama group begin today in the Little Theater, Room 209, at 10 a. m., under the direction of Ruth Somers, drama instructor.

The play is a three act comedy by Florence Ryerson and Colin Clements.

The second complete show starts at 12 noon and runs to 2 p. m.

Intermissions will coincide with the ringing of class bells at 11, 12 and 1 o'clock. Students who must see the play at two different hours, rather than during a continuous performance, may enter or leave at these times.

Luncheon Matinees Urged

During intermission of Spring Green (11 to 11:10 and 1 to 1:10) today and tomorrow, students who wish to bring a light lunch may eat it in the Little Theater at the above times.

Tomorrow the final two performances will take place under the same schedule.

The cast of 16 includes Norma Busse, Phyllis Hoffman, Patricia McCormick, Marvelle Smith, Gilbert Blact, Richard Cumming, John Blauer, Marcia Dains, Joseph Moss, John Walsh. Saimi Fassett alternates with Lois Jennings, Bob Lertora with Walter Mahoney and Celeste Rose with Jean Emard throughout the series of performances.

"But, Father," says Newton (John Blauer) in a scene from the college drama group's current production of Spring Green, "these worms are longer, fatter, stronger, and smarter than any worms ever produced before. In fact, they are SUPER WORMS!"

Passing The Buck

By Henry P. Buckingham

ON Sunday, April 27, three members of The Guardsman Staff attended a luncheon at the Press Club. The occasion was one of a weekly series to be presented by the Press Club to "Junior Journalists."

Speakers for the day were Sanders S. Kline of the United Press, attached to the Navy department in Washington, D. C., and Henry Cassidy former correspondent in Moscow and only foreign correspondent ever to interview Stalin.

The speeches in themselves were well presented but told nothing more than one could find in a publication of the Reader's Digest or Time Magazine.

The questions that followed the speeches were for the most part stereotyped. The questions that were interesting were off the record and therefore not available for press release.

Incidentally, members of The Guardsman Staff attending the luncheon, received no lunch. They were, however, allowed a place on the stage, which was at the rear of the proceedings. Here they jammed themselves onto a piano stool that was ingeniously unearthed behind the closed curtains.

The most interesting part of the proceedings were the people or junior journalists stationed around the room. Even with war-time travel conditions, a delegation from San Diego managed to attend the affair.

As two speakers would arise for different comments, remarks, etc., young photographers would jump to their feet and very professionally, light up the room with their flash bulbs. One young hopeful was over excited to say the least. Each time he would click a picture, he would bashfully attain a standing position, carefully slip a plate in his camera, sight his objective, take aim, and, click! He would snap the picture. Then he would sit down with a dazed look on his face and turn his camera around slowly. Naturally, to his disappointment, there would be no flash bulb in its proper and fitting place.

Three times he tried to take a picture, and three times he forgot a flash bulb. He was, what might easily be termed, uneasy. The fourth time he arose he had the sympathy of everyone. After all, if one takes the law of averages into consideration, a fellow just can't lose all of the time.

As he aimed his camera bets were placed. He had failed three times, so the odds were three to one on the negative opinion.

Members of The Guardsman staff bet on the affirmative and when, to the surprise of most, the camera veritably shook from fright, when the flash bulb in its innards popped its response to the pressure on the trigger, the representatives from The Guardsman cleaned up.

The fact is, and no exaggeration, we collected enough from the disappointed losers to pay for a well-earned lunch when the meeting was over.

Seventh War Loan

WITH the Seventh War Loan Drive beginning next Monday, Americans as individuals must meet their largest quota to date, seven billion dollars.

Once again the government has requested critically needed financial aid. Men and women in the nation's colleges are certainly expected to assist in paying the tremendous cost of the war.

For both personal reasons and commercial protection, students here should fully consider that bonds are their security for the future, the safest investment in the world. Bonds also help prevent inflation by keeping prices down.

Because they increase purchasing power when the maturity date is reached, bonds will be effective in winning and preserving the peace. Furthermore, bonds, regardless of denomination, place each person's loan into immediate use.

This money is required now to reduce the expenses of supply and occupation, to bring back troops, to build more hospitals and to rehabilitate the casualties.

At The Guardsman's press time, the cessation of hostilities in Europe has been announced. Yet the battle of Japan is in its initial stages.

The Pacific struggle will be bigger, harder and slower than most people anticipate. It may take many months or even years. Thus, the United States treasury has a much heavier burden than ever before in its history.

Just glancing at the quotas and schedule of the present drive is sufficient evidence to reveal the size of the task confronting the American people. Since the campaign extends over a longer period, it is necessary to put forth more intense effort.

As the treasury department's current bulletin stresses, "Let all Americans do their part—for their own sake, for their country's."

RAM'S HORN

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Letters to the Ram's Horn column may be left in The Guardsman office, Room 134, in The Guardsman mail box, 137.

Those who wish to leave letters in the mail box should give them to the telephone operator at the information booth in the hall near the main entrance.)

● Correction

Editor, The Guardsman:

Last week The Guardsman printed an error in its Club Cavalcade; an announcement of the engagement of Jackie Wallace to Lloyd Klemp. I don't know if it was printed as a joke, or if there was a misunderstanding. In either case it had no basis in fact, and I would appreciate it if this letter be published to clear up any mistaken impressions.

● Rallies

Editor, The Guardsman:

The last time I walked down to the men's gymnasium for a rally, I was very disappointed. Not only was I disappointed in the performance, but in the audience, also.

The students of J.C. are fortunate in having such modernized gymnasiums. They should be glad to see a performance in them. The gymnasiums are so comfortable.

The performance of the last rally was not very interesting. Still the audience could have given the performers their attention.

J. C. has so many students of different countries, with many interesting talents. I don't see why the rally committee does not look into this. For example, we have a lot of students from South America or Central America. They probably can do interesting things.

I hope that the talents of all these students will be made good use of. I know I would enjoy seeing interesting performances.

DISCussions

GLIDING down majestically from the peak of yonder summit comes little Pepe, undoubtedly the most handsome mule since the days of FrawnKee, with whom you are naturally familiar. FrawnKee had his day but then so did Bizet. Magnificent little Pepe trots along, setting each hoof down with the dignity that only a mule of his mulerage could command.

As Pepe winds his way down a path, we suddenly hear the lilting strains of a lyric guitar, which in reality is just like any other guitar.

Hark. Who is the mangy fellow who dares to sit on the back of the great Pepe and strum the strings? Note his shabby dress. Ye Gods and Zounds. His serape shows. Is he friend, foe, or Jimmy Byrnes?

No matter. Pepe is about to enter the town of NoGas-NoLark-spur. Behold. Pepe is about to speak. He opens his dainty labios and belches forth with a bellowing horse-laugh, which is utterly impossible for any mule to accomplish despite his mulerage. As Pepe passes through this settlement, we become aware of the gay conversation of the local pasqualies. We are on the outskirts of the cuidad. No Pepe, no. But dash, he does it again. Another horse-laugh.

Leaving civilization, Pepe climbs hill after hill in a direction which might lead to certain torture at the hands of La Guya Lombardoso, fierce murderer of the pampas. Luckily we soon near the gates of a huge stadium. Protection is surely inside.

Pepe stops. Our Guitar playing friend jumps from Pepe's back, he's into the arena of the stadium, and faces a bull. He leaps at the animal and sends a series of razor-like jabs into his back. This is followed by savage spearing which can only result in the bull's death. Egad the bull totters. The gathered crowd anticipates his worldly departure with a cheer, but it comes to an instant hush as the bull slides to the ground, mortified.

Pepe's rider is the great bull-fighter, El Bingo. Listen to the cheers. Why does this hero go around with his serape showing. That's Crosby for you. La Boheme.

The above is merely this semester's record-story. The material for this gripping saga was gained from Eddie Heywood's recorded Disney-like impressions based upon the theme of Begin the Beguine.

WAA Challenges Faculty Women In Volleyball

Members of the Women's Athletic Association issued a challenge last week to women members of the faculty for a volley ball contest. Led by Bobbie Mercer, the students promised a stiff tiff for 12 instructors who have previously seen court action.

The faculty members expected to uphold their honor are Laurine Bergen, Bertha Mae Keller, Verrel Weber, Betty Jean Otto, Frances Mount, Andrewa Noble, Jane Scribner, Claire Lippert, Eleanor Blinn, Mary Jane Learnard, Edna Denhard, and Mildred Williams.

Women Softballers Tangle With Balboa Sluggers Today

With heavy hitters and classy fielders, so described by Women's Athletic Association adviser Bertha Mae Keller, the WAA softball team takes to the diamond here this afternoon at 3 o'clock against a contingent from Balboa High School.

No lineup has been released as yet, and indications are that the composition of the team is subject to last minute changes, or additions. Evidence lies in the statement by Janice Beanston, WAA president, that an attempt is underway to form a second softball team to meet State College here next Monday.

"Practice is held Monday and Wednesday afternoons and new members are welcome," Miss Beanston said.

Response to last week's WAA challenge to men of the faculty in softball was not forthcoming by last Friday. Spokesmen for the WAA team, however, were still hoping for acceptance of the challenge and indicated willingness to wait until the faculty men had nursed their wounds suffered in their recent defeat by one point at the hands of a men students' team.

Brady Issues Ultimatum On Intra Football Play

Intramural football will be played this semester if two more teams file entries by this Friday, May 11, Coach Jack Brady, director of intra activities, decreed last week.

Thus far only two teams have entered, and both are representing their high schools. One is composed mostly of Commerce High gridders and is captained by Staten Webster, who led Commerce to a successful season last year.

The other team, all Polytechnic men, is led by Manuel Castro, right half, who saw action in all the games of the Polytechnic championship 1944 season.

OSD To Release Shoes For College Women; Only Catch Is, They Toss Not Wear Them

By Henry P. Buckingham

Washington D. C., April 30, 1945, O.S.D. Directive No. 780456:

"Under revision of O.S.D. Official Bulletin No. 19389, it will be possible for the Women's Athletic Association of the San Francisco Junior College, located in the City and County of San Francisco in the State of California to secure, purchase or otherwise acquire an unlimited number of used, worn, or non-resaleable shoes, ration free.

"Under official revision No. 19389A, provision is made that these shoes be used in the manner, method or way as prescribed in O.S.D. order No. 555566745.

"Official contract with the O.S.D. makes further provision that said shoes be used only on level, well-weeded ground to keep them on the straight and narrow path. Under this provision it will be possible for the Department of the Women's Athletic Association to use these, hard shoes, metal shoes, or otherwise termed horse shoes in a game, tournament, or tiff, in the sport, contest or athletic duel of horse shoe throwing, pitching or casting as the case may be."

Deciphered, this means that the Women's Athletic Association will clear a space behind the women's gym for the purpose of including horseshoe throwing in the regular curriculum of the WAA schedule

Rams Defeat Menlo 9 To 6 Before GI Convalescent Crowd

Before a group of convalescent soldiers at Dibble General Hospital diamond last Thursday, the Rams did it again by defeating the Menlo Junior College baseball team in a return engagement by a score of 9 to 6.

This game was very well played and was enjoyed by the spectators. The fifth inning was the big inning for both teams with both squads getting four runs. The Rams started it off with Don Grant getting on with a walk. Ed Kenna doubled into right field to score Grant. Then Henry "Boom Boom" Boone hit a terrific drive into left field for a home run to score Kenna ahead of him.

In the seventh inning Boone again stepped up to bat and hit another home run but this time into right field. In the sixth inning Paul Nederman hit a home run into left field but no one was aboard.

The Menlo nine started their half of the fifth inning with two walks and an error which scored a run, a single into left-center field which led to another score, then another single which scored several runs.

Johnny Lopeman pitched a beautiful game, striking out eight batters before being relieved by Nederman, who also pitched good ball. The two hitters of the day were Boone, who hit 2-4, and Nederman who hit 3-5.

Maritime Nine Squeezes Past Ram Baseballers 4 To 3

In a close game called in the seventh, the Rams were defeated by the Maritime baseball team in Washington Park in Alameda by a score of 4 to 3 last Wednesday.

The Maritime nine started the first inning by getting two men on by way of walks, then Higgens drove a line drive over the right field fence for a home run. In the fourth inning a single and stolen base plus a ground hit ball paved the fourth run score.

The Rams also started in the first inning with a walk by Ed Kenna and a hit by Henry Boone. Another hit by Ernie Poggi drove in two runs. In the fourth inning, a triple by Poggi and a single by Manuel Castro drove in the third run and last run. The game was called at the end of the first half of the seventh inning because of a time limit on the game.

The Rams made four hits off the offerings of the Maritime pitchers. Poggi hit 2-3, one of these hits being a triple, the other driving in two runs. The infield practically outdid itself, and Boone pitched a masterful game striking out seven batters and giving up five hits.

The short score:

	R	H	E
S. F. J. C.	3	4	2
U. S. M. S.	4	5	0

Gil Black Scores Lone Win As Gators Maul Ram Netters

The college racquet swingers trekked to S.F. State last Friday, where they were humbled by a score of 7 to 2. The college team was expected to fare much better against the supposedly impotent Gator team.

The Rams get one more crack at the State team, this Friday on the college courts at 2 p. m.

The only Ram netter to triumph was Gil Black, who put on a sterling comeback to trim Mark Gilles of State in a three set battle. Black dropped the first set 6-3 and was trailing 3-0 in the second set, when he turned on the steam and won the next two sets 6-3, 6-2. The only other Ram point was won by the doubles tandem of Ed Cantwell and Bob Chinn.

State's Freethy won over Bill Covall by a score of 7-5, 6-3, and Frank Reed dropped a close three set battle to Ed Murray. The doubles match between the above mentioned was won by the State team.

In the other matches, Chinn was stopped by Hanson of State, and Don Cowderoy dropped a long match to Ted Scharetz. The only other singles match was won by the Gators, when Bill Carpenter beat Cantwell.

Rams Almost Sink Coast Guard Net Team, Lose 5-4

Disregarding rumors that the Coast Guard tennis team was the strongest in the Bay Area, the college team all but disproved this rumor Saturday on the college courts by almost upsetting the powerful Surfriders. As it was, the Rams dropped a 5 to 4 decision to the more experienced Coast Guardsmen.

The Rams were led in their gallant effort by Gil Black and Dave Factor, both winning their singles and then teaming to win their doubles match. Ed Cantwell and Bob Chinn supplied the fourth point in the third doubles match.

Phil Southwick and Ray Perry, top performers for the sailors, won easy victories from Bill Covall and Frank Reed. Frank Dunlop, of the C.G., also ran through his match with Cantwell. Ed Carr supplied the finisher by trimming Chinn.

Following are the complete results:

Southwick CG def Covall SF 6-2, 6-2.
Perry CG def Reed SF 6-2, 6-1.
Carr CG def Chinn SF 6-2, 6-2.
Dunlop CG d Cantwell SF 6-3, 6-2.
Black SF def Pay CG 5-7, 6-2, 6-2.
Factor SF def Lucia CG 6-4, 6-1.
Perry-Carr CG def Covall-Reed SF 6-2, 6-4.
Black-Factor SF def Pay-Lucia CG 6-2, 6-1.
Chinn-Cantwell SF won by forfeit.

Soph Queen Nominations Due Monday

Class Promotes 'Jeans and Gingham Day' June 1, Plans Faculty, Student Games

All nominations for High Sophomore Sweetheart must be submitted to Bill Thompson, class president, by next Monday, May 14.

Although it was previously announced that only four women's social groups would offer names of candidates, Pi Mu Nu has now been included. The other four groups are Alpha Lambda Chi, Kappa Phi, Phi Beta Rho, and Theta Tau.

Two non-sorority women, to be chosen by the Executive Council, will also run for Soph Sweetheart, making a total of seven candidates, Thompson disclosed.

At a class meeting last week, it was decided to have a "jeans and gingham day" on Friday June 1, during Sophomore week. On this day, all class members would be expected to dress accordingly, women in gingham dresses and men in jeans.

To terminate "jeans and gingham day," tentative plans have been made to hold a volley ball game between faculty women and sophomore women, and a baseball game between faculty men and sophomore men.

Next class meeting has been scheduled for Tuesday, May 15, at 1 o'clock in Room 111.

Thompson expressed the hope that all High Sophomores attend the meeting especially those who expect to be graduated this June.

Educator From Washington Views Veteran Guidance

College courses and guidance for returning veterans drew the specific interest of Dr. William G. Carr, educational consultant of the American delegation to the San Francisco Conference, who was here last Wednesday to "look around" the college with Dr. A. J. Cloud.

Dr. Carr, here from Washington, is a representative of the National Educational Association and secretary of the association's Educational Policies Commission.

Registrar Issues Warning To Grads

Because the information to be contained in the graduation diplomas is ready for printing, students desiring to graduate in June are warned by Mary Jane Learnard, assistant registrar, to file their petitions immediately.

Deadline for petitions was March 19, but those filed at once will be accepted, according to Miss Learnard.

At present 150 students, including those from summer, fall, and spring semesters, are eligible to graduate.

Schedule of courses being offered during the two summer sessions will be released as soon as it is prepared, Miss Learnard revealed last week. The list will probably be ready by the middle of May.

Registration for the summer semesters will be on the first day of each of the two seven-week sessions.

Music Hour Will Feature Stravinsky's Petrouchka

Announcing that Petrouchka, by Igor Stravinsky, is to be featured at the music hour next Tuesday, Madison Devlin, instructor, added that the arrangement to be presented is in complete reference to the ballet movements from th original ballet of the same name.

Quite often, he explained, a concertized version is used for study, but this practice will definitely be abandoned for the day.

Leopold Stokowski conducts the Philadelphia Orchestra in this work which will be heard by means of recordings.

V-G Day For Contest Entries Postponed

Extending the deadline for entries in the Victory Garden Contest through the month of May, the Advisory Council at the college prepared last week to notify plot holders who are eligible to enter, according to John Craig, contest chairman.

War bond prizes are being offered totaling $255 plus a grand award of a $100 bond to gardeners in project, district community, or back yard plots, including those in the college and Laguna Honda areas.

Gardens will be inspected at least twice and judged according to arrangement, condition, continuity of cropping, and variety and quality of vegetables.

Awards will be announced by September 15. Judges are appointed by the council; their decisions will remain final.

AWS-AMS Set Barn Dance Date May 19

Howard Frederick and his orchestra have been chosen to play for the barn dance to be given by the Associated Women Students and the Associated Men Students, according to Barbara Chambers, AWS president.

Location of the dance has been definitely set for the California Club, 1750 Clay Street, on Saturday night, May 19, from 9 to 12 o'clock.

Correct attire to be worn at the dance will be cotton dresses and pinafores for the women, and jeans and plaid shirts for the men.

Coke and potato chips will probably be served for refreshments, Vic Pudlowski, AMS president, said.

All students of the college are invited to the dance. The admission will be one Associated Student card per couple.

As yet no committee has been appointed for decorating the hall in a barn dance atmosphere.

Hotel Division Graduates In Service Choose Quartermaster Corps, Aviation

By Patricia French

Graduates of the Hotel and Restaurant Management Division are souring these days both in culinary fields and in the air, according to Hilda Watson, chairman of the division.

Mrs. Watson explained that there are about 100 men now in the service who have taken this course. Many of them were placed in the Quartermaster Corps, while a good percentage went into aviation, including a woman student, Martha Harman, who was in the WASPS.

No reason could be found for this trend toward the air ways, only the close relation between "frying" and "flying."

The division sends a bulletin to its servicemen each month, keeping them posted on current plans.

Maritime student cooks in the course will prepare and serve a dinner for the alumni of Alpha Phi Delta Kappa, Saturday, June 2.

The course, at first restricted to men and only women from families connected with hotels, is now opened to everyone. It has been able to boast three assistant food directors at Stanford.

Besides instruction at the college, students attend hotel meetings, and get practical experience from hotel personnel, adroit in their fields.

One of the graduates, Bill Lewis, is now an instructor at the Navy Cooking School in San Diego.

Mrs. Watson mentioned that about five of the former students have sisters attending the college.

Poll Of Opinion: Small Majority Favors Semi-Formal

By L. J. Smith

Another upset occurred this week when The Guardsman Poll of Opinion presented a question about the Sophomore formal, scheduled for the Claremont Hotel on June 2.

Contrary to past history, results show that the majority of students prefer a semi-formal dance. Sixty-five men and women were approached. Final tabulation finds thirty-five favoring semi-formal; twenty desire a formal affair; seven are holding out for an informal, and three are completely indifferent and unconcerned.

It should be stressed that formal means tuexdos and evening gowns and semi-formal gives the college men an opportunity to wear their business suits, while women may appear in long or street length gowns.

Three reasons were uppermost in the minds of the students preferring a semi-formal dance.

A majority mentioned the lack of tuxedos and the expense of renting one. All agreed that transportation would influence attendance, and several made note of how uncomfortable a tux can be.

Those favoring a strictly formal doted on memories to be kept for a lifetime and the one chance in a year "to get all dressed up."

One in favor of going informal expressed this feeling:

"Semi-formal dances are an abomination, neither rum nor coca-cola. Formals are OK except that not all of the fellows can readily obtain the clothes. Therefore it would seem logical to have an informal dance."

Ed Cantwell could not find any reason for dressing up. "Formal is too stuff shirt for our college. The collar on a tuxedo makes your adam's apple feel like it's going through an obstacle course."

Another, in agreement with those who wanted a semi-formal raved, "An informal dance is an idiotic idea, and a formal dance is banal and purile. The women look forlorn and wilted, and the men look like sick penguins. Heavens to Betsy—probably the best idea would be to have a semi-formal or a pajama party."

A young lady added her bit toward making the Soph shindig formal.

"The Soph Formal should be formal as the name implies. If anyone complains, it should be the women. Men's clothes never change, and even transportation facilities do not hurt the men as it does the women. It should be consistent, not optional as far as tuxes or business suits."

A height of indifference came with the final remark. "Pardon me for talking in your face, senorita, but I don't care what they do."

Opinions expressed in this article are those of the men and women of the college selected at random. Written statements are held in The Guardsman office for one week.

Veterans' Society Elects Earley First President

With the third meeting of the new XGI Society, Jim Earley was elected president of the veteran organization last Thursday.

Because of the present size of the society, the offices of secretary and treasurer were combined. Betty Lou Sundman was unanimously elected to the post. To date, no vice-president has been elected.

It has been decided in previous meetings of the organization that all veterans of the college, other than those dishonorably discharged from the armed service, are eligible for membership in the XGI Society. This includes members of the WAC, WAVES, SPARS, and Women's Marine Corps. Sponsorship by an active member in good standing is also a requirement for admission into the organization.

Another meeting of the XGI Society is scheduled for Thursday, May 17, at 1 o'clock in Room 204, Earley said.

Dr. Cloud Gives Solemn V-E Message

President A. J. Cloud

Editor's Note: Because all students of the college were not able to hear President A. J. Cloud's V-E Day message, The Guardsman prints it below.

"V-E day has been officially proclaimed. In commemorating this historic event, we have great cause for thanksgiving, but not for jubilation.

"The ruthless dictators in Europe are gone. Their fanatical followers have laid down their arms. Yet—our heroic dead cannot be restored to life, and, before the task ahead is completed, many more must die.

"It is our part to make sure that they have not died in vain. Our best efforts must go forth to see that an enduring peace is achieved. In that spirit, let us give thanks on this memorable day."

Guardsman Captures All-American ACP Honor Rating For Sixth Time

In competition with junior college newspapers throughout the nation, The Guardsman again captured All-American honors, highest rating by the Associated Collegiate Press for its Fall, 1944, issues.

The present rating gives The Guardsman a total of six All-American, or superior awards in eight semesters in which issues were submitted. The other two ratings were First Class, or excellent.

All member papers in ACP are evaluated according to standards set by the judges which include such phases of newspaper publishing as news coverage and treatment, news writing and editing, features, general editing, headlines, makeup, typography, editoral and column style and content, and sports coverage and treatment.

Four other junior college papers in the country were also named All-American.

Judges in the Thirty-Second ACP Critical Service were generous in their praise of The Guardsman feature stories and makeup, highly approved news coverage, treatment and war effort coverage, indicated agreement with The Guardsman staff's opinion that a feature column would "add much to its pages," and climaxed their comments with the following statement:

"Happy to see you are divorced from the chit-chat column."

The present rating marked a repeat performance for many members of the Spring, 1944, staff, both times led by Editor Don Constine, Managing Editor Henry Buckingham, and News Editor L. J. Smith.

Reporters on the Fall, 1944, staff were Dell Bain, Robert Ball, Bill Brownell, Dorothy Burley, Winifred Cohen, Frances Erceg, Anita Geiger, Barbara Jenkins, Grace Martinez, Mary Millett, Robert Montgomery, Bill Mundy, Gloria Papazian, Pamela Sampson, Priscilla Shaw, Norma Smith, Jean Taggart, and Theodora Wong.

Hansen And Helmer Win Forum Essay Contest

Ralph Hansen and James Helmer won the Forum Magazine essay contest, Gertrude Land, editor announced last week.

Hansen wrote in favor of Compulsory Military Training in the Post War World, and Helmer wrote against it. Both essays are to be published in the Forum-Magazine.

Mrs. Land also announced that the magazine is expected to be ready for distribution sometime in early June. The magazine went to press last Friday, and 500 copies have been ordered.

Song Contest Ends Tomorrow; War Loan Drive Starts Here

Entries for the college song contest, which is open to all students of the college, must be submitted by noon, tomorrow, according to Flossita Badger, music instructor. They may be left at Dean Edward E. Sandy's office or with Miss Badger in Room 200.

Winners in the contest will be announced at the Music Festival which will climax the college participation in the Seventh War Loan Drive and is scheduled Thursday, May 31, in the men's gymnasium.

In the drive to reach the $15,000 quota set for bond sales here, a three week campaign started Monday to continue through Friday, June 1.

During that time, on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays from 11 a. m. to 2 p. m., Mrs. Elise Morchouse, AWVS representative, will sell bonds at a booth in front of Room 169.

Prizes in the song contest include a first of a $25 war bond for the best original song, words and music, and $10 and $5 in war stamps for second and third selections respectively. Music for the latter prize songs need not be original. Words with a college theme may be adapted to a familiar melody. Because the college already has an official hymn, new ones will not be considered the judging committee decided.

Emphasizing the importance of buying bonds, Dean Sandys, director of the drive, urged instructors and students to buy them here. Parents and friends buying bonds here will be considered as contributing to the college effort to reach its quota.

Colorful Costumes To Feature Barn Dance On Saturday

Colorful decorations, bright costumes, and music by Howard Frederick's Orchestra will all make up the setting for the traditional Associated Women Student-Associated Men Student barn dance to be held this Saturday night.

Dancing will start at 9 o'clock and will continue to 12 o'clock at the California Club, located at 1750 Clay Street, between Van Ness and Polk and within reach of the H and D cars on Van Ness, and the Polk Street bus.

Checked ginghams, cotton dresses, and pinafores for women and plaid shirts and jeans for men have been specified for the attire to be worn at the dance, Barbara Chambers, AWS president, disclosed.

Admission will be as usual by one Associated Student card per couple.

Refreshments will be served and the usual no corsage rule will be in effect.

Decoration committee for the dance appointed by Vic Pudlowski, AMS president, includes Maggie Rodgers, Ernest Poggi, Agnes Spouse, Maggie Scholes, Miss Chambers, and Pudlowski.

Decorations will be different and more realistic than at dances in the past, in that they will create a true barn atmosphere, Pudlowski promised.

All students of the college are invited and urged to come to the dance.

For once, the dance committee felt it unnecessary to stress that the college dance no-corsage rule will be in effect.

Reporters Hear MacLeish At Press Club

By Bill Brownell

Completely letting his hair down and speaking from the depths of his very soul, Archibald MacLeish gave one of the most brilliant speeches of his career before a recent gathering of the S.F. Press Club, to which two members of The Guardsman staff, L. J. Smith and this writer, were invited.

MacLeish obviously was furiously angered when he entered the room, and his entire attitude was that of absolute sincerity. He was inspiring, exciting, thrilling, and fiery mad. All the usual flowery phrases that politicians constantly use were conspicuous by their absence.

MacLeish time and time again reminded those present that everything was off the record, as far as direct quotes were concerned, and that all official statements come from the Secretary of State and not from him. MacLeish is Assistant Secretary of State.

Mr. MacLeish spoke as a man whose highest ideals and principles were in danger of being trampled upon. He definitely did not speak as a statesman.

The whole theme of his talk—it was no prepared lecture—was that the Peace Conference, now meeting here in town, could never succeed if it is to be incessantly knifed in the back by every pessimist who came here convinced that the conference would fail and who is doing his most, through his attitude, to make it fail.

A official of a foreign government was even attacked for his pessimism. No names were mentioned. MacLeish personally thought that the conference could succeed and is doing his utmost to make it succeed, but he stated that at present all chances are being crushed by the majority of the population of the world, and their leaders, who want a world peace but aren't willing to run the inconvenience of helping to create it.

He went on to say that the best this majority could do so far was to criticize the efforts being made and at the same time refuse to offer any suggestions or proposals. "If you want the peace, get in and fight for it," he begged — not demanded or asked, but begged as an individual citizen of the world.

Although very few at the press meeting agreed with the methods sketchily outlined by MacLeish for obtaining a world peace, everyone stood and enthusiastically applauded at the close of his talk for here was a man who knew what he wanted, was convinced his goal could be reached, who asked for a chance to fight for his belief, was willing to go the limit to succeed, and who only begged for either cooperation or non-interference.

Following MacLeish, many prominent radio news correspondents and

Passing The Buck

By Henry P. Buckingham

V-E DAY has come and gone. It sneaked in the door so quietly that even the few who felt like celebrating were caught with their bottles down. And now Europe is free.

We assisted in freeing Europe in 1918. We freed Europe from the noise of battle so that it might pass into the era of starving, howling mobs.

Mis-rule in 1918 evolved a Germany that rose in a remarkably short space of time once again to threaten the world. Mis-rule in 1944 cost the lives of thousands of Italians. Will mis-rule and poor judgment again cost American lives and British lives and Russian lives and French lives and Italian lives and German lives; or have we learned a lesson, and are we capable of passing that lesson on to a nation steeped in the traditions of war?

Switching the scene to San Francisco. A charter for "everlasting" peace is being drawn. A charter is being drawn up that is weaker and less binding than was the League of Nations Plan two decades ago. If diplomacy and international law and politics fail again how will we explain the next war to OUR children?

The answer is that it is going to cost every nation something to maintain a permanent peace and that we must be realistic not idealistic. * * *

Edward Kennedy of the Associated Press has been suspended for his purported jumping-of-the-gun dispatch that the war in Europe had ended.

SHAEF headquarters claims that Kennedy, along with 16 other correspondents, was briefed before entering Reims that the story was off the record until they were notified otherwise.

(Off the record, as mentioned last week in this column, is a sacred unwritten law among newspapermen, meaning, not available for press release.)

Kennedy maintains that the pledge of secrecy ended when "no issue of military security was involved," he had a right to dispatch the story to his news agency in the United States. Kennedy also said that "he did what he believed to be his duty."

SHAEF retorts coldly that lives were endangered and that a former agreement with Russia was broken. SHAEF also says that this breaking of the agreement might have caused international complications. But, despite the sobbing, no complications were brought about and as is apparent from many official communiques, no loss of life could be attributed to the release.

The whole thing seems to boil down to this. Kennedy did violate an oral agreement. He told the world, as was his duty, that the war was over. He scooped the big boys before they could put on their Sunday clothes and dust off their mierophones and give the good word themselves. So now they are irritated, to say the least.

Accelerated Education

THERE has been an increasing tendency since the beginning of the present conflict to accelerate educational schedules throughout America's colleges and universities.

Briefly, the general principle behind the hastened scholastic plan is to offer four years of college in a 32 month period.

The nation's industries and armed forces were in need of quickly trained personnel to carry out their demands when the academic program started. This speed-up instruction is vital and necessary at a time of hostility.

Some people, however, are now discussing the possibilties of a similar form of education for the post-war world.

We stated in a former editorial that accelerated education should and must end with the war. Furthermore, we pointed out that many students in peacetime depend upon the summer vacations to obtain valuable experience in jobs and to gain renumeration for the next semester's tuition.

Vacations are virtually done away with in the hurried school courses.

The Associated Collegiate Press last week issued a bulletin which announced the results of an important survey among 4,000 students.

An overwhelming majority of those questioned want an urgent return to pre-war university life which permits vacations. They insist on a more varied curriculum. Above all, the students definitely oppose the currently adopted rapid teaching methods.

This poll of opinion, accompanied by other reliable information, certainly supports our own editorial policy.

It's been proved conclusively that education cannot be forced and still be thorough.

Men and women will be needed with a broad, liberal knowledge and understanding to face material and spiritual reconstruction following the battle of Japan.

Accelerated education will not fulfill this responsibility in preparing men for the tasks ahead.

Letters To The Editor

RAM'S HORN

(Letters submitted for publication will not be edited or corrected in any way.)

● Advice To The Lovelorn

Editor, The Guardsman:

After reading last week's article "No Business—So Council Picks on The Guardsman," I wish to point out that the student who wrote this article portrayed a very narrow-minded point of view. From this view, the students are expected to form their own opinions.

We, the officers of J.C. take our work just as seriously as you take the editing of your paper. Last week we pointed out that we would like more cooperation from the "Guardsman" and what do we get? —a kick in the teeth in the very next issue. Cooperation? I think not! A member of the Council also pointed out that since the "Guardsman" is paid for directly by the students out of the money received from the Associated Student Cards, the students should then have a voice in what they want to read. If you took a "Poll of Opinion," (not from the Journalism Class or by Editors, but by a disinterested party) I feel sure you will find there are a number of Columns which the majority of students have little interest in. What do we care what some member of The Guardsman Staff thinks of the "International Situation" or the latest jazz record? We can read our news papers and Band Leader's Magazines. We are interested in School news. Solution?

First: I think the Secretary's notes from the Executative Council's meetings should be printed in the paper as they are written in the files of the Associated Student's office, and let the students form their own opinions.

Second: The prejudices of the "Guardsman" should be dropped so that school spirit, which the officers are working for, be made easier.

Third: Write more about the students themselves. Interview graduating students. Many have said they would like a gossip Column. I appreciate the fact that The Guardsman is a lileray paper, but

DISCussions

POOR Dave Rose. Everyone seems to be using his style, and one arranger has even gone to the extent of borrowing one of his best licks.

As for the borrowing of style, listen to Stordahl's opening to Sinatra's When Your Lover Has Gone. An exact duplicate. The boy who utilizes Rose's lick is Ted Steele. Notice the beginning of Perry Como's Temptation. The second thundering chord is right out of Rose's orchestration of The Army Air Corps Song as used in Winged Victory.

Sinatra now has Dream and There's No You on the market. On the whole both are the usual good Sinatra vocal, but nevertheless Frankie manages to be caught once during the latter in the embarrassing position of being out of breath in the middle of a word. This has nothing to do with his exceptional breath control but rather that when the recording was made he was under some pressure and not relaxed. It's just like a track man. Usually he may be able to do the hundred yard dash in 9.6, and yet he may turn in an occasional 10.5 because he was foolish enough to eat a hamburger at JoJo's before the race.

Perry Como's Temptation is naturally his best work and a rival to Frank's Ol' Man River. However the opposite side of this disc possesses a magnificent tune, I'll Always Be With You. Perry is with much thought, the background is adequate, and the lyrics are appropriate. Just an all around fine session.

Mel Torme made his last appearance in town more than two years ago. Then he was playing trumpet with Chico Marx's group and doing a little singing.

The next step for Torme (he was 17 when with Marx) was a member with the different Hollywood hotel bands. He starred opposite Marcey Maguire in Higher and Higher. Just recently he formed his Mel-Tones and with them joined Dick Powell on Fitch. Today he has his first record on the store shelves. Title of same is You've Laughed at Me for the Last Time and Stranger in Town, which he wrote. The record isn't great but it gives warning to some of the boys to get on the ball. Torme is a cross between Sinatra style and Russell quality. For his age he's terrific.

Women Slug Balboa In Softball 21 To 8; State Contest Postoned To Next Monday

Having slugged a lopsided 21 to 8 victory over Balboa High School last Wednesday the Women's Athletic Association softball team is now preparing for the State College contest here Monday, May 21. Originally scheduled for May 14, State requested a later date because of heavy examination schedules, Bertha Mae Keller, adviser, explained last week.

Response of the WAA challenge to the men faculty met with silence, Miss Keller said, and therefore the team will tangle with the women faculty, men students or any group able to show up this afternoon or at a designated future date.

Outstanding players in the Balboa game were Leona DeBique, outfielder, who caught spectacularly, observers said, and Janice Beanston who pitched the entire game. Others deserving recognition are Ann Ahokas, Alma Pucci, Nadine Lacey, Wanda McKenzie, Edna Lamas, Catherine Russo, Annette Gilbert, Eleanor Wohler and others.

Miss Keller stated that the present team is composed of the best softball material since the war.

A badminton tournament has been scheduled for Friday, May 25, Loys Daskarolis, WAA secretary, reported recently. The tourney will last all day, culminating in awards for the winners.

Connie Trigonis has resigned her position as WAA vice-president for lack of time. Members hope to have a successor elected at their next regular meeting.

Rams Claim State Title

Baseballers Trim Modesto Nine 7-5 With 3-Run Outburst In Big Seventh Inning

The amazing Ram nine did it again last Tuesday when they defeated Modesto Junior College by a score of 7 to 5 at the Ocean View diamond to take the State Junior College Championship.

The Modesto team was undefeated in all of its games down south, while the Rams were undefeated in all of their games up here. Thus the game was more or less played for the championship.

Modesto started scoring early in the first inning. Two singles scored one run in the inning. In the second inning Modesto again scored a run with a walk and a single.

The fourth inning looked dark for the Rams, when Modesto's Reilly doubled into center field and Lillywhite singled to score Reilly. Stalker was hit by a pitched ball, and Rhoch singled to score Lillywhite.

Modesto came back in the seventh inning to score one more run by an error and a single.

The Rams also began to score early, when in the first inning Don Grant walked and Henry Boone was safe on a fielder's choice to score Grant. Boone was out, and Johnny Lopeman tripled into center field.

With the Rams behind 4 to 1 in the fifth inning, Keith Harper walked and Grant doubled to center field. Boone again singled to score Grant.

At the end of the seventh, the Rams still behind 5 to 3, Harper again started the rally by walking. Ed Kenna followed suit, and "Boom Boom" Boone hit a terrific double into center field to score Harper and Kenna to tie the game.

Paul Nederman beat out an infield hit to score Boone and send the Rams ahead. In the eighth inning, the Rams scored again to put the game on ice.

The Rams played an exceptional game, with both the outfielders and infielders outdoing themselves in every way. Boone, who pitched the whole game, struck out seven batters and walked only one.

Conference Restored For '45 Grid Season

With full restoration of the Northern California Junior College Conference scheduled for the fall of 1945 and games planned at Seals Stadium, the Ram football plans take on a "peacetime" appearance for the first time since 1941.

Opening step in the program begins tomorrow afternoon from 1 to 4 and Friday from 2 to 4 o'clock, when spring football practice starts on the Ram field. Coach Lee Eisan is already confident of a signup of 20 and expects twice that number to turnout.

Already, unlike experience of the last three seasons, when personnel from day to day was doubtful, the first conference game is set, putting the Rams against four old time opponents, Modesto Junior College at Seals.

Returning lettermen expected to lead the 1945 aggregation include Don Grant, guard; George Fabian, center; John Mapelli, guard; Bob Mills, tackle; Victor Pudlowski, tackle; and possibly Al Gorbenko, halfback.

High Soph Not WAA Team To Play Faculty

High Sophomore women, not a Women's Athletic Association team, will play women members of the faculty here during High Sophomore week. The faculty women have already accepted the challenge, and a soph team is expected to be organizd soon.

Internee Arrives SF, Attends Spring Green

Among those present at the 12 o'clock performance by the college drama group of Spring Green held in the Little Theatre, Room 209, last Thursday, were Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Cumming, parents of Richard Cumming who played the part of Major Todd.

This visit by the Cummings was significant in that Mr. Cummings had arrived in San Francisco on a ship from the Philippines just three hours before the noon performance of the play.

Mr. Cumming was a civilian internee of the Japanese at Manila where he had been held prisoner for three and one-half years.

Gators Prove Case Against Netters 5-4

San Francisco State College proved that it had better tennis team than that of the college, when its netmen rang up their second triumph 5 to 4 over the Rams on the college courts last Friday.

The Rams, who lost to the State net team a week ago by a count of 7 to 2, rallied on their home courts, only to fall one match short of victory.

Bob Chinn played sparkling tennis to overcome a terrific lead amassed by Ted Hansen and finally emerged as victor in the third set. Gil "Old Faithful" Black made it 2 for 2 against State by dumping John Scharetg, former student here, in another three set closie.

The breaks went against the Rams in three of the singles matches as Dave Factor, Frank Reed, and Bill Covall each lost a three-set battle to his Gator opponent.

The Rams lost another heartbreaker when Black and Factor were defeated by Scharetg and Carpenter by the narrow margin of 7-5, 7-5.

In the longest match, Reed and Covall played Ed Murray and Hansen, and after two and one-half hours the Ram combo, staggered through the last point to ring up a 7-5, 13-11 win.

More About MacLeish

commentators got up to give their views. These men, who were as sincere as MacLeish, savagely attacked the Assistant Secretary of State for his ignoring of the many, many barriers that stand in the way of world peace.

The two most enlightening of these speakers were George Moread, CBS correspondent just back from Moscow and Charles Hodges of Mutual. The main trend of their views was that a world peace can never be gained unless international news censorship, carried on by each individual nation is unconditionally lifted.

Moread shocked the people assembled by saying that Russia will undoubtedly want us to compromise with her on many rights contained in our Bill of Rights. He concluded by saying that it is his belief that if we make such world-wide concessions, we will lower the standards of the entire world and do more harm than good. Moread, of course, was also speaking as an individual citizen of the world.

Main impression of the gathering on a whole was that this world of ours is filled with patriots both national and world who will not rest until a world peace is gained.

Soph Dance Remains Formal-Semi-Formal

In answer to the poll of opinion carried on recently by The Guardsman, Bill Thompson, class president, stated last week that all women are expected to attend the High Soph Prom in formals. Although tuxedos are preferred for men, Thompson added that he leaves the matter to their discretion.

Tickets went on sale Monday at the campus bank, and the charge is $1.50 per couple, Thompson explained.

As previously announced the Soph Formal is to be at The Claremont Hotel in Berkeley on June 2.

Election of the Soph Queen to reign at the prom is scheduled for Friday, May 25, and will probably be held in the college cafeteria, Thompson continued. Since the Executive Council failed to select two non-sorority women for competition, indications are that only five women will be running for the coveted honor. These five women will of course be nominated by the five women's social groups, Thompson concluded.

Climax of Sophomore Week is a "jean and gingham day" on Friday, June 1, at which men will wear jeans, and women must dress in gingham.

Melva Niles Has Role In Light Opera Red Mill

Melva Niles, former student in the music department here, is currently appearing in a secondary role in the Red Mill at the Curran Theater.

Following termination of the role in San Francisco, on May 20, Miss Niles will travel east with the company where she will sing in Rose Marie and The Desert Song.

Miss Niles is the only soloist to sing at commencement exercises and also contributed her talent to the music club Christmas concert at the California Club last semester.

The Music Club sent roses to Miss Niles, former president of the organization, on the opening night of The Red Mill.

Dr. Flippin Warns Students Here Against Race Prejudice As Step To Disaster

By Pamela Sampson

Dr. Robert B. Flippin, executive secretary of the Booker T. Washington Community Service Center, under the sponsorship of the Cosmopolitan Society, addressed a psychology class and interested students last week. Subject of Dr. Flippin's lecture was Democracy and the Negro.

Statements made by Dr. Flippin were that minority groups are a question of geography, and that race prejudice is based on ignorance. In warning that the world is rushing headlong into disaster, he urged that all people should inform themselves as to the attitude and activities of negroes.

Keynote of Dr. Flippin's address, was that this is a time for honesty, and one in which white people should shoulder their responsibility, and that they should realize that there is no "negro problem," but rather that there is a problem which the whites must solve.

Pointing out the tremendous contribution that negroes have made to our culture, and that they no longer have any ties with Africa, Dr. Flippin made a strong plea for the benefits of democracy to be applied to his people.

Dr. Flippin's address, which was colored with apt anecdotes, commanded the complete attention of the students, and at its conclusion, received prolonged applause.

Helen Wheeler To Appear In Piano Concert Tonight

Helen Wheeler, pianist and former student here, will make her debut on the concert stage tonight, at 8:30. The performance will be held at the Century Club.

Sponsoring herself, Miss Wheeler will play selections from the pens of Bach, Beethoven, Schubert, Chopin, and Debussy.

The pianist attended the college for two years, where she took a special music course. Feature piano soloist at the college's Christmas recital last December, she has also given recitals for the music students here.

Council To Rewrite ASSFJC Charter

Appointment of a constitutional committee, to rewrite the Associated Student constitution, was the main business of the Executive Council at a special meeting last week.

Members are Bob Mills, president of the Associated Students; Bill Thompson, Men's Athletic Council representative; Barbara Chambers, Associated Women Student president; and Henry Buckingham, Publications Board representative. Dean Edward E. Sandys will be faculty adviser.

Resolutions adopted at the meeting included provision that a new constitution be drawn patterned after the U.S. constitution, and that a special election be held when the document is completed to decide on its adoption. The tennis team was allowed a $5 budget.

At a second and regular meeting, three budgets were passed. A $300 budget of the High Sophomore class was approved. $150 was set aside for the purchase of a piano to be placed in the men's gymnasium and the All-American Keys for the editorial staff of The Guardsman were approved.

Discussion was carried on concerning the awarding of championship blocks to the college baseball team players. Decision was tabled pending further investigation by Dean Sandys of the actual existence of a baseball league.

It was also decided that the long disputed cement letters be placed on the hill above the practice field on Ocean Avenue.

Next meeting of the council will be held tomorrow at 1 o'clock.

AWS To Entertain High School Women May 23

Associated Women Students will sponsor a tea in honor of senior women of San Francisco public and private high schools on Wednesday, May 23, in Room 158, from 2:30 to 4:30 p. m., Barbara Chambers, AWS president, announced last week.

Purpose of the tea is to acquaint graduating seniors with the activities and students of the college.

Committees to serve at the tea have not been appointed as yet, but Miss Chambers, Mildred Hoffman, and Marie Wettin are expected to name members next week.

XGI's Meet Tomorrow At 1 O'Clock In Room 204

With a general meeting of the XGI Society scheduled for tomorrow at 1 o'clock in Room 204, all veterans of the college are urged to attend, Jim Earley, president of the organization, announced this week.

It is expected that the official charter of the society will be submitted to the Club Advisory Board for recognition soon, Earley said.

Denman Scholarship Requests Due May 23

Applications for the James Denman scholarships, awarded here annually to eligible women students, must be submitted to Dean Margaret Dougherty not later than Wednesday, May 23.

The scholarships, consisting of two $125 awards, are designed to aid in the educational expenses of students while attending this college.

Women applying for the scholarships must be graduates of one of San Francisco's public high schools, should have a high scholastic rating and must be planning to graduate from here.

The scholarship fund is made available by Judge William Denman of the United States Circuit Court and his sister in memory of their father, the late James Denman, a San Francisco school principal, and superintendent, later president of the Board of Education.

The committee of judges is composed of President A. J. Cloud, Assistant Superintendent of Schools, Albert D. Graves, and Dean Dougherty.

Cafe Dinner Shortens The Long, Lean Meat Shortage

By Patricia French

Shortening the meat shortage was the idea behind the Hotel and Restaurant Management Division's dinner for the International Caterers and Stewards Association held May 8.

Attending the dinner, prepared by the students of the division, was Mary Lou Armstrong of the Research and Educational Department, who demonstrated the conservation in meat roasts when cooked slowly to avoid shrinkage.

Eighty-one pounds of succulent rib beef used in the demonstration (courtesy the National Livestock Meat Board of Chicago) was consumed in the course of the dinner.

New Ad Art Club Has Walter Zdasiuk As Head

After forming an advertising art club called the Kappa Alpha Sigma 26 commercial art students at the college plan to invite persons in the commercial field to be guests at their classes.

At their first official dinner, April 29, charter officers were installed as follows: President, Walter Zdasiuk; vice-presidents Nina Saharoff and Bill Schaedt; secretary, Sally Weaver; and Treasurer, Laura Drake.

The club, organized too late to be registered this semester, is directed by Adviser William Eckert.

Stravinsky To Highlight Music Hour Again Tuesday

Again using the works of Igor Stravinsky for study material, Madison Devlin, music instructor, stated last week that The Fire-Bird Suite is scheduled for the next meeting of the Tuesday music hour, at 9 o'clock in Room 200.

Leopold Stokowski conducts the Philadelphia Orchestra in its recorded version of this composition.

Poll Of Opinion: Queen Should Be Soph

By L. J. Smith

Rebelling against past system, men and women of the college expressed opinions this week on the class status of the soon-to-be-elected Soph Queen.

Past Polls of Opinion have been taken for numerical results in English classes and for statements from students at random. This week, The Guardsman followed usual at random procedure, but took the numerical poll from a psychology class.

Of the 38 opinions received, 33 expressly stated that the Soph Queen should be a Sophomore. Three thought she should be selected for beauty and personality, regardless of class standing. Two remained "in-between."

Reasons for electing a Sophomore queen were the same. Barbara Mercer summed it up in a very few words:

"As the title implied, she is a Sophomore queen, and after all Soph week is meant to honor the Sophomores, and why should a Freshman be chosen for that honor. The Freshmen will have their chance later."

Fran Davey believes the title should be bestowed on beauty alone: "I think the Soph Queen candidate should be chosen for beauty and that she need not be Soph."

Helen Smerngotes, Ex-Queen, gave a rounded opinion for the two who desired to remain in the middle:

"The men students of our college should have a little more to say on the way the Sweetheart of the campus is chosen, because it is they that vote for her."

Men expressed short and to the point opinions: "The queen should be a Soph."

A new idea came to light when Barbara Potts said, "If the Frosh want a sweetheart of their own, why can't they hold an election too."

Seven In Race Friday For Soph Crown

Marcia Dains · Mary Jane Force · June Larson · Colleen McInerney · Lorraine Norton · Ramona Pillman · Lottie Jean Smith

Both Men, Women To Cast Bond Votes

Election of the Sophomore Queen is to be definitely held in the college cafeteria between the hours of 11 and 2 on Friday, May 25, Bill Thompson, class president, announced last week.

Following is a list of candidates and their sponsors as issued by Thompson; Marcia Dains, Alpha Lambda Chi; Mary Jane Forrest, Kappa Phi; June Larson, Theta Tau; Colleen McInerney, Phi Beta Rho; Lorraine Norton, Pi Mu Nu; Ramona Pillman, and Lottie Jean Smith. Miss Smith and Miss Pillman were elected from the Associated Students.

As an added spur to the college bond drive, women students will be allowed to cast one ballot for each $25 war bond purchased. Men students will vote as usual, but may obtain an extra ballot for each $25 war bond purchased.

Formal Bids Limited to 150

Only 120 bids for the Soph Formal are to be offered for sale. As many have already been purchased, students are urged to obtain theirs as soon as possible at the college bank on the first floor.

Each bid will admit 1 couple and is priced at $1.50. The formal is scheduled for Saturday, June 2.

Although the Soph Prom was originally scheduled from 9 o'clock until 12 o'clock for Saturday, June 2, in the Spanish Room of the Claremont Hotel in Berkeley Thompson said that there is a possibility that he may be able to extend the hour until 1 o'clock. This is because of the recent lifting of the curfew.

Bernie Salen's orchestra has been contracted for the engagement during which the Queen will be presented with the Beta Tau perpetual trophy and the Sweetheart's trophy.

Because the Music Festival and Memorial Day are both during Soph Week, other Soph activities are to be conducted on Friday, June 1.

AWS Entertains 15 High School Senior Classes Here Today

Senior women of San Francisco and private high schools will be entertained by the Associated Women Students today at a tea to be held in Room 158 from 2:30 to 4 p. m., according to Barbara Chambers, AWS president.

Schools that are expected to be represented at the tea are Abraham Lincoln, Balboa, Commerce, Galileo, George Washington, Girls' High, Mission, Lowell, Polytechnic, Presentation, Star of the Sea, St. Bridgets', St. Rose, St. Vincents', and Notre Dame.

The committee is under the leadership of the AWS officers, Mildred Hoffman, vice-president; Marie Wettin, secretary; and Miss Chambers.

The rest of the committee includes Bobbie Benn, Gay Corgiate, Claire Levesque, Nancy Schultz, Winnie Kenny, Claire Stewart, Mary Millett, Pat Curtiss, Mary Jane Force, Aline Bowen, Virginia Burke, Sandy Giannella, Shirley Sikloe, Pat Davis, Claire Warner, Bobbie Mercer, Lois Robinet, Lucille Hoffman, Gail Todd, Jane Boggs and Janice Beanston.

Campus Bond Drive Ends June 1; Students Enter 21 College Songs In Music Contest

As the four-week college war bond drive for $15,000 draws into the final phase, Dean Edward E. Sandys, while emphasizing the importance of buying bonds for the future as well as the imminent end of the war, urged students to buy at least one $25 war bond in an effort to reach the peak of the bond thermometer by the close of the campaign, Friday, June 1.

To spur the drive, the purchase of one bond will allow a student one extra vote for the Sophomore Sweetheart. For example, a student, man or woman, who purchases a $25 bond will receive two votes instead of the usual single vote.

As an added incentive for the sale of bonds, Dean Sandys said that the first college club to sell $2,500 worth of bonds will be given five tickets to the Sophomore Formal.

Bonds may be bought from Mrs. Elise Morehouse, an AWVS representative, at the booth in front of Room 169 and Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays, from 11 to 2 p. m. during the drive. In the last week she will be here Thursday and Friday all day.

Dean Sandys also urged students to bring in bond applications from parents and friends. Credit for these will go to the college.

A total of 21 songs, all of them with words and music original, were entered before the deadline last week in the college song contest, feature of the Spring Music Festival scheduled for next Thursday, May 31.

Awards, a first prize of a $25 war bond, a second and third of $10 and $5 in war stamps respectively, will be presented to the winners by Bob Mills, president of the Associated Students, at the festival in the men's gymnasium. The committee of judges named last week will release its findings at that time.

A custom of the college since it was organized, the music festival is one of two major events presented annually by the music department under the direction of Flossita Badger.

The program will open with greetings by President A. J. Cloud and is highlighted by the College Chorus, the Women's Chorus, under the direction of Miss Badger; the Alameda Coast Guard Band; and the college orchestra, directed by Madison Devlin.

Soloists are Patricia McCormick, George Ostertag, William Schlager, and Richard Cumming, while Lorraine Gay and Martha Lee are accompanists. Grace Bonpartian and Cumming will accompany the orchestra.

Tying in with the college's participation in the Seventh War Loan Drive, the festival will close with community singing, mostly patriotic songs, led by Devlin.

Entries in the song contest were submitted by Jean Emard, June Haseman, William Schlager, Agnes Spouse, Martha Lee, two songs, Noel Preston, Geraldine De Groot, Barbara Kresteller, Lorraine Gay, Caroline Dean, Myrtle Pietschmann, La Verne Spring, Adele Weiss, Betty Jorgensen, Lorraine Hedman, Mary Millett, Peggy Gay, Al Rubke, Johanna Lunt and Cumming.

Joe Rosenthal Was Student Here

By Don Cowderoy

Joe Rosenthal, famous for the Iwo Jima flag raising portrait, which has become one of the most talked-about pictures to come out of this war, was discovered last week to have been a student here in 1941 specializing in languages.

His picture on arriving in this country was at once accalmed and taken into the hearts of the American people as a symbol of the nation's emotional response to the great deeds of war. In showering more praise upon this photo, the government has chosen it as the official poster for the Seventh War Loan, and the Pulitzer Committee recently named it a Pulitzer winner.

Ubaldo Maggetti, Rosenthal's language instructor here, had nothing but praise to say of him.

"Joe Rosenthal was a fine student and a fine friend. He was quiet and unassuming, a young man with a will to work and to get ahead," Maggetti said.

Passing The Buck

By Henry P. Buckingham

IF any one for one minute doubted that Joe Stalin does not like to travel he can cast his doubts to the winds. Joe does not like to travel.

President Truman has been sending out statements that he hoped that the Big Three could meet in the near future. Winston Churchill has been issuing statements that he hoped that the Big Three could hold a small party in the very near future. Joe Stalin has remained mum about the whole thing.

Obviously, when two heads of state give evidence of having hope, and the third doesn't say a word, then the first two are attempting to convince the third that he should meet with them.

Of course this is Uncle Joe's cue to say, "I'll be over to meet cha bout half past eight."

It would indeed be a move toward solidarity if Stalin would cast propriety to the dogs and make the now treacherous trip to London. Joe does not now have the excuse that rapid war developments are in the offing and that his presence is desired at home.

In fact, Joe has good cause to come. What with his boy Molotov meeting all kinds of trouble in San Francisco.

Our late President, Franklin Roosevelt, made the long trip to Teheran and Yalta to meet Stalin. Mr. Roosevelt did not let his duties at home stop a trip that would, in all events, help the future security of the world.

President Truman is head of a country still at war. Mr. Churchill's country is at war. Mr. Stalin does not have the burdens of battle on his shoulders. Now is the test. Stalin can show his willingness to help in the success of future world peace by meeting Truman and Churchill where they ask, not where he asks.

• • •

A week ago last Sunday, we had the honor, if you want to call it that, of representing San Francisco in a round-table discussion held on station KYA by the prominent commentator John B. Hughes.

Speakers of the day were Dr. Suratgar of the University of Teheran, Iran, and Dr. Cen Chih-Mai, counselor of the Chinese embassy in San Francisco. Both were delegates to the conference.

Another speaker was Maria Etemadie, a 19 year old accredited journalist from Teheran. Miss Etemadie was an interesting and congenial speaker, despite the fact that she knew it.

Miss Etemadie revealed the startling fact that the girls of the better families of Teheran are not seen on the streets of that city with American GI's. Whether they condescend to walk with officers was not mentioned, but we do hope that they allow us this one, if not dubious, honor.

We ask that every schoolhouse become a service center for the home front.—Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Savages?

IT certainly appears that grave and startling international complications may soon result from a recently published article in a Mexican newspaper called the Excelsior.

The paper's correspondent to this country, while writing a report of university life here, was absolutely horrified by the careless appearance of American college women.

Warning Mexican mothers to take necessary precautions to prevent their daughters from imitating our co-eds, the Excelsior sternly pointed out that the neglectful students "just don't consider it important to take any pains with themselves."

Comments the publication, the daily costume usually consists of a "loose fitting sweater, overalls or dungarees casually rolled up to their knees, socks and low heeled shoes."

Obviously attempting to promote cooperation and friendly relations among nations of the Western Hemisphere, the Excelsior concludes with the following colorful ahalysis.

"The hairdo is a long bob, giving the effect of the Apache or Indian savage . . . the general air of dejection and the lack of feminine dignity mark this get-up as horrifying. Sociologists and professors should give thought to it . . ."

Although the brash description of North America's young womanhood apparently doesn't pertain to the college, proper authorities could diplomatically correct Excelsior's false impressions.

The entire issue might seem irrelevant and a somewhat odd subject for an editorial. However, this unfortunate attitude of a foreign periodical toward college women confirms our own belief that South America has a rather vague and unrepresentative picture of us.

The bobby sox set is no more characteristic of university students than the Chicago gangsters were characteristic of the United States during the twenties.

● Bond Drive

Editor, The Guardsman:

I was interested to find out while reading The Guardsman that JC's seventh war loan drive begins next Monday. This is the first I've heard about it. Our quota is $15,000.

How do we expect to meet this quota when we are doing nothing about advertising the seventh war loan drive now? I believe JC can really put it over the top if we try hard enough.

I believe that we should have posters placed all over the halls and in classrooms. We should have students speak in classrooms on this subject. We should have a rally which will interest all students to go to the rally. At this rally we could really tell the students that even if the war is over in Europe—it is not over in the vast Pacific. In fact the Pacific is our major war.

I know for a fact that the Japs will be a hard people to conquer.

Our war with them will be hard and long, as they don't give up things too easily.

Now, why don't we students of JC buckle down and really put this seventh war loan drive over the top?

Editor, The Guardsman:

I wish to compliment the sport staff for their excellent work in covering the Tennis and Baseball games, but I think there could be more said. Why can't we have a larger sport page. I would like to know what the Club Column is doing on the sports page. Without it, the sport staff would have much more room to write.

DISCussions

OBTAINABLE for a limited time only are Linda Keene's recorded versions of Unlucky Woman and Blues in the Storm. Easily the best blues disced for a long time. Miss Keene is backed up by a combo which, for some strange reason, refers to itself as Joe Marsala's orchestra. In reality this combo is a sextet which lists its personnel as containing Marsala on clarinet, Thomas with trumpet, Feather at piano along with Wayne on guitar, Lang at the bass and Christian on drums. Familiar?

Blues in the Storm, which opens with a mighty interesting piano solo, sets a wonderful mood of moan, for it's clear and simple. Also the lyries add to this clean simplicity, for they employ the technique so common to all blues, that of repeating exact phrases twice. This session ends with some truly righteous jamming. Miss Keene sings with much feeling and sensitivity and at all times dedicates her gift to creating a picture.

On the opposite side of this disc which bears the Black and White label is, as previously mentioned, Unlucky Lady. Still in a true blue mood, Miss Keene is consoled by Wayne's crying guitar which agrees with sympathy. A terrific rhythm drive is featured as the outfit goes into the last chorus.

Tatum's Man I Love is appearing more and more on the shelves of the record dealers. The Tatum Trio, which is comprised of Tatum piano, Grimes guitar, and Stewart bass, besides being faithful to the original work, sneaks in a little Rhapsody in Blue and London Bridge Is Falling Down.

Dark Eyes spotlights Tatum particularly knocked out as the trio tells its message during the first chorus. As the listener settles back feeling content with a satisfactory narrative, Confidential Slam Stewart slips back to give with the real dope. Constantly borrowing from the classics, the Trio concludes with a smattering of Pagliacci. Incidentally both of these recordings can be purchased at The West Portal Music Shop.

Dick Haymes now has his Laura and The Night Is Young and You're So Beautiful released. Using choppy phrasing in an effort to develop the Crosby ease, Haymes, for the most part, mauls poor Laura, although he does showcase some superb breathing power during the bridge.

WAA To Award "Birds" To Badminton Winners Friday

Women interested in badminton are invited to sign up for the tournament this Friday afternoon in the women's gymnasium, Loys Daskarolis, chairman, announced last week. Several shuttlecocks, better known as "birds," will be awarded to the leading contestants at the end of play.

Rain cancelled the last Women's Athletic Association meeting, but President Janice Beanton reported that play day committees were already chosen. Wanda McKenzie and Virginia Wells are in charge of decorations, Rita Arnold, of refreshments, and Eleanor Wohler, as softball manager, forms the game line-ups.

As The Guardsman goes to press, the office of WAA vice-president remains unfilled, but an election will be the first order of business at the next meeting.

The softball team is still anxious to meet the faculty men or any other group during practice sessions on Monday and Wednesday afternoons from 3 to 4 p. m., Bertha Mae Keller, adviser, said.

Besides WAA activity, women of the college compete in volleyball, softball, badminton and tennis during regular physical education classes. Particular rivals are the members of Betty Jean Otto's and Tom Wilson's volleyball teams. In addition, badminton round robins are held between classes, and tennis matches are run when weather permits.

Fame Of Ram Nine Spreads To S. W. Pacific

Following the recent Ram victory over the Modesto baseball nine 4 to 3, the Rams filed claim to the State junior college championship.

Long before such an event, the Rams encountered the University of California nine—and lost 16 to 3.

This week both incidents put the local nine in the news. The first is implicit in a story carried in the Alameda Times-Star. (See story this page.).

The second carried the Ram fame far into the Southwest Pacific.

To The Guardsman office last week came a letter complete with several clippings tracing the course of the story.

Registered here in 1940, one Bill Theilacker, T/5 of the United States Army, is on duty in the Pacific Area. Recipient of a clipping from the Oakland Tribune concerning the Ram-Bear game, he forwarded the clipping and his reminiscences to Preston Charles, columnist on the staff of the South Pacific Daily News, who recorded both for the News readers.

Chief among Theilacker's reminiscences was his association here with such stellar personages as Helen Crlenkovich, Al Nauman, Johnny Grey, all fellow students in 1940 and 1941.

Chief among his impressions on reading the Tribune clipping was admiration for Don Grant, Ram third baseman, whose abilities were equally impressive to the Tribune, which centered its story of the Ram-Bear game around "the amazing performance turned in by Don Grant."

The story, carried in full in the South Pacific Daily News, highly praised Grant, a vietim of polio, presented him as a symbol of courage to the men on the South Pacific front.

Most Ram baseball followers know that Grant is the main support of the nine, who, because of his early illness, can stand only a few minutes at a time, plays a magnificent game on his knees at the hot corner, and hits, often and well, with some teamate running for him.

"Boom Boom" Boone Takes Hitting Lead .437; Lopeman Strikeout Ace With 61

The Ram baseball team did itself proud this season by becoming the State Junior College Champions. This is the first time that the college has taken the championship, although it has come close several times without quite making it.

The Rams started rather poorly by dropping three games in a row, but came back to hit the win column, thereafter being hot and cold. They were very hot when they played the "league" games, winning all of them, but lost the non-conference games . . .

They played outstanding ball in the two Marin games, with Johnny Lopeman shining brightly in the first encounter when he set his own record for strikeouts by fanning 22 batters. In the Menlo encounters Henry Boone outshone everybody by blasting out two home runs, while Paul Nederman accounted for one circuit blow. In the Modesto game the whole team out-did itself by playing splendid ball, with Boone again the shining star, blasting the tieing run in and scoring the winning run.

Team batting averages are as follows:

Alameda Paper Boosts Ram Claim For Title

Win Currier, Sports Editor of the Alameda Times- Star, pushed the Ram baseball title claim as follows:

San Francisco Junior College's baseball team now claims the championship of California junior collegedom, and, as far as we can see, the Rams are entitled to the honor . . . Compton Junior College claims the Southern California title . . . Modesto defeated Compton . . . San Francisco defeated Modesta . . . In that these times forbid usual series of competition, the sequence of events as mentioned seems to indicate that the Rams have the best ball club . . . After a slow start the team pulled up well and deserves far more publicity than it is given.

30 Gridders Turn Out For Opening Spring Practice

Spring football practice, which started last Thursday, looked very promising with 30 eager gridmen reporting to Coach Lee Eisan and ready to start the ball rolling.

Included in the turnout are many lettermen. From Commerce come those two "Horsemen" Bill Luskutoff and Staten Webster, while from the Poly "Champs" is roving halfback Manny Castro, who saw plenty of action on the gridiron in '44.

At the end of the month a football conference meeting is set for Sacramento to establish a schedule for the spring season. Coach Eisan announced that in addition to the Modesto game, the Ram gridders will probably play Santa Rosa, Marin, and Sacramento.

This week's practice will be tomorrow at 1 o'clock, and Friday at 2 o'clock, Eisan said.

Tennis, Ping Pong Next Intra Sports

Intramural activity on the campus was given new life today with the announcement that signups for tennis and ping pong will be accepted in the men's gymnasium until next Wednesday.

Both singles and doubles competition will be held in tennis, while there will be singles only in ping pong. The number of entries received will determine whether a round robin or elimination schedule will be played.

Coach Jack Brady stressed the fact that all entries must be in by Wednesday, May 30. He also pointed out the fact that at least four doubles teams must sign up if the tennis doubles are to be held.

Once again medals will be awarded to first and second places in all three events.

Net Team Beats Tamalpais 4-1; Meet Again Tomorrow

The college racquet men rang up their fifth win of the season last Thursday at Mill Valley when they trimmed Tramalpias by a score of 4 to 1.

Only five Rams made the trip but still managed to win three of the four matches and the only doubles match.

Singles victories were won by Bill Covall, Bob Chinn, and Dave Factor, while Covall and Factor won the only doubles match. Chinn and Fields were tied with their opponents in doubles when their match was canceled because of darkness.

The teams will meet again tomorrow on the Mill Valley courts.

Players For Soph Day Teams Urged To Signup

Participants in the Sophomore Day sports events, Friday, June 1, include a men's softball team, and a women's volley-ball team, the former to play a men's freshman team, the latter a women's faculty team already named.

Bill Thompson, soph class president, requested this week that sophomore men apply to him for inclusion on the team, while Lois Robinet, who will manage the women's team, requested that all women planning to play apply to her immediately.

Aigner Speaks At Press Club, Visits College

Chen Chih-Mai Says China Will Require Much Technical Aid In Post War World

By Don Constine, Editor

With the unexpected appearance of colorful Benny Bufano, greatly publicised Art Commission member, highlighting the activities, the San Francisco Press Club gave the third in a series of luncheons which Guardsman representatives again attended.

Among the noted guests addressing journalism students from cities throughout California, was the world newspaperman Lucien Aigner.

The suave, quiet-spoken correspondent, telling of his experiences at the first League of Nations convention, stated "that the atmosphere of San Francisco as compared to Geneva is more cordial and sincere."

"Geneva showed an isolationist, narrow minded attitude," he said, "but this city's citizens seem highly interested and aware of the decisions being formulated here at the present time."

Concluded the small, well-dressed journalist, "We must realize that human relations are the basis of international peace." Aigner, now attached to an eastern news syndicate, has traveled and studied in most of the world's great nations.

Other dignitaries present at the luncheon included Marie Etemadie and Dr. L. Suratgar, both Iranian public relation officers, and Dr. Chen Chih-Mai, counselor of the Chinese Embassy.

Dr. Chen offered a forceful account of China's 14 year conflict with the Japanese aggressors. He also explained that China will require technical aid in the post-war world.

When questioned as to his government's stand and policies with so-called Red-China, the experienced and polished diplomat sternly advised the group "that the Chinese Communists are essentially a domestic problem to be soived by political means."

British Leader Visits College For New Ideas

By Theodora Wong

San Francisco Junior College was a stopover last Thursday for a workaday miss from Edinburgh, Scotland, who is on the Pacific Coast as a sort of British women's emissary touring American industrial plants, housing projects, child nurseries, and schools.

The pert and dark-haired miss, who spoke with a pleasant Scottish accent was Mary Jane Brodie, one of four women sent to the United States under the auspices of the British Ministry of Information.

Her tour is sponsored by the Labor Production Office of the War Production Board, and she is in this country with a definite interest in the employment of women in shipyards, aircraft factories, and electrical plants. Miss Brodie belongs to the ranks of British working women who entered industries before the war—since the age of 14 she has been employed in an Edinburgh electric plant.

Miss Brodie made the same prediction she gave earlier in an interview with the working press:

"Fifty percent of our women now in industry will stay in after the war—and their unions will help to protect them against discrimination in pay rates."

Charles W. Gillis, labor representative of the War Production Board; Mary Alice Webb, regional representative of the U.S. Department of Labor, and Dorothy Barker, a safety engineer for the 12th Naval District, accompanied Miss Brodie to the college.

All were guests of Hilda Watson of the college hotel division, who arranged a luncheon in the cafeteria. Mozelle Milliken of the hotel staff was also present.

Applications For Denman Scholarships Due Today

Applications for the James Denman Scholarships, awarded to qualifying women, must be submitted to Dean Margaret Dougherty today.

The scholarships, two $125 awards, are awarded annually to aid students with educational expenses while attending this college.

To qualify for the scholarships, women must be graduates of San Francisco's public high schools, should have maintained a high scholastic rating and must be planning to graduate from here.

Judge William Denman, of the United States Circuit Court and his sister have made the scholarship fund available in memory of their father, the late James Denman, a San Francisco school principal, superintendent of schools and later President of the Board of Education.

Alpha Gamma Sigma, Forum Debate June 14

Having chosen a topic for debate, Alpha Gamma Sigma and the Forum Club meet in Room 190 at 1 o'clock, Thursday, June 14, Marilyn Zito, president, announced.

The topic is: Resolved, That the United States Should Retain Possession of Pacific Islands Deemed Necessary for Protection.

The AGS will take the negative stand with Beverly Blank and Morton Colvin defending it. Gwenn Slovenko and Mary Yarger are scheduled to take the affirmative stand for the Forum, according to Miss Zito.

Debate Judges are President Archibald J. Cloud, Phylis Haley, and Franklin Sewell.

Last Day For Submission Of Supply Bills, June 1

Bills for instructional supplies must be submitted to the bank not later than Friday, June 1, Luther Lyons, comptroller, warned last week.

This edict does not apply to student activity, and instructors are reminded that all bills and petty cash tags must be approved by Edna Denhard, secretary to President A. J. Cloud.

World Journalist Pleads Idealism

By Patricia French

Visiting with President A. J. Cloud last week, Lucien Aigner, prominent world journalist, took time out to discuss with representatives of The Guardsman the elements concerned in the present peace conference.

Forceful, dapper Mr. Aigner presented his views with eagerness and conviction. "We will have to lose ourselves before we can find ourselves," he commented.

Offering a solution to the complex problems of trial peace, he pointed to the warring nations as symbolized by their past leaders. Mr. Aigner claimed that if any human being is at war with himself, he cannot hope to instigate any form of amicability on the outside.

Remarking that Hitler failed to create security for his nation because it was his personal shortcoming, Mr. Aigner said that he was "unimpressed" by the Axis leaders. He also commented that Franklin D. Roosevelt was one of the greatest human beings of the age.

Mr. Aigner advocated the presence of religious influence and ideals in constructing world peace, so that nations can center their attention on basic principles.

In conclusion, Mr. Aigner commented that individuals and nations can spread peace if they recognize it within themselves. He added that leaders, to be successful, must be sincere and just in their policies.

Personnel Director Will Visit College Tomorrow

To discuss opportunities in the field of retailing with interested students in the June graduating class, June Snyder, Personnel Director of The Emporium, will visit the college tomorrow.

Miss Snyder will be in Room 222 from 11 a. m. to 12, and from 1 to 2 p. m. Although students in the merchandising classes are expected to be most interested in interviews, Virginia Gohn, instructor, arranged that others have the opportunity.

Music Hour To Feature Tschaikowsky And Taylor

Programmed for the next meeting of the music hour, Tuesday, May 29, at 9 o'clock in Room 200, are Tschaikowsky's Swan Lake-Ballet Suite and the Through The Looking Glass Suite composed by Deems Taylor.

John Barbirolli conducts the London Philharmonic Orchestra as they render Swan Lake while Howard Barlow batons the Columbia Broadcasting Orchestra through the Taylor work, Madison Devlin, instructor recently stated. Both selections will be heard on recordings.

This latter selection is based upon Lewis Carroll's nonsense fairytale, Through The Looking Glass and What Alice Found There.

Merchant Messmen To Leave College

Orders from Washington, D. C., reached all the way down to effect the bussing of dishes in the college cafeteria, according to Hilda Watson, head of the restaurant division.

Decision by the War Labor Board to discontinue war production training classes effective May 30, means that the training class for merchant ship mess men (members of which have been picking up those soiled dishes, which, through neglect by the college students have not been carried to the bus stand) will no longer be a part of the cafeteria operation.

At the request of the U. S. Maritime Commission, the San Francisco Board of Education has voted to carry on the training classes for Maritime cooks and bakers, now being conducted here, until the close of the present semester. This means that cafeteria food will be prepared as before, and that certain of the kitchen trainees may possibly be made available for service at the steam table. These men, however, will not be available for other work.

Dean Edward E. Sandys, urging student cooperation, said, "if you want to build college spirit, here's your chance to show it."

Meanwhile, any students interested in paid jobs in the cafeteria should apply to Larry Wong, assistant, in Room 107 or the cafeteria, Mrs. Watson said.

Ex-council Approves 14 Baseball Block Awards

The Executive Council approved the awarding of 14 baseball blocks last week.

Winners of the blocks are Henry Boone, Paul Nederman, Keith Harper, Manuel Castro, Ed Kenna, Ernest Poggi, Charles Shea, Gerald Shaughnessy, John Lopeman, Don Grant, George Fabian, Bob Ghiorzi, Howard Slaughter, and Joe Cimmanusti.

A budget giving $10 to the Cosmopolitan Society for stamps and incidental expenses was also passed.

Ending a somewhat quiet and serene meeting was a stormily proposed recommendation, passed by the council, that, towit, The Executive Council recommends that the minutes of the meeting as written by the Secretary of the Associated Students be published weekly in The Guardsman.

Drama Group To Present Two New Dramatic Plays

To provide as wide an experience as possible for players and audience the next program to be given by the college drama class will be in sharp contrast to the laughter-provoking comedy just presented.

"In Letters to Lucerne, we made you cry, in Spring Green we made you laugh, but on June 7 and 8, we will provide you with thrills and shivers," Ruth Somers, drama instructor, said last week.

The men in the group will present Jack Knapp's The Other Side, and the women will appear in a dramatic study of six different characters working with the French underground against a German general.

Festival Sparks Bond Drive Tomorrow

Coast Guard Band Starts Music Program In Men's Gym At 1; War Loan Sales Here Are Two-Thirds Short Of $15,000 Quota

Led by the Alameda Coast Guard Band under the direction of Eddie Picetti, and featuring the College Chorus, Women's Chorus, and the college orchestra, the colorful Music Festival slated for tomorrow, at 1 o'clock, in the men's gymnasium will present music characteristic of six nations.

Winners in the college song contest will be presented prizes by Bob Mills, president of the Associated Students, at the end of the program. Prizes include a $25 war bond and two prizes of $5 in war stamps.

Weather permitting, the Coast Guard band will gather at the flagpole and parade to the men's gymnasium. At the gymnasium the program, with a theme of patriotism and international good will, will open with the Star Spangled Banner and greetings from President A. J. Cloud.

William Schlager, baritone soloist, will sing in Spanish numbers typical of Latin America. "Arrangements are his own and he will accompany his songs with his guitar.

Selections from light opera will be sung in a duet by Patricia McCormick, soprano, and George Ostertag, tenor. The song, Anthony and Cleopatra, will be rendered by its composer, Richard Cumming. Accompanying the soloists are Lorraine Gay and Martha Lee, while Grace Bonpartian and Cumming accompany the orchestra.

The festival, which ties in with the college participation in the Seventh War Loan Drive, will close with community singing, led by Madison Devlin.

By last Friday $4,770 worth of war bonds had been sold in the college as part of the $15,000 goal for the Seventh War Loan Drive which ends here this Friday.

Rosalie Rhode, student at the college, and Theta Tau each purchased a $1,000 bond, and Jules Fraden and Luther Lyon, faculty members, bought $500 bonds. Thirteen $100 bonds were also sold during the campaign.

Recreation Room Will Be Ready For Fall Semester

Work on the future student recreation room began last week with a thorough cleaning of the premises by members of college clubs, Bob Mills, Associated Student president, announced last week.

Mills also disclosed that the composition flooring will be installed during the summer session. At the beginning of the fall semester it is expected that the drapes will be up and the mural finished.

AWVS Elise Morehouse Sells Bonds On Campus

By Pat Klimis

Mrs. Elise Morehouse, member of the American Women's Voluntary Service, is selling Bonds at the college during the Seventh War Loan Drive ending this Friday, June 1, from 11 a. m. to 2 p. m.

Mrs. Morehouse is the daughter of Lieutenant-Colonel Edmund H. Stillman of the United States Army. Mrs. Morehouse and her family resided in the Philippine Islands until the women were ordered out six months before the downfall. Her father was ordered back 2 months before.

While in the Philippines, Mrs. Morehouse met her husband, a Lieutenant in the Army. He has been a prisoner of War in Japan for three years. During a period of three years he has received 4 letters from his wife.

Mrs. Morehouse has received five postal cards from her husband since he has been a prisoner. In all of the cards he mentioned that his morale was very high.

Before devoting all her time to the American Women's Voluntary Service, Mrs. Morehouse worked for the Chemical warfare department.

Tomorrow and Friday Mrs. Morehouse will be at the booth all day.

Art Society Plans Tenth Exhibit At Elder Gallery

Alpha Delta Epsilon, the college art society, will hold its tenth annual exhibit of water color landscapes, at the Paul Elder Gallery on Post Street, starting Monday, June 4, for two weeks.

Paintings to be exhibited include scenes around the campus and San Francisco. Anita Morholt, president of the society announced, adding that the only contributors will be members of Alpha Delta Epsilon, whose work will be displayed from 9-5 daily.

Among students exhibiting paintings are, Constance Trigonis, Alice du Bain, Bert Oldham, Bob Hemme, Norma Pintanesi, Elizabeth Kearnan, Josephine Raymond, and former president Robert Coehlo.

Three Still In Vote For Soph Crown; Election Today 11-2

Because no candidates received a margin of 10 votes, final election for the Soph Sweetheart will take place today in the cafeteria from 11 to 2 p. m.

The finalists are Colleen Melnerney with a total of 32 votes, Marcia Dams with 25 votes, and Lottie Jeane Smith who received 24 votes.

Out of the 426 men students of the college, only 118 men voted.

The final naming of the sweetheart will take place at the Sophomore formal itself.

Announcing that the corsage rule is definitely in effect for the Prom, Bill Thompson, class president, emphasized that all women will be required to wear formals and although it is preferable for men to attend in Tuxedos it isn't essentially necessary. Business suits are to be allowed.

The dance is to be held at the Claremont Hotel in Berkeley in the Spanish Room on Saturday night, June 2. Dancing begins promptly at 9 o'clock.

Tickets for the prom may still be purchased at the college bank on the first floor. Each bid, priced at $1.50, admits one couple. Since very few bids are still available, all students are urged to make their purchases before the bank closes this Friday, Thompson said.

During the prom, the Sophomore Queen will be presented with the Beta Tau perpetual trophy and the Sweetheart Trophy. Bernie Salin's orchestra is to supply the music.

For those unable to go to the Claremont by automobile, the E train which leaves from the bridge terminal and goes directly to the Claremont, is always available, Thompson explained.

Climaxing campus plans for Sophomore Week is "jeans and gingham day" this Friday, when sophomore men must wear jeans and sophomore women must wear gingham dresses.

A special table in the cafeteria has been designated for sophomores from 11 to 2 p. m. on Friday, Thompson added.

A baseball game at the football field between the sophomore men and freshmen men is scheduled for the afternoon at a time to be announced later. Sophomore women will compete with faculty women at 3 p. m.

Committee for arranging Sophomore Week plans is composed of Thompson as chairman, Maggie Scholes, and Lois Robinet.

Graduating Class Will Have Robinet, Lai As Speakers

Students Him Lai and Lois Robinet have been chosen to address the graduating class in exercises at the George Washington High School Auditorium, Friday, June 22. Dean Edward Sandys announced this week.

Lai will make the valedictory address and Miss Robinet will give the salutatory.

Burt A. Supple, new head of the Board of Education, will be guest speaker.

The new graduation hymn written by Noel Preston and selected a finalist by judges in the recent college song contest, will be sung by the senior class under the direction of Flossita Badger.

Miss Badger will also direct the college chorus in several selections, and Madison Devlin will lead the orchestra numbers.

A previous proposal to present a student forum on the commencement program was shelved after High

Alpha Gamma Sigma Names Five Permanent Members

Five members of this semester's graduating class have received the high honor of election to permanent membership in Alpha Gamma Sigma Honor Scholarship Society, Edward Cranston, faculty adviser to the organization, announced this week.

The members are Jacqueline Giesner, Beatrice Baer, Laura Miller, Him Lai, and Lorraine Gay. This means that these students have maintained a grade point average of 2.3 or above for their entire junior college course. Initiation for these students was held yesterday afternoon.

In addition to those listed above, four other students, who completed requirements for graduation in February or August, will be graduated with honors this June and will be awarded permanent membership in Alpha Gamma Sigma at that time. These students include Shirley Silmeri, Carolyn Righetti, Gerd Olsen, and Helen Wheeler.

Bruce, Hutchings, Perks Forum Contest Winners

John Bruce, Douglas Hutchings, and Michele Perks were named as winners in the Forum Magazine prizes, Gertrude Land, editor, announced last week.

Bruce won for his article Men at Work. Miss Perks took the poetry prize for her poem Cycle. Art prize went to Hutchings for the Forum Magazine cover design, according to Mrs. Land.

Passing The Buck

By Henry P. Buckingham

RIGHT now there are three schools of thought regarding Hitler's fate. Some say he is dead. Others say he is alive. The more realistic say that it is possible he is dead, more probable he is alive.

These who stay "on the fence" demand, as they should, proof from some reliable source that will end the argument one way or another. So far the sources for the information regarding the little man's fate have been thoroughly unauthentic and from sources, that before victory would have been regarded even more lightly than they are now.

And so with Hitler loose or buried, as the case may be, Goering is transferred from his dietetically perfect breakfasts with Generals and Lieutenants—Lieutenants who regard a General as a General, no matter what. He is transferred to a homey resort in England. This resort located in the spacious and exclusive, "lake county," not too far from London. Here he is afforded the luxuries that England's more wealthy enjoyed before the war.

And so much for Goering, who formerly was regarded as one of the worst war criminals of Germany. Herman is now leading an easy life with none of the strain and stress of waging war.

So why not strip him of his rank, discharge him as a prisoner of war, have the civil authorities arrest him as a war criminal, try him, and rid the world of him, as was promised long years ago.

* * * *

OF late there has been discussion and rumor that methods bordering on the legal and somewhat cut throat are employed to place students on The Guardsman Staff.

To clear up this situation we present the following, a factual report, on how to become a member of the elite.

First, if you have journalistic ambitions, you sign up for English 14. This is done at regular registration. When and if you get a grade of C or better in English 14 you will be advanced to English 15. Any person advanced to English 15 is automatically on the staff of The Guardsman. Those persons who proceed from English 15 to English 16 form the Editorial Staff of The Guardsman.

There are a few cases where a student possesses experience and talent and where his program is such that he cannot enroll in the regular classes, the faculty adviser, convinced of his dependability and ability, allows him to join the staff by arrangement.

All promotions on the staff are based on ability and dependability only. Advancement is entirely up to the person involved and is based only on journalistic attributes.

As is the trend throughout the nation in schools of journalism, the attempt is made to combine the the theoretical and practical aspects of journalism. In keeping with this trend this college has from its beginning included The Guardsman as part of the curriculum.

Argentina

SPEAKING before a recent gathering at the San Francisco Press Club, Nelson Rockefeller stated that we are only interested in Argentina's external affairs and its economic relations with other Pan-American nations. (See Page 6.)

Briefly, the United States will not interfere in the country's domestic troubles. Echoing the tragic years of the late 1930's, this policy certainly appears to us as one of appeasement.

Rockefeller failed to acknowledge Argentina's fascist, Farrel-Peron regime, which has placed labor leaders in concentration camps and imprisoned certain liberal newspapermen, except for the few who have escaped across the La Plata estuary to democratic Uruguay.

Although Rockefeller, a capable diplomat, might have expressed himself solely for prominent Latin American dignitaries, it would prove wise for the American people to obtain an understanding that their government isn't defending fascistic elements.

Perhaps the state department, in a diplomatic manner, is recognizing the Farrel dictatorship in the hopes that Argentina will evolve to a sensible administration which could declare its citizens' true sentiments.

We have won South America to the allied cause by too narrow a margin in the war to overlook Argentina's influence and potential strength.

As Norman Corwin emphasized in his radio epic, On a Note of Triumph, "We learned at Munich that a soft answer . . . doesn't turn away any wrath."

Council Minutes

AT its last two sessions, the student government has been seriously concerned with its belief that men and women of the college would rather read the minutes of council meetings than regular news story coverage.

Following a specific request by the Executive Council that The Guardsman publish the minutes verbatim, The Guardsman is glad to cooperate with the campus officers and give their appeal a fair chance.

We do not guarantee continuation of this departure from a decade of realistic and responsible journalistic policy, unless the majority of The Guardsman's 1,500 readers indicate conclusively that such is their preference.

● Soph Queen

Editor, The Guardsman:

The Sophomore Queen Contest is a wonderful means of promoting school interest. The Bond Drive at a time like this demands all the support of all the students. But, the incorporation of the two, i. e., allowing one vote in the Sophomore Queen Contest for each twenty-five dollar bond bought in the Bond Drive, we believe, is defeating the basic and fundamental principles of democracy. For example, if one of the contestants in the Soph Queen Contest were to have excessive financial support, she could, not through popularity, but — solely through capitalistic and undemocratic means achieve this coveted and cherished goal. Do we advocate democracy?

DISCussions

THIS semester's Soph Prom should prove to be a huge success. The site chosen for the affair possesses much atmosphere, preparations have been well handled, and most important of all, Bernie Salin and his orchestra will play the engagement.

Salin, one of the finest technicians in the business, is currently a staff trumpeter at KPO here in town. He is at least as smooth as Tommy Dorsey and when Jam reminds one of the fabulous Red Higgenbotham, commonly referred to as the greatest trombonist of today in the popular field. The orchestra that Salin is to front will be composed of casuals, that is musicians hired from all over for one night only. This could lead to poor dance music, but the excellent taste that was displayed in this selection of a master musician such as Salin, guarantees nothing but the best. Our hat is off to Willie Thompson, president of the graduating class.

Another smooth technician in town is Robert Dennis Moore, spasmodically appearing at Lou's. Nicknamed "Hot Lips" by his friends, he works entirely by inspiration, at times turning out the best playing imaginable only to become despondent and disappear for days at a time. Some of the local fans have said that he thinks he's too good for the boys in the band, but this is a result of misunderstanding.

Even the late Bunny Berigan was like this. During his most popular solo, I'm Waiting for Ships That Never Come In, Moore makes a force play emotionally, when he admits he's no good. This is his for a sincere interpreter to do so it is a contradiction of his faith in himself. Moore is of the same temperament as Bunk Johnson and is constantly inventing on his hours, utilizing such material as wire and wood or anything that happens to be around his work shop.

Definitely of the intellectual type Moore refuses to play except as a casual so he can devote more time to developing his mind. Since he is a casual it is just possible that he may show up at the Prom. We would positively assure a night's nights for all attending. By the way, girls, Moore says that Dick Haymes excites him. What, no Frankie?

College Song Contest

Six In Final Race

Although the rules for the college song contest did not demand that words and music both be original, of the 23 songs submitted (two, one by Bill and Howard Slaughter, the other by Edward Larson, instructor, were omitted from the list last week) all contained original scores as well as lyrics, and all but one were fight songs.

So superior was the quality of the 23, that six, those composed by Noel Preston, Lorraine Gay, Al Rubke, William Schlager, Richard Cumming, Adele Weiss and Barbara Kresteller, who collaborated, were held for final consideration by the judging committee, whose results will be announced tomorrow.

Until the present contest, only one song has been a part of the college, the hymn, written in 1938 by three men students, Sherman Grant, Chason Tucker, and Tak Ijima. All members of the A Cappella Choir, and now overseas, the three collaborated in words, music, and harmony, and copyrighted the results. This they accomplished on their own initiative, there being no contest to inspire them.

Patriotic songs were the theme of a song contest held in 1942 for a bond drive. Kenneth Pederson, now overseas, then a member of the A Cappella Choir, won first place with his musical setting for the Pledge to the Flag. Second place went to Gordon Brewer, also overseas now, and third to Margie McNeil.

The judges present May 24, the time set for determining winning songs, were Patricia McCormick, Music Club; Adele Weiss, chorus; Beth Wilcox, Club Advisory Board; Pamela Sampson, Cosmopolitan Society; Don Constine, editor, The Guardsman; Bill Brownell, DISCussions columnist; Flossita Badger, music instructor and director of the program; Dean Edward E. Sandys, and Madison Devlin, orchestra conductor.

Picetti Leads 25 Piece Band to Festival Tomorrow

Conductor Eddie Picetti fronts the 25 piece band of the Alameda Coast Guard which will provide tomorrow the Armed Force contribution to the Spring Festival and the college's part in the Seventh War Loan Drive.

The band is a wartime organization, and the members wear the regular blue and white Coast Guard uniforms. Probably no similar organization has lent both color and quality in band performance to the degree offered by the Alameda outfit, famous for its stirring part in many a war loan drive.

The Guardsman Magazine

Editor's Note: Material for this Music Festival and Seventh War Loan Drive insert was gathered and prepared by members of the Newswriting class, English 14, who are not members of The Guardsman staff. They include Frank Burke, Helen Elliot, Sam Israel, Patricia Klunis, Shirley Kolstad, Frances Parschaid, Betty Jo Smith, Mary Sullivan, Dorothy Thomas, Jacklyn Tiffin, and Shirley Whiting. Photographs are by Madison Devlin, and Douglas Hutchings, of the Advertising art department, drew the cartoon on page 4.

Song Of Peace

This is my song, O God of all the nations,
A song of peace for lands afar, and mine;
This is my home, the country where my heart is,
This is my hope, my dream, my shrine;
But other hearts in other lands are beating
With hopes and dreams the same as mine.

My country's skies are bluer than the ocean,
And sunlight beams on clover leaf and pine.
But other lands have sunlight too, and clover,
And skies are sometimes blue as mine.
Oh hear my song, thou God of all the nations,
A song of peace for their land, and mine.

(Editor's Note: Theme song for the college's Spring Music Festival, the Song of Peace, above, may someday be an international anthem. Music is the orchestral tone poem, Finlandia, composed by Jean Sibelius in 1892. Words, recently written, are Lloyd Stone's, an American poet. Together they symbolize the determined idealism of the San Francisco Conference, speaking the message of tolerance and good will among all nations.)

Sponsors Will Say It With Flags, Flowers

Members of the faculty, student societies, and the students of the college will participate in making a success of the annual Spring Festival for the college and the Bond Drive.

The setting of the festival will be international. Flags of the United Nations will be displayed through the efforts of the Cosmopolitan Society whose president is Pamela Sampson, secretary Chester Howard, and treasurer Lupe Castillo. Dean Edward E. Sandys and Madison Devlin will contribute to decorations as well as handle general arrangements. William Eckert of the advertising art department will provide posters and additional decorations.

The Music Club, with Patricia McCormick as president, Jean Lash as secretary, Dorothy North as treasurer, and Al Rubke as historian, have handled publicity. Flossita Badger of the music department has prepared and directed the program which will include a chorus of which Adele Weiss is manager, Miss McCormick assistant manager, and Barbara Schultz, secretary.

The Club Advisory Board, officered by Beth Wilcox, president; Ralph Hansen, vice president, and Helen Schiavone, secretary, have backed club bond drive competitions. The Executive Council, who voted from Associated Student funds the song contest awards, will lend its president, Bob Mills, as official donor to the winners.

John Hermann, of the Floriculture department, adds the finishing touch by providing flowers to go with the music.

$15,000 Bond Drive

Two Days To Hit It

By DOROTHY THOMAS

War bond drives bring out the best of talent throughout the nation in civic shows and other forms of entertainment. Reaching down from the nation's capital, the same is true of the college. Cooperation between faculty and student groups has provided the college with several high spots in entertainment and enthusiasm in making the drives successful.

Before this present drive comes to a close here this Friday, June 1, a glance into college history of past campaigns which started in 1942 would be apropos.

Buy a Ton of Freedom was the theme of the college 1942 stamp drive. Instead of buying a jeep or bomber, as was previously arranged as a goal for the stamp and bond purchases, attractive displays were placed in the first floor showcase to represent what vital war equipment the savings could buy.

The two-week Buy a Ton of Freedom successful campaigning was brought to a dramatic close by the rally committee with the first college rally at the El Rey theater. It was a gala, two hour affair with such celebrated guests as Ira Blue, Herb Caen, Ronnie Kemper and his orchestra, Joaquin Garay, the Merry Macs, and the Vagabonds. The college also elected a Liberty Queen to reign at the stamp and bond show.

Maxie Rosenbloom, Jackie Gleason, and Izzy Gomez were a few of the entertainers whose personal appearance for the college students at the second rally at the El Rey theater opened the 1943 bond drive. For daily progress during the drive, a giant thermometer on the first floor recorded the increase of the sales.

Students and faculty in the 1944 Fourth War Loan Drive topped the college $15,000 quota by $5,750. The campaign was sponsored by the faculty as advisers to a student committee. Names of all purchasers of bonds were posted on a bulletin board with special recognition to ambitious students who brought in bond buyers from outside the college.

Clubs and classes enthusiastically entered into the competition of buying bonds. The competition was based on the percentage of members participating, thereby putting smaller clubs and classes on the same footing as larger organizations.

The college presented citations to honor the leading club and individual.

Climaxing the 1945 Seventh War Loan Drive here is the Spring Music Festival, tomorrow.

The thermometer in the hall is slowly ascending to the $15,000 quota mark. Only two days remain to shoot the sales to the top.

In The Spring . . .

Adding the lightly romantic touch to tomorrow's Spring Festival, George Ostertag and pretty Pat McCormick, above, indicate the type of duet they will sing as vocal soloists.

No Spring Festival is complete without a choir or chorus. The 1945 festival features both Woman's Chorus and College Mixed Chorus. The two groups are pictured above as follows: first row center, left to right, Marguerite Dumont, Patricia McCormick, Adele Weiss, Marjorie Martin, Geraldine De Groot, Betty Jorgensen, Barbara Krestellar, Nina Berron, Lorraine Hedmen, Lorraine Gey; second center, Henriette Wilby, Grace Khatchedourian, Jane Chow, Olga Moore; Betty Mertin, Agnes Spouse, Shirley Kolstad, Martha Lee, Gertha Williams, Jean Lash; third center, Ede Vodovi, Winifred Kenny, Ailean Neilsen, Carolyn Dean, Lyda Bransteed, Doroline Bristo, Jean Crenshaw, Florine Rhee, Josie Culp, Betty Gregg; fourth center, Mary Yarger, Barbara Britton, Aude Tegelbaurg, Helen Fudam, Barbara Slickman, June Haseman, Myrtle Piatschmann, Barbara Schultz, La Verne Herbison.

A College Era

Choruses Complete It

By SHIRLEY KOLSTAD AND JACKLYN TIFFEN

Nearing the completion of a decade of outstanding achievement, a succession of choruses rounds out a college era tomorrow.

Starting with 32 members in an A Cappella Choir, and 15 students in a Men's Glee Club, the groups steadily increased, since that first day in October, 1935, under the leadership of Flossita Badger, college music instructor, with her professional background of five seasons with the San Francisco Opera Company and two seasons in Europe.

Pre-war college days heard an A Cappella Choir, a Women's Chorus, and a Men's Chorus, directed by Charles McKiernan. With the obvious changes dictated by events since 1941, adaptations have been accomplished so that either a choir or a women's chorus was organized. Last fall activity centered around a women's chorus. Tomorrow both the Women's Chorus and the College Mixed Chorus will be heard. Next year, perhaps, an A Cappella Choir again!

The chorus groups' college debut was at a Candlelight Concert in December 1935, with new gowns purchased by the Associated Students. This debut marked also a tradition, for each year since then the choir or chorus or both have presented an audience-packed Christmas program which culminated in the outstanding Christmas concert last December at the Century Club.

Unsung at home but lauded wherever they appeared during 1938, the A Cappella Choir then had its first really large and experienced group.

Associated Student realization both of the large contribution by the choruses to college spirit and the reputation strongly built for the college throughout the state, resulted in 1943 in official award of a gold pin to each member.

The choir of 1942 sang in Handel's Messiah with the Municipal Chorus at the Civic Auditorium. Also in that year it participated in the launching of a ship, the Robert E. Peary, at Richmond Shipyards.

Since 1941, the annual Spring Music Festival climaxed, as it does again tomorrow, a year of studies, programs, and social life at the college.

Music Festival Program Represents 6 Countries

By FRANCES PERSCHEID

Not only as a climax of the college bond drive, but as an international theme for the Spring Music Festival, tomorrow's program includes music representing six nations.

America is represented in the opening piece, the Patriotic March by Townsley, arranged by Riegger, and Stout Hearted Men from a Romberg operetta.

The Russian atmosphere is portrayed by the Cherubimi Song by Bortniansky which is taken from the liturgy of the Russian Church. The song is famous for deep bass voices and is one of the most popular of its type, composed for presentation without accompaniment.

Typically British is the rendition of a chorus from the Pirates of Penzance by Gilbert and Sullivan, which depicts the departure of soldiers for war in light opera style.

The famous Clair de Lune by Debussy symbolizes the French portion of the program. Gay, festive spirit of the Latin Americans is presented in the Cuban song Siboney by Lecuona, and also by soloists in their offerings of light opera music.

The impressive Song of Peace, composed by Jean Sibelius of Finland with words written by Lloyd Stone of America, keynotes the program.

Completing these selections are the classical and immortal pieces of Mozart and Schubert.

The Case of The

Disappearing Musicians

By BETTY JO SMITH

A strange plague of perpetual illness seems to hover over the members of the college orchestra this semester. Day after day, Madison Devlin, college music instructor, noticed the supply of musicians diminish.

Slowly, sickness leaves, and the inevitable draft caused the number to drop to 10 souls.

The annual Spring Music Festival was scheduled for May 31, and the college could boast of only half an orchestra. Something had to be done, or else the music would probably sound like Spike Jones—minus.

Deep meditation—and then the plans were hurriedly made. Finally, it was decided that nearby Balboa High School was the answer, so six recruits were drafted from its excellent band.

The college's orchestra consists of Grace Bonapartian and Richard Cumming, piano; Helen Day, Barbara Schulz and Joyce Joseph, violin; Maxine Tryon and Al Rubke, clarinet; Suzanne Greenfield, flute; Wayne Lazarus, drums; Kathryn Taylor, cello; and Herbert Patnoe, trumpet.

"Plagues" have come and gone, but this time someone had a remedy for it. For, after all, "the show must go on!"

Cumming, The College's Alec Templeton

By PAT FRENCH AND JACQUELINE HOGAN

With talent ranging from "major dramatic" roles to "minor" piano roles, the versatile Richard Cumming prepares to add his skill to the annual college music festival tomorrow, as "pictured" at right by artist Douglas Hutchings.

Young Cumming, with apologies to William Shakespeare, plans to "immortalize" Anthony and Cleopatra in a piano recitation, originated by the American writer Dwight Fiske.

With his goal as a composer in view, Cumming was rated last week as a finalist in the college song contest for original lyrics and music.

Born in Shanghai and reared in Manila, he is an ardent follower of the current American trend toward interpretive music.

Class Teams Face Tough Time

Faculty, Soph Women Meet In Volleyball

June 1, 1945, has been set as the day when the women faculty will be put on the spot by the High Sophomore women students, for High Sophomore Day events include volleyball at 3 p. m. and the faculty women have accepted the challenge of the students.

The women are led by Bobbie Mercer and Lois Robinet, and the team is composed of the following women: Pat Brady, Norma Giavia, Bobbie Mercer, Lois Robinet, Alvera Rostani, Lois Smith, Bobbie Steinback, Kay Taylor, Gail Todd. High Sophomore women who wish to play on the team are urged to see either Miss Mercer or Miss Robinet.

The women faculty will be represented by Laurine Bergin, Bertha Keller, Verrel Weber, Betty Otto, Frances Mount, Andrewa Noble, Jane Scribner, Claire Lippert, Mary Jean Learnard, Edna Denhard, Mildred Williams.

Grant's, Ghiorzi's Averages .300, .333

An error was made in last week's compilation of batting averages. Don Grant's average was posted at .175 while it should have been .300. The same is true for Tiny Ghiorzi whose average is .333 but was quoted at .083.

Dark Horse High Sophs Play Experienced Frosh Team In Softball Contest Friday

Once again it is youth versus age. The youngsters are members of the freshman class, and with the exception of two men, are experienced ball players, possessing college blocks.

The old boys, the sophists, the sophomores, wise through long years of gruelling education, hope to defeat the strong freshman team on brains alone. They vow that a graduating class will not and can not go down in defeat. It can't happen here.

The frosh team, the aggregation of youth, of strong men, will field the following team: Ed Cantwell, Don Grant, Manuel Castro, Ed Kenna, George Fabian, Tiny Ghiorzi, Jerry Shaughnessy, Johnny Lopeman, Alex Davis, and Henry Boone.

Whereas the frosh have made public the members of their team, the sophs prefer the dark horse angle.

Probable players for the sophs, although this is off the record, might be Lanky Bill Thompson, Muscles Gorbenko, I. Q. Kid Shea, Passing the Buck Buckingham, Big Bob the Diplomat Mills, Slick Vic Pudlowski, Legal Eagle Constine has agreed to act as publicity manager. As far as the remaining two players are concerned they are anyone's guess.

It is rumored that several individuals known for their independence because they are both on the same side of the fence will cooperate. In fact, this game may not only change the sports world of the college but also the diplomatic scene.

The game will be played this Friday at Balboa Park. Time will be announced over another network. Buckingham's front lawn was ruled out as a baseball park, when it was found he had planted political booby traps.

WAA Softball Team Loses To State 21 To 4; Annual Barbecue Is June 11

Coming out on the short end of a 21 to 4 score from State College, May 21, the women's softball team is now concentrating on better base throwing and fielding, according to Bertha Mae Keller, Women's Athletic Association adviser.

Dean Edward E. Sandys umpired the seven inning contest which Manager Eleanore Wohler remarked "was sprinkled with errors by the home team." It was significant, however, that State sent junior and senior women, thereby giving a two year age advantage.

"It was decided at the last WAA meeting to omit the election of a vice-president until next semester. Meanwhile the duties will be handled by different committees, Janice Beanston, president, explained.

The WAA barbeque is set for Monday afternoon, June 11, at Sigmund Stern Grove, Miss Keller announced last week. Committees working on the event are Ouida Arnold, entertainment; Wanda McKenzie and Virginia Wells, food; Adeline Olson, invitations; and Miss Beanston, awards.

Table tennis and badminton tournament prizes will be awarded as well as the regular WAA blocks, Miss Beanston said.

Intra Tennis, Ping Pong Play Starts Tomorrow

Intramural tennis and ping pong received the go signal from Coach Jack Brady last week, and as a result play in both will start tomorrow.

A satisfactory number of entries has been turned in for both singles and doubles in tennis, while the response for ping pong has exceeded all expectations, Brady stated.

Medals will be awarded to first and second place winners in all three events as has been the custom in past intramurals.

While the racquet sports were receiving the green light signal touch football fans were doomed to disappointment with Brady's announcement that the failure of the college students to organize more than two teams caused the cancellation of the grid sport.

On the agenda for the intramural schedule is boxing. No dates have been set, but entries probably will be accepted following the conclusion of ping pong and tennis.

Net Team Wins 5, Drops 4, Continue "For Fun"

The college tennis team's official season was ended last week when it defeated Tamalpias at Mill Valley.

While the season is officially over as far as competitive competition is concerned, the netters will continue to play Bay Area schools "on their own."

The end of the season found the team boasting a record of five wins as against four losses.

The netmen started their season in a big way by trimming Polytechnic, Saint Ignatius, and Marin Junior College by respective scores of 6 to 3, 5 to 4, and 5 to 1. Next, the Cal team administered a 9 to 0 shellacking. This was followed by a pair of reversals at the hands of State by scores of 7 to 2 and 5 to 4. The U.S. Coast Guard then eked out a 5 to 4 win over the dejected netters.

Lincoln High was responsible for the return to the victory road as the college team cut loose, winning by a score of 8 to 1. The finale was at Mill Valley, where the team defeated Tamalpias 4 to 1.

Spring Grid Practice Uncovers New Talent

The Ram football team should be very successful on the gridiron this fall. This is evident after the two practice sessions in which the men really showed great enthusiasm.

In addition to the returning lettermen listed in last week's edition, there are two who distinguished themselves from the rest of the team. One is Earl Lawrence who played end for St. Mary's last year. A fine offensive and defensive man, he will be in their lighting as fullback.

The other, Frank Reed, the only returning letterman in the backfield, will be carrying the ball to victory for the Rams once again.

Coach Lee Eisan said last week that if the team as a whole really "gets on the ball and practices conscientiously throughout the season, we will have as fine a team if not the finest in the league."

The double wing back formation will be in effect this year, Eisan said. This formation, if worked out correctly, can be even more deceiving than the "T". With a setup such as this, the Ram team should really play a great brand of college football, and should provide many thrills for the onlookers.

Bill Thompson, team manager last year, will act in the same capacity again this semester. The next practice day will be tomorrow from 1 o'clock to 3:30.

Coach Lee Eisan said that all gridders should be out there tomorrow without fail and on time, "as practice is the backbone of successful college football."

Council Gives 5 Tennis, 14 Baseball Blocks

Block "S" awards for 14 baseball players and 5 tennis players were O'Ked by the Men's Athletic Council and then passed by the Ex-Council last week.

Racquet swingers to win their Block awards are Bill Covall, Frank Reed, Bob Chinn, Gil Black, and Ed Cantwell.

Blocks have also been awarded to the following men: pitchers: John Lopeman and Henry Boone; catchers, Ernie Poggi and Paul Nederman; infielders: Ed Kenna, Chuck Shea, Gerald Shaughnessy and Don Grant; outfielders: Manuel Castro, Keith Harper, Bob Ghiorzi, George Fabian, Howard Slaughter, and Joe Cimmarusti.

Conlan And Redford Head Intersessions

Schedule of courses for the two summer sessions, June 25 to August 11 and August 13 to September 29, has been completed the registrar's office announced last week.

The first session will be under the direction of Louis Conlan, principal of Mission High School and the second session will be headed by Edward Redford, chief counsellor.

Complete list of courses will be published in The Guardsman in a future issue.

Summer programs are not to exceed seven and one-half units except by special permission from the director. In no case, however, shall a student take more than nine units.

Entrance examinations for entering students will be given from 9 to 11 on Monday morning, June 25, and August 13, with registration from 1 to 4 of the same afternoon in the library. Returning students will register on Monday, June 25, and August 13 from 10 to 12 and from 1 to 4.

XGI's Plan Dance Before End Of Current Semester

Plans for a dance were the main topic of discussion at a general meeting of the XGI Society last Thursday, Jim Earley, president of the veteran organization, revealed.

Although no definite program was decided upon, it is expected that at the next meeting of the society tomorrow at 1 o'clock in Room 204, will set the date and decide other problems.

The XGI Society, under the faculty supervision of Claude Silva and Edward Redford, is open to all veterans.

Messmen's Absence Brings New "Bus Dishes" Request

Because the Messmen's course under the auspices of the Hotel and Restaurant Division was terminated May 17, students are again asked to cooperate by bussing their own dishes.

The cancelling of this part of the course will not interfere with the Cooks and Bakers training, also a part of the Merchant Marine program.

Messmen will be replaced by hired help, according to Lawrence Wong, instructor, if, and when, the college can find any.

"Tell Newspaper People The Truth"--- Says Gov. Warren At Press Club Dinner

By Don Constine, Editor

Presenting the most outstanding dignitaries yet to confront high school and college newspaper representatives, the San Francisco Press Club held its fourth Sunday luncheon at which Governor Earl C. Warren and Assistant Secretary of State, Nelson Rockefeller were the leading speakers.

Tall, distinguished Governor Warren addressed more than 200 students gathered in the club's dining room and offered a brief account of journalism's significance in civic affairs.

"There is nothing more important in our national life than journalism," he emphasized, "and there is only one thing to do with newspaper people, tell them the truth!"

Commenting upon the state's postwar problems, the governor pointed out that "the unemployment difficulties expected to face California in the near future may only be solved through energy, foresight, determination and character."

Following the address, Dr. T. F. Newton, a Canadian delegate and associate chairman of the United Nations information office, described Canada's great contributions to the war effort.

Realistic, sincere and possessing unusual wit, he was one of the most enthusiastically received statesmen on the entire program.

Subtly questioned as to Canada's cultural and geographic ties with this country and England, he laughingly replied: "There is always the question whether Canada will become the 49th state, or the United States the 10th province."

At this moment, the activities were interrupted when the delayed Nelson Rockefeller party, which included noted personalities from Mexico and Ecuador, hurriedly seated themselves.

Rockefeller, surprising many persons by his youthful appearance, forcefully explained regional arrangements and their meaning to the security conference.

Stated the diplomat, "regional arrangements are not in conflict with any world organization . . . the major objective of both is to preserve the peace."

He added a colorful note to the afternoon's proceedings by introducing Galo Plaza, Ecuadorian ambassador, as a former football player and student from the beautiful "college across the bay in Berkeley, the (sic) University of Stanford."

After the assistant secretary concluded, a young woman reporter sighed rather loudly, "Gosh—Nelson reminds me of Van Johnson."

Some Summer Jobs Open To Students

That application should be made early by those contemplating working in the summer, was stressed by Edward W. Larson, placement director. "Many of the jobs with excellent working conditions and attractive pay, are already applied for by high school and other college students," Larson warned.

Pointing out that there is a limited and rapidly vanishing number of jobs available in certain summer resorts, Larson urged that interested students should make application through the placement office, at their earliest convenience.

The United States Forest Service still has a few openings available in the High Sierra country, according to Larson, who also revealed that a limited number of jobs are available to engineering students, and those with some skill in mechanical drawing.

American Folklore Is Feature Of Music Hour

Outstanding bits of American Folk Lore will be the subject of study at the next meeting of the music hour, Madison Devlin, instructor, recently announced.

Eight selections, collected and arranged by John Jacob Niles, are to be used, Niles accompanying himself on the dulcimer on seven of the works also utilizes the piano for the last composition. Niles is classified as a mountaineer tenor. Devlin explained.

Next meeting of the music hour is to be in Room 200 at 9o'clock on Tuesday, June 5, Devlin concluded.

The "red water" which sometimes discolors the ocean along the seacoast is caused by millions of microscopic plants, according to W. E. Allen, assistant professor of biology at the University of California.

Executive Council Minutes

(Editor's Note: The Guardsman hereby cooperates with Executive Council recommendation that minutes of meetings be published. Because of limited space, The Guardsman cannot duplicate information, thus does not carry the regular council story, which would under established policy give details of Associated Student elections in this issue. Guardsman style rules have not been applied to the minutes. They are published verbatim.)

The 15th meeting of the Executive Council was called to order at 8:43A.M., May 22, 1945, in room 111, by President of the Associated Students, Robert Mills.

Those present were: Mills, Crenshaw, Chambers, Thompson, Wilcox, Bernston, and Buckingham.

Those absent were: Lee, Shea, and Pudlowski.

Due to the absence of the secretary, the minutes of the previous meeting were not read.

President Mills submitted the following dates concerning the general student election for approval: petitions for office due June 1, 1945, election rally June 7, 1945, general election, June 13, 1945. Those dates were approved.

Mr. Thompson announced the date for Sophomore Queen election for May 25, 1945.

Mr. Thompson moved that $8.00 be transferred from the Intramural budget to the tennis team for traveling expenses. The motion was seconded and carried.

Five names for tennis blocks were submitted and approved. They were William Covall, Frank Reed, Robert Chinn, Gilbert Black, and Ed Caniwell.

Miss Crenshaw asked what had been done by the Guardsman concerning the Ex-Council's recommendation that the Guardsman publish the minutes of the Ex-Council as written by the secretary.

Mr. Buckingham, Guardsman representative, replied that the Guardsman had decided to do nothing.

Discussions were then held concerning the Guardsman's policies.

A motion was made and seconded that the Guardsman, official publication of the Associated Students, print word for word the minutes of the Ex-Council as written by the secretary of the Associated Students. The motion was carried.

The next meeting will be held Thursday, May 31, at 1:00 P.M.

The meeting was adjourned at 9:05A.M.

Respectfully submitted,
Betty E. Lee, Sec't.

Drama Group Plans Plays Of Suspense

In contrast to the two plays presented by the college drama group during the past year, the program next Thursday and Friday will be one of suspense and intrigue.

It consists of two plays, The Other Side, by Jack Knapp, performed by the men in the class. The action takes place in an executioner's chamber, the setting including everything from the electric chair to the big switch which snuffs out the lives of convicted men. Contrary to most prison plays, this one deals with the reactions of the executioner rather than the prisoners.

The women will appear in a dramatic presentation of how six women, differing characters working for the French underground combine their efforts to have a famous German general kidnapped, killed, and disposed of in the Seine River in Paris.

Both plays will be given in one hour, eight performances being scheduled with four taking place each day from 10 to 2 o'clock.

A unique setting, featuring a complete background of black, will be used to the sinister mood this show will provide.

Wanted: One Cement Mixer And Four Men

By Jackie Hogan

Cement contractors seem to be a new item on the priority list, maybe they, like all artists, are temperamental. For according to Bob Mills, Associated Student president, all that is holding up the installation of the cement S.F.J.C. letters on the campus is the lack of said contractor.

When requested, Mills emphasized that in spite of an intensive search for these vital workmen none could be found, or if found could not be available immediately. Although blaming the situation upon that well-worn excuse about a war being on, Mills still has hopes.

The letters, if you can remember way back in medieval history, were to be placed on the slope overlooking the athletic field by the beginning of this semester.

The cause is not lost, however, for if the letters aren't installed by the fall semester, Mills has promised . . . "I'll place them myself."

College Bank To Close For Semester June 13

That the college bank will close at the semester at 1:30 p. m. Wednesday, June 13, was announced last week by Luther Lyon, comptroller.

All unexpended budgets will revert to the general fund to be appropriated next Fall, Lyon added.

Organizations that plan further expenditures are urged by Lyon to secure purchase orders well in advance of closing day.

He also added that bills for instructional supplies must be submitted to the bank not later than Friday, June 1.

Radio Class Takes To Air In Round Table Program

That the college radio class will participate in a round table discussion Saturday, June 9, was announced last week by Marie Weller, radio instructor.

The program will be on KQW, starting at 2:30 p. m. and lasting until 3 o'clock. Subject of the discussion will be the hope for peace.

Narrator for the program is Arthur Fisher. Other students appearing are Colin Tooley, Lois Hansen, and Albert Young.

Bond Drive Skims Past Half Way Mark To Reach $7,750

Extension of the college bond drive past the original closing date of June 1 resulted in only a slight increase toward the $15,000 quota. At 2 p. m. Monday, official end of the drive, the amount reached was $7,750, or slightly more than half the goal.

Sponsors were not discouraged by the failure to meet the goal here, recognizing the pressure to buy bonds carried on throughout the city. The situation is comparable to that of the last drive here when approximately the same percentage of bonds was sold.

Although suggestion was made that the drive be continued several days, it was deemed inadvisable since the main impetus centered around a campaign building to a June 1 climax.

In club competition, Theta Tau sorority bought $2300 in bonds thus receiving five Sophomore Formal tickets as a prize. Pi Mu Nu came in second.

Highpoint of the bond drive was the Music Festival last Thursday at which winners of the college song contest were announced.

First prize, a $25 war bond, was awarded to Al Rubke for his Rams Cheer Song. Noel Preston received ten dollars in war stamps as second prize for Graduation Hymn, and William Schlager, student from Costa Rica, came in third with five dollars in stamps for Rams Victorious.

Of the 23 songs submitted during the period of the contest, six were chosen finalists and from them the three prize winners were selected.

Honorable mention went to songs by Lorraine Gay, Richard Cumming, and Adele Weiss and Barbara Kresteller, who collaborated.

Mills, Smith Competing For Associated Student Presidency; Candidates To State Platforms Tomorrow In Men's Gym At 1

With Robert Mills and Lottie Jeane Smith competing for the coveted office of Associated Student President, Mills, current president, announced last week that all candidates will present their platform at an election rally tomorrow at 1 o'clock in the men's gymnasium.

Elections will be held next Wednesday, June 13, by voting machine in the college cafeteria from 8:30 to 2:30 o'clock. Voting will be by Associated Student card.

Two candidates, Winifred Kenny and Doris Pederson, filed petitions for the office of Associated Student vice-president, while another two, Nancy Cunningham and Nancy Schulz compete for the secretaryship.

In the race for Associated Women Student offices, competition is among Doris Doran, Carol Hayland, and Roberta Robb for the presidency; Jeffry Burress and Jean Carrasco for the vice-presidency; while Claire Levesque is unopposed for the office of secretary, therefore automatically in office.

Associated Men Student will be headed by Ernest Poggi, unopposed candidate for president, and Dean Haug, also unopposed as vice-president. They will exist without an elected secretary since no one filed a petition to run for that office.

Rally Commissioner and Yell Leader are also automatically in office, for Colin Tooley and Johnnie Di Dio filed petitions for those offices respectively and without opposition.

Composition of the election committee, appointed earlier in the semester, was confirmed last week by Mills and includes Ralph Hansen, chairman, Ernest Rubke, Ann Torres.

Rules of the election prepared by the committee are devised to protect each candidate and to prevent the

Forum Magazine To Go On Sale Today In Cafe

Forum Magazine will go on sale today in the main lobby of the cafeteria, according to Gertrude Land, editor of the college magazine. The price of the magazine will be 25 cents per copy.

The 1945 issue includes essays, poetry, short stories and art. The cover, in two tones and drawn by Doug Hutchings, depicts the cultural aspects of the motif of the magazine. Hutchings received the Art award of the magazine for the cover.

Other Forum prize winners were John Bruce, who won an award for his article on Men at Work. Michele Perks took the poetry award for her poem, Cycle, while winners of the essay contest were Ralph Hansen and James Helmer.

Members of the editorial staff of the magazine are Helen Ringius, Hutchings, Mary Yarger, Gwen Slovenko, Constance Trigonis, Ruth Martin.

Campus Radio Students On KQW This Saturday

In a round table discussion this Saturday, June 9, the college radio class will participate in the end of a series of discussions on the hope for peace, according to Marie Weller, radio instructor.

The program will begin at 2:30 p. m. on KQW and end at 3 o'clock, Miss Weller said.

Arthur Fisher will be the narrator for the program. Colin Tooley, Lois Hansen, and Albert Young are other students who will participate.

Lottie Jeane Smith Captures Soph Crown

Lottie Jeane Smith, Low Sophomore and candidate representing the Associated Students at large, was plummeted to the throne of the High Sophomore class in the run off vote held last Wednesday.

Miss Smith, who thereby and by the expressed preference of the majority of the men voting gained the Sweetheart, or as it is frequently called, the Queen Crown, reigned as such at the class formal at the Hotel Claremont in Berkeley last Saturday night.

L. J., as she chooses to be known, is most recently from Chicago, where she was in the general office of United Air Lines, and columnist for its magazine.

At the college she is a journalism major, News Editor of The Guardsman, and rapidly becoming known as the most sane and tactful member of the Associated Students.

As the majority of the 111 men voting indicated, L. J. nicely combines beauty and brains. Prevailing opinions says, "She's a swell gal."

Brownell, Sampson Head Fall Guardsman Staff

William Brownell was named next semester's Editor of The Guardsman at a meeting of the staff held Monday. Brownell is best known for his column DISCussions which has appeared in The Guardsman for the past year.

Assisting him in the position of Managing Editor will be Pamela Sampson, outstanding Guardsman reporter and President of the Cosmopolitan Society.

Position of News Editor, now filled by Lottie Jeane Smith, depends on the outcome of Associated Student elections, since Miss Smith has filed her candidacy for the office of President of the Associated Students.

Sports Editor Bill Covall expects to leave for the service at the end of this month. The position will be filled next semester.

Drama Group Gives Plays Of Suspense Tomorrow, Friday

Performances of Enemy and The Other Side by the college drama group begin tomorrow in the Little Theatre, Room 209, at 10 a.m. under the direction of Ruth Somers, drama instructor.

Enemy, a one-act play by I. J. Alexander, is a dramatic presentation of the underground work done in France during the German occupation. This play will be given by the women in the class.

The men in the class will appear in The Other Side, by Jack Stuart Knapp. Action takes place in the state prison in the executioner's chamber.

LUNCHEON MATINEE URGED

During intermissions of Enemy and The Other Side (11 to 11:10, 12 to 12:10, and 1 to 1:10 tomorrow and Friday, students who wish to bring a light lunch may eat it in the Little Theater at the above times.

Both plays will be given in one hour with four performances scheduled tomorrow and four Friday, from 10 to 2 o'clock.

The cast includes Pat McCormick, Marvelle Smith, Norma Busse, Saimi Fassett, Lois Jennings, Jean Emard, Celeste Rose, Phyllis Hoffman, Marcia Dains, John Blauer, Gilbert Black, Bob Lertora, Walter Mahoney, and Richard Cumming.

College Art Society Opens Tenth Exhibit

Alpha Detla Epsilon, college art society, opened its 10th annual exhibit Monday at the Paul Elder Galleries, 239 Post street, with more than a score of watercolor entries by a dozen students.

Richard Allman, art instructor, described the exhibit as a "pretty good" collection and urged students to view these paintings, the result of a year's work by the college's most promising painters. Only watercolors comprise this exhibit.

Included are the work of Alice DuBain, Constance Trigonis, Robert Hemme, Josephine Raymond, Marilyn Brunton, Frederick Mayer, Ida Bredison, Norma Platanesi, Elizabeth Kearnan, Geraldine Vaughn, Anita Morholt, and Berton Oldbam.

At a meeting last Thursday Alpha Delta Epsilon members elected Constance Trigonis president, Frederick Mayer, Ida Bredeson, Betty Kearnan, vice-presidents; Joseph Raymond, secretary, and Laura Chatelain, social secretary.

Passing The Buck

By Henry P. Buckingham

ALONG about two months ago, a not too well known man put his hand on a Bible, raised the other in the air, and with a few spoken words, became the thirty-second man to hold the office of President of the United States.

The general consensus was, now we've got him and we're stuck with him. A good many people have changed their opinions since then. A good many people have been just slightly surprised at this fellow from Missouri.

He doesn't look much like a statesman. He's not an orator. In fact his best quality is just good old common sense. They might call it horse sense in Missouri, but probably Washington circles would prefer to have it termed LEADERSHIP. Whatever name his quality is given it can't be denied.

He started off by sliding the national budget down to a figure that is almost within the comprehension of man's finite brain.

Ma Perkins and Mr. Biddle bowed out gracefully. Assistance that they received from the White House in their exodus, was, politically, off the record. Their loss is mourned only in that it did not come sooner. No reason for being idealistic, they're gone, and so goodbye.

Now this man Truman rolls a seven. He invites ex-President Hoover to the White House. Herby undoubtedly enjoyed his reminiscing. Purely business. Food, they say, food for Europe.

Hoover did do a pretty fair job in the food director capacity in the last war. So why play favorites? This new fellow sees that once in a while there is a Republican who knows a little something, so he consults with him, gets some new angles, and the two become, with their respective followers, more closely united. Not to infer that Hoover has many followers, but it cannot be denied that some are still living.

But there seems to be one thing that President Truman has slid lightly over and that is the well known, much debated Office of Price Administration.

This office has, miraculously, brought a great deal of good to the nation in this time of war. With the good, it has brought just as much misfortune. Especially of late. As the O.P.A. wiggles the nation into a better position, as far as automobiles, tires, and gasoline are concerned, it brings food black markets. Baby chicks are drowned because poultry farmers cannot get enough to pay for raising them. Meat is an oddity, and butter—well, some of the older folks still remember that it was yellow.

If President Truman does, and he will, set the O.P.A. on the straight and narrow path to success, then we will be right when we say, "Now that we are lucky enough to be stuck with him, we'll stick by him."

Philippines

ALTHOUGH there is still severe fighting ahead for allied forces in the Philippines, the Filipino people are now on the threshold of their long-awaited independence.

There are many great obstacles which confront a young, self-governing state. Post-war planning, trade, finance, rehabilitation and defense create only a few of these numerous difficulties.

When the Philippine government is finally established, the islands will then be outside the United States tariff wall. This may bring forth a most troublesome situation, since the country for years has been almost fully dependent on the American market.

In 1943, the late President Roosevelt stated that "we must assist in making the Philippines as an independent nation, economically secure wherever possible."

It would be unwise to expect the Philippines to emerge into a new republic immediately following the war.

The United States will certainly uphold its agreements, yet we must also stand morally responsible for the welfare of all Filipinos until permanent self-rule is assured.

Employment

ASSOCIATED COLLEGIATE PRESS recently announced that an Iowa university personnel office has a rather unusual solution for senior students desiring jobs upon graduation.

Preparing a so-called catalog of the senior class, the personnel directors have issued a list containing the student's grades, major, vocational interests, character traits and an account of the individual's outstanding activities on the campus.

A form letter explaining the purpose of the catalog is sent to more than two hundred businesses, industrial concerns, and professional organizations throughout the nation.

Thus commercial establishments can more easily single-out applicants and obtain an objective view of them.

This plan surely deserves attention during the next semester. If the procedure does work effectively, a new method of employment may be opened, and college placement departments may gain even greater significance.

Letters To The Editor

RAM'S HORN

● Ex-Council Minutes

Editor, The Guardsman:

In the May 30 issue of The Guardsman the Ex-Council minutes were submitted by Miss Betty Lee, secretary of the Association Students, who was absent from the meeting. How could Miss Lee submit minutes when she wasn't present to record them?

I for one would rather read a well written news story such as The Guardsman has printed in the past than dull, uninteresting minutes.

Of course, on the other hand, printing the minutes as such might make the Ex-Council conduct itself in a grown up manner.

—Confused.

● Ex-Council Minutes

Editor, The Guardsman:

As an interested member of the Associated Students who has not the time to attend the Ex-council meetings, I am very glad that the minutes of these meetings are now being published.

I hope that this policy will be continued because, contrary to last week's editorial, I do not believe that "The Guardsman" gives fair or responsible coverage to such meetings.

In regard to space limitations, certainly the Ex-council affairs are more interesting than the reason why the "water along the coastline is sometimes red." Here's to more news and less "filler."

—Maggie Scholes

Editor's Note: Fillers are purely mechanical, used to fill out a column that is too short but not short enough to allow space for a complete story. You have obviously no understanding of the mechanics of a newspaper.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Letters to the Ram's Horn column may be left in The Guardsman office, Room 134, in The Guardsman mail box, 137.

DISCussions

AT LONG LAST some creative recorded music is being issued. The past few weeks have seen nothing but crooners monopolizing the field, so it is indeed a pleasure to discuss the following.

The first of these works is the Gene Krupa Jazz Trio's disc of Dark Eyes. This opus is quite confusing to a listener during the first viewings for it is a conflict of ideas and moods. Charlie Venturo's sax is positive in its opening tale of woe, while the piano is one of compromise, and Krupa on the drum is absolute in his indifference to poor Venturo. The result is that Krupa's indifference wins out and the final chorus finds Krupa leading the way for all, through a twirl of technical ability. The individual solos are schooled and imaginative, but the idea in back of the session on a whole is elusive. Requires much study for complete enjoyment.

Next on the docket is Charlie Barnett's West End Blues. Coming out of a huge, impressive introduction sneaks a mousy appearing sax solo. After voicing its cry of resentment against the world, the sax then sits back to listen to a trumpet conversation. This conversation, which points out the ridiculousness of the sax's outlook, spurs the sax to abandon its martyrdom and on to a joy to the world solo-message. Strictly for laughs, this waxed comedy showeases both subtle and burlesque types of humor within the wonderful sax solos. The arrangement continually reminds one of the techniques employed by Johnnie Hodges and the Woody Herman crew.

Speaking of Herman, we grasp this opportunity to mess 'round with Woody's new Apple Honey. The Herman outfit is young and full of new ideas which it constantly presents in its orchestrations. Apple Honey features many solos, but Pusher Petersen's trombone stands out, for it is sooo happy. The whole gathering displays a fearlessness in expressing creative thoughts that so few are willing to express for fear of small financial returns. The last chorus sees perhaps the most insane trumpet screeching ever recorded. Somewhat like Rex Stewart of the Ellington group. Herman's drummer terminates this effort with the same inexplainable two-beat that issues Calidonia out of being. Herman is definitely the leader of current white bands.

WAA Climaxes Year With Barbecue Next Monday At Grove

Members of the Women's Athletic Association will attend a semi-annual sports barbeque next Monday, June 11, from 3 to 7 p.m., at Sigmund Stern Grove, Janice Beanston, president, said last week.

Entertainment will be furnished by talented members of the college reeruited by Ouida Arnold, committee chairman. Games and races are planned before the awarding of WAA blocks, badminton and table tennis prizes, Miss Beanston revealed. She also requested that women planning to attend the barbeque sign up in the gymnasium if they have not already done so.

The last badminton tournament was filled with such exciting play and enthusiasm that plans were immediately made for a mixed doubles tourney tomorrow. Loys Daskarolis, chairman, reported. Several men of the faculty have been invited to compete in tomorrow afternoon's play.

The WAA softball team met Washington High School representatives in a practice game last Monday, showing much improvement in fielding and team work according to Bertha Mae Keller, adviser.

Miss Keller's 8 o'clock physical education class has challenged WAA basketballers to a game tomorrow morning in the men's gymnasium. Anyone up that early may watch the contest, which starts promptly at 8:15 a.m. The WAA team is composed of Alma Pucci, Virginia Wells, Wanda McKenzie, Ann Ahokas, Miss Miles, and Miss Beanston, all experienced players.

Intra Tennis Play This Week, Ping Pong Next

Intramural activity was somewhat slowed last week with the announcement by Director Jack Brady that ping pong matches cannot be run off until the last week of college classes.

Tennis intra play will be completed this week in both singles and doubles matches. Among those competing are Ed Cantwell, Bill Covall, Frank Fields, Bob Chinn, Ed Emig, Manuel Castro, and Ray York, Brady said. Several others are expected to play.

Possibility of the traditional boxing show being held this semester still exists, but depends on settlement of a date by the intramural board and the Associated Men Student officers.

Presentation of medal awards for intramural sports winners and second place teams is usually a part of the boxing show program.

Faculty-Soph Game Off

A volley-ball game between High Sophomore women and women members of the faculty, set for last Friday afternoon, was cancelled. No reason was given. The game was to have been a feature of High Sophomore week.

Guardsman Scoop On Conference Play Return Verified; Ram Gridders Face Heavy Home And Home 1945 Schedule

Confirmation of the reestablishment of the Northern California Junior College conference, reported in the May 16 edition of The Guardsman, was made last week by J. Paul Mohr, registrar here and chairman of the conference.

Mohr stated that a minimum of four colleges must field a team in a round robin schedule, if an official championship is to be decided. He added that three teams have already signified that they will positively have a team. These are Sacramento, Modesto, and San Francisco. Probable entries include Santa Rosa, Salinas, and Marin with Placer as an outside possibility.

Eligibility rules were also decided at the conference meeting. These included a new rule that an athlete must be registered at his respective college and have passing grades in at least nine units plus physical education.

Mohr indicated that completion of the schedule will depend on travel conditions prevalent in the fall. Formerly the conference was divided into two leagues. The "A" league included Modesto, Sacramento, Salinas, San Francisco, San Mateo, and Stockton.

Approximately one-seventh of the University of Texas student body is enrolled in courses in Bible, conducted for university credit by the Association of Religious Teachers.

The Ram grid team will compete with at least five conference teams this coming season. This was decided at the football Northern California Junior College Conference meeting that was held two weeks ago in Sacramento.

Modesto, Menlo, Marin, Salinas, and Sacramento are the teams which the Rams will meet on the gridiron. Three colleges are still undecided whether or not they will have teams to play in the league. They are Grant, Placer, and Santa Rosa.

Following is a list of definite dates, all to be played at night, confirmed at the conference.

Oct. 5 Modesto .....Here
Oct. 12 Sacramento ... Sacramento
Oct. 26 Modesto .....Modesto
Nov. 2 Sacramento .....Here

Meanwhile, spring practice is coming along very well as the men are really working hard for their capable coach, Lee Eisan.

Much praise has been given already to the backfield, and the all important line is also deserving of confidence.

The linesmen, as essential as the backfield, but only when they fight together, are Don Grant, guard; George Fabian, center; John Mapelli, guard; Bob Mills, tackle; and Victor Pudlowski, tackle.

Next practice day will be tomorrow from 1 to 4 o'clock, and Friday from 2 to 4 o'clock.

Lowly Frosh Outfit Trips Brainy Sophs 10 To 8 In Class Day Softball

By Manuel Castro

The Lowly Frosh showered disgrace on the so-called "brainy" Sophs last Friday by defeating them 10 to 8 in the Soph day softball game. The Frosh probably had scarced the Sophs previous to the game, for the latter took almost an hour before they could round up enough players to play.

The Sophs blanked the Frosh for three innings and scored four runs, and then the Frosh stopped toying with the Sophs to score three runs in the fourth inning.

The "brains" scored again in the fifth inning, but the "Mighties" tied the score and kept going until it was 8 to 6, when the Frosh again began to toy with the wise men, who tied the count at 8 all in the sixth inning.

Two more Frosh runs in their half of the sixth inning put the poor Sophs down, and they couldn't do anything in the last inning.

The Frosh were plenty fast, continually bunting the ball down the third base lines and on base nine out of ten times. Also they were never satisfied with stealing one base—they stole two bases, from first to third, and thence home.

The mighties blow of the day came when Johnny Mappelli eluoted the ball into center field all the way across the field. It had to be relayed three times before reaching the infield, while Mr. Mappelli trotted to third base.

Tiny Ghiorzi, back after a stay in the hospital, played a superb game behind the plate as well as hitting 4-5. Henry Boone played a good game at first, and George Fabian showed his football and baseball prowess at second, while Don Grant did likewise at third. Ed Kenna started the game as pitcher but left early, and Grant resumed the pitching chores and later gave way to Mapelli.

In the Soph squad Lanky Bill Thompson stood and watched his team go down to defeat. Muscles Gorbenko and Passing the Buck Buckingham played a fairly good game for the Sophs. The Slaughter brothers played a fair game also.

Substitute Teachers Needed; Students Here Are Eligible

Teaching courses for substitute elementary school teaching positions are available at San Francisco State College this summer, according to Edwin C. Browne, coordinator of personnel in the city's public schools.

Browne, former dean of men at this college, listed the following qualifications for interested students in his recent letter to the registrar's office. High school graduates, preferably active students here or at State College may apply in writing to Browne's office, located in the Civic Auditorium, Grove and Larkin Streets, San Francisco. American citizenship is required as well as minimum of 18 years.

The course runs from June 25 through August 25 allowing a maximum of 10 units and a tuition limit of $40. State College has requested that potential students pre-register by mail.

Under California law, substitute teachers are paid $7.50 per day with long term substitution earning $9.00 per day.

"Under the present plan, the school department hopes to train a sufficient number of substitutes to replenish the dwindling supply now on hand," Browne said. Upon passing the summer course, emergency credentials will be awarded, renewal of which will be made each term depending upon the need for substitutes.

A total of 22 courses is offered at State, all relating to teaching, which is the specialty of the college. They are divided into three types, namely, observation of teaching, practice course in teaching, and personal conference with educators.

Bank Closes Wednesday

No funds may be drawn from unexpended budgets after 1:30 p.m. next Wednesday, June 13, Luther Lyon, controller, warned again last week.

All unexpended budgets will revert to the general Associated Student fund at that time for reappropriation next semester.

Enrollment For Summer Sessions Might Reach 600

Names of the instructors for the two summer sessions will be posted on the bulletin board following their approval by the Board of Education, the registrar's office announced last week.

Enrollment for each session is expected to reach 600, Edward G. Redford, head counsellor, revealed. Redford also emphasized the fact that a student will be able to complete an entire year's work in a course by attending both sessions, thus accelerating his program.

First session commences June 25, and ends August 11, the second session begins August 13 and runs to September 29, with registration on the first day of each session. Units are limited to seven and half except by special permission.

Ex-Council Minutes

Space was held until 3 o'clock Friday afternoon for a copy of the minutes of the last meeting of the Executive Council.

Deadline was at 10 o'clock that morning, stated as such in writing to the council.

The Guardsman staff has still seen no sign of the minutes.

London Group Has Courses Like Hotel Division's

That the London Institutional Management Association conducts its classes on a similar basis with the course offered at the college by the Hotel and Restaurant Division was revealed last week in a letter to Mozelle Milliken, division instructor here.

In the letter from a London instructor Agusta Lumby, inquiries concerning the division's policy were occasioned by the appearance of an article on the division's activities by Mrs. Milliken in an international magazine publication.

Senator Rolin Warns All Young American Writers Against Pessimism In The News At Last In Series Of Press Club Dinners

By Pamela Sampson and Norma Smith

At the fifth and final junior press conference held in San Francisco, an interesting array of personalities were on hand to address the representatives of various schools and colleges.

Among the guests were the Greek Ambassador, Cimon Diamantopoulos; Senator Henri Rolin, and Colonel Victor de La Veleye, member of the Belgian delegation; the Australian Minister of External Affairs, Dr. Herbert Evatt, and General Carlos P. Romulo of the Philippines.

Senator Rolin, who was for many years connected with the League, warned against warmongers and pessimism in the press, pointing out that the latter has "scuttled" many promising conferences. He urged those present—the young American press—to keep a clear image of the past and not to fall into the same pitfalls of the press of 20 years ago, by discriminating between news and propaganda.

Colonel de La Veleye, originator of the V for Victory campaign while broadcasting from London, told how he came to pick the letter V, since the words meaning "victory" both in French and Flemish begin with that letter.

The Greek Ambassador, in his address, pointed out a fallacy of the American press which had printed that the recent revolution in Greece was caused by the lower class rising against the "privileged class."

"There is no priviliged class in Greece," he declared most emphatically, explaining that Greece, though not industrialized has no "landed" class as such. In answer to a question, Mr. Diamantopoulos replied that British intervention in the resolution "saved Greece," and that Russia was in no way held in rancor.

Both Mr. Evatt and General Romulo warned that while the charter to come from the United Nations Conference in this city promised much, it would in effect, still be only a "seedling" necessitating future expansion and cultivation. Taking up the controversy regarding the words "independence" and "self-government," General Romulo emphatically stated his choice of "independence" illustrating extensively from American history.

Of all the speakers, General Romulo was the most forceful, and most cordially received. The audience applauded his speech at several points.

New Supply Of Catalogs To Be Available Soon

Distribution of the 1945-1946 college catalogs will continue as soon as a new supply is received from the printer, Mary Jane Learnard, assistant registrar, revealed last week.

Students desiring catalogs may obtain them at the registrar's office when they are available.

The books, which are entirely different from those of previous years, have gay red and white covers and a new pattern designed by Patricia Cullen of the Advertising Art class.

Spring Green Starts New Earthworm Angle

By Pat French

Here's a new angle on worms. With the staging of Spring Green by the dramatic class, inquisitive students found themselves concerned with the problem of the earthworm status in the college's gardens.

A few young men and women have even gone so far as to examine odd bits of soil, and, finding no earthworms, continued on to their various classes, disconsolate and moody. Thus study routine has suffered.

Students are advised by Floriculturist Harry Nelson not to be disillusioned by the apparent absence of this particular species of soil genus (genius).

College earthworms, though prevalent, keep well hidden underground as is customary in most earthworm circles.

Anyway, if skeptical students insist on seeing those much discussed worms turn, they must wait for the rainy season to coach the wigglers forth.

Laguna Honda Gardens To Have Open House

Open House Day at Laguna Honda Community Gardens is scheduled for Saturday, June 16, when visitors will have a chance to inspect gardens and get tips for spring planting, according to Floriculturist Harry Nelson.

The program, under the chairmanship of John Brucato, will include demonstrations on soil preparation and insect control. A broadcast is being planned by Novell Gillespie to stimulate interest in Victory Gardens because of the critical need for more home-grown vegetables.

Many of the gardens in the Laguna Honda area are among the 80 plots entered in the contest sponsored by the Victory Garden Advisory Council at the college.

AGS-Forum Club Debate Tomorrow In Room 100

An informal debate between the Alpha Gamma Sigma Honor Society and the Forum Club will be held tomorrow at 1 o'clock in Room 100.

With all students invited to attend the debate, the topic for discussion will be: Resolved, That the United States take possession of all Pacific Islands deemed necessary for defense.

The Forum Club, taking the affirmative, will be represented by Mary Yarger and Gwen Slovenko. Alpha Gamma Sigma is to be represented by Martin Colvin and Marilyn Zito.

Record Vote Expected Today

Associated Students Will Elect Officers For Next Semester; Booths Close At 2:30

With a large voting response expected, general student elections, led by Robert Mills and Lottie Jeane Smith, candidates for the office of Associated Student President, will be held by voting machine today in the cafeteria from 8:30 to 2:30 o'clock.

Voting will be by Associated Student card.

Winifred Kenny and Doris Pederson are candidates for the office of Associated Student vice-president, while Nancy Cunningham and Nancy Schultz will compete for the secretaryship.

Three students, Doris Doran, Carol Hayland, and Roberta Robb, will campaign for the Associated Women Student presidency, while Jeffry Burress and Jean Carrasco will run for vice-president of the organization. Unopposed, Claire Levesque will automatically assume the office of secretary.

Associated Men Students will be headed by Ernest Poggi, unopposed candidate for president, and Dean Haugh, also unopposed as vice-president. They will officiate without an elected secretary, as no one filed a petition to run for that office.

Colin Tooley and Johnnie Di Dio filed petitions for the offices of Rally Commissioner and Yell Leader respectively, and without opposition will assume the offices automatically.

The election committee, appointed by Mills, includes Ralph Hansen, chairman, Ernest Rubke, and Ann Torres.

Rules of the election prepared by the committee and published last week are devised to protect each candidate and to prevent the election from becoming a campaign of excessive financial expenditures.

C.O.P. Begins Courses On Part Time Program

Establishment of cooperative part-time courses for college students beginning November 1, 1945, has been announced by the College of the Pacific at Stockton.

According to the plan, students will enroll on an earn-while-you-learn basis, in a manner similar to the courses offered at Antioch College in Ohio.

Courses given will be designed for Economics, Business Administration, Science, Chemistry, Bacteriology and Nutrition majors.

Experience will be gained in the offices, laboratories and plants of the canneries, frozen food plants, sugar refineries, food machinery factories and other similar firms in Northern California.

Interested students may attend a meeting in Room 191 at 11 a. m., Tuesday, June 19, where representatives of the College of the Pacific will describe the plan in deatil. Students unable to attend the 11 o'clock meeting may go at 12 for personal interviews.

Zito, Daskarolis Get Denman Scholarships

Winners of the James Denman Scholarships are Marilyn Zito and Loys Daskarolis, President A. J. Cloud announced last week.

Two $125 scholarships are awarded annually to aid students with educational expenses while attending college.

The winners were selected by a committee constituted of Ernest J. Cummings, Associate Superintendent of Schools, President Cloud, and Dean Margaret Dougherty.

Judge William Denman of the United States Circuit Court and his sister have made the scholarship fund available in memory of their father, James Denman, a San Francisco school superintendent.

The awards are given to women students of the college who are graduates of San Francisco public high schools.

Cafeteria Open Through Finals, Except Monday

That the cafeteria will be closed Monday, June 18, was announced last week by Hilda Watson, chairman of the Hotel Division.

Service will continue as usual during the first days of finals, however, subject to change according to demand.

During the summer session breakfast will be served from 8 to 9 o'clock and lunch from 11 to 1:15 p. m.

The Merchant Marine will continue their course this summer.

Grades Are Ready Day After Summer Sessions Start

That students may call for their final grades at the registrar's office beginning Tuesday, June 26, was announced last week by Mary Jane Learnard, assistant registrar. Those desiring that their grades be mailed to them should leave a large stamped, self addressed envelope at the office before that date, she said.

The first summer session begins on Monday, June 25, with entrance examination for new students from 9 to 12 in Room 100, and registration from 1 to 4 o'clock in the library.

Returning students should register from 2 to 12 and from 1 to 4 o'clock on Monday, June 25, on the second floor.

Fall semester opens, Monday, October 1. New students are required to take the entrance examination on Thursday and Friday, September 27 and 28, Miss Learnard added.

Registration is scheduled for Monday and Tuesday, October 1 and 2, and instruction begins the following day.

Conference Delegate May Speak At Tenth Graduation June 22

A prominent delegate to the San Francisco Conference will be guest speaker at the college's tenth annual commencement exercises at Washington High School auditorium, Friday, June 22, provided conference sessions continue through that date, Dean Edward E. Sandys said last week. Name of the possible speaker was not immediately available.

Dr. Curtis A. Warren, superintendent of schools, will introduce the speaker. The Honorable Bart A. Supple, president of the Board of Education, will also make a brief address.

Graduating students have received seven commencement invitations, each admitting an unlimited number of persons upon presentation. In addition, a general invitation has been extended to students to attend.

Music for the program will include selections by the college and Women's Choruses, under the direction of Flossita Badger, and orchestra numbers conducted by Madison Devlin. The graduating class will sing the new graduation hymn written by Noel Preston.

Bisio, Gay Win President's Plaque

Lorraine Gay

Bob Bisio

Lorraine Gay and Bob Bisio were selected as the two outstanding graduating students of 1945—and will have their names inscribed on the President's Award plaque, according to Dean Edward Sandys.

Miss Gay, a music major, has taken a prominent part in student activities as accompanist for all musical programs. She was particularly valuable because of her capable versatility as pianist. Aside from college activities Miss Gay has gone into the professional field of music, playing both piano and accordion on the stage and with various orchestras.

In collaboration with fellow musicians she has arranged and composed some popular songs. Miss Gay plans to attend the University of California.

Bisio was Associated Student President last semester and chairman of the most successful bond drive the college has known. When the tree planting idea was at a standstill, Bisio was appointed chairman and was responsible for the completion of the project. He also was originator of the idea to place cement letters SFJC on the campus.

Former president of the Tri-Epsilon fraternity, Bisio is now attending the University of California.

Passing The Buck

By Henry P. Buckingham

THERE are some witches in Macbeth who run around a pot singing.

"Double, double, toil and trouble
Fire burn; and, cauldron bubble."

Now when the witches, who have since been recalled to hell, sang and danced, they little realized that they were sneak previewing the same act that would be performed in Room 134 of the San Francisco Junior College some centuries later.

As the young writers with literary aspirations bat out their last edition, they dance madly about their typewriters.

Filet of typewriter ribbon,
Eye of news, piece of copy.

The P.A. speaker on the north wall vainly attempts to outshout the crazed cries of the event catchers. A visitor strolls in the door and leaves more quickly. Some fool yells, "deadline in five minutes," and then forgets to duck.

"Where's that cut of Elmer Scroogie for page one?" eeks its way over, "Who stole my copy?"

At typewriter No. 2 a line has gathered. Column writers, sports writers, news writers, feature writers, wait for a believer of the hunt and peek to pick out letters like a novice gathering mushrooms from a toadstool-covered lawn. The anguished reporters throw slurring remarks his way.

Gall of pressmen, quips of you
Silver'd in the room's eclipse.

An elated editor shuffles his way through a myriad of papers lying desolate, yea dead, on the floor. "Here's a scoop on the cafe's entree for Friday the fourteenth, nineteen forty-eight." He sways with indemnification. Verily, verily he says, a scoop.

Finger of copy-strangled column.
Stuff delivered by a barb.

A late arrival opens a window to let the atmosphere out, and page one blows swiftly toward Phelan Avenue. An ex-council member dashes in Paul Revere fashion, collapses near the editor's desk and with a final gesture throws the minutes of the last ex-council meeting weakly into a wire basket reserved for the purpose.

Cool it with printer's-ink blood
Then the charm is firm and good.

The paper is assembled and as the worn and weary grasp the desks in the great death struggle Hectate enters and says:

O, well done! I commend your pains;
And every one shall share i' gains
And now about the cauldron sing,
Like elves and fairies in a ring,
Enchanting all that you put in.

And so, as we bid fond farewell to a day with the staff, we shake hands and say goodbye. An so goodbye it is. That fellow Bill Shakespeare had a couple of good lines for Parting in another story he wrote. But then, that is another tale.

College women's skirts have been shortened approximately 14 inches in the last 10 years.

The Twentieth Class

THIS semester's High Sophomores constitute the twentieth graduating class to receive Associate in Arts degrees from the college.

It was just one year ago last June that we stated in an editorial that the men and women of the 1944 class were graduating at a most momentous time, since the invasion of the French coast by allied troops occurred but two weeks previously.

We pointed out that the Normandy invasion required tremendous preparation with the ultimate goal of complete victory.

Comparably, a long period of education is needed to gain a college degree which should be the first step toward an abundant, intelligent mode of living.

The war in Europe is over. Only effective planning and diligent work made Germany's unconditional surrender possible. Now the combined strength and determination of the allies must be directed against Japan.

Today's graduates more than ever realize that the outlook for the war is perhaps less dramatic, perhaps more solemn than last June. Not only will the war be a tough grind, but the peace to come will be difficult to establish and even more difficult to maintain.

Review of the past four semesters brings forth many outstanding activities on the campus in which the graduates participated. They staged bond drives, music festivals, formed a college orchestra and beautified the campus.

If the present graduates have become somewhat open-minded, mature and tolerant, then much has certainly been accomplished.

We can understand the philosopher Will Durant when he said, "education is not a task, it is a lifelong happiness, an ennobling intimacy with great men, an unhurried excursion into all realms of wisdom."

Letters To The Editor

RAM'S HORN

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Letters to the Ram's Horn column may be left in The Guardsman office, Room 134, in The Guardsman mail box, 137.

● Forum
Editor, The Guardsman:

I would like to take this opportunity to congratulate Gertrude Land, editor, and staff members of the Forum magazine for the outstanding job they did on this semester's issue.

The cover of the magazine designed by Douglas Hutchings carried out the idea of the contents very well. The printing and interlor appearance of the publication, stressing simplicity, was particularly well done.

My only criticism is that there was a superfluity of mediocre verse, and that there were not enough contributions from a larger and different group of students.

On the whole, the Forum Magazine was very well received, and many of us are wondering if it couldn't appear twice a year.

—R.M.

● Rallies
Editor, The Guardsman:

Would it be possible to get the idea broadcast around that next semester some of us would like a rally scheduled at a time other than 1 o'clock.

There are many students who work in the afternoons and can't attend a 1 o'clock rally and we'd like to go to at least one. And sometimes people have to work only on one day and that is Thursday. Do all the rallies have to be on one day?

B.F.

● Radio
Editor, The Guardsman:

The college is equipped with excellent broadcasting facilities. The only time these are put to advantage is to broadcast occasional items of information.

I understand that there is a radio production and directing group as well as a radio announcing class. I have heard several comments made upon the V-E day program presented.

There is the talent. There is the equipment. There are the scripts, and there is certainly the time.

Why not some more radio at Junior College?

DISCussions

SINCE this is the last edition of one full year of dise reviewing we felt that maybe the reader might be interested in learning how this one-in-every-home saga first originated in our feeble brain.

Listening to records first began way back in 1934 when the Bing made a movie titled We're Not Dressing. Remember? Bing was at his best then, and the strains of Once In A Blue Moon still haunt us. Strange that Bing should inspire a column that constantly condemns him, but the truth shall out, inspiration or no. From here on in the tale becomes too sordid for even the brazenest of readers to hear.

While on vacation and away from our scholarly but sincere influence, it would be well to listen to the latest works of Ellington, McIntre, Herman, James, and Sinatra. These boys are positively the best known of the real leaders of the pop-field and can stand up under the closest of observation.

Back to Bing. This lad from Gonzaga is by far the most beloved American entertainer of our time. Bing is more to the public than a mere performer, he's a person. Although he can sing, act, and make funnies, he is best loved for his human traits. Bing is tops and that tribute he and Pepsodent gave Hope on his birthday was just more of the Crosby bigness coming out. Bing is what we like to feel a typical American should be.

* * *

Oh yes. Peering out of this 8 inch booby trap, we note that for the past year two seedy bits of work have been steadily appearing to our left. One laughingly refers to itself as Passing the Buck and the other classifies itself as being an editorial. 'Tis rumored that the Benny-toting authors of these epics are tagged Buckingham and Constine. One is to be a Buckingham doctor and the other a Constine lawyer. Too bad they wavered from their paths of study this far.

Come Jane, Tarzan better leave.

Seriously though, it has been the acme of all acmes to have been associated with these two gents who in reality are loaded with writing ability. Even the ACP agrees, for almost entirely through the efforts of these two men did The Guardsman take All-American honors for two straight semesters. Men, you were great.

Come Jane, Tarzan leave.

Glessner Wins Scholastic Cup; Baer Next Of Nine Honor Society Graduates

By Mary Millett

Having received the highest academic record of the graduating class for her two years in this college, Jacqueline Glessner, now a permanent member of the Alpha Gamma Sigma Scholarship Honor Society, will be awarded the Scholastic Cup at the June commencement, Dean Edward E. Sandys announced last week.

Of the five students graduating this semester with permanent membership in the society, the two highest are Miss Glessner, and Beatrice Baer.

Miss Glessner has taken a pre-nursing major and will register in Northwestern University in Illinois this summer. Miss Baer, with a pre-medical major, will possibly return to this college for a post-graduate course.

The three remaining honor graduates of this semester are Laura Miller, who is a business major; Him Lai, valedictorian and a chemical engineering major, who intends to continue his studies at the University of California; and Lorraine Gay, who will continue with her music studies at the University of California.

Four students, who completed requirements for graduation in February or August, will also be graduated with honors. They are Shirley Sillineri, Cayolyn Righetti, Gerd Olsen, and Helen Wheeler.

All the students listed above have been members of the society three out of four semesters and have maintained a 2.3 grade point average, which are the two main requirements for permanent membership on the Alpha Gamma Sigma.

Robinet, Him Lai Speak For Class

As a climax to their junior college careers, Him Lai and Lois Robinet have been chosen to represent their class as student speakers at commencement exercises Friday night, June 22, at George Washington auditorium.

Miss Robinet, salutitorian, is a graduate of Polytechnic High School.

In the course of those two years she has been president of Pi Mu Nu, vice-president of the Women's Athletic Association, chairman of the Welfare Committee and winner of the James Denman scholarship award. For the past three semesters she has been a member of Alpha Gamma Sigma.

Lois Robinet

Miss Robinet intends to go to the University of California this fall to continue her pre-medical education.

Him Lai, who will give the valedictory address, and who is shown in the picture of honor graduates at the left, is a graduate of Galileo High School, and a member of Alpha Gamma Sigma honor society. Lai has devoted his junior college years to intensive preparation for his goal of a chemical engineer.

Like Miss Robinet, he plans to continue his studies at the University.

Grads Want Part In Building Better World

By Theodora Wong

Sophomores of the present graduating class are practical idealists, one might say.

They are not the same young people of ten years ago who lived in an insecure peace and an uncertain economic stage. With war and V-E Day a fact, they weigh realistically the means of peace control as weighed by the men and women in the United Nations Conference at San Francisco. Experienced not as "student jobs" but jobs requiring adult skill and responsibility, they place a contribution to postwar reconversion leading to a higher standard of living.

They are both practical and idealistic in choosing by a large majority the fields of medicine, education and business administration, as indicated elsewhere in a sophomore poll.

Today and ten years ago, one thing is the same: they want a share in "building a better world."

The only year book published here appeared in 1937.

Ground Breaking, April 25, 1937

Pictured at the right during the ground-breaking ceremonies for the college in 1937, President Archibald J. Cloud watches as Angelo J. Rossi, then the mayor of San Francisco, turned the first shovelful of earth, marking the Balboa Park site.

As a special dedication to President Cloud, who fought untiringly to make the college possible, the highest point on the location, where the first unit of college—estimated at $700,000—was to be erected, was named Cloud Rock.

Terminating the significant program, former Mayor Rossi commented that it was a joyous occasion when the first step toward the construction of buildings for San Francisco Junior College could be taken despite the depression still lasting in 1937.

Some of the earth turned in the 1937 ceremonies is preserved in the college trophy case.

Horatio In 1940 Had To Save Time; Jasper In 1945 Has Time On His Hands

By Henry P. Buckingham

The past college year has been marked with but one blight—admission to the college of a skinny ferret-faced fellow called Jasper Clotch.

Few have met this mystery student, but all know him as the man about the campus. The barefoot boy with stockings. A page from Esquire . . . saddle shoes, Rum and Coca-Cola colored slacks and a dapper, bright, polka dot tie tying his sack like shirt at the collar.

Jasper's transgressions, scholastic, political and social, remind the oldsters of the days gone by. And when the more eldery of the oldsters think of the days gone by, they think of the 22 "campuses" and of one Horatio J. College, typical of pre-Balboa Park days.

Some might call Horatio Jasper's predecessor. This would be a fallacy. Horatio possessed none of the SAX APPEAL, (Bobby Sax) that Jasper can legally lay claim to.

Compared with Horatio, Jasper has time on his hands. As well remembered he had time enough to plague the registrar, steal the Santa Rosa Junior College sign from the Santa Rosa Junior College stadium, jam up college parking, throw askew the college attendance regulations, and cause 101 disruptions in normal, sane college life.

Horatio, instead of figuring ways to spend time, racked his brain for ways to save it. Horatio's day was filled with Powell Street, Galileo High School, and fighting off pigeons in Union Square. Horatio's day was a day when he could find a seat on the bumper of an F car. Horatio's day was a day without a college building . . . Horatio's existence was meagre when likened unto Jasper's lavish surroundings.

Horatio, when he had a spare minute, wished for a building, a single building, called the San Francisco Junior College. Jasper, in some of his many spare minutes, wishes that the wind would leave this single building.

Horatio may tilt his chin with pride, directing his questioners to Balboa Park—home of one of the finest junior colleges in the country. And as Horatio looks heavenward from the foot of the hill and sees in the sunlight the work of Tim Pflueger silhouetted against the blue, Jasper Clotch stands, as a conquerer, atop its crest and looks westward, westward to the WAVE barracks across Phelan avenue. The wheels in the "silent area" of Jasper's brain are working overtime.

Campus 91 Years Part Of City; Decade Review Proves Progress, Points Seven Building Future--And Home For Mascot

San Francisco Junior College campus is actually 91 years a part of San Francisco.

When San Francisco obtained title to the site of land in 1854 that is now bordered by Phelan Avenue, Ocean and points north and east no one dreamed that it would one day be the site of a city's junior college.

Technically what happened between 1854 and 1935 is city history, but information is a part of college history.

In February 1935 the college was authorized by the Board of Education and August of the same year found students meeting in mass for a college organization ceremony at the Opera House. Dr. Archibald J. Cloud was named president of the college and handed the job of making nothing into something.

Attending college classes was a problem in the fall of 1935, for morning classes were held at the University of California Extension Building, 540 Powell Street, and afternoon classes met at Galileo High School. Students were quick to realize that torture was unnecessary, and early in January, 1936, locations were considered. Final vote was four to one in favor of the Ingleside neighborhood, and Balboa Park became the future home of the college.

Mayor Angelo J. Rossi turned the first shovelful of earth on April 25, 1937, while students cheered hopefully. Classes came and went and 1939 found 3,100 weary students meeting in 25 different places.

When the time at last came in 1940 to decide upon an appropriate phrase to adorn the entrance portals of the college, confusion was uppermost. There was a certain amount of space to be filled, just so many letters were required to fill it, and the words selected had to convey a meaning to the world. So quite naturally when the portals were unveiled in September, 1940, six perfect words from the New Testament (John VIII, 32) burned the minds and ambitions of those present. "The Truth Shall Make You Free." (See picture below on this page.)

The science building was opened but carpenters ran rampant through the halls and painters sang merrily as they worked. Instructors defied hammers and plaster for a month until the final touch was in place on October 6, 1940.

Months of planning preceded the first homecoming of San Francisco Junior College. Alumni were invited and a special program included a tour of the campus, entertainment and refreshment, culminated by the unveiling of Frederick Olmstead's limestone statutes of Thomas A. Edison and Leonardo da Vinci, in the east court.

November 10, 1941 rolled around. The college was dedicated and amidst many excited exclamations, Dudley C. Carter's one ton redwood Ram was given to the college as a mascot. So began one of the college's oldest traditions. Two months later began the first attempt to find suitable location for the Ram.

December 7, 1941--Pearl Harbor. The college met wartime needs for night and day education and before long roll call found almost one third of the faculty in the service.

Some one cleaning the men's gymnasium in February, 1942, discovered the famous Ram in a dark corner. Classes were larger than ever before, and a Victory Garden program was instituted.

In 1944 the government awarded the college a victory garden certificate, and men on the campus were mighty scarce. A cement letter monument was planned by the students, and rumors said that Navy barracks would go up in front of the college.

1945 actually has gazed down on Wave barracks that are nearing completion. The Executive Council prepares to modernize the Associated Students Constitution, and social events are more numerous than at any time during the war.

What future years will see is unknown, of course, but plans are made every day for a complete junior college and a convenient campus.

A plot plan of the future college shows at least seven buildings, two football fields, a stadium, athletic fields, golf courses and tennis courts. Highlights are an auditorium, a student union building, a library, an outdoor swimming pool, and classroom buildings.

Ten years of college history are in the past and future plans are taking shape, while the wooden Ram sleeps on in his quiet, dusty corner, waiting for a completed campus to house him fittingly.

Music, Drama, And Publications Vital Part In College Life

During the past ten years of the college's colorful history, which figures so significantly in civic affairs, only a few activities have consistently predominated student life on the campus.

Among the now well-established activities are publications, drama, and music.

Adopting the unusual title Emanon, No Name spelled backwards, for issues number one and two, The Guardsman was first published as the Associated Student official organ of news on August 26, 1935.

A seven column, four page weekly, The Guardsman at that time sponsored a contest in which students gave preference for the present name of the paper. Among captions suggested were The Commodore, Pioneer, Seagull and The Gaucho.

In the Spring of 1940, The Guardsman became a twice weekly publication and had a staff of more than 30 journalists. Following the attack on Pearl Harbor, the paper once again returned to a weekly and in the Fall of 1942, it was reduced in size.

Belonging to a journalistic organization called the Associated Collegiate Press that evaluates college and university periodicals throughout the nation, The Guardsman has won six All-American or superior awards, and two First Class.

Another official publication in the college is Forum Magazine, which consists of essays, short stories, verse, plays and illustrations.

A literary magazine, it first appeared on the campus in 1937. Material used is submitted by any student interested in writing. The Forum usually sells for 25 cents and about 250 copies are printed yearly.

Although the drama group, under the direction of Ruth Jensen Somers has been very active since the beginning of the college, it is within the last few years that it has attained its most striking success.

The first production of the actors was the play Boots by Ransome Rideout in the year 1937, at 540 Powell. It was given without scenery costumes or lighting.

Handicapped by the lack of much material, the absence of which would stop most dramatic instructors, Mrs. Somers has proceeded, nevertheless, to build the Little Theater Group into one of the most esteemed traditions of the college.

Throughout the last decade, too, the music department of the college has continually been active through the A Cappella Choirs, and Women's Choruses.

Under the guidance of Flossita Badger, the different vocal groups have toured Northern California, presenting numerous concerts before huge audiences. They established in 1935 the Christmas program tradition, and since the Spring of 1941 maintained the ceremony of the Spring Music Festival. Also in 1941 the first college orchestra was formed conducted by Madison Devlin.

Our Tenth Anniversary

By A. J. CLOUD, PRESIDENT

"How long has this junior college been in existence," asked a Navy Lieutenant of me recently. "Ten years," I said. The reply reminded me that this year marks, indeed, the 10th anniversary of organization of San Francisco Junior College.

The world is a different world today than when the college was begun. Whether we like it or not, we are living in a new era of human history.

It is noteworthy that the colleges have made invaluable gifts to the mighty movements that have brought about the changes; both long-range, in the promotion of scientific study, invention, and research, and immediate, in express relation to training in aid of the war program.

So much for the backward look; now for a forward glance!

The United Nations Conference has focused attention on world problems as they relate to the post-war period, once and when the present sanguinary struggle shall have come to an end. Into that broad area of discussion, I cannot enter at this time—but do feel competent to express a belief that the dominant issues that concern that post-war world may best be met through processes of education. It is, therefore, good news to learn that the Conference has agreed to introduce "educational cooperation" as a principal objective to be attained in the work of one of the major commissions provided in the proposed charter. Again, it is encouraging to note that Congress has adopted a resolution favoring the establishment of an International Office of Education.

With these reflections growing out of our tenth anniversary, I am happy to extend greetings, through courtesy of The Guardsman, to faculty and student-body alike.

Seal Motto Fulfills Self Tenfold In Decade

"That Youth May Be Educated to Life," the worthy motto on the college seal, has been fulfilled tenfold in a decade.

Expansion of training opportunities offered by the college has changed the curriculum from a college giving academic and semi-professional courses of a limited nature, to courses encompassing the growing needs of a war-time nation.

Students may also enroll in courses in commercial art, advertising, general business, home management, hospital training, insurance, laboratory technology, landscape architecture, journalism, machine operating, merchandising, navigation, music, radio engineering and hotel training.

Tradition in tangible form is present in the shape of a one ton carved redwood Ram, the college mascot.

Presented as a gift by famed wood carver, Dudley C. Carter, the Ram was unveiled on November 10, 1941, as a part of dedication ceremonies.

1935 Student Rule Began Long Line Of Worthy Effort

By Robert Ball

Student government at the college began with the formation of a constitutional committee in September, 1935, and since its inception ten years ago, the document has undergone many changes.

Under the guidance of a succession of Executive Councils, gradual changes have been made, dictated by circumstances.

To clarify the original constitution, a new document was drawn, and approved by the Executive Council and student vote in March, 1938. A second revision was suggested in 1940, but was rejected by popular vote.

This semester, a third revision was under consideration by the present Executive Council, whereby the serving terms of Associated Student officers be extended to one year instead of the usual 16 week semester. To date, no definite action has been taken.

Amendments to the constitution can be made in two ways as provided by the constitution itself.

Such provision allows always adaptation and adjustment to meet the best interests of the Associated Students.

In addition to student government, clubs have played a large part in student life. Of the 17 first organized in 1935, 12 have continued in active existence through the decade.

These clubs are the Block SF Society, Engineering Club, Alpha Delta Epsilon, Pi Mu Gamma, Omicron Phi Pi, Chinese Students' Club, Music Club, Women's Service Society, Alpha Theta Epsilon, Hotel and Restaurant Management Division, Beta Phi Beta, and Forum.

The Hotel Society has kept its active existence by means of a monthly bulletin sent to its members scattered all over the world in the various services.

WAA Looks Forward To Future Promising As Early 1935 Days

By June Sheehy

With 10 years of sport and recreation activities now history, the Women's Athletic Association looks forward to a future as promising as its pre-war beginning.

In 1935, under Ruth Johnson, first WAA president, sports groups met in all sections of San Francisco. The Galileo High School gymnasium was used for badminton, fencing, tumbling, dancing and other indoor sports. Tennis was played on the famous Palace of Fine Arts courts, hockey at Funston Field, archery at Fort Mason, Ice skaters met at the 48th Avenue rink, and swimmers in the YWCA pool.

Shortly after the United States declared war, the WAA limited its program, with most athletic groups meeting on the campus and with intercollege play days cancelled for the most part, because of transportation difficulties.

"With the majority of women working in addition to regular college study, the WAA hung on by its teeth, these last few semesters," Bertha Mae Keller, adviser, commented recently.

Several well known athletes practiced and developed under WAA activity. Among them are Helen Davis, ranking California tennis star, Helen Crlenkovich, international diving champion, June Rose Belleau, who won eight WAA awards each representing a sport, and Sue Curtis, prominent swimmer, the sister of record-breaking Ann Curtis.

Next season, the WAA will shoot for increased membership offering any sport demanded by a group. With WAVE barracks almost completed near the campus, the WAA has a source of new competition, and play days with the Navy women are already in the planning stage.

How faithfully the original design was carried out can be seen at once. The flagpole may be in the east court rather than fronting the building and there are trees now softening Phelan Avenue austerity, but the college rose as planned, has grown as few but its leader, President A. J. Cloud predicted.

74 On First Faculty, 142 In '41; 40 Now On Leave

Since 1935 when the college moved to its present site, until now, the number of the faculty has changed considerably influenced by the trend of the times.

The first year there were 74 instructors earnestly striving to educate the collegiates of that day. The peak year was 1941-42, when nearly 3,000 students graced these portals causing a need for 142 instructors. Came the war and another change took place, for among the 116 members now on the faculty, 40 are on leave either for military duty or in war work.

In another ten years, with the expansion of the college and an enrollment of 6,000 students expected, the registrar's office believes that there will be need of 200 faculty members.

In October, 1941, women here elected a male Apollo to take the Soph Queen to the formal.

Sports Rally Turnout

Through ten years the lament has been, "What this college needs is spirit." The above rally picture belies the pessimist's attitude. The college has spirit, has had it for ten years as was shown in a 1941 sports rally.

Ram Athletes Started Slowly, Rose To Conference Championship Heights

By Bill Covall

It was in 1935, ten years ago, that the college fielded its first football team. To be sure the team won no championship, and rang up only two victories in nine starts, but one thing was evident The spirit was there.

Seven Minor Sports Added To Ram Athletic Prowess

In the early part of the past ten years the minor sports of the college did fairly well for themselves. Some of these minor sports were soccer, tennis, track, golf, swimming, crew and rifle.

Of the seven minor sports mentioned above, tennis players prospered the most by winning three and tying for one championship. They won the championship three years running, 1936, '37 and '38.

Soccer men did next best by winning the championship in 1936, and '37. They placed fifth in 1930 and won 3 and lost 3 in 1940.

Basketball enjoyed a better rate in its debut in the spring of 1936, when the first Ram cage team amazed everyone, including its members, by winning the Northern California Junior College Championship, dropping only two games out of the 12 conference games played.

Back to football in the Fall of '36, the Ram team enjoyed a fruitful season chalking up an impressive record of five wins, two losses, and one tie.

Although failing to win the NCJC title as its predecessors did, the 1937 edition of the college basketball team still managed to gain its share of victories, winning eight, losing four

In its third year of existence the late Coach Russ Sweet's gridders hit the jackpot. Winning five games while losing three, they earned the 1937 half of the NCJC title with Sacramento.

1938 found neither basketball nor football titles being won as the cagers won five and lost five. Football season saw the conference shaken, and only four teams competing. The Rams just missed winning the abbreviated title in the Modesto game.

In 1939 it was once again "almost but not quite," as the college cagers just missed winning the championship, posting a record of eight wins with only two defeats. Football won four games while dropping four and tying one.

While 1940 brought to the college one of its poorest cage teams, a team that won five and lost seven, the same year brought to the college another "half" a football championship with San Mateo.

Ram basketballers ended the 1941 season with a record of seven wins and six losses, while the last peacetime Ram grid team won but one game while losing three and tying one.

Rehearsal for the graduating class is scheduled on Friday afternoon, June 22, at 12:30. Students should be at Washington High School, situated at 32nd Avenue and Anza Street, at this time since caps and gowns will also be fitted.

College Recreation Room To Be Complete By Fall

The former college rifle range, located on the basement floor of the building, will be remodeled into a students' recreation room by next fall, it was officially announced last week.

The spacious room, 60 feet long and 27 feet wide, will be completely remodeled so that students will not find it necessary to seek off-campus buildings for their gossiping and card playing.

Block Award Winners

Women And Softball

Twenty-one Women Earn Block Letters For Participation In WAA Semester Events

Presentation of awards was the main attraction of the Women's Athletic Association sports barbeque last Monday. The awards, based on participation, scholarship, and sportsmanship, were bestowed on Eleanore Wohler, Virginia Wells, Alma Pucci, Susan Miles, Nadine Lacey, Phyllis Greenly, Shirley Burnett, Loys Daskarolis, Josephine Bosoni, Janice Beanston, Helen Moustakas and Grace Pisa.

Nine other women qualified for the block SF, but because this is their first semester at the college, they will have to wait until final grades are given to see if they receive a "C" average or better.

They are Ann Ahokas, Leona DeBique, Dora Greenly, Helen Jouthas, Edna Lamas, Gloria Meschi, June Sheehy, Elizabeth Gordon and Marilyn Zito.

The WAA basketball team defeated the 8 o'clock physical education teams last Wednesday morning. Bertha Mae Keller sent four groups against the powerful WAA five. They are popularly known as the Bob Whites managed by Jackie Hogan, Yellow Sinkers led by Betty Doherty, Mothballs, LaVerne Harbeson, and the Six Fouls captained by Shirley Hergot.

WAA council meetings, held weekly, produced a tentative schedule of events for next semester. With physical education returning to a two day ½ unit course, WAA is planning a general expansion. Fencing, swimming, and riding will probably return as regular WAA sports. A women's sports assembly will be held the week of registration to outline coming activities.

The council also voted to have sports change with the seasons. For instance, hockey will receive emphasis during next October and November, basketball and volleyball during December, January and February; softball in March and April; tennis, badminton, and ping pong during May.

Traditional AMS Boxing Show Out This Semester

The traditional Associated Men Student-intramural boxing show, usually held at the end of each semester, was definitely cancelled last week with an announcement by Coach Jack Brady, intraplay director. Brady stated that the main reason for the cancellation was the lack of time.

Brady also promised that the medals for basketball and tennis will be presented to the winners as soon as they arrive. The medals are expected within the next week or so.

In October, 1937, The Guardsman was published in the ruins of the old city jail, when the staff decided to "occupy" the campus for a day.

Spring Football Practice Ends; Outlook Bright

Spring football practice ended last Friday with very favorable indications as to what kind of team the Rams will field when fall practice starts with the second summer session on August 13.

The team shaped up as follows:

Besides these Pete Milat, Buff Luskatoff, Joe Kane, and Bob Seiler may be back in the fall, and some graduates from high school may see action including Loyd Peterson of Poly, Ritchie Stanfield and Bones Ferrante of Commerce, plus others.

This fall's aggregation will field a high spirited team that should hit the win column continuously. The line as is, is large and carries plenty of power, besides a good weight advantage plus experience. In the back field is plenty of speed. Although the backs aren't heavy, they possess speed and are fairly tricky, and this should off set any weight disadvantage they may have.

As stated in last week's edition of The Guardsman one game is definite and another is not yet set definitely:

September 28 State ..... Here
October 5 Modesto ..... Here
October 12 Sacramento. Sacramento
October 19 Menlo ..... Here
October 26 Modesto ..... Modesto
November 2 Sacramento ..... Here

Intramural Sports Return With Tennis As An Opener

Intramural activity was back last week in full swing on the college campus with the tennis championships running into the third round of play. Twelve entrants are competing for the singles title, while four doubles teams are battling it out for the tandem crown.

Five additional entries brought to 12 the number of men competing for the intramural medals. Last minute signups included Frank Jorkis, Joseph DeGanorris, Stephen Fosnick, Ray Berkman, and Alvero Bustamente.

In the doubles tourney the team of Ed Cantwell-Bill Covall was scheduled to meet Frank Fields-Bob Chinn, while the combo of Ray York-Manuel Castro was set to play Bergman and Bustamente.

Ping pong was still in the probable stage and Coach Jack Brady, intramural director, stated that if ping pong was to be played off it would be during the last week of the semester.

College Gardeners Go Back-To-Land

Planning for the annual Back-to-the-Land-Day, Saturday, June 16, in the Laguna Honda Section, the Victory Garden Advisory Council, under the Chairmanship of President Archibald J. Cloud, prepared last week to answer the prayers and questions of all green thumb enthusiasts in San Francisco.

Demonstrations of garden simplification will start at noon, under the direction of Dr. Charles Ricks and Dr. Phil Minges of the Agricultural Extension Service, University of California.

Through the medium of radio and Norville Gillespie's program aired over KPO at 3 p. m., the "man with the hoe" will be immortalized, according to John A. Bucato, Back to the Land Chairman. President Cloud and other dignitaries are scheduled to speak during the Open House Day.

Clinics will be maintained by some of the college's instructors to help gardeners solve their soil and planting problems.

Visitors are invited to attend the programs and inspect these gardens which have produced more than $100,000 worth of vegetables, supplying enough food for 1,200 people.

Picnic-minded spectators are advised that there is a space provided for lunching.

Art Show Ends Saturday At Paul Elder Gallery

Alpha Delta Epsilon's 10th annual art exhibit, seen for the past week and a half at the Paul Elder Gallery, 239 Post Street, will close this Saturday.

Among the score of watercolors submitted therefor, none were rejected by Paul Elder's, Richard Allman, art instructor, said. No phenomenal work is displayed this semester, but all show good craftsmanship, and may even be termed "one of the best showing" sponsored by the art society, he said.

Half a dozen art students are now working on the student lounge mural under the supervision of Frederick Mayer, its designer, Allman said.

Faculty To Honor Pres. Cloud Monday

The Annual Faculty Association luncheon, in honor of President A. J. Cloud, will be held on Monday, June 18, in the cafeteria annex, at 12:30 o'clock. It will serve to commemorate the tenth anniversary of the college.

Commander Grant Marsh, U. S. Navy, instructor at the college on military leave, will be the guest speaker.

Barbara Kresteller and Alice Weiss, students at the college, will sing. Miss Kresteller will sing A Heart That's Free. Miss Weiss will sing My Johann, by Grieg. They will also sing a duet, Where My Caravan—Has Rested, by Lohr. Lorraine Gay will accompany them.

Women's Chorus Members Receive Pins At Dinner

Fifteen members of the Women's Chorus were awarded with pins at the semi-annual dinner last Wednesday, held at Lucca's Restaurant.

They include Evie Busby, Barbara Kresteller, LaMarr Lewis, Bethia Wilcox, Helen Fudem, Winifred Kenny, Shirley Kolstad, Eda Vedovi Doraline Bristo, Carolyn Dean, Marie Galliett, Betty Gregg, June Hasman, Martha Lee, Olga Moore.

WSS Book Exchange Opens Tomorrow Through June 22

Operated by the Women's Service Society, the college book exchange will open tomorrow and remain so through June 22 from 11 to 12:30 a. m. and 3 to 4 p. m.

Students may either exchange books, or leave their old books to be sold. Being a non-profit organization the exchange conducts finances through the college bank.

Students Must Clear All Lockers June 20

Announcing that all campus lockers must be cleared by the afternoon of Wednesday, June 20, Edward H. Redford, director of counselling, also stated that all articles left after that date will be confiscated. Some lockers will be available during the summer.

Radio Roundtable

Final production of the radio class was last Saturday on KQW, a round table discussion on the hope for peace.
Narrator for the program was Arthur Fisher, and the group was directed by Marie Weller, instructor.

Poll Of Opinion: Sophomore Ambitions

By L. J. Smith

Statistics from the graduating class show that professions of medicine, engineering, and teaching head the ambition list.

It was found that the sick will be well cared for, the war torn cities will be rebuilt, the law will be enforced, and merchandising will take on great importance.

Of the 40 sophomores interviewed, there were eight prospective doctors, four lawyers, four engineers, four teachers, three entering the field of merchandising, three art students, three social workers, three who plan to be just good citizens, two business minded hopefuls, two economic experts, one bacteriologist and one future music celebrity.

Twenty-six of the forty will be able to meet and greet on the great University of California campus in Berkeley, five San Francisco Junior College wizards will take Stanford University in Palo Alto in their stride, three plan to wander around State College in San Francisco, two of the lawyers may make themselves known at Hastings Law School in San Francisco, and one lone wolf will confine himself to St. Mary's College.

Forum Magazine Sells Out 500 Copies In Two Days

Forum Magazine was a complete sellout on its second day of sale, according to Gertrude Land, editor.

For the first time in the history of the magazine, 500 copies were printed, went on sale last Wednesday for 25 cents a copy, were gone by noon Thursday.

Commenting on the magazine Mrs. Land said, "Forum has endeavored to maintain the highest type of literature possible from the contributions of the students."

Poetry, short stories, essays, and art are all included in the magazine.

Red Cross Canteen Needs Many Volunteer Workers

According to Edith M. Murphy, director of Home Economics in the San Francisco School District, there is a great need for eight or nine women to act as volunteers in the Red Cross Canteen daily from 8:30 a. m. to 1:30 or 2 p. m.

The women are needed to assist in the serving of lunches to the workers in the sandwich room who prepare sandwiches for the basket.

Those interested in doing this patriotic service should report to Mrs. Bacigalupi in the Red Cross building at Gough and Grove Streets in San Francisco.

Executive Council Minutes

The 17th meeting of the Ex-Council was called to order at 8:45 A.M., June 7, 1945, in room 111, by President of the Associated Students, Robert Mills.

Those present were: Mills, Crenshaw, Lee, Pudlowski, Thompson, Wilcox, Buckingham.

Those absent were: Chambers, Beanston and Shea.

The minutes of the previous meeting, held in May 31, 1945, were read and declared approved.

President Mills reported that during today's rally, council members will receive their service keys.

Miss Crenshaw reminded each council member to make a written report of his duties for incoming officers.

Mr. Thompson moved that $500 be transferred from the general reserve fund to the summer football. The motion was seconded and carried.

Miss Wilcox moved that $150 be transferred from the general reserve fund to the memorial fund under the jurisdiction of Dr Cloud. This sum will be made available for the cement letters if we can get a contractor during the summer. The motion was seconded and carried.

Mr Moss has been helping the Associated Students with the P.A. system during rallies and dances. For his services, Mr. Buckingham moved that $15 be transferred from the rally fund to pay Mr. Moss. The motion was seconded and carried.

Mr. Sandy's suggested the possibility of having roller skating as part of P. E. next semester. Over at Treasure Island, the Navy has some used roller skates which we can buy as part of the gym equipment. Unfinished discussion followed.

The next meeting will be held on Tuesday, June 12, 1945, at 8:30 A.M.

The meeting adjourned at 9:05 A.M.

Respectfully submitted,
Betty E. Lee, Sec't.

Elections

Mills Wins ASSFJC Presidency Second Time; Doris Pederson Vice-President, Carol Hayland Takes AWS Leadership

Results of Associated Student elections, held at the end of last spring semester, placed Bob Mills for the second time in the office of President.

Mills was first elected to office in February and his second term mark the first time an Associated student officer has held office for two semesters. He defeated Lottie Jeane Smith after a campaign more intense than any previously recorded in college history.

Because tabulations of election results have disappeared, probably in the confusion resulting from moving the Associated Student office from Room 111 to Room 169, The Guardsman cannot meet press responsibility to publish either the total number of votes cast or individual election figures.

Dean Edward E. Sandy and Mill however announced that Doris Pederson defeated Winifred Kenny for the office of Associated Student Vice-president. Linda Nancy Cunningham captured the Secretary-Treasurer post from Nancy Schultz.

Associated Women Student officers Carol Hayland as President and Doris Dugan and Betty Bure won the AWS Vice-presidency over Jean Carraco.

Clair Levesque was an unopposed candidate for AWS secretary and automatically went into office.

Also unopposed in the election Ernest Poggi and Dean Haug became President and Vice-president respectively of the Associated Men Students. Speculation over Chief Constableacy for the office of Secretary is expected that the two offices will other appointive offices be filled another election.

John Tooley was also unopposed the office of Boys Commissioner. John D. Dolan unopposed Yell Leader candidate. Both left college military service will appointed Rally Commissioner at the meeting of the Executive Board.

Until further notice, the Executive Board will meet in room 169 on Tuesday, 1:00 p.m. All students are invited to attend these meetings.

Election Of Class Officers October 16, 17

Meeting for the introduction of candidate for all offices will be held for next Monday, October and Tuesday, October 16 conducted by Bob Mills president of the Associated Student.

The two hours set aside for Monday at 12:15 at the flagpole, the Sophomore on Tuesday at 12:15 at the Student Lounge. Mills will introduce the candidate. Classes will not be dismissed.

Offices open are President, Vice President and Secretary of the high freshmen, low freshmen, high sophomore, and low sophomore classes.

In the event that there is no candidate for an office leader will be chosen by open nomination at student meetings.

By mimeographed ballot, voting is slated to take place in the cafeteria on Friday, October 19 between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. In order to vote all student will be asked to present their Associated Student card.

President of the classes automatically become members of the Social Committee under the chairmanship of Doris Pederson, Associated Student vice president. In that capacity they plan the four dances scheduled each semester to honor the several classes.

Clubs

Classes Dismissed Tomorrow At 10 For First Meetings Of Semester; Rooms Assigned And Big Turnout Expected

In an attempt to strengthen club organization throughout the college, all classes will be dismissed tomorrow at 10 o'clock to allow clubs to meet in rooms assigned and listed below.

This arrangement was announced last week by Dean Edward E. Sandys, and is the first in a series of hours to be set aside for similar meetings.

Unlike last semester, when the plan was to schedule no classes at 1 o'clock on Thursday, this semester's plan provides for different hours on different days when classes will be dismissed and club meetings held.

Urging present club members and interested potential members to attend the meetings of their choice, Dean Sandys pointed out that club activity in the college should be one of the strongest phases of student government.

Although 29 clubs are officially chartered by the Club Advisory Board, on the list of room assignments six clubs are not included. A new organization, called Golden Cleat and composed of members of the football squad, is included although not yet officially chartered.

The six unassigned clubs are Block SF, Engineering, Forum, Hotel and Restaurant Management, Newman, and Pi Mu Nu.

Room assignments for tomorrow's meetings are as follows:

Alpha Delta Epsilon, Room 160; Alpha Gamma Sigma, 205; Alpha Lambda Chi, 211; Beta Phi Beta, 111; Beta Tau, 113; Bible Study Club, 312; Chinese Students' Club, 136; Tri-Epsilon, 140; Alpha Theta Epsilon, 158; Kappa Phi, 142; Music Club, 200; Phi Beta Rho, 190; Theta Tau, 191; Women Service Society, 193; Women's Athletic Association, 100; Cosmopolitan Club, 194; Veterans' Club, 204; Pi Mu Gamma, 211; Pick and Hammer Club, 10; and Golden Cleat, student lounge.

A complete list of chartered clubs [illegible] appear on page [illegible] of the issue of the Club [illegible]

Ex-Council

Club Board Meeting Called Tomorrow

Main action of the first Executive Council meeting of this semester, last Thursday, set the Club Advisory Board meeting for tomorrow at 10 a. m. in Room 136. The CAB is composed of one representative from each of the 25 college organizations.

Petitions for class officers must be filed in Dean Edward E. Sandys' office by this Friday, October 12, and class elections will be held Friday, October 19. The Freshmen class will meet next Monday, October 15, and the Sophomore class, Tuesday, October 16. All meetings are at 12 noon.

A charter was submitted by The Order of the Golden Cleats, which is composed of members of the football team.

Dean Haug was unanimously appointed Rally Commissioner.

Budget forms were presented to all college organizations. $8,000 was alloted to the undistributed fund for expenses of the semester with the provision that all spendings must be approved by the Ex-Council. $1,200 was blanketed to the football fund with provisions for an itemized account of all expenditures before Monday, October 15.

Future meetings will be given a definite schedule at a later date.

Hi Diddle, Diddle! Who Plays A Fiddle?

By Pat French

Hi, Diddle, Diddle! Who plays a fiddle?

Well, maybe that's not the way the nursery rhyme goes, but there's a shortage in the string department of the college orchestra and something has to be done about it, but quick!

Madison Devlin, that master of music instruction here, has sent out a general alarm for students who can take over the violas, cellos, and string basses furnished by the college.

Twenty-six members have joined the orchestra, but only two are violin-minded.

Devlin and his welcome committee are on hand in Rooms 263 and 36, for anyone who's interested.

Veterans Enrolled Number 350, Include Six Women

Resumption of college courses interrupted by the war is the aim of the 350 veterans enrolled so far in the college this semester.

"Though a few are merely making up high school credits, many of the ex-G I's seem to have more interest in attending college than they ordinarily would have before the war, and some plan on entering a university on completion of their college courses," Claude Silva, veteran administrator, said last week.

Besides the Army, Navy and Marine veterans, there are 25 members of the Merchant Marine and 6 women veterans enrolled. However, more women are expected by next semester when they will have been discharged from service.

Salutatory

Prospect For College Year Bright

By PRESIDENT A. J. CLOUD

[illegible] the college has always had a vigorous democratic tradition. Its students at all times have had wide and varied opportunity to join on the pursuit of that common school life through which a generous fellow-feeling is cultivated among them, and tolerance and fair dealing developed. These outcomes form one of the prime purposes of public education.

The member on the [illegible] notable not only for [illegible] but also for the encouragement they have ever given to the [illegible] growth of wholesome student [illegible] interests. Those matriculating [illegible] may well be said, are more than ordinarily competent to give counsel and advice and are exceptionally willing, and even eager, to share their knowledge and experience, with students. To gain their confidence

[illegible] should be one of the [illegible] of the individual student.

In addition to [illegible] provided [illegible] by public [illegible] the college [illegible] general college and semi-professional or terminal offering. The demand of industry today definitely calls for trained, skilled employees and [illegible] the needs of commercial, financial and personal service occupations admit of no other [illegible] than the employment of men and women who have had the advantage of liberal and adequate preparation. The College, as a community institution, aims to translate the needs and demands of industry and commerce into practical training-programs set on a broad and firm foundation. Student [illegible] whether new or old, should [illegible] college and terminate [illegible] wisdom carefully, and in spite of the obvious [illegible] subject to them.

The college a year ago established [illegible] through which returning veterans should be given fairest [illegible] and helpful consideration of their individual problems as well as aid in meeting them. Plans then formulated have been made effective through the agency of a group of instructors well-qualified to furnish information of value to the veterans on their resumption of civilian activities.

The general prospect for the college in the year ahead is bright. May the highest hopes of every student be realized as he responds to the privileges and opportunities afforded him at the college.

College Spirit

Rah-Rah Type Out

THE Fall semester which inaugurates the college year, brings with it ever-increasing numbers of freshmen, many of whom come with preconceived ideas regarding college life.

Now, more than ever before, those who think of this college as an institute of anything but learning, are in for an unpleasant awakening.

The "rah-rah" spirit, characteristic of colleges before the war, was dispensed with for the duration, and students assumed a new, and hitherto sadly-lacking maturity. It is doubtful whether the concensus will be that so essential a part of American college life has been "shelved," as to stimulate a conscious effort to resuscitate the flippant attitude and studied adolescence which constituted that spirit. Nevertheless, its passing has been noisily bewailed by many whose only purpose in going to college was to "enjoy," if not add to it.

It is unforunate that college "spirit" has been mistakenly identified with the "rah-rah" spirit, and that the overdue passing of the latter, is mourned as the death of the former. The fact that such a spirit was so readily "packed in moth balls" indicates that it is not essential to the well-functioning of a college, and that it is a throwback to high school.

Genuine college spirit is not easy to define, yet its presence or absence is instantly recognized. It is not the product of an individual, nor of a group, but by its very nature it is the expression of the whole student body.

Newcomers should early realize that within a short time, they can add to, or detract from this spirit, especially at this college where each enrollment constitutes approximately half the total number of students. Therefore, they should not demand that the spirit be handed to them on the proverbial silver platter, but should set about adding vitality to it.

Since true college spirit emanates from the students as a whole, students of two semesters or more, are reminded that they too have their responsibility in maintaining true college spirit.

Peace Adds To Obligations

IN KEEPING with the war-initiated accelerated college program, freshmen will discover —if not immediately, then to their eventual sorrow—that there is little time for anything but arduous work. The sooner they find that out for themselves, the greater will be the corresponding advantage.

High standards are uniformly demanded by instructors, and the joys of cutting, or distraction while in class, should be exceedingly sweet to compensate for the late vigils around midterms.

The end of war, and victory have not lessened the obligations of students first to themselves, to their countries, and to the world as adults. In seeking to equip themselves mentally and educationally with the best available that they may later fill their most useful positions in a more responsible society, a greater measure of individual incentive is added to the collective ideal.

Off The Record . . .

WITHIN these four walls we confine ourselves to what we see or hear, and, unless we fall dead on the job, spot lights will shine on each and every dark corner. Friend or foe, 'til the end of time.

Once again the old SFJC welcome rag is blowing in the breeze, and students are prostrate upon their prayer rugs.

Old and new, alike, are often faintly amused by the methods instructors choose to greet their classes for the first time.

Kenneth "Anthropology" Hobbs gazes around the packed room and quite pointedly tells his students they are not as important as they believe. 'Course he goes on to show that in relation to the universe an individual isn't even as large as a pin point.

HOW RATS THINK

When told that the majority of her 1 p. m. psychology 21A class had gone without lunch, Phyllis Haley surprised everyone with: "It's a proven fact that rats think better on an empty stomach." Bravo.

Robert Utter merely moistens his lips and begins.

Tom Potter gets right to the point and tells all concerned that talking "gets his dander up."

Our gentleman of the subtle humor, David Goldshur, pulls no punches when he reminds young philosophy students that he is conducting a college course and is only interested in those who "can" think. After one of his introductory lectures, it does not seem strange that all with an IQ below 240 turn pale, fold their tents and silently steal away.

Dora Garibaldi smiles knowingly and goes at it with six shooter blazing and Spanish dripping.

There are no definite reports as to what Norma Addlestone says or does. As far as we know her classes spend the first 30 minutes trying to decide whether she be student or instructor. She looks soooo young.

Claude "Boyer" Silva keeps the young ladies on the edge of their seats with his soothing voice and makes history a pleasure.

PRE-STUDENT TITLE

As a well established "soi-distant," may we say that before one is entitled to be addressed as "student" there are a few things he should know.

The college is officially ten years old; unofficially, 91 years in existence. This scrumptious building was dedicated in November 1940, and there are three floors, a basement and a penthouse. The hill from which the college rises is referred to as Pneumonia Hill, while the walk to the East could best be known as "Puff Path." Student government offices are in Room 169, and The Guardsman staff is chained in the hole behind door 134.

'Tis truly a great place.

Letters To The Editor

RAM'S HORN

THIS first full issue of The Guardsman finds a Ram's Horn column devoted to clarification of its purpose.

As is indicated above, the column is for letters to the editor. Such letters must be typewritten, must bear the writer's name, although if he wishes his name will not be published, must be comparatively short, and must be delivered to The Guardsman office in Room 134. The editor has outire jurisdiction over non-publication of any letter which might harm the good name of any individual.

In the past there has often been confusion concerning the type of correspondence desired. Too often the idea held by the student writers is that letters must agree with the editor. No doubt such deduction was made because Ram's Horn letters are identified as "letters to the editor."

The real opportunity offered by the Ram's Horn is for discussion (brief but significant), request for information that is not necessarily of a news category, suggestions (sensible) for the welfare of the college, and any constructive criticism concerning the college, its student organizations, its official publication, which is The Guardsman.

There are a few things that are not in any way desirable from the editorial staff's point of view. One is the letter that is simply an outlet for a personal grievance, or a weapon whereby a disgruntled individual tries to hoid up his pet hate to scorn.

There is another type of letter that throws the editorial staff into a perfect tizzy. It is the letter which justifies the occasional stinging comment that a junior college is merely a glorified high school. It's author is still fond of leaning over the back fence. It promotes the caustic statement that college students are in college only, well, to dance at noon in the college cafeteria. In short, it requests a gossip column.

Shots At RAMdom

HEARING a rumor to the effect that a few freshmen were in the throes of entering the portals of our beloved college, two mysterious characters donned gaily colored hunting caps last week in search of a specimen of the "green frosh" variety. Armed with doubled barreled corn cobs, spy glass in hand, they stealthily crept to and flo, picket style, in front of the silver pole.

Our two detectives, weary of the search, were about to prepare to spend a pleasant hour trampling the geraniums on Hello Walk. At that crucial moment a man from the Better Business Bureau stepped from the shadows shouting, "Get your guide book here, can't tell the advisers from the students without a guide book."

Turning to page 53, our two friends read with Gusto the fourth paragraph stating, ALL ENTERING STUDENTS MUST HAVE A PHYSICAL EXAMINATION. Gusto excused himself, and our two private eyes, ever on the trail, followed the ever-flowing stream of freshmen on the first lap of their journey.

The original notes obtained under trying conditions, are printed below in their entirety, with apologies to Danny Kaye.

Report for physical at the gym. 1,2,3, and off we go!
Measles? Mumps? Flatfeet? No-o-o!

★ ★ ★

Back again, and up the hill. Room 100 (what a thrill!)
Entrance Ex and I Q Test. Near collapse, not time for rest.
Registration, sign your name. File it in the hall of fame.

★ ★ ★

Ink all over (darn that pen). Answer questions, all again.
1,2,3, another line! Registration book! That's fine.
Picture taken, NO! NO! NO! Shutter snaps, and off we go.
On to next floor! 1,2,3! Then you're in the libraree.

★ ★ ★

Find a table, get a seat. Wrong adviser, make with feet.
Other table, wait some more. New adviser! (What a bore.)
Units fit, but subjects don't. "Take this major!" "No I won't."
Book is signed, then out to hall. Sign in classes (can't take all).
Back to libraree. Fix the program! 1,2,3!

Re-take on this? (I'd rather die.) If this is college, give me "HI"!

While Thinking . . .

NOW that a final and complete surrender has been evolved, millions of service men will be returning to civilian life. Many of these veterans will want to return to school, because in the service they have learned the value of education.

San Francisco Junior College, as well as all other colleges in the United States, is beginning to feel the influx of these returning veterans.

Many of them will be two or three years older than the average student. They will have a maturer outlook on life and its environs. They will know what they want and they will work for what they want.

It is only normal that they will have a maturer outlook. They have seen and done things that the average student has never experienced. The reaction that has taken place is a natural one.

At first they will feel and act much older than the students they will mingle with on the campus, but as time goes on they will become acclimatized.

The maturity is an excellent thing. They will be better students because they will realize the opportunity offered them. They have come to know the advantages of a comprehensive education. They have come to realize that a trained man is infinitely more capable than an untrained man.

Not only will these veterans gain from coming back to college, but the college will also gain. Whatever they do they will do wholeheartedly and capably. Instructors undoubtedly welcome veterans into their classes because they know that they will work diligently. They know that the veteran will get everything out of the course that he possibly can. He will be interested in the course because he wants to receive something tangible from the course. These veterans have gained a knowledge through a hard school. This is good because they know just what is expected of them from the world. They will be better citizens by virtue of what they have experienced, and the United States can consider itself fortunate in having such proud citizens.

The Guardsman Sports

Vol. XX, No. 1 WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 10, 1945 Page 3

RAMblings . .

By Don Lacey.

Sports from now on are going to be spelled with a capital "S" at the College. Equipped with a large number of returning veterans and a host of new talent, the physical ed department is preparing for a banner year in its history.

As yet the football situation is a little unpredictable, and even the game with Modesto cannot be counted on too heavily as a prediction of what the rest of the season will hold. With only a week to work with the fall entollees, it is a difficult task to organize the new members sufficiently.

But Coach Lee Eisan may have an ace up his sleeve. The crucial encounter will probably be the battle with Sacramento Friday night, about whom little is known.

Unfortunately for your reporter, it was impossible to contact Coach Eisan for a personal interview on the outlook for tennis and boxing in the coming semester. From a layman's outlook the former activity should see a tremendous boost in the appearance of Don Lowenbein.

To those who are not familiar with that name we introduce you to the Pacific Coast Junior Tennis Champion. He ranks twelfth in the U. S. among the racquetteers.

Among the singles titles that he holds are the following: California State, Bay counties, Northern California, San Francisco city and prep (representing George Washington, his high school) and also capturing the San Joaquin men's doubles, besides the individual title. Ram supporters can be sure that he will make a good name for himself in this field, and as soon as the racquetteers get in stride, we will be able to make a better report on their prospects.

* * *

Ring activities should be due for a tremendous uplift with the large number of returning veterans on the campus. If enough of these healthy specimens go for fisticuffs it will be a pretty simple matter for the sports department to organize a group of pugilists who will be tough, rugged, and ready for all competition.

There is little doubt that intramural class sports will not meet with a huge degree of enthusiasm as soon as the programs are planned. More will be said about basketball in the next issue, when the intramural mentors call for practice.

Men's Gym Lockers Ready Today And Tomorrow

Because of the unusually heavy enrollment this semester, men's gym lockers will not be distributed until today or tomorrow, according to Jack Brady, of the physical education department in charge of locker distribution.

More reason why locker distribution is delayed is that every man who takes physical education must pass an examination before he is enrolled in any class. With the large signup this semester the gym is crowded every period with men who are waiting in line for their examinations. There are not enough doctors to take care of the large number of men in the limited time.

Ram Tennis Stars Compete In San Diego Boot Camp

Three former Ram tennis players now in the Navy at San Diego undergoing boot training are Bill Covall, Frank Reed, and Don Cowderoy. In a recent sectional tennis match Covall and Reed teamed up in doubles to win the section championship and took second in the base championship matches.

Both Covall and Cowderoy were on the Guardsman staff with Covall as the Sports Editor last semester. Covall was also head of the S. F. Junior Davis Cup Team.

Illinois has furnished 53 of the University of New Mexico's civilian students during the present academic year and 28 of its Navy students, for a total of 81, says a survey issued by the University News Service.

Ram Pigskin Turnout . . . 1945 Edition

Forty-two men appeared for the first turnout picture of the 1945 edition of the Ram football squad. At the far right is Coach Lee Eisan, while in the left back is Manager Bill Thompson, standing beside Associated Student President Bob Mills, wearing the "22." Other managers assisting Thompson, veteran at his job, are Carlos Parris, Al Swadeley, and Vic Pudlowski. Next game on the Ram schedule is this Friday night against Sacramento at Sacramento.

WAA

First Meeting Set Tomorrow Room 100

Members of the Women's Athletic Association, and any women interested in joining the group, are invited to attend the first fall meeting tomorrow morning at 11:15 in Room 100, Janice Beanston, president, announced today.

Purpose of this meeting is to acquaint new students with the WAA, outline the coming events of the new semester, present block SF awards to several of last Spring's freshmen, and start a general signup for sports, Miss Beanston said.

The tentative schedule of the different sports has been posted in the women's gymnasium for the past week and is as follows: Monday, volleyball; Tuesday, badminton; Wednesday, hockey; Thursday, archery, and Friday takes in horseback riding, dancing, swimming, ice skating, and bowling. All activities meet between the hours of 3:00 and 4:00 p. m., Bertha Mae Keller, adviser, reminded.

Since physical education classes are meeting for the first time today, it will be about a week before the WAA begins to function, Miss Keller said. In the meantime, the second WAA meeting will take place Wednesday, October 17, to nominate and elect the fall officers, present a final schedule of the day and hour for each sport, and present any additional information, she added.

Qualifications for WAA awards are attendance at three-fourths of the weekly sport meetings, a "C" average for all grades, and satisfactory sportsmanship.

All in all, the coming semester appears to be an active one, Miss Beanston reported. Play days and coeducational tournaments are in the planning stage, and it is expected that the Wave barracks near the campus will be an active source of competition for the college women, as well as the city high schools and San Francisco State College, she said.

Intramural

Basketball Play Underway Oct. 17

Intramural sports under the supervision of Coach Jack Brady will get under way on or about Wednesday, October 17. Basketball is the first sport to be played this semester, and Brady expects a big turnout, because of the large enrollment.

The entry blank is printed on page 4 of this edition of The Guardsman. Any five or more men, representing a club, fraternity, or just themselves, are eligible to fill out the blank and turn it in to Brady in the men's gym. The name of the team must be written on the entry blank for identification purposes, he said, and students who have earned their basketball blocks here at the college are not eligible to play for any team. Blanks are due in Brady's office October 17.

If there are sufficient teams, they will be divided into different leagues and the winners in each league, chosen by percentage, will receive gold medals. The team that places second will get medals made of silver. If less than ten teams sign up, the champions will be chosen by their wins.

A round-robin schedule will be followed if there are two leagues. There will be six games played daily. All three basketball courts will be used at 2:15 and 3:15 after classes. Each team is going to play about two games a week.

Brady encourages students to sign up even if they have laboratory periods in the afternoon. He will try and maneuver the schedules so that no one will have to miss a necessary class.

Intramural sports started here in 1935 and the turout has always been good except for these previous years when the enrollment was low. At one time, according to Brady, there were as many as 20 teams out for one sport. Brady sized up the success of intramural sports by saying, "The more, the better; the bigger the turnout, the better the league."

Library Open 8 To 4:30, Evenings 6:45 To 8

Library hours this semester will be from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. and for the first time in the evening from 6:45 to 8, Marcus Skarstedt, librarian, reported last week.

As in public libraries, students have access to the stacks and books may be taken out for a period of two weeks, and renewed if necessary.

Reference books are kept behind the loan desk and may be borrowed for two hours in the reading room or overnight. All reference books may be reserved ahead of time at the loan desk.

Football

Strong Line Expected To Decide Ram Chances Against Panthers Friday Night

With three games under their belts by way of experience, and strong life, the Ram eleven goes against the Sacramento Panthers this Friday night at Sacramento. Kick-off time is slated for 7:30 o'clock.

Ram Loss to Modesto Makes Three in Row

On a windswept Balboa Field the Modesto eleven handed the dejected Ram eleven a 24 to 0 thumping last Friday to make it three losses in a row.

The Modesto squad started things rolling in the secind quarter when Charles Hickok caught a pass for a T.D. The second half saw another pass caught by Hickok for a t. d. and a 15 yard run by Parke York for another. A blocked kick, kicked around for approximately 20 yards, was finally picked up by G. Gervase in the fourth for the 24th point for Modesto.

The Ram eleven received a break in the early part of the game when Don Grant blocked a kick, but somehow the Rams did not have the offensive punch to score. The Rams received several breaks but could not capitalize on them. Grant, Ted Weber, Bob Toquinto, and Vincente Miranti played good ball for the Rams.

In encounters preceding the Modesto game as well as the opening of the regular college year, the Rams displayed little experience and took a 25 to 6 trouncing from the sailors of the Albany Naval Base.

During the first quarter of that game, the local eleven was unable to develop any offensive power against the strong sailor forward wall, who took a score from the ten yard line. The sailors scored again in the second after a long drive from their own 45 yard line.

Although the college did score in the fourth, a fumble led directly to a third sailor score on a pass from the Navy 45. The conversion didn't. The Navy touchdowned again, also in the fourth.

In the second game, against the University of California Ramblers, the Rams suffered a 6 to 0 setback.

The Rams kicked off to the Ramblers, who fumbled on their first play allowing a Ram recovery on the Rambler 40. Quarterback Staten Webster circled right end for 20 yards. Right half Ted Weber fumbled on an attempted smash over right tackle.

The Rambler break came when end Henry Boone's kick was blocked on the Ram ten yard line. In six plays after nine weeks of hard work the first squad, in high spirits and determined to bring home Panther fur, shapes up pretty much as follows:

Line positions begin with Don Keck at left end, Don Grant at left guard, Don Jensen at the center spot, while Ritchie Stanfel starts at right guard, Ray Muller at tackle on the right side balancing Bob Mills, and Earl Lawrence holding right end. The backfield is expected to be quartered by Staten Webster, with Ted Weber and Vincente Miranti at the halfs, John Lane at full.

To back these men, and also cause them to fight to hold their starting positions, are reserves headed by Henry Boone, Art Orebassa, Frank Skoglund, Leonard Lane, and Victor Hancock, all candidates for end positions.

Raring to go in as tackle are John McLaughlin, Bob Parnow, Robert Hazeleaf, Dick Norwall, while pushing for guard positions are Tiny Ghiorzi, John Mappelli, Joe Atchins, Kevin Healy, and Frank Jimenez.

Center positions are less disputed, with George Fahian and Richard Brown standout reserves, and only one reserve full looms as a potential threat, John Beauchamp.

Managers of the Ram squad of the 1945 version are led by Bill Thompson and include Carlos Parris, Al Swadeley, and Vic Pudlowski.

Resumption of conference play after wartime lapse finds competition unusually keen for the coveted championship crown. Leading the league in play against the Rams are Modesto, Salinas, and Sacramento Junior Colleges, with most of the games arranged on a home and home basis.

Thus far the schedule provides for the following games:

Oct. 12—Sacramento ..... there, night
Oct. 19—State ..... there, day
Oct. 26—Modesto ..... there, night
Nov. 2—Sacramento ..... there, night
Nov. 9—Salinas ..... there, night

the Ramblers scored. In addition the college also lost Joe Kane and Vic Pudlowski for the season because of injuries.

Hotel Division

Local Industries Need Restaurant Trained Veterans

Repeated requests for veterans trained in hotel and restaurant work have been received by the Hotel Division of the college, according to Hilda Watson, division chairman. These urgent pleas have come from local industries in need of trained personnel:

These local hotel and restaurant executives come to the college regularly to give instruction in their special branches and to advise interested students in work leading to ultimate positions as junior executives in the industry.

"To the end that veterans may be trained rapidly to fill employment needs," Mrs. Watson pointed out, "individual training is being offered at this time in various phases of the course."

The college offers the only technical training program of this nature on junior college level in the country. Enrolled at present are veterans who first heard of the course while serving overseas and who sent in applications from distant points in the south Pacific. The most recent inquiries are now being received from veterans on the east coast and in Canada.

At present the division also continues the training of cooks and bakers for the U. S. Maritime Service. These men, upon completion of an intensive course, are immediately employed in the country's merchant ships.

Cafe Asks Student Help, Offers Lunch Or Pay

Students who would like to work one-half hour daily in exchange for their lunch should apply to Larry Wong, instructor, in the cafeteria.

Other jobs for longer periods are also open. These pay according to hourly wage, the Cafeteria management announced last week.

The Dean Presents The Gavel

Introducing Robert McPhearson Mills, the only Associated Student President to be elected to office twice.

Bob, as he is better known, stands head and shoulders above the general mob in many more important ways than height. His first term as president proved his ability to organize and brought varied improvements to the Associated Students of San Francisco Junior College.

All gratitude may be delivered to Mr. Mills for the new student lounge and the revised constitution, which will appear soon. Rallies have developed into events of spirit and all organizations fall in step when Bob takes over.

In spite of his many duties, Bob has managed to maintain a high scholastic average, is a member of Alpha Gamma Sigma (honor society) and plays tackle on the varsity football team.

Dean of Men Edward E. Sandys, shown in the picture presenting the office gavel to Bob, is his most constant companion. When the Executive Council meets, all business is systematically taken into consideration. As faculty adviser of the student government, Dean Sandys has proved his ability to understand and help.

Dean Sandys is a graduate of Stanford University where he indulged in football and coaching. Previously, he attended high school in Newark, New Jersey. His fame at the college is as "Clearing House" for all difficulties.

Bob is a graduate of Abraham Lincoln High School in San Francisco.

What's That Drive For?

Rationing's End Introduces College To Legal Parking Area—It's Crowded

By Jackie Hogan

Has anyone a parking lot that he can spare?

This is the lament of scores of students who, despite the ample parking space provided, still don't seem to be able to find a legitimate place to anchor their Pierce Arrows, Cadillacs (oh, well, Fords) daily.

It seems that there is a driveway encircling the building, a very famous driveway which has featured greatly in the annals of this college's history.

Long ago, before rationing, priorities, and the draft, this road was built around the college for the convenience of everyone concerned. So what happened? Came the war and Uncle Sam borrowed the men, tires and gasoline, and the beautifully paved and exquisitely constructed road was left desolate and lonely.

The few stray autos that did survive the "reformation" planted themselves, not on the beautiful roadway, but on the North and South courts of the college building, the sides of the hill and all available walks and lawns. The lawns were ruined and many a harried delivery truck driver went quietly insane trying to get his goods into the building between the cars of students blocking the road.

Pleas were made by Dean Edward E. Sandys, then warnings were issued, but still no results.

Now with peace, men, gasoline and tires returned to us the situation is even worse. A quick glance out of a nearby window will illustrate this point. Cars are being parked everywhere from the Phelan Avenue bus stop to the footpath off Hello Walk.

Dean Sandys has issued a final warning and serious consequences will befall anyone who parks his car any place but on the driveway running back of the college.

Choir

Auditions Open For Tenors, Baritones

Although auditions are already under way for membership in the college A Cappella Choir, a few more tenors and possibly several baritones can still try out for membership, Flossita Badger, director, announced last week.

All men, therefore, who enjoy group singing are urged to take advantage of the choir activities, which include performance at college functions such as the traditional Christmas programs and commencement, and the several out of town appearances.

The choir will be the nucleus around which the Christmas program will be built, Miss Badger said, and plans now provide for three separate performances, one at the college, one in the Wave barracks, and a third night appearance down town.

The choir, which combines with the Women's Chorus that was developed last year and appeared at several college functions, meets at 12 o'clock Tuesday and Thursday in room 200 and one unit of credit is offered.

Awards in the form of pins are granted each semester by the Associated Student organization for active participation in choir activities.

Membership, Miss Badger said, depends on auditions to determine vocal quality and ability.

Underneath it all, however, it is rumored that given stout hearts, tenors will have the inside track on choir membership.

Honor Society Releases Membership Rules

Requirements for membership in the Alpha Gamma Sigma, college scholarship honor society, were released this week by Edwin Cranston, club adviser.

Membership requirements for returning students are 30 grade points with a minimum of 12 units, excluding physical education.

The organization this semester consists of students who carried at least 12 units in summer sessions and those who fulfilled requirements during the spring semester. Any student who met requirements in the spring and failed to make grade points during the summer is not eligible for membership.

Cranston announced that applicants will be interviewed in Room 340.

Nine Instructors Return To College From Service

Termination of the war has brought nine instructors back to the college from the armed forces. Moreover, six new faculty members have joined the faculty and two are at work in the registrar's office.

John Ross has returned from service in Egypt and Greece with UNRRA to resume instruction in the social sciences.

Returned also, are Commander F. Grant Marsh, who will take his place as head counsellor; Lieutenant Joe Amori, new Placement Director; Lieutenant Commander Jack Gaddy, and Lieutenant Alfred P. Agosti, all of the U. S. Navy.

Lloyd Luckmann has come back from the Army Engineers, Tom O'Neill from the American Red Cross, and now Manfred Mueller can at last reveal his work at California University.

New instructors are George Mullany, to publications; Norman Addlestone, Spanish; Antoinette Willson, English; Bettygene Otto, Physical Education; Letha Robarts, Home Economics; James Schon, Mechanical Engineering, and Laurence Wong to the Hotel Division. Miss Willson and Schon are former students of this college.

Teresa Mahoney and Frances Carlson have been added to the office staff.

Locker Assignment Starts Today in Cafeteria

Distribution of lockers to both men and women will begin today in the college cafeteria from 10 o'clock to 3 p. m., Dean Edward E. Sandys announced last week.

Further distribution will continue tomorrow in the placement office, Room 155, from 11 to 3.

Because of limited facilities, three students must share each locker, Dean Sandys said, and urged them to choose their locker mates before application.

Radio Classes On NBC For American Ed. Week

Initial broadcast by students of the college radio classes will be given during American Education Week, November 11 to 17, Marie Weller, radio instructor, announced last week.

Although the theme has not been decided, Miss Weller said that the program would consist of student discussion. The program is slated for broadcast over NBC. Additional information will appear in The Guardsman soon.

A new course in the fitting of contact lenses, and a series of refresher courses are being planned by the School of Optometry, University of California, for optometrists returning from service with the armed forces.

Intramural Entries Due October 17

Those interested in the opening intramural round robin must have their entries in by Wednesday, October 17, according to Intramural Director, Jack Brady. Schedules for basketball competition and play will be announced soon. Entries will be accepted every day by Brady in the office of the men's gymnasium through October 17. Elections

Candidates Still Can File Petitions; Voting Friday 10-3

Candidates for class offices may still file petitions to run through tomorrow at 3 p. m., Associated Student officers decided Monday, in an effort to further competition.

All those who do file petitions by then, in addition to the 11 already candidates, are to be introduced at the pre-State game rally Friday morning at 9 a. m. in the Wave auditorium.

Elections are scheduled for Friday from 10 to 3 o'clock in the cafeteria. President Bob Mills said, and Associated Student card must be presented for voting.

Heading the list of present candidates is Vic Pudlowski for the office of High Sophomore President, while Winifred Kenny and Claire Stewart are in line for the class Vice-presidency and Secretaryship respectively.

Low Sophomore candidates include Nancy Schultz, filed for Presidency, and Virginia Burke for Secretary.

High Freshmen have a lone candidate, Jean Carrasco, for President.

Low Freshmen crashed through to place Anne Herrington and Sandy Pratt in competition for class Presidency; Lois Dehmen and Virginia Souder for the Vice-presidency; and Paula Elliott for Secretary.

Spring '45 Guardsman Rated All-American

For the seventh time in nine semesters, The Guardsman was awarded All-American honors, or highest rating, by the Associated Collegiate Press for its Spring 1945 issues, in competition against junior college newspapers throughout the country.

Of the nine times The Guardsman has competed, only twice has it failed to obtain the All-American rating, but received the next, or First Class rating.

It was a third "victory" for Former Editor Constine, and a repeat for Managing and News Editors, Henry P. Buckingham and L. J. Smith. Bill Covall was Sports Editor.

Social Season Open

Friday's Dance Will Honor Low Frosh

True to tradition, the first dance of the fall semester is to be held in the Gold Room of the Fairmont Hotel this Friday evening.

A record attendance is expected at the dance which is scheduled to begin at 9 p. m. and continue until 12 o'clock. This large attendance is naturally anticipated because of the enlarged Associated Student organization, Doris Pederson, Vice-president and chairman of the social committee said.

Ray Hackett, currently associated with CBS, has been contracted to conducted his orchestra for the occasion. This dance is held in special honor of the Low Freshman class, although all students are invited, Miss Pederson added.

Street dresses for women and business suits for men is the order of the evening, thereby putting the no corsage rule into effect.

The price of admission is one Associated Student card per couple.

Doris Pederson

She's Popularity Personified!

By Betty Jo Smith

If an election were ever held to determine the friendliest person in the college, the winner might well be Doris Pederson, Associated Student Vice-president, pictured above. As one admiring person remarked, "Oh, 'Pedie' has friends all over the place!"

Even though she is famous for her personality, when Doris draws herself up to her full five feet two inches and says something should be done about such and such problem, people realize that the gal has the spirit and interest to get things done. And they're done right, too.

In addition to her job as Vice-president, she is chairman of the Social Committee, which plans the three dances scheduled each semester to honor the several classes, the first of which is to be held Friday night. Being a class officer is not new to "Pedie," for she held various high offices while attending Alameda High School.

Like many other undecided students, Letters and Science seemed, to her, a likely major to choose. She does, however, have aspirations toward becoming a famous interior decorator some day. After shedding the college's apron strings, her intentions point to the University of California.

Although people may declare, "There ain't no sech animal," "Pedie" reveals that she is a true native of California, and, what's more, she's never even been out of the State.

Alpha Gamma Sigma

College Honor Society Totals 52; Associate Members Represent 6 Bay Area High Schools

That 52 members compose the membership of Alpha Gamma Sigma scholastic honor society was announced last week by Edwin Cranston, faculty adviser.

Of these 36 are regular members. They include Elynore Angeli, John Bowker, John Bruce, Pansy Chow, Georgia Colby, Morton Colvin, Patricia Davis, Rose Dear, Helen Delegeane, Stewart Dimon, Eleanor Fehlen, Grace Galaich, Donald Glannini, Eugene Hague, Robert Hemme, Marlene Jong, Margaret Kay, Mary Lambe, Beverly Lucas, Patricia Mahoney, Elizabeth Mann, Frederick Mayer, Robert Mills, William Newell, Michelle Perks, Julia Rice, Adele Rogers, Nina Soharoff, Margo Skinner, Ormon Stone, Marylyn Stern, Dwight Straub, Constance Trigonis, Fay Varetakis, Eleanore Wohler, Marilyn Zito.

Associated members, those with gold seals on their high school diplomas, are Cecilia Burg, Florence Gee, Jeane Hatt, Roberta Johnson, Noreen Kindergan, Polly Louie, Lorraine Miramiontes, Dorothy Mungele, Eleanor Newell, Mary Ragglianti, Helen Reed, Alicia Saucedo, Eleanor Waegerle, Marjorie Whearty, Gretchen Williams, Mathilda Wong.

Six Bay Area high schools are represented by the new members, Albany, Balboa, Commerce, Lincoln, Mission, and Richmond.

Any student with gold seals on his diploma interested in the AGS should apply to Cranston in Room 340, or Elizabeth Mann, AGS president, in the AGS office, Room 343.

Parking

Dean Empowered To Cite Violators

Vested with authority by the California State Vehicle Code, Dean Edward E. Sandys will cite any automobile parked in front of the building or any other non-parking area.

Except by permission of the Dean, the driveway in front of the college is to be used only for loading and unloading passengers. This provison was made in the agreement between the college and the railway company, in order to keep the space clear for school buses.

Permits will be issued only to those persons who, because of physical disability, are unable to walk up the hill to the college. Members of the Hotel Division, who use their cars to deliver goods to the cafeteria, are also exceptions to the rule.

Parking is allowed only on Phelan Avenue and the driveway encircling the college.

Delivery areas which are not for parking are the drive in front of the college, the ramps, and the areas at either end of the building, Dean Sandys said.

Ex-Council To Meet In Student Lounge Thurs.

Formal opening of the new student lounge, Room 30, will be effected when the Executive Council holds an official meeting, third of the semester, there at 12 o'clock tomorrow.

Real opportunity for Associated Student observation of the procedure of student government will be provided by the new location.

Students Welcome at Meeting

Bob Mills, Associated Student president, referring to the opening of the lounge with an Executive Council meeting stressed that all students are welcome, and urged that as many as possible attend.

At the second meeting of the Executive Council, which was called in the cafeteria, but because of the noise there, but without significance adjourned to the old rifle room.

Victor Pudlowski submitted a large athletic budget, and over considerable discussion as to the merits of securing good and durable equipment, the sum of $1,500 was allotted to the athletic fund, in addition to the $1,200 previously blanketed.

Pudlowski Guards Equipment

The question of hiring a responsible person to safeguard the equipment was also discussed, and Pudlowski under the title of Men's Athletic Equipment Manager was approved.

One hundred and fifty dollars was transferred to the Little Theatre to cover its anticipated expenditures this semester.

Aid to the Pep Club now being formed was warmly discussed. Specifically, Dean Haug, organizer of the club, appealed for $50 to cover the cost of 50 caps, or a nominal sum to defray the cost. Because of the proposed activities of the Pep Club, it was placed under the Rally Committee, and the sum of $12.50 was approved toward the cost of the caps.

X-GI Noon Meeting To Outline Social Program

Preceding the formal Executive Council opening of the student lounge, the X-GI Society will meet there at noon in an attempt to further an organization for the 350 veterans enrolled here.

Main purpose of the meeting, members said, is to outline a social program for the current semester and to name committees to assume responsibility for carrying out the program.

Former Music Student In Song Of Norway

Among the former students of the college's music department who have become prominent in the music world, is Melva Niles, who was a music major here for nearly two years and president of the Music Club.

Miss Niles left the college last year to join the Los Angeles Light Opera Company, with which she has been since, both on the West Coast and in New York.

Currently she is appearing in Song of Norway and studying music in New York, Fiorata Badger, music instructor, revealed this week. She has a seven year contract with the director of the opera company, with the promise of leads and increasing salary, and a London appearance soon.

Others who were students here and are now making names for themselves in music are Raymond Keast who is singing a lead in Song of Norway, and Dorothy Roberts, Mary Helen Markham, and Lorraine Calcagno, who are singing with the San Francisco Opera Company.

Veterans Flock To Math And Science Classes

Engineering majors, and physics, chemistry and mathematics courses are the most heavily attended by the 350 veterans now enrolled at the college, according to Claude Silva, Veteran Administrator.

Chemistry and physics classes are filled almost to capacity, and it has been necessary to engage new teachers to handle the large mathematics enrollments.

Rally

Wave Auditorium Scene Of Friday Entertainment

That Associated Student officers and candidates for class offices may be introduced to new students, the second rally of the season is slated for this Friday, October 19, at the Wave auditorium, according to Dean Haug, rally commissioner, at 9 a. m.

All classes will be dismissed, and students are urged to be on time to secure a seat, Dean Edward E. Sandy's said.

Preparing for the college football game with San Francisco State College, this rally will feature talent from downtown night clubs. Songstress Jerry Akey, student here who has formerly sung with Freddie Martin's band, is scheduled to appear on the program.

Promising "more and bigger rallies" this year than before, Haug is making a desperate plea for more talent. Novelty numbers and specialty acts are needed, he said, and urged students with any talent to apply to him.

While Don Giannini will remain as Yell Leader for this semester, another man student is also needed to lead yells. Two women yell leaders will be chosen from the Pep Club, Haug said.

Hansen, Moss, Ravella New CAB Officers

Ralph Hansen was elected President of the Club Advisory Board for the coming semester at a meeting held last week. The Vice-presidency went to Joseph Moss, and Guido Ravella was elected secretary.

Twelve of the college's clubs were represented at this first gathering. Hansen urged that all organizations elect a CAB representative before the next assembly, which has not as yet been announced by the administration.

Room 133 has been set aside as the permanent meeting place for this group.

Helen Ringius Elected Forum Club President

Helen Ringius was elected president of the Forum Club and Ruth Martin, secretary, Dorothy Mercer, adviser, announced last week.

The first meeting is scheduled to be held at the home of John Gerstring, co-adviser of the group, at 157 Kensington Way, on Saturday, October 27, at 8 p.m.

The topic under discussion at this meeting is Will Atomic Energy Be An Advantage or a Disadvantage to Mankind.

Everyone is welcome to the discussions and the club is open to all students of the college, Miss Mercer said.

Rest Haven

Students' Dream To Come True When Lounge Doors Are Thrown Open This Week

By Jacqueline Hogan

"Now I lay me down to sleep; a place to rest my brain and feet."

This cry will soon be echoing through the halls of the college this week when the new student lounge opens its doors to weary, haven seeking scholars of this institution.

The "haven" is located in the basement of the building, and includes Rooms 25 to 32, directly below the administration offices.

Ping pong tables for the more energetic students will be provided, and chairs and sofas for most of them will be some of the main features of the room.

Making an ideal place to meet old friends and make new, it will, also leave the silver pole a little less congested than it has been in the past as a mecca for reunions.

Student appropriations made it possible to furnish the room which should be ready today if all goes as scheduled, according to Dean Edward E. Sandys.

Current History

Spirit And Mills

WAR brought with it the dispensation of the picnic spirit until then characteristic of American colleges. The new and serious mood of students unfortunately did away with, at the same time, all spirit at this college.

Student leaders, sensing the curious apathy existing with regard to all except the curricula, and sensing also a discontentment among the Associated Students, strove hard to revive the ideal college spirit.

It became fashionable for candidates running for the office of Associated Student President to promise, among other things, the return of "college spirit."

As each President failed to "capture" that highly desirable, but most elusive spirit, each succeeding candidate felt certain that he could bring about its revival.

Bob Mills, first president to be re-elected to office, based his first platform on what had become the traditional aim of candidates. All too readily, he also promised a revival of that spirit.

"Bigger and better" rallies were held. However, universal lethargy had set in, and a student body who felt that the mere trekking up and down "pneumonia hill" in itself deserved at least one unit of credit, could not see itself going down on Thursdays (some times in the rain) to attend rallies.

Mills successfully carried out other projects. Yet it became increasingly evident that he was as determined as ever in his intention of arousing the soundly dormant spirit.

Mills tried a variety of methods, and the Administration collaborated by instituting mild enforcement. On rally days, in an attempt to inveigle students into going down that hill, the library and cafeteria were closed early. Although the attendance was thus slightly increased, the result as far as the students' feelings were concerned, was not favorable. Clearly, the spark would not remain lit, but if Mills was unsuccessful, it was not for lack of personal effort on his part.

Taking the bull by the horns, Mills in his second platform admitted that in the awakening of college spirit he had fallen short of the mark. This time he promised to try to revive college spirit.

Apparently the Executive Council, fully backing Mills, is prepared to do its utmost to promote genuine college spirit. From that point on it becomes the responsibility of each individual student to do his share.

Election Returns

BECAUSE the official results of last semester's ballots for this semester's officers were somehow inadvertently lost in the Dean of Men's office, The Guardsman has been unable to publish the tabulated results.

Although it is known exactly who was elected for each office, it is regrettable that the official results were lost. It will be the first time in the history of the college that the actual number of those who voted will not be known, and therefore will not be available for comparison with other semesters.

No great damage has been done. Nevertheless it is presumed that President Mills has by now impressed the officers responsible for tabulating elections with the importance of protecting newly elected officers by retaining at all times in the office of the Executive Council all official records

Off The Record . . .

A college is not a building, it is not a campus, it is not even books and tools. It is the meeting place of inquiring minds with trained intellects.

For years college men and women have groaned about "that" gym. This subject is getting on our nerves and, frankly, is breaking down our resistance.

No long ago the question of physical education was raised by our veterans of World War II, and the things they had to say were scandalous. Space does not permit a complete pro and con argument, but a few high points should be brought into the spotlight.

MURDER IN MIND

If the physical ed majors find their chosen profession fascinating, we will be only too glad to contribute our share. For the most part, very few of us can see any sense in "wasting" several hours a week leaping like frogs around a floor just made for folk dancing, although Some of us may take up archery with murder in mind.

Sure, we know that the national and state educators will remind us of our health, but we'd be twice as healthy if they'd give us that time to get out in the sun. It's surprising how many college students spend their relaxing time participating in sports for enjoyment, and all would glory in a few extra hours for enjoyable recreation. We came to college to study readin' writin' and arithmetic in more advanced terms, and we haven't time to play ping pong for a half credit.

Speaking in behalf of the college, we offer Pneumonia Hill as evidence. It gets mighty cold up here on this mountain, and somebody must have named it Pneumonia Hill in fond memory of the many who have died enroute to gym classes on a brisk morning. Are we getting healthy? No!

MENTAL VS. PHYSICAL

Consider the psychological point of view. If the college persists in making us trot down to "Death Valley," our mental attitude will eventually affect our physical well being. A silly argument? Well, we don't like it, and any psychologist can give you the outcome of many such case histories. When we have to learn to trip the light fantastic to acquire our desired degree, no one can blame us for talking ont of turn. Physical health is mighty important, but our mental condition is taking all the fun out of life.

We're old enough to attend college, and many of us are voting. We know what we want, and very few of us want to spend valuable time when we aren't interested, haven't the time to spare, and have capable minds of our own. We came to college to educate our minds—not our bodies, and occasionally we find it necessary to remind everyone concerned that we have hard enough times in reaching our goals without an added barrier.

REVOLUTION NEXT

If the family doctor won't take pity on us and write a small excuse, we can always "Cut." But, if anyone dares tell us we can't have a degree because our gym credits are missing, he will be begging for a revolution.

Over the college entrance portals are these words: "THE TRUTH SHALL MAKE YOU FREE." We've told the truth. Now will some nice person get busy and do something about setting us free.

Letters-To The Editor

RAM'S HORN

• Three V's

Editor, The Guardsman:

As a new student I bring with me the "mad school spirit" which prevails at most high schools. Many feel that the college is only a "stepping stone" to something much bigger. Perhaps this is so, but just as life itself has vitality, the three r's should be supplemented with the three v's. Does the college have spirit? If not, why not?

M.W.

• Arithmetic Test

Editor, The Guardsman:

When traveling around the world those who are fortunate enough to do so are often equipped with letters of introduction which act as admittances into forbidden passages, free meals, and general good times. I'm not traveling around the world; I'm not looking for forbidden passages, or free meals, but I am looking for a letter of introduction. To whom? As a new student I might want to meet the president of the college, or the Dean of Women, or even the Editor of The Guardsman. All I ask is to meet one person who has passed the arithmetic fundamental entrance exam. At that individual I'd like to stare in awe

• Art Club Is Limited

Editor, The Guardsman:

The Alpha Delta Epsilon is not open "for all students interested in art," as was stated in the last issue of The Guardsman.

The requirement for membership in the Art Club is that one be a member of the Landscape Painting class (art 12ab). Other students wishing membership must have had or are carrying six units of art in addition to presenting his name to Mr. Allman and the club for consideration.

I would appreciate your publishing this letter for clarification of this matter.

Shots At RAMdom

SUFFERING great expense and hours of research, physical exertion and "piece" of mind . . . often forfeiting our lunch hours and throwing in a total of two and a half gym cuts, we have just this week completed a list of the various and sundry types of class room characters that inhabit this most venerable and honored college.

Collecting ourselves, note books in hand, and gayly waving our pink reg cards, we canvassed the diffferent fields of study, room by room, and thoroughly invaded the campus scene.

The following is a result of furtive hours of climbing over masses of students, stationed in front of the silver pole, en route to our series of keyhole inspections:

THE RADICAL

At first perception, we find the Radical student, a bold type who usually sits in the midst of a group of meek individuals. He can corner any thought-wave and label it with a title of "Injustice!" His voice BOOMS forth, and he argues and re-argues his favorite subjects. All he needs is a soap box and an intelligent look.

THE DREAMER

Much more deadly than the "finger drummer- pencil tapper," is the Dreamer. This specific type situates himself by the nearest available window to gaze, soulfully, into the vast expanse of out-of-doors. It is surprising how one single eucalyptus tree can encourage poetic thoughts and make one oblivious to the ever-changing world of science and chem problems.

The Dreamer would be harmless, but for the eventual question he asks to bridge the wasted hours of learning.

THE NODDER

Next, we have the Nodder, perhaps the most nerve-racking of the six general types. The Nodder is always very enthusiastic, desperately hanging on every gem of information and frantically swinging his noggin in approval and understanding.

He vetoes any measure the instructor vetoes . . . shaking his head, so that the whole class can appreciate his sanction. He injects his spirit into the conversation and his thirst for knowledge is edifying, but grotesque.

The Nodder never smiles, but oftentime drops his mouth open a bit in a genuine display of awe and comprehension. In the early 15th century all "nodders" were required to accompany each nod with a deep-throated, "Yea-Yea!"

THE GENIUS

Possibly the most obnoxious of them all is the Genius. He is an authority on everything, claiming sensational information on any subject that a harassed instructor can think up. Suffering under a delusion that he is another Einstein, he makes everyone's life miserable trying to prove it.

Time means nothing to this fellow so he comes to every class prepared to deliver a filibuster in flowing words of six syllables every time that he is called upon.

THE NAPPER

A harmless creature, but most annoying, is the Napper. Any quiet corner in the back of any class room discloses him. Nothing bothers the Napper, from the drone of a philosophy lecture to the scratching noises of students' pens during an exam.

This chap sleeps blissfully through any class until the awful moment, when, from out of nowhere, he hears his name called to answer a question. Then blushing and embarrassed, he tries to bluff his way through it, usually making a hopeless mess of it. This done, he contentedly goes off to sleep again.

THE SMILER

The final type in this classification is the Smiler. He is the bright fellow who comes to class "with shining morning face" and wears it all through the afternoon.

Smiley anchors himself in any available place and then proceeds to gaze with glowing countenance into the instructor's face. Each pearl of wisdom which falls from the instructor's lips is met with a smiling approval. His motto is, "If you can't be erudite, be agreeable," and he carries it out to perfection.

RAMblings . .

By Don Lucey

AS most of you probably know, the physical education department at this present time is in a befuddled situation.

With everybody attempting to get the doc's O. K. on his condition, it is a very difficult task to learn much from the instructors at the bottom of the hill. A few things, however, have been learned by your reporter, and here they are for what they are worth.

CLASSES, SPORTS DIFFER

One fact students should not be confused on is the difference between a class in a certain sport and regular varsity competition.

For instance, let us take boxing. This is on the physical ed program but does not necessarily mean that the college will organize a team in this category for matches with outside groups.

Those interested in representing the college as racquetteers should remember this notice from Tom Wilson head of the activity. Since tennis is a spring sport, sign-ups will not take place until the end of this fall semester.

SWIM TEST PRESCRIBED

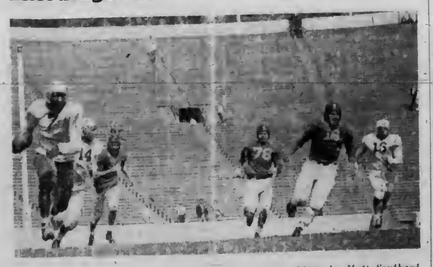
Leland Eisan, director of swimming this semester, announces that all men having a gym period at 12:10 p. m. whether or not it be the water pastime, must pass a test in this course as prescribed by the Board of Education and the American Red Cross

If an individual is unable to swim he immediately is transferred to that class, and remains there until such time as he is able to handle himself in H2O, (about the only formula yours truly is acquainted with, never having taken Chemistry, thank heavens!)

Although a little more information on basketball was promised in this column and for this issue, there still doesn't seem to be any more developments than were given in an article on October 10.

It can be reiterated again that the casaba court will be invaded by a large group of males on the first turn-out. It is quite apparent that more fellows prefer the hardwood to the football field.

Men's Swim Classes Confined to Novices



Too large a number of applicants for swimming in the 12 o'clock classes has caused Coach Lee Eisan to put the men through a test to determine whether they need instruction.

The tests will be held in the Jefferson High School pool and will require men to swim 20 yards or more using different strokes. If the applicant does not pass the test he will be allowed to stay in the class.

Eisan has arranged transportation by getting those with cars to carry a safe number of passengers. Each rider will pay the driver 15 cents per trip to the pool and back.

Eisan explained the action on the grounds that swimming is not for diversion but for instruction. If there is still room left in the class, a few swimmers will be allowed to go.

Encouragement?

Behind a back drop of empty stands, which is common at most Ram games, Staten Webster, No. 7, the hard running quarterback, goes for 20 yards on a line play against the Cal Ramblers three weeks ago. The fellow behind Webster, wearing No. 14, is Bob Seiler, now transferred to State, and the fellow with the serious expression wearing No. 16 is Ted Weber. The Cal men are not identified. Cal won, 6 to 0.

WAA

75 Meet, Plan To Elect Semester Officers Soon

With a promising attendance of more than 75 members and prospective members, the first Women's Athletic Association meeting last Thursday was presided over by acting President Janice Beanston, who outlined the semester's plans.

The first sign-up sheets were distributed with a variety of sports offered to the women. Those desiring to compete on Monday afternoons were informed that volleyball would be played the first two months and basketball for the remainder of the semester.

The badminton club will meet on Tuesdays in the gymnasium, while hockey, not to be confused with ice hockey, will be played on the football field, Miss Beanston explained.

Outside Sports Meet Friday

Archery enthusiasts practice each Thursday, while Friday has been set aside for sports which meet outside the college grounds.

For instance, horseback riding meets at the St. Francis Riding Academy in Golden Gate Park, ice skating at the Winterland rink, swimming in the YWCA pool, and bowling at either the Mission Bowl or Sports Center, Miss Beanston outlined.

Pointing out that the entire schedule is subject to change at the request of the majority, Miss Beanston encouraged the women to sign for their favorite sport, indicating the day and time most convenient for members to meet.

Frosh Blocks Due Soon

Since scholastic and sportsmanship records must be searched, block awards were not presented to last Spring's eligible freshmen, but Miss Beanston promised to make the awards at the next WAA meeting, time and place to be announced shortly.

Election of the fall semester's officers will be the first order of business at this gathering as well as the presentation of the permanent schedule of sports, their meeting place, and time.

Actual play in the different activities will commence Monday October 22, and Miss Beanston reminded that each sport would hold its initial meeting in the women's gymnasium where instruction will be given by the women's physical education staff.

First classes of North Texas State Teachers College, Denton, were held on second floor of a local hardware store when the College opened in 1890.

Tiny Ghiorzi

From Water Boy To Ram Tackle

By Dee Williams

The 300 pounder who carried the water to the Bull Dogs at Commerce High School two years ago, and who whittled his weight down to 265 pounds to play football for Coach Lee Eisan, is Robert "Tiny" Ghiorzi, tackle on the Ram eleven.

"Tiny" has stopped many a potential touchdown in the two semesters he's played for the college, but few by anyone much larger than he, for he tops a good six feet and looks it.

This kid, who looks so fierce and dynamic on the field, has one terrific weakness—his good nature. He is considered one of the most likeable fellows on the campus.

However, when he gets mad and in on a good offensive play, he knows what the score is and lets those in the stands know also.

"Tiny" has been a resident of San Francisco a good many years and learned the fundamentals of the game in the sandlots with Father Crowley around Seventh and Harrison Streets.

To quote unofficially from the top sports writers in the city—"He looks like a blimp, but moves like a gazelle . . . that snagging he did in the Modesto-Ram game was beautiful."

Two Teams In Intra Play; Deadline Today

Although today is the deadline for submitting entry blanks for play in the intramural basketball tourney, two teams have already filed applications, according to Coach Jack Brady.

Blanks are again printed in this week's Guardsman and must be filled out in full to insure acceptance, Brady said.

The two teams entered early are the Salmons and the Marina Mashers.

The Salmons are managed by Richmond Sedley who is also captain. With first names missing from the blank, the team includes Bofinger, Fosnick, De Ganovis, Twobuck, and Deek.

Al Rossi is captain and Bill Morrison manager of the Marina Mashers, and the rest of the five are Sapa Farb, and Meyer.

Play begins tomorrow in the men's gym, and a complete schedule will soon be posted on both bulletin boards in the gymnasium.

Brady warned again that students who have earned block letters in basketball at the college are ineligible to play. Otherwise, any five or more men representing a club are just themselves may fill out the blank.

Women Organize Pep Club For State Game

Although not officially named as yet, a newly organized women's pep club is well on the way toward being fully systematized. "We hope to have all the club's 50 women members organized," Doris Doran, acting president, disclosed, "by the time of the State game Friday.

Members of the association are required to wear white sweaters and red plaid skirts to all functions. Orders have been placed for 50 "rooter" hats which are expected to arrive by next week.

Don Giannini will continue to serve temporarily as Yell Leader, but an urgent plea is being sent out for new "rah, rah" leaders. Any men interested should contact Dean Houg, rally commissioner.

Football

Rams Hope For Eighth Win Over State Rivals At Gator Field Friday; Jensen At Center For Injured Fabian

If the second decade of the college's football prowess begins as favorably as the first, the Rams ought to produce a win over their traditional rivals, the San Francisco State Gators, Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Gator field.

The field is located at 19th Avenue and Holloway, just this side of the Park Merced project.

Records of past games show seven won by the Rams, two lost, and no game in 1943. If the Rams take the Friday encounter, it will be the fourth straight over the Gators.

Scores for the past ten years are as follows:

	SFJC	State
1935	32	12
1936	0	2
1937	12	7
1938	0	19
1939	19	0
1940	19	13
1941	7	6
1942	6	0
1943	No Game
1944	13	0

The Ram line is steadily improving with the help of Jack Gaddy, recently returned to the college following release from the Navy in which he served as Lieutenant Commander in the Pacific area.

Injuries Keep Fabian Out

The weak spot in the line is at center, which George Fabian held until injured in scrimmage two weeks ago. The injury may keep him out of a suit for the remainder of the season.

Should this be the case, the burden will fall on Don Jensen, who will probably have to play the full 60 minutes in most games because there are no able reserves left to fill the position.

Rivalry Keynotes Contest

Although the Rams have taken the short end count in their first three encounters, rivalry such as has grown between the two colleges so that this is their big game, can bring anything to pass.

Some observers discount Gator possibilities for a win, but the State back field seems fairly strong and will probably give the Ram line none too good a time.

The probable starting lineup for Friday is as follows, although subject to change either by Coach Lee Eisan or State's Coach Dan Farmer:

GATORS	Pos.	RAMS
Albrecht	RE	Boone
Strickland	RG	Grant
Sharett	R	Jensen
Powers	CG	Stanfel
Juarez	LT	Muller
Canavan	LT	McLaughlin
Kennerley	LE	Keck
Saunders	Q	Webster
Sieler	LH	Miranti
Myers	RH	Toquinto
Miller	F	Lawrence

Rams Win 14-0

Lane, Webster Score; Toquinto Converts

Displaying a heads-up offensive and strong defensive play, the college Rams marched to their first win of the season, defeating the Sacramento Junior College Panthers, 14 to 0 last Friday.

Captained by Don Grant, the Rams outplayed the Panthers in every quarter. The Panthers only crossed the midfield stripe twice during the game.

Lane Scores In First

The first Ram touchdown came in the first period, when Quarterback Staten Webster circled right end for eight yards. Fullback John Lane picked up five for a first-down.

Left-half Bob Toquinto ran off right tackle for 35 yards. Lane, on a fake reverse over left tackle, scored from the Panther's 20 yard line. Dequinto's conversion was good.

The Ram, although in scoring territory many times during the second and third periods, were unable to hit pay dirt.

The fourth quarter was fought deep in Panther territory. The final Ram touchdown came early in the fourth, when Webster returned a punt to the Sacramento 40 yard line. On a plunge over tackle Webster gained six yards.

Webster Hurdles For Second

F.-B. Lane, true-to-form, picked up a first down. On a fake reverse Lane crashed to the one, and Webster hurdled the line for the final touchdown. Toquinto's kick was good.

The entire Ram line played a superb game as they tore huge holes in the Panther's line and held the backs in check.

No New Games Yet

No new games have been added to the schedule as yet, which indicates that Friday, November 9 will see the Ram 1945 team in action for the last time.

The remainder of the schedule is as follows:

Oct. 19—State Gator Field 3 p. m.
Nov. 2—Sacramento here, night
Nov. 9—Salinas ..... there, night

The University of Texas is the first institution of higher learning in the Southwest to offer training in ceramics.

Intramural Entries Due Today

Those interested in the opening intramural round robin must have their entries in by Wednesday, October 17; according to Intramural Director, Jack Brady. Schedules for basketball competition and play will be announced soon. Entries will be accepted every day by Brady in the office of the men's gymnasium through October 17. War Is Strange

Former Student Uses New Weapon--PA Loud Speaker

Editor's Note. Henry E. Stanton, former member of the Hotel and Restaurant Division of the college, and, at present, a member of the United States Army, has penned many vivid descriptions of his wartime experience to his wife, Ursula.

Berlin-born, schooled in Switzerland and also at Oxford, Stanton came to the United States and began work in Chicago. After one year there, he traveled out to the west coast and enrolled in the college's Hotel and Restaurant Division. Following two years in the division, he was engaged at the Claremont Hotel. At the time when the wartime draft took him in 1942, he was employed in the Accounting Department of the St. Francis Hotel.

As a part of his training, Stanton was exposed to a three month course in radio and psychological warfare, in Maryland. Leaving the States in March, 1944, his journey's end found him receiving added schooling in the psychological warfare field once again, this time in England.

During his time overseas, Stanton's services were used in the invasion through France, Belgium, Holland and Germany.

It was while in Germany that he experienced the following tale of the use of psychology on the town of Rheinstadt. This story was written in the form of an article to his wife, Ursula, who was also a student at the college. Stanton has been married for three years and has a 21 month old baby, which, by the way, he has never seen.

While space does not permit the printing of his article, War Is Strange, in its entirety, the most interesting passages have been reproduced below.

By HENRY E. STANTON

THIS story is about a PA Combat Mission (PA meaning Public Address). It is true to experience, except for the town name.

Scene: Outskirts of the city of Rheinstadt, in Germany. Time: Second World War.

The PA team consisted of Sgt. B., and myself. Sgt. B. took care of the equipment and he was the driver of our vehicle. Our lieutenant, who came with us that day, spoke no German. I was the speaker.

After hard fighting, the German garrison of Rheinstadt had been cut off from other German troops by our men. Rheinstadt's garrison could no longer receive supplies or ammunition. The German commander had been willing to surrender to the Americans—he was promptly relieved of his command.

But Rheinstadt was doomed. The once beautiful city had already been destroyed by our bombardment. Many prisoners and deserters had been taken. But there were still not enough German soldiers coming over, because the more captured, meant less Germans who would be left to kill Americans in taking the town. Many more would have liked to come over, too, but they were afraid of the treatment they would get from the Americans, many others just did not have the opportunity, and most of them just needed a little persuasion and they would come.

Prisoners by Loud Speaker

This was the situation when we were called in. The lieutenant took me up to Headquaters. There we found out the details of our mission. A commander of the troops who were holding the line around the road leading into Rheinstadt, thought that by using a loudspeaker we might be able to bring in some prisoners, and also reduce the will to fight of the enemy soldiers. He would then have less casualties, because the German soldiers would give up easier, knowing that good treatment was in store for them.

After determining the exact location of our troops, we again boarded the vehicle.

The commander told us that there was a stretch of No Man's Land ahead; how far it reached, he didn't know. He also told us that the Germans had little artillery, because they could receive no new supplies.

Two soldiers were assigned to us for protection. We left the post and from that moment on we were on our own. How far we went ahead, where we set up the loudspeaker (that is the manner in which we were to accomplish the mission) was left entirely up to me.

Tense With Excitement . . .

Tension took hold of us. It was not fear, there was no time for fear. It was the excitement of being the first Americans to drive into the town, the expectation of what was to come.

Sgt. B. drove past the mines with skill and care, sometimes missing them on either side by not more than one foot. Rifles cocked, we drove on. Our two guards sat on the front fenders, keeping a sharp lookout. On our right was a sign: City Limits of Rheinstadt. Now we were inside. Behind us the engineers closed the minefield and shook their heads and wondered. We wondered, too. Where were the Germans? Were they lurking behind that building ready to open fire? Or were they letting us in, only to close the trap behind us?

By now we had passed through the residential district. The once lovely homes were worn-looking, with fallen roofs, shattered windows, and gapping shell holes. They were empty, too, because the people had fled. Down the street, was a typical German beer hall. We investigated.

Sound Would Be Clear . . .

There were no booby-traps, and we climbed the stairs to the top floor and glanced out of the window. The location was ideal. We were on the fringe of the town, but still not where too many buildings would muffle the sound. If we talked from here the speech could be heard far away and the sound would be clear.

We returned to the vehicle. It was standing at some distance from the building. The loudspeaker was heavy to carry, and the sergeant had a brilliant idea. In the street lay a baby carriage and the speaker was loaded into it. We took it up to the top floor and set it on the window sill.

Luck Was With Us . . .

I delivered the speech from below, and repeated it several times. The sound-throw was good. On some previous missions we had received anything from small arms to heavy artillery. The German officers didn't like us because propaganda is a vicious weapon. However, luck was with us.

Very quickly we packed up and started back, going much faster than when he had come. Results would not be immediate, anyway.

But not so fast—hadn't we forgotten something? Why certainly—we were in the Rhineland, weren't we?

Rhinewine and One Jerry . . .

Ten minutes later there was a tub full of Rhinewine bottles in our vehicle. Let's go! The mine field was cleared aside. We were back in our own lines. But look. What's there? We stared. One Jerry had already forsaken his Fuehrer and had come over with all his blankets, and his mess kit, too.

He had heard the speech, he said, and he'd come to stay. When was chow time, he wanted to know!

Mrs. L. A. Myers Donates 150 Books To Library

Approximately 150 new volumes were donated to the college library last week by Mrs. L. A. Myers of this city, Marcus Skarstedt, college librarian, announced last week.

These volumes, all imprints of 1944 and 1945, cover topics in all fields and are expected for use in a few days.

Mrs. Myers during the war donated thousands of volumes to various of the ships' libraries. Now with the war over she offered the college some of these volumes.

In each volume Mrs. Myers has written in long hand a short message hoping that students reading the books will find enjoyment and possibly let her know of their pleasure by writing to her.

Merchant Seamen Asked To Meet In Cafe Today

To organize a college club, merchant seamen now attending the college are urged to attend a meeting in the ante room of the cafeteria today at noon. Calling of the meeting is sanctioned by Dean Edward E. Sandys.

More About Pederson

As a crowning touch, two of the dances are slated for hotel appearances because of the large enrollment this semester.

Her hobby? Pedie just smiles impishly and pronounces, "Men." Evidently she believes in the words, "The Truth Shall Make You Free."

Petitions To Graduate Due By November 2

Petitions to graduate must be filed at the registrar's office by Friday, November 2, Mary Jane Learnard warned again last week.

This is one date is also the deadline for removal of incompletes incurred last semester.

No courses may be dropped nor programs changed in any way after Wednesday, November 14, Miss Learnard added. Following filing of registration books, changes in programs must be made by the proper slips from the registrar's office.

These slips necessitate signatures by the instructors involved in the change and the adviser before becoming official, Miss Learnard concluded.

To West Virginia University came the honor recently of receiving the first American Legion Post charter to be granted to a college or university, when it was announced that Mountaineer Post No. 148 had been established here.

Associated Students

Pudlowski Manages MAC; Hansen Heads Election Committee

In an announcement, early last week, Bob Mills, Associated Student president, listed the chairman and members of the seven Associated Student standing committees.

Vic Pudlowski was named General Athletic Manager of the Men's Athletic Council while Don Grant is the new chairman of the Intramural Athletic Board. John Mapelli and Don Keck are to assist Grant, Mills added.

Wong, Robb Head Welfare

For this semester, Adeline Wong and Roberta Robb have been assigned to the Welfare Committee. The Finance Committee is now under the jurisdiction of Constance Snell.

The appointments of Magdalene Rogers, chairman; Rosalind Tusca and Barbara Bray to the Publicity Committee were also announced by Mills.

The new Judiciary Committee will be headed by Dwight Straub. Victor Hancock and Allan Swadley are to assist.

Hansen Is Election Chairman

Also named were Ralph Hansen, chairman; Grace Pisa, and Helen Love to the Election Committee.

The President's Cabinet is to be composed of the various class presidents elected today, Mills added.

Roth Named AMS Sec.; Social Plans Outlined

Appointment of Norman Roth, freshman student, to the office of Secretary of the Associated Men Students, was effected last week by Dean Edward E. Sandys, according to Ernest Poggi, AMS president.

No candidates had filed petition to run for the office of Secretary in the Associated Student elections, held at the end of last semester.

Ernest Poggi, president of AMS, outlined a calendar of social events for the semester leading with a bonfire and rally Thursday, November 1, preceding the second Sacramento Junior College-Ram grid encounter.

The traditional AMS barn dance is scheduled for December 14, at which levis and plaid shirts will set the style.

In an attempt to bring together all college clubs, AMS leaders have outlined tentative plans for a monogram dance in which all clubs will participate, on January 11.

Dean Haug, vice-president of the group, promised several dances and rallies under AMS sponsorship. The boxing show, also an AMS traditional, is still in the indefinite state.

Women Must Take Exam To Get Grade

Any woman student who failed to keep her medical examination appointment was warned last week by Bertha Mae Keller that she must arrange for a re-appointment immediately.

Speaking for the women's physical education department, Miss Keller pointed out that the examination is a college regulation and that failure to have one results in the withholding of all semester grades.

Lend-Lease Plan Opens WAVE Auditorium To College, Evening Classes to WAVES

By Pat French

Because the Balboa Park Barracks is now a separation center, students here are allowed to use the Waves' "Rec" Hall for college rallies.

Alert students have noticed the "lend-lease" plan in effect. (Many Waves are taking night study courses at the college.)

The barracks center around a huge administration building, complete with lounge and library.

Ship's service, the place where the "elite meet to eat" at the barracks, is one of the most popular corners on the Waves' campus.

A beauty shop, post office and chow—hall dotting the base are manned by the Waves themselves, except for a few civilian cooks.

In complete run of the barracks, is one very celebrated and privileged character called "Parky." The moniker is tagged on a cute black Cocker Spaniel, gift of a Navy Chaplain.

"Parky's" full title is Balboa Park, a stroke of Wave genius.

Club Cavalcade . . .

By Jeanne Williams

•Alpha Gamma Sigma: New officers for the term are Elizabeth Mann, president; Morton Colvin, vice-president; Michelle Perks, secretary-treasurer. Stewart Kemon was appointed Club Advisory Board representative.

•Alpha Delta Epsilon: Constance Trigonis as president, Fred Mayer as vice-president, Josephine Raymond as secretary, Laura Chatelain as social secretary, will lead the group this semester.

•Beta Phi Beta: A smoker is planned tonight at the Rolph Mansion. Attendance will be by invitation.

•Beta Tau: There will be a smoker tomorrow at Lucca's at 7 p.m., by invitation only.

•Epsilon Epsilon Epsilon: The fall questioning of new pledges will be held tomorrow evening at the home of Howard Leighton.

•Kappa Phi: The sorority will begin its eighth season of rushing with a tea October 28. As Vice-president, Roberta Robb succeeds M. J. Forse, who has transferred. Lil Moeabbee is the new historian.

•Music Club: Pat McCormick, president, stated that election of officers will be held at the meeting scheduled Thursday, November 1, at 11 a.m. in Room 200.

•Phi Beta Rho: There is a meeting tonight at the home of Jackie Wallace. The first rush affair will be this Sunday from 2 to 6 o'clock at the Fairmont Hotel.

•Pi Mu Nu: Officers for the semester are Lucille Hoffman, president; Lorraine Norton, secretary; Pamela Sampson, treasurer; Jane Swendesen, pledge mistress.

•Theta Tau: Carol Kripp recently announced her engagement to Bob Olsen, U.S.N., a former student here. Mickey McElroy was married on August 4 to Pfc. Edward Bibson.

•Alpha Lambda Chi: The first rush affair will be a tea at the Mark Hopkins Hotel from 2 to 5 o'clock this Sunday.

•X.G.I.: A meeting will be held today in the student lounge, Room 32, at 12 noon.

Placement Office Open 12 To 4 For Job Hunters

Placement director for the college, Joseph A. Amori, announced that Room 155 will be open daily from 12 noon to 4 p.m. for students interested in obtaining part time employment.

Demand for students to work as grocery store clerks, warehouse workers, ice cream manufacturing plant workers, delivery men, merchandising clerks, office workers and book vendors is great, he said.

Women typists are needed by many concerns to work part-time in the morning or afternoons.

Tentative AWS Tea Date For New Members Oct. 24

Tentative date for the semi-annual Associated Women's Tea in honor of new members has been set for next Wednesday, October 24, Dean Margaret Dougherty recently announced.

AWS officers are Carol Hayland, president, Jeffry Burress, vice-president, and Claire Levesque, secretary.

The reception committee had not been appointed by The Guardsman deadline time, and therefore a list was not available for publication.

Announcement of time and place of tea was promised soon.

AWS Honors New Members

Carol Hayland Will Preside At Tea This Afternoon, Room 158

In honor of new members the Associated Women Students will have a tea today in Room 158 from 2 to 4 p.m., President Carol Hayland said last week.

Women who will serve at the tea are Helen Ringius, Rosilyn Tuska, Barbara Chambers, Nancy Rutlencutter, Dolores Diviny, Mabel Edwards, Millie Laube, Janice Beanston, Maggie Rogers, Dorothy Conlan, Roberta Robb, Winnie Kenny, Marie Wettin, Lou Peters, Doris Doran, Helen Love, and Yvonne Ferrebouff.

Pat Mahoney, Dot Carney, Jane Sheehy, Jean Moen, Eleanore Wohler, Edna Lemas, Grace Pisa, Bess Angelos, Helen Moustakis, Nancy Schul, Virginia Burke, Margaret Hillman, Pamela Sampson, Marilyn Zito, Sue Miles, Loys Daskarolis, Claire Warner, Wilma Crass, and Doris Pederson.

Miss Hayland added that the instructors who will pour the tea are Dorothy Mercer, English instructor, and Mary Jane Learnard, assistant registrar.

This tea is a semi-annual tradition and all new students are invited to attend.

AWS officers who will assist Miss Hayland are Jeffry Burress, vice-president, and Claire Levesque, secretary.

Dean Margaret Dougherty And Carol Hayland

The Dean and "Tiny" Form Excellent Team; Work For Welfare Of Women

By Betty Jo Smith

That old adage, "A woman's place is in the home," would find many disagreeing persons if the chosen examples were Dean of Women Margaret Dougherty, shown above pouring tea for Carol Hayland, Associated Women Students' president, in preparation for today's AWS tea for new members.

These two women have, through their fine workmanship and successful ability to accomplish severe tasks, shown that women can hold their own in a world of masculinity.

As adviser and president respectively of the AWS, their duties revolve around establishing friendliness among the feminie scholars of the college. Despite the fact that Carol has had no previous experience in office-holding, Dean Dougherty reveals that the tiny young lady from Lowell High School is exceedingly worthy of the honor her position holds.

Dean Dougherty's interest in women students is due to her former teaching position at Girl's High in this city.

She joined the college's staff in the second year of its existence as a Home Economics and Chemistry instructor. Following a period of four years of teaching, she took over the job of Women's Dean and has continued smilingly in that position since.

"The Women," as they could be monickered, speak highly of one another and cooperate to such a high degree that it is not remarkable that all their planned functions are completed with clock like efficiency.

Each year the AWS program consists of a co-sponsored dance with the Associated Men Students, a Christmas festival with the music department, and a tea that honors freshman women.

To start the association's activities this year, the aforementioned tea will be served in Room 158 from 2 to 4 o'clock this afternoon.

Choir Elects Officers; Rubke New Manager

Back to pre-war caliber, the A Cappella Choir, with an unusually large membership of 56 members, elected officers alst week.

Al Rubke heads the choir as Manager, aided by Charles Brabbit in the position of Assistant Manager. Secretarial duties will be discharged by Bebe Caldwell.

One of the few college A Cappella groups to continue actively during the war, the choir, under the direction of Flossita Badger, recently held auditions for membership.

The new members are as follows:

Sopranos—Geraldine De Groot, Bebe Caldwell, Shirley Dosser, Dorothy Glassman, Dorothy Harada, Gwendolyn Jones, Betty Jorgensen, Gemma Klein, Aileen Nielsen, Enna Poppin, Mary Roberts, Patsy Ruffin, Barbara Schultz, Nancy Stangle, Jane Swendsen, Betty Wales, Astrid Wettin, Auda Tezelberg.

Altos—Isabelle Bullock, Geraldine Akey, Amy Crosby, Marguerite Dumont, Helen Fudem, Frances Garcia, Phyllis Greenby, Grace Ham, Jacqueline Heyman Louise Moore, Olga Moore, Marcellyn Niggeler, Myrtle Pietschmann, Barbara Slickman, Mary Smith, Marie Wettin.

Tenors—Remigio Archuletta, Mack Boone, Marron Hills, Roland Jones, Frank Skoglund, Phillip Thomas, Harry Wong, Meredith Withers.

Basses—Charles Brabbit, Ted Briones, Martin Colvin, Joseph Finley, Harold Friedman, Pat Harris, Earl Lawrence, Gerald Lillis, David McDade, Emery Melloh, Frank Owens, Al Rubke, Marvin Silverman, and Howard Slaughter.

The group is now beginning preparations for the semester schedule, which is expected to include several off-campus appearances.

Highlights of the semester is the traditional Christmas festival, date of which is not yet determined.

Class Elections

Seven Candidates Unopposed; Pudlowski Heads High Sophs; Low Frosh Place Simmons In Office With Big Majority

In an unprecedented election, in which seven offices were not even contested, Victor Pudlowski was automatically named High Sophomore President last week. Competition only prevailed in the High and Low Freshman races.

These new officers, facing no rivalry, are: Pudlowski, Winifred Kenny, High Sophomore Vice-president; Claire Stewart, High Sophomore Secretary; Nancy Shultz, Low Sophomore President; Marie Wettin, Low Sophomore Vice-president, and Virginia Burke, Low Sophomore Secretary. Nancy Ruttencutter, new High Freshman Secretary, was also unchallenged.

In the battle for Low Freshman President, Warren Simmons won easily with 25 votes, while other contestants finished with Anne Herrington 16, Sandy Pratt 13, and Betty Stockton 13.

Virginia Souder collected 45 votes to defeat Lee Ann Bonar 29, and Lois Dehmel 18, for Low Freshman Vice President.

The Low Freshman Secretary race was decided when 41 votes were tallied for Shirley Ross. Paula Elliott received 29, Roberta Krenkel 18, and Carol Hackenberger 9.

The closest campaign developed for High Freshman President when Roberta Robb eased out a victory over Jean Carrasco, 18 to 14.

A ten vote margin spelled success for Milly Laube over Joan Freeman for High Freshman Vice-president. Actual count was 20 to 10.

Registrar

Vets Still Accepted; Workshops Planned

Although registration was officially closed Tuesday, October 2, the college will accept returned veterans any time during the year, Mary Jane Learnard, assistant registrar, stated last week.

"Social classes have been organized," Miss Learnard continued, "to give veterans individualized and concentrated instruction." This makes it possible for credit to be earned even if classes are not attended the full length of the semester.

However, if veterans register in the latter part of the semester, only a third as many units as might have been taken otherwise can be carried. In this way more hours can be spent in the courses taken, and a full semester's credit will be granted in them.

Although there were not definite details available at the time of publication, it was disclosed that plans are also under way to set up work shops for the 350 veterans enrolled now. New courses and curricula will be established whenever the needs demands them.

Miss Learnard emphasized once again that all petitions to graduate must be filed in the registrar's office not later than Friday, November 2. This date is also the deadline for removal of incompletes incurred last semester.

New Vets To Take Tests Tomorrow In Room 100

Veterans who have entered since the Entrance Tests were given will have the opportunity of taking these tests tomorrow at 1 p.m. in Room 100, Claude Silva, counsellor for veterans, said last week.

These tests include general ability and Vocational Interest tests. Veterans will be excused from classes to take these tests.

Floricultural Dept. Gets Green Houses

To expand the college floricultural program, the Board of Education announced recently that $46,000 has been alloted for the immediate construction of new green houses and lath houses on the campus.

City architects already have been authorized by the board to draw plans for the buildings, according to J. Paul Mohr, registrar and director of personnel. The site for the buildings is the ground south of the men's gymnasium.

"It is hoped," Mohr said, "that the houses will be constructed and equipped so that classes may be conducted in them during the spring semester."

Dr. Fisk To Head New Discussion Group

Inclusion of students here in an inter-racial Discussion Group under the sponsorship of Dr. Alfred G. Fisk, professor of philosophy at San Francisco State College, was proposed last week in a letter to Phylis Haley, psychology instructor here.

Meetings on an informal basis are scheduled for Sunday evenings from 8 to 10 at Dr. Fisk's home, 316 San Benito Way, just off Ocean Avenue.

In his letter to Miss Haley, Dr. Fisk outlined as purposes of the meetings: The furthering of understanding and friendship, purposes much the same as those held by the college Cosmopolitan Society, of which Miss Haley is co-sponsor.

The group itself will determine the topics for discussion, Dr. Fisk said, and he and Mrs. Fisk, in extending their invitation to the college intend to provide refreshments following the meetings.

Campus Art Students Visit Mayor Lapham

Two art students of the college, Anita Kruer and Laura Drake, were honored recently by the first citizen of San Francisco when they were received by Mayor Roger D. Lapham in his office right under the dome of the City Hall.

Occasion was the presentation for the Mayor's signature of a hand lettered testimonial done by Miss Kruer and Miss Drake, standing in the picture left to right behind the mayor, to Edward D. Keil "in recognition of and in appreciation for his outstanding service as chairman of the San Francisco Council of the United Service Organization during World War II."

After Mayor Lapham signed the testimonial, he personally escorted both women around his office. Miss Drake inquired about the Mayor's flair for neckties, and the first citizen showed her a whole rack of cravats of the style which has made him famous for sartorial elegance.

Officialdom's

Duties Should Be Faced

STUDENTS who run for any office at this college, and who are elected, presumably have the time, or make the time, to devote to their duties, and if so, there is no reason for them to be either negligent or tardy in the discharge of their obligations.

The responsibility exercised by individual student officers in the over-all government of the Associated Students cannot be over-emphasized. Too many people assume too much responsibility too readily. It stands to reason that offices demanding of time and labor cannot be assumed with heavy class schedules.

Officers therefore, must necessarily make detailed plans as to their class work, official duties, and personal leisure. Any conflict of the three should be foreseen and overcome, or failing a satisfactory solution, student leaders should either resign or refuse to take office until such time as they can devote themselves wholeheartedly to the work demanded of them.

The foregoing statements are straightforward and obvious, and bear repetition at election time, and at the beginning of a semester. Through them no present Associated Student officer is being advised to resign, but rather, the remarks are directed at all officers—as a reminder, and at all newly elected officers—as a warning that the glamour, if any, is vastly outweighed by the responsibility.

An example of the necessity for stating from time to time, what are considered to be these trite generalities, was provided by last week's Executive Council meeting, the third of the semester, to which members were unpunctual, one was absent, and two of whom drifted in halfway through the meeting.

It is regrettable that already, scarcely at the beginning of the semester, members of the Executive Council should display to such a marked degree, the symptoms of what can only be described as battle fatigue."

For the President to fail to appear at a meeting for any reason less than illness would be regarded as completely inexcusable, yet it is evident that the members of the Executive Council under Mills permit themselves a wide behavior latitude.

It is unfair of individual Ex Council members to show up at meetings when a transfer of funds to the interests they specifically represent is under consideration, and to be casual in their attendance when other interests are under consideration for the allotment of funds. Certainly a solution to the problems caused by the transfer of funds is of the greatest importance equally to all Ex Council members.

If the present trend were carried through to its logical conclusion, leaving Mills relatively unsupported, the Administration, through the Dean of Men, and the Controller, both of whom attend the meetings, might gain a louder voice in the administration of the Associated Students, and ultimately nullify its self government.

Mills, however, cracked the whip loudly and clearly last week, and under his leadership there is little danger of the Executive Council ever becoming the channel through which the Administration would in reality govern the Associated Students.

Tea . . . 2 to 4

—Linoleum by Chatelain

L. J. Smith

Off The Record . . .

AN English traveler, desirous of knowing the nature of the meat on his plate at some remote Chinese restaurant, turned to the native waiter behind him, and pointing to the dish with an inquiring look, said, 'Quack Quack?' The Chinese at once replied with a natural imitation of the canine: 'Bow! wow!' Thus the two parties were mutually intelligible though they did not understand one word of each other's language.

Some years ago, in an address delivered by an authority before the students of one of our prominent universities, the futility of the plan of language teaching pursued in our colleges was pointedly set forth.

Despite all efforts, the modern tongues remain just as lifeless to our students as the so-called dead languages. It is no longer sufficient to teach the students the intricacies of the German declensions or the grammatical technicalities of the French language—the present civilization demands higher and more practical results.

For four, five, frequently seven years, our young men and women study various texts, manuals and grammars.

They learn to parse, to analyze, to decline and conjugate; they can repeat whole pages of grammatical rules and foreign words by heart; they are capable of taking a piece of classical French or German and rendering it into smooth English; they frequently know the grammars of these tongues better even than the natives themselves, and yet on going abroad they are not able to ask for the common necessities of life, nor do they understand the polite utterances of even a waiter or a chambermaid.

What do children speak when they enter school and receive their first lessons in spelling and reading? The language of everyday life, but is this the way in which languages are tought in our schools and universities? Decidedly not!

In the first place, mere grammatical rules and technicalities, though very important in themselves, teach nothing but the theory of language instead of giving us speaking knowledge of the language itself. Grammar is the science of language and while necessary and desirable is by no means as important as the ability to speak the language.

Listen to and examine the speech of the majority of people. Few know the actual rules of English grammar. Children of educated persons express themselves correctly without ever having studied a single line of grammar. Must not everyone—cultivated or unrefined—speak and understand English first, before he can take up the grammatical study of his tongue? Isn't it true that if grammar were a necessary element of speech, nine-tenths of the American nation would surely be dumb?

The study of grammar is indispensable but it must be taught at the proper time and kept within proper limits. Colloquial mastery must precede it.

Grammar will then no longer confuse, but assist. It will cease to be a drudgery and hinderance and will become a plain and simple explanation of forms and idioms already mastered.

Letters To The Editor

RAM'S HORN

• Parking

Editor, The Guardsman:

Where does Dean Edward E. Sandys get his authority to tag automobiles parked on the hillside or anywhere else around the college? If Dean Sandys does have the permission, is it a written order? If so, print it in The Guardsman and show the students that someone is not pulling the wool over their eyes. Please answer this.:

—A Disgusted Student.

Editor's Note: Ordinarily The Guardsman does not publish letters submitted to this column unless the editor knows the identity of the writer. Because of the circumstances surrounding the text of the above letter, an exception is hereby made. The Guardsman does not feel it necessary to question the authority of the Dean of Men. If the above writer doubts the dean's authority, let him park his car in the restricted areas. The Guardsman could also wish the writer were man enough to question the Dean in person.

• Ink For Exams

Editor, The Guardsman:

I. realize only too well that we, as college students, are expected at this stage of life to be able to master the mighty pen and ink without the childhood disasters of blots, spots and smears.

Granted that we can accomplish

Shots At RAMdom

LAST week we covered the six types of classroom characters observed enhancing this very landscape. Today we feel only too obliged to focus the microscopic eye of the press on that venerable body of hierarchy, our Instructors.

The following does not pertain, of course, to any instructor with whom we bear association on an academic basis.

(Now that we got out of that one, we shall continue.)

THE PACIFIST

At first glimpse, we spy the Pacifist. In the early continental days this type was referred to as a "mug wump." Today he goes his way, and your way, too, or any other way that causes the least disturbance.

A question asked boldly of him, merely leads to a pleasant smile and a sympathetic gesture on his part. Ever helpful, he often advises reference books to settle disputes—Outside of Class. He is the answer to the book worm's prayer.

THE TRAVELLER

Next, we have the Traveller. This individual has at some time in his existence made a trip above and beyond the three mile coast line, and (Perish, Forbid!) no one can ever forget it!

From Math to Metaphysics he injects a bit of the continent into every lesson. Most exciting of all is when he relates actual experiences. He is probably a con man for some navigation Company.

THE DRAMATIST

This variety of the species always cherishes a surpressed desire to become an actor. At every opportune moment and even inopportune, he obliges the class by giving a rendition of anything from Shakespearean soliloquy to a modern pantomime.

Judging from the results of his little Academy Award performances all he succeeds in doing is awakening some of the less studious students from the doldrums.

THE INTELLECT

The typical instructor is The Intellect, always bustling to or from a class, burdened with 10 or 12 forbidding looking books and carrying a leather brief case with painfully neat compartments and papers lining the sides.

He is the one who can easily and with no qualm of conscience or malice aforethought say, "There will be an examination tomorrow," in six different languages.

THE INTERPRETER

Last of all in this classification is the Interpreter. What would poor, bewildered students do without him! He is the liaison officer between the classicists of another age and the would be genius of this one.

His is the tiresome task of making literature livable, language lovable and history hearable. His epitaph should read:

"Here lies a man who knew his books,
And now he knows St. Peter's looks."

Hansen

While Thinking . . .

"STEP forward in the car, please."

He to whom this sentence does not bring harsh memories is one to be envied. It is doubtful that there is a single person in this thriving metropolis on the Golden Gate who has not at one time or another moaned and groaned about the transit problem in San Francisco. The whole system must have been devised by someone from Los Angeles who truly hated San Franciscans.

When a citizen is asked what he thinks we should do about the present transit system, the string of profane ephitets that are encountered is terrific. The suggestions obtained, after the profanity is removed, runs the gauntlet from minor revisions to complete junking of the whole setup.

Something must be done immediately; therefore, it is impractical that the city at once junk the whole system. The only thing San Francisco can possibly do is to obtain as many new street cars as the government will allow.

San Francisco should be able to acquire the necessary priorities for new street cars. After all, San Francisco is a major port to the Orient. For the next few months at least the city will be deluged with service men and women. Its population has been increased terrifically over the last few years.

When the Municipal Railway bought out the Market Street Railway it was thought that there would be an improvement in service. So far there has not been more service, but less, if such a thing is possible.

For a four mile trip to take forty-five minutes is asinine, yet that is the length of time it takes to travel from Third and Market to West Portal. It doesn't take that long to travel from the Terminal to Alameda, which is fifteen miles away.

By installing an express system on Market Street, much delay could be eliminated. The cars could stop every two or three blocks, which would do away with most of those time-entalling stops incurred.

Also many of the present lines need not come all of the way downtown. For instance, the "M" car could be operated from St. Francis Circle to the end of the line. There are also many other lines that are not as heavily travelled.

The Guardsman Sports

RAMblings . .

By Don Lucey

LAST week on page four of THE GUARDSMAN, there was an article that, among other things, stated one Victor Pudlowski was named General Athletic Manager of the Men's Athletic Council.

This is probably the first time that the freshman students have heard of Mr. Pudlowski. It certainly won't be the last occasion, by far.

To use a slang expression which fits very nicely in here, we may say that Vic is one of the "big guns" in the college. His popularity with the students has made him one of the outstanding figures on the campus.

You may have also have read in the last issue that Vic is up for the office of High Sophomore President, and if his past record has any bearing on the election, which will be over when you read this, then he should win by a landslide.

LED AMS LAST SPRING

During the spring semester of 1945 he was head of the Associated Men Students and is also a member of Beta Tau. In addition to all this, he is a representative on the Executive Council.

In physical appearance Vic stands six feet, one inch tall, and tips the scale at approximately 180 pounds. He has used that good build to great advantage in the sports field.

Before coming to the college he made the '39 All-City football team, while playing for George Washington, his high school alma mater.

INJURY MEANS SIDELINES

The reason his name does not appear at the first-string fullback post is because of a broken shoulder he suffered while playing against the California Ramblers in the second game of the season. He has already won his block, and is now secretary of that society.

Coach Lee Eisan considers Vic such a valuable asset on the gridiron that he has made him his assistant coach and adviser.

One of V. P.'s tasks is to plan the budget for all the teams, which isn't an easy assignment. Another activity that he should be given credit for is his handling of the intramural program.

PLANS FOR U.S.F. OR STATE

He intends to finish his education at either the University of San Francisco, or S. F. State. Majoring in History, and Minoring in English, Vic's ambition is to secure a Ph. D.

Getting to the social side, we learn that his hobby is women, but further questioning reveals that it's only one girl for this handsome hunk of man, and she is pretty Lou Peters. To their friends who do not know, they are engaged.

A student registering for chemistry recently at Michigan State College exclaimed in surprise, "Don't tell me I can get the class I want!" "Oh, we let you in," the professor answered. "We wait two weeks before kicking you out."

WAA

Clubs Complete Schedules, Start Regular Meetings

With the adoption last week of the permanent sports schedule the fall semester, the different clubs comprising the Women's Athletic Association are meeting for the first time this week.

Monday afternoon, Instructor Laurine Bergin's group met in the women's gymnasium and organized teams. This club intends to play volleyball for the next two months, shifting to basketball during December and January.

Badminton players started their exereise yesterday under the sponsorship of Bertha Mae Keller, and the social dancing club will meet with Bettygene Otto this afternoon at 3 o'clock and every Wednesday thereafter.

Archers Meet Early

Archery enthusiasts hold their first gathering tomorrow at 12:15 under the leadership of Miss Keller. Ordinarily, WAA sport groups meet between 3 and 4 o'clock, but since archery has a small enrollment and weather is more favorable at the former hour, and the field available, the 12:15 time was preferred, Miss Keller explained.

Of the activities that meet outside the college campus, horseback riding is scheduled every Friday with Mrs. Bergin at the St. Francis Riding Academy in Golden Gate Park, swimming classes every Thursday at 3:30 o'clock in the YWCA pool under Miss Otto's instruction, while ice skaters are scheduled to use the Winterland rink every Monday at 3:30.

There was not a sufficient sign-up for bowling to warrant a sponsor and designated meeting day. However, acting WAA President Janice Beanston has suggested that interested women acquire a WAA membership card and have it signed each time they bowl. Full credit is allowed toward a WAA award as well as a student rate, she pointed out.

Elections Set for Nov. 1

The WAA Election Rally will take place Thursday, November 1, at 11 a.m. in Room 136 if it is available, Miss Beanston announced recently.

Besides the election of permanent student officers, Block SF awards will be presented to the qualified Spring freshmen.

If the following women received a C average or better in grades and their citizenship record is satisfactory, they will receive their blocks: Leona DeBique, Elizabeth Gordon, Dora Greenly, Helen Jouthas, Edna Lamas and Gloria Meschi.

Rams Whip State 24 To 0

Toquinto, Webster, Lane Combo Again Sparks Offense

Out-playing their cross-town rival's in every quarter except the third, the Rams defeated San Francisco State College 24 to 0 on the latter field last Friday.

Led by Bob Seiler, former Ram player, the Gators were stopped by an ever-improving Ram line. During the first period the Gators failed to pick up a single first down.

Lane Scores On Reverse

The first Ram touchdown came after a drive that was sparked by Bob Toquinto, Johnny Lane, and Staten Webster. Lane, on his famous "17" reverse, seored from the three yard line. Toquinto missed the conversion.

In the second period, after a 60 yard drive, Lane again scored. The conversion was no good.

The Gators suddenly came to life in the third period and gained some 30 yards in a powerful drive. The Rams, however, finally took the wind out of the sails of the ambitious Gators, stopping them on the Ram 40. Near the end of the third period the Rams began to march, but the gun ending the period slowed the Ram's drive.

Two Scored In Fourth

At the beginning of the fourth period, after having their drive stopped, the Rams were forced to kick. Henry Boone's kick fell on the Gator two. Seiler attempted to pick it up but was downed by Richie Stanfel, Bob Hazeleaf, and Earl Lawrence.

Seiler fumbled, and the ball was recovered by the Rams on the ten. Vince Miranti smashed to the five. Lane hit right guard to the one, and Webster scored on a smash over right guard.

Late in the fourth quarter Pete Milat circled his own right end, behind excellent blocking for the final six points.

This was the Ram's second straight victory. Remaining games on the Ram schedule are as follows:

October 27—Modesto there, night
November 2—Sacramento
. . . . . here, night
November 9—Salinas . . there, night

Richie Stanfel

Player Of Week Is Running Guard

By Dee Williams

Literally "tall, dark and handsome" is running guard Richard Stanfel, of Coach Lee Eisan's forward wall. "Richie," as he has been nicknamed, is about six feet tall and weighs 170 pounds.

This stalwart, who just turned 18 last July, claims Commerce High School as his Alma Mater, and confesses to having played first string quarterback for the Bulldogs for the last two years.

Officially, this is Stanfel's first semester at the college; however, he attended the last summer session, and it was then that Coach Eisan spotted him as a potential star for the Rams.

Sports run in the Stanfel family, for he hails from a great line of athletes. One of his brothers, Lee, made All-City center for Commerce several years ago, then got the spotlight for superb gridiron tactics at Santa Clara, and is now a captain in the Army.

The two other Stanfel brothers played for Commerce and Mission High Schools and are quite well known among the baseball fans in the city.

Pirates

Eisanmen Travel To Modesto Saturday For Return Game

Taking to the road again for their second out-of-town league game the Rams encounter for a repeat game this season the Modesto eleven this Saturday night at Modesto.

In their first outing the Rams were run over by the Modesto squad to the tune of 24 to 0. This time the Rams are prepared to give an excellent account of themselves in an effort to get even for the trouneing they took.

If the Rams play the kind of ball that they are capable of and play as they did at Sacramento, they should come up on top.

Modesto Always Tough

Every year that the Rams come up against the Modesto squad they find that it is their toughest fight. The Modesto squad always has a good team as it is more or less a farm team for the University of Southern California.

The Rams are showing steady improvement as the last few games indicated. With the team working as a unit, they should be victorious in many more games this season. With the backfield working rather smoothly under the tutoring of Coach Lee Eisan it now rounds up with Staten Webster at quarterback, Bob Toquinto at left half, Vincente Miranti at right, and John Lane at full.

Toquinto is a hard tackler and defense as well as a good blocker on offense. Miranti, the other wingback, also has shown his ability on defense and offense.

Webster, Lake Spur Eleven

Webster, the hard-running quarter, has been one of the main factors in the Rams' improvement offensively. Lane, the hard plunging fullback, also has done his share in bringing about an improvement for the Rams.

Nomination for the player of the week goes to Ritchie Stanfel, running guard on the Ram eleven. His outstanding play in the Sacramento game as co-captain, as well as his ability to call the play on offense plus his standout performance on defense, shows that he will become a great player in later years.

14 Teams Enter Intra Basketball Tourney

Intramural basketball sign ups jumped from seven to fourteen teams last Wednesday, the deadline for team entries. Coach Jack Brady's entire schedule was disrupted by this, and at press time another schedule had not been completed.

The league games, Brady said, will be played on a round robin basis, each team getting a bye weekly.

The teams will be divided into two leagues, which Brady will choose by drawing the names out of a hat.

Games will be played on Mondays, Tuesdays and Wednesdays at 2 and 3 o'clock in the men's gymnasium. Six teams will play each hour on the three courts.

The winning team in each league will play the championship games at night, with the winner of the final receiving gold medals, and the runner-up silver medals.

The fourteen teams that will make up the two leagues are the following:

Beta Phi Beta with C. Papass as Manager and Dean Haug as Captain. Managing the XGI's is Reginald Alexander, and the team is made up of veterans.

The Reds are an all-Chinese team managed by Ben Wong. While Roger Ramio manages the Eagles. Men from Oakland make up the Oakland All-Stars, managed by Nicolini, and the Marina Mashers have Bill Morrison as Manager.

The Bears are a team of men who have graduated from Mission High School, managed by N. Lucas, and the Hot Shots are men from the Richmond District and are managed by Glenn Brown.

Bill Kahn manages the Devils; Ray Augusti manages the Huskies, and the non-military 4-F's are under the guidance of Herb Jatter.

The Engineering Club has not yet turned in its personnel. Richard Brown's Submarines will also be represented on the courts.

neatness in penning the English language, why are the students of this college required, nay—forced, to use ink in "composing" foreign language exams? These subjects are difficult enough to produce in ye ole lead pencil, plus an eraser, without the added barrier of the ink requirement.

The Coach Grooms His Men For Pirate Raid

Grant Marsh

New Head Counsellor Returns From Navy To Find "New Faces But Few Changes"

By Pat French

That the final day for mid-term examinations is set for Friday, November 2, was revealed last week by Grant Marsh, director of counselling and guidance at the college.

Marsh is back after a four and a half year leave of absence during which time he served as Assistant Professor of Naval Science and Tactics at the University of California.

While there he held the rank of Commander and Executive Education Officer of Navy ROTC and Navy V 12.

Duties Were Extensive

Now teaching Physchology 10, his past duties in the Navy included everything from registering programs to seeing that the 1,100 Navy men were "tucked in at night."

Marsh, readjusting himself to civilian life, finds his main problem is transportation and residence. "I moved to Berkeley with the family," he exclaimed, "and now we can't move back!"

No Monopoly On Brains

Formerly the chairman of the department of business education here, Marsh, versatile and enthusiastic, remarked that there were few changes at the college only many "new faces" and he admitted that he had noticed "a majority of women students."

"But!" he added, "Neither sex has a monopoly on brains," and, although he has worked mostly with men during the last four and a half years, he thinks women make just as good students.

"Most of the girls want to be housewives," he said, and with that turned back to a desk loaded with schedules, not even aware that he may have created a topic of argument and discussion.

Ex-Council

Attendance, Budget Create Problems

Fourth Executive Council meeting of the semester has been set by President Robert Mills for 12 noon tomorrow, the room number of which had not been set by Guardsman deadline time, but according to Mills is to be posted on the notice board by the silver pole.

Last week's meeting, held in the newly opened student lounge, was called to order in a somewhat tense and rancourous atmosphere because of the unpunctuality of some of the members.

Opening remark of President Mills was "If you can't come to Ex-Council meetings, you can resign—I don't give a damn who you are."

Chastened, the Executive Council then settled down to consider the various budgets. It was found that altogether there was requested $3000 in excess of the $8000 Associated Student fund. Tomorrow's meeting may decide whether a straight 20 per cent will be hacked off all budgets, or whether individual budgets will be trimmed of all extravagances.

The final budget appropriations will be published as soon as ready.

Luther Lyon, controller, revealed that an attempt is being made to secure reduced rates for bearers of Associated Student cards at a local ice rink.

Student Lounge Open To All From 9 To 4

Formal opening of the student lounge was observed last Thursday with a meeting of the Executive Council at 12 noon.

Although the first day's response to the room was not as overwhelming as was expected, in the future when students become more acquainted with its location and purpose, it should be a very popular place, Bob Mills, Associated Student president, revealed last week.

Doors are open from 9 a. m. to 4 p. m. except when there is a special meeting scheduled for the room. No definite rules have been set up concerning its use as yet, but they will evolve in time, according to Dean Edward E. Sandys.

"The lounge is for the students' use; whether they make a success of it or not depends upon them," Dean Sandys said.

Commuter Car Pool Urged By Sandys

That students commuting from out of town to the college may join in an organized share the ride plan, was announced by Dean Edward E. Sandys this week.

Those students desiring a ride to the college should leave their names, addresses and hour that they come to class at Sandys' office. Anyone who has a car and wishes to bring fellow students to the college should leave his name and hours also at the Dean's office.

"The idea," Sandys said, "is to bring these two groups of facts together so that as many as possible may be accommodated."

Commenting on requests for car pools to games, Dean Sandys said, "It is almost impossible to have a similar plan for the out of town football games, and up to now a chartered bus is out of the question."

Majors in international administration and reconstruction, community organization and reconstruction, and language for reconstruction have been added to the curriculum of Bryn Mawr College.

Problem Of The Week: Food Versus Thought

Axioms are tossed to the winds in the cafeteria's problem this week, because it's "food versus thought."

Students are asked to keep their text books off the tables and chairs so that everyone will have a place to eat.

Part of the faculty's table space has already been taken over to accommodate the students, and in return they are asked to cooperate.

Alpha Gamma Sigma To Coach Veterans

Plans for Alpha Gamma Sigma coaching of ex-servicemen are under way, Elizabeth Mann, president, announced last week.

X-G1 members who wish coaching and AGS students who are interested should apply to Morton Colvin, AGS vice-president, who is in charge of the program.

According to Miss Mann, coaching students has been one of the foremost activities of the AGS. Subjects in which coaching has been requested are English A, Chemistry A, 21, Math A, French 21, and Spanish 21.

Miss Mann added that the AGS members are willing to coach students in Physics A, Biological Sciences, Business Subjects, German, Spanish 22, 23, 24 and French 22, in addition to requested subjects.

AMS Plans Bonfire For Ram-Sac. Game

For the first time in two years the college will have a bonfire rally to build up enthusiasm for the Sacramento Junior College-Ram game, Associated Men Students' President, Ernest Poggi, said last week.

The rally and bonfire is scheduled for Thursday, November 1, at 8 p.m. in front of the men's gymnasium.

Plans are being made to have a local radio sports announcer and a coach from one of the local colleges as guests. Poggi added that refreshments will be served after the rally.

Hotel Training Practical In War Time

John Kay, former hotel division student here, now in Italy, says present job "will spoil me for a civilian career—especially in San Francisco."

John Kay Manages Army Hotel In Italy, Says Military Easier Than Civilians

Although the college's Hotel and Restaurant Division was organized primarily to offer practical education for peacetime businesses and jobs, recent reports from Captain John Kay, former division student in Italy, reveal that the knowledge gained while he was associated with the section has been put to use.

Kay entered the college in September, 1939, and devoted his spare time to jobs in local hotels, both while a student and after his graduation in 1941.

The Army gained an asset when he was inducted as a private shortly after receiving his diploma in June.

Bronze Star Awarded

After being sent to North Africa in 1943, Kay was assigned to the U. S. Civil Government Administration in Italy in view of his ability to speak the language and his success in dealing with the warweary Italian populace. It was in that country that he received the bronze star for valor in an Italian campaign.

Since May 15 this former scholar has been engaged in operating a 100 room hotel for the U. S. Army at Milan, Italy, in which city he had been a student for some time before coming with his family to San Francisco.

He reveals that his latest work is not actually a chore, for the military are decidedly easier to handle than the civilians he once served.

No Trouble, Complaints

"No trouble or complaints, no requests for corner rooms or higher floors, no worries about food shortages, no difficulties with the help, no women guests and crying children, no dogs, no worries about bad checks or skipping bills, no flirting with the waitresses. A hotel like this is a pleasure to run," Kay confided in a recent letter to the division.

He went on to disclose, "There is no labor turnover. All help has been ordered to stay on their jobs. Simple, isn't it? One maid was caught stealing candy bars—and AMG sentenced her to 90 days jail. I have no more trouble. This job will spoil me for a civilian career especially in San Francisco."

Kay's twin sisters, Margaret and Ruth, are now enrolled in the college preparing for further work at a university.

Hotel Division

Three Give Picture Of Training Here

Returning to San Francisco this morning are Hilda Watson, chairman of the Hotel Division; Guy Worden, student in the division, and Carl Rutledge, alumnus, who have been in attendance for the past three days at the annual convention of the California State Hotel Association at Palm Springs.

Invited to appear before the convention delegates as representatives of the training course offered here in the hotel and restaurant field, the three presented a rapid fire picture of the hotel division, its accomplishments, and future plans, at last Monday morning's session.

That the college present such a program at the convention was the suggestion of George D. Smith, operator of the Hotel Mark Hopkins and chairman of the Advisory Committee which cooperates with the college in planning the course of study, the invitation following through Fred Godwin, president of the Association and operator of the La Playa Hotel at Carmel.

Worden, former Lieutenant, U.S.A., presented the division from the standpoint of the undergraduate.

Rutledge, former Captain, U.S.A., has just returned from four and a half years of army service and is resuming his former civilian job as manager of the famed Cliff House, which he held from the time of graduation from the college until his induction into the Army.

Rutledge discussed the use he made of his hotel training in achieving advancement in the Army and in successfully carrying out difficult assignments in the feeding of troops.

Music Hour Tuesday Features Aida

The program in music appreciation is open to interested students every Tuesday at 9 a. m. in Room 200 under the direction of Madison Devlin.

October 30 inaugurates the first performance for visitors to this class, and heading the list will be selections from the opera Aida by Verdi.

Aida tells the dramatic story of lovers who are not free to love because of family enmity. The plot is supplemented with extremely inspiring music, the type of which is most different from other Verdi works.

Verdi composed Aida for the opening of the Suez Canal at Cairo in 1871. His associations with the style of French grand opera is evident in the orchestration and treatment of the masses.

The University of Kansas has received a federal grant of $52,257, allotted by the Federal Works agency, to cover cost of maintenance and operation of child care projects in Lawrence and at Sunflower Village, Senator Arthur Capper has recently announced.

Book Exchange Closes Friday For Semester

Having met the ever increasing supply and demand with an all time record of 95 books sold, the Book Exchange closes its doors on another semester, this Friday, October 26.

Operated on a non-profit basis by the Women's Service Society, the book barter will open for the last time on this day between the hours of 11:45 a.m. and 1 p.m., so that students may call for their unsold books. Students whose books were sold may collect their money at the bank during the regular banking hours.

Established to meet the need for a text trading-post, the book exchange has proved to be one of the most successful college projects. Under the direction of the WSS, the exchange helped students reduce their college costs.

Loys Daskarolis, president of the society, urged students to call for their books on Friday. Payments will be made at the bank to those whose receipt stub numbers are listed.

Four Women Now Aid Yell King Giannini

Starting something new in the college, a judging committee of Dean Haug, Rally Commissioner; Bob Mills, Associated Student president, and Don Giannini, Yell Leader for the fall semester, appointed four women, Gloria Gold, Dee Roberts, Hilga Haack and Marti Niggeler, of the Pep Club, as women yell leaders for the semester.

It was orginally planned that two women would be chosen but, after much controversy, all four of the candidates who tried out last Thursday in the new student lounge were appointed by the judges.

As yet no other man yell leader has been appointed to assist Giannini.

The tryout was sponsored by the Pep Club, an organization started by Haug and Doris Doran, acting president.

The club is composed of 54 girls who are to wear white sweaters, red skirts and red and white hats to the college athletic events.

AMS Schedules Bonfire Tomorrow

College Clubs

Classes Dismissed At 11 Tomorrow For Meetings; CAB Assigns Rooms To 19 Organizations For Duration Of Semester

Classes give way to club meetings tomorrow with the dismissal of 11 o'clock subjects by authority of the college administration allowing students to attend the various meetings in rooms assigned below.

Inaugurated two weeks ago, this plan urges students to greet clubtime strongly.

Because of the belief that extracurricular activities bring life to college government, students are encouraged by Dean Edward G. Sandys to attend these meetings. Potential members are welcomed by the organizations.

Listing 31 clubs as officially chartered, the Club Advisory Board has assigned rooms to 19 clubs as follows:

Alpha Delta Epsilon, Room 160; Alpha Gamma Sigma, 205; Alpha Lambda Chi, 211; Beta Phi Beta, 111; Bible Study Club, 312; Chinese Students' Club, 136; Tri-Epsilon, 140; Alpha Theta Epsilon, 158; Kappa Phi, 142; Music Club, 200; Phi Beta Rho, 190; Theta Tau, 191; Women's Athletic Association, 100; Cosmopolitan Society, 45; XGI, Student Lounge; Engineering, 37; Forum, 215; Newman, 211; and Pi Mu Nu, 311.

Discrepancy Unexplained

No reason was given by the CAB for the discrepancy between the number of clubs officially chartered and the clubs assigned rooms. It was indicated, however, that some organizations prefer to arrange their own meetings, probably off-campus.

Dean Sandys, approving the list of rooms, said that it would be permanent for the balance of the semester unless some adjustment might be necessary where an assigned room is too small for the organization.

Six Clubs Unassigned

The WAA, considered an integral part of student government rather than as a club, because it is represented on the Executive Council, with the Block SF Society undergoing metamorphosis into the Golden Cleats, and Pi Mu Nu disbanded, although included in the list, the remaining clubs not assigned rooms are as follows:

Pi Mu Gamma, Beta Tau, Hotel and Restaurant Management Club, Women's Service Society, Forum, and Pick and Hammer.

Existence of the remaining seven clubs has not been explained nor has any action been recorded in the Executive Council chartering new organizations.

Data from last semester lists 24 clubs. Nineteen, including WAA, are assigned rooms. Thus actually only 18 clubs are assigned rooms. This leaves the six clubs named with no rooms assigned, and the additional seven "unknowns" to reach the figure of 31.

Pi Mu Gamma Absorbs Pi Mu Nu Nurses

Since Pi Mu Gamma, pre-medical society, is now incorporating all science majors, Pi Mu Nu, pre-nursing club, has been dissolved, declared Lucille Hoffman, former president of the club.

Both men and women students provided they are taking a pre-medical, pre-nursing or science major, are now eligible for membership in the Pi Mu Gamma Club.

High Sophs

King To Reign With Queen At Class Prom

Promising that the high sophomore formal will be the climax of an eventful social year, Vic Pudlowski began his term as high soph president last week.

The big event of the formal will be the crowning of the High Soph Queen elected by the Associated Men Students, Pudlowski said, and the general feeling of the high sophs indicate that again this semester the formal will be held in Oakland because of the success of former dances given in this locality.

Queen Contest Slated

Candidates for the queen will be submitted by all women's organizations and the Associated Students as a whole, following traditional procedure. The high soph sweetheart will reign over the formal after she has been elected by the men.

Pudlowski stated that a high soph meeting will be held this week and at that time he will ask for suggestions by the class members. No definite time or place for the meeting was decided.

King May Be Chosen Too

A king to reign with the queen over the formal seems to be an idea that Pudlowski will discuss with the students. Election of a king, according to Pudlowski, will be an occasion for the women to indicate their preference among the men of the college, and he will then share honors with the queen.

Candidates for king, if this plan is accepted, will be chosen by committees composed of members of women's organizations of the college. All women students will then vote for their choice and the most popular man will be king of the night.

Campus Green Houses By End Of Semester

That plans for the green house to be built for the floriculture classes were going ahead was stated last week by J. Paul Mohr, registrar.

The first group of buildings to be built will include one green house and a main house to be used as a general work area and storage space. These first two buildings should be completed by the end of the semester, Mohr said, and plans also include two more green houses to be built at a later date.

These two buildings will cost approximately $46,000, and an architect to do the work has been appointed. The green house will be located between the men's gymnasium and the Junior Museum belonging to the recreation department.

The green house will be 29 by 100 feet in area. This new building will be complete with heating plant, locker space, storage bins, lath houses and soil mixing facilities.

Fire Burn And Caldron Bubble, Ernie Poggi Solves His Bonfire Trouble

By Betty Jo Smith

The chant of the witches from Shakespeare's MacBeth seems very apropos for the lament of Ernest Poggi, president of the Associated Men Students, who is shown to the right making a "practice" bonfire.

If one man can accomplish such a blaze the size of the Associated Men Students' bonfire tomorrow night can be calculated, provided the men pitch in and help, Poggi said:

As the first big AMS activity of the semester, the bonfire promises to be a high spot of the year. Two long, dreary years have crept by since the last "arsonists' delight," but "Poggi" has dusted off the AMS throne, sat down, and casually cocked his crown.

If his past activities are typical of his future abilities then this will be a memorable semester in the history of the college.

While at Galileo High School, this personable young man held the position of Yell Leader and Treasurer of the Student Body in the high senior year.

After packing his "sheepskin" in mothballs, "Poggi" enrolled in the college and immediately set to work to make a famous name for himself. Whether or not this was done intentionally is unknown, but, nevertheless, that's exactly what this native son did. Hardly a person in the college doesn't shed a light of recognition when the name, "Poggi," is mentioned.

Last semester found him catching and playing second base in the varsity baseball league, which was the championship team, and also managing the college's football lineup. As a result of his participation in these sports, he is an honored member of the Block Society.

The title of President seems to hold a strange fascination for him, for, in addition to being the coveted AMS President, he was recently elected President of the Beta Phi Beta.

"Poggi" has a philosophy of life that can be summed up in four well-used words, and which bear a two-fold thought—he's "in love with Love."

Registrar

1203 Freshmen Register, Total 2118; Graduation Petitions By November 2

With enrollment figures hitting a new high, 2118 students are attending classes this fall, according to figures tabulated by Mary Jane Learnard, assistant registrar.

This is an increase of 668 over the last spring semester, when there were 1450 regular students enrolled.

As it generally happens, freshmen scored the highest total, with 1203 registering.

Women Outnumber Men

Women students, however, still outnumber men students. There are 1173 Women registered compared with 945 men. In the semesters previous to the year 1943, there usually were twice as many men enrolled at the college as women.

Because the war took so many men, for the first time, the women outnumbered the men and have done so ever since. Now that veterans are returning, the great difference in the numbers is gradually diminishing.

Issuing a final warning, Miss Learnard stressed that this Friday, November 2, is the last day on which to file graduation petitions in the registrar's office. This is also the deadline for removal of incompletes incurred last semester.

Grade Out Nov. 8

With the first mid-term period ending this Friday, November 2, all students will get their first mid-term grades from their advisers on Thursday, November 8, at 1 p. m., according to Grant Marsh, director of counselling and guidance at the college.

Because it is important that there be a full attendance at the student adviser meetings, all classes are stated to be dismissed at this hour, he said.

Students will meet their advisers in specified class rooms which will be published in the next issue of The Guardsman.

Three Scholarship Awards This Semester

Scholarship awards for the college this semester will probably number three, according to President Archibald Cloud.

There is a set of Denman scholarships awarded annually to women students who will study at the college at least one year.

They are awarded by Judge William Denman and his sister in memory of their father, who was one of San Francisco's foremost educators.

While such awards have not been much in demand in the last three years, eligibility may be determined now in the office of Dean Margaret Dougherty.

There is also another scholarship sponsored by a local American Legion [illegible]

Entertainers, Coach, Commentator, Pep Club To Appear

THE first bonfire rally to be held in two years will start at 8 p. m. tomorrow night in front of the men's gymnasium.

Under the joint sponsorship of the Associated Men Students' President, Ernest Poggi, and the Rally Commissioner, Dean Haug, purpose of the rally is to build up enthusiasm for Friday's football game with Sacramento.

Non-college entertainers will again be featured, Poggi said, as well as a local sports commentator, together with a college coach from across the Bay.

The Pep Club, Don Giannini and the four women yell leaders are also scheduled to appear.

The names of the sports commentator college coach and the outside entertainers were veiled in an aura of mystery at Guardsman deadline time. However, Poggi is confident that with the turnout expected, the rally will be a success.

Witches Fly, Men Flee; Halloween Arrives

By Jackie Hogan

Lock up the broomsticks, tie down the ouija boards, light up the jack o' lanterns, and hope for the best because tonight is Hallowe'en, the night when witches are supposed to fly, hobgoblins roam and black cats wind their way through darkened streets.

This is the time when youth relives the childhood days when he rang doorbells, soaped windows and dressed in eerie sheets made merry on All Hallows Eve.

Originally an ancient religious feast, it has become a time for superstitious revelry since the pre-Christian era. It was always observed in those times by the lighting of huge bonfires and the belief that it was the one night when spirits wandered around—free and easy.

But fear not the banshee's wails and ignore the witches cauldron, for everyone knows that there are no such things as ghosts and sprites and elves don't exist.

Or do they?

Vets Move In; Student Office To Basement

Because of the large number of veterans entering the college, several offices have had to move their locations to make room for the enlarged veteran registration office which is taking over the former placement bureau.

Veterans will register in Room 115 under Claude Silva. Job-seekers will sign with Joseph A. Amorl in Room 169, and student governmental business will take its place in the basement of Room 128.

The Associated Student office is moved to the student lounge, also in the basement of the college.

The lounge now boasts draperies and added murals. According to Bob Mills, Associated Student President, a juke box is promised for the future, where students will be able to dance on newly painted green floors.

Ram's Horn

Crank Letters Unacceptable

THE Ram's Horn section of this semester's first edition of The Guardsman was taken up with a clarification of its purpose. This was done advisedly in an attempt to anticipate and forestall the type of Letters to the Editor with which we are often plagued during the first few weeks of any semester.

In the first edition of The Guardsman it was clearly stated that all letters to the Ram's Horn should bear the author's signature, but that their names (if they wished to remain anonymous) would not be published.

It is contrary to The Guardsman's policy to publish letters from people whose identities are unknown even to the editor. Last week, however, because of the subject involved, a letter from a Disgusted Student was published—accompanied by an editor's note stating AGAIN the fact that unsigned letters delivered at The Guardsman office are not acceptable for publication.

For proposed publication this week, a Very "low" Freshman submitted an unsigned letter. This time, custom will not be departed from again. In partial reply, and for the benefit of all potential wielders of the "poison pen," the following suggestions are once more given.

Information not of news category, which cannot be gleaned from an intelligent perusal of the Student Handbook, will gladly be furnished. Suggestions for the welfare of the college, and constructive criticism of any department or organization of the college (not excepting its official publication) are desirable, and offer an excellent opportunity for discussion in the Ram's Horn.

To all "very low freshmen" the suggestion is made, that before applying pen to paper and branding themselves as being very ignorant, they should have an intelligent question or piece of information in mind.

In the past the Ram's Horn has provided an excellent method of allowing an outlet for the students, and has thereby started many interesting and informative discussions. Moreover, through the Ram's Horn, The Guardsman and student officers are kept constantly informed as to the sentiments of the Associated Students as a whole.

The opportunity for students to make themselves "heard" is provided through the Ram's Horn. Space is available, letters are welcome, yet this week, for lack of any, but the one communication already referred to, the Ram's Horn is not appearing.

Possibly the rest of the Associated Students are so contented that they find no necessity to find the best medium for their self-expression, and the Ram's Horn may be temporarily shelved.

That possibilfty is scarcely entertained seriously by The Guardsman, who believes that the Associated Students have simply not realized the potentialities of that section, and who therefore have not been moved to express themselves in their usual hearty manner.

Academic freedom is simply a way of saying that we get the best results in education and research if we leave the management to people who know something about them.—Robert M. Hutchins; The Higher Learning In America.

Off The Record . . .

AFTER giving all readers an oportunity to "think over and talk about" last week's article on the language instruction in our colleges, we add the inevitable famous last words.

Let us now glance at the vocabularies. Do they teach the necessary expressions of common life? Or doesn't it rather seem as if words had been drawn at random out of the dictionary more with the view of giving every word representation than to teach those expressions which we actually need and must know. A person might learn a whole dictionary by heart and yet be unable to speak.

And look at the examples. Who does not know how the majority of grammars fill page after page with the most useless and most absurdly ridiculous sentences? Can anyone read such barren nonsense without a smile? Are such phrases ever used by rational people? Is this the language of practieal life?

We hold that instead of beginning our studies with those idiotic sentences, which no common-sense person was ever known to use, we ought to commence with complex, flowing sentences, such as we are in the habit of employing in practieal life.

Nature's own way, by which all persons rapidly and correctly acquire the language which they constantly hear and which they are instinctively impelled to imitate when resident in a foreign country, is the only intelligent way to learn a language. It is through sentences, and never through single, isolated words.

Disconnected words are never language. Nature teaches phrases; grammarians and books, blind to the instructions which nature has so plainly placed before them, give words and most absurdly of all, isolated nouns, which, as experience teaches, are not by any means the most important branch of the language. No one will ever learn a language by studying isolated words, disconnected expressions, and abstract rules.

A true linguistic method is essentially a systematic art. It can in no way be a "natural" method, but must follow and systematize nature. It must produce the same results which nature does, but in a much shorter time and by the simplest and yet most systematic means.

Shall we be taught sensibles, employ a universal sign language, or casually take the long way home?

Shots At RAMdom

FRIDAY found us in a local eating establishment sampling a steaming dish of chowder, with nothing more wonderful in mind than to recapture the vintage of '26. As you may well know, that was THE year for chowder of all types, clams in general, and "oysters tew."

An old refrain stole its way into our memory. It was that sentimental classic of yester-year. Erin's contribution to music, and the perennial favorite of the Hit (Or Miss) Parade, "Who Threw the Overalls in Mrs. Murphy's Chowder?"

Picture YOURSELF as Mrs. Murphy.

There she was—standing over a hot bunsen burner all day, probably getting up before noon to ignite the flame. Poor misunderstood Mrs. Murphy!

Her husband has just lost his job in the foundry. The kids have been black-balled from the candy store at school. An ambulance coming to get one of the boarders ran over grandma on her way to visit poor Uncle Daiquari in the prison hospital.

And there is Ma Murphy, still standing over her chowder, sweating and slaving away, and for what? Just so some jerk can throw an old, dirty pair of worn-out jeans into the cauldron.

What does he think it is—a black market wet wash? It's people like him who are bottlenecks in the laundry system of the present day. Why can't he just rinse out a few things every night, like everyone else finds time to do?

But no! He has to wait until some poor unsuspecting lady like Mrs. Murphy is making chowder, and then he dumps all his old clothes in it.

"This has got to stop!" we shouted, as the white-clad gentlemen gestured to us from a table nearby.

Awaking from our reverie, we sifted our way through the crowds, holding high our newly-purchased bowl of chowder, and ever living monument to the memory of Mrs. Murphy.

(Just guess where we were!)

The Beachcomber . . .

THAT new Truman Draft Proposal, from 17 to 20, if passed will undoubtedly prove to be the salvation of this nation. The average youth between these ages has no objections, for upon his graduation from high school he is immediately drafted and therefore his plans for the future will not be interrupted.

The college enthusiast can merely incorporate a year's training into his schedule. The future tradesman can naturally do the same. Also each young lad, if not already, can become physically fit. Those fellows who are infected with an as yet undiscovered disease will in one sense be forced to uncover it. Don't count that last statement out. It will save many lives.

All in all, as we understand it, this new program will be nothing more nor less than a compulsory CCC deal. As for the need or merit of such training, nothing should have to be said. Their presence is obvious.

Tony Freeman, NBC music director who formerly did the Kirkwood-Harris show when it came from here, now has his own program. Title is, Tony's House. It follows the same corny style of Kirk. Proof is found in the following dialogue:

"That number tells the story of a man who had a servant. This man had a very gruff manner and constantly threatened to beat the old servant, although he never did. Finally, the old servant, not knowing his master was really a kind man, became so frightened that he decided to run away. You see, he had never heard the old Chinese proverb: Don't count your lickens before you're thrashed."

Since we seem to be on the general subject of radio, it would be well to take a crack at those horrible spot announcements that constantly insult the listeners' intelligence. Stuff like: Jo-Jo's baby oil makes baby grow all eight ways. That in itself explains Frank Sanoti's condish.

The pay-off happened the other day when he stumbled into a studio to find three adult women singing um-da-da, a three-piece combo carrying rhythm, and a person who had never sung before singing a calipso tune bearing a plug for a prominent bread firm.

Then it came. Probably the best known MC in town stepped up to the mike and said, "Buy da-da bread. It's fresher." It was all over.

This went on for three recording hours and the whole crew each netted close to a hundred dollars. We're sure the listening audience would rather have the money invested in a Corwin drama. The sponsor would, without doubt, receive a larger reaction. But no. We have to listen to um-da-da every time we turn on our radios.

"A university is a place of instruction where universal knowledge is professed.—J. H. Newman, On the Scope and Nature of University Education.

While Thinking . . .

"DOWN with tyranny and oppression."

This was the cry that was raised by the American revolutionists in 1776, by the French in 1789, by the Russians in 1917. This was also the cry raised in 1945 by the people of Venezuela. They were dissatisfied with their form of government, so they took the only possible move they could. They revolted.

The revolution was a short but successful one. They wanted something, and they wanted it enough to resort to violence. All they wanted was the right to vote for a president directly. Although technically Venezuela has been a republic for 134 years, the people have still not been allowed a direct vote.

Venezuela's electoral system is a form of pyramid. The citizens at the bottom of the pyramid vote for a city councilman. This city councilman then elects a state senator. The state senator votes for a national senator whose duty it is to elect a president.

Although the pyramid is now full, there is still more to be added. A governor is appointed for each state by the president. City mayors are the city officials are chosen by the appointed by each governor. All of mayor. After viewing this hodgepodge of appointees, there is no question as to why the Venezuelans revolted.

Venezuela was the first South American country to become a democracy. Yet in a very few years she became subject to another form of slavery, the slavery of dictators. Until 1935 Venezuela was ruled by a long chain of dictators, even in 1935, when the new constitution came into effect, the people did not receive a direct vote.

Venezuela, the first South American country to be touched by Columbus, is one of the oldest countries in the Western Hemisphere. She is the third largest producer of oil in the world. Undoubtedly she is rich in undeveloped resources. Now that she is getting a chance to get ahead, Venezuela should rise. Whether she will, time alone can tell.

RAMblings . .

By Don Lucey

RECENTLY on this page you may have read an article that tells us 14 teams have entered the intramural basketball competition.

To some individuals this may seem like a large number, but your reporter does not agree with this point of view. To back up our statement, suppose we review a few statistics.

AT LEAST 500 ELIGIBLE

First of all, according to the October 10 issue of The Guardsman, the total enrollment of the college, in all probability, is over the 2,000 mark. To boil down our arguments, suppose we say there are about 500 men eligible to participate in this college activity.

The other 1,500 are made up, of course, mostly of women, and a sprinkling of men who have won casaba blocks in varsity play, or are unable to engage because of physical handicap or a minor difficulty, such as a lab on their program during the time the games are in session.

The dozen and two clubs that have signed up comprise approximately 75 lads. A good many of these outfits will be without a single substitute, sad as it may be.

BUT 425 WON'T PLAY

By simple subtraction we find that there are roughly 425 males who, for some reason, do not desire to exercise a little (which wouldn't hurt them at all).

This is, in the estimation of your Rambler, a very serious situation, which should be remedied immediately.

There is certainly no lack of popularity in this sport. Attendance records show that the hardwood pastime annually attracts more fans than any other type of athletic event. When such interest is shown, naturally a greater number of people would prefer to be on the floor, rather than on the sidelines.

AMERICAN SPIRIT NEEDED

With the war over and the Associated Student organization increasing to nearly its normal size, it is also about time we acquired some of that old college spirit, which is so typically American.

Sitting in the stands is no way to accomplish this. If we want to keep the college on the map, then everyone should get solidly behind all the worthwhile functions, and the Intramural program is definitely one.

Ninety men have enrolled in the boxing class this semester under the direction of Jack Gaddy. At present he is instructing them in the basic fundamentals of this energetic pastime. The coach has announced that at the end of each half semester there will be an elimination contest.

Holding true to all college traditions, the students, in the early days of organization, voted the school colors to be red and white, and for mascot, the indomitable RAM.

Football—Modesto, Pirate T Formation Buries Ram In First Half, Slaps 21-0 Count On Scorebook

A second conference defeat was handed the Rams last Saturday by Modesto Junior College Pirates by a score of 21 to 0.

The powerful Modesto T formation literally buried the Rams in the first half of the game. The pirates kicked off to the Rams, who were held and forced to kick. On the first Modesto play from scrimmage, the left half ran 68 yards through the amazed Ram team.

The Rams, after receiving the kickoff, were stopped cold by the strong Pirate line. The second Modesto touchdown came after Henry Boone's blocked kick was downed in the Ram end zone.

Half Ends 19-0

Later in the second quarter, Modesto again scored on a pass which was good for 70 yards. The Rams' only bright moment came when Staten Webster circled left end for 35 yards to the Modesto 5-yard line. The Modesto line held the Rams for four downs. The half ended with the score 19 to 0 in favor of Modesto.

The second half found the Rams coming to life. With John Lane, Bob Toquinto, and Vince Miranti hitting, and Webster running the ends, the Rams gained some ground, but Modesto soon stopped the Rams' progress.

The Ram defense held the Pirates to only two points, which resulted from a safety after Weber's pass from center went over Boone's head and was recovered in the end zone by a Ram player.

The entire Ram line played a great game. Outstanding in the line were Richie Stanfel, Don Grant, Captain John Mapelli, and Don Jensen.

Second Place Chance Good

With two more conference games scheduled this season, the Rams still have a good chance of earning the second place position in the Northern California Junior College Conference.

According to the Los Angeles City College newspaper, a game had been tentatively scheduled for the Rams against the Los Angeles team, which was later cancelled.

Improved Line Expected To Give Rams Second Win Over Panthers This Friday

Back from Modesto for their second league game on home grounds, the Rams buck up against the Panther eleven from Sacramento this Friday at 3 p. m. on the S. F. State College gridiron, near Lake Merced.

This will be the second encounter for the two teams this season. In the first the Rams came up on top by a score of 14 to 0.

Although they figuratively walked all over the Panthers despite the low score, the Panthers will be fighting mad and will be after revenge for the humiliation they received on their home grounds.

Second Game More Tense

As is always true, the second time a team plays his opponent the game is higher keyed, and harder played, because one team is after revenge and the other team after a clean sweep of the home and home series. So it will be this Friday afternoon with the Panthers after a win.

With an improved forward wall and a fast and hard running backfield, the Rams should again defeat the fighting Panthers.

This highly improved forward wall is composed of Henry Boone, Don Grant, Don Jensen, Ritchie Stanfel, John Mapellic, Ray Mueller, and Earl Lawrence.

Standouts thus far this season have been Grant, Stanfel, Boone, Mapellie and Jensen.

Jensen Is Iron Man

Jensen, who probably has more playing time to his credit than any other player on the team, has been the iron man at center and has taken a great deal of punishment at this spot.

A great deal of credit must go to Boone for his splendid kicking this season, for he has rescued the Rams thereby from many difficult situations. Stanfel and Grant both have been standouts on defense and offense.

Mapellie, one of the tackles, has made many stops on defense and has taken many men out of the way on offense. Mapellie, who is a big man, is extremely fast for his size.

Getting to the backfield, the two gentlemen who should be pointed out are John Lane and Staten Webster, who lead the team in points scored, each with 18 points. This combination has accounted for a great deal of yardage for the Rams this season.

Nomination for the player of the week goes to Webster for his brilliant playing in the State game with his wide sweep runs. Webster's running and passing has caused most of the worries to the opposing team. Webster, who is the hard running quarterback, is steadily improving and will be a great player in his later years in college.

The Rams' starting lineup for this Friday's game is as follows:

LE, Henry Boone
LG, Don Grant
C, Don Jensen
RG, Ritchie Stanfel
T, John Mapellie
T, Ray Mueller
RE, Earl Lawrence
Q, Staten Webster
LH, Bob Toquinto
RH, Vincente Miranti
F, John Lane

Following this Friday's game, the Rams will play Salinas Junior College at Salinas, Friday, November 9.

Staten Webster Player Of Week's Hobby Is Flying

By Don Lucey

He stands five feet, ten inches in height, weighs 170 pounds, and is the first string quarterback of the Ram eleven.

He is none other than Staten Webster, one of the standout performers of the college football team, who has proved himself an able man on the gridiron, scoring three touchdowns in five games.

Webster developed this playing ability at his old alma mater, Commerce High, participating on the Bulldog squad for two years, and becoming one of the stars of the prep league. He was named on the second team of the last All-City roster.

S. W. is only a freshman and will see a lot of action next semester, when he returns as a letterman. He is also a pretty fair left fielder on the baseball diamond.

Webster, on the reticent side, revealed the following information for publication:

He is majoring in journalism, intends to complete his education at the University of California, and likes flying as a hobby.

Awarded to all graduates at commencement, which is held the last day of the school year, is the degree, Associate of Arts.

WAA

Members Meet Tomorrow To Choose Semester Officers, Plan Activities

Election of officers to lead the Women's Athletic Association through the fall semester will be the main order of business at the semi-annual election rally tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock in Room 136, as announced by Acting President Janice Beanston several days ago.

WAA offices to be filled are President, Vice-President, Secretary and Treasurer, and tomorrow's rally will also be the keystone for outlining coming events, Miss Beanston disclosed.

Blocks To Be Awarded

Bertha Mae Keller, WAA adviser, will assist in presiding over the meeting, presenting red and white block letters to Gloria Meschi, Edna Lamas, Helen Jouthas, Dora Greenly, Elizabeth Gordon, and Leona Dibique.

All of these women earned their awards last Spring by fulfilling WAA qualifications in attendance, scholarship, health, and sportsmanship.

As yet, only three women, Ouida Arnold, Virginia Wells, and Wanda McKenzie are bowling for WAA credit. The trio, having acquired the standard membership card, meet regularly at the Lincoln Bowl, and have expressed their desire for additional company.

Miss Beanston said again that WAA members receive a special rate at the local bowling alleys and may play at any time convenient.

Managerial Jobs Open

With the organization of sports clubs, a number of managerial positions are automatically open, Miss Keller stated recently.

Each club normally elects a manager at one of its early meetings to represent the group at WAA Council meetings which are held weekly in the women's gymnasium.

A quick review of the sports schedule shows eight clubs, including social daneing and bowling organized, and therefore, a comparative number of managers should be elected and sent to the Council meetings, Miss Keller said.

Intramural

Comedy Of Errors Slows Basketball Tourney Schedule

Although six games were scheduled to be played the opening day of the intramural basketball program, last Tuesday, only two were played.

The reason for the short-changed schedule was a veritable comedy of errors. One of the teams entered and scheduled to play was listed under three different names.

Other teams could not play because some members were confined to laboratory classes at the time games were scheduled. Thus the day's schedule was shifted.

All-Stars, Reds Win

The four teams playing were the Oakland All-Stars, who scored 53 points against 26 for the Hotshots. The Chinese Reds defeated the 4F's by a score of 43 to 31.

The teams have been divided into two leagues: The American League has the Engineering Club, 4F's, Devils, Marina Mashers, Eagles and the Chinese Reds.

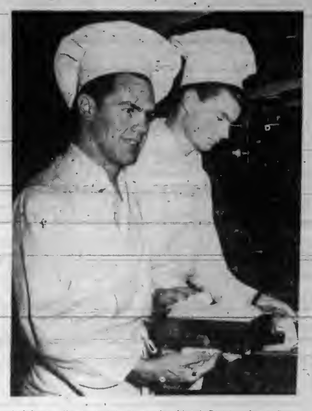
The National League includes the Submarines, Rookies, Hotshots, Oakland All-Stars, Salmons, XGI, and the Beta Phi Beta.

Games are scheduled until Monday, November 5, and the winner in each league will play against the winner in the other league for the championship, in a game to be played either November 6 or 7, Coach Jack Brady said.

Tennis, Football Next

Brady added that the next intramural sports will be tennis and touch-taekle football. Tennis players may sign up for singles or doubles.

Six men will play on each team in football, but Brady pointed out that students who have earned their bloek in football will not be allowed to play on any team beeause most of the particlpants are inexperienced at the game.



What Sacramento Will Face Friday

From Training Here To Flights Around Globe

Caswell Found Melbourne A Paradise Of Steaks, Fizz

By Betty Jo Smith

Captain Tom Caswell, previously enrolled in the Hotel and Restaurant Division of the college, could, if he chose, relate many harrowing wartime experiences, connected with the Japanese, to wide-eyed and open-mouthed students.

Prior to the service, while training in the Hotel Division, Captain Caswell learned the culinary arts, as pictured on this page, serving, in turn, at every station in the kitchen and dining room.

During his second year at the college he had "in-service" instruction in the purchasing department of the St. Francis Hotel under Joseph Primeau, assistant manager. Later his ability was in use at the front office desk of the Hotel Mark Hopkins, also pictured here, where he received the personal attention of George D. Smith, owner and operator.

Similar training is again offered here now that war is over.

Started At Topsy's

Immediately upon graduation from this institution in 1940, Caswell began work with Whitney Bros. as manager of Topsy's Roost at the beach.

Just a year before Pearl Harbor Caswell volunteered for training as an army pilot. Following a period of only a few weeks after receiving his wings, in September, 1941, duty booked him for a "cruise" to Manila, where he reported shortly before the outbreak of the war.

From classes here, Caswell completed the In Service training provided by the Hotel Division through cooperation of California Hotels. Above he is shown, center, at the desk of the Mark Hopkins, with George D. Smith, owner and operator, and a guest.

In October, 1941, Caswell arrived in the Philippines and later, when the Japs began to land there, he spent three months living with natives on Mindanao. During this period of horror he became a demolition expert. When the last army plant left the Philippines, the Captain was one of the relieved passengers aboard.

Melbourne Meant Paradise

His one year of paradise in Melbourne, Australia, was spent, among other things, in the enjoyment of steak and champagne. From Australia he flew on bombing missions in the B-26, Port Moresby.

On returning to the United States in May, 1943, he was detailed to give final training to B-26 bomber crews preparing for the European war.

After transferring to the Air Transport Command in November, 1944, Captain Caswell flew various types of aircraft over all but two of the States. One single ferry trip took him to Paris (where he celebrated V-E Day via the Caribbean, British Guiana, Liberia, Dakar, Oran, and Marsailles.

On another assignment he was attached to a transport that carried important personage from Washington, D. C., to Latin America, Cuba, the Panama Canal Zone, and various places along the western const of South America.

TRAVELS ENCIRCLED WORLD

His last foreign trip was to Blackpool, England, where he transferred and flew a war-weary B-24 back to the States by way of Wales, Scotland, Iceland, and Greenland. By this time he'd "circled" the world several times.

At present Captain Caswell is visiting his family and renewing old acquaintances locally. Soon he expects to leave again for the Philippines with the intention of engaging in business in Manila. To date he has not yet announced whether this future is to be along hotel lines, but his dealings in that direction are said to be paramount.

Veteran Program

Special Classes Set For Late Entrants

That five workshops have been set up for veterans enrolled at the college was announced last week by Claude T. Silva, history instructor and veterans' adviser.

Giving veterans individual instruction, work shops organized are for math, Spanish, English A and English H, history, political science, and chemistry.

Designed mainly to make up high school deficiencies instruction is provided in the following courses:

Algebra, geometry, and trigonometry in the math workshop; the equivalent of one year of high school Spanish in Spanish A; high school English in English A and H; high school history and political science; and high school chemistry in Chemistry A.

In the case of a promising student, Chemistry 21 A also may be taken in the chemistry shop, Silva pointed out.

"However, veterans entering from now on," Silva continued, "may not carry more than nine units." In this way more time can be spent in the courses taken, and full semesters credit will be granted if the courses are completed.

Remigio Archuletta Heads XGI Group; Leaders List Social, Scholastic Aims

Election of Remigio Archuletta as the new president of the XGI Society was announced last week by Claude Silva, Veterans' Coordinator and organization adviser. Also elected are Bill Smith, vice-president, and Jim Early, treasurer.

Under the newly approved schedule of activities are basketball and baseball teams, a debating team, joint meetings with sororities, bowling facilities for XGI members at reduced prices, and social outings, probably to be held at Sigmund Stern Grove, Archuletta said.

Committee To Interpret Laws

A committee under the guidance of J. E. Stagg has also been appointed to further in the assisting of the veteran in interpreting and explaining the various laws under which the veteran is entitled to benefits.

Also incorporated into the newly formed XGI constitution is the aim to aid in the familiarization and adoption of the veteran into college life.

Meetings for discussion of ideas and problems in adjustments have been planned, and suggestions for a pamphlet and aid to XGI's during registration are also under consideration.

A. G. S. To Aid

Aid from the Alpha Gamma Sigma service have been offered in order to promote a high scholastic standard for the veterans.

Archuletta, the new president, is ex-Navy and served with a Marine fighter squadron in the Southwest Pacific. Smith, who served with the 23rd division of the Marines, has won the Silver Star and the Purple Heart. Early, ex-Navy electrician's mate, saw service aboard the U.S.S. Tuscaloosa.

Bass, Booher Back; Rerman Returns Soon

Returning to the college this week is Thomas J. Bass, one of the original mathematics instructors here before he took leave to serve as a commissioned pilot with the Navy Transport Service.

Also back in the states is Lieutenant Louis Berman, who is enroute to St. Paul, Minnesota, where his wife resides with their small daughter.

Lieutenant Berman will return to the college astronomy department after the first of the year. He has been working with a radar division at Guam.

Released from the Army and back at the college since last week is Captain John Booher. Booher was a science instructor here, but has been asked to aid Claude Silva, veterans' counsellor, in assisting veterans to organize their programs here.

Club Cavalcade . . .

By Jeanne Williams

• Alpha Gamma Sigma: Members are urged to attend a meeting tomorrow at 11 a.m. in Room 310.

• Alpha Lambda Chi: The second rush affair of the season will be a barbecue planned for this Sunday, from 11 a. m. to 3 p. m. As yet the location is undecided.

• Alpha Theta Epsilon: All new members must attend the initiation tomorrow at 11 a. m. in Room 158. A dessert luncheon will be served following the initiation.

• Beta Tau: This Sunday members will hold an informal initiation at the mountain home of Charles McKiernan, advisor.

• Engineering Society: An excursion through the Ames Aeronautical Laboratory at Moffatt Field is planned this Saturday. Anyone interested in going should see Irving Diamond, president.

• Epsilon Epsilon Epsilon: Monday night, November 5, at a dinner at the Palace Hotel, new members will be formally initiated. Bob Onorato is now president and Bob Duncan, a returning member, was elected vice-president. At a recent alumni meeting the Sigma Delta Epsilon was organized. This is an organization for all Tri E's.

• Kappa Phi: Alumn Marge Mafdwich recently announced her engagement to Lieutenant Herb Foodisch, U.S.N.R.

• Phi Beta Rho: The next meeting is planned for Wednesday, November 7, at the home of Barbara Chambers, 155 Beverly Avenue. Jean Cronin and Bobbie Bomwell recently announced their engagements.

• Music Club: Election of officers will take place at a meeting tomorrow at 11 a. m. in Room 200. Community singing and a musical program will follow the meeting. All persons interested are welcome.

• Pick and Hammer Club: The first meeting of the semester will be held tomorrow in Room 45 at 11 o'clock. Membership is open to all students interested in Geology. Election of officers is scheduled for tomorrow.

• Theta Tau: A business meeting is scheduled for Tuesday, November 6, at 8 p. m. Lois Ehlers left October 23 to enroll in Davis College of Agriculture.

• XGI Society: A meeting is planned for tomorrow in the Student Lounge at 11 a. m. The secretary will be elected.

Music Hour Features Gounod, Donizetti

Second performance in a series of familiar operas, conducted in Room 200 at 9 every Tuesday morning, will include Faust by Gounod, and Donizetti's Lucia di Lammermoor.

"Both operas are fine works, and will prove interesting and enjoyable to anyone wishing to attend," Madison Devlin, instructor, said.

Lucia di Lammermoor is one of Donizetti's more serious works based on a novel by Sir Walter Scott. This musical drama tells of a grotesque medley of suicide, murder, and madness. Although the story seems ghoulish, it offers a fine opportunity for some brilliant coloraturas.

Victory Gardens Give Way To Adult Program

Although victory gardening has been disbanded for obvious reasons, adult gardening will replace it, according to Harry E. Nelson, floriculture instructor here. Adults living in the city are permitted to plant gardens here at the college, and furthermore, all supplies, information, and instruction will be provided.

There are three separate gardens on the campus now, comprising 150 plots, and plans are under way to open another garden this year, Nelson revealed.

Three prizes were awarded to contestants in the victory garden contest, held last semester, on a broadcast over station KSFO by President A. J. Cloud, who was chairman of the advisory council.

Winners of the first prize, a $50 war bond, were Mr. and Mrs. M. Weckerly, who were the first couple to start a garden plot after the war made this type of gardening necessary. Second and third prizes, each a $25 war bond, went to Mr. and Mrs. F. Blougiarl and Mr. and Mrs. F. Olagnier, respectively.

Those receiving honorable mention were Miss V. Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. N. F. Munson, and Mr. and Mrs. I. W. Snow.

28 Contractors Say No To Cement Letters

The now famous cement letters, which were to be placed on the hill behind the college by this semester, are not going to be installed until next semester, for the reason listed below, Bob Mills, Associated Student president, revealed last week.

The first reason, Mills explained, is that at the present time the budget will not allow the $150 to defray the cost of the large S F J C blocks and their installation. Secondly, 28 cement contractors have been interviewed, and all 28 have showed their reluctance to install the letters.

Further, Mills pointed out, with the coming of the rainy season it will be all the more difficult to place them.

However, in the spring, the blocks which for three semesters have been one of the most discussed subjects of college interest, should find themselves situated in their proper place in back of the college.

Ex-Council Will Meet Tomorrow At Noon

At noon tomorrow the Executive Council will hold its usual weekly meeting, the room to be posted on the bulletin board since the present Executive Council quarters have been found unsatisfactory.

Last week's meeting quickly dealt with a variety of subjects, among them, disussion of the Pep Club charter, and the possible contracting of a physician to treat any injured members of the football team rather than taking out insurance on the whole team.

WAA Budget Cut

The Women's athletic budget was cut by $35, and thus lowered to $190. Unsettled disscussion followed on the possibility of sponsoring an "out of town" dance for the benefit of out of town students in order to acquaint them with the rest of the Associated Students. Vic Pudlowski was encharged with working on the matter.

Thirteen dollars was made available to the Pep Club to cover part payment of 50 rooter caps. Moreover, $99.43 was transferred from the Dean of Men's fund to underwrite payment of the bus chartered by the Pep Club for last Saturday's game against Modesto.

Bowling Payment Refused

Controversy raged around the Dean of Men's request that the Ex-Council underwrite the bowling classes' possible discrepancies in payment in an amount which he estimated as being from $50 to $75. Finally, it was refused.

It was unanimously decided that Chuck Shea's council key be awarded to Don Giannini, yell leader, in recognition for his aid in this, and past semesters. Shea did not attend Executive Council meetings last semester.

Final Football Rally This Friday

Student And Outside Talent Feature Surprise-Packed Pep Program Scheduled For 11 O'Clock In WAVE Auditorium

Three featured acts, one of them tightly kept under a veil of secrecy, highlight the final football rally of the season scheduled for the WAVE auditorium at 11 o'clock this Friday. All classes are dismissed for the occasion, Registrar J. Paul Mohr decreed.

Under the leadership of Dean Haug, Rally Commissioner, the program is expected to top all previous rallies in view of the tremendous SURPRISE the committee plans as the third featured act.

The committee is composed of Norma Busse and Maggie Rogers, with Haug as chairman.

Purpose To Promote Spirit

Purpose of the mysterious surprise-packed rally is to promote enthusiasm for Friday night's game with Salinas Junior College, at Salinas.

From under the veil of secrecy, the non-surprise acts include the San Francisco Boys Club in a Trembline Act, and Bob Elliott and Roland Jones, students here, featuring a Boogie Woogie piano duet.

Pep Club To Appear

The Pep Club, led by Yell Leader Don Giannini and his assistants, will be there to back the team with "their enthusiasm, loyalty, and fighting spirit."

Plans have been formulated to exchange rallies with San Mateo Junior College, according to Haug, and another rally is scheduled for Wednesday, November 28.

AMS

Postponed Bonfire Rally Set Nov. 15

Although weather conditions postponed the Associated Men Students' bonfire rally, originally scheduled to be set aflame last Thursday, Ernest Poggi, AMS president, promised, "The rally will definitely be held on November 15."

The initial plans for the bonfire program are expected to be adhered to. The performance is slated to boast a radio commentator, and one of the local football coaches, from either Oakland or San Francisco, who will address the gathering.

Poggi expects a large turnout at the rally, for it will be the first incendiary affair to be held in two years.

The AMS annual barn dance will be held in the men's gymnasium on Deeember 14 or 15, Poggi said. This year's affair is expected to have a few more barn-like trimmings than the previous dances.

Dean Haug

Friendly Veteran Leads A-1 Rallies

By Betty Jo Smith

Perhaps the most striking thing about Dean Haug, Rally Commissioner and Vice-President of the Associated Men Students, is his unlimited and honest friendliness toward his fellow men. His confident bearing and infectious love-of-life have found instant favor no less than the obvious sincerity of his purpose to give the college interest- and crowd-drawing rallies.

Therein lies the secret of his phenomenal rise to the enviable positions he now occupies in the college world.

In Marine Corps In 1942

While attending high school in North Dakota and in various other states, Dean acted in the capacity of President of the Junior Class. Almost immediately after his graduation in 1942, he entered the Marine Air Corps and presently attained the rank of Corporal.

Following extensive training at San Diego Naval Air Station, orders carried him to New Zealand for three and a half months of foreign duty.

Dean had a ringside view of the destructiveness of man-made warfare while serving as a radio operator in a TBF which was based at Guadalcanal. It was at this world-renowned spot that he was wounded in an ammunition dump explosion. After local hospitalization he was transferred to the San

Pep Club To Hold Meeting November 15

A Pep Club meeting will be held Thursday, November 15, the time to be announced later in the student lounge. All men interested in joining the club are invited to attend.

Club members expect to discuss the possibility of allowing more students into the club, elimination of those who do not regularly attend meetings and games, and the subject of dues.

Officers of the club are President, Doris Doran; Vice-President, Hilga Haack; Secretary, Millie Hoffman, and Treasurer, Roberta Robb.

The club is entirely separate from the office of Rally Commissioner and the Rally Committee, both of which assisted the club in its initial organization, according to Dean Haug, Rally Commissioner.

Its purpose is to assist at rallies and games, at which it forms a nucleus for a rooting section.

Ram Cheer Leaders

Flanked by his four charming feminine assistants, Yell Leader Don Giannini apparently has the situation under control, at least as far as college rallies are concerned. Standing beside Giannini are Marti Niggeler, left, and Hilde Haack, while kneeling are Dee Roberts and Glorie Gold.

Counselling

College Classes Dismissed Tomorrow At 1 O'Clock; Students To Get Grades From Advisers In Specified Rooms

Grades earned in all subjects for the first midterm period will be given out tomorrow at 1 p.m., according to Grant Marsh, director of counselling and guidance at the college. As the importance of these student-adviser meetings cannot be overemphasized, all classes are scheduled to be dismissed, Marsh said.

Students will meet their advisers in specified rooms listed as follows:

Cecil Aggeler, Room 100; Alfred Agosti, Room 190; Richard Allman, Room 160; Flossita Badger, Room 200; John Booher, Room 204; John Brady, Room 111; Alice Castro, Room 204; Edwin Cranston, Room 211; Claire Cuneo, Room 158; William Eckert, Room 347; Marian Escher, Room 136; Margaret Flourney, Room 303; Jules Fraden, Room 256; Arthur Furst, Room 193.

John Gerstung, Room 258; Virginia Gohn, Room 207; George Green, Room 140; Mildred Jensen, Room 309; Edward Larson, Room 254; William Mayo, Room 132; Dorothy Mercer, Room 133; Manfred Mueller, Room 206; Joan Muscio, Room 142; Harry Nelson, Room 400; Glenn Noble, Room 205; Milton Polissar, Room 310; Thomas Porter, Room 208; John Ross, Room 312; Jane Scribner, Room 194; Claude Shull, Room 346; Claude Silva, Room 204; Llewellyn Snyder, Room 212; Hilda Watson, Room 107.

600 Now Enrolled In College Night Classes

Approximately 600 students are enrolled in evening courses given at the college, according to Tersa E. Mahoney, assistant in the registrar's office.

Although enrollment ended last week, anyone interested may be an auditor of the classes. No credit is given to auditors, as they do not take the tests given. "In fact," Miss Mahoney said, "about one-half of the people attending the classes are auditors."

Mainly in an effort to make up high school deficiencies, a large number of servicemen have enrolled in evening courses.

Because the WAVE barracks opposite the college have been turned into a dispersement center, WAVES formally stationed there were forced to move downtown, and this has caused a large slump in the number of WAVES enrolled. Most of the WAVES who were taking courses have dropped them, Miss Mahoney said.

Nov. 14 Set As Last Day To Drop Courses

Issuing a warning to all students last week, Miss Jane Learnard, assistant registrar, stated that next Wednesday, November 14, is the last day on which courses may be dropped or programs changed.

By securing a blue slip at the registrar's office, students may make these changes officially. After the slip is signed by the adviser and the instructors involved in the change it should be returned to the registrar's office.

If the above procedure is not followed and a course is dropped without such approval, a technical F will be received for the course. Moreover no credit will be given for subjects not listed on the official study list, Miss Learnard warned.

American Ed. Week

College Radio Class To Give Broadcast

The twenty-fifth annual American Education Week will be observed in San Francisco, as well as in other U. S. schools and colleges, from Sunday, November 11, through Saturday, November 17.

Sponsored by the National Education Association, the program invites Mr. and Mrs. Tax-Payer to view education on a nationwide scale. The adopted slogan this year is, "Visit Your Schools."

College participation in the week's activities will be in the form of a radio program, probably to take place Saturday, November 17, under the direction of Marie Weller, instructor.

The program will be of the forum type, and station and time will be announced later.

Saipan Village Gone; Students Eye Site

By Pat French

The end of the war-time construction of Saipan Village north of the college is visible today, and students are watching these "green pastures" in regard to a site for the planned recreation hall.

The land, under the auspices of the Park Commission, would furnish a desired location for a fine arts type building, according to President A. J. Cloud.

Until such time as this dream comes true, students are lucky enough to have a recreation department within range at the WAVES barracks.

Choir Plans Christmas Festival Dec. 6 And 11

Dates for the college's traditional Christmas programs were determined last week in a revised schedule of college activities.

The first program, planned for the WAVE auditorium, will be presented Thursday, December 6, at 10 a.m., and takes the place of the program heretofore given in one of the main large lecture halls to capacity crowds.

Following the success of the off-campus festival of last year, the college music department will offer an extension of the campus program at the Veterans' Auditorium, Tuesday evening, December 11. This affair will again be co-sponsored by the Associated Women Students and the Music Club.

Centered around the college A Cappella Club, directed by Flossita Badger, the program is expected also to include selections by the college orchestra, featured solos, and the traditional Christmas choir processional, Adeste Fidelis. Madison Devlin is conductor of the orchestra.

Ex-Council

Permanent Room Needed

IT SHOULD not be premature to assume that by the end of the first midterm period matters around the college should be sufficiently ironed out so that among other things, the Executive council should have assigned to it a permanent office.

Last semester under pressure from Bob Mills, Associated Student president, the Executive Council was assigned Room 111 as its permanent office.

In previous semesters, Rooms 155 and 169 had been used by the Executive Council, but because of their smallness, were each in turn discarded.

Since the Executive Council is made up of the duly elected Associated Student officers, and is the student governing body of this college, its meetings should be held in an office of sufficient size to accommodate comfortably, not only all the members, but a minimum of students not connected with the council, but interested in observing the functioning of student self-government.

NO ROOM FOR OBSERVERS

In the past, because of the cramped quarters assigned to the Executive Council as offices, it was difficult for the ordinary students to attend the weekly meetings. Indeed, for just the members of the council to squeeze themselves into Room 169 was quite a problem.

Room 111 fulfilled the requirements of both an office and an adequate meeting place for the Executive Council, and during the course of last semester proved satisfactory.

This semester, which has been one of unqualified confusion, the Executive Council, by an act of the Administration, has been banished for its meetings to the newly opened student lounge, and still another has been designated as the office of President Mills, and the place where student government records are kept.

That the increased enrollment has posed problems of accommodation to the Administration is appreciated, but they can be no more insuperable than those facing the Administration when the enrollment exceeded 3,000 students.

LOUNGE UNSATISFACTORY

All meetings of the Executive Council this semester have been held in the student lounge, which as a location has been generally voted as being most unsatisfactory. The reasons are too obvious to bear detailing.

The latest word from the Dean of Men is that the future meeting place of the Executive Council is to be Room 113. It is certainly a welcome change from the student lounge, but one cannot help wondering how long it will be before either it, or another adequately sized room, will be set aside as the permanent office and meeting place of the Executive Council. So far, the Executive Council has been treated little better than the various clubs in the assignment of rooms.

The end of the first midterm period, together with all its accompanying problems, should see an end also to the lack of firm and vigorous action.

Off The Record . . .

WHEN a columnist finds himself on a beloved topic of criticism and raves on, he will undoubtedly discover many new blood enemies. At this point, if he be wise, there is an immediate switch to the side of the criticized. Heretofore, we have written student opinion on instruction, but the time has arrived for a new topic. Today we have a few general complaints to air—instructors are not to relax, we will come back.

There are a few stupidents (any resemblance to students is purely accidental) in this fine institution of knowledge who receive no end of pleasure from the simple art of destruction. Destruction of the material and the complete breaking up of thought waves seem to be their point in life. There is no visible end to their pranks and sarcasm.

LITTLE SIR ECHO

Instructors find it difficult to complete a phrase without "Little Sir Echo" popping off in the back row. For awhile everyone finds it amusing, but a little of anything is always more appreciated and we find ourselves tempted to commit murder.

The old saying "Love thy neighbor" is not as stuffy as it sounds, if more of us would realize that, to someone else, we are that neighbor. A day may come when our stupidents will find an interest in some class discussion, and we are afraid they may not appreciate the fast, witty remarks we intend to bubble forth unless we receive a bit of consideration.

If they continue their antics and persist in their ribald statements, we will be forced to suggest they return to elementary school, where they may feel more at home. On second thought, even those wee children might possibly find them obnoxious characters.

Off with their heads!

TSK! TSK!

For weeks we had visions of heavenly splendor and lazy comfort. A student "lounge" for our very own. But, when we walked through a certain door and gazed around—we felt we were in the wrong place.

"OH, THIS CAN'T BE A LOUNGE —THERE'S NOTHING TO LOUNGE ON."

As well known constructive (or destructive) critics, may we comment that we were very glad to learn everything is not complete. Understand that draperies, sofas, a rug, a juke box and, possibly, a coke machine will soon be added.

A FINISHING TOUCH

The basement is a terrible location for the ASSFJC. No air, no light, no heat, no cheery atmosphere, not nothin'. The little anteroom is a disgrace and certainly no place for student officers to meet and conduct official business.

While Thinking . . .

"HUZZAH, peace, wonderful peace. We can now return to a pre-war status."

Pre-war status, for Labor at least, means the right to resume the old hostilities between employee and employer. Since the end of the war they have brought their most lethal weapon back into play, strikes.

Strikes have been called by the transportation, oil, electrical, steel, movie and rubber industries. They have all been called with the same objective in mind, a 30 per cent increase in wages.

What the employees want is the same pay for working 40 hours that they received for working 52 hours. This in itself is not an unreasonable demand. During the war prices did rise 30 per cent. Wages rose in a similar ratio. Now that the hostilities have ceased, and the nation is reconverting, employees are returning to a 40 hour week. This means that the amount of their check will be smaller. But prices have not diminished. They have remained at the same level.

Therefore workers decided to strike for a 30 per cent increase in take-home pay. To keep up their present standard of living they want the ratio between wages and prices made equal. The simplest expedient is to raise wages.

President Truman, in his address, stated that he felt that industry could well afford to grant an increase in wages. But he has made a wise move in saying that he would leave it to Labor and Management to settle their differences. It is only proper that the persons involved in the difficul-

Shots At RAMdom

WHEN college life reverts into routine, and students view each other in a light of curiosity, the perennial question of a gossip column rears its head.

Nothing is quite as caustic to the soul of an editor than to have to face cliche little tidbits parading under the guise of news. Just to be on the "in" with Winchell, the column this week presents "girls, guys, and gossip," or "So you want your name in print, eh?"

It isn't as though we're calling on grammar school material to furnish this info, but if you can stand it, I guess we can.

BY NOW the whole question of the existence of college spirit has surely filled the halls, the cafeteria, and the student lounge. As an observer, one can readily note that almost all complainers are not affiliated with the different fraternities, sororities, and progressive groups. It isn't necessary to belong to one of these groups to enjoy this spirit, but as Jack Benny said, or was it John Paul Jones, united we stand, divided we're broke. Naturally it is easier when one does belong to one of these groups.

These groups, or organizations in the past, seem to have been, on the whole, entirely engrossed in fostering their private and personal interests. In fact, the most some of these groups have done is to hold so-called joint meetings. One major exception. Last semester's Spaghetti Feed in which three groups cooperated to hold an entertainment feature for the good of the whole group. Even so, activities, such as the one just mentioned, should be increased and could be.

During the summer, we conferred with the presidents of all the fraternities in regard to an all-frat, all-sorority dance and general brawl. This deal, as we see it, should be sponsored by every organized group at the college and should be open to all students. To finance this venture, there would have to be a small fee for admission.

At least a program like this would start the groups off on a crusade of uniting for the good of the complete college. This Column readily admits some organizations have consistently followed such a program, but isn't it about time for a total unity? Entrance of clubs into such a schedule should be stressed.

NOTES REMIND US . . .

That in northern Pennsylvania, during prohibition, alcoholic beverages were sold in mining towns legally. Coal workers said no beer, no coal.

That Red Skelton just passed away. He dood it too much.

That Doc Sewell points out, constantly, that Laval spelled backwards is lavaL.

That we have to heed to distant call of Stanislavski Pincus, our house boy, and depart.

Letters To The Editor

RAM'S HORN

● Way To A Man's Heart . . . .

Editor, The Guardsman:

Since attending the college term after term, we've always had dances as our social activity. Some of us do not like dances and even some do not know how to dance. Why not have a change such as a weenie roast at the beach? This would arouse the students' interest, and maybe their stomachs. As they say, "The way to a man's heart is through his stomach."

A hopeful student,

—C. C.

RAMblings . .

By Don Lucey

SINCE intramural basketball will be completed in the near future, this column goes on record with a suggestion that a ping-pong championship be next on the program of activities.

There is little doubt that such an idea will not meet with instant approval. A casual glance at the students' lounge will reveal a hectic session going on around the two miniature tennis courts.

Men or women who consider themselves pretty fair at this sport might engage a few of the perpetual inhabitants of Room 25 to 32, inclusive. They can be assured of some hectic battles. And don't for a minute think that table tennis is a kid's game. Should you harbor any delusions of this type, the basement gang will be only too happy to change them.

PING-PONG REQUIRES PRACTICE

Like any other form of competitive exercise, ping-pong requires a great deal of practice, combined with coordinated movements of the body. Usually, regular racquet players prove good in this category, if they can adjust themselves to the size of the court.

The foregoing propaganda campaign was purely for the purpose of arousing interest in such a tournament. In case anyone is in the mood for taking further action along those lines, the best course to follow would be to see some individual of the faculty or student government, who could see somebody else who could, in some way, get the ball rolling.

Speaking to one of the gym instructors might be a step in the right direction. Who knows! One thing must always be kept in mind by the crusader: Where there's a will, there's a way. (It says here.)

ONCE THERE WERE FOUR

Glancing through the past issues of The Guardsman in his spare moments (which are few and far between), the Rambler noticed some curious items. Among them were these: When the college opened it had a football coaching staff of four. Those were the days when the phrase, "manpower shortage," was unknown. It seems that the quantity of mentors didn't produce terrific results at that time. Remembering the gridiron days of old brings up an important announcement.

This column, in the next issue, will definitely contain a complete tabulation of the number of varsity games won by the Ram eleven from 1935 to 1944. The present season's results will, not be included. Also, there will be a sum total of all the points tallied during those nine years, and then an average of the whole thing tiven. Be sure to read these figures, as they are bound to surprise most of you.

How many of the students know that Helen Crlenkovich, now Mrs. Morgan, once attended the college. She did, as a pre-legal student, but wound up as the foremost woman diver in the world. Patty Robinson, another high board star, also was enrolled at the college. So, don't let anyone from a neighobring institution of learning tell you that we haven't had famous people in our midst.

ADD ODD FACTS

From our department of odd facts comes this information. Adding up the weights of the 33 members of the pigskin contingent, gives us 5,900 pounds. Dividing that by the former number gives us an average of 179 for each man on the squad.

After a tremendous exertion of brain power, we ascertain the total weight of the three Ram elevens. Laying all those masculine specimens end to end (without equipment, of course) would equal a Goliath of approximately 191 feet. Boiling him down to the typical junior college gridiron participant shows us that he is exactly five feet, eight inches in stature (5' 8"). That's enough mathematics for this issue.

Eisanmen Squeeze Through For Third Victory, Point For Last Conference Encounter Against Salinas This Friday

WAA

McKenzie Elected President; Sport Schedule Completed

Results of last Thursday's election rally installed Wanda McKenzie as the new President of the Women's Athletic Association. Other officers elected were Irene Mouzakis, vice-president; Eleanore Wohler, secretary; and Leona DeBisque, treasurer.

Presided over by former President Janice Beanston and WAA adviser, Bertha Mac Keller, the meeting presented the final schedule of sports, which stands as follows:

Volleyball, Monday; Dancing, Wednesday; Badminton, Tuesday, and Archery on Thursday. With the exception of the archers, who meet at 12:20, all activities take place between 3 and 4 p.m.

A club such as ice skating is supposed to gather at Winterland Rink on Mondays at 3:30 p.m., but if this hour conflicts with a student's program, she may skate at a more convenient hour. In cases like this, a WAA membership card signed each time she skates gives the student full credit for an award. Bowling, swimming, and horseback riding are now operating on the same principal, according to Miss Keller.

WAVE Basketball Game Set

Arrangements have been made with the WAVES and they will visit the college next Monday evening to play a practice basketball game. Miss Keller warned that the college women participating must meet in the main building at 7 p.m. so that the entire teams may trek to the gymnasium together.

Wednesday, November 21, has been tentatively set for a re-match between the WAVES and the WAA, Miss Keller added.

Since the women who signed up for horseback riding did not appear at the club's last meeting, there is danger that this club may be discontinued. Laurine Bergin, sponsor, has requested that anyone still desiring the sport, see her for further information.

Membership Drive Urged

With physical education on a two-day ½ unit basis, Miss Keller has suggested that present members start a membership drive and take advantage of the WAA's generous schedule and excellent equipment. Furthermore, there is still the possibility of dissolving clubs with fewer than ten members, as such a group usually has less spirit and interest, she commented.

Before play days and tournaments are scheduled, Miss Keller mentioned the dozen or so clubs and sororities on the campus and suggested intramural and coeducational competition, pointing out that the plan has met with much success at Marin and San Mateo Junior Colleges.

Women Physical Ed. Majors To Form Club

In an attempt to re-establish Phi Epsilon Rho, a club for women physical education majors, a special meeting will be held this Friday evening at 7 p.m. at 350 Laguna Honda Boulevard, apartment Number 2.

Such information was disclosed this week by Laurine Bergin, who said that all women physical education and recreational leadership majors are invited to attend.

Plans for organizing this group will be made, she said, requesting that women planning to attend notify Loys Daskarolis, Wanda McKenzie, or Mrs. Bergin some time before Friday afternoon.

Phi Epsilon Rho was first established at the college in 1938 and became inactive in 1942.

Sacramento

San Francisco Junior College defeated the Panthers of Sacramento Junior College, Friday, on State Field, by a score of 13 to 6 in a thrill-packed football game.

The Panthers surprised the Rams by scoring in the first five minutes of play on a pass that was good for 60 yards.

The Rams fought back and finally scored early in the second quarter. Staten Webster circled the left side of the Panther line, running 35 yards for the first Ram touchdown behind excellent blocking. Toquinto's conversion was good.

Rams Outplayed In Third

The Panthers outplayed the Rams throughout the entire third quarter. The Panthers, using delayed action bucks, forced the Rams back deep into their own territory, where the Ram line, playing great defensive ball, held them on two occasions.

The second Ram touchdown came after Quarterback Webster had again circled left end for 45 yards to the Panther 20 yard line. With Johnny Lane, Vince Miranti, and Webster carrying, the Rams moved the ball to the Panther 4 yard line, where they called time.

The Rams scored their final touchdown on a reverse-pass from Miranti to Henry "Daniel" Boone. Boone made a sensational diving catch of the ball to give him his first college touchdown.

Webster Leads Scoring

Webster now heads the Ram scorers with 24 points; Lane runs second with 18 points. Pete Milat and Boone are both tied with six points, Robert Toquinto is fourth with four points.

The outstanding linesmen were Don Grant, who played the best game of his college career; John Mapelli, who was captain; Richie Stanfel, and Don Jensen.

College Again Sponsors Prep Basket Tourney

The second annual High School Basketball Tournament, sponsored by the college, will be held during the first two weeks in December, Director Lee Eisan announced last week.

The tournament will be organized on an elimination basis, which provides for a winner and a loser tournament. The qualifying rounds are scheduled for the first week of December in the gymnasium here and the quarter finals, semi-finals and finals will be played in the second week of December at Kezar Pavilion.

Starting time for the games is 6:45 p.m., 8:55 p.m., and 10 p.m.

Director Eisan stressed that the purposes of the tournament are to encourage better relations between the schools, to familiarize the public with the location of the college, and to encourage attendance to the college.

Some 20 to 30 entries from San Francisco and Bay Area high schools are anticipated.

Last year the tournament was held for the first time. Ten teams entered, and George Washington High School of San Francisco was the winner.

Salinas

Taking to the road again for the fifth time this season on what may be the last game of the current season, the Rams go south to play the Salinas Cowboys at Salinas this Friday night.

This is the first encounter of the 1945 season for both teams. The Rams go into the fray with one win and two losses in the league standing with the results of the Sacramento game unknown at this writing. The Rams are more than even after a victory so that they can wind up the season with a win.

The Cowboys lost to Modesto, 21 to 0, and tied Sacramento, 12 to 12, while the Rams lost to Modesto, 21 to 0, and defeated Sacramento, 14 to 0. If these figures mean anything, the game should be rather close.

Although there was a slight letdown during the Modesto game, the fighting Ram eleven will be in there pitching for an end-season win.

The probable lineup for this Friday night's game is as follows:

LE, Henry Boone.
LG, Don Grant.
C, Don Jensen.
RG, Ritchie Stanfel.
T, John Mapelli.
T, Ray Mueller.
RE, Earl Lawrence.
Q, Staten Webster.
LH, Bob Toquinto
RH, Vincente Miranti.
F, John Lane.

Although the Salinas game is expected to end the 1945 season, it is rumored that Coach Lee Eisan's men may find themselves playing a "post-season" game with Marchie Schwartz' Stanford Indians. If the rumored arrangements materialize, the game might be played in the Thanksgiving week.

Officially, however, the Rams' participation in the Northern California Junior College Conference will end with Friday's game.

Intramural

All-Stars, Chinese Red, Engineers Lead Tournament

Failure of so many teams to show up for their scheduled games in the intramural basketball tournament forced Coach Jack Brady last week to eliminate the missing teams and organize a new league.

This league started play on Tuesday, October 30, and is made up of the Oakland All-Stars, the Hot Shots, Engineering Club, Chinese Reds, The Devils, XGI, Beta Phi Beta and one more unnamed team.

Brady stated that the league is now going strong despite the fact that the first games were won by forfeit.

On Wednesday, October 31, the six teams scheduled for that day appeared, and the games were played. The Oakland All-Stars copped the casaba from the Hot Shots by the wide margin of 52 to 38.

The Engineer's Club scored 52 points to beat the XGI Club's 28. The Devils were defeated by the Chinese Reds, who took the tilt by a score of 49 to 33.

Brady did not give the date for the start of intramural football and tennis, which will be played concurrently. Basketball, he said, should end today or tomorrow, and the other sports will start soon thereafter.

Boxing Show Expected To Climax Intramurals

Indications last week pointed fairly definitely to restoration of the semi-annual college boxing matches, probably to be held some time in January, as a climax to the intramural tournaments.

Whether the Associated Men Student organization will sponsor the show as it has several times is indefinite.

Boxing is usually part of the intramural program, with training given in the regular physical education classes, and the finals constituting the boxing show card.

Player Of The Week

Galloping Gaels' Earl Lawrence Is Fullback Blessing To Ram Eleven

By Don Lucey

Holding down the right end position on the Ram eleven is Earl Lawrence, a man with quite a background in sports.

He played two years of football at Lowell High School, making second string All-City in '42 and climbing to a first team berth on that mythical squad in '43. While at his former Alma Mater he also indulged in basketball for a couple of seasons, and received honorable mention recognition on the scribes' dream five when he was a senior.

Played For Gaels

Before entering college here, he attended St. Mary's at Moraga. In '44 he was a starter for the Galloping Gaels.

Lawrence's transfer to the college proved a blessing for Coach Lee Eisan, for he brought with him a wealth of gridiron experience. He has truly been a valuable asset.

Heads Golden Cleats Club

His popularity among the pigskin boys is reflected in the fact that he has been elected to the presidency of the Golden Cleats Club.

Scholastic ally speaking, Earl is interested in completing his education at Stanford University, and his major is Arts and Sciences. He hopes to enter the advertising field later on. He flatly stated that he hates women. He hates to be without them.

Earl Lawrence

Asked about the Rams' chances against Salinas this Friday, he is convinced that the Rams will win. Finally, under pressure, he forecast a possible 13 to 0 final score.

Ex-Council

Meeting Tomorrow Expected To Settle AMS Dance Problem

Tomorrow's meeting of the Executive Council will be held in Room 113 at noon, according to Dean Edward E. Sandys. Meetings this semester have thus far been held in the student lounge.

Forthcoming meeting will probably continue last week's discussion of the possible sponsoring of a monogram dance by the Associated Men Students.

Controversial also was the discussion last week of the AMS barn dance, and the bonfire rally. The latter was set for Thursday, November 15, and $60 was transferred to cover the expenses incidental to it.

Other matters considered were an Alpha Gamma Sigma request for $40 which was refused, and the resignation of Vic Pudlowski from the position of men's athletic equipment custodian.

No satisfactory solution having as yet been found to the financial problems besetting the Executive Council, Bob Mills, president, appointed Dean Haug and Dean Sandys to aid him in a close scrutiny of the men's athletic budget, for the purpose of, if possible, curtailing all but traveling expenses.

Before adjourning, Mills appointed Pamela Sampson and Haug to work with him on the new Associated Student constitution.

Art Club Paints Student Lounge Mural

Work Depicts S.F. Recreational Life

By Jackie Hogan

"Mural, Mural on the wall, you're the fairest one of all."

Well, maybe that's not the way the fairy tale goes, but one look at the mural that is intended for the wall of the student lounge proves that it really is something to see and a fine piece of work.

Depicting San Francisco recreational life, the large and colorful art work was designed by Fred Mayer, student and vice-president of the college art club, Alpha Delta Epsilon.

The work of the mural is being done solely by students who are members of the art club under the supervision of Richard Allman, art instructor.

Those of the brush wielders who are willingly devoting their time and talents to the project are Connie Trigonis, president of Alpha Delta Epsilon, shown in the picture while working on the mural; Josephine Raymond, secretary of the club, and Laura Chatelaine, social secretary. Other club members participating are Norma Platanesi, Guilio Ravella, Berton Oldham, and Joseph Moss.

In case anyone is wondering what became of the mural which had been residing in the lounge, it has been moved to another room to hasten its completion. "We are working very hard to finish it soon," Miss Trigonis said. "Work was started at the end of last semester, but because nothing was done on it during summer, it is not yet complete."

When the present mural is finished and is placed in the lounge to brighten up the surroundings, the art students will attempt two more murals of similar design.

Placement

Applications Due Now For Vacation Post Office Jobs

Post office jobs in San Francisco and Oakland for the Christmas vacation are now available at the Placement Office in Room 169, according to Joseph A. Amori, director. These positions will begin Saturday, December 1, and last through the New Year holidays.

Other jobs available at the placement office are for typists and office clerks for insurance companies, and salespeople for department stores. These jobs require at least several hours in the afternoon and full time on Saturdays. The department stores desire that students be available for work by 1 p.m. and work all day Saturday.

Board and room jobs are available for students interested in domestic or child care work. Some of these jobs pay by the hour and others pay $30 per month plus board and room.

Amori stated that part-time jobs are beginning to be scarce because of the large number of veterans coming into the bay area. However, there still are jobs available for students at the college at the present time.

East Bay May Be Scene Of High Frosh Dance

That a High Freshman dance is being planned for the near future was revealed this week by Doris Pederson, Associated Students' vice-president and head of the Social Committee.

The committee is trying to obtain accommodations for the affair at a hotel across the bay as past dances held there have been very successful. Tentative date for the dance, which will be informal, is Friday, November 16.

It is probable that music for the affair will be by Ray Hackett and his orchestra, but this is not yet definite, Miss Pederson explained. Full details should be available by next week.

The Low Freshman dance which was held in October was a great success and it is hoped that this one will be as great if not greater, Miss Pederson concluded.

Car Pool Drive Nets One Car, Three Riders

In response to an appeal by Dean Edward E. Sandys early in the semester, one student has offered his car with room for five riders to the East Bay car pool.

"So far," Dean Sandys declared, "only three students have applied for rides and are now getting them."

Another convenience sought by Sandys, the chartering of busses for out of town football games, has met with more success.

One bus was chartered for the team and band for the Modesto game October 26, and two have been chartered for the Salinas game this Friday.

Tickets for the busses are now on sale at the bank.

More While Thinking

ties should reach their own decisions.

Yet if these strikes are not settled swiftly and amicably post-war reconversion will be retarded seriously. This is one thing that can and must not happen. There are innumerable products that must be produced before we can rebuild. The industries that are now out on strike are the ones that must do the producing.

Let us hope that Labor and Management can get together and reach a verdict. There is no reason why they shouldn't.

More About Haug

Diego Naval Hospital, where he received a medical discharge.

"Haug, Dean" was first filed in the office of the registrar at the college last February, and it was present all through the summer session; this due, no doubt, to his desire to shorten the time toward becoming a lawyer.

Rallies Draw Crowds

Already his energy and ambition are beginning to pay dividends in the crowds that attend the rallies, and, if possible, he plans to exchange rallies with San Mateo Junior College some time before Christmas.

Dean has always driven himself hard, giving liberally of his time and ability to whatever project he has on hand, and his magnetic personality imbues his associates with the same vigor and enthusiasm which is so much a part of him.

Booher Aids Vets, Says 'Nothing Changed'

Well suited for the job of advising veterans at the collete is former chemistry instructor John Booher, who returned recently to his civilian vocation of teaching here after almost three years as a captain in the Army.

Booher, last stationed in Washington, where he served in the Office of the Chief of Ordnance, Military Plans and Training Service, is eager to get back to his science teaching.

He is staying in San Francisco, thanks to Lee Eisan, until the tenants release his home here. Eisan runs a "grand hotel" for his returning friends, so that they can teach in the city without inconvenience.

Booher had little to say about the condition of the college, and confessed he was waiting a good opportunity to eat in the cafeteria. "I know the food must be good," he said, adding "I don't think anything has changed."

Booher is here with his wife and young son, acting as an "aide" to the veterans and Claude Silva, veteran counsellor.

CAB Accepts Delta Psi, Golden Cleats Charters

Explaining the mystery of the unknown clubs which have not been assigned rooms at the weekly club meetings, Ralph Hansen, Club Advisory Board president, stated that these clubs hold their meetings off campus, but are all duely recognized.

This clarified the situation of the six unassigned and seven "unknown" clubs which have been in existence this semester.

Also, according to Hansen, two new clubs have been chartered this semester, the Golden Cleats, formerly the Block SF Society and the Delta Psi, a new sorority.

Club Cavalcade . . .

By Jeanne Williams

• Alpha Theta Epsilon: Formal installation of officers is planned for this Friday evening at the Residence Club, 940 Powell Street, at 8 p.m. All persons expecting to attend must sign up in Room 158.

• Epsilon Epsilon Epsilon: A joint meeting with the Theta Tau Sorority will be held this Friday evening at 8 p.m.

• Kappa Phi: The second rush affair will be held Sunday at the home of Nancy Schulz, 571 Magellan Avenue, from 6 to 9 p.m. Bobbie Huthmacher recently announced her engagement.

• Pick and Hammer: At a meeting held last week the following officers were elected: Don Giannini, president; Phylis Greenly, secretary; June Kren, treasurer. Regular meetings are scheduled for the first Saturday of each month at the home of George Green, adviser, 170 Lunado.

• Phi Beta Rho: The second rush affair is to be Wednesday, November 14, at the home of Gloria Fontes, 150 Monterey Boulevard. A business meeting is scheduled for tonight at 7:30 p.m. at the Rolph Mansion. A joint meeting with the Beta Phi Beta will follow.

• Theta Tau: Plans for a joint meeting with the Tri E's this Friday evening are being made. Marie Seppich was recently married at the Ebenezer Church to Howard Costa. Another newly married member is Vonnie Dalziel, who was married at the First Baptist Church in Berkeley to Jay Hall, a C.P.O. in the Navy and an ex-Cal man.

• Beta Tau: Plans for the informal initiation have been changed and the initiation will now be held in the near future here in the city.

• Beta Phi Beta: There will be a joint meeting with the Phi Beta Rho Sorority tonight at the Rolph Mansion at 7:30 p.m.

• Golden Cleats: Election of officers will be held at a meeting Monday in the men's gymnasium at 2 o'clock. Plans are being made for the annual inter-high school basketball games to be backed by the club.

• XGI Society: A special meeting will be called in the near future to announce the social gathering with the Chinese Club.

• Music Club: The officers elected at the last meeting were Pat McCormick, president; Gene McGowan, vice-president; Geraldine DeGroot, secretary; James Finnley, treasurer; Andra Tegelberg, historian; John Blauer, publicity chairman; Maxine Tryon, refreshment chairman; and Frank Owens, program chairman.

All members are urged to be present at an important meeting tonight in the student lounge at 7 p.m. Refreshments and entertainment are promised.

More Letters To The Editor . . . Conscription

Editor, The Guardsman:

In the October 31 issue of The Guardsman, a person who calls himself or herself "Brownell the Beachcomber," puts forth a few remarks in favor of military conscription. I would like to use this opportunity to give my opinion on this vital subject.

The above article states, in part: "The average youth between these ages (17-20) has no objections." If this were the case, what would be the purpose of a draft?

The article goes on to say that the "college enthusiast" can "merely" add one year's training to his schedule. This means that besides the year added to the fourth year curricula, there is also one added to the [illegible] time for the doctor, lawyer, minister, teacher, and the nuclear physicist, who already have to spend more than four years after H. S. to train for their jobs.

The article says that "each lad, if not already, can become physically fit." Under the Truman plan only the healthy fellows would get military training, as per usual. The others would be trained in war industry trades. As an ex-war worker I know that war jobs do more harm than good to one's physical condition. And isn't 17-20 rather late to begin improving physiques?

The article fails to discuss the two most important considerations. The first of these is the normal issue. Would it help the morale setup of adolescents to be taught disregard for the seriousness of and ingenious methods of committing such crimes to themselves and society as robbing, blackmail, rape, perjury, or any other crime?

Is not the taking of human life always considered the worst of crimes? Yet every man in military training, with the sole exception of the Medical Corps, is learning ingenious ways of taking human life or helping someone else to do so.

There is no sound military need for this program. What are mere men against atomic weapons? Already only a crude atomic weapon in the form of a bomb releasing only a minute part of the tremendous, unimaginable power in the atom has wiped out two cities. And the scientists who developed the bomb ALL insist that there is not and cannot be a way of defending ourselves against atomic weapons or stop other nations from getting them.

In my opinion, the true step to international security is international cooperation and goodwill, and not training young Americans in the methods of pre-atomic wars.

Sincerely,
Lloyd Charles Engelbrecht.

Clubs

Meetings Called Tomorrow At 10; Classes Dismissed

All classes will be dismissed tomorrow at 10 o'clock in order that students may attend various club meetings in the assigned rooms, Dean Edward E. Sandys and J. Paul Mohr, registrar, said last week.

New permanent rooms assigned are as follows and include 23 chartered clubs.

Alpha Delta Epsilon, 160; Alpha Gamma Sigma, 205; Alpha Lambda Chi, 211; Alpha Theta Epsilon, 158; Beta Phi Beta, 111; Beta Tau, 254; Bible Study, 312; Block SF and Golden Cleats, 194; Club Advisory Board, 257; Chinese Students, 113; Cosmopolitan Society, 258; Engineers, 37; Forum, 215; Kappa Phi, 142, Music Club, 200; Newman Club, 212; Phi Beta Rho, 190; Pick and Hammer, 45; Pi Mu Gamma, 204; Theta Tau, 191; Tri Epsilon, 140; Women's Athletic Association, 132; Women's Service Society, 193; and XGI, 136.

To clarify a misstatement in last week's Guardsman, Ralph Hansen, CAB president, explained that the Golden Cleats is a separate organization from the Block SF Society.

Membership of the Golden Cleats, whose president is Earl Lawrence, is made up of the college football players, but the Block Society, presided over by Ernie Poggi, is open to all letter men.

Other days and hours set aside for club meetings, according to a schedule of college events released by Dean Sandys, are Wednesday, January 14, at 11 o'clock, and Tuesday, January 24, at 11 o'clock. Classes will again be dismissed for meetings, Dean Sandys said.

AMS Bonfire Now Tied In With Barn Dance

Again postponed, the bonfire rally scheduled to be held tomorrow night will, according to Ernest Poggi, Associated Men Student President, definitely be held and combined with the AMS annual barn dance Wednesday, November 21."

The dance and rally are under the combined sponsorship of the Associated Women Students, headed by Carol Hayland and the Associated Men students, of which Poggi is president.

The bonfire rally will be held as an awards assembly in honor of the members of the football team who have earned their blocks. It will take place on the archery range starting at 8 p.m. and ending at about 9:30.

The same program as previously announced will be presented if possible, Poggi said. It includes a local radio sports announcer and a football coach from a San Francisco or Oakland college to address the gathering. Entertainment will be provided by college talent. Plans to engage acts from outside the college are being made, Poggi continued.

Pigtails, pinafores, plaid shirts and jeans, the standard attire for barn dances, will be in order immediately after the rally. The dance was set back from December 14, and Poggi stated that it will not be called off again. The orchestra that will play has not been selected, because of the uncertainty of engaging musicians so far in advance. Admission will be by presentation of one Associated Student Card.

Executive Council

Routine Session Names Swadley Athletic Equipment Custodian, Postpones Action On Handbook, Constitution, Elections

Sixth meeting of the Executive Council held in Room 113 last week succeeded in settling only a few items of relative unimportance.

Among matters settled were the approval of Al Swadley as successor to Vic Pudlowski as men's athletic equipment custodian. One hundred dollars was transferred from the undistributed fund for intramural boxing, and five hundred dollars was transferred from the general reserve to the undistributed fund.

In addition, it was agreed that the Executive Council underwrite the cost of the bus transporting students to Salinas for the game.

Following a discussion, $5 a month was transferred from the men's athletic budget to cover the hiring of a person to keep the student lounge clean.

Matters which were temporarily tabled were the printing of handbooks at the end of this semester in order that they be available to incoming students at the beginning of next semester. Discussion bogged down when the question of drawing up the new constitution and conducting the election of new officers according to it was raised.

Also tabled at the meeting was the discussion of an "independent" freshman dance.

Following the meeting, Doris Pederson, Associated Student Vice President and Chairman of the Social Committee, announced that the Social Committee consisting of Vic Pudlowski, Nancy Shultz, Roberta Robb and Warren Simmons will meet today at 1 o'clock in Room 113.

Nancy Cunningham

ASSFJC Secretary Always On Job

By Betty Jo Smith

Though there be crowds, confusion, and uproarious shouting, Nancy Cunningham, Associated Student secretary, always finds a small space through which to smile and call a joyous "Hi yah" to a passing acquaintance.

Her duties as secretary consist of keeping a record of the proceedings of the Executive Council and performing such duties as may be allotted by the council.

"Practiced" At Castlemont

While attending Castlemont High School in Oakland, Nan showed that she was both competent and able when she was elected an officer of a social club that aided the welfare of the school. This aforementioned experience is proving to be a desirous asset, for the Associated Student officers of the college have the same tasks to perform.

"Although she lived in Birmingham, Alabama, before migrating to California, nowhere in her speech is to be found a "you all" accent. Nan, with a mischievious twinkle in her eyes, tells quite a harrowing tale about when, at the wee age of five, she was kidnaped by an escaped lunatic from a nearby Alabama mental institution. As the story goes, she was whisked away for 24 hours, and then finally returned to her own abode when the madman discovered that the abduction had all been fruitless. For, as he observed too late, alas, Nan was the wrong girl.

During Nan's early years, her family traveled through every State of the Union, but Nan regrets that she was much too young to observe and appreciate the opportunity.

Now Directs Playground

At present, this amiable young lady works part time as a playground director at the Lazear Playground. She has held this job since February, handing out equipment, and taking the children swimming, hiking, and looking after their general well-being.

The youngsters that gather there to play and fight, fondly call her "Nanny" when her back is turned, which, no doubt, is short for "Mother."

Cafeteria

Card Games Banned During Rush Hours

By decree of Dean Edward E. Sandys, no books on tables or playing of cards on same will be allowed in the cafeteria between the hours of 11 and 1 o'clock.

This ruling is absolutely necessary, Dean Sandys explained, because of shortage of seating space at the cafeteria tables during the rush hours. The cafeteria management has been asked to cooperate in seeing that this order is carried out.

Students who lunch in the cafeteria alcove are asked to note that the east side of the alcove is reserved as a faculty dining room. Those who have in the past ignored the partitions dividing the room have occasioned undue crowding at the remaining tables.

Heavy enrollment this semester causes all tables to be in constant demand throughout the hours of service. Cooperation in the releasing of tables for eating purposes is urged by the management in behalf of those students who must find eating space during the hours of cafeteria service.

Recreation Students To Hear Lang Nov. 23

James Lang, assistant superintendent of San Francisco's Recreational Department, will address members of the Recreational Leadership curriculum and all students interested in such work, Friday morning, November 23, at 10 o'clock in Room 254. His topic will be Planning Recreational Programs.

The curriculum, which had its unlisted beginning this fall, has 21 members. It consists of four subjects, of which the main course is Principles of Community Recreation. The instructor-adviser is Jules Fraden.

Other courses and instructors include Arts and Crafts, Laurine Bergin; Officiating, Lee Eisan; First Aid, Laurine Bergin, Lee Eisan; Folk Dancing, Bettygene Otto.

John Neubauer, Executive Secretary of the San Francisco Boys' Club, and Mrs. Josephine Gardner, Director of Ocean View Teen-Age Center, have previously spoken to the group under the auspices of the San Francisco Recreational Department.

Cafe Needs Student Help For Pay Or Lunch

That there is an urgent need for help in the cafeteria of the college was stated by Laurence Wong, instructor of restaurant managing and accounting.

Pay is either lunch or money.

Many veterans, who are alumni of the college are returning to their alma mater, and have been placed in hotel positions by the hotel division.

At present, the majority of students working in the cafeteria are veterans; they have shown great interest and enthusiasm for this type of work, instructors said.

Education Week

Radio Interview, Round Table Mark College Observance

College participation in American Education Week activities, which started last Sunday and will continue through this Saturday, November 17, will be in the form of two radio broadcasts, according to Marie Weller, speech and radio instructor.

With the first program slated for this Friday, November 16, at 4:45 p.m. over KPO, Lloyd Luckmann, member of the faculty, will be interviewed by Barbara Tate of KPO.

"The interview will be mainly about the place of San Francisco Junior College in the community," Miss Weller said.

Round Table Planned

Having a general theme of the promotion of welfare in time of peace, the second program will be a round table discussion. It is scheduled for Saturday, November 17, over KQW from 2:30 to 3 o'clock.

Eight students from the college radio class and two members of the Citizens' Committee will discuss the topic, Youth Looks At The Future. The students are Jud Holden, Constance Taboada, Betty Howard, Jerold Zinnamon, Herb Markall, Bob Elliott, Howard Slaughter, and Anthony Scaramozi.

Former Dean To Speak

Members from the Citizens' Committee are Edwin C. Browne, personnel director of San Francisco Public Schools and former Dean of Men here, and Eugene B. Block, director of the Jewish Survey Community Committee of San Francisco. The script for the program will be prepared and directed by Miss Weller.

"The program over KPO is a spot on a commercial broadcast," Miss Weller pointed out, "given through the courtesy of the National Broadcasting Company, Golden State Milk Company, and Lucille Bliss, contact woman for KPO."

Time allotted over KQW is during a weekly established hour under the direction of Louise Taber, educational director of KQW.

Sponsored by the National Educational Association, this is the twenty-fifth annual American Education Week.

Vets Outnumber Civilians In Hotel Training

Veterans, who during their military service had opportunity to observe the complexities of the problems of commercial housing and feeding, developed a profound interest in the future possibilities of careers in the hotel and restaurant industry.

Therefore, it is not surprising that, in the group pictured at the right selected from present enrollees in the Hotel Division at the college, veterans outnumber the civilian four to one.

Reading from left to right in the picture are Russell Spencer, wearer of the Purple Heart and the Silver Star for gallantry in action on Attu, who as a mess sergeant used his civilian-gained knowledge of cooking. Spencer has a civil service rating as a cook, in the city of Seattle, Washington.

Edward Grogan, three years a mess sergeant with the 41st Division, saw extensive service in New Guinea, and has had previous experience of some years in commercial food preparation.

Fred Keavy, civilian office worker, ambitions are to enter the hotel field through a knowledge of all phases of the business.

Guy Worden, Lieutenant, U.S.A. Tank Corps, was a former hotel employee at Santa Marla Inn and at Yosemite National Park. At present he is acting as student manager in the college cafeteria.

Vernon Phillips, Technical Sergeant, A.A.F., and a Radio Operator with the 43rd Bomber Group, 63rd Bomber Squadron, saw active service in the Philippine Islands.

A native of Oklahoma, Phillips had hotel experience before the war in Los Angeles and Oklahoma City.

This group is enrolled in the course in hotel and restaurant management. Other veterans are concentrating on training in food preparation and food service. Their "laboratory" is the kitchen of the college cafeteria, where for a number of hours each day they work under instruction in helping to prepare the meals served students and faculty. Practical work is followed by lectures and technical discussion.

San Francisco Junior College

Name Must Be Unsullied

AS OF interest to the Associated Students there is printed below, a letter received last week, addressed to the Editor of The Guardsman.

"Sirs:

"Over the week-end, six or seven of your students were in Los Angeles with some character. This person "worked over" an ex-service man in a street brawl. It may interest the parties concerned that this ex-service man is still convalescing from malaria contracted in New Guinea, where he fought to save others from such experiences. It is his devout wish that the "boys" and the 4F character may experience malaria, its after effects and such civilian treatment.

"As their car bore "SFJC" stickers, observers thought that such types are representative of your school, and your otherwise excellent reputation has suffered. I commiserate with you.

"Yours truly,
(Signed) "P. J. SORENSEN,
"1843 W. 63rd St., Los Angeles 44, Calif."

While there is no reason for doubting the authenticity of the letter, since the only evidence showing that the six or seven people involved in the encounter with the veteran were SFJC stickers pasted on the car, the veracity of the story is under some question.

SOME STUDENTS WERE AT ST. MARY'S GAME

The encounter, if it took place, must have been about the time of the Cal versus St. Mary's game, which it is understood a number of students representing the local schools and colleges attended.

It is difficult to believe that any six people would set upon one person, even under the direst provocation, and obviously the letter is greatly exaggerated as well as prejudiced.

Nevertheless, there is a possibility that there was some argument and that it developed into a fight. Among the participants there may or may not have been some students from this college.

Regrettably it was a veteran who suffered, but apparently no great damage was done.

PERSONAL ACTIONS AFFECT COLLEGE

Although it is conceded that the letter lacks sufficient proof (stickers and cars having a way of getting around), this opportunity is taken to point out to students how individually as well as collectively even in their personal actions the college is held accountable by outsiders, and its reputation made to suffer.

The organized excursions to other colleges by students are known not to have been attended by any disagreeable events and there is no reason to believe that students attending games separate from the organized groups have had any unpleasant incidents.

Students of this college have always been sensitive as to its good name, and none would even through his carelessness detract from it.

However, it may not be superfluous to advise an even greater caution in the future.

Off The Record . . .

"IF YOU have reached the stage of nonconformity, not to one institution in particular, but to all things external to you—to all but the divine pattern within you so may you hope to be transformed. If you have come to esteem free thought as the birthright and heritage of humanity, so may you confidently hope to be free; for the thought precedes the state, freedom in thought before freedom in action and life. Our spirit bids us cast off the shackles of tradition and forego our musty creeds We must have the living word: The Truth Shall Make Us Free. Nurture your free thought, cherish it; it shall be a jewel in your crown. Free thought or slavish thought; which will you? Once resolved to think for ourselves and we shall become men; let others think for us and we remain puppets."—Stanton Kirkham Davis, page 13, Where Dwells The Soul Serene.

An instructor in this college is rumored to be one of the most learned men in the state and we would like to point out why.

We will not concern ourselves with degrees tacked after his name or the years he has spent educating himself; instead, we shall offer his "horse sense" as the sole basis for his fame.

One of the most outstanding of the seven signs of intelligence is humbleness, and our friend makes no attempt at an ostentatious display of his knowledge. Naturally he is quiet and unassuming. He realizes that he must listen to the most absurd of men, that he must listen, explain and retain. This man does not offer set rules and demand they be accepted—he states the rule and offers reasons why it should be taken in order to advance along the road of life.

And, he accepts any criticism, seriously, believing that there was something which brought criticism to light. Somehow he found that man can only improve after he has heard both sides.

There must always be at least two sides to every question. But only the truly intelligent (and ardent students of psychology) have managed to grasp this obvious understanding.

There is a deep meaning to his famous statement. At least we have given it a deep meaning.

"Laval spelled backward is lavaL."

Which means there are still two sides to everything—and, two sides might add up to something sound.

While Thinking . . .

AT THE present time there is virtually a civil war taking place in China. The Chinese Communists and the Nationalists are bitterly fighting. In less than a few weeks the fire and counter-fire has taken on the stature of a fullsblown civil war.

Among advisers sent from Russia at China's request, was Michael Borodin, a brilliant and fanatical Communist, who become a trusted lieutenant of Sun Yat Sen. He evidently won the confidence and trust of the leader of the Chinese Nationalist Government because on his death bed Sun Yat Sen said, "Cherish and trust Borodin. Guard him as you would me, for he will lead you to the goal which I have promised for you."

In 1927 Chiang Kai-Shek, who had been Borodin's right hand man, became dissatisfied with the Communists and split with Borodin. Violence had been resorted to and the moderates of China had objected to it. That was the beginning of a civil war that has progressed through the years until now.

The Communists retired to the North, which is the Pennsylvania of China because it is so rich in coal deposits. They governed the people there just as the people in Russia were governed: They gave land to the peasants; they revamped local governments; they gave the vote to the peasants; and they started schools for everyone.

Meanwhile the southern section of China was being reconstructed by Chiang Kai-Shek in a way that differed immensurably from the communistic method. In rebuilding this area, one of the largest land masses in the world, Chiang had a difficult task.

When World War II began there were actually two Chinas. The people in each one thought differently, acted differently, and talked differently. They are as dissimilar as two nations. It is a situation that will take clear heads to work out for the cleavage is deep.

Shots At RAMdom

THE biggest moment in anyone's life is his first date, and in the face of violent contradiction we can honestly say that the college age student is not too young to start dating.

We would now like to call the said college youth aside, as it were, and breathe low to him the horrors that could possibly be involved.

The first type of girl that we have is the Clinging Vine. From a purely objective standpoint even though we tip the scales at six feet we find we must review the clinging vine.

She is the petite morsel who slips her dainty paw into some big giant's and totters on the horizon for the effect. The C. Y. gives the impression that she borrowed her high heels from a big sister and stands on tippy toe to show that they are of no help.

Next we have the Rugged Type. This wench always sits in the rumble seat and lets her hair wave like streamers in the breeze. She is just one-of-the-gang and oh-what-a-pal—this daredevil of the crowd!

The Rugged Type always wants to go wading after a formal dance.

Lauren typifies the glamorous deb who patterns her life after the Hollywood stars. Take her to the latest flicker, and immediately she is Lauren, Lana, or Hedy.

She can't decide whether to let her hair hang like Lizbeth Scott or dye it red to look like Hayworth. Usually she tries both ways in the same week, and the result looks like Woolworth.

Now we have Pigmalion, with the accent on the first syllable.

She can take the place of any full grown menagerie; she eats like a horse, lives like an owl, talks like a cat, and thinks like an astrich. Her only compensation is that she wears shoes.

Last, but by all means least, we have Jo Popular. She is the one whose line is, "Well, I'll try to sandwich you in between 7:30 and 8 o'clock on Tuesday night, but I'll only have time for a soda because I have to dash."

All week you, Caswell College, wait patiently for your Big Night. Then what happens? After you pilot her to the nearest drug store she relates to you all the details of her other swains, her busy phone line, and what she is going to be doing for the next month and a half. Then while you get up to pay for the sodas you find her surrounded by 20 other guys, all gazing adoringly at her while she beams triumphantly.

By this time your half hour is up, so you leave disgustedly, sans girl, pride and 41 cents.

Brownell

The Beachcomber

LAST week we made mention of college activities that could be but just aren't. With a cloud of dust, and a hearty hi-yo, we now proceed with the following suggestion. So heed, read, and let's hope deed.

Why couldn't the college hold dances in the different gyms each week an Associated Student dance isn't planned? The many organizations could again each have their own week to sponsor such an arrangement.

A slight charge at the door would cover all expenses incurred. The Art Department, for instance, could lend a hand in decorating the place of decision. The music could be obtained from students attending the college who could be paid. (They would have to be paid, with things the way they are today.) If that couldn't be accomplished, musicians from high schools could be approached. This in itself seems to be a huge expenditure but if one will realize that a three-piece combo can supply all the music necessary for say, thirty dollars or less, it's not such much. Fifty cents per head should cover it. If the high schools can do it, why can't we?

THESE WOMEN

There's a story floating around town about one gaudy and supposedly stupid show girl. Seems she got this dashing so-called man about town into a rather compromising position. She finally agreed on a figure of $2000, little knowing that said playboy only had $500 in the bank. He promptly wrote out his personal check for $2000 and hurriedly left town. When the show girl went to his bank she discovered his seemingly clever stunt. What did she do? She simply deposited another fifteen hundred into his account and then was able to cash the check for two thousand, taking his original five hundred.

RAMblings . .

By Don Lucey

THE story of Earl Lawrence, in the fifth issue of this paper, left out three important facts.

Omitted, but quite important, were these items. Earl measures six feet, one inch, and tips the scale at 190 pounds. He has achieved the distinction of winning the Northern California Swimming Championships, being clocked at 25:4 tenth seconds.

Finally, and far from least, E. L. is a pretty fair journalist. As a sample of his creative genius, we submit the following feature article for consideration.

UNSUNG HEROES

"Up to the present we have heard of speedy backs, their passing and how they have made touchdowns. But, now let us see how these scores were made possible. With all due respect to the backfield and the fine job they have done, nevertheless any sportsman knows it takes coordinated effort to make a winning ball club, and this is particularly true on the gridiron. How could a back, however good, make yardage unless the line opened up the holes. The fact is he couldn't. So of these men in the line, whose work is rarely seen and seldom heard of, we tell this story.

"Don Grant, who has played outstanding ball all season, is the first player who comes to mind. Don has been a thorn in the side of all opposing teams, and is always near when you need him. Hats off to a grand guy and a brilliant guard.

"Next, Bob Hazeleaf, playing his first season of football here and going great guns. Bob is as sound as a dollar and perhaps as round, but when the odds are down Bob is in there fighting.

"To John Mapelli we owe a great deal of thanks for outstanding play and fine teamwork. John can always be counted on when the going gets rough.

AND THE RESERVES . . .

"Along with the above mentioned players we should not forget John McLaughlin, a vigorous tackle and grand guy. Vic Hancock, Thompson, our reserve ends, are not to be overlooked. Ted Weber, our reserve center and all around handy man, and Manuel Castro, who is our left half, have given us many thrills and spills with their untiring efforts.

"It may be a waste of space to tell you of the next two, and perhaps a reminder will not be amiss. They are Don Jensen, our center, better known in the local circles as 'The Iron Man,' and Rich Stanfel, our right guard.

"Both these men have played good hard ball, as anyone who plays can tell you. Richie was asked why he was a running guard. He replied, 'It was the only way I could keep in shape to catch the street car'."

Rams Take Second Place In Conference

Coach Jack Gaddy

Coaches Take Grid Spot Light

A player is no more than putty in a coach's hands.

It took a lot of work on the part of Lee Eisan and Jack Gaddy to model a strong and fast Ram eleven this year, but both coaches have the background to do it.

Gaddy played three years for U.S.F., making All-Coast and playing in the East-West game of '35. Gaddy has recently returned to coach here after serving 43 months as a Lieutenant, then Lieutenant-Commander in the Navy.

Eisan, Ram head coach, played at California. Where some coaches have won fame on great runs, Coach Eisan did it the hard way by blocking for a man in the Rose Bowl who was running the wrong way.

Aerial Attack Slaps Salinas 25 To 0 In Final Grid Game

Playing their last and best football game of the 1945 season, the college Rams defeated the Salinas Junior College Cowboys, Friday in Salinas, 25 to 0.

This victory puts the Rams in second place in the class A, Northern California Junior College Conference, with Modesto in first.

The first Ram touchdown came early in the first period, after quarterback Staten Webster faded back on the Ram 45, and threw a perfect strike to end Earl Lawrence, who caught the ball on the Salinas 20, and raced into the end zone. Bob Toquinto's conversion kick was good.

Webster Completes 4 or 5

The Rams again scored early in the second period, after Webster, who completed four out of five passes, again faded back and passed to Henry "Daniel" Boone, who was free down the middle. Boone made a perfect catch of the pass and was tackled on the Cowboy 20.

The Cowboys held the Rams for three downs; but, on the same reverse pass that gave the Rams their second touchdown against Sacramento last week, Vince Miranti threw a complete to Boone, who waited undetected in the end zone.

The Rams' only real break came in the third period, after a poor Salinas kick was grabbed by Lawrence on the Salinas 20. Lawrence was finally spilled on the Cowboy seven. Miranti, on a reverse, scored from the seven, his first touchdown of the season.

Miranti, Boone Repeat

After again gaining possession of the ball deep in Salinas territory, the Rams scored again on the same reverse pass, Miranti to Boone.

The Rams were captained by John Mapelli, who was elected permanent Captain of the Ram football team of 1945. Captain Mapelli, along with the entire line, played great ball throughout the season.

Outstanding in the game were Don Jensen, center; Don Grant, Tiny Ghiorzi, Stanfel and Ted Weber, guards; Boone and Lawrence, ends; Mapelli and John McLaughlin, tackels, and Miranti, Manuel Castro, Webster, John Lane, Toquinto, Dick Sabatini and Pete Milat, in the backfield.

Basketball

Wilson To Coach Ram Quintet; First Team Meeting Set Tomorrow In Gym

With basketball season drawing near, Coach Tom Wilson, who is taking over the coaching chores from Lee Eisan, last year's casaba mentor, has announced that those who wish to participate in varsity basketball should meet in Room 107 in the men's gymnasium tomorrow at 3 p.m.

At this time all the information pertaining to practice and other general information will be discussed. The probable time for the practices will be from 3 to 5 p.m.

As Coach Wilson starts on his new job after assignment to other duties for several years, he is confronted with the fact that there are hardly any returning veterans from last year's team. In this case the Rams will have to draw from the casaba stars from the East Bay as well as from the high schools of this city.

This year Northern California Junior College Conference includes nine colleges entered in competition for the coveted championship, San Francisco, Modesto, Sacramento, Marin, Santa Rosa, Salinas, Menlo, San Mateo, Grant.

Besides these 15 conference games there will be six other practice games, the dates for these are December 13, 15; January 4, 5, 9, and 12. So far the opponents for these dates have not been decided, although probable games are with California, USF, Santa Clara, Stanford Frosh and two games with San Francisco State are expected.

The schedule for this season is as follows:

Jan. 16—Modesto at SFJC.
Jan. 18—SFJC at Modesto.
Jan. 23—SFJC at Santa Rosa.
Jan. 25—Santa Rosa at SFJC.
Jan. 30—Sacramento at SFJC.
Feb. 1—SFJC at Sacramento.
Feb. 6—Marin at SFJC.
Feb. 8—SFJC at Marin.
Feb. 15—SFJC at Salinas.
Feb. 20—SFJC at Placer.
Feb. 22—Grant at SFJC.
Feb. 27—SFJC at Menlo.
Mar. 2—Salinas at SFJC.
Mar. 6—San Mateo at SFJC.
Mar. 8—SFJC at San Mateo.
7 home, 8 away.

Intramural

Basket Tourney End Pushed To Nov. 21

End of the current basketball intramural tournament was postponed last week to Wednesday, November 21, by way of the now-to-be-expected weekly change in schedule.

Results of games played November 5 and 6 put the Hot Shots, Engineers, and Oakland All-Stars ahead in league play.

The Hot Shots took the Devils by default, while the Engineers beat the Eagles 39 to 17, and the XGI Club scored 52 points to Beta Phi Beta's 26.

Beta Phi Beta lost again to the Oakland All-Stars 29 to 51, and the Hot Shots tallied 28 to down the Eagles, who scored 25.

Thus far in the 15 games played, the Hot Shots have won two and lost one, the All-Stars and the Engineers have each won two, lost none; the Chinese Reds won one, lost none; XGI Club won one, lost one; Beta Phi Beta and Eagles each have won none and lost two, and the Devils have lost one, won none.

Start of intramural tennis is marked by acceptance of entries by Coach Jack Brady beginning today. Entrants for the matches may sign up for singles, doubles or mixed doubles. Mixed doubles will not be matched unless there is a minimum number of eight couples signed up, Brady said.

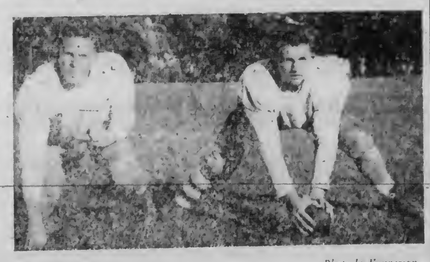
Intramural touch tackle football will start tentatively Monday, November 26.

Ram Eleven's Players Of The Week

Jensen, Mueller Are Line General Jacksons

By Don Lucey

If you think the Marines aren't rugged, you should watch Don Jensen in action. Recently discharged from the Leathernecks, Jensen decided to enroll at the college last October. This choice has been a great benefit to the Red and White turf aggregation.



Jensen is an out-of-town boy, born in Modesto (of all places) on October 9, 1925. He plans to return to Southern California surroundings after finishing his studies here.

The Iron Man

In the meantime he's making quite a name for himself on the campus, having been awarded the title of "iron man of the line."

In the game Jensen is responsible for seeing that the ball is centered properly on offensive, and on defensive he makes sure the opposing runner doesn't advance very far.

During his high school days, he participated in track, specializing in the 100-yard dash and the shot-put. He is also a baseball enthusiast.

Aims To Coach Football

D. J. discloses that his hobby is sports in general, explaining partly why he majors in physical education. And his ambition, of all things, is to coach football.

Jensen stands five feet, ten and a half inches tall, and weighs 190 pounds.

Mueller Bolsters Line

—Part of the stone wall that makes up the center of the Ram line is Ray Mueller. And no wonder! He is the muscular specimen on the left, next to Jensen, in the above picture.

Many times, his opponents have tried to buck his 210 pound, six foot, one inch frame, and have found themselves on the turf.

Mueller is in his second year at the college, and is majoring in precigal. He intends to transfer to the University of California by June.

Women's Athletic Association

Clubs Prepare For Vacation Parties; Volleyball Players Want WAVE Game

Two of the Women's Athletic Association's most active clubs, archery and modern dancing, are already planning and looking forward to their pre-Christmas vacation parties.

Bertha Mae Keller's noon archery clubs are currently discussing their traditional "Christmas Shoot." Instead of the regulation bull's eye, the archers paint the backs of the targets with Christmas trees, Santas, reindeer and other symbols of the yuletide season.

Archery Class Open

There is still time to join an archery class, practicing before or after lunch, Miss Keller said, pointing out that many of her present group bring a light lunch with them every Thursday.

Modern dancing, which meets on Wednesday afternoons, holds its annual Christmas party around December 10, according to Marilyn Zito, club president. At this time, the members decorate the women's gymnasium, including a large tree, and plan the entire program under the general supervision of Bettygene Otto, instructor.

WAVE Game Wednesday

After holding a practice "play night" with the WAVES last Monday, a regulation basketball game is tentatively scheduled for next Wednesday at 7 p.m., Miss Keller said. Because of the uncertainty of the WAVES' free time, Miss Keller suggested that WAA players watch bulletin boards in case the date or time is changed.

Volleyball players are also clamoring for WAVE competition and Laurine Bergin, instructor, is attempting to reinforce the WAA team through increased membership and practice. Alma Pucci was recently elected manager of the club and announced that her teammates intend to challenge State College in the near future.

The society is planning a skiing trip during the Christmas holidays.

Cloud, Marsh Publish Article In Ed. Journal

Describing the college training program here to other junior colleges throughout the country, President A. J. Cloud and W. C. Marsh, in charge of the insurance courses, are the authors of an article, A Terminal Program Dovetailed With Industry, which was published in the September issue of the Junior College Journal.

Stating that "education must continue to be synonymous with opportunity for the common man," President Cloud and Marsh outlined the policies and aims of the six specialized programs in operation.

Explaining to the readers the workings of the following vocational divisions, Hotel and Restaurant, Insurance, Merchandising, Floriculture, Commercial Art and Laboratory Technique, the article points out the progress San Francisco Junior College has made in its training courses.

New Students To Have Pictures Retaken

All students who either registered this fall or who have not had an identification picture taken of them, will be photographed tomorrow and Friday, Madison Devlin, instructor, announced late last week.

Devlin emphasized that all fall registrants, whether their pictures were taken before or not, will have to have their photographs remade. This is because of late registrants and technical difficulties.

Also, Devlin continued, all old students, who for some reason or other have not had their picture taken, will have to do so.

Time of this activity will be from 12 noon tomorrow and 11 o'clock Friday, if need be. Place will be in front of the west side of the cafeteria, Devlin said.

A Cappella Choir Selects Numbers For Annual Christmas Festivals; Campus Program Short Version Of Night Concert

Selection of the choir music further shaped the pattern for the two Christmas festivals to be presented by the college music department in December, Flossita Badger, music instructor, announced last week.

Since the campus program will be shorter than the down-town presentation, only a few of the eight carols planned will be sung. However, the A Cappella choir will offer all of these numbers at the second program.

Following the traditional processional, choir selections include Lo, How A Rose E'er Blooming, by Praetorius; Jesu, Joy Of Man's Desiring, accompanied by flute and oboe, Bach; A Joyous Christmas Song, F. A. Gevaert; Beautiful Savior, F. Melius Christansen; Wassail Song, an English carol arranged by R. Vaughan Williams; the traditional Silent Night; A Merry Christmas, arranged by Arthur Warrel, and Hodie Christus Natus Est, by Williame.

Scene for the first festival is the WAVE Auditorium on Thursday, December 6, at 10 a.m. At this time WAVES and Navy personnel will also have the opportunity of viewing the college musical talent, Miss Badger said.

Opened to the public for the first time last year, the off-campus program, co-sponsored by the Associated Women Students and the Music Club, will be produced at the Veterans' Auditorium, Tuesday evening, December 11.

All Freshman Dance Replaces High Frosh

The high freshman informal dance, originally scheduled for some time in November, was cancelled last week in favor of an entire freshman class dance which is supposed to take place in early December, according to Roberta Robb, high freshman president.

Details of the affair, time, place, and the orchestra have not yet been decided upon and definite plans are not yet available.

Although it is not known whether the dance is to be here or across the bay, it will most probably be informal, with the usual admittance being one Associated Students card per couple.

AGS

Observatory Becomes New Headquarters

Alpha Gamma Sigma last week extended written invitation to the San Mateo Chapter to attend the college's Christmas music festival, Thursday, December 6, to promote friendship between the colleges, according to Elizabeth Mann, president.

AGS office has been assigned as a faculty office, and accordingly, Room 406, the observatory, is the new headquarters.

At its last meeting, AGS elected Marilyn Stern to the office of secretary, replacing Michele Perks, who resigned.

Miss Mann revealed that the honor society's coaching plan has been very successful, 14 XGI's already being coached and more having applied. However, there is now a lack of coaches, according to Miss Mann.

Four more students have become members of the AGS, according to Miss Mann. They are Roberta Walker, a regular member; Doris Baxter, Miriam Poon, and Emily Wong, associate members.

Tomorrow at 10 o'clock members of the AGS will hold a meeting in Room 205.

Three Cars Offer Student Rider Room

In reply to Dean Edward Sandys' car pool plea, there have been four cars offered. Three from the East Bay and one from San Francisco, Sandys announced.

One of the East Bay cars, the first to be offered, now had three riders, but the other three have none.

Two of these riderless cars come to the college from Berkeley, and the third one from San Jose Avenue in San Francisco.

Students desiring rides to the college in these cars can get them by leaving word in the Dean's office.

12 Urged To Collect Book Exchange Money

That twelve students have not applied for refunds on books has been revealed by Loys Daskarolys, head of the book exchange, who urges them to collect their money from the bank counter as soon as possible.

Those students who have not yet collected their money are B. Britton, Alma Kinzle, Dolores Effenberger, B. Nostrup, Lillian Haney, Lisbeth Govan, Elaine Hayman, Mary Patterson, Leonie Van Deusen, Y. Schwarty, Priscilla Samaniego, E. Fusco.

Placement

Some Openings Left For Dec. 10-Jan. 1 Post Office Jobs

Christmas vacation jobs are still available in the Placement Office in Room 169, according to Joseph A. Amori, college placement director.

Amori warned, however, that students interested in this type of work should report immediately to him as these positions are beginning to be filled. These jobs will run from December 10 to the New Year.

Students who have signed up for post office jobs must report immediately to the placement office, Amori said, for further instructions and for an appointment for an interview with the post office department.

Men are needed to work in men's clothing stores downtown for the Christmas Holidays and on a part-time basis afterwards if they still desire this type of employment, he added.

Women students are needed to do typing and general office work during the vacation and afterwards on a part-time scale. There is also a large demand for saleswomen and stockgirls to work in the department stores.

Today Last Day For Class Program Changes

Final warning that today, November 14, is the last day to drop a course or change a program was issued last week by Mary Jane Learnard, assistant registrar.

Changes may be made by securing a blue slip at the registrar's office, having the slip signed by the adviser and instructors involved, and returning the slip to the registrar.

Courses dropped without official notification will receive a technical failure. No credit is given for subjects not listed on the official study list, Miss Learnard warned.

Next Thursday, November 22, Thanksgiving Day, is to be observed as a college holiday, she added, emphasizing, however, that there is no excuse for students not attending classes on Friday, November 23.

Army Praises College Secretarial Training

Credit to the college instructors and students of clerical skills was recently bestowed by Major General Homer M. Groninger, Commanding Officer of the San Francisco Port of Embarkation, in a letter to President A. J. Cloud.

Describing the tremendous mission of sending and supplying the troops in the Pacific Theatre, General Groninger praised the cooperation given by the college in the training of specialized typists and stenographers to meet the production load.

"The success of this training was in no small measure due to the help given by the college," he declared.

lor high school students off the walls to get them to learn to dance?

I'm sure Mr. Engelbrecht neither regrets the fact that he had to attend high school or that he did learn to dance. I wish I could but place a hand on Lloyd's shoulder, look deeply into his eyes and serenely say, "That's the way of life."

As for his comment on the length of time it would take a person to attain his education, I would like to say that if one really wants an education, he's got the guts to stick it out any length of time.

The rest of his conversing gets a little incoherent, but I really got a trifle annoyed at his reference to military training, as something, as far as I could make it out, teaching rape and perjury of all things. Heavens to Betsy, old man, heavens to Betsy.

I would like to close this reply by saying that man created the atomic weapons and that man will also create protections against them. This will obviously call for training, military, shall we say?

What a beachhead this has been,

Ignoramus Pinconious Browneil.

• Moral Progress The Alternative

Editor, The Guardsman:

Most of the letters in our paper have been upon a quite reasonable basis. However, in the issue of November 7, some sincere, but misinformed student, Lloyd Engelbrecht, aired a few views that I feel need correction.

It is quite true that few young men between the ages of 17 to 20 really care to enter the service. (With the exception of those who join to become heroes, or who find the service as a way in which to gain a practical knowledge of how to "stand on their own two feet," a few "soldiers of fortune," etc.) Therefore, when our voluntary enlistment quota drops below a certain margin, it becomes necessary to institute conscription.

True, under the conscription plan, the lives of these young men are going to be interrupted. Their schooling, which is very important, will be interrupted, as well as the work of others. The easy way out for everyone would be to just not have an army or navy, nor any type of conscription. However, men have not progressed far enough morally to make this possible. Men still are selfish, greedy, and distrustful. Therefore we must be ever ready to defend ourselves, as a nation, against who would take our government from us.

He asks, "Would it (conscription) help the moral setup of adolescents to be taught disregard for the seriousness of and ingenious methods of committing blackmail, rape, perjury, or any other crime?" What I would like to know is: just when did the armed forces begin teaching the servicemen to rob, blackmail, commit rape, or perjury, or any other such crime? I have completed one hitch in the army, during which time I worked in the Eighth Air Force, the Infantry, and the Adjutant General's Department. Never once have I ever heard of anything but the most severe punishment being given to any soldier committing any of these crimes. I might offer a suggestion that Lloyd Engelbrecht have the Armed Forces lawbook, the "Articles of War," read to him upon these crimes and the punishments entailed.

The taking of human life is indeed one of the most serious of crimes. However, when it comes to the point of killing or being killed, I think most people will kill. And in war one is placed in this exact position. That is why the armed forces are taught to kill, swiftly, silently, and surely. No, my friend, war isn't pretty, nor is it glorious. We must agree upon this point.

The atomic weapons are not going to be stopped by our having a larged armed force at our disposal, however it certainly will help. There is no use in all the goodwill in the world as long as men cannot truly trust one another (due to their moral ignorance), and under the present conditions, not all the goodwill in the world would be of any avail unless we had an armed service of sufficient force to command the respect of other nations. To progress toward the abandonment of our armed forces, we must first abandon racial hatred, religious intolerance, and in its place establish love of our fellowmen, mutual understanding, and order.

Very truly yours,

EARLE.

Little Bit Of Heaven

By Marge Whearly

Unknown to many students who believe the savory odors near Room 188 to be the products of their own starved imaginations, the college harbors "a little bit of heaven" in the form of the hospitable home economics department.

As Margaret Gray, left, and Grace Galaich illustrate in the above picture, the college kitchen affords many happy hours with its piquant scents and delicious dishes.

Hidden behind that door is a food laboratory producing such toothsome products as the imaginative cuisine scientists can prepare.

Lab Has Six Units

Equipped with such modern step-saving devices as any homemaker would relish, the laboratory consists of six units, each with its own stove and cooking tools, resembling small complete kitchens accommodating 24 future range artists.

With Frances Mount as chief chef, students ascend to the heights of palatable cookery.

Not only a place of preparation but a place of consumption, a dinning room completes the cooking chateau. Surrounded by an aura of "hominess" the dining room is a cheerful eating place.

Sewing Class Decorates

Flowered drapes, made by the sewing classes under direction of Claire Cuneo, with decorative arrangements, add to the picture. Not content with fine furniture, the department complements its concoctions with dainty china and silver. Many social dinners are served in this pleasant atmosphere.

It is in this environment that college students learn nutrition, home management, and home planning. Under the direction of Miss Mount, Miss Cuneo, and their new aide, Letha Roberts, the role of a homemaker is an intense study. From lectures to actual planning of meals, students understudy for this role.

Student Nurses Attend

Although attended by many home economics majors, the classes are filled with people completing their programs with a practical knowledge of home workings.

Since it offers such a full curriculum, the college has many student nurses attending these courses from various city hospitals.

Kappa Phi Holds All Student Dance Dec. 22

With the Green Hills Country Club as the setting, and A Night Before Christmas as the theme, Kappa Phi Sorority announced last week that their holiday dance, to be held Saturday, December 22, will be open to all college students.

Bids will be on sale for $1.75 beginning today, and may be secured from all Kappa Phi members and pledges.

"We want to help celebrate the first peacetime Christmas," announced Roberta Robb, chairman for the event, which will be semi-formal, "and we want to welcome the veterans back, too."

Committee members include Janet Bocci, Helen Buckley, Nadine Hand, Margaret Hillman, La Vergne Mulligan, and Claire Stewart.

The Green Hills Country Club, formerly the Millbrae Country Club, is 12 miles down the El Camino Highway.

Music will be supplied by Paul Law and his orchestra.

Tan Sedan Acts As A College Beauty Salon

Beauty palors are known to have been crowded in recent years.

One solution, as demonstrated to the college every morning, is in the shape and form of a tan Pontiac sedan.

Each morning for the last two weeks the tan Pontiac sedan is driven to the front of the college, parked directly by the fire alarm stand, and left there in full view of Police Department no-parking signs.

Within the car observers see white-hooded creatures remove their hoods, complete their hairdressing, apply their makeup, then stroll to classrooms.

Every hour on the hour the scene is repeated. There have been libraries on wheels. The tan Pontiac is a beauty parlor on wheels.

The question bothering law-abiding citizens, not to speak of well brought up citizens, this week is whom does the car owner know?

It must be J. Edgar himself, for who else could so protect a car owner from parking violations.

AMS

AWS To Co-Sponsor Men's Gym Barn Dance November 30

Reasons beyond the control of Associated Men Student President Ernie Poggi postponed the bonfire rally-barn dance scheduled for Wednesday, November 21, to Friday, November 30, with the affair shorn of incendiary elements and moved to joint sponsorship with Associated Women Students.

Backed by official calendar circling and by Dean Margaret Dougherty, AWS adviser, and Carol Hayland, AWS president, Poggi's plans appeared settled this week, with every indication pointing to a successful outcome.

Theme Is State Fair

The dance, theme of which is State Fair, will start at 8 p.m. and will end at 12 midnight, Miss Hayland and Poggi said.

Preparations are now complete and decorations to give the State Fair atmosphere include prize pickles and straw on the floor. The theme will be complete, with the men wearing "Levis" and plaid shirts, and the women dressed in cotton dresses.

Ray Hackett's Orchestra has been engaged to provide the music for the dance, and both AWS-AMS leaders promised square dances and a cider keg.

Two Contests Planned

Highlights of the evening include the dancing and hog calling contests.

The best dancing couple will be selected by a committee of judges chosen by AMS and AWS officers, and prizes will be awarded.

For those who think their voices have an appeal for pork chops on the hoof, the hog calling contest is planned, Poggi said. Judges will decide who appeals most to the porkers, and the winner will be given the title of College-County Champion Hog Caller.

Hat checking facilities will be available, Miss Hayland said, and admission is by presentation of one Associated Student card per couple.

Tomorrow A Holiday; Classes Meet Friday

Thanksgiving Day, tomorrow, November 22, by decree of President Harry Truman and in California by Governor Earl Warren, is a holiday.

Accordingly, tomorrow is a college holiday, the only one breaking into a college week in the entire semester.

Friday, November 23, is not a college holiday, the registrar's office warned last week.

AGS To Debate XGI On The Atom Bomb

A debate between Alpha Gamma Sigma and XGI members on The Atom Bomb will be held probably on Saturday, December 1, Elizabeth Mann, AGS president, announced. Any AGS members who are interested should contact Marilyn Zito.

Pins for regular members have arrived, Miss Mann said, and they may be received from Edwin Cranston, the club's adviser, in Room 340.

Newest associate member is Margy Busterna, Miss Mann also announced.

Veterans

Ex-Flier Members Of XGI Club Plan To Form Fliers' Club; Plane Rides To Be Offered To Students For Half Price

Ex-flier members of the XGI Club expressed a desire to form a Fliers' Club at the last meeting of the organization, the two-fold purpose of which is to stimulate interest in flying and to enable the members to add to their log of flying hours, it was reported by Dick Mann, member of the group.

The club's activities would include flying instruction and piloting, all on a non-profit basis, provided student interest warrants club organization.

Mann added that although this instruction would necessarily require hours in the air, this time may not be applied to the required hours needed for a pilot's license.

Students wishing to be piloted from one place to another, or merely taken for a plane ride, would find the members of the club always obliging, Mann said. The minimum flight time allowed would be 15 minutes, while the average flight will be about 40 minutes. Students would be required to pay only half-price, Mann explained.

The San Mateo and Belmont fields are tentatively being considered as the "base," and are currently being used by the members whenever they fly.

Although still necessarily in the idea stage, several students have already been flown by the veterans, and Mann urged immediate response on the part of prospective club members to insure organization. Those interested, he said, should see Frank Griswold, Vic Hancock, Pete Matter, or John Weiner.

James Lang To Speak At College Nov. 23

Choosing as his topic Planning Recreation Programs, James Lang, assistant superintendent of the San Francisco Recreation Department, will speak to members of recreation curriculum and other interested students Friday, November 23, at 10 o'clock in Room 254, Jules Fraden, instructor-adviser, announced last week.

Fraden pointed out that although this curriculum was unlisted at the beginning of the semester, it is expected that in the future the course will prove to be one of the most popular on the campus because of the growing need for recreational leaders in all communities.

Growing interest shown in living war memorials, as recreation centers to provide places for returning veterans and home-front folk to enjoy wholesome physical fitness activities and to help curb juvenile delinquency, will further the need for these leaders, Fraden said.

Christmas Festival

29 San Franciscans Asked To Be Patrons

Program plans for the annual Christmas presentations continued with the extension of several invitations to prominent San Franciscans and patronesses of the Veterans Auditorium concert.

Invited by President A. J. Cloud last week were Superintendent and Mrs. Curtis E. Warren, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph P. Nourse, Judge and Mrs. William Denman, Mr. and Mrs. Laurence Strauss, Miss Mable Riegelman, Mr. M. L. Samuels, Mrs. Juanita Tennyson, Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Dennis, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin E. Browne, Mr. and Mrs. Bart A. Supple, Mr. and Mrs. John D. McGilvray, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Coonan, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd W. Dinkelspiel, Mr. and Mrs. Adrien J. Falk, Mr. and Mrs. Garret McEnerney, Dr. and Mrs. Karl L. Schaupp.

Scheduled for Thursday, December 6, and Tuesday night, December 11, the programs will feature the A Cappella Choir and the college orchestra. The campus program will be at the WAVE Auditorium, and the second at the Veterans' Auditorium. It is co-sponsored by the Associated Women Students and the Music Club.

XGI Officers Urge Veterans To Join Club

That the XGI organization needs a greater membership in order to further its aims and programs was the statement made last week by Richard Mann, XGI publicity agent.

The largest turnout to date was 25 per cent of the 400 ex-servicemen attending the college, Mann said.

Among their activities, which includes baseball, boxing, tennis, and bowling, the XGI debate team, consisting of 12 members and coached by Lloyd Luckmann, instructor, has set a debate date with the Alpha Gamma Sigma for Saturday, December 1.

A ski trip has been scheduled to take place through the Tahoe country from December 26 to January 1. Those who are interested in the ski trip are requested to see Harold Freedman, who is organizing and handling all details, for arrangement of rides.

Students Held For Infant Mortality Increase; Punishment Promised To Combat Crime Wave

By Lucille Scott

Booked on suspicion this week were a number of campus culprits wanted for the crimes of infanticide, robbery, and desertion. Names of the above are being withheld pending further investigation.

Charges were filed today by members of the hotel division claiming that infants are dying from lack of milk because culprits did not return empty milk bottles to the cafeteria for recirculation, and further charged that because of the shortage of these bottles, the rate of infant mortality has increased.

The cafeteria members further accused other culprits of robbery, charging them with taking much needed table space and chairs in the cafeteria for use as book stands.

Charges were also made against the remaining culprits for desertion of trays, leaving them for others to bus.

Mrs. Mozelle Milliken, of the hotel and restaurant division, can attest to the above and last week asked the cooperation of all students in combatting this crime wave.

Failure to cooperate, particularly in the matter of bussing dishes, she said, will result after today in trays and dishes being left on the tables.

Education

David To War's Goliath

TOMORROW the nation will celebrate the Thanksgiving which, for four years it has so anxiously waited. Outwardly it will not be very different from the Thanksgiving Days of the past, but within each person there will be a surge of new and deep emotions.

After four years of war, the first peacetime Thanksgiving will be truly joyful for those service men and their families, united once again. It will be a still happier occasion for those families whose men are now discharged from the forces.

Thankful and happy, too, will be those families whose men, although overseas, can rejoice in the fact that no longer are their lives in jeopardy.

In many homes that have been bereaved of husbands, sons or fathers will be a sense of infinite and irretrievable personal loss. Yet their misfortune, which is the misfortune of all, will not detract from the deep and overwhelming feeling of thankfulness and gratitude of us all at this time.

From the days of the New England colonists it has been the custom to set aside one day of each year for the purpose of prayer and thanksgiving. In the early days of American history, when life was precarious, the objectives of Thanksgiving Day were unanimously appreciated, and continued to be, for a number of years.

With the advent of industrialization, higher standards of living, and the consequent decline in the hazards of everyday life, Thanksgiving Day, except after events of great national importance, came to be rather generally regarded as an old and pleasant American custom.

This year, as never before, will those two objectives, prayer and thanksgiving, be sincerely observed.

Sincerity is the prelude and a part of rededication. For students Thanksgiving will be a time of rededication.

When this country went to war, college students, realizing what was at stake, dedicated themselves to an intense pursuit of their studies, and even after victory, allowed themselves no letup.

"War students" of this era, if less worldly than those of twenty-five years ago, are maturer, having seen the results of the general moral and mental slackening after World War I, and will not follow the same course.

In an insane world—the Atomic Age—it would be easy enough for all to throw up their hands and dedicate themselves, as others before them, to frivolity.

The lessons of this way, however, have been well learned, and will not be forgotten—the first thing being that no man's life should be uselessly sacrificed to an ideal, and secondly, that education should be the David to war's Goliath.

While students tomorrow remember, and are thankful, they will not consider themselves only as the beneficiaries of others' struggle, but will, in counting their blessings, consecrate themselves anew to an even more serious pursuit of knowledge, thus shouldering their burden towards the maintenance of peace in this uncertain world.

Off The Record . . .

WILL WE ALL BE 95 WHEN THE RAM IS FINALLY MOVED?

Just the other day someone mentioned casually that we ought to move the wooden ram. To bring all new students up to date, may we relate a little past history.

The Ram which causes so many varied comments resides at present in a dusty corner of the men's gymnasium. But, it was not meant to be so.

About the same time San Francisco Junior College was being constructed, Dudley C. Carter, famed carver of wood, was spending his time carving enormous wooden statues at the world's fair. No doubt some sweet-minded person expressed an interest in the new college, and said famous artist decided that his good deed for the next several years was staring him in the face.

Carter proudly caressed his recent glorious achievement and foresaw several hundred college students gazing in admiration at his statue. Perhaps he also swelled with pride as he thought of the glances of gratitude and appreciation he would receive. For Carter had decided to give San Francisco Junior College a Ram, carved completely out of redwood and weighing one ton, to be used as the college mascot.

November 10, 1941, rolled around. The college was dedicated, and amidst many excited exclamations, the wooden Ram was unveiled. Everyone was so proud.

So proud in fact that exactly three months later no one could remember what happened to the thing.

During the process of cleaning the men's gymnasium, the "tiny" mascot was rediscovered in a foresaken corner. Then it was promptly forgotten for another year.

By 1942 most of the faces were new and few knew of the tradition behind the favored gift. It was then that a newcomer suggested the statue should be moved to a more desirable spot, and students were in favor until they discovered that one ton of wood was a lot of wood.

And so the story goes. Once each year, almost to the day, some bright, young genius happens upon the wooden idol and gives birth to a marvelous plan. Something should be done, but not a finger moves.

Many suggestions have been offered and the newest one, which came approximately two months early, must be given space, too.

"The Ram should be moved to the back of the college where the flag pole now stands."

Now that is a very nice thought—but who will move it, who will oil the mascot, who realizes how heavy one ton of redwood is, who wants to look at the thing and where will the flag pole stand?

While Thinking . . .

"TO GIVE or give not, that is the question."

During the last few weeks there has been much controversy as to whether or not we should share the secret of the atom bomb with the Allies. It is a problem that is troubling the leaders of several nations.

Would the sharing of this secret offer a greater guarantee of peace? Will the sharing of this bomb bring about a change of heart from the Red fascists and convert them over to democratic ways of thinking? Such a thing could never happen because sentiment and emotions have no place in the statecraft of the Kremlin.

Would the sharing of this secret with our Allies be any more of a guarantee that it would be kept out of the hands of unscrupulous persons who could put it to some dastardly usage?

Prime Minister Clement Atlee proposes that the Allies share all of their scientific discoveries. In theory this is undoubtedly a marvelous idea, but would it work out in practice? Russia has always been prone to keep her major discoveries a rather dark and deep secret.

How can the sharing of this devastating new development be a greater safeguard against future aggression? After all, the human race should have learned after these many centuries of their existence that the best way to keep a secret is to keep it to yourself.

French and Hogan

Shots At RAMdom

WE'D like to start a movement to list the ten most misleading tunes of the week. As a start we dug up just a few scores this time and tore them down so that their own composers couldn't recognize them if they wanted to.

As a matter of fact, we feel pretty awful about the whole thing, but well, songs will be songs, you know. It's not as though they could look forward to something—like their thirty-fifth birthday and being spelled backwards and everythin'.

No, songs are just kinda left out of stuff. Everyone is always singing them . . . maybe even when they don't feel like being sung.

FRIEND OR FOE?

Do you ever remember hearing a tune that goes "Just Say That I'm A Friend Of Yours." Well, that's an awful cruel song. After all, if some poor kid goes steady with the guy for about five years, and keeps a lock of his hair and all, and then all of a sudden he meets her on the street, and all he says is "Just Say That I'm A Friend Of Yours"—well, how would you feel?

The poor girl has probably been taking cooking lessons, picked out a home, bought her trousseau, and saved rice for months. Then what does the jerk do? Just because she tried to say "hello" to him in public, he comes right over and tells her to quit it and not to let anyone get wise.

SPELLING BEE

There's a lovely old saying in the newspaper world that a man isn't worth his salt if he can only spell a word ONE way. (English instructors take note.) We want to prove that not only do we rate salt but we deserve a dash of pepper too.

Subject: "Knight and Kday," that lovelee craydal song of last deckade. After all, if peepull are going around saying "knight," why doan't they bee consistant and say "day" with a "K"? It's eeze! Another thing, if U say "Ptomaine" and mean "Toemane," woodnt it bee just as much fun to say "Toemane" and mean "Ptomaine"?

There's another popular ditty that has hit top for our money but which, we feel, is not exactly exhibiting the correct spirit of the day, "I'll Buy That Dream."

"Now what's wrong with that?" you ask. "The fellow simply wants to buy a dream. What's the matter with putting in his bid for one lowly, measly little dream?"

But to elucidate further, you give the guy one thing and immediately he gets grabby. Not only does he want the girl with her head on his shoulder, but he's got a wedding all cooked up. No sooner has he got that, then he wants a honeymoon in Cairo. Now we ask you, in Cairo, "Isn't Niagara Falls good enough?" It's people like him who start international situations.

Brownell

The Beachcomber

EXACTLY one week ago today, Dick Powell's new picture, Cornered, had its world premiere here in town. Powell is now billed as the new, rough-tough of moviedom.

About a year ago, Crosby was named the actor turning in the best performance of the year.

Back in 1934 both of these crooners were running neck and neck for top honors. Both were song and dance men, Powell appearing almost constantly with Ruby Keeler, and Crosby with anyone who needed a helping hand. Today both are recognized as new dramatic stars despite the fact that both have been at the top for over ten years.

Bing and Richard are at least 43 years old apiece, and each has raised one family. Bing is known all over the world for his parental achievements, and Richard is now setting out on his second venture. Side by side these two have stayed at the top. Crosby has mellowed with time, while Powell never seems to progress past his early thirties. It ought to be interesting to see how Sinatra and Haymes are doing ten years from now in comparison.

RADIO—TWENTY-FIVE YEARS OLD

The radio industry has just passed its twenty-fifth birthday. A comparatively new department of the ether business is to be our topic this day in November. Sound effects are what we mean.

To the average listener, sound effects are practically non-existent, for too few people ever really notice them. This is because they are so smoothly blended with the dialogue. The business of making noise is definitely here to stay, for even the most imaginative drama writer has found that a door can't be opened to find a dead body without a door actually being opened.

Incidentally, where would Fibber Magee be without his closet? And what program do you automatically think of when you hear a squeaky door? Isn't the first think you think of, when you do think of Dagwood Bumstead, the comedy sound effect routine he goes through on his last minute dash to work? In conclusion, it's an actual fact that producers avoid using a fog horn effect as often as possible, because everyone can't help thinking every fog horn says, BeeOhh.

RAMblings . .

By Don Lucey

THIS column has used the freedom of the press to lie. Of course, it wasn't intentional. Still, the damage was done. The Rambler begs you to have mercy on him this one time. It will not happen again. If you did not experience the pleasure (author's opinion) of reading those 105 lines of print that adorns the first column of the sports page two weeks ago then the above sentences need explanation.

READY FOR INSANE ASYLUM

If you will glance at the boldfaced eighth paragraph, you will come across a number of promises that will not be kept. After attempting to abide by his words, this writer is just about ready for the insane asylum.

If any of you arm-chair statisticians feel capable of tackling a big job, with a lot of figures, you are cordially welcomed to do so. Drop down to Room 134 when you have a few days to kill. The clock is murdered in The Guardsman office.

TABULATION OF GAMES

Here is what this energetic reporter attempted to accomplish, and, of course, without success. Among other things, there would have been a complete tabulation of the number of varsity games won by the Ram eleven from 1935 to 1944. Besides that, he was going to find the grand total of all the points tallied during those nine years, and then average up the whole mess. One other sentence was important. It stated that the present season's results would not be included. Strange as it may seem, this was all your reporter could succeed in doing.

Now that the football campaign of 1945 is history, let's review the schedule in terms of numbers. Altogether, the men of Lee Elsan's and Jack Gaddy's squad played eight opponents.

Albany Navy accounted for the most touchdowns made against the Red and White players, but Modesto collected the widest margin in winning. Our adversaries accumulated 13 T D's, and we crossed their goal lines the same amount of times. The Elsanmen kicked four conversions, and their opponents booted an equal number between the poles. The college administered the worst shellacking to Salinas.

TEAM NAME

From our department of Back Issue Information comes this item. The Associated Students have not always had their present nickname. When our institution of higher learning was first opened, a contest and a vote was taken to decide on a descriptive title, and the word "Clipper" became the sobriquet. The cleat-footed players sounded their disapproval, and it was changed less than a month after. As for the colors, they have always been the same.

Intramural

Engineers Hold Big Lead In Basketball Tourney; Reds Next

Beating the undefeated Oakland All-Stars by the close score of 25 to 23, last week, the Engineers Club held the intramural basketball lead at press time with five wins and no losses. Their only obstacle for championship is the game against Beta Phi Beta.

The Chinese Reds have lost none and won three for the second place honors. By losing to the Engineers, the Oakland All-Stars are now in third place, having won three and dropped one.

Three wins, balanced by three losses, put the Hot Shots in the fourth place. XGI is hanging on to the number five spot by balancing two wins with two losses.

Beta Phi Beta is tottering on the cellar stairs, with one win and three defeats. The Devils are halfway down the steps in seventh place with three defeats and no wins.

Waiting in the cellar are the Eagles, who have lost all four of their games.

Today at 3:15 the last three games of the season will be played. The Chinese Reds will play against the Oakland All-Stars and the Eagles will be matched against the Beta Phi Beta.

Yesterday the Chinese Reds contended against the XGI and the Eagles played the Oakland All-Stars. Highlighting Monday's games was the tilt between the champ-bound Engineers and the sixth place Beta Phi Beta. Scores for these games are not given because they were played after press time.

The tentative date for touch tackle football is still Monday, November 26, if weather conditions permit.

. . . And so the Ram football season is ended. Willis T. Owens illustrates above the roadwork forced on Ram athletes priming for coming midterms before basketball season begins.

Women's Athletic Association

State College To Send Team Mon. For First Real Volleyball Competition

Volleyball play takes over the spotlight from the various Women's Athletic Association's activities when State College visits the campus next Monday, November 26, at 3 p.m.

This is the initial sports contest between the two colleges for the fall semester and will be the first lively competition acquired for the local team, Laurine Bergin, instructor, commented recently.

Regular volleyball practice is held every Monday afternoon in the women's gymnasium, and Mrs. Bergin hopes to recruit more players for a second team and substitutes. Members of this club will switch to basketball during the final two months of the semester, Mrs. Bergin said.

College Submerges WAVES

The first practice game between the WAVES and the WAA basketball players showed the college women submerging the visitors, 34 to 7. The WAA put three teams into play during the contest, and had a striking height advantage over the WAVES, Miss Keller pointed out, allowing for the somewhat lopsided final score.

Miss Keller stressed the fact that basketball will not receive much more attention until later this fall, allowing volleyball, badminton, and other sports to be the basis of play days and tournaments.

"However," she said, "the WAVES have invited WAA players to their gymnasium for a return match this Friday at 7 p.m., and WAA will send a team."

Sports Staff Picks

All-Conference Elevens

As is the custom after each football season, the sports scribes usually try to pick either an All-American, All-Coast or in the preps an All-City team. The Guardsman sports staff herewith presents its version of an All-Conference first and second team.

The first team has a very fast backfield with a strong line up front. The ends are especially good at snagging passes as are each of the backfield men. The line averages about 200 pounds, with the backfields at about 180.

Football

Gridmen Played Eight Games, Won Four To Tally 82 Point Total For '45 Season

Considering that the 1945 edition of the college gridiron team played eight games, and won half of them, it can be said to have been a successful season, particularly since two of the losses were non-conference games.

The apparent reasons for the defeats the team suffered were the continual changing of personnel, mainly the late return of ex-serviecmen and lettermen.

The team, however, proved its worth by finishing second in the class A division of the Northern California Junior College Conference.

Coaching Pronounced Great

Coach Lee Elsan did a great job of coaching and had the task by himself for the major portion of the season.

The Rams played eight games this season, and suffered defeat in the first three. The first defeat came at the hands of the Albany Naval Base, the score being 25 to 6. Staten Webster scored the only Ram touchdown. Outstanding were Don Grant, George Fabian, and Don Keck.

The second Ram defeat was administered by the Cal Ramblers. The Rams, although they outplayed the Ramblers, lost a heart-breaker, 6 to 0. Outstanding were Keck, Grant, Henry Boone, Richie Stanfel, Ray Mueller, Webster, Don Jensen, and Johnny Lane.

Modesto Defeat Hard

The third Ram defeat, which was the first conference defeat, came from the rugged Modesto Pirates, 24 to 0. Outstanding for the Rams were Grant, Boone, Stanfel, Lane, Bob Toquinto, Manuel Castro, and Jensen.

The Rams earned their first conference win and first win of the season by defeating the Sacramento Panthers, 14 to 0. Touchdowns were made by Lane and Webster, and Toquinto made both conversions. Outstanding in the line were Henry Boone, Lawrence, Grant, John Mapelli, and John McLaughlin.

The Rams' second win came by virture of a 24 to 0 defeat handed San Francisco State College. Touchdowns were made by Lane, Webster, and Pete Milat. Outstanding in the line were Mapelli, Grant, Jensen, Boone, Stanfel, Thompson, and McLaughlin.

Coach Eisan's men were handed their fourth defeat by Modesto Junior College, 21 to 0, in a hard fought contest. Outstanding for the Rams were Jensen, Webster, Lane, Stanfel, Grant, Mapelli, and Boone.

Rams Make Comeback

The Rams won their third victory by defeating Sacramento, for the second time, 19 to 6. Touchdowns were made by Boone and Webster. Outstanding were Vince Miranti, Stanfel, Toquinto, Lane, and Jensen.

The Rams closed the season by trouncing Salinas Junior College, 25 to 0. Touchdowns were scored by Lawrence, Boone, and Miranti. The entire team was outstanding.

Webster Leads Scoring

The highest scorer for the season was Webster with 24 points, Lane, and Boone with 18 points each, Lawrence, Miranti, and Milat with six each, and Toquinto with five. The Rams scored 82 points to 82 points for their opponents.

Mapelli and Stanfel, as it has now been officially announced by Coach Elsan, have been chosen co-captains, as the vote to choose a captain was close between these two.

Basketball

Wilson Greeted By Large Turnout; 36 Begin Cage Practice

In the first meeting of the basketball prospects last Thursday, 36 men signed up, among them are several All-City players and eight who are lettermen.

These eight men are Earl Lawrence of Lowell and St. Mary's, Donald Malnick of Polytechnic, George Koche, Robert Nedd, both of Commerce, Bert Oldham of Galileo, Charles Shea of Alameda High, Pete Milat of Castlemont and Frank Ratto of Sacred Heart.

The rest of the signups are as follows: Ray York, Earl Malnick, Fred Sandine from Poly; Peter Black, Ross Dunnigan of Lowell; Dick Norwall, Ray Mayer, Bill Kahn of Lincoln; Connie O'Shea, John Flaherty of St. Ignatius; Maurice Lynch, Houston Dunnigan of George Washington; Frisco Sartor of Balboa; Donald Lucey of S. H.; Louis Follini, Joe Terra of Technical in Oakland; Ray Gaskin, Frank Skoglund of University; Ted Weber of Castlemont; Richard Brown of St. Joseph's (Alameda); William Poole, Freemont (Oakland); Joe Sweet of Berkeley High and University of California; Herbert Jotter of Albany High; Jack Farmar, Charles Gardella of Jefferson High; Dean Haug of Wildrose Public in North Dakota; Lesli Bana of Kitsilano, Vancouver, B. C.; Hadwick Thompson, Willows Union in Willows; Hiram Short of Tougaloo College High in Alabama.

The basketball team will be comprised of a maximum of 15 players, with a possibility of a junior varsity squad also. The two managers, as announced by Coach Tom Wilson, are Herbert Markall and Bob Kimball.

Players who should show well, as stated by Markall, are Follini, Terra, Flaherty, Houston, Dunnigan, Jotter, Skoglund and Ratto.

Time of practice is not definitely set as yet, but so far it is from 3 to 5 p.m.

Hoop Mentor

Coach Wilson Was Tiger Immortal Before Guiding Ram Tennis Champs

By Don Lucey

Taking over the position of head basketball coach is Thomas D. Wilson. It is his first year in this capacity, but he certainly does not lack experience in the field of sports.

Thirty-four years of age, Wilson was born in Napa, California, in 1911, where he attended both grammar and high school.

After graduation, he went on to a brilliant athletic career at the College of Pacific. At that time the latter institution was more respected for its teams than it is at present. He is still remembered at Stockton as one of the Tiger immortals.

A five-letter man, Wilson participated in football, baseball, basketball, track, and tennis.

Won Gridiron Fame

His greatest glory was gained on the gridiron, as he was placed on the All-Coast team of 1932, at the halfback spot. Again in '33 he received recognition, this time obtaining honorable mention on the All-American squad.

This achievement was probably due in a large measure to an outstanding feat Tom accomplished against the Loyola eleven that season. He completed at 65 yard forward pass that was put down in the record books as the longest of that pigskin campaign.

Coached 4 Champ Teams

Tom has been at the college since its inception, and in addition to teaching hygiene, soccer, and physical education classes, he has mentored four championship outfits, two each in tennis as well as the casaba junior varsity.

With this background of experience, Tom Wilson should have a very successful schedule in the Ram hardwood pastime.

Executive Council

Student Lounge Closed For Week For Cleanup; World Student Fund Plan Debated; Secretary To Address Members

At the seventh meeting of the Executive Council the matter which evoked the most discussion was that of the student lounge. Strenuous complaints as to its state of extreme disorder and untidiness due to the carelessness of students were voiced.

It was decided to close the lounge until today, and to provide suitable receptacles for waste paper, candy wrappers, et cetera.

The five dollars set aside to hire a person to keep the lounge clean, is now being taken from the student lounge fund, and not from the men's athletic budget, as originally approved. This was done at the request of Luther Lyon, controller, to facilitate bookkeeping.

Twenty dollars was transferred for the rally to be held Friday, November 30.

Money Transferred To Basketball

Because of the economy exercised in the distribution of the men's athletic budget, it was possible to transfer from it $850 to the basketball budget.

The matter of printing student handbooks was again brought up and following brief discussion was tabled once more, pending action on the new constitution.

Thirty-five dollars was transferred from the Dean of Men's fund to the bowling class.

Student Plan Obscure

Debate centered around a proposal to support a World Student fund, the purposes of which were judged as being obscure, and upon the suggestion of President Bob Mills, it was decided to invite the secretary of the organization to speak to the Executive Council, and thus shed light on the matter.

Before adjourning, the council agreed that the two Freshmen classes should combine and hold one dance.

Pi Mu Gamma

Pre-Medical Society Plans Lecture Series

To stimulate interest in the biological sciences, the officers of the Pi Mu Gamma, college pre-medical society, have arranged a series of talks to be given on Friday nights at the college, Al Moss, president of the society, announced last week.

With the topic of Internalistic Medicine, the next talk will be given by Dr. H. J. Pruett at the college on this Friday evening, November 23, at 8 p.m.

Students gain the privilege to attend these lectures by becoming members of the medical society. Membership is still open to students majoring in the biological sciences, although it is slated to close at the end of this month. A two-dollar membership fee is paid at the time of joining.

Freshman Classes Plan Winter Whirl Dance

As a prelude to the Christmas holidays, the Freshman class is presenting a Winter Whirl at the Century Club on December 13. Roberta Robb, High Freshman president, announced this week.

The dance, which is to be informal, is open to all students and will be clocked from 9 to 12. Probable orchestra for the occasion is Howie Fredericks'.

Admission will be by one Associated Student card per couple and the dress is street clothes for women and business suits for men.

Club Cavalcade . . .

By Jeanne Williams

•Alpha Theta Epsilon: All members are urged to have their names and money in for club pins before Friday's deadline.

•Beta Phi Beta: At the formal initiation held recently the following men were welcomed into the fraternity: Jim Avrams, Bob Elliott, Ed Dodsen, Joe Lanci, Lloyd Peterson, Marshall Ross, Don Swanson, Vince Timoney, and John Wilks. The next business meeting is scheduled for November 26, at the Rolph Mansion.

Too many cooks? Oh, no. They're all busy cooking luncheon!
These and many more men are busy every day cooking for some 2000 students and faculty who eat in the college cafeteria every day.

Letters To The Editor

RAM'S HORN

• Conscription Interrupts

Editor, The Guardsman:

I object! I object both to the reasoning of Bill Brownell, who in a facetious moment signs himself "Ignoramus Pinconious Brownell," and that of another demagogue, a monomial character by the name of "Earle."

Earle correctly states that "Men are still seifish, greedy, and distrustful. Therefore we must be ever ready to defend ourselves, as a nation, against (those) who would take our government away from us."

Next, Mr. Brownell's letter. The greater part of it may be immediately dismissed as cocky, illogical, inconsequential, and sophist. However, the last paragraph is worthy of note. He says, ". . . man created the atomic weapons and . . . man will also create protections against them." This will obviously call for training, military, shall we say?

Mr. Brownell and Earle apparently believe that, despite the United Nations Organization, our State Department, et al., there will be wars in the future in which the United States will take part. Here I agree. But I very definitely do not subscribe to his statements which express a belief that a conscript army will effectively protect us in these future wars. The world is today further ahead of Mr. Brownell and Earle than Bill Mitchell was of the reactionary "high muck-a-mucks" of the War Department in 1928.

The next war shall be, as this one was commencing to be at its close, a battle not of manpower, but fire-power. We need trained men, yes, but not men trained for long marches, digging foxholes, and shooting a B.A.R. We need men trained in scientific, technical work—men who can invent, develop, produce, and use the highly specialized weapons of the wars to come, when the rocket and atom bombs will be combined to form weapons surpassing those of today as the airplane of today surpasses the airplane of World War I. Even if you have not done work on scientific research and advancement, past and projected, your innate common sense should tell you that the things I have outlined will soon come to pass.

Earle states that ". . . atomic weapons are not going to be stopped by our having a large armed force at our disposal . . ."

That is what I have been preaching all along. Other nations will soon have the secret of controlled atomic disintegration. Are we going to try to stop their attack on us with a couple of million riflemen, who cannot even count the projectiles as they go past?

I believe that the solution of the problem now confronting the United States lies not in building up a huge army of unwilling riflecarriers, but in training a large number of scientific technicians.

—Donald Gerber.

• Engelbrecht Elucidates

Editor, The Guardsman:

In answer to two letters of November 14, I would like to elucidate my views on the moral aspect of military conscription because they were misinterpreted.

I am quite sure that our armed forces never sought to turn their recruits into blackmailers, thieves, rapists or perjurists, nor did I seek to give this impression. I am also sure that any such criminals that are found among the ranks of our armed forces are promptly dealt with.

The point which I tried to make was that military conscription is teaching someone to kill someone else, and that, in my opinion, this is fully as immoral as if training were given someone in any of the above mentioned ways of crime.

Although I sincerely hope defense measures will soon be found against atomic bombs, I doubt whether this can be done. We have had guns for hundreds of years and there still are no adequate defense measures against them. Is the atomic bomb so much easier to defend one's self against than the gun?

Consider all the fiendish and terrible weapons discovered and developed in the past 50 years ranging from battleships and heavy artillery to robot bombs and atom bombs. With scientific and technological research progressing, or perhaps regressing, at an unprecedented rate, even if the atomic bomb were rendered obsolete, who knows what horrible weapons will replace it in the next 50 years?

Some method will have to be found to stave off war until mankind progresses to the state where prejudice, greed, etc., are reduced to a point where they no longer are a threat to world peace. It will be far harder to hold race-haters and other hot heads in their place than it would be to maintain peacetime conscription in the United States.

But military conscription in the past has not kept peace but only led to war, and if another war would come, civilization could not survive the terrible destruction that would result, even if the United States had a large army.

—Lloyd Charles Engelbrecht.

Drama

Squaring The Circle Will Be Group's First Presentation

Presentation by the college drama class of the Russian play, Squaring The Circle, early in January, was announced last week by Ruth Somers, drama instructor.

A favorite throughout the Soviet Union, this play involves the problems of two young married couple, endeavoring to meet the trials of life and love. The wives are of entirely different natures, one being loyal to the Communist party; the other clinging to bourgeious ideals and possessions.

The conditions that prevail and the philosophy which is prevalent throughout the play unite to bring about a very interesting and different type of humor.

Two complete casts are at work on the play, Mrs. Somers said. Norma Brous, Constance Taboada, John Blauer, Walter Mahoney, Peter Cerlanti, Sylvan Diamond, and Anthony Scramozi compose the first cast. The second cast includes Dorothy Rudametkin, Jacqueline Chopnik, Gilbert Black, Dean Thomas, Robert Lertora, Jerold Zimmamon, and Cerlanti.

Silva To Advise WACS At Funston Field

Addressing approximately 250 WACS who are stationed at Funston Field, Claude T. Silva, of the veterans counseling service at the college, will discuss educational opportunities available to the GI WAC as well as the GI serviceman.

The addresses, which will be a part of the WAC orientation program, are slated for next Tuesday, November 27, and Thursday, November 29.

Visiting the college last Friday, November 16, Lieutenant Ruth Phillips, who is in charge of plans and training at Funston Field, stated that the WACS represented about 42 states of the union and were anxious to know of the opportunities available to those about to be discharged from the service.

Lieutenant Phillips was amazed at the advanced stage of educational facilities offered in the West and in particular at this college.

Married Students Meet Nov. 29 To Form Club

Plans were made last week for the possible organization of a club for married students of the college, Thomas R. Porter, instructor of botany, announced last week. In order to determine the need and interest for such a club, the first meeting will be held Thursday, November 29, at 10 o'clock, in Room 322.

The club would provide sociability and outside interest to married students on limited budgets and a means of becoming acquainted with others, especially for those who are newcomers to San Francisco, Porter emphasized.

All interested students are urged to attend this meeting, as the organization of the club will depend upon the interest shown

Boogie Highlights Rally Nov. 30 At 10

Featuring those boogie specialists, Bob Elliott and Roland Jones, a rally is planned for the WAVE Auditorium Friday, November 30, at 10 a.m. Classes will be dismissed that hour. J. Paul Mohr, registrar, said last week.

Students from the college have formed a jazz orchestra and a group known as the Ink Spots, which will be another highlight of the rally, Dean Haug, Rally Commissioner, revealed.

A preview of the much disscussed revised constitution is promised by the constitution committee, of which Bob Mills, chairman, Pamela Sampson, and Haug are members. All students are urged to attend.

Concert Programs Complete

Choir, Ten Soloists Highlight Annual Christmas Festival

Sketching the final draft for the traditional A Cappella Choir concerts, featured solos were cast last week by Program Directors Flossita Badger and Madison Devlin of the college music department.

Both programs are sponsored by the Associated Women Students and the Music Club.

Concert plans case into the final stages with the selection of Gloria Craig as narrator and ten soloists.

Guests at the evening performance Tuesday, December 11, at the Veterans Auditorium at 8:15 p.m. will hear soprano Elizabeth Wales sing The Birthday of a King, by Neidlinger; Shubert's Ave Maria, sung by a quartette with Geraldine de Groot as soprano soloist; Phyllis Greenly, contralto; Nancy Stangle, soprano; Emory Mellon, baritone.

Both programs, the other scheduled for 10 a.m. Thursday, December 6, at the WAVE Auditorium, will feature Claire Bonner, Suzanne Greenfield and Barbara Stephen as a flute trio playing Allegro Giocoso, by Haydn, a double quintet with soprano Patricia McCormick soloing in Cantique de Noel, by Adam, and the Holy City, sung by Mellon.

Ushering in the yuletide celebrants at both performances will be 28 women, members of AWS. At the night program at the Veterans Auditorium they will wear formals. Street-length gowns will be worn at the college festival December 6.

Greeting guests will be ushers representing all women's organizations of the college and including Natalie Grant, Adele Reinisch, Lorene Wagers, Carol Hayland, Jeffrey Burress, Claire Levesque, Wanda McKenzie, Sue Miles, Mary Jo Miles, Betty Stockton, Betty Mann, Adele Rogers, Elvera Fusco, Pat Luccetti, Helen Love, Lucille Peters, Nancy Schulz, Roberta Robb, Jeanne Williams, Nancy Ruttencutter, Betty Howard, Barbara Bray, Lorraine Norton, Wilma Stratton, Jean Carrasco, Gwen Slovence, Helen Ringuis, Pamela Sampson.

With the concert plans for Thursday, December 6, and Tuesday, December 11, completely outlined (see story in column 1), the AWS leaders, realizing that many women students do not understand what AWS means to them, explained.

"The Associated Women Student organization is exclusively and automatically an organization for the women students of San Francisco Junior College, who are members in good standing of the Associated Students. That is, all women who possess a current Associated Student card are members. The AWS provides teas, fashion shows, dances, and the like during each semester."

The officers of AWS are active in the statewide organization of college AWS organizations. Faculty adviser is Dean Margaret Dougherty.

Oh Holy Night . . .

Patricia McCormick, president of the Music Club, which is co-sponsoring with Associated Women Students the college's Christmas concerts, is also a soloist on both programs. She will sing Cantique de Noel, accompanied by members of a double quintet.

Alpha Theta Epsilon

Members To Collect Christmas Gifts For Hospitalized Servicemen Dec. 3-7

To make a happier and more complete Christmas for servicemen who will be spending their holiday in the hospital, the members of Alpha Theta Epsilon Society are sponsoring the collection of gifts to be distributed by the Red Cross in hospitals in this area.

The collection will take place from Monday, December 3, to Friday, December 7, and a receptical will be placed in the center corridor for general contributions, Elvera Fusco, president of the club, said last week.

Slogan used by the group is "Give a gift to a Yank who gave."

With Rae Wyner as chairman of the committee, members plan to wrap the gifts and see that they are properly distributed. Since the gifts are to be presented in the name of the entire college, however, it is hoped that all students will pitch in wholeheartedly and do their share by their contributions, Miss Wyner said.

"Such articles as pocketbooks, stationery, new playing cards, games and puzzles, comb and nail file sets, candy, and dried fruits have been suggested by the Red Cross," Miss Fusco pointed out, "but almost any practical articles are sure to be heartily welcomed and are bound to bring a smile to the face of some bedridden Yank who wishes he could be home for Christmas."

Students and faculty are urged to bring whatever they feel they can spare, and the members of Alpha Theta Epsilon will see to it that they arrive safely at their destination.

The idea originated with Miss Wyner, and Miss Fuco after hearing of Red Cross aims and plans for such gifts, and after hearing Eddie Cantor add his special plea in a recent program. They immediately received support from their organization and put the plan into effect.

Faculty sponsors are Frances Mount and Claire Cuneo of the Home Economics Association.

XGI Opens Meeting To Flying Club Backers

To provide opportunity for student expression of interest in XGI members' plans to organize a flying club here, the first part of its special meeting tomorrow at 10 o'clock, in Room 37 in the basement, will be open for general discussion of the idea, Dick Mann, publicity chairman, said last week.

Tentative plans for such a club were outlined last week and provide for membership open to all college students interested in flying. Main part of the activity of the club would be to offer flights at reduced prices to students here, with pilots drawn from ex-flier members of the XGI or other licensed personnel whether veterans or not.

Activities would also include flying instruction and piloting, all on a non-profit basis. Possible bases for flights are the San Mateo and Belmont fields.

In a landslide vote at its last meeting, the XGI Society unanimously agreed to aid incoming veterans in familiarization to college life.

With a discussion of the atomic bomb, the XGI debate team, now consisting of 14 members, will hold its first debate with the Alpha Gamma Sigma on Saturday, December 1, Joe Gole, team chairman, said.

Backing XGI publicity, a few art students have volunteered to make special activity posters which will be posted throughout the college.

Several copies of the XGI constitution have been mimeographed and were distributed to all members last week. More copies are available.

Rally, Barn Dance

Mills To Outline Constitution Revisions At Meeting In Auditorium Friday; AWS And AMS Perfect Hop Plans For Evening

Rally

To introduce a draft of the newly revised constitution, a special rally will be held in the WAVE Auditorium Friday, at 10 a.m., according to Dean Haug, Rally Commissioner.

J. Paul Mohr, registrar, announced that classes will be dismissed at this hour so that all students might attend.

Bob Elliott and Roland Jones will be the special attraction of the rally for boogie woogie enthusiasts.

Other features will be a jazz orchestra formed by college students, and a singing group called the Ink Spots.

Twenty Oakland High School students have been invited to make a tour of the college and attend the rally on Friday.

Revision Proposed Earlier

Proposals to revise the Associated Student Constitution were first brought up last semester, then postponed for rewrite and thorough revision until this semester.

Bob Mills, Associated Student president, appointed a committee to work with him this semester, composed of Pamela Sampson, Publications Board representative on the Executive Council, and Haug. Mills himself will outline the new constitution at the rally in simplified form.

Rally Not Official Meeting

Presentation at the rally does not constitute the Associated Student meeting necessary to consider constitutional revision, Dean Edward E. Sandys pointed out.

Of the two methods for constitutional amendment possible, according to Article V of the present constitution, the second one has been selected, Dean Sandys said. This provides in text the following procedure:

"The proposed amendment to be presented to the Executive Council and accepted by that body by a two-thirds majority vote of its members and approved by a two-thirds majority vote of those present and voting at an official meeting of this association."

Barn Dance

To the tune of Turkey in the Straw, the annual Associated Men Students and Associated Women Students Barn Dance will begin promptly at 9 o'clock Friday night in the men's gymnasium, presidents of the associations said last week.

Ernie Poggi, AMS president, and AWS leader Carol Hayland stated that all plans are now complete and all that is necessary to make it a big night is a large turnout.

State Fair is the theme of the dance, and the gymnasium will be decorated accordingly with prize products displays and the inevitable prize pickle display.

Straw Serves Dual Purpose

Straw on the floor will serve a dual purpose—to add to the atmosphere and to soften the falls of those who adopt modern steps to barn dance themes. To enhance the atmosphere of horn and hoof, men will wear "Levis" and plaid shirts and the women will blend in with cotten dresses and pigtails. "Women will not wear jeans," AWS officers said.

The dance will start at 9 o'clock to the music of Ray Hackett's orchestra and terpsichoreans may vary their tempos to smooth, jitterbug, or square dancing.

Prizes For Best Dancers

The best dancing couple of the evening will be selected by six judges, who will be officers of the AWS and AMS. Prizes will be awarded to the winners, but the type of dance contest to be staged is as yet unannounced.

For those who prefer to confine their light-footed prowess to tiptoeing to and from the cider kegs, to lubricate their voices, the hog calling contest will be held. Judges will select the Poor Hog's Sinatra and he in turn will be dubbed College County Champion Hog Caller.

Hat-checking facilities will be available, and admission is one Associated Students card per couple, Miss Hayland and Poggi said.

Exams, Classes End Dec. 12; Grades Held

Because classes end at the college with the completion of mid-terms on Wednesday, December 12, grades will not be distributed until Thursday, January 3, the day after students return from Christmas vacation.

The 20-day vacation, according to Grant Marsh, director of counselling and guidance, will begin Thursday, December 13, and last through Monday, January 1.

Fountain Service In Cafe Closes At 1:30

In answer to queries, Guy Worden, student manager of the cafeteria, reported this week that the college cafeteria will not continue fountain service after 1:30 p.m. as it did last semester.

The change is made so that fountain service hours coincide with luncheon service hours, thus eliminating the half-hour period following regular luncheon service because business does not justify keeping the fountain open.

Married Students Meet Friday In Room 322

With a view toward providing extra-curricular interest and an espirit de corps among married students of the college, a meeting to determine the interest such a club will hold is scheduled to take plate tomorrow, November 29, in Room 322, during the 10 o'clock hour, Thomas R. Porter, instructor of botany, announced last week.

If organized, the club will be an instrument through which married students and their spouses, whether or not they are both enrolled at the college, may find social outlets with persons with similar interests and backgrounds, and will be particularly profitable for those who have only recently come to San Francisco, Porter stated.

Although the enterprise will be organized under the auspices of the college, he pointed out that once the debut is made, it will, in all probability, continue independently and without college patronage.

All those concerned are urged to be present at tomorrow's gathering, since the creation of the club depends entirely upon the need for and interest shown in it.

Editorial vs. Column

Latter States Own Views

PERHAPS the most deciding factor in judging the democracy of a nation or an institution is whether or not it permits complete freedom of expression, especially in print.

Freedom of the press is all too readily taken for granted by the public, who at the same time indulges in a general misconception, namely, that those news organs themselves feel free only to express the views of their owners and operators.

In other words, there is widespread belief that reporters, columnists and other contributors to newspapers are hired only on the assurance that their printed views will coincide with those of their superiors.

That such a practice is followed by a number of newspapers, not only locally, but on a nationwide and international scale, is an obvious and undeniable fact. However, for such an accusation to be levelled against the press in general would be most unjust.

Because The Guardsman recognizes the divergence of opinion on all subjects within the college, as is only natural, it has constantly featured columnists whose views may be entirely opposite from those of the editorial staff.

It should go without saying that in any case, the views of all columnists on The Guardsman are entirely their own, and any editorial endorsement is solely through the Editorial, and not in the mere fact that the columns are printed.

In the past there have been columns in The Guardsman which have been labelled everything from extreme left to extreme right, and it was the opinion of some of the more ignorant students that the policy of the paper fluctuated accordingly.

The Guardsman, with the avowed desire to reflect all shades of student opinion, has never impeded its columnists by censorship, except to guard against personalized attacks.

This fundamental policy of The Guardsman has been amply demonstrated recently by permitting its columnists to express themselves fully and freely on such topics of extreme controversy as the atomic bomb, and conscription.

Readers, too, are able and welcome to voice their opinions through the Ram's Horn, a facility which is never too fully taken advantage of.

The Editor in writing an editorial has to weigh matters always with the welfare and interests of all the students in mind, and is upon occasion confronted with the problem of sifting out personal bias from the long range interests of the Associated Students.

Accordingly, the Editor is the person who hardly can express his own opinion at all times, and who generally has either to contribute some light on a controversial subject, or wait until the smoke clears, and endeavor to point out to the students what is to their own best interests.

Consequently, until the views already expressed by columnists in The Guardsman regarding conscription and the atomic bomb are endorsed editorially, they should not be considered to be part of the editorial policy of The Guardsman.

Off The Record . . .

DURING the past weeks we have been most vociferous with our opinions and can see no reason for sparing the sword now.

As Mark Twain once remarked, "Everybody talks about the weather, but nobody does anything about it." Precisely why we are here; there is an answer for all our problems.

It is a well known fact that everyone in this ghastly world of ours is different. More generally these are referred to as Individual Differences; or, as the psychologists say, "The nature of the stimuli does not determine the nature of the response." In other words, you can't tell what anyone will do next.

Understanding of our fellow man is a great and noble undertaking, and we must warn that heartbreak, disappointment, and a down-to-earth philosophy may result, but it's worth a chance.

To begin with, in order to comprehend those about us we must first understand ourselves. Simple? Perhaps so, but few have reached the point of trying to reason why we do things.

A little knowledge is always dangerous, but after only a few lectures in psychology we often wonder how we managed to live without having heard of Individual Differences.

We maintain that psychology should be a required subject in place of something we will have little use for in later life. Students should have at least a practical knowledge of the subject, and instructors should be well versed.

If all instructors were required to study the teachings of our great psychologists, they might pass on a great deal to their students. There is no need to base everything on Freud's theories, but a well rounded study would be more than appreciated. All it takes is a little study, common sense and an unselfish desire to help our fellow man as much as possible.

Since we agree that all the peoples of the world cannot be brought together in a classroom, at least we see that understanding should be passed on through practice. Teachers will give it to students, and they, in turn, will carry it to the corners of the world.

Then belligerent attitudes in the classroom might be understood and helped; revolution would be senseless, and war might be put down as "What those foolish men did way back in 1945."

EXPERIMENT PERILOUS

One of our college students has come up in the world. Seems he placed six eggs in a psychology class and went his merry way. Was it a psychological experiment, or has something new been accomplished?

While Thinking . . .

THAT a nation needs a large standing army is a fact that has been proved through the centuries. Nations that are prepared have no certainty of not being attacked, but they at least have the realization that if they are, they will be able to stave it off.

The average youth does not want to serve a year in military training, but he knows that he should. The nation needs a large trained force of men that are capable of protecting the country from any aggressive nation.

Everyone opposed to universal military training chortles in a vehement voice, "The atomic bomb is all the protection we need. A large force is not needed to man the bomb." That is right, a large force is not needed to man the bomb, but a relatively ample force is needed to build bases and man these bases.

Who can tell whether or not some other country will get hold of the secret and use it against us? Man is not naturally aggressive, but many men are eager for power and do not care how they attain that power.

Compulsory military education will benefit the youth of the nation. It will mature them and make them better able to face the world and its problems. This training will serve a twofold purpose.

At the present time Congress is in a static state in regard to the issue. They must pass it soon, but then Congress does not seem to believe that time is ever of the essence. Maybe it will be decided in 1947.

Shots At RAMdom

WE'RE getting mighty tired of sighting horrible examples in college life, but we feel it would be an indelible mark against our character if we didn't go a whole step further and warn the feminine gender about what's in store in the line of approaches.

An approach is usually accompanied by what is commonly referred to as a "line," with a sincere hope that the poor fish swallow it, book and sinker.

THE INTELLECTUAL

There's the intellectual type who immediately sets out to appeal to your finer nature. He quotes poetry (probably Browning) in well-managed settings. He believes heartily in food for thought, for the soul, but stops at a cup of cocoa for a treat. He relies thoroughly on flattering your intelligence to get by.

THE FATHERLY

Then we have the fatherly type. If you think you're a problem, just try confiding to this welcome listener. He bridges every difficulty in one harmonious speech, calling you poetically from time to time BY NAME. He understands you, you lucky salmon!

THE BIG BROTHER

Next is the big brother type. He is just one of the gang, so-o-o patient and such a guardian. He always considers it a pleasure (and a duty) to cut in at least once at each dance. His annoying little habit is to look PAST you, but what for?

THE FALSE ALARM

He is the handsome chap who sits next to you in history or in front of you in French. During every class he smiles, and you laugh politely at everything he says. You sometimes even take his notes for him, and you think that even out of gratitude he should break down and ask you to the next dance or even a movie. But no, he just keeps smiling. It is maddening!

THE THOUGHTFUL TYPE

This is your ideal man. Your every wish is his command. On every occasion he sports a box of candy or flowers, and he never forgets to get his father's car. He is never late, takes you to the best places and phones you constantly. He's heaven while he lasts, but he doesn't last long enough.

THE REPULSIVE

Maybe it's the way he parts his hair or grins that takes mother back to her youth, but anyhow she thinks he is wonderful and always invites him to the house. Dad thinks he is a fine, upstanding fellow and you think he's a drip.

He's such a dear, sweet boy before the family, but on a date he is a wolf of the first order. Incidentally, wolf spelled sideways is FOWL.

The Beachcomber

WAS talking to a WAVE the other day who virtually bombarded us with descriptions of how romantic our fair town is, especially during the winter months. Gatherings before open fireplaces, sitting up on Twin Peaks in a warm car while listening to the radio and looking down on the trillions of little lights, parties until all hours of the night lasting only so long, of course, because all the guests are waiting for the rain to subside; and the mirror-like appearance of a street after said rain has tired out for a while, were but a few of her arguments. We're convinced and have been for many years, but just the same it was nice to hear it from someone else.

TOJO

In Life Magazine a couple of weeks ago, the story of Tojo's man-without-a-country existence was told with pictures. Accompanying photos also showed a few of his ex-colleagues with their smiling faces, and below these photos were listed a few of their war crimes. Ironically enough, the next pages featured an editorial and full page picture of Lidice today, a crime committed by the Nips' brothers of war. Lest we forget.

ANSWER

One of our previous columns has started to stir up a row, and one student has asked the reason why we don't answer Ram's Horn letters within our column. It is simply because an answer in the column would be featured and therefore would be unfair to the person or persons who write to us and about us in that editorial department.

NOTES . . .

Sinatra's latest recording is Nancy. This tune was originally written to and for his little daughter.

That lead-ox bells were once used by highwaymen to bring the stage coach horses to a peaceful and natural halt.

That twenty-two years, five days, and four hours ago, the moon passed into umbra.

The theme music for the flicker, You Came Along, which now bears the same title, was originally titled, Out Of Nowhere, and is over a decade old.

There I Said It Again, which gained its most popularity last March, was first copyrighted in 1941.

Engineers Take Intra Basket Crown

Defaults Mark End Of Season; All-Stars Close To Lead, XGI In Third; Touch Tackle Tourney Applications Due Dec. 5

Six straight wins and no losses copped the intramural casaba title for the Engineers when play ended on November 21. Following hot in the wake of basketball is touch tackle football for which entry blanks, due by next Wednesday, are printed on page 4 of this issue of The Guardsman.

The hoop season ended uneventfully. The last three days of the tourney were unattended by half of the teams, so the teams present won by default.

All-Stars In Second

Final tabulations put the Oakland All-Stars in second place with five wins and one loss. This club gave the champs their toughest game when they scored 23 points to the Engineers' 25.

Third spot was grabbed by the XGI, who won four and dropped two. The Chinese Reds dropped to fourth place when the Army took two of their stars, and they dropped two games by default.

The Hot Shots hold the five spot with three wins and four losses and the sixth place honors went to the Eagles, winners of two, losers of four.

Beta Phi In Cellar

The cellar stairs location went to the Beta Phi Beta who won one out of six starts. Down in the cellar close to their natural habitat are the Devils, who defeated nobody and lost to everybody.

Coach Jack Brady stated that the gold medals will be awarded to Richard Brown, Earl Malnick, Les Bana, Fred Sandine and Don Malnick of the Engineers on the night of the Associated Men Student - Intramural boxing tournament, some time in January because the medals have not arrived.

Football Entries Due

Brady added that football entries may be turned in to him now in the men's gymnasium. Men having earned their college football blocks are not eligible to enter. Teams will be limited to six men, and league play will get under way as soon as possible and should end about December 13.

Brady doubts that tennis will be played because only three entrants have signed up.

In order to gain the maximum of light, the building was planned with its entrance on Phelan Avenue, thus placing classrooms in the north and south wings, and science labs in the two center wings.

Six straight and no losses put the Engineering Club in top place at the end of the intramural basketball tournament last Wednesday. In the background, standing, in the picture above are, left to right, Richard Brown, Les Bana, and Fred Sandine. In front, kneeling, are the Malnick brothers, Don, left, and Earl.

By Don Lucey

SINCE this section of the paper is interested primarily in sports, let's see why J. A. Amori rates his mention in this esteemed place. Looking over his biography, as it appeared in Personal Close-Ups of the Faculty on September 27 of '35, we come across these interesting items.

Joseph A. gained athletic success at San Jose State, where he won letters in football, track, baseball and soccer. He also won awards for swimming, the most important being the trophy he earned in 1930, when he outclassed his competitors in the 150-yard backstroke event to capture the Santa Clara County Championship.

STARRED IN RUGBY

Joe was also a star in rugby for the Olympic Club team of ten years ago. Besides playing for them, he was captain and manager.

J. A. got his start managing kids when he became a playground director for the Oakland Recreational Department. He assumed his first coaching task at San Mateo Junior College, and his able handling of the job got him the position of recreation superintendent for the latter community and Burlingame too.

While instructing at S. M., Mr. Amori tutored a golf team that won the conference title two times in succession. He was also an assistant casaba mentor for the institution across the county line, and in that capacity saw his quintet crowned state champs.

COACHED BOXING, WRESTLING

In his stay with the Mateans, Amori lent a hand on the gridiron, and made a name for himself in the field of boxing and wrestling. His boys seldom lost a match, and he turned out many promising fisticuffers, among them Hugh McPhillips, the lad who won the A.A.U. light-heavyweight belt.

So, don't get rugged with Joe or he'll floor you with a half nelson. However, it is very doubtful if Joe has a single enemy in the college. Of course, his duty as placement director has nothing to do with this. Truthfully, it really doesn't.

KNOWN AS GOOD HEAD

Anyone acquainted with Joseph Amori knows that he actually radiates personality. And if any of you men never experienced the pleasure of attending one of his hygiene classes, you haven't lived. His wealth of knowledge and his interesting lectures have registered him as a "good head" with the students.

He has not been engaged in physical education since his return to the campus. The probable reason for this is the attitude he assumed in the service of Uncle Sam. For while in the Navy, from which he was released this October, with the rank of Lieutenant-Commander, he was mostly engaged with personnel work, a type he had begun here at the college with the placement office before entering the Navy.

Jack Brady

Intramural Coach Is Versatile Prof

By Luis Hernandez

Versatile is the word for Coach Jack Brady, who has taught every subject from mathematics to hygiene in his six years here in college.

Brady is a local boy born in this city 29 summers ago. He attended Mission High School, where he played first base on the Mission nine and was president of his high senior class in the fall of 1933.

Won From Tokyo

He chose the University of San Francisco as the place to acquire his higher learning. During his four-year stay there he majored in history and earned a block for his baseball prowess. His most exciting game while at USF was played against the Tokyo Giants, an all-star team from Japan, in 1937.

Having played first base since high school days, Brady was doubtful as to the outcome when the coach put him in as pitcher. He came through with flying colors and pitched a no-hit game to win, 2 to 0.

Brady was graduated from USF in the fall of 1937 and went to the University of California, from where he emerged in the fall of 1938 with his teacher's credentials.

Will Coach Baseball

He coached a second place conference nine in '43, and if there is a conference next year he will mentor the squad. He stated that there is a lot of material from the high schools around, and he expects to whip up a championship team.

He entered here in 1939 as a physical education instructor but has taught math, English, hygiene and is now in charge of intramural sports. On top of this he is attending Stanford University for a Master's Degree in hygiene.

The San Francisco Board of Education, after 10 years of prompting from desirous citizens, authorized the establishment of the San Francisco Junior College on February 15, 1935. For the first ceremony of organizing a college, prospective students gathered in assembly at the War Memorial Opera House on August 26, 1935.

Basketball

16 Stand Out As Team Potentials To Start Play Dec. 13

After two days of 1945 Ram basketball practice, 16 men take the lead in potential team formation, although no team has as yet been named or will be for some time, according to Coach Tom Wilson.

The 16 are Tiger Flaherty, Red Dunnigan, Frank Ratto, Herb Jotter, Henry Nicholini, Houston Dunnigan, Earl and Don Malnick, Frank Skoglund, Lou Follini, Connie O'Shea, Richard Pattini, Roland Jones, Maurice Lynch, Don Lucey, and Earl Lawrence.

Twenty-three men other than the above are also out for practice, and it may very well be that the Ram varsity will include some of them as practice proceeds.

Two Are War Veterans

Flaherty and Red Dunnigan are war veterans. Flaherty was a sergeant in the Marine Corps and was in every major Marine engagement.

In the course of his fighting, he received the Silver Star and the Bronze Star. He was also the only enlisted man on Andy Phillips' Wiz team that played at Okinawa and the Hawaiian Islands.

Flaherty had his high school education and gained his outstanding prowess on the court of St. Ignatius.

A graduate of Lowell High, Dunnigan was first in the Coast Guard, then in the Merchant Marine. He took part in operations in Europe, Alaska, and the South Pacific.

First Game December 13

The first game scheduled for play is a practice tilt against the California Medics, Thursday, December 13. There are several other tentative games with Pasadena Junior College on January 5, Skaggs Island of Sonoma County on January 4, Cal Ramblers on January 12, and either Stanford Frosh or Operational Training Ship of Treasure Island on January 10.

A word might be mentioned at this time about a hard working fellow who is the manager of the basketball team. His name is Herb Markall, and he was graduated from Washington High School and served for a time in the Army, from which he was discharged August 23 of this year.

While at Washington he won his letter at baseball and is contemplating going out for the team in the spring.

He played a variety of positions from catcher through the infield and also the outfield.

San Jose Nursery Gives Plants To College

Messrs. Ray Hartman and Gordon Wallace of the Leonard Coates Nursery of San Jose last week presented to the college a specimen of Sapium Sebiferum to be planted on the campus.

The plant is commonly known as Chinese tallow tree, since the waxy seed-covering is used in making candles, soap, and dressing cloth. It is native to China and Japan, and has naturalized in parts of the eastern United States.

Either the ornamental or specimen tree make a beautiful shade, turning various shades of red and orange in the fall before dropping. Planting of the Sapium Sebiferum on the campus will be postponed until water for planting is available.

WAA

Faculty Volleyball Game Will Feature Christmas Party

Committee chairmen of the Women's Athletic Association went to work last week planning the traditional Christmas party, scheduled this year for Wednesday afternoon, December 12, in the women's gymnasium, and featuring a student versus faculty volleyball game.

Irene Mouzakis, WAA vice-president, is in charge of the program, assisted by Alma Pucci and Frances Scilipoti. Special supervision is being given by WAA advisor, Bertha Mae Keller, who announced last week that all sports clubs are expected to participate in some manner as well as several members of the faculty.

Faculty Team Named

With Dean Margaret Dougherty officiating, the volleyball club is scheduled to play an all-faculty team composed of the following women: Frances Mount, Jane Scribner, Dorothy Mercer, Eleanor Blinn, Andrewa Noble, Mildred Williams Jensen, Claire Lipperi, Mary Jane Learnard, Edna Denhard, Verrel Weber, Laurine Bergin, Bettyjean Otto, and Miss Keller.

Wanda McKenzie, WAA president, has promised to have a giant Christmas tree set up by Monday, December 10, two days before the date of the party. Presents are sure to be in abundance since all the members of the WAA clubs are buying small ten cent gifts, she disclosed.

Carols To Climax Program

Entertainment is to be supplied by college women, whether members or non-members of the WAA, Miss McKenzie stressed. The community singing of Christmas Carols will provide some of the familiar atmosphere of the holiday season, she added.

The Ice-skating Club would like to have men students of the college join the group at any of their Monday afternoon practice sessions, according to Miss Otto, instructor. In the past, it has been traditional for men to belong to this club since so much of the intermediate and advanced skating looks so pleasing when performed by partners.

AMS-Intra Boxing Show Scheduled In January

The annual Associated Men student-Intramural boxing show will be held some time late in January, Ernie Poggi, AMS president, said last week.

The show, which displays the most promising pugilistic talent at the college, is one of the main events on the college athletic calendar.

The contestants are chosen from the special boxing class, of which Coach Jack Gaddy is the instructor. Coach Gaddy stated that the class will soon begin serious training for the show.

Contestants also will be chosen from the regular gym classes. Early in January a class will be held at 2 o'clock each afternoon for the convenience of this group.

Coach Thomas D. Wilson, AMS sponsor of the program, announced that other events will be presented on the program, the nature of which is unknown at this time.

Medals will be presented to the winners by Coach Jack Brady, director of intramural sports.

All students who are interested in participating in the show are requested to see Coaches Gaddy or Wilson immediately.

Placement

Vacation Work Still Available; Jobs Scarce In Future

That some Christmas jobs are still available was stated last week by Joseph A. Amori, placement director. Salespeople and office workers are still needed. Amori will interview students in Room 169.

Amori warned students who have obtained a part-time job to hold on to them. The labor trend in the Bay Area indicates that part-time jobs will be scarce in the future, Amori pointed out, and that students should endeavor to adapt themselves to their present positions.

Amori stated that business firms and department stores are conducting a training period to orientate the workers for the holiday rush. These workers receive full pay while training.

More than 100 students have been employed in post-office jobs in the Bay Area, and a large number have been hired by department stores and clothing stores. College students have been placed in every department store in the city. Students who wish to continue on a part-time basis after the Christmas holidays will be given this opportunity.

Haldeman Speaks To Pi Mu Gamma Members

Dr. Keene O. Haldeman, member of the staff of the University of California Medical Society and associate clinical professor of orthopaedic surgery, spoke to more than 50 members and friends of the Pi Mu Gamma, college pre-medical society, at a meeting Friday night at 8 p.m., at the college. He chose as his topic Orthopaedic Surgery.

Haldeman received his B.A., M.A., and M.D. at the University of California and his Ph.D. at the University of Minnesota.

His talk was one of a series of lectures arranged by the officers of the society to be given on Friday nights to stimulate interest in the biological sciences.

Haldeman spoke in place of Dr. H. J. Pruett, who it was formerly announced, would speak Friday night.

By becoming members of the pre-medical society, students gain the privilege of attending these lectures. Membership will be open until the end of this month for students majoring in the biological sciences, Al Moss, president of the society, said. A two dollar membership fee is paid at the time of joining.

Art Club Plans Joint Jr. College Activities

Plans for an Alumni Association of Alpha Delta Epsilon, the college art club, will be formulated this semester, according to Connie Trigonis, president.

Miss Trigonis expressed the hope that the society will be able to resume most of its pre-war activities.

These activities include the annual watercolor exhibit, usually held in the spring, and a joint exhibition of art-work with other Northern California Junior Colleges.

Student Lounge

Furniture Donations Will Not Be Refused

Obvious changes toward neatness are now present in the college's student lounge, located in the basement, as a result of the cleanliness campaign and the prospective donation of lounge furniture by a student.

Anyone else with a desire to donate furniture, such as chesterfields or chairs, in fairly good condition, to such a worthy cause as this will not be thwarted and can do so by informing Bob Mills, Associated Student president, or Luther Lyon, controller.

Although not finished as yet, the mural for the lounge, painted by the art classes of the college, is well on the way toward completion

Library

Hours Extended To Aid Evening Students

For the benefit of students attending evening classes, the library will be open nightly from 6:45 to 8 p.m.

Regular day hours are the same as in past semesters, from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., Marcus Skarstedt, librarian, stated last week.

Skarstedt explained that students have free access to the stacks, and books may be taken out for a two-week period. He added that they may be renewed if necessary.

Skarstedt pointed that there is a light switch by each stack which may be turned on to facilitate the search for books.

Reference books are kept behind the loan desk and may be borrowed for two hours in the library, or taken home. All reference books may be reserved ahead of time at the loan desk.

The periodical room is behind the loan desk. Approximately 200 periodicals are subscribed to, and students are welcome to read them in the periodical room.

Since the establishment of the library, more than 24,000 volumes of books have been accumulated, of these about 150 were donated by Mrs. L. A. Meyers this semester, Skarstedt added.

Each month a list of all the new books is posted in the reading room, and the new books are placed on the exhibition rack in the center of the library.

Plans Completed For Freshman Class Dance

That definite plans for the Freshman class dance to be held Thursday evening, December 13, have been completed, was the announcement made this week by Roberta Robb, High Freshman class president.

Howie Fredericks' orchestra has been obtained, and bids are on order for the occasion, which is being held at the Century Club, scene of many of the college's dances in the past.

Informal attire is the order of the evening and admission may be gained by one Associated Students card per couple.

Planning committee for the affair is headed by Miss Robb and includes Nancy Ruttencutter, Millie Laube, Virginia Sauder, Shirley Ross and Warren Simmons.

Intramural Entries Due December 5

Those interested in the opening intramural touch tackle football games must have their entries in by Wednesday, December 5, according to Intramural Director, Jack Brady. Schedules for competition and play will be announced soon. Entries will be accepted every day by Brady in the office of the men's gymnasium through December 5. Executive Council

Members Approve Fund For New Student Handbook, Plan For Campus Clean-Up Day, Vote Down Victory Loan Drive Here

Last week's meeting of the Executive Council, although it got off to a late start, rapidly attended to all the business on hand, which included two transfers of funds amounting to $470, rejection of a request from the Dean of Men for $200, and of plans for a victory loan drive, and the appointment of two members to attend to a donation of furniture to the student lounge.

Specifically, $450 was transferred from the undistributed fund to that for the printing of student handbooks.

The sum of $20 was transferred from the Dean of Men's fund to cover the cost of towing a student's car which broke down in transporting students to the Sacramento game.

Clean Up Day Planned

It was decided to set aside a day in the near future, to be specified as Clean Up Day, and Doris Pederson, Associated Student vice-president, was appointed by Bob Mills to head the campaign.

Rejected was a proposal to hold a victory loan drive within the college because of the time element, which was considered to be short.

Dean Sandys requested $200 to cover certain medical bills, but it was rejected until such time as the bills are presented to the council.

Furniture May Be Donated

One student having offered to make a donation of certain pieces of furniture for the student lounge, Mills appointed Nancy Cunningham and Pamela Sampson to attend to the matter.

Next meeting of the Executive Council is scheduled for tomorrow at noon, in Room 113. Members were warned by President Mills to be on time, and that if they do not appear by 12:10, the meeting will not be called to order.

Vic Pudlowski

Fame And Laughs Compose His Life

By Betty Jo Smith

Psychologists, and laymen alike, come to an undecided and abrupt standstill when a definition of Personality is asked. Although logic says nay, friends say, "Vic Pudlowski IS Personality."

One needs only to peruse the list of the offices he holds as proof of his ascending popularity—High Sophomore President, General Athletic Manager of the Men's Athletic Council, Secretary of the Block Society, and Treasurer of the Golden Cleats.

Headed AMS In Spring

Vic's climb to fame began last semester when he burst into the limelight heading the Associated Men Students. Even his fraternity recognized his solidity and independence by assigning him the role of Secretary.

As General Athletic Manager, his membership in the Executive Council is automatic. In this capacity he submits budgets, recommendations, schedules and all things pertaining to Men's Athletics.

Materially, his manipulation of Ex Council duties, which he completes so lustily and diligently, does not overshadow his maintenance of the Associated Student offices; for Vic believes that they are all going a magnificent job.

Teaching His Career

Although ingenious and carefree in social life, Vic's integral aim is to sow seeds of wisdom as a history or English instructor. He plans to "inter" his mind at either Stanford or the University of California after graduation from this college.

The Ex Council membership must have created a desire and interest in student government, otherwise Vic would not be planning on throwing his hat in the ring for the office of Associated Student President at the next election.

Assiduous, clever, loyal, felicitous — all these words follow the name Pudlowski wherever it appears. Vic merely shrugs his shoulders and explains, "I'm very mature through travel. I've been to Alameda, Salinas, and Berkeley."

Ask him about the High Sophomore Formal, and you have a period piece, entitled as follows:

CONVERSATION WITH PUDLOWSKI

"Has the date—"
"No!"
"For the—"
"No, no!"
"High Soph Week—"
"No, no, no."
"Been Set?"
"No, no, no, no!"

Dance Bids Limited For Kappa Phi Affair

Bids for the Kappi Phi's Night Before Christmas Dance slated for Saturday, December 22, are limited and "going fast," according to Roberta Robb, chairman for the event.

Selling for $1.75, the bid admits a couple to the Green Hills Country Club, 12 miles down the El Camino Real Highway, for an evening of dancing and peace-time celebration.

Miss Robb cautioned students to act quickly if they have hopes of attending the affair. Music will be under the baton of Paul Law.

Club Cavalcade . . .

By Jeanne Williams

•Alpha Lambda Chi: A business meeting will be held tonight at the home of Doris Doran.

•Alpha Theta Epsilon: All members planning to attend the dinner to be held at Sigmund Sterne Grove on Monday evening, December 3, must sign up in Room 158 by Thursday noon. Members are reminded to bring Christmas gifts to be exchanged.

•Beta Tau: New members will be formally initiated Saturday night at the Palace Hotel. Following the ceremony the members will adjourn to the Rose Room for dancing.

•Delta Psi: A rush tea will be held Sunday afternoon, December 2, at the home of Ann Pekraman, 827 28th Avenue. To clarify the misstatement in last week's column, the president for this semester is Millie Hoffman.

•Kappa Phi: Pledges are invited to attend a meeting this Friday night at the home of Virginia Burke, 651 12th Avenue.

•Omicron Phi Pi: In order to resume activity a meeting will be held at the home of Michael Zarchin, adviser, at 295 Urs[illegible] Drive. All active members at the college and those inactive ones who have returned are urged to attend. All students who received an A or B as last semester's final grade in a university parallel course in history, economics, sociology or political science are eligible for membership. All students who met this requirement in the first mid-term are invited to attend the meeting. The meeting will convene at 8:15 p.m. tonight.

•Phi Beta Rho: There will be a meeting tonight at 155 Beverly Avenue, at 7:30 o'clock. All new pledges are invited to attend this meeting. Lois Ruegg, a former member, who transferred to Cal this semester, was chosen to reign as queen for homecoming week on the campus.

•Pi Mu Gamma: Plans are being formulated for a party on December 7, at the home of Don Gerber, 1 18th Avenue. Members are invited to bring one guest.

•Theta Tau: Plans are being made for a joint meeting with the Beta Tau Fraternity to be held in the near future. The new pledges are invited to attend the next business meeting.

•Phi Epsilon Rho: There will be joint meeting with the Physical Education Major Club of Stanford University on that campus tonight at 7:30. Further information may be obtained from Mrs. Bergin's bulletin board.

Rally

Committee Needs Size 12 Fashion Models

There's a premium in being a size 12, preferably a perfect size 12.

Women students of the college will make this discovery if they attend a meeting this Friday at 3:30 p.m. in the student lounge.

Purpose of the meeting, called by Maggie Rogers and Norma Busse, members of the Rally Commission, is to select models for a college fashion show scheduled for mid-January.

Helen Fugate of the House of Charm will teach the chosen few pointers in the art of modelling.

Wardrobes will be supplied by one of the downtown stores, Miss Rogers said.

Cosmopolitans

Sponsors To Signup Prospective Members

At a meeting held by the Cosmopolitan Society two weeks ago, the question of prime importance was that of its membership. It was decided to invite all interested students to sign up as members in either of the two sponsors' offices, Phylls Haley's, which is Room 222, and Verrel Weber's, Room 192.

In discussing the limited attendance of students at the meeting, it was agreed that one of the factors contributing to it was the clubroom mixup, only recently cleared up.

The society, which will meet tomorrow at 11 o'clock in Room 222, is non-invitational, and welcomes all students, has as its aims the promotion of friendliness and understanding among all groups, and thereby "integration among fellow men."

Man With A Car Has Room For Riders

Arthur I. Stanton, student here, submitted his name last week to Dean Edward E. Sandys as a man with a car willing to participate in the efforts to organize car pools.

Stanton drives from East Oakland Monday, Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday mornings in time for an 8 o'clock class, and wants riders who will share part of the running expenses. His telephone number is ANdover 5214, and he will receive calls in the evening.

Previous efforts to organize car pools have seen at least five cars from the East Bay filled with regular student riders. Dean Sandys said last week he will continue to take names of those wanting rides as well as those with cars and try to bring them together.

Festival Season Starts Tomorrow

A Cappella Choir, Orchestra, Soloists Give Short Concert Version In WAVE Auditorium, Formal Program Tuesday

Heralding the approach of the Christmas season, the college music department ushers in the yuletide spirit tomorrow at 10 a.m. at the WAVE Auditorium with the first of the two holiday concerts.

The campus holiday salute presents a shortened version of the downtown festival, co-sponsored by the Associated Women Students and the Music Club, which will take place on Tuesday evening, December 11, at 8:15 p.m. at the Veterans Auditorium, Van Ness at McAllister.

Bearers of the traditional candles, Kathleen Noble and Bill Devlin will begin festivities by leading the A Cappella Choir processional, Adeste Fideles, at both programs.

With Flossita Badger as director, the A Cappella Choir will sing Lo How a Rose, by Praetorius; J. S. Bach's Jesu Joy of Man's Desiring; Joyous Christmas, by Gavaert; Hodie Christus Natus Est, by Willan.

Highlighting the concerts are soprano Elizabeth Wales singing The Birthday of a King, by Neidlinger; Shubert's Ave Maria, sung by a quartette, with Geraldine de Groot as soprano soloist; Phyllis Greenly, contralto; Nancy Stengle, soprano; Emory Mellon, baritone.

Conducted by Madison Devlin, the college orchestra headlines an instrumental solo by a flute trio composed of Claire Bonner, Suzanne Greenfield, Barbara Stephen, who will play the Sonata by James Hook, and Allegro Giocoso, by Richard Haydn.

A double quintet with soprano Patricia McCormick soloing in Cantique de Noel, by Adam, and the Holy City, sung by Mellon, add to the musical array of talent.

Adeste Fideles . . .

Pictured behind the candlebearers Kathleen Noble and Bill Devlin, the A Cappella Choir, including eight members of the double quintet which will sing O Holy Night, begin the processional. From left to right they appear as follows: Marguerite Dumont, Frances Caplan, Elizabeth Wales, soprano soloist in Birthday of a King; Nancy Stangle, soloist in Ave Maria; Helen Fudem, Geraldine De Groot, also soloist in Ave Maria, Frank Owens, Philip Thomas, Gene McGovan, Al Rubke, Roland Jones, and Marvin Silverman, accompanist.

The traditional processional is the main feature of both the program tomorrow at the WAVE auditorium and the formal presentation at the Veterans Auditorium next Tuesday night.

Choir Also To Give USO Show This Friday

Campus talent will play to an audience of servicemen on Friday evening, December 7, when the music department presents a 45 minute Christmas program at the USO at 900 Market Street.

Directed by Flossita Badger, the A Cappella Choir will comprise most of the show with a few of the solo numbers of the show at the WAVE Auditorium being given.

Concert Ushers

All Women's Groups Included In List

Cooperation among college groups reaches a new high this year in the presentation of the music department's Christmas festivals tomorrow morning and next Tuesday evening.

Selected by Carol Hayland, president of the Associated Women Students who are co-sponsoring the programs, ushers represent not only the college at large but every women's organization.

These ushers are Natalie Grant, Adele Reinisch, and Lorene Wagers of the Music Club; President Carol Hayland, Vice-president Jeffrey Burress, and Secretary Claire Levesque of the AWS; President Wanda McKenzie and Sue Miles of the Women's Athletic Association; Mary Jo Miles and Betty Stockton of the Women's Service Society; President Betty Mann and Adele Rogers of the Alpha Gamma Sigma; President Elvera Fusco, Patt Luccetti, and Leona Debique of the Home Economics Association.

President Helen Love and Lucille Peters of Alpha Lambda Chi; President Nancy Schulz, Roberta Robb, and Virginia Burke of the Kappa Phi; President Jeanne Williams, Nancy Ruttencutter, and Barbara McClintock of Theta Tau; President Betty Howard and Vice-President Barbara Bray of Phi Beta Rho.

Lorraine Norton, Wilma Stratton, and Pamela Sampson, of Delta Psi; Adeline Wong and Helen Ann Wong of the Chinese Students' Club; Helen Ringius of the Forum Club; Ann Ahokas of Phi Mu Gamma; and Jean Carrasco, Gwen Slovenco, Carol Anderson, Beverly Bell, Edna Goodie, Eleanor Ross, Virginia St. John, Lucille Scott, and True Ahokas of the general AWS at large.

Advisers Will Give Grades January 3

With college closing for Christmas vacation next Wednesday, December 12, the second midterm period is slated to end next Tuesday, December 11, according to Mary Jane Learnard, assistant registrar.

As classes are scheduled to resume on Wednesday, January 2, grades will be recorded and delivered to all students on Thursday, January 3, at 1 o'clock, Miss Learnard added.

Grades will be given out in the same manner as they were at the end of the first midterm period, according to Grant Marsh, director of counselling and guidance. Students should meet advisers in the same rooms, as there have been no changes in room numbers.

Because there will be no publication of The Guardsman before grades are distributed in January, room numbers will be posted on the bulletin board, outside of the registrar's office, on January 3.

Art, Business Depts. Aid Christmas Program

Tomorrow, December 6, at 10 a.m. marks the first performance this year of the annual Christmas Festival presented by the college A Cappella Choir and orchestra to be given in the WAVE Auditorium.

Although the program is co-sponsored by the Music Club and the Associated Women Students, the members of the advertising art department, under the direction of William Eckert, as well as students in Ruth Nelson's business classes, have lent their hands to aid the performances.

The students in the business classes have made up and mimeographed the programs to be distributed tomorrow, and the advertising art department has put its collective talent forth to decorate both these programs as well as the ones which will be printed and distributed at the downtown performance to be given Tuesday evening, December 11, at the Veterans Auditorium.

Choir Manager Has Big Responsibility

Fight Song Writer Rubke Fills Job Well

By Betty Jo Smith

It is said by a certain field of learning that to be docile is to be intelligent. Even after only one short encounter no sensible person would be willing to disagree with this belief if the chosen criterion were Al Rubke, A Cappella Choir manager.

While at Lincoln High School Al began his present major with three and a half years' experience in the band, playing the saxophone and clarinet. After proving his musical ability he was appointed to the position of assistant band leader.

His present job as choir manager surrounds the tasks of making arrangements for the choir's programs, securing travel accommodations, calling special rehearsals when necessary, and distributing and accounting for choir gowns, as shown in the picture.

His superiors in the college believe that Al could be acclaimed one of the best choir managers who has as yet held the station. He's one of those "awed-at" personages that thinks of the little things and develops them into something tremendous. In short, Al knows his job and does it.

He must have received excellent tutoring for this position from his brother Ernie, who functioned in the same capacity last year.

Last Spring, when the college sponsored a song contest, Al's fight song won recognition and honor when it captured the first prize.

In the annual and two extra Christmas musical programs, planned for tomorrow morning and December 7 and 11, Al's deep bass voice will be heard harmonizing in the background.

Al praises very highly the cooperation of the cast and also the deep understanding of their instructor, Flossita Badger.

In commenting on the coming programs, Al says, "As our plans develop and take shape, the series of concerts should prove to be the best ever put on by the A Cappella Choir."

Proposed Constitution

Extends Representation

SCHEDULED for Friday, January 4, 1946, is a club meeting hour, at which time, according to the Dean of Men, members will be asked to consider the proposed new Associated Student constitution.

Because of the fact that this edition of The Guardsman is the last before vacation, and the next one will not appear until Wednesday, January 9, this opportunity is taken to remind club and other organizational leaders of their duty in devoting enough time on that day to study adequately the proposed constitution.

Repeated amendments to the present constitution have been made in an attempt to increase its efficiency and representativeness, but from research in the files, if appears this is only the second time an entirely new draft has been drawn up.

While it is scarcely the function of an editorial to explain fully the proposed constitution, open to revision and discussion as it now stands, nevertheless it should be stated that if it does not measure up to one's idealistic conception of a college constitution, it does represent an honest effort to make for greater representation in the proposed new student council, and thereby make for a more democratic procedure in government than enjoyed under the present one.

While it trims the influence of the various groups on the campus, the committee which drew it up, did not set out specifically with that intention, but it evolved in the process of providing for widespread and greater representation.

Moreover, and this was intentional, the proposed constitution would demand the maintenance of a high academic standard by all officers elected and appointed under it, under pain of dismissal and the withholding of awards.

Because in the past, awards have been made lavishly, an Award Committee has been written into the new constitution. The Award Committee would supervise the handing out of awards, and curtail their indiscriminate distribution, not only to raise their merit, but to practice some long needed economy in that respect.

Under the new constitution, the offices and committees social, rally, athletic, finance, welfare, judiciary, award, and publicity would be appointive (with ratification by the Council to ensure cooperation and efficiency.)

A debatable question is that of retaining the AMS, AWS, Sophomore and Freshman presidents, who would be voted into office, in the cabinet, as proposed, and thereby without a vote. It can be argued that those officers, who after all represent the direct choice of the Associated Students, should sit in the Student Council and be entitled to vote.

President Mills argues also with reason, that those officers, since they are the ones who "spend" the bulk of Associated Student finances should merely present requests for the allotment of funds, argue their case, and then leave it up to the Student Council to vote on.

Controversy except in very minute points cannot readily be foreseen, and students are reminded that here at last is their opportunity to express themselves, and take advantage of their part in the drafting of a new, representative, and lasting constitution.

Off The Record . . .

THE opinions expressed in this column are those of the columnist and not necessarily those of anything living or dead.

Quite often we take a few moments off to look life over and usually discover that all is almost in vain. At the first of our naive lives we actually believed too many things that someone presented to us as proven fact when the truth was, they had not bothered with proof.

We heard about freedom of speech, so we voiced all our thoughts until technicalities reared their ugly craniums. Of course that powerful weapon, freedom of the press, could not remain hidden for long, but only a short time elapsed before we stumbled upon the many limitations in this field.

BAH!

Ah, ye shall seek the truth, and the truth shall make you free. Free to find that no one can actually connect the Webster definition of truth with anything; no man (or woman, dear friends) is really free. Furthermore, one is not allowed to seek the truth without being shoved into the old rut that Neanderthal man stalked many years ago. As far as we can see, the only real thing on this globe is a certain something that makes us go on seeking the truth. How unfortunate we are not more akin to those three monkeys: Hear No, See No, and Speak No. However, it's all in the way one looks at it.

LOVELY LIBEL

Freedom of the press brings all our woes to center stage. Past experience found reporters, columnists and editors afraid to speak for fear a reader might have his little feelings hurt. There was libel to consider (though heaven knows what they could do with marbles), and we were constantly reminded of our immature minds.

Gone are the days when our hearts were young and gay; a new battle cry is echoing through the halls of knowledge—"Blast Them All, Bless Them All, The Long and the Short and the Tall."

* * *

If a man moves the world an eighth of an inch,
That's an eighth of an inch, by golly.
He may teach his disciples, and they,
In their turn, will push things
A little bit further.
And a million years from now,
What is black will be white,
What is serious may be folly.
But, life continues on and an eighth of an inch,
Is an eighth of an inch, by golly.

* * *

And that's the way it goes.

Hansen

While Thinking . . .

TOO frequently people take it unto themselves to criticize someone for saying something that is in disaccord with their opinion. It is sad that these people forget that freedom of speech and freedom of opinion are what we have been fighting for these last few years.

It is strange, but true, that every time a person sticks his neck out to voice an opinion, be he conservative or radical, he is immediately branded an uncouth Fascist by his adversaries. Why is it that anyone who disagrees with someone else is always subject to vitriolic abuse?

No person, with SUFFICIENT INTELLIGENCE, heaps vituperative abuse on his opponents unless he has studied the problem, and then his criticism is intelligent enough to be constructive. Only fools and idiots resort to name-calling.

Fascists may call liberals conservative; conservatives sometimes call liberals Fascists; Republicans often brand Democrats Fascists; but how, by any extraordinary stretch of the imagination, a conservative can be called a Fascist is a question that will take a higher intelligence to fathom than one can find on this earth.

Plato has said, "For I am satisfied when a man is neither bad nor very stupid; and when he knows justice, and is of sound mind, I will find no fault with him, for I am not given to finding fault, and there are innumerable fools."

Shots At RAMdom

TO DATE, Ramdom has, at least tried, to inject a little humor into the college scene. We may not have succeeded, but that is our policy, and we have never editorialized before.

We believe that the greatest profession is that of making people laugh. Funnymen—from the slap-stick circus down to the wittiest radio comedian—are our particular idols.

Last week one of that group died, and all over the nation newsmen paid tribute to Robert Benchley in the manner dear to him—newsprint.

He hadn't the acid, biting wit, but the droll, understanding humor that satirized the common man—Benchley himself.

We read of his death with CONCERN and PITY. "Concern," because we realized how much such a man can contribute to every day life. Any person who can find adventure in waiting for an elevator, who can poke fun at everything from English sports to Shetland ponies, and who can make income tax seem hilarious, is the embodiment of American humor.

We felt "pity" for those Americans who failed to realize what this fumbling, befuddled man had to give them.

Benchley belittled his own career as would be expected of a great man. He once said "I wanted to be a social service worker, and I wanted to write a history of the Queen Anne period." Benchley never considered himself as a success, but even though he didn't know it, Robert Benchley attained his goal.

If the true sense of social work means serving your fellow man, Benchley was a success. So, too, he wrote a history, not of a dead period, but of a living era.

Benehley was the soul of wit, and the brevity that marked his life can only be considered in grief, and not sentiment. He was greater than his career as actor, writer, and critic.

Robert Benchley will be remembered not as a celebrity, but as a human being.

Brownell

The Beachcomber

RECENTLY we visited Wheeler Hall at the University of California. Motive for this hegira was to enjoy a student production of Lady In The Dark.

As it all turned out, the production was horribly amateurish but yet had a decided entertainment value about it. It was well worth the price of admission. Main criticisms were that the actresses were poorly cast, although it is obvious this couldn't be helped, and that of the three profane expressions used, only one was put to any great advantage. The other two displayed savagely immature taste.

The few actors who did fulfill their assignments did so with such a refreshing naturalness that, as we said before, the evening was enjoyable. An outstanding professional performance has to be credited to Gordon Connell. He played the part of Paxton, the dress designer. You will remember Mischa Auer did the part in the movie.

But what really made this college presentation one of marked achievement were the musical arrangements by Stanley Cavell and Bob Thompson. These boys have sensed the torment and living hell within their music, that a person in such a mental state, as was Liza Elliott, would feel. Their treatment of the reactions Liza experienced as she went through her many agonizing trials were decidedly convincing. So much, in fact, that if one simply listened to the music, he could picture, within his mind, that which the actors and actresses were enacting on the stage. This, we should say, is a true test.

Both Cavell and Thompson spent three months prior to any thought of an actual rehearsal in preparing their music. They were at it from 5 to 10 hours a day and of course worked together.

This performance displayed what is so common throughout all colleges. That was distinctly shown by the almost completely indifferent attitude of the amateurish acting towards the competent and professional orchestration. Of what we speak is that too damn many students are at college for the laughs. Just too damn many.

Letters To The Editor

RAM'S HORN

• Can't Be More Warfare

Editor, The Guardsman:

The suggested solutions for the present problem, some of these appearing in The Guardsman during the past few weeks, are many and varied. There are those who believe that a great military force or perhaps a more technical knowledge of atomic energy (for use in warfare) will stave off the possible obliteration of mankind. Preparation for destruction to avoid destruction may be expedient to the present time, but a world so dedicated cannot long endure and cannot promote peace and security.

That the people of the world are threatened with complete destruction is a vivid reality. We can all appreciate the fact that the next war would be, in a

J. A. AMORI has accomplished so much in his life thus far, that is was impossible to include all the details in the last issue, so here is an old news item that was lying around and which we'll title: Joe Amori: The War Year.

Among the first in a group of civilians to complete the wartime indoctrination courses of the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis was Joseph Albert Amori, placement director and hygiene instructor here. He left the college in the spring of '42, and, when he returned at the beginning of this semester, greeted the faculty and students with, "it's been a long time."

Asked to state his present view about those attending, Amori said recently, "The men and women as a whole appear to be of a much higher caliber than in the old days."

Joe entered the sea service as a Lieutenant j.g., and when he terminated his duty he had attained the rank of Lieutenant - Commander. While stationed at St. Mary's Pre-Flight, he held a position that brought him in close contact with numerous officer candidates. He also organized and published the station newspaper called The Eaglet.

In June of 1943, J. A. was transferred to the A. T. S. Command, which operates regularly scheduled flights to the Aleutians, the Pacific, and the Atlantic, as well as continental trips. Here he promoted a program of welfare activities for the outfit. He also served as Senior Member of the Summary Court Martial Board.

So goes the very interesting story of Joseph A. Amori, who is certainly one of the most unusual members of the instructing staff, which includes many varied personalities.

Wilson Primes Cagers For First Encounter

After two weeks of practice, Coach Tom Wilson is priming his men for the first casaba encounter of the Ram 1945 basketball season on Thursday, December 13, against the California Medics.

Although Wilson has as yet no definite team, he expects to have it picked and working out this week for this encounter. At this writing there are 26 men left of 40 originally turned out, and Coach Wilson is having a hard time trying to get his best prospects out of the 26 men left.

In a scrimmage last Wednesday 14 men looked like team material, Peter Black, Ross Dunnigan, Louis Follini, Connie O'Shea, Frank Ratto, Fred Sandine, Frank Skoglund, Henry Nicolini, Dick Sabatini, Roland Jones, Houston Dunnigan, William Poole, Joe Terra, Earl Malnick.

John Flaherty, who could have easily made the team, has left college and may have enrolled at USF, reports indicate.

Prep Basket Tourney To End This Week

With 16 schools entered, the second college backed High School Basketball Tournament in the men's gymnasium here expected to end this week, Coach Lee Eisan, tourney sponsor, said last week.

The contest began Monday, with teams playing on an elimination basis and starters organized in four groups.

Group one includes Lowell, San Mateo, St. Elizabeth, and Sacred Heart. St. Joseph, Galileo, St. Mary's, and Washington compose group two.

In the third group are St. Ignatius, St. James, Balboa, and Mission, while the fourth includes Polytechnic, Commerce, Jefferson, and Lincoln.

Winners in each group will play winners, and losers play losers for a consolation prize, Eisan said.

Tonight's schedule pits Balboa against Mission at 8 o'clock, and Polytechnic against Commerce at 9 o'clock.

Washington won the tournament last year.

Wanda McKenzie

Women Wise In Leader Choice

By June Sheehy

When the Women's Athletic Association voted Wanda McKenzie their highest honor, the Presidency of the organization, it appears a wiser choice could not have been made.

Since she first registered at the college in February of this year, Wanda has been one of the most active leaders in the entire WAA, and her past record is an accurate indication of the service she has already rendered.

Last Spring, Wanda was player-manager on a powerful basketball team, composed entirely of college women and self-sponsored, which captured first place in the "B" League sponsored by the San Francisco Recreation Department.

This team was composed of some of the best athletic material ever assembled at one time in the college, and Wanda's managership and sparkling play aided in no small measure to her teammates' long string of victories over well known bay area women's casaba clubs.

Lowell High was the scene of Wanda's prep school days, where she went out for girls' sports for four years. While at Lowell, Wanda won membership in the block L society, which is the honorary sports club for girls, and in the Shield and L, a service organization.

Although she has played every major sport, Wanda's favorites are basketball, baseball and hockey, in that order.

College of the Pacific claimed Wanda's attentions for a year's study before she transferred here. In between her high school and college studies, Wanda worked for 15 months in the San Francisco Post Office, and now is employed part time at the Smith News Company. Her immediate boss is Ernie Smith, popular football and sports announcer on the Pacific Coast.

An extremely friendly and cooperative personality, Wanda works hand in hand with Bertha Mae Keller, WAA adviser, and is proving herself as able a leader as Janice Beanston or Sue Miles, both former WAA presidents, and incidentally Wanda's favorite side-kicks.

Women's Gym Has Big Lost, Found List

That a number of lost articles, especially head scarves, have been turned in at the women's gymnasium was disclosed last week by Bertha Mae Keller, instructor. Jewelry, lipsticks, fountain pens, an English book, lecture notes, and numerous miscellaneous articles are waiting for their owners who may have them by describing the lost item, Miss Keller said.

Dancing, Archery, Faculty Volleyball Highlight Program

Final preparations for the Women's Athletic Association's Christmas party are being ironed out, day by day, and the traditional event comes to life again next Wednesday afternoon, December 12, in the women's gymnasium.

The bulk of the entertainment rests on the shoulders of Bettyjean Otto's modern dancing club, whose members are not only practicing weekly but making their own costumes, which when completed will be all white and floor length. The WAA Council authorized the purchase of the materials from regular funds, according to Wanda McKenzie, WAA President.

Student Team Named

Excitement over the forthcoming faculty versus student volleyball game is reaching almost fever pitch, Bertha Mae Keller, WAA adviser, remarked recently. The students have announced their line-up, which consists of the WAA officers and club managers.

Namely, the players and their place in the WAA Council is as follows: Miss McKenzie, president; Irene Mouzakis, vice - president; Eleanore Wohler, secretary; Leona De Blque, treasurer; Rita Chow, archery; Edna Lamas, swimming, Frances Scllipoti, badminton; Marilyn Zito, dancing; Joan Laws, ice skating; and Alma Pucci, volleyball.

The women faculty line-up remains as previously announced, and includes Frances Mount, Jane Scribner, Dorothy Mercer, Eleanor Blinn, Andrewa Noble, Mildred Williams Jensen, Claire Lippert, Mary Jane Learnard, Edna Denhard, Verrel Weber, Laurine Bergin, Miss Otto, and Miss Keller.

Membership Drive Succeeds

A membership contest among the managers has been going on for the past two weeks with encouraging results, Miss Keller reported. Every WAA club has shown some increase in numbers, and the manager securing the most recruits for her club will receive a special prize at the party, she added.

Sports managers are currently supervising the drawing of member's names. In this manner, every member is expected to bring a small gift, not exceeding 25 cents in value, for the person whose name is drawn.

At a recent WAA Council meeting, a motion was introduced by Miss McKenzie to buy a plaque on which to inscribe the names of all WAA Presidents, and the members unanimously approved this action. Previously, the names of WAA leaders were inscribed on the President's gavel but after ten years of use the space is all gone, Miss McKenzie explained. Council meetings are held every Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock and any women interested in the proceedings may attend, she added.

The WAA has appointed a committee to investigate the possibility of the student store putting into stock either red or white sweaters. These garments would subsequently be purchased by WAA members when they earn their blocks, Miss McKenzie said.

State Game Cancelled

The volleyball game scheduled with State College was cancelled when State declined the WAA invitation. However, another invitation will be sent early in January, according to Alma Pucci, manager.

Members of the archery club have secured the services of Laura Drake and Connie Trigonis, art students, in preparing for their annual Christmas Shoot, which is part of the WAA Christmas party. Misses Drake and Trigonis are presently at work designing and painting the special targets which will be used during the shoot.

As a year round sport, archery has proved itself to be a perennial favorite here at the college. Shown above are a trio of active members of the Women's Athletic Association archery club comparing their accuracy and no doubt practicing for the traditional Christmas Shoot next Wednesday afternoon which will be a highlight of the WAA Christmas Party.

Left to right are Shirley Burnett, Rita Chow, manager, and Nancy Stookey who all intend to participate in the shoot.

Centuries old, archery has received attention throughout the ages as a sport and weapon of skill and marksmanship. Before the knowledge of the invention of gunpowder reached the Americas, the bow and arrow was the universal arm for war from Patagonia to the Arctic Circle. Around 1760, the desirability of archery as a builder of body muscles and eye sight was recognized, and today the weapon of Robin Hood is a part of the physical education curriculum in countless schools and colleges throughout the country.

Instruction in archery is available here through the WAA archery clubs and regular physical education classes. A woman's bow is about five and a half feet long and requires a pull of from 20 to 25 pounds. Strength, coupled with keen eye sight and practice are factors contributing to the familiar cry of "Bull's Eye!"

Intramural

Touch Tackle Team Entries Due Today; Football Letter Winners Ineligible

Entry blanks for the intramural touch tackle football tourney will not be accepted after today, Coach Jack Brady, head of intramural sports, warned last Friday. Entries can be turned in to Brady in the men's gymnasium any time today.

Brady wants league play to get under way as soon as possible but cannot schedule games until he is sure all the blanks are in and no teams are left out.

Uniforms Not Necessary

The games will be played outside in the football field when the weather permits, he said. No uniforms are necessary, but it is preferable that the men play in gym equipment.

"Cleats must not be worn," Brady emphasized, "because they are dangerous when the game is being played without benefit of padding and helmets."

Men who have earned their blocks in football here in college are not eligible to enter, the reason being, Brady explained, that their experience in the game will give them an unfair advantage over the entrants who have never played football.

Games May Be Daily

Games will be played on Tuesdays and Thursdays at 2:30, and if enough teams sign up they will be played daily. Brady wants all team managers to see him personally so as not to schedule games that will interfere with classes.

Tennis was cancelled by Brady because only three entries were submitted, not enough to constitute a league.

26 Ram Gridmen Will Get Block Letters

Names of 26 Ram football players who will be recommended to the Executive Council for Block SF awards were released by Coach Lee Eisan Thursday. The list includes the names of 23 regular players, and three players who were injured.

Those to receive blocks are Bob Cavender, Richard Sabatini, Earl Lawrence, Henry Boone, Staten Webster, Vic Hancock, Hedwig Thompson, Bob Hazeleaf, Bob Mills, Ray Muller, John Mapelli, Don Grant, Bob Ghiorzi, Richard Stanfel, Don Jensen, Ted Weber, Johnny Lane, Bill Riordan, Vince Marinti, Manuel Castro, Bob Toquinio, and Willie Atchison.

The injured members who will receive blocks are George Fabian, Bob Parnow, and Don Keck, who, because of injuries suffered in aerial combat in Europe, was forced to stop playing.

Women Allowed To Consult Dr. T. P. Jones

Dr. Thomas Paul Jones now has office hours from 9 a.m. to 12 noon every day in the men's gymnasium. Women as well as men may consult him, according to Bertha Mae Keller of the women's physical education staff. Women wishing to see Dr. Jones should go in the men's gymnasium by the north entrance and knock on the physician's door, Miss Keller warned.

Dr. Alice Potter will continue her services in the regular physician's office in the women's gymnasium.

Veterans

NBC Program Head Wants Guest Stars

That any veteran with professional experience as a singer, musician or entertainer may apply for an audition with the National Broadcasting Company was announced last week by John Turner, veteran and student here.

Veterans who are interested should see Turner any day at 2 p.m. in Claude T. Silva's office, Room 155.

Bob Kieth, free lance writer and producer of the program Vivian Lane's Party, wants veterans as guest artists and further stated that those who appear will be paid professional fees.

Turner emphasized the fact that veterans should not apply direct to NBC but should see him.

XGI Names Six Fliers As Club Committee

In an effort to formulate definite plans for a college flying club, the XGI members elected Vietor Hancock chairman of the club committee.

The committee consists of the following ex-veterans: Frank Griswold, Sterling Call, John Weiner, Pete Matter, Howard Marg, and Art Consta.

The Veterans Administration Office was moved on November 30 to 49th and 4th Streets. Its purpose is to assist ex-servicemen in matters pertaining to education, registration, guidance, and training.

First step in bringing debating back to the college as a regular activity will be taken when a class in Public Speaking for veterans only begins Monday at 1 o'clock in Room 113 under the instruction of Lloyd Luckmann, former debate coach here.

Festival Candlebearers

Angels Without Wings, Bill Devlin, Kathleen Noble, Lead Processional

By Adele Reinisch

Ever since the inception of the annual Christmas Festival at the college it has been traditional that, leading the majestic processional to the harmonious strains of Adeste Fideles, walk two youthful angels, without wings. (See picture on Page 1.)

This year the two tots doing the honors are 5 year old Kathleen Noble, daughter of Glenn Noble of the zoology department, and Bill Devlin, son of Madison Devlin, college orchestra director.

The younger Mr. Devlin considers himself a full-fledged veteran this year, since he also officiated at last year's presentation. Kathleen, however, is making her initial appearance this year, and feels quite honored by the opportunity to share the limelight. Both cherubs will wear the time-honored vestments of the occasion and will bear lighted candles.

This week Kathleen was asked if she would sing any of the hymns and carols with the choir. She replied, "I don't think I'll have time to. I'll be too busy with my candle."

History tells the tale of other juveniles who, for the past ten years have headed the grand entrance march on the observance of the yuletide at the college. They have all performed their tasks admirably and would have been quite willing to continue until they could "grow up and sing in the choir." However, after a year or two, most of them had grown so fast that they lost that essential cherubic effervescence.

Both Master Devlin and little Miss Noble have expressed their willingness to continue as official candlebearers of the college.

When the time comes that they must needs relinquish these favored posts, though, they each have the assurance that the positions will not pass out of the family. Both Bill and Kathleen have, respectively, a younger brother and sister who will be ready and willing to step into their kin's vestments when the time comes.

As they walk proudly down the asile tomorrow and next Tuesday, tallows in hand, it is a worthwhile thought that as the paraffin melts and the light grows smaller, the spirit of the season will reign supreme as long as the candles are illumined at their top ends, and children up to the age of 90 so willingly join in the celebration.

Classes Dismissed For Club Meetings Jan. 4

Besides the usual business of the clubs at their next meetings, scheduled for Friday, January 4, at 11 o'clock, discussions of the proposed revisions of the Associated Student Constitution will be held.

Mimeographed copies of the revisions will be available at the meetings to facilitate discussions, Dean Edward E. Sandys said.

According to J. Paul Mohr, registrar, classes will be dismissed so that the meetings may be attended by all the members.

Room numbers will be placed in the main corridor the morning of the meetings, Dean Sandys emphasized.

Cafe Will Close For 15 Minutes Daily

Because of abuse of cafeteria privileges, the cafeteria will be closed to all students between 10:30 and 10:45 a.m. daily beginning tomorrow, December 6, Hilda Watson, director of the Hotel and Restaurant Management Division, announced last week.

The cafeteria must be clear for students who have lunch at the 11 o'clock hour and if the minimum of 15 minutes does not provide adequate time in which to clear the cafeteria, a longer period of time will be allowed, Miss Watson said.

Commercial Art Club Receives CAB Charter

Kappa Alpha Sigma, commercial art society, is the latest organization in the college to receive its official charter from the Club Advisory Board, according to William Eckert, instructor and adviser.

Officers that were elected took office at the installation dinner given at the Balalaika Restaurant. They are Laura Drake, president; Nina Saharoff, and Steve Kritikakos, vice presidents; Jackie Wells, secretary; Ray Solis, treasurer, and Anita Cruer, corresponding secretary.

Membership in Kappa Alpha Sigma is open to all students majoring in advertising art with at least a C average in grades.

The society's official pin was designed by Marie Chlubna and will be available to all members in January.

Yosemite Vacation Jobs Open To Students

That employment for the Christmas vacation is still available through the placement office was stated last week by Joseph A. Amori, placement director.

Christmas jobs lasting from December 24 to January 2 are available at Yosemite National Park. These positions are for cafeteria workers and for students to work at Camp Curry and in the Yosemite Valley. Students will receive room and board plus wages. Transportation to and from Yosemite from San Francisco will be furnished by the employer.

horrible sense, the last one.

Therefore, if we value our future, if we want a future, there CAN'T be any more warfare. Either citizens of the world learn NOW to understand each other and to cooperate with each other, or they never shall. If this achievement is so far beyond us, then I, personally, see little hope for my generation or the younger generations.

• One-Sided, Fascist Viewpoints!

Editor, The Guardsman:

Have just finished reading in our much-vaunted (by some people) Guardsman a little article by a certain Fascist named Hansen. I see where Herr Hansen advocates that the U. S. share the atom bomb with no one, but that our great nation pursue its familiar, big-stick policy in foreign affairs, in this case using an atom bomb instead of a big stick. The rottenness of U. S. politics used to make me mad, but now I'm getting accustomed to the stench.

Keeping the atom bomb to ourselves is no solution. I have heard quite a number of scientists and politicians both state that the best policy is to share it with all nations, and to put the atom bomb secret strictly under a United Control Commission.

But when one-sided, Fascist viewpoints (shades of Hitler) are printed in our school paper, I think it is high time someone pointed out the other fellow's side of the story.

But perhaps Herr Hansen is in favor of a war. I don't know if he's ever been through one. If he has and really been in battle, he wouldn't go around blowing off his big mouth trying to start another one. If he hasn't been in one, I hope he gets his in the next one, because it is louses like him that start wars.

And as far as Russia is concerned, about all Herr Hansen knows about her is what he reads in the . . . newspapers. And the . . . papers are well noted for 100 per cent lies.

Maybe Mr. Hansen is closer to his battlefield death than he thinks he is. If our Marines continue to be kept in the danger zone in North China, we are apt to find ourselves engaged in another death struggle in a few weeks.

I hope this will help set you on the right track, Mr. Hansen. If it doesn't you have my blessings anyway.

George E. Duvall,
Freshman, Veteran of Foreign Wars.

P. S.—Dear Editor:

Since you are so accustomed to printing Fascist propaganda, in poor imitation of the . . . press, you probably won't print this. However, it is just a gentle reminder that all students aren't falling for the tripe you hand out.

Editor's Note: Unfortunately, two words had to be deleted in the fifth paragraph and one word from the postscript of Mr. Duvall's letter, as the printing of them might involve the college and the paper with existing Federal libel laws.

However, the original letter is tacked up in The Guardsman office and will remain there on view to all interested students until next Wednesday afternoon.

Freshman Class Sponsors Pre-Holiday Informal At Century Club December 13

As the crowning event of the pre-holiday season, the freshman class is presenting a Winter Whirl on Thursday evening, December 13, at the Century Club.

Dancers will be able to make merry from 9 to 12 o'clock, with the music under the baton of Howie Frederieks.

The theme of the occasion is one of informality, with street clothes for women and business suits for men as the order of the evening.

Claiming gay bids, a festive air, and good music as main attractions, a gala crowd is expected, according to Roberta Robb, High Freshman president.

The affair, under joint sponsorship of the two freshman classes, is being planned by a committee headed by Miss Robb and Warren Simmons, president of the Low Freshmen.

The only requisite for admission will be the presentation of one Associated Student card per couple.

The Century Club is located at 1355 Franklin Street, corner of Sutter, and for those traveling there by street car it may be reached by cars 1, 2, and 3 on Sutter or the H car on Van Ness.

Low Sophomores are also in the midst of planning a dance to be held at the Colonial Room of the St. Francis Hotel on January 18, Nancy Shultz, president of that class, said this week. More details on it will be available after the vacation period and will be announced at a later date, she added.

20 Married Students Meet To Form Club

With more than 20 students attending the first meeting for the possible organization of a club for married students last Thursday, plans are now being made for the definite formation of such a club, Thomas R. Porter, instructor-adviser, announced last week.

Names, addresses, and telephone numbers of those present were taken, and a tentative date was set for a meeting on Wednesday, January 9, 1946.

Membership is limited to married students and those who wish to join, but were unable to attend the first meeting, may leave their names, addresses, and telephone numbers in Porter's office, Room 318.

The club will provide extra curricular interests for married students and their spouses regardless of whether or not they are both students of the college.

Especially for the women students, whose husbands are away in the service and for students new to San Francisco, the club should provide excellent opportunities for social outlets with persons who have similar interests and background, Porter said.

Transportation

Pres. Cloud Acts To Restore Regular Bus Service Here

With the termination of regular bus service to the door of the college last week, forces were set in motion to bring the issue to a favorable outcome.

President A. J. Cloud sent a letter to the Department of Public Utilities requesting immediate attention to the problem of a gap in the shuttle-bus service schedule of the Municipal Railway.

If the schedule is not remedied, there will be a break in the service between the hours of 9:33 a.m. to 12:23 p.m., when no bus will either pick up transferring students at the Monterey "station" or meet them at the college entrance to deliver them to further transportation.

Excerpts from the letter to James H. Turner, Director of Public Utilities in the city, prove the college's petition to be just, persuasive and to the point.

President Cloud wrote as follows:

"We are interested to draw your attention to one phase of the present so-called "shuttle-bus" service, namely, the fact that the bus is discontinued in operation between the hours of 9:40 a.m. and 12:24 p.m. . . . It so happens that a large body of students arrive at the college shortly before 10 a.m. and 11 a.m. . . . May we respectfully request that you grant us the further favor of studying into this situation and of endeavoring to remedy it for the general benefit."

USO Sends Out SOS For Junior Hostesses

Since the number of service men in San Francisco has increased greatly since the end of the war, and is still increasing, the USO is sending out an urgent SOS for more junior hostesses to donate one evening a week to USO clubs throughout the city.

Junior hostesses must be between the ages of 18 and 23, and be of good character, USO officials specified. Interviews will be held at the USO club at 111 O'Farrell Street on the first and third Friday of each month between 5:30 and 8:30.

There is dancing every night, and although hostesses are expected to attend regularly on the night they sign up for, membership entitles them to attend any other night of the week they wish. Besides dancing, girls are also wanted to do canteen work, play ping-pong and other games, and do general hostess work.

The USO also wishes to make it known that veterans will be welcome to the services of the club, which intends to continue functioning until at least 1947.

Unexpended Budgets Revert February 8

All organizations operating under budgets approved by the Executive Council were reminded last week by Luther Lyon, college controller, that unexpended budget balances will revert to the general fund on Friday, February 8.

Further warning is given in Lyon's memo of January 3, 1946, that if additional expenditures are contemplated this semester, "purchase orders should be requested as far in advance of the closing date as is reasonably possible."

Ex-Council

Student Election Schedule Completed

Executive Council action at its last meeting provided for a complete schedule of dates for Associated Student elections.

Presentation of constitutional revisions will be made next Wednesday, January 16, at a rally, with voting following immediately.

Deadline for filing by candidates of petitions to run for Associated Student offices has been set as Friday, January 25. Qualifications for offices as well as offices to be filled will depend on which constitution is in effect at that time.

Candidates will be introduced at a rally at the WAVE Auditorium on Wednesday, February 6.

Elections will be held the following day, Thursday, February 7.

Associated Students

Constitution Vote Follows Rally Jan. 16

College student government comes to the fore next Wednesday, January 16, when the complete text of constitutional changes will be introduced to students at a special rally in the WAVE Auditorium at 9 a. m.

Bob Mills, president of the Associated Students, will outline the proposed revisions for consideration at that time.

Associated Student members will vote their approval, or disapproval, in the cafeteria from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. The present constitution provides that amendment is carried on at an Associated Students meeting where approval needs a two-thirds majority of those present and voting.

Dean Authorizes Method

Since the administration cannot interrupt any more classes than originally listed for dismissal on the daily and assembly schedule, the faculty adviser of the Executive Council has interpreted voting for constitutional amendments in the following manner.

"Instead of voting these amendments at an association meeting,

Little Theater

Drama Group Offers Performances Of Soviet Comedy January 16 And 17

Definite presentation dates for the three act play were announced last week as next Wednesday and Thursday, January 16 and 17, in the Little Theater, Room 209.

In making the announcement, Ruth Somers, drama instructor, said that the usual schedule will be followed. The full play will last two hours, beginning each day at 10 a.m. and at 12 noon, with intermission at 11 a.m. and 1 p.m.

Time Can Be Broken

Students without a two hour consecutive opportunity to see the play in its entirety can split the time without losing action continuity, Mrs. Somers explained. For those who see the second half before the first, a summary will be included in the program outlining the plot of the first half.

The play, Squaring the Circle, by Valentine Kataev, was written in 1928 as a contribution to the spirit of good-humored self-criticism of the then existing conditions in the Soviet Union. It was first presented at the Moscow Art Theater.

A comedy, Squaring the Circle depicts the situation of two young couples entangled in problems of love and housing. The title points the impossibility of squaring a circle as symbolic of the two couples' difficulty in adjusting their ideology to the one housing unit they must occupy.

Two Casts Perform

Two casts are scheduled to appear in the four performances, Mrs. Somers said, both drawn from classes in Speech 42.

Cast one includes Norma Brous, Constance Taboada, John Blauer, Walter Mahoney, Peter Cerlanti, Sylvan Diamond, and Anthony Scaramozi.

Cast two includes Dorothy Rudumetkin, Jacqueline Chopnik, Gilbert Black, Dean Thomas, Robert Lertbra, and Cerlanti.

Music

SF Music Assoc. Includes College In Symphony Forum; Russian Opera Engages Flossita Badger As Chorus Director

At its first meeting last Friday, the College Symphony Forum, an inter-collegiate society sponsored by the San Francisco Music Association, began its activities at this college by electing as officers Marvin Silverman, chairman; Martha Lee, vice-chairman, and Frances Caplan, secretary.

Approximately 55 students, among whom were included most of the regular members of the Music Club, were present at the meeting. However, since the Music Club is primarily a social organization, while the Symphony Forum is a society for the promotion of greater appreciation and understanding of symphony music, the clubs will operate as two separate units.

Forum First at Universities

The original organization of the Symphony Forum materialized about seven years ago on the campuses of both Stanford University and the University of California. It was organized by persons who were interested in good symphony music.

During the war, the activities of the club were greatly curtailed, but his year it is being revived, and this college, as well as San Francisco State College and the University of San Francisco, have been invited to become members.

Plans have already been made to have the first of the forum meetings to be held on this campus either in late January or early February, with either Artur Schnabel or Isaac Stern as guest artist.

General Forum Planned

Since it is an inter-collegiate organization, student members of one branch may attend forum meetings which will be held on other campuses. There will also be general forums, which will be held in various private residences in the city, and at which all members will be welcome.

The club plans to hold its second meeting this Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock in Room 200, to further discuss plans for the pending general forum.

Talented students of the college will be given the privilege of auditioning for parts in the chorus of the San Francisco Russian Opera Company, which will open its third consecutive season at the War Memorial Opera House here on April 27.

This opportunity is offered by Flossita Badger, of the college music department, who will, for the first time this year, direct the choral section of the company.

The Russian Opera Company is sponsored by the Russian colony in San Francisco. This year it will present two performances of Boridin's Prince Igor, followed by two presentations of Rimsky-Korsokov's The Snow Maiden.

They draw the major portion of their talent from various rich sources in the East; however, certain smaller parts, as well as some of the positions in the chorus have, in the past, been given to residents of this city.

Since Miss Badger is directing the chorus, she was asked by the company to bring in some of the college's vocalizers, who were so much in evidence during the recent Christmas Festival program here.

She will interview all others who are interested and able to sing this afternoon in Room 200. Rehearsals begin tomorrow evening.

Miss Badger emphasized that even though both of the operas will be sung in Russian, it will not be necessary for the singers to speak the language, since phonetic scores will be supplied them.

Administration

Faculty Proposes College Name Change

By Pat French

Sea gulls, according to some of the best dictionaries, are birds that should be naturally attracted by water. If this is true, then there are a lot of very large sparrows trekking around in the college's front yard. (Or could Balboa Park be inundated?)

If it is not true, then the college, high and dry as it is, has a deluge of early morning sea gulls on its hands and seven copies of Webster's Unabridged that need to be revised.

"Early morning" type gulls are probably the most vicious sort, for it is well known that sea gulls are not at their best in the dewy hours. "Lazy afternoon" gulls, on the other hand, are friendly and quite pleasant.

The gulls might possibly come to characterize the college as the pigeons characterize Civic Center.

Gulls Vs. Webster, Or Is This Balboa Lake?

A proposal to change the name of the college was put before President A. J. Cloud following the last Faculty Association meeting on December 14.

Jack Brady, chairman, presented the proposal on the ground that the Junior College often is confused with the Junior High School department. Faculty members pointed out that throughout the state Junior Colleges are changing their names.

He cited as an example the Los Angeles Junior College. It has changed its name to the Los Angeles City College, and much confusion has been avoided.

Although it is only a proposal, if approved, the new name for the college will be City College of San Francisco.

Counselling

Midterm Grades Out Tomorrow Afternoon

With all classes slated to be dismissed, grades for the second midterm period, which ended Tuesday, December 9, 1945, will be delivered to all students tomorrow at 1 o'clock, according to Grant Marsh, director of counselling and guidance.

Students will receive grades from their advisers in specified rooms listed as follows:

Cecil Aggeler, Room 100; Alfred Agosti, Room 190; Richard Allman, Room 160; Flossita Badger, Room 200; John Booher, Room 215; John Brady, Room 111; Alice Castro, Room 204; Edwin Cranston, Room 211; Claire Cuneo, Room 158; William Eckert, Room 347; Marian Escher, Room 136; Margaret Flournoy, Room 303; Jules Fraden, Room 256; Arthur Furst, Room 193.

John Gerstung, Room 258; Virginia Gohn, Room 207; George Green, Room 140; Mildred Jensen, Room 309; Edward Larson, Room 254; William Mayo, Room 122; Dorothy Mercer, Room 133; Manfred Mueller, Room 206; Joan Muscio, Room 142; Harry Nelson, Room 400; Glenn Noble, Room 205; Milton Polissar, Room 310; Thomas Porter, Room 208; John Ross, Room 312; June Scribner, Room 191; Claude Shull, Room 346; Claude Silva, Room 204; Llewellyn Snyder, Room 212; Hilda Watson, Room 107.

Rooms for these student-adviser meetings have remained unchanged except in the case of John Booher, who will distribute grades in Room 215.

Although grades were originally scheduled to be given out Thursday, January 3, the date for distribution was forwarded because of the intervening Christmas vacation.

Low Soph Prom Jan. 18 Set For St. Francis

Deep Purple Drag is the theme, Friday, January 8, is the date, and the Colonial Room of the St. Francis Hotel is the place of the Low Sophomore dance, Nancy Shultz, president of that class, revealed this week.

Street clothes for women and business suits for men will lend the desired air of informality to the occasion, and one Associated Students card per couple is ticket for admission.

Music for the affair will be rendered by the orchestra of Art Wiedner and tallies are of the deep purple variety.

Planning for the affair is being done by officers of the Low Sophomore class.

Cafeteria Gets New Interior Paint Job

Students entering the cafeteria for the first time last week after the holidays were presented with a newly decorated interior. The walls of the cafeteria have been painted a light green with a darker green trim, giving a cool atmosphere to the whole.

Minor repairs were also made in the cafeteria and two new metal bus stands were added for the convenience of the students.

Larry Wong, instructor, stated that the cafeteria will continue the policy of closing for 15 minutes each morning between 10:30 and 10:45 o'clock.

Bus Service?

Situation Intolerable

OF all the things to which people in the Bay Area have looked forward most during the war an at least adequate transportation system has headed the list.

Deplorable service was tolerated by people as part of the war effort, with an impatient understanding on their part that with the cessation of the emergency the situation would immediately be alleviated and then steadily improved.

Because of the college's location, students are vitally affected by any and all changes in the already sadly decrepit system of transportation.

For almost five years the college has enjoyed the services of a bus travelling directly between Forest Hill and the college. The necessity of such a service was recognized by the company involved and this arrangement continued until January 3 of this year.

Before the vacation a rumor circulated to the effect that the college bus service would be discontinued by the City, but it was dispelled as being groundless. Now, however, upon their return to the college students find that their post-war dream of even better service, with less cramped quarters, has not only been shattered but that the existing service has been partially discontinued.

The administration has already appealed to the Department of Public Utilities for the discontinuance of the highly unsatisfactory "shuttle service" and the resumption of the former arrangement.

It is not contemplated that a rapid or favorable solution will be immediately devised by the Department of Public Utilities, because of all the red tape undoubtedly to be laboriously unwound in such an office. Therefore, vigorous protest on part of the students to remedy the situation is called for, and would justify the administration bringing pressure to remedy the situation through the Board of Education.

It is indeed the concern of the Associated Students that the old schedule at least be restored, and without delay, and it need hardly be pointed out that the Ram's Horn of The Guardsman provides a medium of expression on the subject, and one which will reach the notice of the administration, and those able to set about rectifying it.

The partial discontinuance of the bus service has been selected to be between the hours of 9:33 and 12:28, which would be more inconvenient only if the service were entirely withdrawn during the morning.

Students immediately affected are those with 10, 11 and 12 o'clock classes, and those whose classes end between those hours, many of whom work, and whose programs have been carefully drawn up.

The necessity for immediate and loud protest on the part of the students may not readily become apparent, but those among them not personally affected should realize that there is no promise of continued immunity next semester when new class programs are arranged.

Off The Record . . .

TO GIVE credit where credit is due is not always easy. Not so long ago this column was the recipient of a personal letter, and the personal part was stressed so that we will not quote from it. We would like, however, to include as a part of the regular column our appreciation. Perhaps few readers realize what it means to a writer to receive direct reaction to what he writes. Anyway, thanks for the kindness and the understanding.

NEW HORIZONS

On to the new constitution! At last everything is ready for presentation, and we of the college anxiously await more and better rules. Will this new document take everything into consideration; will it clear up difficulties that have caused so much argument in the near past; will there be the usual loopholes, or did the Executive Council remember true student government? We hope so.

INVESTIGATION, PLEASE

The war is over, and this is 1946. Now is the time to get to work on incidentals that have been ignored during the war years. Our problem is this: We understand why colleges were left to lope along to the best of their ability during the second world mass murder; people were much too busy with other events.

But now all is serene, and veterans are coming home to much longed for educations.

We suggest, to whom it may concern, that a series of investigations and researches should be carried on to weed out and improve education. Reconversion is not wanted; change is the answer.

If some open minded persons would care enough to become education efficiency experts and tackle the troubles, a lot of good could be done.

There must be a way to take out the kinks, red tape and hog calling. We believe this groundwork called learning should be more highly efficient instead of a lazy "Oh, let someone else worry" affair.

A system could be inaugurated to see how subjects could be more simply taught and therefore more thoroughly understood.

We maintain that the shortest distance between two points is a straight line—or has someone found a faster route.

While Thinking . . .

ARE Americans going to become Isolationists again? If the hue and cry raised against our help to the Chinese is an indication we certainly seem to be treading that horrible road to oblivion, Isolationism.

America is morally, politically, and economically obligated to aid China back to her feet. The little aid we are asked to give will reap rich harvests. China needs help to transport an occupational force into Manchuria.

The Nationalist Chinese Army was slated to occupy Manchuria on January 3, but because Communist troops damaged railways into the country, the Chinese have been compelled to find other means of transporation.

Eleven thousand American GI's are being used, and 4,000 more are needed, according to General Wedemeyer. These men could transport the necessary Chinese troops.

This move will probably not cure the ills of China, but it might alleviate them somewhat. President Truman feels that a unification of the Nationalist and Communist armies with Chiang Kai-Shek as commander might be one way out. Also, China should adopt a more representative form of government.

China is on her way to a more representative form of government, but an old Chinese government official put it very glibly when he said, "China has always started too late with too little."

If we are going to maintain a peaceful world, we must at least work for it. We should aid China, if only for the selfish reason that we ourselves will benefit.

The average wounded G. I. Joe on Europe's battlefields had first aid treatment from a medical soldier within 12 minutes, whereas the average wounded Nazi waited for four and a half hours for comparable service from his medical aid men, according to Major General Paul R. Hawley, College Corner, Ohio, the Army's surgeon general in the European Theater of Operations, who spoke recently at the University of Cincinnati.

OUR nomination for the Epidemic Award this week is that nucleus of our modern civilization, Hollywood. It is a little southern city where they raise oranges, grapefruit and Cain.

The latest epidemic to start in the movie capital is a hopeless case of hero worship. Cause unknown, and up to now incurable. After much research on the subject we have isolated the Pros and Cons, and are now ready for analysis.

It has come to my attention, while thumbing through Popular Mechanics for Girls, that there is a certain fad prevailing in the United States—something about booby sox. It has rather disturbed my sense of equilibrium, old top, but I shall carry on just the same.

The Beachcomber

THIS little ditty is being composed just three days after Christmas in order to hit deadline time, and as there is nothing on our mind but the events most recently passed, we shall have to revert to them for today's theme.

Last Year's Yule Season impressed upon us heavily the old saying that it is better to give than receive. No, you can't have your gifts back. This impression, that is, was driven home mostly because we watched a boy, who had spent his previous four Christmas Eves in a Jap prison camp, play Santa Claus for his family.

Highlight of the evening, in this respect, was when the boy was gifted with a package originally sent to him in 1942 for Christmas but which was unfortunately returned. As he opened each present within the package, he couldn't help but tell everyone who was looking on how much these gifts would have meant to him if he had received them while in the prison camp. Each gift he measured in how many cigarettes he could have traded it for to his buddies and to the Japs. Main content of the package was Bull Durham. He finally declared that with this Bull Durham he could have been the richest man in the camp and as important as the Nip Colonel in charge. Which only goes to prove that a little Bull goes a long way.

WHY?

We often wonder why the wealthy class hire maids and butlers to work in their homes. We have always felt the only reason man desired his own home was for the privacy it insured him. Now, if a man and his wife have these hired people around the house all the time, they might just as well live in a boarding house. In fact, their situation is much worse. If they desire privacy at some particular time, they have to give the butler and the maid the night off, when they are at the same time paying them to work. This reasoning seems sound enough to us and also whispers in our ear how rich we'd be if we were receiving a dollar a word.

RAM'S HORN

• A GI's Opinion

Saipan, M. I.

Editor, The Guardsman:

I have been receiving The Guardsman through a friend, and have been reading your column. It is very interesting to watch in your column the letters written by students about the compulsory draft. In a GI's opinion it is a good deal. In the first place, it would help a lot of us GI's out and save us from spending so many miserable months on these 18 by 18 islands.

AH, AT LAST the long awaited letter of complaint has reached this page of the paper. An individual who calls himself Paul Cane has dared to object to something published by your scribes, and before commenting on it, we'll be so kind as to print the statement. Quote:

"Not wishing to be deemed a heretic and have myself burned at the stake, I have been rather hesitant to compose this little epistle and tender it for publication. (Dare you to!)

"Now, I don't propose myself as a pigskin 'algspert' of any sorts, but I do have enough knowledge of the gridiron to have read your 21 November All Conference Eleven with some real Irish skepticism.

"The Ram sports staff chose two teams to represent the supposed 'cream' of Junior College competition, and, surprise, good ol' S. F. J. C. was blessed with ten (count 'em) places on the two mythical elevens.

"They had the entire itne chosen as either first or second team members, and all but one of the backfield was in the same category. Please stop me if I'm wrong, but didn't our fairhaired oval toters drop two contests to Modesto by scores of 21-cipher, and 21-oh? They did? Thanx!

"Upon closer examination of The Guardsman's "All" club, I was amazed (no less) to discover poor li'l' Modesto, who was just good enough to become the league champ, very 'fortunate' (do you like that word?) to the degree that they had placed seven men out of the possible 22!

"We wuz jipped, framed, and robbed! Let's replay the schedule!

(Signed) "PAUL CANE."

All we can add to that outburst is this solemn fact which you readers and Mr. Cane may ponder over: The Sacramento College sheet, in its issue corresponding in date with The Guardsman, attempted to do the same task we did, and here's the strange coincidence.

It seems that the boys at the state capital picked exactly the duplicate starting squad that our gang did, with the exception of Earl Lawrence.

If you remember, we put Earl on the second aggregation, but Sacramento rated him as first string end. Should we say more? Are you satisfied, Paul?

The Park Commissioners, by action of Board of Supervisors in 1937, transferred 55 acres of Balboa Park for the campus of San Francisco Junior College.

I'm sure some of the veterans understand what I mean if they have spent time over here in the Pacific. This would help rotate a GI who has been here for quite some time and give him a little time on stateside duty before his discharge. What's a year compared to what a lot of us have spent over here and are going to spend in the future? The second point is that I believe it will build a person up mentally and physically, and he will learn how to handle himself with other persons.

Well, that's my story to that question. It's just a GI's opinion.

• Airport For College

Editor, The Guardsman:

San Francisco has recently voted for a twenty million dollar airport, but tragically this college has no program in aviation.

Aviation—the largest industry in America during the war. That intangible whose absence could have lost this war and the next!

A constructive program is within our reach.

I propose a small airport, sponsored by the college, here at the college in Balboa Park.

The A. A. F. is furnishing very desirable ground training equipment to schools for the asking, i. e., $100 for a P-51 fighter.

In this Air Age, here is a discouraging note: this city has no proper facilities for light aircraft. The municipal airport has too much heavy traffic for the Cubs and Aeroncas.

When the pre-war program of the Civil Aeronautics Administration is resumed this year with intensive Civilian Pilot Training Programs, C. P. T. P., we would command a most advantageous position.

This plea for an Air Park may be ignored or called too radical—it is too conservative!

In Wisconsin, Tennessee and many other states, extensive pre-flight and free flight experience is offered in the high schools.

C. A. A. has offered a challenge—they have lowered the age level to 17; your private physician gives the brief physical, and flight time is lowered.

The airport could be constructed at low cost and facilities leased to an operator under administrative guidance.

It is the age group of the colleges that is predominant in aviation. It is up to us to act.

Intramural

Five Teams Signed Up To Compete In Touchtackle Tourney

The sign-up of teams that will participate in the forthcoming intramural six-man touchtackle tournament has reached the number of five, Coach Jack Brady, director of intramural sports, disclosed this week.

The names of the teams are as follows: Fleet City, Eager Beavers, Salamons, X.G.I.'s, and team X. The last is so identified until its members have decided on a name that fits the bill.

The Fleet City team consists of Wilborn, Villa, Seott, Short, Dials, Gaskin, and Gillford, with Max Gillett as manager.

The Eager Beavers include Brown, Sarensen, Lucey, Sandine, Young, and Handel. The manager of the team is Glenn Brown.

The Salamons are managed by Joseph DeGanarris, and the team consists of Sedley, Sartor, Boffinger, Fratessa, Fasniek, and DiGannoris.

Alexander, Smith, Mann, Wieley Spencer, and Brabbit constitute the X G.I. entry. The team did not announce a manager.

Team X consists of Arfsten, Anderson, Otto, Spector, Jackson, and Brady. Loliin Anderson has been named manager.

Coach Brady was unable to give a schedule of the games, but did state that the touchtackle tournament will close the intramural season for this semester. Play will begin sometime next week.

Lincoln Takes Crown In Prep Tourney Here

The second annual Junior College sponsored High School Tourney held December 5 to 14, found Lincoln High School taking the championship by defeating Lowell High, which took second place.

Polytechnic won the consolation prize by defeating St. Mary's from across the bay.

High point men for the tourney were Bob Hagler of Poly High with 40 points, and in second place was Bob See of St. Mary's with 31 points.

Last year's champion was Washington High.

Player Of The Week . . .

Frank Ratto Ram's Dynamic Star, Fast, Tricky On Casaba Court

By Don Lucey

In physical appearance he's five feet, eleven and a half inches tall, and he weighs 155 pounds. He's Frankie Ratto, the dynamic star of the Ram basketball quintet.

Frank's history reads something like this. He is one of those few and far between native sons of San Francisco, spending his entire high school days at Sacred Heart, where he made quite a name for himself in athletics. He received his casaba training there, playing one season of 30's, and two of varsity. In his last year he rated an honorable mention post on the All-City.

Ratto should prove to be one of the out standing players here on the hardwood, already compiling 18 points in a couple of practice games. On the court he is fast, tricky, and a good floor general.

Frank also shines on the baseball field, and he probably will be out for the varsity, come next spring. He has had plenty of experience in this sport, playing three years at S. H., occupying the positions of first base and outfielder. At persent he is a member of the Golden Gate Park League, with the Frank Newman Furniture Company. He has been on their team since last September, and is hitting around .325.

F. R. discloses that he hopes to go either to Stanford University or St. Mary's College, where he will complete his physical education major. His hobby is playing records (he used to fool around with a trumpet) and he has an ambition. It is, naturally, to be a coach or physical education instructor. We think he'll succeed.

Women's Athletic Association

Basketball Expected To Highlight Activities For Rest Of Fall Semester

After the lengthy December vacation, officers and members of the Women's Athletic Association are planning the final events of the fall semester.

Basketball, a great favorite here and one of the WAA's specialties, is to receive major attention, according to Bertha Mae Keiler, adviser.

It is hoped that State College will accept the recent invitation for a play day, since State generally gives the local team the fastest competition, Miss Keller said. Balboa High School is another possibility, she added.

Plaque May Be Bought

Investigating the possibility of securing a plaque on which to inscribe names of WAA presidents, Wanda McKenzie, WAA president, was informed by local merchants that required materials were loosening up somewhat.

"However, I intend to visit several trophy dealers before putting in an order," she explained.

Miss McKenzie is looking for a sterling silver plaque set in wood.

New Blocks Expected

Before too long, WAA athletes may be wearing a new block on their sweaters if judgment can be based on the apparent approval shown the new design.

Exhibited by Miss McKenzie at the Christmas Party, the proposed block is similar to the men's block SF but with "WAA" embroidered in between all the small letters "je" embroidered on the corners of the block.

WAA Christmas Party Pronounced Success

By June Sheehy

Ranging from archery festivities to Dancing Instructor Bettyjean Otto's engagement announcement, the Women's Athletic Association's annual Christmas Party last December 12 is still being talked about in the halls and around the campus.

A brilliantly sunny afternoon greeted the archery club's traditional Christmas Shoot. Reindeer, Santas, and Christmas trees supplanted the bull's eye in honor of the holiday season.

War's Targets Ignored

At wartime Christmas Parties, the archers sometimes used cartoons of Hitler, Mussolini, and Tojo for their targets, but the spirit of the 1945 peacetime holiday was much in evidence.

One lone man remained amidst a bevy of some 60 WAA members and joined in the merrymaking. He was Ensign Don Gunnerson, and Miss Otto's announcement of their betrothal was a surprise highlight of the afternoon.

The traditional faculty-student volleyball game provided some excitement, with the students, as generally expected, walking away with honors with a margin of 10 points to spare.

Norma Brous Was Santa

With Norma Brous playing Santa Claus, whiskers and all, gifts of all sorts and on the comical side were distributed around the gymnasium. In addition, ice cream, cake, and candy were available to all.

Miss Brous doubled as entertainer, giving forth with some of her well known impersonations of film and radio stars. Members of Miss Otto's modern dancing club supplied the rest of the afternoon's entertainment.

Seeking to become largely self-supporting as far as food is concerned, Bennington College is producing food on 100 acres of farm land comprising part of the college property.

AMS Boxing Show Date Postponed—Definitely

Postponement of the semi-annual Student Men Student boxing show to an indefinite date was announced last week by Coach Tom Wilson, AMS sponsor. Originally, the show had been planned for tomorrow night.

An extensive training program for members of the regular boxing classes and other candidates is to get under way next week, Wilson said. This may indicate that the show will be held later in the semester.

Volunteers are particularly welcome to take part in the training, he added.

No alternate plans have been made to present intramural awards and football block letters, previously planned for the night of the show.

Basketball

Rams Have Three To One In Cage Tilts, Play TI Tomorrow

The Ram cagers will be after their fourth and fifth victories this week. The first team to face the Ram quintet is the Operational Training Ship from Treasure Island tomorrow night at 7:45 p.m. in the men's gymnasium. The second team is still unknown and will be played on Saturday, January 12.

The team is made up by Frank Ratto, Frank Skoglund, Don and Earl Malnick, Ross and Houston Dunnigan, Bill Kahn, Peter Black, Connie O'Shea, Roland Jones, Lou Follini, Dick Sabatini, Koeke, Sartor, and Toff.

The probable lineup for Thursday night's game includes Ratto, Skoglund, E. Malnick, and R. Dunnigan.

Navy Downed 66-35

On January 4 the Ram cagers won their third straight game by downing Skaggs Island Navy team 66 to 35. This game was quickly determined as to who would win the game as the Rams poured through the Navy defense with ease, scoring with the same ease.

The Rams could not be stopped with Red Dunnigan hitting the basket with 16 points, followed by Skoglund with 11 points. Malnick and O'Shea both received 10 points. The Ram cagers were extremely hot, hitting the basket from all angles.

Five Loses 49-41

The following night the Rams faced a fighting cage team from the federal building, but were defeated 49 to 41.

High point men for the Rams were Kahn with nine points, Red Dunnigan with eight points and Ratto with six.

The most interesting feature of last Saturday night's game was Kahn who, six feet eight inches tall, is developing into a really remarkable ball player and with some added coaching can become an excellent player.

In two games during the Christmas season, the Ram cagers encountered and defeated both opponents with ease.

Medics Lose By 25

On Thursday, December 13, the Ram quintet faced the California Medics and promptly set out and defeated them, 61 to 36. The Rams had very little trouble finding the range on the baskets and kept peppering away with hardly any opposition from the Medics.

High point men for the Rams were Frank Ratto, Frank Skoglund, and Red Dunnigan, each with ten points. Ratto's side court shots, and Skoglund and Dunnigan's court shots were hard to stop. High point man for the Medics was Bonser with eight points.

On Saturday, December 15, the Rams encountered the Mattsojn Dairy, and again set out and defeated their opponents, this time by a score of 50 to 18. Again Ratto was high point man, as were Sartor and Kahn. Ratto and Kahn each had eight points, while Sartor had nine points.

The conference schedule for this season is as follows:

Jan. 16—Modesto at SFJC.
Jan. 18—SFJC at Modesto.
Jan. 23—SFJC at Santa Rosa.
Jan. 25—Santa Rosa at SFJC.
Jan. 30—Sacramento at SFJC.
Feb. 1—SFJC at Sacramento.
Feb. 6—Marin at SFJC.
Feb. 8—SFJC at Marin.
Feb. 15—SFJC at Salinas.
Feb. 20—SFJC at Placer.
Feb. 22—Grant at SFJC.
Feb. 27—SFJC at Menlo.
Mar. 2—Salinas at SFJC.
Mar. 6—San Mateo at SFJC.
Mar. 8—SFJC at San Mateo.

7 home, 8 away.

49 File Petitions To Graduate At End Of Semester

That 49 petitions for graduation this February were filed at the registrar's office was announced last week by Mary Jane Learnard, assistant registrar. Friday, November 2, 1945, was the last day for filing petitions for February graduation.

Degrees will be awarded to these students at the annual commencement exercises on Wednesday, June 26, because the college has commencement exercises only once a year.

Students who filed petitions are the following:

Bessie Angelos, Barbara Benn, Elsie Jiustine Bertolino, Harry Clay Bond Jr., Norma Pierce Bond, Florence Elizabeth Bordegaray, Patricia Ann Brady, Phyllis Jane Brown.

Lupe Castillo, William Howard Childers, Asa Weston Collins III, Giovanni Guido Conterno, Dolores Katherine Coyle, Patricia Marilyn Davis, Rose Ian Dear, Adele Methilda Gell, Doris Gibson, Suzanne Elisabeth Greenfield, Barbara J. Heffernan, Betty Jean Jorgensen, Joyce Miriam Joseph, Allen C. H. Jow, Winifred Ann Kenny, June Rose Kren, Alexander Lew, Florence M. S. Loftus, Yvonne Loher, Mildred Lowe, Patricia Rose Lucchetti.

Elizabeth Charlotte Mann, Elizabeth G. Martin, Ruth M. Martin, Robert MacPherson Mills, Jr., Margaret Theresa Mitchell, Jean Carmel Moen, LaVerne Mulligan, Jean Bernhart Myran, Ellen Rosakeeb Nolan, Olga Orloff.

Norman Mena Panting, Grace Barbara Pisa, Michele Perks, Noel Marsden Preston, Howard Key Slaughter, Claire Marie Stewart, Orman Tuttle Stone, Jr., Fanny G. Varetakis, Marjorie Lucille Witt, and Bessie Xenakis.

AMS Cancel Character Dance, Plan Another

The character dance, originally slated to take place this Friday, January 11, has been cancelled, according to Ernie Poggi, president of the Associated Men Students.

"However," Poggi said, "there will be another dance this semester."

Although the date has not been set, an AMS boxing tournament is scheduled to be held shortly, Poggi added. (See Page 3 for another version.)

More On Constitution

where a two-thirds majority of those present and voting is necessary, voting shall follow the meeting, and approval of the amendments by a two-thirds majority voting by ballot at the polls shall suffice."

(Signed) Edward E. Sandys.

Dean Sandys acted at the request of the Executive Council by the authority vested under Article VI of the present constitution which states:

"Any question and/or disputes arising over interpretation of any article or section of this constitution and by-laws shall be governed by a decision rendered by the faculty adviser or the Executive Council."

Attention focused on the new proposals last Friday when the college clubs discussed the constitution during their regular business meetings and voiced suggestions.

Changes Begun in Spring

Last semester saw the beginnings of the document changes with proposals to revise the constitution. Further amendment work was postponed until this semester.

Together with a committee composed of Pamela Sampson, Publications Board representative on the Executive Council, and Dean Haug, Rally Commissioner, President Bob Mills drafted an outline of the changes.

High Frosh Boast Of Leaders's Ability

Roberta Robb Tops In Dependability

By Betty Jo Smith

In history there have been numerous men dubbed Robert who have boomeranged their names to the winds and received fame as a comeback. But, never to the knowledge of writers has the feminine version of the same name, Roberta, made its mark and gone down in the annals of time.

Not only can this college boast of a person by that name, but it can also state that its protegè is a woman president; namely, Roberta Robb, president of the High Freshman class.

Showed Leadership Early

If anyone ever has the energy to check into the official records of George Washington High School, he will find that Roberta held so many offices while attending there, that the "office historians" finally voted to lay aside a special book to list her holdings. In that book is an outline of some seven or eight positions she was elected to occupy.

In the college her services are found in responsible jobs in the Women's Service Society, the Club Advisory Board, and her own sorority. Last semester her ability as an executive was shown when she completed fully the task of Low Freshman President.

Roberta had aspirations toward being a great woman journalist in days of yore, but finally gave this up in preference to the ticklish position of a kindergarten instructor. As pre-training for this occupation, this woman president worked during the summer in a Child Care School where she had charge of 25 five and six year old children.

San Jose Next

After graduation from this establishment of learning, Roberta's plans show every indication that she will enter San Jose State College to further her training along these lines.

No doubt, many students saw Roberta's beaming face in a picture that appeared in one of the local papers of the crowd present at the Stage Door Canteen on joyful V-J night. She willingly gave her services as a junior hostess all summer to this fine recreational spot for the nation's service men.

Roberta laughingly tells of the many odd, but nevertheless, nice people she has encountered at the canteen. One eventful evening she had the surprise to find herself dancing with a young man that she hadn't seen since grammar school days. She immediately remembered him as the lad who had occupied the seat behind her and had received great amusement by dousing her pigtails in the proverbial inkwell.

Her complete seriousness in matters of State is fast becoming known to her associates and instructors, and there is every indication that her pleasant air of dependability will carry Roberta successfully to higher planes.

Associated Women Students

Semi-Annual Tea For SF High School Senior Women Set For Next Wed.

Senior women students of all the San Francisco high schools will be entertained at the traditional tea given next Wednesday by the Associated Women Students under the leadership of Carol Hayland, between the hours of 2:30 and 4, in Room 157.

According to Miss Hayland, member of the faculty who are to pour are Mary Jane Learnard and Laurine Bergin, and will be assisted by the AWS president, Miss Hayland, and officers Jeffry Burress and Claire Levesque.

A high degree of cooperation is being shown by the number of clubs, women's organizations and other groups in providing members to serve at the tea.

Representing Theta Tau, Maggie Rogers and Millie Laube will serve; for Kappa Phi, Janet Bocci and Helen Buckley, Alpha Lambda Chi, Nancy Cunningham and Mary Lou Mitchell; Phi Beta Rho, Pat Davis and Helga Haack;

Delta Psi, Millie Hoffman and Margaret Ramirez; Women's Service Society, Betty Stockton; Women's Athletic Association, Janice Beanston; Forum, Helen Ringius; Guardsman, Pamela Sampson and Betty Jo Smith; Home Economics Society, Grace Gallch and Elvera Fusco; Alpha Gamma Sigma, Elizabeth Mann; Chinese Club, Sarah Fong and Gloria Woo; Music Club, Geraldine De Groot and Barbara Schultz.

From the AWS at large, Florence Ward, Helen O'Day, Edna Goodie, Margery Robinson, Alice Wimberly, and Virginia St. John will serve at the tea.

Five Instructors Return From Service

After serving their country in the various services during the war, several of the former instructors have returned this month to the faculty to resume their former positions.

Those who were released recently from the Navy are Beverly Pasqualetti, Robert J. Parker, and Louis Berman, all commissioned as lieutenants and all having served approximately, two years in that particular branch.

Also returning to the college is James S. Hughes, who was a reserve officer and entered the active status before Pearl Harbor as a Lieutenant-Colonel in the Army.

Rex F. Harris, former Engineering instructor, is also back in town after serving as a Lieutenant Commander in the Navy and is expected to return to his duties at the college in the near future.

Meeting Called Jan. 24 For Air-Minded Women

Plans are now being completed for an Associated Women Student meeting to be held in Room 100 on Thursday, January 24, according to Carol Hayland, AWS president.

A tentative program is being built around the future of air transportation and the role women are to play in it, and guest speakers are invited.

Dean of Women Margaret Dougherty has been making arrangements with Harry Sullivan, Education Director of the United Airlines, for the speakers, who will be airline employees. Sullivan plans to bring with him members of several of the company business departments.

Lucille Landresse, formerly of this college and now connected with the passenger and reservations bureau of the company, will speak. An air stewardess will tell the women about her training and her experiences as a stewardess.

Dean Dougherty urged all women to attend the meeting because it will benefit those interested in air travel and will prove interesting to all present.

Following the meeting AWS officers have planned a luncheon for the guests.

Married Students Club Plans Friday Party

Plans were made at a meeting of the Married Students Club last Friday for a party to be held this Friday night, January 11, at 8 o'clock in the home of Dr. Thomas R. Porter, at 380 Santa Anna Ave., San Francisco. All married students of the college who are interested in joining the club are invited.

A meeting will be held tomorrow at 1:30 p.m. in Room 322 for all members of the club, where students who were unable to attend last week's meeting may notify Eugene Hague, acting temporary chairman of the club, if they will be able to attend the party. Hague may also be reached by calling VAlencia 5873.

Games will be played and refreshments served under the management of Muriel Dean.

New GI Bill Extends Veteran Education

Increase of government subsistence to veterans under the GI education bill was authorized through a bill signed by President Harry S. Truman, effective January 1. of this year.

Immediate reaction to the increase pointed to an even larger than expected enrollment of veterans in colleges throughout the country.

Veterans here, recognizing the importance of the bill, planned at their last meeting to publicize the revised bill. At the same time the XGI Society completed plans for a general information sheet to be distributed to incoming veteran registrants.

Information will include facts concerning the XGI organization and its scholastic and social activities.

Fifteen XGI members have taken advantage of the Alpha Gamma Sigma coaching plan. Such service appears possibly jeopardized next semester unless a permanent room for the work can be obtained.

Another in a joint AGS-XGI series of activities this semester will take place at 7 p.m. February 8, at Sigmund Stern Grove.

The Veterans Educational Office is located at 49 Fourth Street, and the telephone number is SUtter 8019.

Club Cavalcade . . .

By Jeanne Williams

•Alpha Lambda Chi: Formal initiation will be held at the home of acting president Pat Mahoney this Saturday evening to welcome the following new members: Virginia Anglum, Betty Davis, Yvonne Fantelle, Carmen Garcia, Elaine Gullholm, Phyllis Johnson, Mary Jean Mangan, Venice Meyer, and Mary Lou Mitchell.

The ceremony will be followed by a buffet supper after which new and old members will adjourn to the Mural Room of the St. Francis Hotel for an evening of dancing. Recently married in Oakland was member Patty Parks to former student William Collins, U.S.N.

•Alpha Theta Epsilon: Helen Tanner has recently been appointed custodian of the club. Women are reminded to get their money in immediately if they plan to go to the opera with the club.

•Delta Psi: A rush tea was held Sunday, December 2, at the home of Anne Peckerman. The new pledges are Jean Carrasco, Virginia Souder, Ilee Flynn, Carmel Gannon, Clare Hanaway, Bernice Mahoney, Glory Ortega. A formal initiation will be held at some future date.

•Engineering Club: January 14 the Engineering Society will hold its next meeting. R. D. Rader, manager of the Portland Cement Information Bureau, will speak on the development, manufacture and uses of Portland Cement. The meeting will start promptly at 7:30 p.m. in Room 100.

•Pep Club: Next meeting will be held tomorrow at 2 p.m. in the Student Lounge. All members are required to attend this meeting as there are many details to be discussed.

•Phi Beta Rho: The formal initiation will be held at Doris Pederson's home, 1108 High street, Alameda, tonight. The pledge dinner dance was held at the St. Francis Hotel last Saturday night.

•Phi Epsilon Rho: A meeting with the California chapter at California will be held next Tuesday. Cars would be appreciated. Further information may be obtained from Laurine Bergin, adviser.

•X. G. I.: A wiener roast and dance will be held at Sigmund Stern Grove on Friday evening, February 8, at 7 o'clock. It is being sponsored by Alpha Gamma Sigma. Tickets are available through AGS members at 50 cents per person.

Annual Formal Will Be At Palace Hotel On February 1

Climaxing an eventful semester, the annual High Sophomore formal will be held Friday, February 1, at the Palace Hotel, according to Vic Pudlowski, class president.

Contrary to earlier feeling among the upper-classmen that the dance would be held in Oakland as in previous years, the prom will take place from 9 to 12:30 at the Palace Hotel. Ray Hackett's orchestra, which played at other semester dances, will provide the music.

King, Queen to Reign

Pudlowski added that the highlight of the evening will be the crowning of the High Soph King and Queen, who will be elected by the Associated Students.

It has been the usual practice for the men students to elect a queen to reign at the formal. This year, a former custom has been re-established. A king, elected by the women students, will hold court with the woman chosen as queen.

Cups To Be Awards

At the crowning of this semester's sovereigns, an engraved cup will be presented to each.

Candidates for the king and queen will be submitted by all the women's organizations and for the queen by the associated students as a whole. Tentative date set for the elections is Wednesday, January 30, which is the day preceding the official crowning ceremony.

Service Stations, Warehouses Have Jobs

That men are needed for service station attendants and warehousemen was stated last week by Joseph A. Amori, placement director. There are also jobs available for general clerical workers.

Jobs are becoming scarce, according to Amori, because of the merchandising lull and the labor disputes. Amori warned students who plan to work next semester to plan all their classes in the morning as part-time jobs are for the afternoons.

Students who are graduating or leaving the college are urged to see Amori as he has many good opportunities for full time jobs available.

Students who worked at Yosemite Valley during the Christmas vacation set a very good name for the college. Amori was told that students from here set the highest example of good and diligent work. Other colleges from Northern California also sent representatives.

Colonial Room To Be Scene Of Low Soph Deep Purple Drag

Completion of plans for the Low Sophomore dance which will be held in the Colonial Room of the St. Francis Hotel Friday, January 18, from 9 to 12, was announced by Nancy Schultz, president of the class.

Miss Schultz stated that contrary to rumor the dance will be informal with street dresses for women and business clothes for men. The no corsage rule will be in effect, and admission will be granted on the presentation of one Associated Student card per couple.

As Deep Purple Drag is to be the theme, the tallies will be of a deep purple variety. Music will be provided by Art Wiedner's orchestra and vocalists.

Since this will be the last informal dance of the semester, Miss Schultz urges students to attend. She is confident that all may be certain of an evening of good entertainment.

"The Colonial Room can be reached through the Post Street entrance," Miss Schultz added.

Veterans Must Take Tests Jan. 17, 22

All veterans who have not taken the complete battery of entrance tests must take them on Thursday, January 17, and Tuesday, January 22, veteran counseling heads announced last week.

Students must report on both days at 9 a.m. to Room 100. The tests will be given as follows:

January 17—Subject A, Arithmetic Fundamentals and Otis Examinations.

January 22—Vocational Interest and Iowa High School Contest.

Students will be excused from classes to take these examinations, but should report to teachers concerned the reason for their absences.

Elections

Candidate Deadline Set For This Friday

Schedule of dates for the coming Associated Student elections was changed by the Executive Council at its last meeting.

Deadline for candidates to file petitions stating their intentions to run was moved up from Friday, January 25, to this Friday, January 18. Petitions can be obtained in Dean Edward E. Sandys' office, where they must be turned in by 2 p.m. Friday.

Offices to be filled will be determined by results of constitutional voting this afternoon. Complete listings of offices under each constitution are on page 4.

Candidates will be introduced at a rally on Wednesday, January 30, at 10 a.m. in the Waves Auditorium.

College elections will be held on Friday, February 1.

King, Queen Names Due January 24

The deadline for nominations of candidates for High Sophomore King and Queen has been set for Thursday, January 24, according to Vic Pudlowski, class president.

A candidate for queen will be nominated by each women's club, and each men's organization will nominate a candidate for king.

The Executive Council will nominate three women candidates and three men candidates from the Associated Students at large, Claire Stewart, High Sophomore secretary, announced last week.

Pictures of candidates will be posted in the hall of the college, and on Wednesday, January 30, women students will cast their votes for king, and men students will elect a queen. Winners' names will not be announced until the High Sophomore formal in the Gold Room at the Palace Hotel, Friday night, February 1.

Sharing honors, the winning candidates will be crowned Sophomore King and Queen, and each will be presented with an engraved cup.

Constitution Revisions To Be Outlined At Meeting In WAVE Auditorium Today At 9; Polls Open In Cafeteria 10 To 3

Constitutional changes provide the spearhead for campus assembly action today when college students meet in the WAVE Auditorium at 9 a.m. to discuss the complete text of document revisions. At this time Bob Mills, president of the Associated Students, will outline the proposed amendments.

Immediately following the rally the polls will be opened for voting on the proposed changes in the cafeteria from 10 a.m. until 3 p.m.

Whatever the decision of voters, petitions to run for all Associated Student offices must be filed by candidates no later than this Friday at 2 o'clock in Dean Edward E. Sandys' office, Mills said.

Details of offices and candidacy are on page four of this issue, and public address announcement will be made tomorrow as to which set of offices will be filled, following tabulation of votes today.

Under the constitution now in effect, amendment is carried on at an Associated Student meeting where approval needs a two-thirds majority of those present and voting. Acting on authority incorporated in Article VI of the present constitution, as was stated by The Guardsman last week, which reads: "Any question and/or disputes arising over interpretation of any article or section of this constitution and by-laws shall be governed by a decision rendered by the faculty adviser or the Executive Council," Dean Edward E. Sandys waived this so that voting will follow the meeting.

College organizations have discussed among themselves the proposals at regular club meetings, and have given suggestions on the revised document.

Amendment work started last semester, but further constitutional changes were postponed until this semester, when Mills appointed a committee consisting of Pamela Sampson, Dean Haug and himself to draft an outline of the revisions.

The complete text of the constitution appears on page three of this issue.

Low Soph Success Due To Nancy Schultz

President Wants To Teach History

By Joyce Adelson

If the Low Sophomore Deep Purple Drag on Friday night, January 18, reflects the personality of the president of the class, it's sure to be a lively affair. For the president is Nancy Schultz, who has already led the class to fame this semester by active partieipation in all college affairs.

Leadership seems to be her middle name, for she not only is the president of the Low Sophomore class, but also president of her sorority and was treasurer of the Girls' Athletic Assoelation at St. Rose Academy.

Miss Schultz is majoring in history and is going to enter San Francisco State College in the fall after graduation from here. She plans to be a history teacher in junior high schools some day.

Besides collecting bangle bracelets as a hobby and trying to quiet down her noisy family as a pastime, Miss Schultz works two afternnons a week as a Nurses' Aide in the Stanford Hospital and was a Junior Hostess at the Stage Door Canteen until it closed. She loves her Nurses' Aide work, declaring, "It isn't hard at all and is very interesting and exciting."

As originally scheduled, the sophomore dance was supposed to be a dance given jointly by the Low and High Sophomore classes. When questioned about this, Miss Schultz explained that an all-sophomore dance would be against college tradition, of which there aren't too many, anyway.

Women In Air Age Is AWS Meeting Subject

Importance of women's place in the air age will be the subject of two important meetings of the Associated Women Students to be held in Room 100 at 10 and 11 o'clock, January 24, according to Dean of Women Margaret Dougherty.

Harry Sullivan, Education Director for United Airlines, will be in charge of the program which will feature short talks by several employees of the company's business departments. The employees will tell of the part their respective departments play in the running of the airline.

Miss Dougherty, who completed the program with the help of AWS officers, stated that it will be about women's part in air transportation.

Two of the speakers will be Lucille Landresse, formerly of this college and now connected with the company's reservation and passenger bureau, and an air stewardess who will give the qualifications and training required for her job.

Carol Hayland, AWS president, announced that there would be two meetings instead of one to avoid overcrowding.

A luncheon will be given for the guests immediately following the meetings.

Little Theater

Drama Group Gives First Performance Of Comedy Today

First performance by the college drama group of Valentine Kataev's comedy, Squaring the Circle, will be given today at 10 o'clock in Room 209.

Other performances will be given at 12 o'clock today and tomorrow at 10 a.m. and 12 p.m., with intermissions on both days at 11 a.m. and 4 p.m.

The play concerns the troubles of two newly-married, ill-suited couples in their attempt to solve their problems of love, ideology and housekeeping in one room.

Most of the comedy grows out of the contrast between Ludmilla, played by Dorothy Rudemetkin, a non-partisan young wife who clings to her bourgeois ideals and possessions; and Tonya, played by Jacqueline Chopnik and Constance Tahoada, an intellectual who is an ardent party member.

To add to the confusion, Emilian (Anthony Scaramoci), the athletic poet from whom the two young husbands, Vasya (John Blauer-Thomas Dean), and Abram (Walter Mahoney-Robert Lertora), have rented the room, comes back to share the tiny room with the two couples.

Between the knick-knacks of Ludmilla and the singing of Emilian, the house manager, Rabinovitch (Peter Cerlanti), is driven mad. However, everything is brought to a rollicking climax when the district organizer, Boris Novikov (Gilbert Black), arrives to settle the situation.

Among the many properties used in the play, the most unique is an authentic antique gold Russian samovar which is used through the courtesy of Miss Rudemetkin's grandmother. To add more color to the play, the student thesplans have acquired distinct and realistic Russian accents.

Faculty members who wish to make reservations for their classes should leave their names, number of seats desired and hour in Mrs. Somers' mail box, number 41.

TIME FOR LUNCH

Intermission time can also be lunch time for students who wish to bring their lunches to the drama group's presentation of Squaring the Circle tomorrow and Thursday, Ruth Somers, drama instructor, last week urged students to attend the play in one sitting and eat during intermissions.

AWS

Tea Honors High School Seniors Today

The traditional Associated Women Students' tea, planned for the senior women of San Francisco high schools, will be given this afternoon between the hours of 2:30 and 4 in Room 157.

Carol Hayland, president of the AWS, invited all women students of the college to attend the function, stating that it is for them as well as the high school seniors. College clothes will be appropriate for the occasion.

Hospitality will reign as the representatives of various clubs and organizations guide prospective Rams through the college, as well as serve tea and refreshments.

Floral arrangements have been chosen for the tea, Miss Hayland stated.

Senior women will come from the following high schools:

Abraham Lincoln, Balboa, Galileo, George Washington, Girls, Commerce, Lowell, Mission, and Polytechnic.

Regular Bus Service To College Restored

As of last Friday, regular commuters on the Tenth Avenue bus line found that the shuttle service from Monterey Boulevard to the college which had been suspended between the hours of 9 and 12 daily, has been restored to run at regular intervals from 7:45 until 5 o'clock.

The shuttle bus will continue to serve the college approximately every eight or nine minutes, but at this time there is no prospect that direct service will be restored to eliminate the transferring, Dean Edward E. Sandys stressed.

Many students now take the "K" streetcar in the mornings rather than transfer again to the shuttle bus.

Constitution Revisions

Flaws Can Be Corrected

FOLLOWING this morning's constitution meeting, it will be the privilege and duty of the Associated Students to vote on the proposed constitutional revisions. Theirs will be the right to accept or reject the revisions, and it would show great lack of public and college spirit to fail to turn out as a whole and vote.

What must first be pointed out, however, is that no document of such a nature can be expected to be perfect, nor can it satisfy all the individuals having to abide by its provisions.

This revised constitution can in no way pretend to be a panacea for the present constitutional ailments. It does, nevertheless, represent an honest effort on the part of the Executive Council under President Bob Mills, to remedy the most glaring faults of the constitution as it stands—faults which have become apparent to the Executive Council in the course of governing the Associated Students, and from the correction of which they themselves will receive no benefit. Benefits will be to the student councils to come.

In this issue of The Guardsman appear several opinions on the proposed revisions, submitted by several club leaders, and although they strongly support the proposed changes, there is a smattering of constructive criticism:

While The Guardsman wholeheartedly supports the proposed constitutional revisions and recommends that students, in the interests of efficiency in their self-government, vote in its favor, this newspaper cannot possibly state that as it stands, the constiutional revisions will result in a flawless document.

Nevertheless, it is important that the revisions be voted in, and the most obvious remaining flaws can then be eliminated by immediate future amendments.

Requiring clarification specifically, is Article II under the subheading "Officers," wherein it is stated that "the elected officers of the association shall be a president, a vice-president, a president of the Sophomore class, a president of the Freshman class, a president of the Associated Men Students, and a president of the Associated Women Students."

Heretofore the presidents of the Sophomore class were voted into office only by members of that class, and not by the association as a whole. The same procedure was followed in the cases of Freshman, Associated Men's and Associated Women's presidents. However, from the above clause the inference is that the Associated Students as a whole will vote each officer into office. Thus men also will vote for an Associated Women Student president and women for an Associated Men Student president; Sophomores for Freshman president, and Freshmen for Sophomore president.

Should this not be the intention of the article, which may well be the case in view of its radical departure from custom, the Dean of Men, empowered in his capacity of adviser to the Executive Council by Article VI, Jurisdiction, which remains without proposed amendments, can decide by interpretation which procedure is to be followed in the elections slated for February 1.

More enduring clarification can then be made by amendment in the coming semester.

Off The Record . . .

"SO THAT the government of the people, by the people and for the people shall not perish from the earth . . ."

And, just as the great leaders of this country drew up a constitution, so the great leaders of San Francisco Junior College drew up a constitution. A constitution committee, appointed in September, 1935, made a very thorough study of student needs and two months later produced the rules which governed the Associated Students up until today. These rules are appropriate, authoritative and governing, meant to give students liberal rights.

When the Associated Students demanded control under representation, the Executive Council was born. The Council is the administrative and legislative body of the association and "shall be responsible for and shall have final authority in the supervision of the affairs, policies, properties and conduct of the association." Policy making and law making, a body representing the Associated Students, the Ex-Council develops citizenship and leadership responsibility. Under the supervision of a faculty adviser, student representatives approve and control all student affairs. The Council carries authority and prestige with the faculty and is based upon democratic legislation.

Just as a democratic country resolves, so a democratic college realizes that the government of the students, by the students and for the students shall not perish from the campus. A new constitution has been under discussion for the last year, and it seems apropos that the final product should appear in January of this new year.

That term "Freedom of the Press" is often misunderstood—it does not include license. Lawyers, jurists, and editors are not yet sure—and probably never will be—of all that suen a right means, but it is possible to approximate its meaning, and understand its significance.

The very first lesson a newswriter must learn is Who, What, When, Where, Why, How, Libel Per Se and Libel Per Quod. Who are they, what could they do to you, when could they bring the law, where would they begin, why (most important in libel) and how answers for itself.

Second, a reporter must realize that freedom of the press exists under the law and the smallest print in the books are those laws. All one has to do is get the facts after they have tracked down a tumbleweed to interview and taken careful notes. Of course the person interviewed will swear he never said such a thing, and the reporter is always at fault.

Ten editors, several rewriters, copyreaders, publishers, government heads and approximately 130 million American people are all set to keep every word in line.

Well, there is one consolation. The average age of newspaper readers is 12 years (naturally a college reader is a little older). And, even though

While Thinking . . .

JOSEPHUS FISTERIS, BMOC at SFJC, is dead. All will mourn this loss. for Joe was a wheel on the campus, and a main one, at that.

Joe was a victim of habits, and it was undoubtedly one of his habits that killed him. He always believed in doing things the easiest possible way. Leech, as his friends lovingly called him, had never taken the "K" car to the college because it involved too much walking. The bus was better because it deposited him on the very doorstep of the college.

One dreary and miserable Wednesday morning, January 2, to be precise, he clambered wearily aboard his bus at Forest Hill Station. As this powerful vehicle thundered closer to Joe's destination, the wearier he became, but he knew he must go on, for if he received one more cut, he would be formally evicted from the institution.

But, when the bus arrived at Monterey Blvd. and Genesee St., the bus driver disclosed a startling fact. The vehicle no longer went to the college. He must either wait two hours for the shuttle bus to arrive or walk to school in the blinding rain. He couldn't cut his class, so he was compelled to choose the alternative. He walked. When he arrived, his appearance was that of a man who had taken a bath with all of his clothes on, but he couldn't take time to dry himself out. He must go to class.

Joe, consequently, came down with a severe case of pneumonia.

GRADES. There are two kinds of grades: good grades and bad grades. If you're interested, you can see how half are failing.

Now to delve into the secrets of the things called "A"s and "B"s—yes, there are such things. 'Way back in 1939 A.D., or maybe it was a little before, some moron decided that the alphabet should be a suitable guide for grading (he had just mastered it at the time.) We still are of the opinion that "A" should stand for Awful and "B" for Bad. Since that doesn't salve our conscience much, we will proceed.

One has to be an eager little beaver to gain a mark that can be shown to men, women, and children alike without censorship. We are not of the beaver species of animal life, so we must totally destroy all enrollment cards.

Someone once said "Ignorance is Bliss". To that person we would like to extend a wet fish and a box of month-old Snickers. For too long we have had undying faith in that theory—and we have the marks to prove it!

Bad grades are just a matter of opinion, and everyone seems to have the same opinion. Whoever took time out to invent the "F"? It's perfectly clear that no one, yes, "no one" ever invented that grade. It's all a mistake.

Back in Genoa in 1491 there was a little Italian schoolmaster. (It was the habit of schoolmasters to be Italian in Genoa that year.) Anyway, this little schoolmaster was the cause for all the trouble.

He was correcting papers for all the kids who brought him apples that day. (Genoese are very fond of apples but hate to correct papers.)

Anyway again, this schoolteacher just happened to scribble an "F" on one of the pupil's homework, "F" meaning an Italian word for "You were late again today, you naughty boy."

Ever since, teachers' eyes have lighted up like pinball machines when they, too, could scribble such a fatal letter. What does it mean?

Some translators claim it stands for the Anglo-Saxon "Fail" (as in "have failed, failing, will fail again"). O. K., but how do these translators explain "D", or even "C"? No, siree, it's all a mistake.

We're living in the Dark Ages, and all on account of a naughty boy who came late again one morning. So there!

WE RAN into a musician friend the other day who told us a very funny story, one that would be hilarious to any union member. This musician, it seems, was holding auditions in hope he would uncover another Sinatra. Silly boy.

After the proceeding had begun and numerous talent possessors had had their chance, in walked a little gent who just radiated self-confidence and importance. As soon as he was sure he had made an impression of at least some degree, he took a seat in the far corner. There he sat, humming and crooning in such a way as to convey to all near him that he was a little bored, for after all he was bound to win the audition, hands down.

His turn finally came, and he sang his song quite pleasantly enough. Then came his interview. When he was asked if he could sight read, which means to read the notes at sight, he replied that he certainly could. He was a musician. His range he estimated at some fifteen notes, but he would have to check with his wife to find out if that were counting both the white and black notes or just the white. But of course he could definitely sight read. He was then handed a music score and asked to sing the melody. This he couldn't do, for he didn't know the tune. But he could sight read. Finally our friend asked the gent just what he meant by sight reading. Why, I can read the words, of course.

CONSTITUTION
of
The Associated Students
of
San Francisco Junior College

PREAMBLE

We, the students of San Francisco Junior College, in order to promote and control social, athletic, and scholastic activities as designated by the president of the college, do hereby establish this constitution.

ARTICLE I.
Name and Membership

1. The name of this association shall be the Associated Students of San Francisco Junior College.

2. All registered students of San Francisco Junior College who have paid their incidental dues shall be active members of the Associated Students of San Francisco Junior College and shall, as such, be eligible to hold office in, and enjoy the privileges of the association.

3. The Associated Student Council shall have power to suspend permanently or temporarily any member of this association for conduct detrimental to the association.

4. The Guardsman shall be the official publication of the Associated Students of San Francisco Junior College.

ARTICLE II.
Officers

1. The elected officers of the association shall be a president, a vice-president, a president of the Sophomore Class, a president of the Freshman Class, a president of the Associated Men Students, and a president of the Associated Women Students.

2. The appointive officers of the association shall be a Secretary, a Rally Commissioner, and a Social Chairman. These officers shall be appointed by the president of the Associated Students with the approval of the Student Council.

3. Each officer must submit at the end of his term of office a report of his duties and responsibilities for the benefit of succeeding officers.

4. President: The president shall have completed at least 45 units of work and shall have taken one semester of either Political Science 2a or 2b if offered prior to his term of office. He shall be the executive officer and official representative of the association. He shall preside at all meetings of the association and shall be chairman of the Student Council and ex-officio member of all other committees and councils, unless appointments are otherwise provided for by this constitution. He shall make such appointments as provided for in this constitution with the approval of the Student Council.

5. Vice-President: The vice-president shall have completed at least 30 units of work prior to his term of office. The vice-president shall assume the duties of the president during his absence. The vice-president shall be a member of the Social Committee, the President's Cabinet, and a voting member of the Student Council.

6. Sophomore President: The president of the Sophomore Class shall have completed at least 30 and not more than 60 units of work, prior to his term of office. He shall be a member of the President's Cabinet and the Social Committee. He shall represent his class and shall present its business to these bodies and the Student Council. He shall appoint such other class officers as are necessary with the approval of the Student Council.

7. Freshman President: The president of the Freshman Class shall have completed not more than 30 units, prior to his term of office. He shall be a member of the President's Cabinet and the Social Committee. He shall represent his class and shall present its business to these bodies and the Student Council. He shall appoint such other class officers as are necessary with the approval of the Student Council.

8. Associated Men Students' President: The president of the Associated Men Students shall have completed at least 15 units of work prior to taking office. He shall be a member of the President's Cabinet and the Social Committee. He shall represent the Associated Men Students and present their business to these bodies and the Student Council. He shall appoint such other officers of the Associated Men Students as shall be necessary with the approval of the Student Council.

9. Associated Women Students' President: The president of the Associated Women Students shall have completed at least 15 units of work prior to taking office. She shall be a member of the President's Cabinet and the Social Committee. She shall represent the Associated Women Students and present their business to these bodies and the Student Council. She shall appoint such other officers of the Associated Women Students as shall be necessary with the approval of the Student Council.

10. Secretary: The secretary shall have completed at least 15 units prior to taking office. The secretary shall transcribe the proceedings of the association, the Student Council, and the President's Cabinet, and shall present typed copies of these records weekly to the president of the Associated Students and at the close of his term of office in book form to the library of the college.

11. Rally Commissioner The rally commissioner shall be chairman of the Rally Committee and shall represent this committee on the President's Cabinet and to the Student Council. He shall be in charge of all rallies and programs as defined by the Student Council. He shall appoint yell leaders and such assistants as necessary with the approval of the Student Council.

ARTICLE III.
President's Cabinet

1. Membership: The President's Cabinet shall be composed of the following officers:
   1. The President of the Associated Students.
   2. The Vice-President of the Associated Students.
   3. The Secretary of the Associated Students.
   4. The President of the Associated Men Students.
   5. The President of the Associated Women Students.
   6. The President of the Sophomore Class.
   7. The President of the Freshman Class.
   8. The Rally Commissioner.
   9. The Publications Board Chairman.
   10. The Men's Athletic Commissioner.
   11. The President of the Women's Athletic Association.

2. Duties: The members of the cabinet shall present to the president and the Student Council all business of their respective departments. They shall also maintain their separate duties as designated in Article II or by the Student Council.

3. Meetings: The President's Cabinet shall meet jointly with the Student Council or at special times set by the president of the Associated Students. The members of the cabinet shall not have a vote in the council.

ARTICLE IV.
Student Council

1. Membership: The Student Council shall be composed of 15 voting members and a chairman, the president of the Associated Students. The voting membership shall be composed of the vice-president of the Associated Students and 14 elected members. The elected membership shall be composed as follows:
   1. Seven shall be members at large of the Associated Students. Four of these shall have completed not more than 30 units of work at time of holding office and shall be representative of the Freshman Class. Three of these shall have completed at least 30 units of work at time of holding office and shall be representative of the Sophomore Class. These candidates shall complete the qualifications for candidacy and shall be elected by the Associated Students of the college at the same time and in the same manner as the elected officers of the association.
   2. Seven shall have been members of the Club Advisory Board during the semester preceding their term of office. Not later than two weeks before the Associated Student election of each semester, the Club Advisory Board shall submit to the president of the Associated Students a list of at least 10 of its members as candidates for the Student Council. The president of the Associated Students shall in turn submit these names to the Election Committee to be placed on the ballot. The seven members with the highest vote shall become members of the Student Council.

2. Powers and Duties: The Student Council is the legislative body of this association and it shall be responsible for and shall have final authority in the supervision of the affairs, policies, properties, and conduct of the association. It shall allocate the funds of the association to its various departments as provided for by the regulations of the Board of Education of the City and County of San Francisco. It shall have the power to allocate partial budgets for the semester succeeding its term of office with the approval of the Controller of the college and the Dean of Men.

3. Meetings: Regular meetings of the Student Council shall be held once a week. Two-thirds of the existing membership shall constitute a quorum. Any member of the Student Council who is absent from three meetings of the council without a valid excuse may be expelled from membership by the chairman of the council. The president of the Associated Students shall have the power to fill vacancies in the council by appointment with the approval of the remaining members.

ARTICLE V.
Club Advisory Board

1. Membership: The Club Advisory Board shall be composed of one representative of each duly chartered organization on the campus.

2. Officers: Such officers shall be elected as deemed necessary to the performance of its business.

3. Duties: The board shall coordinate the activities and affairs of the various chartered organizations on the campus and shall perform any other duties allocated to it by the Student Council, in accord with this constitution. It shall present at the close of each semester, previous to the Associated Student elections, a list of at least ten of its members as candidates for the Student Council of the succeeding semester. The board shall review all organization constitutions annually and, if it approves them, recommend that the Student Council grant charters of official recognition. It shall also determine active or inactive status of existing organizations and petitions of newly formed organizations.

ARTICLE VI.
Elections

1. The elected officers of the Associated Students and 14 members of the Student Council, as provided for in Article IV, shall be elected on a date, near to the end of each semester, set by the Student Council. This date shall be published in The Guardsman or posted in a public place at least two weeks previous to the election.

2. A candidate must file an intention to run with the Election Committee and a public notice of candidacy by dates specified by the Student Council.

3. A student must be enrolled in Political Science 2a or 2b if offered during his term of elected office, and must maintain a "C" average in a minimum of 12 units during his term of office. He must also have a "C" average in a minimum of 12 units in the second midterm when filing for candidacy. Failure to meet these qualifications will result in expulsion. Offices vacated in this manner will be filled by appointment of the president of the Associated Students on the approval of the Student Council.

4. If the number of candidates for the Student Council is not sufficient to complete the membership of that body, the president of the Associated Students is empowered to complete the membership by appointment with the approval of the existing members of the Student Council.

5. In filing a petition for an Associated Student office or the Student Council, a candidate must submit

A Digest

Four Aims Highlight Document's Changes

Main features of the proposed revised constitution which make certain radical changes from the one now in effect are as follows:

1. Within the Student Council the existence of the President's Cabinet is provided, consisting of six elected representatives who request funds for their respective interests.

Cabinet members, with the exception of the vice-president, have no vote in the Student Council, and budget requests are voted by the non-cabinet members.

2. a) Widens representation by increasing the number of offices available.
b) Enforces the total number of members on the Student Council.
c) Includes seven Club Advisory Board representatives on the Student Council.

3. Combines Low and High Freshman classes into one class, and Low and High Sophomore classes into one class, giving each elective representation in the Student Council.

4. Provides for removal from office of officers not maintaining "C" average, or failing their duties.

Mills, Council Outline Goals In Planning Revisions

(Editor's Note: The text of constitutional revisions was unanimously approved by the Executive Council before presentation to the Associated Students. Customarily the press would gather opinions from student leaders actively familiar with documentary revisions, and normally there would be divergence of opinion. Since, however, the council was unanimous in its approval, The Guardsman editor has requested that President Bob Mills consult with the council and write for them the reasons why they believe the present revisions beneficial to the Associated Students.)

* * * * *

It is hard to write an impartial opinion of something when you believe in it as firmly as the members of your Executive Council and I believe in the revised constitution. The best that we can do is to tell the reasons that we have for supporting it. You will have to read and understand it to reach an opinion of your own.

We do not claim this new constitution to be a cure-all. That is hardly practicable. However, we believe it is a great improvement over the old one. We have worked and lived under the old constitution, encountered its many faults, and seen ways to remedy them. We can honestly say that the new constitution will remedy most of these faults and improve student government in all fields.

Budgeting, Voting Separated

Perhaps one of the greatest mistakes made in the writing of the old constitution was placing the allotment of funds in the hands of those who will spend those funds. The heads of the departments that use the largest portion of your Associated Student dues are the people that approve or disapprove budget requests.

This system is not good government nor is it good business. Any person, no matter how good his intentions, will pad his budget for an extra event if he is sure of its passage. This leaves the budget unbalanced—it also spoils social and athletic events by increasing their number to too many.

Cabinet Coordinates, Council Votes

To remedy this fault, we have employed the cabinet system, as used in the Federal Government of this nation. The cabinet, composed of the various departmental heads, will act as a coordinating body. It will present budget requests to an impartial body, the Student Council. The Student Council, which is the highest governing body, will have final decision in all matters.

The Student Council, which might be compared to the present Executive Council, is, however, a more representative group. There are many people that continually moan about college spirit. Here's your chance to do something about it.

The first step to that elusive spirit lies in willing and universal participation in government. The old constitution restricted the government to the officers. The new one makes room for representatives of the classes and members of the Club Advisory Board. Any person may run for one of the offices at large. If you want the full benefits of college life, you must give something in return. Under the new constitution, you will have your chance.

Classes United

Another improvement lies in the unification of the classes into two units—a Freshman Class and a Sophomore Class. This should eliminate duplication of duties and lead to a spirited rivalry between the two classes.

The above constitute the major changes. Many minor ones have been made. You can find them by reading the text in this issue of The Guardsman. They were employed to make the government run more efficiently and on a better business basis.

You have now heard our reasons for changing the constitution. We have no doubts that this constitution, if passed, will give the college a more efficient, more representative, and more spirited government. However, this constitution is your baby from now on. We can only give it to you. It is not an infallible document. You must bring it up right, support it well, amend it wisely, and take an active interest in the government that maintains. If you are willing to do these things, we will guarantee to you a better government for this college.

—ROBERT MILLS,
President, Associated Students.

ARTICLE VII.
Amendments

An amendment to this constitution shall become effective if proposed in one of the following two ways:

1. The proposed amendment to be signed by ten per cent of the members of this association and approved by a two-thirds majority vote of those present and voting at an official meeting of this association.

2. The proposed amendment to be presented to the Student Council and accepted by that body by a two-thirds majority vote of those present and voting at an official meeting of this association.

The president shall call a meeting of this association for either or both of these purposes within two weeks after the amendment has been properly signed or has been accepted by the Student Council. Such amendments shall be published in The Guardsman or posted in a public place at least one week before voting takes place.

BY-LAWS

ARTICLE I.
Parliamentary Authority

1. Robert's Rules of Order shall be the parliamentary authority of this association, subject to special rules that have been or will be adopted.

ARTICLE II.
Referendum

Section I. A petition to review an official act of the Student Council shall be submitted by the president of the Associated Students to the members of the association at a meeting to be called within two weeks after such a petition (signed by at least ten per cent of the active members of the association) has been presented to the president.

Section II. A two-thirds majority of votes cast at a general meeting of the association shall be needed to rescind an act of the Student Council.

ARTICLE III.
Representative Groups

There shall be certain representative groups to carry on and supervise the major activities of the association. In addition, the president is empowered to appoint such standing and special committees as he shall deem necessary. In general, each shall be independent within in its own sphere and shall formulate its own policies, subject to the approval of the Student Council of the Associated Students.

Each representative group shall appoint a secretary who will keep minutes of group meetings and file these with the vice-president of the Associated Students.

Section 1. a. The Men's Athletic Council shall be composed of (1) the Associated Student president, (2) a men's athletic commissioner and (3) two faculty advisers appointed by the president of the college.

b. The men's athletic commissioner shall be a member of the Block Society appointed by the president of the Associated Students with the approval of the Student Council.

c. The Men's Athletic Council shall be the agent of the Student Council empowered to make decisions on all men's athletic awards.

ARTICLE VI.
Jurisdiction

Any questions and/or disputes arising over interpretation of any article or section of this constitution and by-laws shall be governed by a decision rendered by the faculty adviser of the Student Council.

History

Major Amendments Proposed In 1940, Rejected By Voters

During the fall of 1945, when the college was being organized, the present constitution was drafted by students in Political Science 51 (Public Administration) and the Constitution Committee of voluntary associates working with them.

Problems existed then, as they do now. Indecision rested "with the problem of using a purely executive administration with a minimum of popular representation, or a government of separated powers with a legislative branch or a directly representative assembly . . ."

With a temporary student-board set up to direct activities, the constitution was presented in January, 1936, and was adopted at a meeting of the Associated Students in April, 1936.

Although minor amendments have been made, the only previous attempt at major constitutional revisions took place in Spring, 1940. Under the new constitution drafted then, there was to be one major change: Associated Men Student officers and Associated Women Student officers were to be removed from representation on the Executive Council.

Al Williams, Associated Student president at that time, proclaimed that the goal of the Executive Council was efficient democracy. He further stated, "The old constitution has served us well, but when we move into the new building, we should move with a streamlined constitution."

The Student Assembly, however, rejected major proposals in the new constitution, and the Executive Council setup remained unchanged.

Twenty Offices To Be Open For New Leaders; PA System To Give Results

Offices for which candidates must file by 2 p.m. this Friday in Dean Edward E. Sandys' office if constitutional revisions are approved are as follows:

Cabinet and Student Council:
President of Associated Students.
Vice-president of Associated Students.

Cabinet Members:
Freshman Class president.
Associated Men Student president.
Associated Women Student president.

Student Council Members:
Seven members of the Associated Students at large, four representing the Freshman Class, three representing the Sophomore Class.
Seven members nominated by the Club Advisory Board.

Qualifications for the above offices appear in Article VI of the text of the revised constitution on page 3 of this issue.

Other class officers, Associated Men Student officers, and Associated Women Student officers will be appointed by the presidents of the individual organizations, subject to the approval of the Student Council.

Since voting on the constitutional revisions is scheduled for today and the deadline for filing petitions to run for office is Friday at 2 p.m., announcement of which constitution is in effect, that is, which offices must be filled, will be made over the public address system.

Opinions

Six College Clubs State Views On Changes, Find Some Flaws, Give Support

Following club meetings January 4 at which the text of constitutional revisions was discussed six organizations submitted group oninions. They are as follows:

XGI—Though not apparently intended as a "cure all" for all matters governing student government, a word of commendation seems due to Associated Student President Bob Mills and his staff.

The revised constitution, regardless of any such flaws as may not be noted (which can later be amended as needed) seems worthy of the wholehearted support of the Associated Students.

Remigio E. Archuletta, Jr., President.

* * * * *

Delta Psi—In reading over the proposed constitutional revisions, it seems to be better than the one now in use, mainly because it has coordinated a council and president check and balance system.

Millie Hoffman, President.

* * * * *

Pi Mu Gamma—On the whole, the work was very well down. There are several points which should be changed, in our opinion. A minimum grade point average of 1.0 should be established for any person who wishes to partake in the political machinery of the college. (Editor's note: This is provided in Article VI.)

In addition to the minimum requirement, higher grade averages should and must be required of at least the candidates for the office of president, and should be required of any of the general Associated Student officers. A nice piece of student government regulation.

Allan T. Moss, President.

* * * * *

Women's Athletic Association—It is impossible for everyone in a large organization such as this to be perfectly satisfied. After studying the revised constitution, it is my opinion that it is an improvement over the old one. It will give the students more representation and if placed in the right hands can be the instrument for bettering our student government.

* * * * *

Wanda McKenzie, President.

Epsilon Epsilon Epsilon and Pick and Hammer Club—After a discussion of this constitution by the above societies, several things are to be brought to mind. The objective which the revisions set out to achieve would offer a very satisfactory practical government. No objection could be raised to this form of student government for an institution of our size. The manner in which this government would be carried out is, with just a couple of exceptions, very effective.

As to suggestions, these following were made:

1. The president, in term of office, should not be beyond his fourth semester.

2. For candidates and appointees, a "C" average for the entire college career to date should be required. The appointees should be at least second semester students and not more than a fourth in term of office.

3. Article IV, Section 3, in reference to Student Council meetings, should read to the effect that after absence from three meetings, "members shall be expelled," rather than "may be expelled."

Don Giannini, President.

RAMblings . .

By Don Lucey

(Today's column is written by June Sheehy)

IN A somewhat remote corner of the women's gymnasium lies a collection of various sized scrap books gently gathering dust which the spry little janitress, Clarise Daly, diligently whisks away at frequent intervals.

Upon closer inspection, one is aware that these albums contain pictures and write-ups of practically every athletic and social event sponsored or participated in by the Women's Athletic Association. And since the WAA celebrated its tenth birthday last year, these "dog eared" scrapbooks hold a tremendous amount of material.

All sports stories from The Guardsman and a number of articles by the San Francisco daily papers about women athletes attending the college have been painstakingly clipped, pasted, and arranged in neat order for future generations of college women to read and enjoy.

A DIVER'S SAGA

The progress of Helen Crlenkovich Morgan, champion diver, and former pre-legal student here, is amply recorded in the 1939-40 scrapbooks with a complete collection of Guardsman and San Francisco newspaper write-ups depicting her progress.

At one time Mrs. Morgan was the top-ranking United States candidate for the 1940 Olympic Games, which, as we all know, were cancelled by the war.

TOURNEY WEEK CASUALTY

Another casualty of the war was the WAA semi-annual Tourney Week which climaxed the end of a semester and usually had the theme of "All-American Girl."

As the name suggests, Tourney Week was the time set aside for the mixed doubles tennis tournament, the winners of which were inscribed on a silver plaque, and also the holding of elimination or round robin tournaments in volleyball, ping pong, archery, softball, and all represented sport clubs.

Probably the single outstanding event in the short history of the WAA took place April 15, 1939, when the college women were hostesses to ten Northern California colleges at the World's Fair on Treasure Island.

DAY AT THE FAIR

This was the initial Women's Sports Day held at the Fair, and events were held in volleyball, golf (putting tournament), badminton, and softball. Lunch, entertainment, and a tour of the Exposition with the San Francisco women as guides comprised the day's accomplishments.

In addition to the above highlights, reports of swimming and ice skating carnivals, horse shows, play days, festivals, and the traditional Christmas Party are pictorially recorded, assembling somewhat of a challenge to new women students to recapture the WAA "Days of Glory" and perhaps surpass its pre-war brilliance.

Battle Scarred Grid Vets Still Unawarded

Those battle scarred veterans of the 1945 grid season are no doubt wondering when they will receive their purple hearts in the form of athletic blocks.

In every attempt to discover when blocks will be awarded, only red tape and negative answers have been encountered.

However, if the regular pattern holds true, they should be presented at the Associated Men Students boxing show when and if it is held.

Volleyball Season Ends With 36 To 20 Loss To State Eight

Volleyball bowed from the Women's Athletic Association's sport list Monday when State College defeated the local team here 36 to 20 in the final game of the season.

Frances Scilipoti, Alma Pucci, and Joan LeNoir were the outstanding players for the losers, according to Bertha Mae Keller, WAA adviser. With Miss LeNoir playing her favorite position of net center and directly backed up by Miss Pucci, several exciting rallies were prolonged, and State was kept on its toes until the conclusion of the official 30 minute contest.

Basketball Starts

Basketball appears to be the next major interest of the WAA, if the response to the sign-up sheets is any indication. Preliminary practice sessions are held every Monday from 3 to 4, and Miss Keller urges all interested women to sign up now regardless of program conflicts, as the club will function throughout the spring semester as well as the remainder of fall.

So far, the following women have joined the Basebetball Club: Janice Beanston, Wanda McKenzie, Alicia Sauceda, Betty Wickers, Ramona Sullivan, Leona DeBlque, Joyce Krull, Shirley Groswird, Ann Gloya, Irma Monterrosa, Miss Pucci, Miss Scilipoti, and Miss LeNoir.

"The organization of the WAA, if the proposed college constitution goes into effect, will not change the management or activities of the group," stated Miss McKenzie, president. This was confirmed by Robert Mills, Associated Student president, for the in-

The new WAA award block will replace the old design as soon as orders can be accepted and placed, Miss McKenzie reported. The approval of the new design was unanimously agreed upon recently by WAA members.

Jouthas Queen Archer

Helen Jouthas was crowned queen archer at the club's holiday shoot, when she shot at the Christmas target and landed her arrow smack on the deer's nose.

She is still being complimented on her skill. Miss Jouthas won a new set of arrows for her achievement and reports that some of her archery friends are buying their own equipment and practicing in Golden Gate Park.

Weather Postpones Intra Touchtackle

The first game of the scheduled intramural touchtackle tournament, which was to have been played sometime this week, has been postponed pending drier weather. The recent bad weather has rendered the turf of the playing field unsuitable.

The number of teams participating has not increased since last week. The number remains at five teams: Fleet City, Eager Beavers, Salamons, X.G.I., and Team X which still remains unnamed at press time.

Medals will be awarded the two top place teams, Coach Jack Brady said.

At the time, the Fleet City team and the Eager Beavers appear as favorites because of their weight and experience advantages.

First Game Starts Here Tonight At 8; Livingston, Kahn In Battle Of Giants Keynote Rivalry Between Cage Teams

On the sports agenda for this week the Conference opening Modesto-Ram cage clashes head the list for important events. The first Modesto game will be held tonight on the college hardwood, with the second game scheduled for this Friday at the Modesto court. Both start at 8 p.m.

Modesto has been the Rams' chief rival in almost every sport competition and has won the majority of the basketball games. Modesto has been the leader in the Northern California Conference for many years.

Battle of Giants Seen

This week's games will be interesting to watch as they will be a battle of giants, with Livingston of Modesto, six feet seven and a half, battling Bill Kahn of the Rams, six feet nine, at the center position.

The Rams will be trying to stop Livingston's usual high point game. Kahn, who wears a size 16d shoe, has played in intramural and, moving into varsity competition, has improved 100 per cent.

The Rams are reported to have three of the fastest men in the conference: Frank Skoglund, Frank Ratto, and Red Dunnigan.

Probable Lineup Listed

The probable lineup for tonight's game is Kahn at center, two hundred pounds and 21 years old. He hails from Lincoln High and his number tonight is 17.

At forward is Frank Skoglund, five eleven, 158, and 19 years old, from University High in Oakland. His number is 12.

At the other forward spot is Red Dunnigan with number 8. Other information on Dunnigan will be found in the player-of-the-week story.

At the guard spot is Frank Ratto, six eight, and 160. Ratto, now 20, played his ball at Sacred Heart and will wear nupber 13. At the other guard position is Earl Malnick, who played at Poly High and was All-City. Malnick, six two, and 169, is 20 years old. He will wear number 7.

Basketball

Rams Slap TI 45-38, Lose To Berkeley Y

The Ram quintet made it five wins in a row last Thursday night when they defeated the Operational Training Ship from Treasure Island, 45 to 38.

A hoped for six straight before beginning conference play, however, was doomed in a heartbreaker overtime game in which the Rams finally lost to Berkeley YMCA, 56 to 53.

In the OTS game, the night looked dark for the local five when the OTS five took a nine to nothing lead before the Rams were able to score their first field goal.

Although threatening several times, they were unable to take the lead until after half time, which ended with the Rams trailing, 17 to 13. High point men for the Rams were Red Dunnigan with 15 and Earl Malnick with 10. Malnick played a beautiful floor game for the Rams.

Unable to continue their usual good floor game, the Rams were destined to defeat by the Berkeley team, but beautiful offensive playing by Dunnigan and defensive by Malnick kept it a nip and tuck affair from the start.

At half time the Rams led, 27 to 21. Then with a second string pitted against a determined Berkeley team, the Ram lead was cut. Return of the regulars resulted in a tieing bucket sunk by Frank Skoglund which sent the game into overtime for five minutes and a Berkeley win.

Dunnigan scored 16 points, and Skoglund 12.

Spring Sports

Baseball Heads List With Track, Tennis Golf Again Offered

With the promise of a large enrollment for the spring semester most of the pre-war sports will begin to sprout again. Thus far there are six different sports lined up for varsity competition.

Baseball heads the list of spring sports with a 16 game schedule plus five other games. With Jack Brady taking hold of the reins this coming season as baseball mentor, there will be a lot of hustling out on the diamond.

Four games each are scheduled against Modesto, San Mateo, Sacramento, and Marin Junior College, with three games against San Francisco State, and two tentative games with Placer Junior College.

Track on Schedule

Track again will appear on the sport tables with Coach Jim Jensen, former substitute coach here returned from the Service. Modesto will sponsor a conference track meet in the latter part of May. Track will also be run on the intramural basis, with most of the men picked for the conference meet from the results of the intramural matches.

Swimming is also tutored by Jensen and will be run on an intramural basis with a possibility of varsity competition.

Tennis will also be on an intramural basis with a conference match held on the first week of May at the Sacramento Sutter Lawn Tennis Club, with two or three players from each college participating in singles and doubles competition.

Golf Tourney Planned

Golf will appear after a long absence with a conference match held in the first week in May at the Stanford golf course, and will have singles and team competition.

Football will return to the spring semester as spring practice, and will be held on Mondays and Wednesdays from 3 to 5 o'clock in the afternoons.

Ram Cagers' Player Of The Week

O'Shea, Ross Dunnigan Both Prepped In S. F.

By Staten Webster

Prep sports fans will no doubt remember him as a former football, basketball, and baseball star at St. Ignatius High School. He is six feet tall, 18 years of age, and weighs 180 pounds.

He is no one else but Connie O'Shea, star guard on the Ram's hitherto unbeaten quintet, shown right in the picture with Ross Dunnigan, Ram players of the week.

Connie played basketball at his Alma Mater and was one of its best known stars. He also played on the first-string football and baseball teams.

His major here at the college is a General Arts major. Connie plans to remain at the college only one semester, as he expects to be called for military service soon.

Connie, as he tells us, is a member of that great fraternity of human beings who claim that they do not have any hobbies or ambitions. O'Shea has not decided on which college he will attend after leaving here, but with a name like his (which is definitely Irish) he may end up at dear old Notre Dame.

Also possessing an extremely fluent Irish name, Ross Dunnigan, better known as "Red" is a first-string forward on the basketball team. Red stands five feet, eleven inches tall, weighs 155 pounds, and is 22 years of age.

Ross attended two high schools in San Francisco, Lowell and Washington. Red received his basketball training while playing on the 30 exponent team at Washington.

Dunnigan is a freshman at the college, and plans to attend Stanford University. Ross says his favorite subject is geology.

Red's hobby as he revealed to us is fishing.

Both men have been outstanding in practice games.

Supervisor Says:

Vets Offered God Given Opportunity

By Max Rubinchik

"A God given opportunity."

That is what H. Morton Webster, veterans' training officer here, thinks the veterans of World War II are being given through the benefits of the Vocational Rehabilitation and G. I. Bill.

"The 20th Century is another renaissance pregnant with new thought, and education is vital toward meeting its impetus and challenge. Today's veteran is becoming increasingly conscious of this fact," Webster emphasized.

As proof of this, he pointed out that, while approximately 450 veterans are now enrolled in the college, the number is expected to double by the beginning of next semester.

It is Webster's job actively to supervise veterans classified under Vocational Rehabilitation, and to aid those who come under the G. I. Bill.

"It's fun meeting and talking to them (the veterans)," Webster smiled. "It' surprising how much one can learn from doing just this."

When asked about the policy toward the handling of veterans suffering from neuroses, he commented that they were given the same treatment as any of the others.

"The change from the environment of the service to that of civilian life usually helps solve the heart of their problem," he said.

A veteran himself, Webster served in the Navy for three years in the South and North Pacific.

XGI Information Sheet Will Help Veterans

Campus life for the veterans will be informatively pictured for incoming students in an information sheet compiled by the XGI, college veterans' organization. It is expected to be ready some time this week.

Curriculum, clubs, and the XGI society are described for the veteran to help him become acquainted with the college. With almost twice as many veterans expected next semester as are already here, this is one of the steps the XGI has taken to help the faculty with veteran counselling.

Planned by Dick Mann and George Backman of the college veterans' club, the information sheet will be given to each veteran as he enters.

Veteran registration will be eased under another of the club's projects which calls for a group of men students who will help guide new veterans through the beginning maize of programming.

Those who haven't yet signed up, but who want to help should apply to Bob Hamburger, secretary of the XGI, or Dean Edward E. Sandys, Mann said last week.

Eighteen Given Degrees After Summer Sessions

No additional petitions for graduation had been filed last week, according to Mary Jane Learnard, assistant registrar.

During the summer sessions, 18 students were graduated. Those graduated on Saturday, August 11, were as follows:

Margaret Sybil Andersen, Robert Doods Cook, Barbara A. Hancock, Mabel Lim, Anee Marie Montois, and Dolores Barbara Volosing.

Students graduated on Saturday, September 29, were the following:

Jacqueline M. Boyd, Beverly Irene Brackett, Constance Chiveris, Regina Harriet Dahl, Susanne Klestadt, Mariano Hector Lizarraga, Gloria Marie Saynus, Barbara Jeanette Steinbeck, William Lars Thompson, Nina Sergeievna Vasilieff, and Betty Wong.

Twenty College Choir Members In Russian Opera Chorus Parts

Twenty talented students at this college have been chosen as temporary members of the chorus of the Russian Opera Company, which will open its third season at the War Memorial Opera House on April 27, it was disclosed last week by Flossita Badger, music instructor and opera chorus director.

The twenty, who are members of the college A Cappella Choir also, are Geraldine Akey, Frances Caplan, Gloria Craig, Geraldine De Groot, Marguerite Dumont, James Finley, Helen Fudem, Phyllis Greenly.

Pat Harris, David McDade, Gene McGowan, Marti Niggeler, Marvin Silverman, Jane Swendsen, Betty Wales, Rosalie Koenigsberg, Pat McCormick, and Audra Tegelberg.

Two budding tenors who will also participate are Stanley Stidham and Alex Sklorenko.

When fully organized, the entire company choir is expected to number about 50 persons, Miss Badger commented. The remainder of the group will be men and women who are experienced choristers.

On April 27 and 28, performances of Borodin's Prince Igor will be given. On the following two evenings, The Snow Maiden by Rimsky-Korsokov will be presented.

Married Student Club Looks For Housing Aid

Two important meetings were held last week by members of the Married Students' Club. At a meeting Thursday afternoon, the possibility of finding a solution for the housing shortage, particularly for those married students on limited budgets, was discussed.

Definite plans are pending information from the office of Dean Edward E. Sandys regarding aid through the college.

The group held an outside meeting Friday night in the home of club adviser Thomas R. Porter on Santa Anna Avenue, where members from the college with their spouses were able to meet socially for the first time. Games were enjoyed and later refreshments were served.

Several new members were added to the club last week, among which is Milford L. Satterlee, beaming father of a brand-new nine pound, five ounce baby boy who was named Pat.

Group Will Demand Satisfactory Grades, Advise Program Changes, Restriction Of Units, Before Granting Registration

Students who are unable to maintain satisfactory grades this semester will have to apply to a specially appointed re-admission committee in order to register here next semester, Paul J. Mohr, registrar, stated last week.

This policy had been adhered to before the war, but, with the drop in registration during the past few years it has not been followed.

Now, however, with approximately 1,000 veterans expected to register for the spring semester, this means of eliminating students whose work has proved unsatisfactory and shows no hope of improving, has to be again introduced, Mohr said.

Committee To Be Named

Students appearing before the committee, members of which President Archibald J. Cloud will appoint before the close of this semester, will present to them a tentative program of study which will have to be approved before the student may attend classes.

The committee may act to restrict the number of courses the student may take, or it may decide that a change in the entire course is necessary. Action will vary with each individual case.

No student will be permitted to take the same course more than two times, however, it was learned from F. Grant Marsh, director of counselling and guidance.

Average Not Decided

As yet it has not been decided what grade average will be considered "unsatisfactory," but action will be taken on the matter shortly after the committee is organized.

Marsh also pointed out that contrary to the procedure followed previously, grades which are not called for will not be mailed to students' homes.

Faculty advisers will hold grades until Monday, January 21, after which time those desiring their marks will have to obtain them from Marsh personally.

Symphony Forum

Isaac Stern Guest For First Meeting

For the first general forum, to be held on this campus on Tuesday, February 5, the Symphony Forum, sponsored by the San Francisco Music Association, will have the world-renowned violinist, Isaac Stern, as its guest, Marvin Silverman, chairman of the college organization, revealed last week.

The forum, newly organized here, is an inter-collegiate society for the promotion of greater appreciation and understanding of symphonic music, and encompasses all of the colleges and universities in the Bay Area.

Forums are scheduled to be held on various campuses as well as in private residences in the city, and attending guest artists will answer and discuss pertinent music questions posed by the students.

The meeting here on February 5 will be held in the lounge of the WAVES barracks, Silverman said.

Women Asked To Usher At Opera, Skate Show

Women students of the college have been asked to usher at performances to be held at the War Memorial Opera House and at the Civic Auditorium during the next few weeks, Margaret Dougherty, dean of women, announced last week.

In cooperation with Flossita Badger of the music department, women have done ushering work at various symphony programs and other concerts. Now, for the first time, students have been asked to serve at performances of the San Carlo Opera Company which opened Monday, and at The Skating Vanities, which will open tonight.

Student ushers receive no money for doing this work, the payment being the performance itself. Miss Dougherty will give passes to those who are interested, if they will see her in her office this week.

Applications Due For Grads Wanting Jobs

Students planning to graduate and enter industry for full time employment should file an application immediately with the placement office, Joseph Amori, placement director, warned last week.

The college placement department is helping to find employment for returning veterans who were former students. Already several have been placed in full time positions.

AGS President Wins Citizenship

Elizabeth Mann, Vienna Born, Leads In Scholarship, Edits New Handbook

By Joyce Adelson

Five feet and one inch isn't very tall, but when it's packed with energy and vitality, topped off with bright brown eyes and called Elizabeth Mann, it's enough to keep a couple of much taller people going some to keep up with her.

Besides getting just about the highest grades in all her courses, Miss Mann presides over Alpha Gamma Sigma, college honor society, and manages to be editor of the forthcoming Student Handbook in her spare time. During the summer session she was one of the four AGS members who victoriously represented the college on the Quiz of Two Cities program against Pasadena Junior College.

Speech A Challenge

Miss Mann's perfect speech and vocabulary are a challenge to every other student in the college. Her faint English accent is a product of the nine months' training she had in the English boarding school which she attended after she left Vienna, Austria, where she was born and lived for 13 years.

She came to San Francisco to join her parents and has lived here ever since, claiming she loves everything about it, including the fog. A fact which she is very proud of is that she became an American citizen last December.

Miss Mann is a letters and science major, with the intention of some day becoming a leader in the advertising field. She will be graduated from the college at the end of this semester, to continue her education at the University of California.

Worked at Irwin

She attended this university for two months, upon graduation from George Washington High School, at which time she took a special course in laboratory training. She worked in the laboratory of the Irwin Blood Bank until October, 1944, when she entered this college.

With a hobby of doing anything that makes life interesting, Miss Mann (by the way, she's Betty to her best friends) lives a full and exciting day and is bound to become a success in whatever she attempts.

United Air Sends Five To Address Two Meetings Today

Five representatives of United Airlines will discuss with the Associated Women Students the importance of women in the air age in two separate meetings tomorrow. Open to all women students of the college, the meetings are scheduled for 10 and 11 o'clock in Room 100.

Dean of Women Margaret Dougherty, with the aid of Carol Hayland, AWS president, arranged the program with United Airlines.

Brief talks will be presented by Constance Dierssen, stewardess; Carol Bigelow, reservations; Lucille Landresse, passenger service; and Mary Leech, secretarial. In charge of the program will be Harry Sullivan, United Airlines Education Director.

Of particular interest is the fact that one of the speakers, Miss Landresse, is a graduate of this college. Her major was business, and her executive ability was proved to fellow-students in Fall, 1942, when she was elected vice-president of the Associated Students.

A local girl, Miss Landresse entered this college after graduating from Balboa High School, and became a member of Theta Tau sorority. She was graduated from here in January, 1943.

Attention was brought by Miss Hayland that two meetings instead of one will be given to avoid overcrowding.

A luncheon for the guests will immediately follow the meeting.

Pres. Cloud Attends Junior College Meet

By Adele Reinlseh

Always with the best interests of the college in mind, President A. J. Cloud attended the meeting of the American Association of Junior Colleges last week, which was held in Chicago.

The association, which encompasses 550 two-year institutions all over the United States, had met annually until World War II disrupted their activities. This year, however, they have again resumed their functions, with the leaders of each college in attendance.

This year's assembly started on January 16 and closed January 19. Some of the aspects considered were the general policies to be maintained by all of the colleges, the possibility of Federal legislation for the housing of students, and the problems confronting both educators and students with the return of the veteran to the classroom.

When he returns to San Francisco either today or tomorrow, President Cloud will again turn his attention to the many urgent problems hereabouts.

The appointment of the much heralded re-admission committee, and their definition of what grades will be considered "unsatisfactory," thereby forcing students to have a tentative program approved before being allowed to re-register, are factors which will be decided upon.

Also to be taken up, is the problem of the proposed change in the name of the college, which, incidentally, had been suggested once before, several years ago.

CAB Head Hailed As "Handsome"

By Betty Jo Smith

Rumors circulating around the darkened corridors whisper that Ralph Hansen, Club Advisory Board president, is affectionately beckoned with the words "Handsome Hansen." The strange part about the situation is that his face doesn't flush with embarrassment when this call is echoed; he merely pivots and answers as if it were his Christian name.

In addition to the tremendous task of presiding over the CAB meetings and looking after the problems of chartering clubs, Hansen is the acting president of Beta Tau and the reliable chairman of the election committee.

Last semester the High Freshmen elected him to lead their class onward and upward, for which he stole time off between being vice-president of the CAB and chairman of the election committee in his first term.

Last club meeting of the semester will be held at 11 o'clock, tomorrow. All classes will be dismissed so that students may attend meetings in the assigned rooms, ducreed Registrar J. Paul Mohr, and Dean Edward E. Sandys.

Club room assignments are as follows:

Alpha Delta Epsilon, 160; Alpha Gamma Sigma, 205; Alpha Lambda Chi, 211; Alpha Theta Epsilon, 158; AWS, 100; Beta Phi Beta, 111; Beta Tau, 254; Bible Study, 213; Block SF and Golden Cleats, 194; Club Advisory Board, 257; Chinese Students, 113; Cosmopolitan Society, 258; Engineers, 37; Forum, 215; Kappa Alpha Sigma, 347; Kappa Phi, 142; Music Club, 200; Newman Club, 212; Phi Beta Rho, 190; Pick and Hammer, 45; Pi Mu Gamma, 204; Symphony Forum, 208; Theta Tau, 191; Tri Epsilon, 132; Women's Athletic Association, 140; Women's Service Society, 193; XGI, Student Lounge; Delta Psi, 206.

In Room 136, Navy representatives will show movies and explain offers for men under 18 who are interested in enlisting in the Navy.

The Club Advisory Board will nominate ten candidates to run on a ballot for the Ex-Council. Seven of the ten will be elected.

Grads Hear St. Mary's RequirementsTomorrow

Graduates interested in attending St. Mary's College are invited to meet with a representative of that college tomorrow, January 24, at 1:30 p.m. in Room 113, J. Paul Mohr, registrar, announced last week.

The representative is expected to present information regarding the new liberal arts curriculum which will go into effect in the Spring semester. It will include English, Mathematics, Philosophy, Seience, and History, and all students will be required to take it.

Sweet, Pudlowski Toss Hats In Ring For Associated Student Presidency; 19 Other Offices Will Be Contested

By Marge Wheatly

In a landslide vote last Wednesday, 87.3 per cent of voting Associated Student members approved constitutional revisions. A total of 256 votes was cast.

As a result, 20 offices are open for candidates, for all but seven of whom petitions to run were filed by the deadline last Friday at 2 p.m.

Seven Club Advisory Board nominees are expected to be named sometime today.

Hats were tossed into the presidential ring by Joe G. Sweet and Victor Pudlowski.

Running competition to a high key are three candidates for the office of vice-president. They are Mildred Hoffman, Carol Hayland, Nancy Schulz.

Contesting for the office of president of the Associated Women Students are Nancy Cunningham and Betty Howard.

Ted Bofinger and William H. Poole are candidates for the position of president of the Associated Men Students.

Striving to represent the Sophomore class on the Student Council are Al Moss, Lucille Hoffman, Patricia McDonald, Beatrice Mahoney, Norma Busse, and Nancy Ruttencutter.

Freshmen representatives will be chosen from the following: Muriel Powers, Minette Pope, Loretta Sweeney, Gretchen Williams, and Elizabeth Stockton.

Class leadership for the Sophomores is between Nadine Andrews and Carmen Garcia. Either Millie Laube, Kent Bowker or Bill Smith will be president of the Freshman class.

Candidates will be introduced to the Associated Students at a rally on Wednesday, January 30, in the WAVES Auditorium at 10 a.m. Classes will be dismissed for this rally, Dean Edward E. Sandys and J. Paul Mohr, registrar, said.

Votes will be cast the following Friday, February 1.

Constitution

Revisions Provide Five Major Changes

With the decision of the Associated Students to accept the new constitution, five revolutionary changes in the student government immediately became effective.

Article III of the constitution provides for a President's Cabinet of which seven members are elected by the Associated Students and four are appointed by the president. The duties of the cabinet will be to present to the president and the Student Council all the business of the department which each represents. The President's Cabinet will meet jointly with the Student Council, but will have no vote in the council.

Article IV creates a Student Council of 15 members, with the president of the Associated Students acting as chairman. Four of the 15 members will be of the Freshman class and three of the Sophomore class. These seven members will be elected in the same manner as any other elected officer of the association. The other seven members of the council will have previously been members of the Club Advisory Board.

A third important change in the constitution deals with the unification of all Freshmen and Sophomores into just two classes. As previously mentioned, this will give each class elective representation in the Council.

Another article creates changes in the Social Committee that tend to broaden the realm of representation. The committee, composed of the presidents of both classes, the presidents of both the Men's Association and the Women's Association, and the vice-president of the Associated Students, will be responsible for the regulation and publication of all social activities. The Dean of Women will act as sponsor, and a chairman will be any member of the committee appointed by the president of the Associated Students.

The final important revision of the constitution provides for the appointment by the president of the Associated Students, the offices of Rally Commissioner, Associated Student Secretary, Men's Athletic Commissioner and the Social Committee chairman. The last three mentioned formerly were elected by the Associated Students.

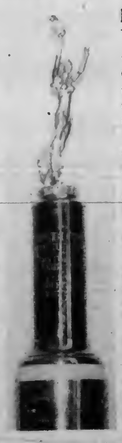
Current Budgets Out After February 8

So that all organizations operating under budgets approved by the Executive Council may receive the full benefits of their budgets, Luther Lyon, college controller, warned again last week that the balance remaining in their budget will be transferred to the general fund on Friday, February 8.

If additional expenditures are contemplated this semester, Lyon said, purchase orders should be requested as far in advance as possible.

Fourteen Enter High Soph Crown Race

King, Queen



Highlight of the moment falls upon the elections of High Sophomore Sweethearts which will take place next Wednesday morning in the cafeteria. Voting is expected to continue until about 1 p.m., Vic Pudlowski, class president, announced last week.

Men's organizations of the college have nominated candidates for King, for whom the women students will vote; women's organizations have nominated candidates for Queen, for whom the men will cast their ballots.

Candidates so far decided upon for King are George Backman, XGI Club; Joe Sheehan, Beta Phi Beta; Don Gianinni, Epsilon Epsilon Epsilon; Colin Devin, Beta Tau; Tiny Ghiorzi, Golden Cleats; Bill Thaler and George Kache, Associated Students-at-large.

The candidates for Queen are Virginia Souder, Delta Psi; Mabel Edwards, Theta Tau; Pat Cavanaugh, Phi Beta Rho; Nancy Schulz, Kappa Phi; Bette Davis, Alpha Lambda Chi; and Jean Thurber and Elinore Maekle, Associated Students-at-large.

Winners will be announced at the High Sophomore formal Friday night, February 1, at the Palace Hotel.

Formal

The annual High Sophomore formal dance will be held Friday night, February 1, in the Gold Room of the Palace Hotel. Highlight of the evening will be the naming of the Sophomore King and Queen and the official crowning ceremonies.

The King and Queen will each be presented with an engraved cup, traditionally given by Beta Tau and pictured at the left.

In previous years, only a Queen has been elected. This will mark the first year since the war that a King will share honors.

It is probable that bids for the formal will go on sale this week. Heart-shaped tallies will be of red and white.

All arrangements for the formal are being made by Vic Pudlowski, Winifred Kenny, and Claire Stewart, president, vice-president, and secretary, respectively, of the High Sophomore class.

Ray Haekett and his orchestra will provide the music, and dancing will continue until 12:30 p.m.

Bids will cost $1.50 per couple, and it is expected that they will go on sale at the bank and in the halls, Pudlowski said. As no limit to the number of bids to go on sale has yet been announced, it is probable that they may be obtained at the door of the dance.

Scholarship

High Standards Demanded

PRIOR to World War II, the scholastic standards of this and other colleges were at a higher level than they were at its close. Decreased enrollment and the subsequent lack of competition accounted, in part, for the lowering of standards.

Now, however, that the war is over, and that enrollment at this college has swelled enormously and is expected to pass the 3,000 mark by next semester, the pre-war practice on the part of the administration of demanding through a re-admission committee, satisfactory standards of all students, will be resumed, effective at the beginning of the Spring semester.

Although the re-admission committee has not yet been officially chosen, action on the part of the director of counseling and guidance has already been taken, following this semester's first midterm period, as is evidenced by the fact that out of one hundred students whose grades had hit a deplorably low mark, there are at this time twenty-one whose registration has not already been cancelled.

Such action is drastic, but called for, and every indication is given that there will be no relenting, and that when the minimum grade standard is set, students will have to adhere to it.

The procedure is not as callous as it may sound at this point, since students failing to meet a satisfactory minimum grade each semester will not immediately have their registration cancelled, but first will be put on probation, and if they do not improve their grades during that time, will have to appear before the re-admission committee, who will make the ultimate decision regarding their continuance at this college.

No serious outcry from the Associated Students at the resumption of the activities of the re-admission committee is anticipated. Even during the war some students noticeably keyed themselves up to a higher scholastic level, realizing their responsibilities, and so some of the slackness characteristic of certain types and groups was eliminated.

The difference in the future will be that, as formerly, the penalties for cutting and/or low grades will be severe.

Thinking students will have no objection to such a procedure, since there is little likelihood that they will in any way be affected. Moreover, they will use the actions of the re-admission committee, and their non-entanglement with it, as a yardstick of their own achievements.

Off The Record . . .

SOME attention should be called to the unfamiliar by-lines and new writers in this and the next several issues. All lawsuits should be directed toward the young, unhardened reporters who have taken over to get in stride for next semester, therefore this column is dedicated in fond memory of their killing services.

Each Wednesday morning, at 10 o'clock, more than 2000 students read this famous publication and, without regard for our sensitive, creative natures, end up using it to sit on. Let us tell what happened before the fatal hour.

Enrollment day brings numerous bright young faces into the journalism class, and the struggle begins. For months they learn leads, sources, styles, layouts and how to acquire their nose for news. Needless to say, only one strong one survives.

Comes the time when his first story is published (no name, no recognition, but it's his), and he is so happy. Then he runs errands, chases down facts, empties wastebaskets and learns to be a slave to the cause, before he is gathered to the bosoms of the other members and finds his name in the staff box.

Monday is a day of rest! A reporter only checks on his inches, traces his sources, finds leads to good copy and relaxes. Tuesday the News Editor makes out twenty pages of assignments and truly expects each writer to bring in six stories. Wednesday, while everyone is reading last week's edition, the staff is writing and working a week ahead of time to find out everything that is going on.

Thursday, copy begins to roll in. Editorials, sports, letters and fillers make their appearances, while the columnists type furiously in a corner to make their 11 a.m. deadline.

But, Friday is the day! Everything must be in the baskets at deadline time. Typewriters make normal speech impossible, everyone talks at once, nothing is where it should be, because someone who has no business with it has taken the copy out to show his four year old sister. Finally, all is organized and the real job starts.

Young writers gaze admiringly at great big editors and long for the day they will be "important" too. Warning: when one is made an editor, the work really begins. Long after men and women of the college have departed for their warm homes and the sun has fallen in the ocean, the editorial staff works in a crowded room for The Guardsman.

Life is troublesome after one becomes an editor; nervous breakdowns occur daily, and fingernails are chomped to the quick. Live (and die) for the paper, onward and upward.

While Thinking . . .

STANISLAW was the proud possessor of 83 lovely little points. As the legal owner of so many luscious ones, he was entitled to become a civilian once more and be addressed as Mr. Wadjahooqitz, not that anyone ever called him by his full name, anyway. No one could pronounce it; it was just the principle of the thing.

As he left Camp Beale, he was still the happy, carefree boy that left home three years before, but he started to become disillusioned the minute he clambered aboard the bus to start his homeward trek. When he arrived at home he forgot about the disgusting ride from camp for, after all, he was home, wasn't he?

The very next morning after he got home, Stanislaw decided to go downtown to set up his apple stand. Stan didn't have to worry about any postwar job, he already had his. He carried his paraphernalia down to the bus stop and waited for it to arrive. When it did arrive he eagerly hopped aboard it and tussled with all his gear to get it aboard also.

He dropped a nickle in the box and staggered towards a seat. A raucous voice stopped him when he was halfway up the aisle, "Youse owe another nickle, Buster." Leaving all of his gear in the middle of the aisle, he plodded wearily back to the coin box. He deposited the other nickle and returned to his seat. For ten cents he imagined that he would get twice as good a ride as he got for a nickle three years before.

Everyone knows Stan. He is the fellow standing on a downtown street corner selling apples. He is now a psycho-neurotic, not from any battle fatigue, but from street-car fatigue.

Parade Of Opinion

Cheering Out Of Fashion?

"Perhaps the ancient and honorable profession of cheer-leading is going out of fashion. The student body may be growing up." This was the statement made by Dr. Delbert Oberteuffer, men's physical education department at the University of Ohio, concerning the current controversy over the subject of student cheering at football games.

Dr. Oberteuffer believes that there are two important things wrong with cheer-leading and organized cheering in general. In the first place, people can't become enthusiastic and cheer just because they are told or asked to do so. Cheer-leading creates a synthetic atmosphere and enthusiasm, he maintained.

At this point Dr. Oberteuffer cited the Purdue game, in which lack of cheering was blamed on failure of the crowd to support the team. He said that because the crowd was silent didn't mean that it wasn't behind the team or suffering with it.

Fundamentally, the American people are independent, he declared. They dress, eat, go to the movies and root at athletic games as they please. They cheer or are silent because of what they see and feel at a game. When anxious, they do not feel like cheering.

As his second point against organized cheering, Dr. Oberteuffer cited the lack of courtesy inherent in the idea of rooting against the visitors. He questioned the fact that organized cheering improved the home team's play, saying that if appreciation is to be shown to a player for his ability it should be expressed by wholehearted, spontaneous cheering or personal compliments after the game.

Dr. Oberteuffer pointed out that, when fencing and wrestling teams come as visitors to the campus, they are accorded treatment as guests. He believes that Ohio State can lead the way in creating a new standard of courtesy for visiting athletic teams.

The Purposes Of Education

"The purpose of education," according to Professor Walter R. Agard, University of Wisconsin, "is making people as happy and as useful as their capacities will permit."

Professor Agard advocates four major changes in the purpose of our present educational system. First, he said, it should acquaint students with human experience in time and place; second, it should present world problems; third, it should train students to make "value judgments" on human experience and problems; and fourth, it should train students to relate their own interests to those of their communities.

Brownell

The Beachcomber

ABOUT ten days ago, we tuned in to hear a Walter Winchell broadcast that, up until then, we felt no intelligent person with any degree of good taste would ever conceive. Wandering Walt did, however. For the benefit of all those who didn't hear the horrible mess, we would like to explain just what happened.

Winchell came on like the Lone Ranger, chasing a hoof and mouth varmint, to condemn all those of the working class who go out on strike. He decided that it might be well for everyone to go on strike for three complete days. It got a little gory when he mentioned all those people who would automatically die if our doctors refused to work.

Then he got to the point of telling "how a body smells" (his exact words) after three days, pointing to the situation that would result in the event the undertakers went out on strike. We, and we feel all listeners did, too, felt as if we had been through a mental abortion.

How, we ask, did a savage of Mr. Winchell's mentality ever get to be probably the most read columnist in the business, and how did he ever get such tripe on the air lanes? We are not criticizing his purpose or reasoning, but just his repulsive taste in selection of material.

Maybe Will Hayes, who recently left Hollywood's censorship office, should take over the job which the government placed in the hands of the networks and of the FCC. A madman such as Winchell doesn't deserve the right to broadcast such trash. No one does.

LISTENING

Stan Kenton, now a cheap commercial band leader, has felt the call, or rather the need, to redeem himself, so he has issued Artistry Jumps. It is merely another arrangement of his earlier and more artful Artistry in Rhythm. Both are merely steals from Ravel's Daphnis and Chloe, which Johnny Ahrens, student, pointed out to us last semester. The whole session is quite comical, with the seal-like mating calls executed by the brass section, but when compared with Kenton's earlier works, it's almost as gory as Winchell's taste.

RAMblings . .

By Don Lucey

HEREWITH this column submits a recommendation that should meet with instant approval. The war's over, and the college has probably compiled a list of modern improvements for the campus. We are heartily in favor of this idea and, furthermore, submit our nomination for the number one job on that program.

Something must be done immediately to alleviate the long walk between the gymnasiums and the main building. This department is open for suggestions on that problem.

One individual has already suggested moving the latter structures closer together, but on second thought it doesn't seem very practical. Anyhow, we have been informed that explosives are very scarce, and digging out the hill would take ages.

ESCALATOR SUGGESTED

More sensible are the arguments for an escalator, or maybe a contraption that functions like a ski-lift. Better yet would be an elevator and an underground tunnel, such as are in mines. The trend of this journalism is going from the sublime to the ridiculous, what?

While we're on the subject of goofy writing, we call attention to an incident that was not intended to be humorous in all likelihood, but which had the Rambler splitting his sides.

This laughter was provoked by a letter to the editor that appeared in The Guardsman of January 9, 1946. The signer, Joe Sifers, advocated that "a small airport be built at Balboa Park."

We wonder if Mr. Sifers penned that in all sincerity, or maybe he just slipped that remark in his communication to see if it would get in the paper.

CONSIDERATION INADEQUATE

But if Joe wrote that comment with a straight face and good intentions, as we suspect, then his decidedly careless suggestion must be corrected. First of all, we think J. S. put down on paper the remark we are discussing without first giving it adequate consideration.

If Mr. Sifers had asked himself why all the airfields in the world are situated in the wide open spaces, all this trouble could have been averted.

Since that probably never occurred to him, chances are that the recent San Francisco fog may have brought his glowing blunder to his attention. Can you picture 2,000 ardent students attempting to study with a would-be pilot skimming the observatory in a pea-soup as he vainly attempts to find Balboa Park?

Fleet City, Beavers Favored In Intra Play

The scheduled six-man, intramural touchtackle tournament began play this week, and the results of the games scheduled for Monday and Tuesday are unknown at press time but will be covered in the next issue of the paper.

Intramural Director Jack Brady released the following schedule for the remaining games.

January 25, Friday:
Anderson vs. Bye.
X.G.I. vs. Salamons
Eager Beavers vs. Fleet City
January 29, Tuesday:
Andersons vs. Salamons
Bye vs. Fleet City
X.G.I. vs. Eager Beavers
February 1, Friday:
Andersons vs. Fleet City
Salamons vs. Eager Beavers
Bye vs. X.G.I.

Friday finds the two favored teams meeting, Fleet City and the Eager Beavers. The Eager Beavers must be given the favored roll for two reasons. First, the Beavers have been holding regular workouts and possess a set of well diagrammed plays; and second, Fleet City has lost three of its most experienced men through expulsion and the draft.

The Fleet (Fleet City), however, with Bill (All-City) Dials, Roy Gaskin, Edward Brown, Hiram Short, Clarence Scott, Max Gillett, and Clarence Wilborn, will give the Beavers trouble enough, but the Eager Beavers with Glenn Brown, Jack Sarensen, Don Lucey, Fred Sandine, Larry Young, and Joe Handel will be the team to watch.

A passing duel should develop between Satchel Dials, formerly of Commerce, and RAMbling Lucey.

In the other contest the X.G.I.'s rule favorites to defeat the Salamons.

The Andersons, hitherto known as Team X, will not play Friday.

Rams Split Pair With Modesto

Modesto

Pirates Lose Opener 43 To 35, Rally To Win Second 46 To 31

The Rams made it one and one in league competition by splitting with the Modesto Pirates last week, when they took Wednesday night's fray here and dropped Friday night's battle in Modesto.

A fast-playing Ram quintet turned back the Pirates in the first game by a 43 to 35 count. The Rams were very hot and led throughout the game with the help of Frank Skoglund and Frank Ratto, who garnered 14 points each.

With Bill Kahn, Earl Malnick, and Roland Jones each taking turns at guarding the Pirates' six-foot-nine Livingstone, all Livingstone could get was one field goal.

Kahn, the Rams' giant, took most of his time in guarding his man and very seldom had a shot at the basket. The Rams kept the Modestoans pretty well away from the basket, with the exception of Charlie Hickok, who sank 17 points. Most of these shots were all long.

Malnick's beautiful defense game was thrilling to watch as were some of the most unusual shots by Ratto. Ratto would dribble the length of the court and shoot from under the basket.

In the return, rather hectic game last Friday night, the Rams lost, 46 to 31, to a hard fighting Modesto team.

Highlight of the night came in the first half when Neilson tackled Roland Jones, and the referees gave the ball to the Rams out of bounds instead of calling a foul.

Following the decision there was a hot argument by Ram Coaches Tom Wilson and Jack Gaddy, but it was to no good. The refs slapped a technical on Wilson, and that was that.

High point men for the Rams were Red Dunnigan and Skoglund with eight and seven points, respectively.

Player Of The Week

Frank Skoglund Is Three Letterman

By Staten Webster

It seems quite strange that as an athlete who has played basketball, baseball, and football before many thousands of cheering fans and admiring supporters, he should detest large, noisy crowds, but such is the case of Frank (no niek-name) Skoglund.

Skoglund, star forward on the dynamic Ram quintet, hails from University High School, Oakland, where he won letters in three sports.

Tipping the scales at 158 pounds, and standing five feet, eleven inches tall, Skoglund is eighteen years of age.

Skoglund, who held the batting honors in baseball at his former high school, is an engineering major here at the college, and hopes to attend the University of California at Berkeley.

He is a member of that group of young men who will soon have to disrupt their education because of their being drafted for, as the military leaders of the country call it, vital military occupational duty.

Player-of-the-week Skoglund reveals that his hobbies are sports, fishing, and hunting. Also, he reveals that he is unattached at the present.

Along with Frank Ratto, he led the Ram eagers in scoring last week in the first conference game against Modesto, which the Rams won, 43 to 35.

No Interest—AMS Cancels Boxing Show

Because of lack of interest on the part of the men students of the college, the semi-annual Associated Men Student boxing show has been cancelled, Coach Jack Gaddy announced Wednesday. Gaddy did, reveal, however, that starting next semester ten boxing classes will be conducted.

The intramural awards which were to be presented at the show, will be presented at the award assembly on Wednesday, January 30, if the medals have arrived by that date, Coach Jack Brady, intramural director, said.

Santa Rosa

Quintet Travels To Valley Tonight; Plays Here Friday

Following swiftly in the wake of last week's Modesto encounters, the Rams face a fighting Santa Rosa quintet tonight and Friday night.

Tonight's contest will be played on the Santa Rosa court, with Friday night's tilt on the Ram's court. Both games are scheduled for 7:45 o'clock.

Little is known about the Santa Rosa team as to the number of games played, won or lost. Last year's games were cancelled because of the manpower shortage, and in December of last year it was reported that only five or six men had turned out for the team then.

After the Ram's sparkling game last Wednesday night they are favored to win this week's contests, and be ready to swing into the Sacramento tilts.

The probable lineup for tonight's game for the Rams is as follows:

Ross Dunnigan, F.
Frank Skoglund, F.
Bill Kahn, C.
Earl Malnick, G.
Frank Ratto, G.

The remaining games on the schedule are as follows:

Jan. 23—SFJC at Santa Rosa.
Jan. 25—Santa Rosa at SFJC.
Jan. 30—Sacramento at SFJC.
Feb. 1—SFJC at Sacramento.
Feb. 6—Marin at SFJC.
Feb. 8—SFJC at Marin.
Feb. 15—SFJC at Salinas.
Feb. 20—SFJC at Placer.
Feb. 22—Grant at SFJC.
Feb. 27—SFJC at Menlo.
Mar. 2—Salinas at SFJC.
Mar. 6—San Mateo at SFJC.
Mar. 8—SFJC at San Mateo.

Council Approves 26 Football Block Letters

Bob Mills, Associated Students president, revealed that the Executive Council has approved the list of names of twenty-six gridders recommended by Coach Lee Eisan for block awards.

The players who will receive blocks at the award assembly on Wednesday, January 30, are as follows:

Bov Cavender, Richard Sabatini, Earl Lawrence, Henry Boone, Staten Webster, Vic Hancock, Hedwig Thompson, Bob Haeleaf, Bob Mills, Ray Muller, John Mapelle, Don Grant, Bob Ghiorzi, Richard Stanfel, Don Jensen, Ted Weber, Johnny Lane, Bill Riordan, Vince Marinti, Manuel Castro, Bob Toquinto, and Willie Atchison.

The injured players who will receive blocks are George Fablan, Bob Parnow, and Don Keck, who, because of doctor's orders, was forced to quit the team before the season was completed.

Dance Group To Attend Program Tonight

Members of Ethyle Green's modern dancing group will gaze upon professional and college modern dancing exhibitions tonight at 8 o'clock at the Veteran's Building.

Stanford, California, State, and Mills Colleges are sending performers, and Miss Green urged all students interested in dancing to attend. There is no admission charge.

After the dancing demonstrations, a panel discussion will follow and spectators may ask questions.

WAA

Tourney Week Back On Program, Starts February 4 To 8

Tourney Week, a semi-annual event of the Women's Athletic Association, returns to the college Monday, February 4, through Friday, February 8, after an absence of some four years.

One of the first casualties of the war, Tourney Week in its revival represents a marked return to peacetime WAA activity. All competition between sport clubs and visitors from State College and city high schools takes place the week before final examinations, Wanda McKenzie, WAA president, stressed.

Plans for conducting Tourney Week and other events climaxing the Fall semester were discussed at last Monday's WAA council meeting.

Blocks Ready Soon

Members also decided to present the new WAA blocks to eligibles at the first general meeting of the Spring semester. Miss McKenzie hinted that members now possessing the old block may request the new design when the supply is adequate.

Since only a few members of the newly formed basketball club appeared at the last practice, Bertha Mae Keller, adviser, issued a warning that the team may be dissolved unless there is better representation at the coming practice sessions.

Badminton Has Play-off

Badminton manager Frances Scilipoti ran a special play-off Tuesday afternoon, January 15, with most of the members participating. Play went on from 3 until 5 p.m., and Miss Scilipoti emerged with the highest score, followed by Vivian Benjamin, Roberta Reams, and Ann Gioya.

Other active participants were Irene Mouzakis, Fay Wienberg, and Millie Rudd.

Ethyle Green Joins Women's Ph. Ed. Staff

Latest addition to the physical education and Women's Athletic Association's staff is Ethyle Green, who has taken over the duties of Bettyjean Otto. After a stay of slightly less than a year at the college, Miss Otto became the bride of Lt. (j.g.) Don Gunderson in Piedmont last Saturday and is now a homemaker.

Miss Green graduated from San Francisco State College in 1943, after having prepped at neighboring Balboa High, and has already returned to her high school alma mater as a physical education teacher for a short time. In addition, she has instructed physical education classes at various junior highs and at Mission and Commerce High Schools.

Composed principally of vitality and youthful exuberance, Miss Green claims, "I'm going to wear a tag around my neck stating I'm an instructor, not a student!"

As for athletics, Miss Green says she's tried all of them but picks horseback riding as her favorite, and modern dancing as a major interest; in fact, she has been instructing the now Mrs. Gunderson's well-trained dancing club weekly.

Miss Green obviously enjoys her work and of the college itself states, "I like it fine and hope to be here for quite a while."

Music

Four Students Give Program At Annual Scout Council Meet

Four students of music at this college donated their talents last Sunday afternoon to the annual meeting of the San Francisco Area Council of the Boy Scouts of America, which was held at the Whitcomb Hotel.

At the meeting, J. Paul Mohr, college registrar, who also is chairman of the Area Council's training committee, presented awards to those Boy Scouts in this area who have completed their five year training period.

The musical talent for the occasion was furnished by Betty Wales, soprano; Emory Mellon and James Finley, baritones; with Marvin Silverman furnishing piano accompaniment. Flossita Badger, instructor of music, was in charge of the performance.

Bay Area Symphony Has Silverman As Officer

At a meeting of the San Francisco Musical Association sponsored Symphony Forum on January 4, at which colleges and universities in the Bay Area were represented, Marvin Silverman, already the chairman of the forum at this college, was also elected vice-president of the entire organization.

Meetings of the forum are held on the various campuses and in private residences in the city. The first forum planned for this campus will occur on Tuesday, February 5, at which time Isaac Stern, world famous violinist, will be the guest artist.

Car Pool In Need Of Additional Autos

Because several people owning cars have withdrawn from the college, there are more students who need rides to and from the building than there are cars available, Dean Edward E. Sandys disclosed last week.

"We definitely need more cars from the East Bay area," Sandys emphasized.

Any students owning cars and who desire to enter the car pool are asked to contact Dean Sandys immediately.

Veterans

Counselor Describes Speed-up Program For Non-High School Graduates Here

By Max Rubinchik

Mrs. Alice Castro, veterans' counselor, thinks that today's young returning veteran is "a grown up young man" and "very earnest and serious in his approach to college work."

It is her job to supervise all those veterans who had not completed their high school education prior to their entry into the armed service, and who are registered under the GI Bill of Rights.

Number Expected to Increase

"Until Christmas, approximately 200 veterans have enrolled in the college to complete their high school work," she said, and then added that the number is expected to increase greatly by the beginning of next semester.

The Board of Education here, Mrs. Castro pointed out, realizing with leading educators throughout the country that the returning veterans are somewhat older than the present day high school students, decided to send them to the Junior College where they could be with students nearer their own age level.

Speed Up Program Outlined

A "speed up" program was set up enabling the veteran to complete a year's high school course in one college semester.

"In most cases," Mrs. Castro explained, "the student veteran will complete his high school work in not more than a year's time, and even manage to collect a few freshman college units on the side."

The State Department has authorized the college to give the General Educational Development Test, a test evolved by the army, based on a high school work level, to those veterans who do not intend to secure a college degree. The veteran is given a high school certificate on passing.

"Upon entering the college," Mrs. Castro stated, "the veteran is given the usual aptitude tests. I then go over the results of these tests with the veteran in order to discover what field he is best fitted for. This dual method of guidance has proved quite successful.

"I try to prescribe a broader course for those students who are overly anxious in their pursuit of learning, and yet doubtful as to their main objective. It enables them to investigate a wide variety of subjects before placing a special emphasis on any particular major."

Mrs. Castro has much valuable experience as a counselor, having previously been director of guidance of all San Jose schools, and counseling director of the Phoenix Union High School. She is a graduate of Stanford University, holding a degree in counseling and guidance, and was one of the pioneers in that field.

Photography

Commercial Course For Limited Number Offered In Spring

Courses in Commercial photography will be open to a limited number of students next semester, according to Bev Pasqualetti, recently returned to the college after three years of service in the Navy.

Pasqualetti will instruct two four unit courses in commercial photography. The classes will be limited to 20 students because of the shortage of photographic equipment. He stated, however, that the college will purchase necessary items as Army and Navy surpluses of equipment increase.

Photography 71 and 72 are the courses he will teach. Each will have two three hour laboratories and two one hour lectures weekly. Seventy-one will offer the student an opportunity to learn the technique of contact printing and enlargement of pictures and will be the prerequisite of 72.

The advance course will include different techniques in the printing and enlarging of film. The advanced student will also have many opportunities actually to work with a camera and to take and develop his own pictures.

Pasqualetti left the college in January, 1942, when he was commissioned an ensign in the Navy. He was sent to the Pensacola Photography School and upon completion was sent to the Dallas Naval Air Station as an instructor.

His next assignment was with the VD-3, a Naval photographic squadron, used to photograph battle areas. The squadron was assigned to the Marshall-Gilbert area, and after completing work on Akinawa was sent to photograph Honshu Island on the southern tip of Japan. Termination of hostilities sent the squadron back to the United States and Pasqualetti was honorably discharged as a lieutenant.

XGI Society

Progressive Party Adopts Platform, NominatesTomDeanForNewPresident

Following adoption of a progressive party platform, the XGI holds semester elections tomorrow at the regular meeting in the Student Lounge.

At a special meeting held last Thursday, the progressive group nominated the following veterans for the coming semester officers: Tom Dean for president, Joe Cole for vice-president, George Bachman for secretary, and Roy Williamson for treasurer.

Under this platform the college veteran club will be an active organization next semester, with plans to help the expected 700 new veterans with their college life.

This faction of the organization wants the XGI Society to be active during the Summer Session, and to develop the debating and public-speaking course now being offered to the members, to the highest possible standings.

Housing Plan Under Way

Veteran housing rose as a collective club problem at last Thursday's meeting, and a program was discussed in conjunction with the college. The veterans have the cooperation of the Ocean Avenue Merchants, the Federal Housing Administration, the American Legion, and Ingleside Home Owners' Association.

Veterans in College Elections

With the support of the XGI behind him, Joseph Sweet entered the Associated Students election race as a candidate for president.

Another hat was thrown in the ring for the Sophomore King as George Bachman was unanimously nominated as the XGI candidate.

Summer And Part Time Jobs Now Available

Those students who are graduating or planning to leave the college at the end of this semester should file an application for full time work immediately, according to Joseph Amori, placement director.

There are several excellent full time positions open to men and women who are leaving the college.

All students interested in working at resorts during summer vacation should apply for an application in Room 169 after the Spring semester begins, Amori said.

Women wanting part time work on afternoons and Saturdays in clerical work, typing, and filing are advised by Amori to apply at the placement office.

Pi Mu Gamma To Hear Navy Medical Officer

Pi Mu Gamma, the college medical society, will hear an address given by Lieutenant Commander Marvin L. Gerber of the Navy Medical Corps, this Friday, January 25, at 8 p.m. in Room 100.

Dr. Gerber, a veteran of Attu, Kiska, Iwo Jima, Okinawa, and Nagasaki, plans to preface his talk with a Navy Department film entitled, Navy Men in Medicine.

The talk is part of the Pi Mu Gamma's policy of bringing medical men to inform members as to various aspects of the field of medicine. Each member will be allowed to bring one guest.

Parky

Rams Have Stellar Rooter—4-Legged

By Jackie Hogan

Through the fog in the wee small hours of the morning last Wednesday a handful of sleepy-eyed college students made their way down the Swampy Slop to yon WAVES auditorium to hear constitutional revisions read.

Although the spirit was low in most students, and envisioned within every mind was the thought of the majority of their comrades snuggled warm in their beds for an extra hour's sleep, one creature bubbled over with energy.

This one of the assembled multitude was on his toes that morning with ears flying, tail wagging and dark brown eyes flashing with excitement. (No, he wasn't a student.) He was Parky, the little black cocker spaniel belonging to the WAVES.

Parky took it upon himself to be a combination master of ceremony and one dog cheer section. In his friendly manner he wandered from one student to another extending his paw in welcome, and when the time came to give a cheer Parky really went to town.

Down to the front of the auditorium he tore and poured his heart into a lusty yell along with the students. If he wasn't good, at least he was loud, and that's what counts.

There's a rumor going around now that Parky will be offered a scholarship just to be in the Ram cheering section, providing, of course, he keeps his "C" average.

Married Students Will Sign Club Petition

That the Married Students Club is under way in the writing of a petition to be presented to Edward E. Sandys, dean of men, requesting aid through the college in finding living quarters for married couples on limited budgets, was announced last week by Eugene Hague, acting chairman of the group.

Through Dean Sandys and the Board of Education, it is hoped by members of the club that aid will be obtained. The petition may be sent to San Francisco newspapers, whereby results from outside sources also may be obtained, Hague added.

Authors of the petition to be signed by members, are Hague and his wife, who asked that members of the club be present at the meeting in Room 322 tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock to sign the petition.

A spaghetti dinner and ice-skating party will be held Sunday, January 27, at 5 p.m., at 733 Clayton Street with Kappa Phi. Formal initiation of new pledges will be held February 4.

More About Hansen

memorable, weeks at the college, Hansen grew patriotic and enlisted in the Army as a high-ranking Private.

Army travels scurried him around to various camps in the United States, even to the University of Idaho, where he indulged in the study of engineering under the auspices of the Army. Time proved this job to be distasteful, so he voluntarily allowed himself to fail the subject.

During tours through Camp Beal, Fort Bragg, and also at Fort Meade, Maryland, a port of embarkation, "Handsome" found himself the proud possessor of the title, "Chief Survey Man," which entitled him to survey masterfully all the field artillery targets in the area.

Then Back to Study

Educational cheers lured him back to the college in January, 1945.

His many tales of being committed to an institution are proof that Hansen is a person of amazing wit and laughter, on top of his intelligence and ability to look upon life with a radical and republican viewpoint.

He willingly admits this widespread opinion and adds another description by saying, "I'm a communistic republican—I vote for Mickey Mouse on every ticket."

Pep Club Meeting Set Tomorrow At 2 O'Clock

With Earl Lawrence acting as co-chairman of the Pep Club, and an addition of 50 members expected, a club meeting is called for tomorrow at 2 o'clock. All members must attend, Hilga Haack, president, said last week. Lois Hopkins is secretary, treasurer.

"I am running for the office of president because I am deeply interested in better student government. As a member of the Executive Council for the past two semesters, I have seen government at its worst. At the start of this semester conditions around college didn't look very promising, but two events occurred which have changed things tremendously.

"The first was the adoption of a new progressive constitution. The second was the establishment of a new and very spirited organization on the campus. I am very heppy to see that students are beginning to practice students government. With this kind of spirit there are no limits to our future success.

"It is your duty to elect a president who is interested in your affairs. It is your duty to vote. It is your duty to vote as you please. Under no circumstances should you allow yourself to be 'told' how to vote. Practice democracy now!"

VIC PUDLOWSKI
Candidate for President

Voting For Student Leaders Scheduled Tomorrow, Friday

Climaxing the campus electoral race, a rally today sets the stage of the final lap as candidates are introduced to students at 10 a.m. in the WAVE Auditorium. Class will be dismissed to allow students to attend the rally, according to Dean Edward E. Sandys.

With campaign fervor at a feverish peak, platform supporters swing into full gallop as poll time approaches.

Voting Time Extended

Judgment day dawns twice for contending candidates, as voting will begin tomorrow at 10 a.m. in the cafeteria until 2 p.m., winding up on Friday when the polls will be open again from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m.

High position of Associated Students president is the goal of two candidates, Victor Pudlowski and Joe G. Sweet. Competing for vice president are Carol Hayland, Mildred Hofman and Nancy Schulz.

Women students will choose between Nancy Cunningham and Betty Howard for president of the Associated Women Students, while college men will decide whether Ted Bofinger, Earl Lawrence, or William H. Poole will lead them as president of the Associated Men Students.

Six Represent Sophs

Contesting for sophomore representation on the Student Council are Al Moss, Lucille Hoffman, Patricia McDonald, Beatrice Mahoney, Norma Busse, and Nancy Ruttencutter. Sophomores will choose three of these.

Representation of freshman on the council will consist of four of the following: Muriel Powers, Minette Pope, Loretta Sweeney, Gretchen Williams, and Elizabeth Stockton.

Sophomores will select their president from between Kent Bowker and Millie Laube.

Three competitors strive for presidency of the freshman class. They are Nadine Andrews, Carmen Garcia, and Bill Smith.

Awards At Rally

Featuring not only candidates, the final student gathering of the semester provides the background for award-giving.

Gold pins will be awarded to Executive Council members Bob Mills, Doris Pederson, Carol Hayland, Ernest Poggi, Dean Haug, Wanda McKenzie, Nancy Cunningham, Pamela Sampson, Ralph Hansen, and Pudlowski.

Approved by the Executive Council, 26 football players, recommended by Coach Lee Eisan, will receive blocks.

"I will endeavor in every way to work with the Student Council, and establish the newly accepted constitution in an efficient and workable manner. By this, I feel the constitution should be given a fair trial, and if impossibilities arise—amendments will be in order.

"I will work with all committees, and encourage all activities that will benefit the college in both spirit and esteem. All appointments to Associated Student positions will be made impartially, and for the benefit of the students of the association.

"Appointments will not be judged upon friendship, but on the capabilities of students who have the interest of the association at heart. In this practice, the administration will be for the benefit of the majority of students.

"Being a veteran, I will try in every way to aid returning service men in re-establishing themselves in an educational institution, and stress that their achievements in the college will not be based on their military record.

"I shall strive in the interest of all students by re-establishing many of the customs and traditions which have been discarded because of streamlining during the war."

CAB Nominates 11 For Council Membership

Eleven Club Advisory Board members were nominated last week to run for the Student Council on the regular Associated Student ticket at elections tomorrow and Friday, from 10 to 2 o'clock, in the cafeteria.

The seven members with the highest vote will become members of the Student Council, as provided in the constitution.

The following students' names will appear on the ballot:

Gloria Faber, Phi Beta Rho; Kinley Mark, Chinese Club; Adele Rogers, Alpha Gamma Sigma; Joseph Moss, Engineering; Gloria Craig, Theta Tau; Ernie Poggi, Beta Phi Beta; Jack Glasner, Beta Tau; Maryan Atkinson, Delta Psi; Remigio Archuletta, XGI; Carol Johnson, Alpha Lambda Chi; Don Grant, Golden Cleats.

XGI's Elect Tom Dean Spring Semester Head

In an election clinching semester activities, the XGI Society put the progressive party leaders into office at its regular meeting last Thursday.

Topping the executive body is the new president, Tom Dean, with Joe Gole taking over the vice-presidential duties. George Backman turns minute taker in his position as secretary, and Roy Williamson controls club funds in the capacity of treasurer.

Veterans interested in debating meet every Monday at 1 o'clock in Room 113. Chairman Gole last week urged XGI's to participate in the course, since debating will become a credit course next semester. "Also," Gole said, "it not only will help the veteran interested in law, but it will help the hen-pecked husband!"

At its last regular meeting, the society gave a unanimous vote of thanks to Leora Bear, freshman at the college, for her whole-hearted cooperation in the organization and support of the college Veterans Housing Program, according to Backman.

King, Queen Elections To Begin After Rally Today Until 2; Friday Formal Tickets Still On Sale At College Bank

By Lucille Scott

Elections for Sophomore King and Queen will take place in the cafeteria today, until 2 p.m., following the rally in the WAVE auditorium, Vic Pudlowski, High Soph president, announced last week.

Men students of the college will cast ballots to elect their choice for Sophomore Queen, and women students will elect their King. Student cards must be shown by voters. Pictures of candidates are expected to be posted in the hall of the building.

Candidates for Queen are Pat Kraal, NewmanClub, whose name was inadvertently omitted from the original list of candidates compiled by the class committee; Virginia Souder, Delta Psi; Mabel Edwards, Theta Tau; Pat Cavanaugh, Phi Beta Rho; Nancy Schulz, Kappa Phi; Bette Davis, Alpha Lambda Chi; and Jean Thurber and Eleanor Mackie, Associated Students-at-large.

Diane Kuehl, Alpha Delta Epsilon, is a last-minute candidate for Queen. Her picture is not included because her name was added too late.

Candidates for King are George Backman, XGI Club; Joe Sheehan, Beta Phi Beta; Don Giannini, Epsilon Epsilon Epsilon; Colin Devin, Beta Tau; Tiny Ghiorzi, Golden Cleats; Bill Thaler, and George Kache, Associated Students-at-large.

Pudlowski will crown the Queen, and Winifred Kenney, vice president, and Claire Stewart, secretary, will crown the King when names of the winners are announced at the annual High Sophomore dance, in the Gold Room of the Palace Hotel, February 1, at which Ray Hackett and his orchestra will play.

At the dance women will wear formals and men tuxedoes. Corsages may be worn with the formals.

A limited number of tickets for the dance will be on sale at the bank until Friday, February 1, at $1.50 per couple. Bids will not be sold at the door of the dance, Pudlowski pointed out.

Transportation

Petitions Out To Restore Bus Route

Petitions for the resumption of the direct bus route to the college are being circulated here for student signatures.

Margo Skinner, a student, compiled the information to write the text of the petition and with the aid of Lois Minium and Jeanette Hesser the petition was mimeographed and presented for signatures.

Miss Minium and Miss Hesser will be in the cafeteria today, tomorrow and Friday between 11 and 12 o'clock to have those who have not signed the petition do so.

The body of the petition written by Miss Skinner is as follows:

"Under the present shuttle bus system there is much over crowding. Service is inconvenient and ineffective; in some cases there has been NO shuttle-bus on the line during the rush hour. Valuable time is lost, causing students to miss classes. Furthermore, a large percentage of students who are dependent on their earnings for their education consistently arrive late to work.

"The 'K' car carries pupils who attend Aptos Junior High, Farragut, Commodore Sloat, St. Emydius, Denman Junior High and Balboa High, as well as students of the San Francisco Junior College.

"Transportation to the college was formerly excellent; swift, efficient and according to schedule. The students of San Francisco Junior College constitute the largest numerical group using this bus line; since re-routing the No. 1 Bus is almost empty, particularly when coming from 29th and Mission Streets. Apparently, no one has gained by the change in route; 2,000 students have lost by it."

Lockers To Be Empty By February 13

Students must vacate all lockers before Wednesday, February 13, according to Dean Edward E. Sandys. "Any articles not removed by this date will be sold at auction," Sandys said.

New lockers will be issued at the beginning of next semester, he added, and the number of people per locker will depend on the total enrollment.

Soph King No Longer Ignored, To Get Trophy

With the election of a sophomore King for the first time since the war, Theta Tau will make a presentation of an engraved perpetual trophy to the King at the High Sophomore formal Friday night, February 1, along with the presentation of a perpetual trophy to the queen by Beta Tau.

Jeanne Williams, president of Theta Tau, will present the reigning King with the trophy, and Ralph Hansen, president of Beta Tau, will make the traditional presentation to the Queen.

Trophies which the King and Queen will receive are on display in the show case in the main hall.

One Of These Will Be "Queen For A Night" At Soph Formal

Elections

Non-Voting Inexcusable

AT today's ralley, candidates for the various offices, principally for president of the Associated Students, will be introduced to members of the Association.

The Associated Students will see and hear the candidates, and thus be able to form an idea in their minds as to which will be able to fulfill satisfactorily the requirements of the offices they now seek.

Some of the candidates have already had a measure of experience in other offices at this college, in those cases, their record as officers should be remembered, and taken into consideration. To those on the outside of student government, the records of past officers may not be readily accessible. Decision on the part of the individual voter may then boil down to recollecting whether the various dances, drives, rallies and other social and business activities have been successful or not, and using them to measure the capacity of the individuals concerned.

As for those who have not previously held office at the college, their statements will have to be carefully listened to and fairly weighed.

The election of president of the Associated Students promises to be more than usually exciting, since this time both opponents are fairly evenly matched as to support, and neither can look forward to a walk-away over the other.

In the past, it has been claimed that the candidate belonging to, and supported by Greek letter societies have always almost automatically been elected to office, in preference to non-club members. This has been due to the fact that student elections have never been fully representative of the Associated Students, in that only a small fraction of the association has ever bothered to vote at any election.

Clubs as a rule turn out almost unanimously to vote, and therefore, it has been, to a large degree, the absence of non-club members (who are in the majority) that has ultimately decided the election of officers.

Lethargy as regards voting is by no means confined to this college, but is widely prevalent, and exists even on a national scale. Moreover, it may be said that those people who express the greatest dissatisfaction with election results, are those who have not voted.

This time there will be little excuse to refrain from voting. In this edition of The Guardsman, there appear photographs of the presidential candidates, together with their platforms, upon which, they will undoubtedly enlarge at the rally.

The provisions of the newly revised constitution, should moreover, prove an inducement to vote, since it, to a greater extent than ever before, provides for a more efficient student government.

Hansen

While Thinking . . .

DURING the past few weeks servicemen overseas have been doing more than their normal, share of griping. These complaints have reached the headlines because they have been organized ones put through by large groups.

It is undoubtedly true that these men all deserve to come home, but it is not a question of what would be best for the individual good but what would be best for the national good.

If the United States expects to retain the gains she has made toward a lasting peace she must keep the foothold she has gained in the conquered countries. We are virtually compelled to maintain occupational armies in all of these vanquished lands.

These armies should be composed of trained men. It takes time to train men and only such men should be used. Raw recruits would not work out well, because they would not have the "savvy," or know how, that is a stock in trade of a trained man.

There are many surplus men overseas, and these men should undoubtedly be sent home, but we should not deplete our supply of key men. MacArthur has informed the war department how many men he needs, and so has the chief of the European theater, so there is no need to keep the surplus men in these theaters. There are 800,000 men in the Pacific that are not needed, so why should they be left sitting around doing nothing.

If Congress would get off the dime and release the men that they don't need, or at least put forth a decent demobilization policy, the country would be better off.

Letters To The Editor

RAM'S HORN

• Publications Date
Editor, The Guardsman:

Is there any major reason why The Guardsman should be published on Wednesday when it can more effectively serve the school with a Friday publication day?

Instead of having the deadline set at Friday, 11 a.m., set it Monday, 11 a.m.

This would greatly facilitate reporting of dances and other events held on Fridays. With the system in its present form, such cannot be reported for ten days, at which time everything has been rehashed so many times in student gossip that few people are interested in it.

Not only the Associated Student would benefit by the increased, more timely, more effective publicity, but the many and varied clubs and societies, which have to write out and hand in stories on their own events, would also.

It seems logical to me: what about you?

Editor's note: If Mr. Gerber would read The Guardsman carefully, he might realize that like all newspapers published once a week, stress is on coming events, not past events. The Wednesday publication date makes possible timely coverage of events scheduled Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, and Saturday. A Friday publication date would limit timeliness to events of two days, Friday and Saturday. Let Mr. Gerber further consider just what news elements would be included in a story about a dance that is over. "At a dance held last Friday at the Hotel St. Francis, 300 students of the college danced" perhaps? And since when have clubs and societies had to write stories concerning their own activities?

• New Courses
Editor, The Guardsman:

I think that the following courses should be offered at the college:

A course in play writing and a course in Eastern History (i.e. China, India, Turkey, Persia, Japan, etc.).

I believe that there is enough interest in the college to make these courses a success.

Why aren't the courses offered next term and if the classes are too small they can be discontinued.

ADVERTISING is a great field, but it does seem that sometimes things are carried a bit too far. For instance, everyone has seen those scientific ads that explains just how rubber is processed or how to break an atom, or skin a cat. They read like thesis, and one has to have a PhD to understand them.

Another type will flatly declare that a product is of cold finished steel. Nobody even knows what hot finished steel is, but that is beside the point.

Most people have often been startled by the sign, "It's shot from guns." A person doesn't know whether to eat the product or use it to load his "45" and take a shot at all billboards.

It is a wonder that people ever knew how to live before the magazine ad craze. Now one gets a complete beauty course by reading any mag from cover to cover.

Just when a person begins to feel his ego rising, he thumbs to an ad that booms, "Have you pink toothbrush?" Many a person has broken a leg in the dash to find his toothbrush and investigate.

After a three inch feather bog, it's a cinch that a bewildered reader will come across an ad that says, "Be lovely—Do you want longer hair? . . . Then try—" Why not try letting it grow.

"Do your hands glide into his heart? Unmask a more radiant, younger you!" All these typify the helpful hints on how to become an American Beauty.

After trying all of them one looks like something out of "The Lost Weekend."

Bread used to be the staff of life, but now-a-days if it's not a certain kind of bread that the consumer buys—well, just throw away the stuff, brother, 'cause life isn't worth living anyway.

The public may as well admit it. The manufacturers have them beaten. It's getting to the point where advertisements are trying to make the banned-in Boston list. The next step will be serials of pure advertisements written in suspense installments.

On the other hand, advertising is very essential. How else can a person read his favorite magazine in a spare moment of relaxation and come out of the book knowing that the breathless feeling he has after running up three flights of stairs is NOT a healthy vigor-for-life, but the first signs of a bad heart.

The loan companies are secretive, the oil companies are helpful, the drug companies are martyrs, and the American public is really lucky.

The Beachcomber

WE ran into good old Joe Bish the other day.

You know Joe, son of Andy and Kris and nephew of Joe and Rose. Sure. Well, Joe told us of one way to get a new car, brand new, and some pocket money and a visit with board and room free all for a half a day's work.

To break down all that gibberish, here's how. It seems this fellow went to a bank the first thing when he hit town. Then he registered at a hotel leaving instructions with the clerk and the bell hop to bring the bank book to his room when it arrived. The book was to come by bank messenger.

The book arrived and of course the clerk and the bell hop couldn't resist a peek inside it. The bell hop whistled and the clerk gasped for five thousand dollars had just been deposited.

The book was then taken upstairs to the gent's room, or to clarify, to this man's room. The fellow knew of course that the natural thing for the two employees of the hotel to do was to scan the amount listed in the book. He was counting on it and heavily.

The man then went down and picked out a brand new auto and started to write out a check for the amount. The auto agency of course checked with the man's hotel and the bank before the man could drive off in the car. The hotel and the bank both okayed the man's financial position.

The gent immediately went down and tried to dump the new car at a used car lot for next to nothing. The attendant of the lot became suspicious, phoned the auto agency, and then phoned the police and had the man arrested on the say so of the agency. They figured he was a con-man.

The police checked up on the man and found he was innocent. The man threatened to sue and the agency paid off, out of court, to the tune of the new car, free, and a thousand in cash. Smooth?

As for the five thousand to deposit in the bank, just ask one of your better friends for the loan or maybe even good old Joe Bish. Okay Joe?

This racket was actually worked here in town. To prove, however that crime doesn't pay, the bad, bad man got stomach poisoning from the food served him at the jail and died before he could spend the thousand dollars.

RAMblings . .

By Don Lucey

ISN'T it always the way. No matter what school you go to or at what time, you always hear this immortal remark peddled off on you by someone with nothing better to do. "Too bad, chum," he'll (or she can be guilty of this crime, also) say. If you've been around long enough you sense the stale dialogue that's headed your way.

But, accustomed to this old line of bull, you realize that resistance to this pessimist is practicly useless, so you prepare to sit back (providing, of course, that a chair happens to be handy, and, if not, you'd be smart to get one) and try to think of anything but what he's blabbing about, but the effort is useless.

WRONG TIME TO LIVE

"Yea, kid," he commences, "it's as I always say. We're early for everything that will be any good in this world. For example," he continues, "take the college. What do they keep telling you all the time? Just this. Boy, what a place this is going to be in three years. A couple of classy new buildings, swimming pool, bigger gymnasiums."

Then he goes on to name nine million, pardon us, eight million different improvements that are in store for our institution of higher learning.

"But," (ah, there's a big, little word) he exclaims, "the sad part about it is we're not going to be around to enjoy all these modern, scientific inventions. It's nothing less than a crime. I tell you, we wuz robbed! We should have been born a century later and then we wouldn't have to bother about getting jobs, and a university training. Can't you see it all? (That settles it; he's nutty as a fruit cake.)

IN FOUR SCORE . . .

"Why, brother, in four score and seven everyone will be enjoying himself 24 hours a day. That atom smashing idea will solve all our worries, but we'll be pushing up daisies because we worked too hard. It's downright unjust, that's what it is."

At this stage of the conversation your patience has reached the end, and so has this column. By this time our corny individual has decided he cannot convert you to his doctrine, so he rests his case, and wanders off to prey on another unsuspecting individual.

Rams Slap Santa Rosa Quintet Twice

Santa Rosa

Jones, Dunnigan Field Goals Save Second Game 48-46

The Rams defeated the Santa Rosa quintet twice last week by the scores of 45 to 15 and 48 to 46, giving them three wins to one loss in conference play.

In the first encounter last Wednesday night at Santa Rosa, the Rams literally walked over the hapless Santa Rosans by the tune of 45 to 15.

The Rams' starting team played only a few minutes of the game and let the second stringers play the rest. High point man for the Rams was six-foot-eight Bill Kahn with eight points.

In the second encounter it was a different story, for last Friday night on the Rams' court the Santa Rosa quintet nearly upset the Rams in a nip and tuck battle that was not decided until 60 seconds before the end of the game.

Then field goals by Roland Jones, Red Dunnigan, and Frank Ratto were able to tie and take the lead from the Santa Rosa quintet and finally freeze the ball until the gun sounded, with the Rams victorious, 48 to 46.

High point men for the Rams were Player-of-the-Week Jones with 19, followed by Dunnigan.

In a non-conference game last Saturday night, the Rams were defeated by the California Blues by the count of 51 to 22.

With the reserves playing all of the game, the Rams were no match for a fast moving Cal five. High point man for the night was Jones with five points.

Salmons Upset Fleet In First Intra Play

In the opening contest of the Intramural Tournament last Tuesday, an underdog Salmon sextet upset the heavily favored Fleet City six by a score of 6 to 0. The tally was made early in the first half by virtue of a nicely executed pass play from Frisco Sartor to Ted Bofinge, who went over from the five yard line standing up.

The close score by no means indicates a closely contested game, as the Fleet City team never had the ball in Salmon territory as much as once through the game. Fleet City had been scheduled to play the Eager Beavers, and the Salmons the XGI team.

On Friday the following games will be played:

Andersons vs. Fleet City
Salmons vs. Eager Beavers
Bye vs. XGI

Sacramento

Cagers Face Tournament Winners Here Tonight, In Sacramento Saturday; Capitol City Games Called Decisives

In what may be the most important Cage game of the Ram's schedule this season, the Rams face a strong Sacramento quintet tonight and Saturday night. Tonight's game will be played here at 7:45, and Saturday night's tilt will be played at Sacramento at 8 p.m.

Player-Of-The-Week

"Deacon" Jones Is Master Of Boards

By Staten Webster

Roland Jones, Ram-player-of-the-week and ace center on the star-studded Ram quintet, is truly a master of the boards—the floorboards and the keyboards. Known around the college as the Deacon, he is one of the hottest pianist to be found.

Jones, who is 19 years of age, towers six feet, two inches into the stratosphere, and weighs 175 pounds, attended University High School before entering the college. He won letters in two sports while at high, one in basketball and the other in track, and has been playing basketball for two years.

Player-of-the-week-Jones is a music major here at the college, and revcals that he hopes to play in some swing band in the future. His hobbies are sports and music.

In the first two practice games, he played sensational ball, although he was not given credit, it was he who held Livingstone, the Modesto version of the Empire State Building at center, to only two points.

In Modesto, in the second game of a home and home schedule, Jones ran into trouble. He received quite a rolng over from the Pirates, but went back time and time again for more.

Even though he is far from the lead in the scoring, he has been instrumental in setting up the plays that have brought the Rams through many tough contests.

Commenting on the Ram prospects, Jones says, "The team has improved both in playing ability and in teamwork."

Prior to the beginning of the war on December 7, 1941, the college still housed for all academic work in one building, but with a complete campus designed on paper was forced to limit enrollment to 3,000, although there were more than 1,000 additional applications.

The Sacramento team won the Modesto Tournament championship by defeating the Modesto team. Although the Panthers are not too tall they are exceptionally good shots.

If the Rams are able to get over this tough hurdle with at least one victory they can remain in the running for the championship. Much will depend on whether the Rams can get as hot as they were for the first Modesto game, they may be able to pull a victory out of the two game series.

The probable starting lineup for the Rams is as follows;

S. F. J. C.	Sacramento
Frank Skoglund	F. Wayne Boulding
Ross Dunnigan	F. John Stanich
Bill Kahn	C. Eldon Bennett
Frank Ratto	G. Douglas Sale
Earl Malnick	G. Robert Linck

The remaining games on the Rams schedule are as follows;

Jan. 30—Sacramento at SFJC.
Feb. 2—SFJC at Sacramento
Feb. 6—Marin at SFJC
Feb. 8—SFJC at Marin.
Feb. 15—SFJC at Salinas.
Feb. 20—SFJC at Placer.
Feb. 22—Grant at SFJC.
Feb. 27—SFJC at Menlo.
Mar. 2—Salinas at SFJC.
Mar. 6—San Mateo at SFJC.
Mar. 8—SFJC at San Mateo.

WAA

Archery Club Plans Columbia Rounds For Tourney Week

The first Women's Athletic Association club to make definite plans for Tourney Week is the archery group which will hold an official Junior Columbia shoot from 20, 30, and 40 yard distances, and Rita Chow, manager, announced that the high point scorer will receive a free bow. In addition, refreshments will be served to all competing.

With tourney competition officially opening Monday, February 4, Lowell High School has been invited to play basketball and volleyball, but since part of Lowell's team graduates this week, the event may be cancelled.

Wanda McKenzie, WAA president, suggested that members watch gymnasium bulletin boards for new announcements. All plans, schedules and details of the week's activities will be posted in the gymnasium lobby, Miss McKenzie said.

The various club managers are now at work checking records of WAA members to determine who are eligible for the new WAA blocks. Requirements include attendance at three-fourths of the club's meetings, a "C" average in scholarship, good health, and sportsmanship.

Miss McKenzie requested all managers to furnish the names of members eligible for blocks to her at the earliest possible date. This will enable an immediate placement order for the new designs so they may be presented to winners at the first WAA meeting next semester.

many, though they accept it as being moocracy in our national government, why is it that we have allowed an anti-democratic form of government self-evident truth, can actually distinguish truth and righteousness from the false and unjust?

If we are to accept the truth and righteousness of representative de- to come into existence in the form of the Student Council as was proposed and passed upon?

It seems that in a terrific "landslide vote" (the quote is from The Guardsman) the new constitutional revisions were approved. Actually, only about twelve per cent of the active members of the Associated Students voted for these, and the vast majority of the students did not vote at all.

The vote of this twelve per cent has guaranteed the control of the Student Council by a majority! We are now blessed (?) with a Student Council consisting of fifteen members, seven of which only represent a small minority of the A.S.! — Does this not seem to be a "wee bit" un-American?

How can anyone make a favorable comparison of such a Student Council with our Congress? If they believe they can, I would advise them to read our national constitution. They might be astounded to learn that you do not have to be a representative of a "club" or political organization in order to run for any of the seats in either house, and the people do not have to choose any of those who represent clubs or organizations for any seat in Congress!

I believe that we should be consistent with American beliefs and propose that an amendment should be made to change the Student Council from a bias one into one of representative democracy. Possibly, seven members from the freshman and seven members from the Sophomore class?

What do you think?

—Alan von Herrmann.

• Kenton Not Cheap
Editor, The Guardsman:

I have seen a very bitter statement in The Guardsman, in the column Beachcomber, January 23.

It seems that one of the reporters does not like Stan Kenton.

In saying that Kenton is a "cheap commercial" band leader I can't agree.

When Kenton started his band a few years back, he had a complete library of his own arrangements. This music was eaten up by Cuts of various types and musicians in the know. At this time his payroll was low — and his arrangements were wild.

The public did not take to Kenton's new ideas as a whole, but he nevertheless became popular. This was when his payroll went up and he started to make the gold. With the cry of the American dollar in his ear Kenton was forced to go commercial, so he could keep his place in namé bands.

You will remember that Stravinsky's music was booed off the stage at Paris in 1913.

I come thusly to this conclusion—Kenton is not a cheap commercial band leader. He has some very high paid men in his organization. When the public is ready he will then blow the dust off the library which has not been heard by the very criticizing non-musicians and the well informed "hepcats."

Isaac Stern Opens Forum Concerts Here Tuesday

Bay Area Colleges To Be Guests Of Symphony Group To Hear San Francisco Violinist In Program In WAVE Lounge

By Adele Reinisch

Isaac Stern, "master fiddle-player", will be the noted guest artist at the first general Symphony Forum to be held on this campus in the lounge of the WAVE barracks next Tuesday, February 5, at 2 o'clock. The forum is sponsored by the San Francisco Musical Association.

Isaac Stern

Attending the meeting will be Symphony Forum members from the University of California, Stanford University, The University of San Francisco, Mills College, and San Francisco State College, as well as representatives here, Marvin Silverman, chairman of this branch, announced last week.

About 75 forum members here are expected to hear the violinist perform and answer questions posed by the music students.

Stern, at present on his forth nation-wide concert tour, and just returned from his third overseas USO tour, calls San Francisco his home town, since he was brought here by his parents from his birth place in Kremlineez, Russia, at the age of ten.

At six, he began taking piano lessons, but by the time he was eight, he had definitely expressed a preference for the violin, on which instrument he progressed rapidly.

Stern studied for a time at the San Francisco Conservatory of Music, and then in New York as a pupil of Louis Persinger. Returning to this city, he spent some time working with Naoum Blinder, concertmaster of the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra, and appeared on several occasions as guest artist with this symphony, as well as with the Los Angeles Philharmonic.

After concertizing in most of the larger Pacific Coast cities, Stern made his New York debut on October 12, 1937.

Following recitals illustrated his ability even farther, and although he is now barely 25 years old, he is the internationally recognized master of his own priceless Stradivarius.

Drama Society Formed, To Seek CAB Charter

The first meeting of the new college dramatic society was held last Thursday during the regular club hour, with members deciding that the purpose of their organization will be to present short one-act plays, monologues, and dramatic readings at general meetings to be held at the WAVES auditorium next semester.

Although the attempt to form a similar club here has been made almost every year since the college has been in existence, the idea has never before got a foothold.

Now, however, with the acoustics of the auditorium soon to undergo improvement, the organization appears to have a greater chance of surviving, and of carrying out its aim to promote a better understanding and appreciation of drama and the dramatic processes in the college.

At Thursday's meeting, a committee composed of Patricia Duryea, Marilyn Levison, Frank Harding, and Adele Reinisch, was appointed, and met last night at the home of Miss Duryea to frame a constitution.

This afternoon at 2 o'clock, a meeting will be held in Room 190, at which time the constitution will be read and action taken to apply for a club Advisory Board Charter.

Membership is open to all students, and those who were unable to attend the first meeting are invited to attend the gathering this afternoon.

Ballet, Symhonies Seeking Women Ushers

Women students desiring to usher at various Opera House events are given the opportunity again this semester according to Dean Margaret Dougherty.

The Russian Ballet, the Opera, and all concerts and symphonies are open for volunteer ushers. Those signing up for the affairs are allowed to watch the program as payment after their duties as ushers are completed.

Those interested in taking advantage of this opportunity should see Miss Dougherty in her office.

Marvin Silverman

Forum Chairman 1-Man Music Dept.

Spearhead behind the organization Forum here, its chairman and a one-man music department in his own right is Marvin Silverman, whose presence at the piano during every college music function has become phenomenal this semester.

With his lanky frame newly arrived at the college from Washington High School, Silverman rapidly established himself as a leader in the performance of musical programs here.

Not only has he proved himself a capable accompanist for the singers at the recent Christmas Festival and other similar programs, but he also plays the french horn in the orchestra here, and vocalizes in the A Cappella Choir.

With such an overwhelming abundance of musical talent, the future looks bright in the more melodious fields of college endeavor.

Married Student Club Asks Housing Aid

Members of the Married Students Club, at a meeting last Thursday, put into circulation for signatures, a petition requesting aid through the college in procuring suitable housing in San Francisco, it was revealed by Eugene Hague, chairman of the group, last week.

Through Dean Edward E. Sandys, and the board of education, the petition will go to proper sources, including the Ocean Avenue Merchants, the Federal Housing Administration, the American Legion, the Ingleside Home Owners Association, and city newspapers.

The petition, which states that one-third of the married students of the college are now commuting from across the bay, is on the bulletin board in the main hall of the building.

Women In Air Age Will Be "Grounded"

Outlining the importance of women in an air age, Harry Sullivan, United Airlines Educational Director, and four women employees spoke last Thursday to a crowded assembly of women students.

Sullivan started the discussion rolling with a startling statement, "Women are not going to be flying airline planes," he warned, "although many women from the WASPS have been seeking jobs to no avail."

On the other hand, Sullivan reminded ambitious and air-minded students that there were instances when women actually ran airports, but on the whole, the number of women in the mechanical division of work has "dropped off" since the end of the war.

They all agreed that the chief requisites for a position with United are patience and a liking for people.

Red Cross

San Francisco Leaders Will Aid In Organizing College Unit Here; First Meeting Tomorrow In Student Lounge

A meeting to discuss the possibility of the founding of a Red Cross College Unit here will be held in the Student Lounge, tomorrow, at 3 p.m., Thomas O'Neil, instructor in charge, announced last week.

Mrs. Clarence Coonan, director of the San Francisco Junior Red Cross, member of the Board of Education, and Mrs. Marzolf, director of College Units of the American Red Cross, will discuss with the students the purpose of such a Red Cross unit.

O'Neil last week urged students to follow the example of 43 Pacific Area Colleges in the support and organization of such a unit on this campus.

An association of this type here would make students a part of the adult membership of the San Francisco Chapter of the A. R. C. and would entitle them to participate in the activities and services of that chapter with a chairman of the College Unit as a member of the Board of Directors of the San Francisco division of the A. R. C.

"The trend on most campuses is toward community projects and the College Unit, as a member of the largest humanitarian organization in the world, will have channels and doors opened for service to all," O'Neil said.

"Aid for the veterans on the campus, and improved housing conditions in general are but two of the many aims of the unit," he pointed out, adding that members of a chapter would share jobs to be done in hospitals, ports, military bases; in the organization of Red Cross classes in First Aid, Water Safety, Nursing, Nutrition; and in Serving on Motor Corps Canteen, in Hospitals and on Recreation."

Basil O'Conner, Chairman of the A. R. C. has said, "Our hopes for a better world rest largely on our young men and women who have learned to translate high ideals into action. We welcome these young people on the campuses of the nation into a closer relationship of Community Service."

Chinese Sweetheart To Reign At Ball

A new annual event called the Sweetheart of Jai Sei Chi Formal will be given by the Chinese Students' Club in the Colonial Room of the St. Francis Hotel this Saturday night, February 2, from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m., according to Betty Ann Lee, club member.

Bids cost $3.00 per couple and may be purchased from club members or at the door of the dance, she added.

The Sweetheart of the ball will be chosen from among the four following candidates: Sara Fong, Jeanne Lee, Dorothy Quong, and Eva Quan. Highlight of the evening will come at 11 p.m.

Waving Party

60 Women Wanted For Welcome Ship

Perhaps very few San Franciscans realize that each troopship returning from the South Pacific is welcomed by a yachtful of "waving women" with bright scarfs, cheerful smiles, and glad "hellos."

Fewer still realize that women from the college have already had opportunities to thus welcome the returning heroes. The reason for the apparent ignorance on the subject is undoubtedly the fact that the members of the "Waving Party" meet at 6:50 a.m. at the foot of Hyde Street.

More interest might be aroused if it became locally known that the women who gather at this spot are promptly ushered aboard a beautiful yacht, which takes them to the Golden Gate.

Such was the information released by Assitant Registrar Mary Jane Learnard, who has been commissioned by the Army to enlist the services of 60 college women to meet in-coming soldiers on the morning of Tuesday, February 5.

"Many women have gone before, and have so thoroughly enjoyed themselves they have expressed a desire to go again," Miss Learnard said.

In addition to the pleasure of greeting the men, all participants in the expedition will be served coffee and cookies on the yacht before being returned to college in an army bus.

Only the first 60 to apply for this privilege will be allowed to go, Miss Learnard declared.

Classes End February 8; Finals Follow

Final day of classes for the fall semester will be Friday, February 8, Mary Jane Learnard, assistant registrar, specified last week.

Final examinations will be given the following week, Monday, February 11, through Friday, February 15. Because of expected enlargement of enrollment, three days, Monday, February 18, through Wednesday, February 20, will be set aside for registration of students, instead of two days as originally planned.

Classes in the spring semester will begin Thursday, February 21.

Joe Sweet Defeats Vic Pudlowski For President By 36

By Marge Whearty

With photo-finish results winding up a heated two-day voting session, poll calculators edged veteran Joe Sweet in as president of the Associated Students.

Polling a total of 349 votes, Sweet defeated Vic Pudlowski, who totaled 313 votes, in a spirited campus campaign.

Carol Hayland took the Associated Student vice-presidency with a vote count of 306, over her opponents Nancy Schulz, who tallied 212 votes, and Mildred Hoffman who received 129 votes.

Heading the Associated Women Students in the new semester will be Nancy Cunningham, winner by a total count of 237 votes over Betty Howard with 127 votes, as president.

Hair breadth closeness marked the race for president of the Associated Men Students with Ted Bofinger pushing out Bill Poole by seven votes. Results gave Bofinger 94 votes, Poole 87 votes, and Earl Lawrence 80 votes.

Casting freshmen placed Bill Smith their President with machine results netting him 318 votes. Competitors Carmen Garcia totaled 155 casts, and Nadine Andrews cleared 146 votes.

Sophomores look to the new semester with Kent Bowker as their leader. Rival Millie Laube summed up a total of 245 votes, while Bowker netted 336.

According to the revised constitution these presidents now appoint vice-presidents and secretaries subject to the approval of the Student Council.

President Sweet now appoints a secretary and rally commissioner to complete the roster of student officers.

The fact that a total of 688 votes was cast indicates an increase of interest in recent student elections. This total represented approximately one-third of the Associated Students.

Members of the Election Committee were headed by Ralph Hansen, chairman.

New President Has Workable Ideas

By Betty Jo Smith

Elections provide the people with an opportunity to note their choice, and the voting of the students of this college shows that they very definitely recognize the qualities of a leader in Joseph Goodrich Sweet II.

Sweet has spent all of his 22 years in Oakland. There's a twinkle in his blue eyes that seems a challenge at to whether he's always so genuinely happy. A short conversation will not only reveal that he usually is but that within is a serious outlook that inspires others with a desire to assist.

After graduating from high school Sweet attended the University of California to further his learning as a potential dentist where he was president of the Freshman class.

One and a half years of study were completed, and then the Marine Corps claimed him as a corporal in December, 1942. San Diego was the site for the inevitable bootcamp plus sea school, and after completion assignment was made to the USS Indianapolis. The ship sailed to Hawaii and shared a part in the campaign of the Gilbert Islands before returning to the States.

Clubs

30 Organizations Provide Play, Study

By Peter Cerlanti

"All work and no play" is not the rule here at the college. Many clubs and organizations have been formed to furnish social activity for those who enjoy it. Students interested in joining one of the clubs open to all, should simply attend the first meeting when it is announced.

Among organizations tied into the curriculum are the following: Alpha Delta Epsilon, the college art club faculty sponsored by Richard Allman; Alpha Theta Epsilon, for home economics majors, whose sponsors are Claire Cuneo and Frances Mount; the Engineering Society, open to mathematics, engineering, physics or chemistry majors, William Mayo, adviser;

Hotel and Restaurant Management Society, sponsored by Hilda Watson, for those in that division; Kappa Alpha Sigma, commercial art majors only, William Eckert, sponsor; Omicron Phi Pi, for honor students majoring in economics, sponsored by Michael Zarchin;

Phi Epsilon Rho, open to all women majoring in Physical Education, advised by Laurine Bergin; and Pi Mu Gamma, whose members are premedical or allied science majors sponsored by Glenn Noble.

Students interested in world problems of today are invited to join the Cosmopolitan Society, sponsored by Phyllis Haley and Verrell Weber.

Among the many organizations are clubs open to all interested in a particular field but not majoring in it. Such clubs are The Forum, open to all interested in discussion of topics pertaining to art and society, and literature. Its sponsors are Dorothy Mercer and John Gerstung.

For those who are musically-inclined or who simply enjoy music, there is the Music Club, sponsored by Flossita Badger and Madison Devlin. Open to all who have a serious interest in classical and symphonic music is the Symphony Forum, sponsored by the San Francisco Musical Association.

The Pick and Hammer Society is open to all interested in geology. George L. Green is its adviser.

The college honor society, Alpha Gamme Sigma, sponsored by Edwin A. Cranston, is open to those maintaining a B average in college studies or entering freshmen bearing gold seals on their transcripts.

Men students of the sports world should know of the Block SF, whose members are block-letter wearers, and the Golden Cleats Club, for football players. Both organizations are sponsored by Lee Eisan.

Miscellaneous clubs are The Bible Study Club, Mareus Skarstedt, sponsor; Chi-se Students Club, Lawrence B. Wong, adviser; the Newman Club, advised by Thomas O'Neil; and The Freshmen To Enroll By Alphabet Next Tuesday, Wednesday; Orientation Meetings Scheduled This Afternoon

By Adele Reinisch

With the largest registration in its 10 years of existence of the college predicted for next week, all students who are entering as freshmen this semester will report to the college for registration on Tuesday afternoon, February 19, and Wednesday, February 20, at the specific times scheduled according to the first letter of their last name.

To gain further speed and efficiency during this period, J. Paul Mohr, registrar, announced that a new ruling to the effect that students who do not register at their scheduled time will not be allowed to register until Thursday, February 21, has been made.

On Tuesday afternoon, February 19, those students whose last names begin with the letters I to Q will register from 12:30 to 2:30, and will report at the following specific times:

I, J, K, and L 12:30
M and N 1:30
O, P, and Q 2:30

On Wednesday, February 20, those students whose last names begin with the letters R to Z will register in the morning from 8:30 to 10:30, and those bearing initials from A to H will register in the afternoon from 12:30 to 2:30, and will report specifically at the following hours:

R and S 8:30
T, U, and V 9:30
W, X, Y, and Z 10:30
A, B, and C 12:30
D, E, and F 1:30
G and H 2:30

This afternoon, orientation meetings conducted by faculty members, will be held following an assembly of all new students at the WAVE auditorium. The meetings begin at 2:15, and students attend the one concerning his major field of study.

Students interested in advertising art will meet with William J. Eckert in Room 254. Those interested in other forms of art will meet with Richard M. Allman in Room 111.

Those students planning to take business administration courses will have the opportunity to meet John E. Ross in Room 133. Engineering, mathematics, geology, and chemistry majors will see Cecil Aggeler in Room 204.

Students planning to major in Letters and Science, English, foreign languages, physical education or other general subjects, and whose initials are from A to K inclusive, will meet John Gerstung in Room 100. Those with initials from L to Z, also general majors, will meet in the library with Edwin A. Cranston.

General business training students will gather in Room 208 to hear Edward W. Larson speak. Home economics students will assemble in Room 158 with Claire Cuneo.

Those interested in the hotel and restaurant management field will meet Hilda Watson in Room 194. Interest in the insurance field will be expressed by students in Room 256, with William C. Marsh.

Music students will have an opportunity to meet Flossita Badger in Room 200. Pre-legal students will meet in Room 140 with Lloyd D. Luekmann, and pre-medical and predental students will meet Glenn A. Noble in Room 205.

Those planning to take a pre-nursing course will meet with Jane Seribner in Room 190, and those interested in recreational leadership courses will see Jules Praden in Room 193.

Students interested in retail merchandising will meet in Room 212 with Virginia Gohn. All Science ma-

104 Page Pictorial Student Handbook Ready For Registration Distribution Next Week

Trials and tribulations of new students will be alleviated early with the distribution during registration of a new Student Handbook, says Elizabeth Mann, editor.

Committee members Blossom Dolgin, Henry Hidekawa, Betty Howard, Winifred Morgan, Ruth Rosenbaum, June Sheehy, Jacqueline Wells, and Elizabeth Schaeffer have assisted Miss Mann in preparing the book under the direction of George Mullany, instructor.

Although they were faced with many last minute revisions, the committee met its deadlines. The outcome is a 104 page, pocket sized handbook which will contain pictures of the new student officers, the newly revised constitution, cartoons by Eleanor Schaefer, a sample of which appears to the right, plus a complete list of all extra-curricular activities, college yells and songs — an item much needed for college spirit.

Education For Democracy

By President A. J. Cloud

SUCCESSFUL democratic government rests on an enlightened body-politic. The founders of the American republic fully recognized the virtue of that basic principle, and, for that reason, gave fullest endorsement to the encouragement of education, and to the establishment and the promotion of institutions of learning.

President A. J. Cloud

A long line of illustrious American statesmen has laid renewed emphasis on the same central thought in relation to tax-supported schools. The notable outcome has been a spread of educational opportunities throughout the several States on a scale heretofore unknown in any other land at any other time in history.

It is important to call to mind that fundamental truth during the present period of unrest, of strain and stress, that has been vividly described as the "confusion of peace".

This primary concept in justification of education at public expense may well serve the purpose of a measuring stick in appraising the advantages of education both to the individual and to society at large. It may, too, aid one to fix somewhat definitely the goal to be attained, and the nature of the effort to be put forth toward reaching the end in view.

As spokesman for the faculty of San Francisco Junior College, I can assure the students that their instructors believe firmly in the democratic ideals of education. They will ever be found willing and eager to offer their service to all who enter the portals of the college.

On their side, the students, I trust, will respond in like spirit and in full earnest to the programs of work laid out before them under the able guidance of their instructors. Teamwork, and a due sense of balance and proportion, will ensure to all rich returns on this educational investment which the people have so generously provided.

Current History

Credit Where It Is Due

IN the midst of end-of-semester excitement when elections of officers are being held, and students are preparing for final examinations, what little fanfare accompanies elections, is generally reserved for the candidates, while the departure of outgoing officers is scarcely noticed.

There is no need for prolonged demonstrations of appreciation to be showered on departing officers, however, one important person (by virtue of his office) always almost entirely misses out on the recognition due to him, and that is the president of the Associated Students.

Even if the president has served only the customary one semester of office, and has accomplished exceedingly little, there should be accorded to him a modicum of courtesy appreciation.

Last semester was the same as others in that the new officers have received adequate publicity and recognition, and the departing president vacated his office almost unnoticed.

In this particular instance, Bob Mills the departing president of the Associated Students, has served two semesters, has some material accomplishments to his credit, and therefore is deserving of more than mere courtesy appreciation.

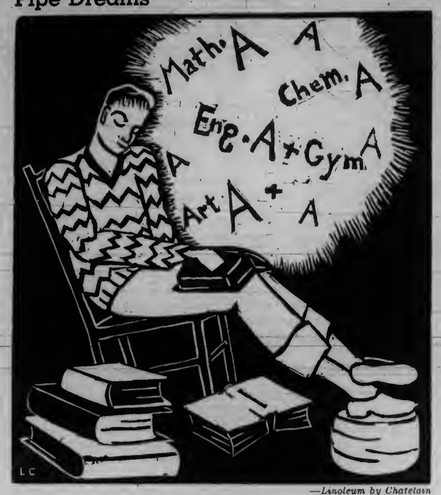
This semester's president may not find as much to innovate or radically change, but can insure a good term of office if he applies himself as diligently to his job of president of the Associated Students as did Mills.

New Trend

WITH the results of the elections officially tallied, there is strong evidence that there exists what is hoped will develop into a new and different trend, and that is, the fact that for the first time in recent years, a fair percentage of students turned out to vote.

That roughly one third of the Associated Students voted should, in reality, be no cause for any too favorable comment, but when it is usual for not more than one fifth of the Association to exercise its democratic privilege, it is indeed remarkable.

In addition, the election was very close in practically every office, especially that of president, demonstrating perhaps, that this election was more truly representative of the voters, and that the new officers did not get in because of their affiliations with various societies on the campus.



One ventures to analyze this "outstanding" turnout at the polls as being due to the more than usually enthusiastic numbers of freshmen who entered this college at the beginning of the semester, and also to the large numbers of veterans enrolling daily. The combination of spirited freshmen and veterans is well demonstrated in the fact that an XGI has been elected to fill the highest student office at this college.

While Thinking . . .

"WE WANT TO GO HOME". This is a cry that has been raised by men serving overseas in the armed forces. They realize vaguely, the majority of them, that an occupational army is needed overseas, but they do not want to be part of that army.

This is understandable because the average G.I. is not too interested in thinking. As far as he is concerned the war is over, and he feels that he has earned his right to come home.

Occupation is a burning issue at the present time, and it is one that must be solved. Various souces have hazarded guesses as to how long an occupational army should be maintained. These guesses have run the gauntlet from one year to twenty years. If something definite were to be decided, it would at least clarify the issue to a certain extent.

It is virtually impossible to set a definite length of time, but an approximate length of time should be set. After a certain length of time people develop a repugnance to occupation.

Only half the war has actually been fought. The other half is still to be fought. Although it will be a bloodless war, it will undoubtedly be a hard one. It will be more nerve racking than the first half.

This war must be fought, if we expect to retain the gains we made in the bloody conflict we have just passed through. These were hard gains to achieve, and it is only proper that we do our best to maintain them.

Only a clearly defined program will clear up the present muddle that faces us. Occupation seems to be a necessary evil.

Letters To The Editor

RAM'S HORN

• "Fine Piece Of Journalism"

Editor, The Guardsman:

This is just a short note of thanks for the quick and prompt way that you have been sending a copy of The Guardsman to me each week. I want you to know that I appreciate it and enjoy it from start to finish. I think it is a very fine piece of journalism that you are doing, because it gives a very full and vivid description of what is going on around.

Although I am not very far from San Francisco, it is hard for me to get around and see all my friends in the college. I particularly enjoy reading your "Letters to the Editor Department" and enjoy reading the opinions of different students in the school.

One issue of the paper was very interesting in as much as some of the students seemed to have gotten "carried away" on the subject of Compulsory Military Training. I myself do not believe in it at this time. It appears that a regular army of enlistees should be able to hold the best possible answer for our post war world.

A man who has been drafted into the Service is always griping about one thing or the other, but if a man enlists, he knows what he is in for, and certainly in my estimation and 3000 more GIs up here, he has no reason to kick.

Of course in the case of some fellows the army would do them good, especially the ones who smile at you and yell "Sucker" as you walk by. I know the fellows in my company would personally like to see that type in the Army. All the men in my barracks are drafted men and didn't ask to be put into the Army, or the Service Forces for that matter, but we all were and we're all trying to do our best to put up with it, and when some wisecracker rubs salt into our wounds by calling us suckers, that is a little more than we can stand.

But, of course, that type is an exception, but on the whole the men here do not favor drafting anymore fellows than they have already.

A young man's place today is in school, and many servicemen are returning under the G.I. Bill of Rights. A man without a college education is not going to get very far in this future we all hope will be brighter.

I'm sorry I got off on the sermon, but it is just a thing that is on the average G.I.'s mind. So I will close with another thank you for your thoughtfulness in sending me The Guardsman.

Shots At RAMdom

ACCORDING to Webster's Collegiate Dictionary Fifth Edition, thin paper 1942, the definition of a dictionary is, "a work of reference in which the words of language or of any system or province of knowledge are entered ALPHABETICALLY and defined: a lexicon."

Isn't this exciting, to think that 26 little letters can get together and do all that. Just a bunch of figures that kids in kindergarten know backward, are responsible for keeping Mr. Webster and his cohorts in bread and butter (joke) for years.

It's about time somebody exposed dictionaries, opened them up wide and told the public the TRUTH. (Pick up "This dictionary").

This dictionary business is all wrong. To begin with, too much emphasis is laid on the alphabet. Everything is in alphabetical order, letters and syllables are all over the place.

Dictionaries, we think, should be divided into sections, so that everyone can easily find the word he is after. The first section should be called "Definitions of words people have called me", so that the average reader can turn to the part of the edition most interesting to him without tripping over a lot of hygenic terms and synonymns.

Present dictionaries are a gross waste of time, and a contributing factor to the paper shortage. It is quite evident that dictionary manufacturers are only BLUFFING their way through—just filling in with a lot of extra adjectives and explanations to make a 25 cent "unabridged" out of a 10 cent volume.

The average reader of a dictionary doesn't realize it, but he's really being taken in. Just try looking up a single letter and find out! For instance, someone comes along and looks up "O".

Now, everyone has a right to look up anything he wants to, and if someone is interested in finding out the definition of "O", well, more power to him! But instead of a simple definition, what does he find?

The definition appears something like this. "O" . . . the fifteenth letter in the alphabet, doubtless a pictograph representing the human eye, as in the Phoenician ayin." This is just a trick of the publishers' to get the reader to look up other words like "Phoenician" and "Pictograph", and "ayin".

This dictionary racket is real vile. It's gnawing at the educational system and unformulated opinions of our youth. Something should be done about! Something has GOT to be done about it!

Brownell

The Beachcomber

THIS week we are reviewing, not previewing, one of Hollywood's latest efforts. Title of the opus for attack is The Fallen Angel, in our opinion a horrible mess.

The plot of this epic is the old light globe and moth situation, with Linda Darnell starring as the light globe and Dana Andrews, Bruce Cabot, and Charles Bickford as the moths. Linda is murdered, and by one of the moths; but who?

The entire taste used in this picture is poor, and we would like to list a few examples. First of all the leading ladies both look blessed-eventing, but upon closer observation are found to be just dumpy. This isn't so bad except both of these ladies are supposed to be beauties. Oh yes, Alice Faye, of candy-yam fame, is the other actress starred. We now move to the moths.

Bickford, who assumes the role of a bigtime policeman, decides he'll find out who turned out the light, or in other words killed Linda, no matter what. He starts off by having Cabot sit in a chair while he beats him to almost non-recognition. Cabot, of course, is over six feet, and athletic, while Bickford is around 50 and looks it. This is quite a bit to swallow, but when Bickford has Cabot moved to the next room, sit down again, and get beaten again, we shuddered at the ridiculousness of the incident. This time Cabot got up from the chair and walked off the set refusing to look at the camera. We assumed he too was laughing at the absurd scene.

And now to Mr. Andrews. The poor boy had an awful time trying to get away from the beach. His love making was well executed, considering the trite script he was using.

Linda Darnell must have used up all her old house dresses in this picture, for she wore one in almost every scene. This, we gathered, was to give her that seductive look. The hair that almost broke our back was the way she treated the top button of her dress.

We have finally arrived at our main gripe. Throughout the picture, Bickford, in his aged way, makes love to Linda by playing the Dick Haymes' record of Slowly and making dreamy eyes at her. So when Bickford appears in the last scene after the murderer has been discovered he walks out into the night, dreamy eyed again after playing the Slowly record for the last time.

Going Our Way?

A Typical Freshman Enters College

Steps In The Venture Into A New World

IN JUST a matter of days now, you'll be registered formally as a student of San Francisco Junior College. It's a pretty big step, this one of growing from high school to college standing, and those of us who have already taken the step hope that you will become as easily at home here as we have.

Right now you have completed what we like to call a "battery of tests." This must seem a little like added injury, since so few days ago you were taking your final tests in high school, where you were familiar with the type of tests, the people giving them, and most likely feeling slightly nostalgic about leaving what you have known well for a venture into something new and strange.

But these tests that you have now completed have a different purpose. They are not to determine whether you will be the recipient of a certain grade. They are not to determine whether you will be allowed to register with us at the college. They are to help you in the progress of your work with us, and to help your faculty adviser in assisting you to insure your own success here.

First of all you were tested in English grammar. College courses require a great deal of writing, and unless you are sufficiently prepared in grammar, vocabulary, and composition, you will suffer. If this test shows that you are not sufficiently prepared, you will be provided further instruction here to the end that you need never fail a course because of difficulties with the English language.

You also have had an arithmetic test with the same purpose as the English test. If your chosen course includes mathematics or science, the college will be sure that you will not attempt them without giving you first the necessary preparation.

Then that first day of tests you gave your all in what we call a scholastic aptitude test. You see, some of you may have your hearts set right now on becoming newspaper editors. (You might even settle for becoming Editor of The Guardsman—this, your college newspaper.)

The college wouldn't want you to begin in this field if your own ability would make it impossible for you to succeed. For if you started and found you would much prefer to spend hours in scientific research, think of the time you might waste pursuing the elusive news story facts.

Or on the other hand, you might think you want to become a physician, yet you are unaware that much of the preparation for the medical profession demands science courses. Possibly you've just thought of how nice it would be to be a physician. You haven't considered that you just don't have a scientific mind. (Better be an editor in this case. Invariably reporters are baffled by science.)

So this test of your own ability will act as a guide so that you will not enter a field of study that might prove too difficult for you or of no interest to you. And it will aid in discovering, perhaps, talents that you do not know you possess, and interests that should be developed.

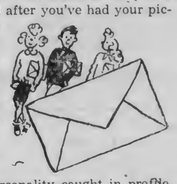
We Won't Hold It Against You . . .

Another day you took two more tests that tie in with this test of your abilities. One is called the Iowa High School Content test and gives your faculty adviser and you a knowledge of what you remember from your high school courses. And if you have not been in high school for several years you have probably forgotten more than your classmates who were there a few days ago, but we promise that won't be held against you. Your standing in this test but adds to the complete picture faculty advisers develop of you as a student.

Too, you were tested for discovery of your vocational interests. You see, in the many vocational and professional fields, certain interests are common among persons in the field. If you possess interests in the field of your choice, and those successful in that field possess the same interests, your own chances for success are increased.

Thus, even before you have entered a formal classroom as a college student, your adviser has formed a picture of you as an individual, you as one of us, and from that picture, no matter how it changes as you continue your college career (and it will change) your adviser is better able to give you assistance as you need it.

So Now You Will Register . . .



Next Tuesday afternoon and all day Wednesday have been set aside for you to register. Monday, and Tuesday morning, we have been here before you to complete our registration, and some of us will be on hand to answer your questions and help if we can.

Registration is not easy the first time. There will be moments despite all the information you have been given previously when you will be thoroughly bewildered. Then's the time to count ten, remember that all the faculty advisers, the assisting students want to help. Perhaps if you have a word picture of what you will do next week the process will be easier.

In the first place, college classes meet sometimes three days a week, sometimes two days a week, sometimes every day in the week. Thus you may very likely have a program that will allow you two or even three hours in the day with no classes. Ah, what a time to do your studying, so that you can keep your evening date, yet be on the beam in your college classes. And the library is a pleasant and excellently equipped place for study. (Third floor south. You'll be there when you register—once you have a program, a college program.)

The Envelope Contains . . .

In the registration line—after we've asked you a great many questions, and after you've had your picture taken — you will be given an envelope. This envelope will contain a copy of your high school record and the results of your entrance tests. As you proceed through college, it will contain other information, until each envelope is practically a personality in itself, your personality caught in profile. (A word of advice. Don't ask your advisor to draw that profile for you the day you register. There are times set aside for this purpose, but that time is not during registration. You'll understand when you start to register, believe us!)

In various classrooms you will be assembled and given instructions in how to make out a Program Practice Sheet, a Trial Study List, and you will be told emphatically NOT to fill out the Official Study List the day you register. You will receive a Registration Book containing these pages and others, five pages in all. You will be told how and when to fill out and file the Registration Book and how to make any change in your program before and after you have filed your book. So now let's do it and get your Trial Study List made out, for that's your goal of your day of registration.

A Program Is Chosen . . .

Faculty advisers are assigned to guide students according to their major field. If you are in doubt as to your choice of a major field of study, there are advisers of general college courses who will start you on your way until you know "what you want to be." If you are not in doubt as to your major field, your faculty adviser will study that profile of you that the tests give him, add to the profile your grades in high school, and list for you the subjects that will best meet your aims for the future. Then you will make out your Program Practice Sheet. (You'll find a sample on the next page.)

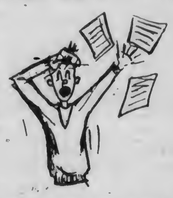
The Guardsman

Editor's Note: Cartoons on this special Freshman section of The Guardsman were drawn by Eleanor Schaefer, student in the advertising art department.

Let's say for purposes of illustration that your adviser finds you eligible for a general college course that will prepare you for transfer to a four year college or university at the end of two years, or be as a basis for special training to be completed here with us.

You are going to enroll in English, science, a foreign language, hygiene, and physical education to the tune of 15 units, a normal and not overloaded semester program. A new freshman student enrolls in hygiene, separate sections for men and women, and all students enroll in physical education each semester.

Your adviser shows you how to use your schedule of classes, you list all the days and hours the subjects you want are offered, and then, through what may look to you like a trick of Houdini, THEN, you have a program. It's easy. For instance, that English course you want is offered at 9, 10, 11, 12 (oh, no, there's no set hour for lunch here), and 1 o'clock, on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays.



That science course you want is a combination of lecture hours and laboratory sections. The science lectures come at one hour only, at 9 o'clock Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays. Thus that hour is settled and you will no longer consider putting your English in the 9 o'clock hour.

The language you want comes every day in the week, at 9, 10, 11, 12, and 1 o'clock. The 9 o'clock hour is taken with science, and you'd like to eat lunch at 12, so hold out for 10 or 11 for language. If you choose 11, then English will be at 10.

Hygiene (the men's sections are numbered 21, and the women's sections 22, and some time we'll tell you about the student who confused the two) is on Tuesdays and Thursdays at 8, 9, 10, 11, and 12 o'clock. H'm. You want language to be at 10 to 11, and your other courses do not meet on Tuesdays and Thursdays, and you want lunch every day at 12. Well, easy as pie. Science, Mondays, Wednesdays, Fridays at 9. English, Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays at 10. Language, every day at 11. Hygiene—can it really be that you can choose to take it at 10 Tuesdays and Thursdays and sleep an hour later those mornings? It could be. But for one thing.

Then Confusion Reigns . . .

You forgot all about that science laboratory section. And you need two of them of three hours each. There they are, from 9 to 12 Tuesdays and Thursdays. There's another section from 1 to 4 Mondays and Wednesdays, but that's definitely out, for then you want to play varsity baseball, and baseball practice takes care of the four hours a week for physical education.

Yet all the other hours conflict with one another. It's impossible what with both hygiene and language coming between those 9 to 12 hours that some misguided individual decided sacred for a science lab. You undoubtedly are thinking as we did once: "This schedule is terrible. Why did I decide to come to college? The courses are all at the wrong hours. Doesn't anyone know how to plan things so that I can have what I want when I want it? I'll just refuse to accept such a program unless they'll change things so that I can have lunch every day at 12, play first base on the team, and still take the courses my adviser told me to take! What do they think my block letter's for anyway? Can't they see it?"

Remember what we said about counting ten? All the time you have been getting more antagonistic to your blood pressure, your adviser has been watching you with one eye while he helps another fellow student of yours, and at this point he comes to the rescue.

You CAN Have Your Cake . . .

You see, just because you are unfamiliar with college registration until you have been through it once, you have not realized that you can just about have your cake and eat it too.

Try it this way. Put those science labs Tuesday and Thursday mornings from 9 to 12 so that you can fit in your one unit of physical education the way you want to, by turning out for baseball four afternoons a week at 2 o'clock. Put your language in at 1 o'clock every day. Put your English in at 11 o'clock Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays. Your science comes only at 9 o'clock Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays.

And make the sacrifice. Take your hygiene course at 8 o'clock Tuesdays and Thursdays. See how easy it is? Even if you don't like the idea of 8 o'clocks, and we don't either, you want to play baseball, and you want lunch at 12 o'clock, and there are at least 2999 other persons who are having the same difficulty as you are having—only, the chances are much worse. Maybe on the way to those two 8 o'clock classes each week you can discover why the lords who rule our universe invented 8 o'clocks. And maybe one answer will be, so that you can enroll in your chosen program field and still play baseball in the afternoons.

Now you have a program, all filled out as shown on this page with name and number of the course, room number, and instructor's name, in the proper places, all of which information you have on the schedule of classes. From this Practice Program Sheet, it is simple to transfer the information to the Trial Study List. Like this: Physical Ed. . . . Baseball (in place of a course number) . . . Brady . . . 2-5 Daily . . . Men's Gym . . . 1—this last means the number of units of credit.

When the Trial Study List is complete, your faculty adviser signs it, and you're on your way, almost a college student.

Your next step is to the sign-up room, where you affix your name to the class in which you wish to enroll. This step assures you of a priority if the class eventually becomes too full. You find the lists, then, that correspond to your program, sign your name, and by golly, you're in class. You're in all your classes! You're registered! You can go home until Thursday morning, when you report at 8:15 (no later) for your hygiene class in Room, let's see, what is that room? Look at your Trial Study List for it.

Ah, Romance . . .

Funny thing. It happened to us this way, and maybe it will happen to you. On your way home on the bus you meet a girl who reminds you of her who used to sit in front of you in the fifth grade. You dipped her curls in the ink well, mainly because you wanted her to notice you. She did, all right! And this is the same girl.

The years intervening have given you a whimisical sense of shame, and given her a tender memory. For she knows now you were really showing her a compliment.

She's signed up for the same English as you, only hers is at 12 o'clock Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays. It would certainly be swell to be in her class. Maybe she would change . . .? But you're a gentleman now, a college student. YOU must make the sacrifice. You can take the English at 12 o'clock Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays, and eat lunch at 11 o'clock those days. Maybe SHE would have lunch with you then. You'll have to find another opportunity to study her schedule.

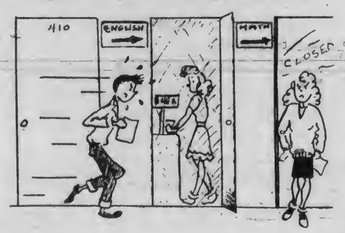
But can you change now? After all the time spent in making out the program, can you change it? You're signed up in that class, you who thought that eating regularly meant eating lunch at the conventional hour.

Luckily for you, there's a man sitting across from you who was one of the older students helping at registration. You ask him if you can possibly change your program, just a change of an hour. It won't really upset anything, really.

You Change Your Program . . .

He tells you, then, what he learned the hard way two semesters ago. Sure, you can change your program. Before you file your Registration Book (and you can go into details of that process another time) you go to the instructor of the 12 o'clock English class and ask if you may be admitted. You get your name on the list if there is room, inform the instructor of the 11 o'clock class that you are withdrawing from that class, and make the corrections of time, room number, and instructor's name on your Trial Study List. And may romance pursue its happy way.

About a week after you have registered (there'll be a date stamped on the cover of your registration book) you will fill out the rest of the pages in the book, including the Official Study List, and file the book in the library.



If it's too complicated, ask an older student, ask your adviser. They want to help. But if you read the book directions carefully and study the sample program, you shouldn't have any trouble. In the library you will be adequately taken care of, and we assure you it is an experience, the suspense of which should not be diminished.

There Goes The Apple Cart . . .

Everything is rolling smoothly now. College is not so strange as it seemed in those long ago days when you took tests, or even in those long ago days when you registered, just one week ago. And over goes the apple cart.

Some classes are over-crowded. That English class, now at 12 o'clock, is filled, and there are those who can enroll in that course only at that hour. You are asked, politely but firmly, to change back to your original 11 o'clock hour, and just when you had made practically a standing date for lunch with HER.

Of course, you make the change, sadly. But your registration book is filed, so how do you do it? You get a blue change-of-program slip from the registrar's office. You write in as indicated the course you are dropping (the 12 o'clock English) and the course you are taking up (the 11 o'clock English). You take the slip to the instructor of each class concerned for his signature.

Then you ask your adviser to sign it, and you turn the slip into the registrar's office.

You can accomplish this simple feat not only when changing from one hour to another; you can change from English to history. And you can change your program every day until an announced deadline—provided you may enter the classes you want, and provided you are so reckless as to risk flunking the courses in which you are finally enrolled when the last day to change a program is "yesterday."

You're still pretty upset about not being in English with the girl you met on the bus, when miracles of miracles, she voluntarily offers to change a program to be in your 11 o'clock English class. "God's in His Heaven! All's right with the world!" You're lucky, and you know it.

And you really are. Some of your classmates found that every class they wanted to enter was filled to capacity. They went back again and again to their advisers, and eventually they managed some sort of program. Have you learned from them! You had the gleam of an idea that you might register late next semester to avoid the rush. Now you know you'll register when expected to, avoid the risk of meeting full and closed classes, and thereby avoid the risk of being enrolled in a program course you didn't choose just because 2999 students were ahead of you.

Registration Day

A College Vocabulary

When Charles Thomas Flynn first came to college, he discovered a new world in which even the language was strange. Because he was curious, he studied the language and found that its vocabulary is limited but impressive.

These are the key words on which he concentrated.

- Registration Book: five pages used to record his program.
- Trial Study List: literally a "trial" program followed to determine its suitability.
- Official Study List: the final program.
- Grades: as in A, B, C, D, (or F); midterm and final.
- Midterm Period: divisions of a semester into three parts.
- Finals: examinations in each course given the last week.
- Units: college measurement of a course. Usually if a course meets three hours a week throughout a semester, it is assigned three units of credit.
- Special Student: one limited to a maximum of 11 and ½ units.
- Regular Student: one limited to from 12 to 16 and ½ units.
- Prerequisite: for example, passing English A is prerequisite to enrolling in an English course.
- Requirement: hygiene, physical education—among other things—are required for graduation.
- Major: 20 units in one field required for graduation.
- Certificate of Registration: card in registration book which is stamped when book is filed to indicate completion of registration.
- Adviser: faculty member, usually in student's major field, who—that's right—advises.
- Schedule of Classes: list of courses, time, place.
- Drop slip: vernacular for change-in-program slip.
- Leave-of-absence: official notice of withdrawal from all college classes without penalty.

The Guardsman Sports

Vol. XXI, No. 14C FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 15, 1946 Page 3

By Don Lucey

WANT to bet that all the tall basketball players in the world have a worried expression on their faces these days? Why, one might politely inquire.

Anyone who reads the papers more often wouldn't ask such a stupid question. But since it is apparent that the ardent followers of this column certainly never gaze on any print except that which appears here, an explanation of the first sentence is necessary. So, here it is.

RAY OF HOPE

Last week the nation's news sheet carried a story that certainly brought a ray of hope to a lot of small guys who want to be big.

The article stated that doctors and professors of experimental biology in Chicago and at the University of California had just about reached the point where millions of people who could not tolerate the nickname "Shorty" can now do something about it.

Since this sensational medical revelation, those who know have been debating back and forth as to when this discovery will be made available to the public.

EFFECT ON SPORTS

About that point we're not especially interested. But let's look into the effect this tremendous change will have on sports.

As was stated in the beginning, lanky cage men are quickly becoming despondent. And do you blame them? Before the hardwood pastime was a pushover for them. Now they can see the end of their height advantage over the other casaba stars.

No longer will they be able to throw out their chests and strut proudly down the street after once again copping scoring honors in a game. Those days are on their way out, and for many lads who stand close to seven feet, it's going to be a tough pill to take.

TRACK RETURNS

So Coach Jim Jensen sounds the call for track, marking a return to the college of one more spring sport. He who can leave his home every morning at 7:59 and still catch the 8:01 bus will probably find room on the squad.

First training is hustling down to the gym to add the John Hancock to the list of prospective candidates.

Undoubtedly many veterans will be capable of setting track records. They really learned how to go farther with those two articles at the bottom of their legs than any but the Japs and Germans. When it came to getting out of places in nothing flat, nobody could match the Nips and Nazis.

WAA

Large Membership May Double Sports Club Activities

In an attempt to get the new post war Women's Athletic Association sports program functioning, Bertha Mae Keller, adviser, urged all women of the college, especially incoming freshmen, to consider joining the organization this semester.

The first general meeting of the WAA occurs soon after registration is complete, time and place announced beforehand, Miss Keller explained, anticipating a greatly increased attendance.

While emphasizing health and recreational values derived from competitive athletics, Miss Keller declared that the WAA may double or triple last semester's activities and stands ready to adjust the sports schedule to suit the needs of its members.

Meanwhile, Tourney Week, a semi-annual WAA tradition, was run off last week with most of the competition coming from veteran groups here.

Contests in basketball, volleyball, badminton, and archery were staged, culminating in refreshments and prizes.

Now posted in the women's gymnasium is the tentative schedule of Spring sports which is reproduced here as follows:

Archery, Friday at 11; Badminton, Thursday at 3 or Friday at 8; Basketball, Thursday at 4; Bowling, Tuesday at 4; Dancing, Monday at 4; Fencing, Friday at 12; Golf, Friday, 3:30 to 5; Horseshoes, Tuesday at 12; Hiking, to be arranged; Riding, Friday at 2; Softball, Monday at 3:30; Tennis, Thursday at 12 or Friday at 1; Volleyball, Wednesday at 3:45; Swimming, Tuesday at 3:30.

Any sport not listed above may become a WAA activity providing 10 or 15 women indicate willingness to form a club, Miss Keller promised, anticipating a real advancement in the scope of WAA influence in the college.

Pictured above are a sextet of archery enthusiasts who participated in the Junior Columbie shoot on the archery range recently. Left to right, they are Rita Chow, Connie Trigonis, Shirley Burnett, Virginia St. John, Shirley Grosswird, and Helen Jouthes. Interest in this sport is steadily growing here, according to Bertha Mae Keller, coach, who is grooming her archers for an official Pacific Coast Telegraphic Tournament this Spring. Competition will come from various Pacific Coast colleges and universities.

Basketball — Salinas, Marin

Cagers Travel To Salinas Tonight, Placer Next, Meet Grant Here Feb. 22

The Ram cagers face an unknown Salinas quintet tonight at 8 p.m. on the Salinas court. Although little is known about the Salinas team except that it was beaten by Modesto, 45 to 30, anything can happen.

Next Wednesday night the Rams face a hard-fighting Placer team on the Placer court at 8 p.m. Placer cagers were undefeated until two weeks ago, when they were dropped by Menlo, 40 to 37.

This will be an interesting game to watch and may show a bearing on the Rams' conference standing.

A week from today, Friday, February 22, Grant Junior College from Sacramento attempts to entertain the Ram cagers here on the Ram court at 7:45 p.m.

Again little is known about the Grant squad, so one must see what happens on this night. If the Rams play the ball they are capable of playing, they can take all three of these games.

The lineup for all of these games is expected to be as follows:

Frank Skoglund .....F.
Ross Dunnigan .....F.
Roland Jones .....C.
Frank Ratto .....G.
Earl Malnick .....G.

Remaining games on the Ram schedule are as follows:

Feb. 15—SFJC at Salinas.
Feb. 20—SFJC at Placer.
Feb. 22—Grant at SFJC.
Feb. 27—SFJC at Menlo.
Mar. 2—Salinas at SFJC.
Mar. 6—San Mateo at SFJC.
Mar. 8—SFJC at San Mateo.

Salmons Smash Beavers, 6-0; Take Intra Title

After rolling through the season undefeated, the powerful Salmon sextet cinched the intramural touchtackle title lastweek by defeating the hard-fighting Eager Beavers to the tune of 6 to 0.

After a concentrated pass attack throughout the first half, the score was finally made by virtue of a long pass from "Slinging" Rich Sedley to Ted Bofinger, who scored from the two yard line after stepping around Fred Sandine, who had fallen to the turf after going up into the air for the ball with Bofinger.

It might be noted that Bofinger figured in all the Salmon scoring, catching five touchdown passes, four from Sedley and one from Frisco Sartor.

The Salmons are composed of Leo Fratessa, John Wilk, Dick Bottini, and Pete Sanquini in the line, with Dino Dineill and also Sartor, Sedley, and Bofinger in the backfield.

In the other game of the week, which, by the way, was the final game for both teams, Fleet City, displaying its long hidden "atomic power," literally atomized the helpless Anderson six by a score of 48 to 6. This was the largest score of the tournament.

Outstanding for the Fleet were Bill Dials and Leo Jackson. Dials threw six touchdown passes and ran 50 yards to a touchdown.

Fleet City and the Eager Beavers therefore finished in a tie for second place; the Andersons finished fourth.

The final standings are as follows:

Teams	Won	Lost	Tied	Pts.
Salmons	4	0	0	8
Fleet City	2	1	1	5
Eager Beavers	2	1	1	5
Andersons	1	3	0	2
X.G.I.	0	4	0	0

The proposed Ram Bowl game between the tournament winners and a picked varsity team was cancelled because of rain.

Rams Turn Individualistic To Smother Marin In Two Contests 46-27 And 45-30

After recuperating from two consecutive defeats at the hands of the Sacramento Pirates, the Rams defeated the Marin Junior College cagers in two conference games, February 6 and 9, by scores of 46 to 27, and 45 to 30, respectively.

In the first game the Rams, led by Earl Malnick and Roland (Deacon) Jones, trounced the Marin five in a listless contest.

Despite the utter abandonment of organized methods of play on the part of the Rams, the team was able to out-score the opponents, who fought gamely throughout the contest.

The Rams have developed a style of individualistic basketball, unseen except on the many playgrounds of San Francisco. Each player considers himself another Hank Luisetti or Andy Wolfe and takes as many shots as he desires. This style of play has carried them, luckily, to five conference victories.

Coach Tom Wilson used his reserves extensively and was not disappointed by the results. The first half ended with the Rams in the lead by a score of 21 to 10. With the second string combination of George Koch, Roland Jones, Louis Folini, Peter Black, and Frisco Sartor, the Rams soon moved the score to 33 to 17, early in the second half.

High point man in Wednesday's game was center Jones with 11 points.

On Saturday night the Rams again outplayed the Marin quintet at Marin. It was the same story as on Wednesday—too much Ram. High point men for this college were Red Dunnigan and Frank Ratto who split with eight each.

Player-Of-The-Week

Guard Malnick Is Ram Floor General

By Staten Webster

Known to the members of the basketball team as the "Floor General", because of his ability to maintain the fighting morale of the team, and to friends as Mal, he is Ram Player-of-the-week Earl Malnick, sensational guard on the Ram five.

Malnick is 18 years of age, and weighs 168 pounds. He also is one of the tallest members of the team, measuring six feet, two inches from head-to-toe. Earl along with his brother, Don, attended Poly High School in San Francisco. At Poly he received his cage training, playing four years of basketball. He also swam for the school's swimming team.

In five conference games he has scored 22 points, and played a total of 160 minutes out of 200, which almost is an impossible feat.

Because he is 18, his next destination is, of course the United States Army. However, after he has completed his tour of the services, he hopes to attend the University of California.

Malnick is a pharmacy major here at the college. His hobbies are working with autos and skiing in July. (Imagine that. Where can snow be found in July this side of Alaska.)

He also reveals that he too belongs to the "clan" of unattached basketball players.

Coach Jensen Issues Call For Track Men

Resumption of track as a major sport in the Spring semester was announced last week by the men's physical education department.

Coach Jim Jensen sent out a call for all interested in participating in track to see him anytime during registration week.

First Baseball Meeting Called February 25

With the resumption of conference play, Coach Jack Brady, the new baseball mentor, has an interesting schedule lined up for those coming out for baseball. Brady expects to see some of the veterans of last year's squad and some of the high school stars out on the diamond when practice starts.

Brady has called a meeting for Monday, February 25, and all veterans from the 1945 squad who have not signed are welcome to attend as well as prospective players. Practice will start immediately after the meeting, with weather permitting.

Students will sign up for baseball when they register for their classes next week.

Pep Club Officers

In The Spring . . .

Spring came early to the college this year, and student reaction was observed as entirely normal as indicated by the picture above. Sometimes even a class meets for discussion in the sunny court.

X-GI Society

New President Expects Membership Increase, Leads Vet Housing Attempt

By Max Rubinchik

Tom Dean, newly elected president of the XGI Club, expects the club to increase tenfold by the end of his term in office, and says, "I won't rest until it happens."

At present, Dean is on the XGI Club housing committee trying to arrange a program whereby the veterans of the college will be helped in securing residence in San Francisco; preferably close to the college.

"We've already had an ad printed in the neighborhood shopping news," he said, speaking for the members of the club committee, "and are now working on a letter that will be sent to the newspapers, and the residents of Ingleside, telling them that we need housing help like mad.

"Unfortunately," Dean added, "many of the GI's right here in the college are not aware of the problem we face." He pointed out that only a hundred of the approximately400 veterans now enrolled in the college are members of the XGI Club.

"Cooperation is what we need," he emphasized. "Club cooperation, where each vet helps the other, and where a nice fat group of vets get things done."

Dean stressed the fact that the aims of the club are not mainly directed toward party-throwing activities. He said that he hoped club debates on issues of immediate concern to veterans could be scheduled for the near future.

"We like a beer bust once in a while, or some smooth boggie-woogie and Dixieland," he smiled; "however, most of us realize that we're not kids any longer, and that there are more important things to be done, not only as veterans of the college, but as veterans, period."

Dean served for three years with the 8 Air Force as an automatic pilot technician. He was overseas for a year and a half with the 457th Bomb Group, stationed near London, where, he said, "My greatest achievement was not getting married.

Ruefully, he recounts the reason for his discharge from the Army—a broken leg, received in the V-E day celebration in London.

Student Funds Support Wide, Varied Program

Wholly supported by student funds and free to members of the Associated Students are most of the college activities. Appropriations are made through the college budget to provide activities in which students may participate or enjoy after paying $4 to become members of the Associated Students.

Publications, The Guardsman, and The Student Handbook are free of charge to association members. Forum Magazine is semi-supported.

The Associated Men and Women Students, the Social and Rally committee events such as dances, rallies and guest entertainment are provided for in the budget. Dances other than those sponsored by AMS and AWS are also paid for by the association.

College sports, including awards and equipment for the Women's Athletic Association and intramural sports, traveling and medical expenses for all team members, are paid for with association funds.

All cultural activities such as the traditional Christmas and Spring Festivals given by the college music department are supported by the association.

The Student Council awards and supplies are included in the budget as well as funds for student elections.

Music and decorations for the Sophomore Formal and an auditorium, programs, gowns, bids and music for commencement are also taken care of.

Dean Urges Membership In East Bay Car Pool

Attempts to increase the membership in the car pool for the coming semester were under way last week, according to Dean Edward E. Sandys.

Students from the East Bay Area who own cars and desire to enter the car pool, are requested to leave names and addresses in Dean Sandy's office.

"In order to prevent a serious transportation problem, it will be necessary to have as many cars as possible in the car pool next semester," Dean Sandys stated.

Car owners who have joined the car pool have found the situation greatly to their economic advantage, Dean Sandys added, pointing out that in addition to giving assistance to riders the sharing of expenses is well worth a car owner's cooperation.

Book Exchange To Open When Classes Start

The Book Exchange, sponsored by the Women's Service Society, will be open during the first week of the new semester between the hours of 11:30 and 12:20 every morning.

The exchange is operated at the beginning of each semester and enables students to either exchange books or leave their old books to be sold. An entirely non-profit organization whose whole aim is to help the student make the best use of campus books, the exchange conducts finances through the college bank which acts as agent.

Every day a list of books sold will be posted at 1:30 p.m. on the bulletin board near the exchange, at the north end of the first floor.

Activities

Curriculum Sponsors Music, Journalism, Drama Productions

The college offers three productive activities in relation to curriculum to students — music, drama, and journalism.

Under the heading of music are A Cappella Choir, orchestra, and Women's Chorus, listed as Music 12b, 15b, and 11b respectively.

The music department under the directorship of Flossita Badger and Madison Devlin, instructors, will this semester present the annual Spring Festival to the college and also take part in the festival of Northern California Junior Colleges in May, where San Francisco State College will play host.

Drama, numbered Speech 42a, under the leadership of Ruth Somers, will produce as many plays as time permits for student audiences.

The Little Theatre is tentatively considering Robert Audrey's Thunder Rock, the production of which will depend on personnel. The cast calls for nine strong, mature male players, and parts for nine women, Mrs. Somers said. No previous experience is necessary.

Students wishing to enter the drama class may see Mrs. Somers at hours posted on her office door, Room 250.

Element of the journalism curriculum is The Guardsman, weekly college newspaper. Faculty adviser is Joan Nourse Muscio.

Membership on the reportorial staff is conditional upon completion of a preliminary course in news writing or evidence of experience in reporting. Course are numbered English 14, 15, 16ab.

The college handbook is published by the group in English 18, under the instruction of George Mullany.

More About Clubs

Pep Club, (limited to 100 rooters for college games), sponsored by Joseph Amori.

Women's Service Society, which serves the college and whose membership is by invitation only, is advised by Verrell A. Weber. The newly-formed XGI club, open to all veterans of World War II, is advised by Claude T. Silva.

For those hopeful of being initiated into a social organization, there are, for the men: Beta Phi Beta, Franklin Sewell, sponsor; Beta Tau, advised by Charles McKiernan; and Tri Epsilon, sponsored by Jack Brady.

The college's women's social organizations are Alpha Lambda Chi, Margaret Flournoy, sponsor; Delta Psi, Jane Scribner, adviser; Kappa Phi, sponsored by Ella Nowell; Phi Beta Rho, Mary Jane Learnard, sponsor; and Theta Tau, advised by Miriam Escher.

"Admission to these latter groups is by their invitation," Dean Edward E. Sandys, declared last week. "Students are usually invited to their smokers and rushes during the first two or three weeks of the semester," he added, "and the student's preference should be filed with me before the fourth week, since initiations are held during this time."

There is no limit to the number of students invited to join these societies, he also pointed out, but each member of these clubs should maintain a "C" average in his studies, otherwise the club charter will be revoked.

Recreational Leadership

"Career" Training Proves Practical; Three Students Here Have Jobs In Playground And Athletic Directing

Newly introduced to the college last Fall, the curriculum in recreational leadership is already proving its practicability. Three of Instructor Jules Fraden's students are now employed in jobs corresponding with their training.

"Good clean work, pleasant surroundings, and being around children," was the reason for Margaret Mullen, student here, to choose this field for her career.

Mrs. Mullen has been connected with the San Francisco Recreational Department for several years and at the present time she is a temporary director at the Visitacion Valley Playground.

She stated that the training she is getting will aid her when she takes her civil service examinations for a permanent job with the city recreational department.

Mel Toff, although not a major in the curriculum, has found the course practical as well as interesting. Formerly a gunner in the Army Air Forces, Toff came here to study law. Through his training he is now employed by the San Francisco Boys Club as a part time athletic director.

Toff stated that it helps him in his major because he is learning more about leadership and how to get along with people in groups. His activities at the club include craftsmanship, handling of athletic equipment, and directing games.

Planning to make recreation her career, Phyllis Brown has two years as a playground director to her credit and is in charge of after school activities at the Piedmont Playground in Oakland.

Completed plans for an enlarged course in the curriculum this semester are being displayed currently in the showcases on the main floor opposite the elevator.

These plans provide for counseling in summer camps and the organization of small group games. Besides these additions, first aid, officiating and counseling will be continued, Fraden said.

"Professionals" in the art of recreation, as suggested above, these three students in the recreational leadership curriculum talk of their jobs and prospects. Left to right, they are Phyllis Brown, Piedmont Playground; Mel Toff, San Francisco Boy's Club; and Margaret Mullen, Visitacion Valley Playground.

Cafeteria To Continue Present Schedule

There will be no change in cafeteria or prices for the new semester, according to Larry Wong, instructor in charge of the college cafeteria.

Breakfast is served from 8 a.m. to 10:30, and lunch from 11 a.m. to 1:30 o'clock.

The breakfast menu includes:

Bacon, eggs, toast and butter	.30
Hot-cakes, butter and syrup	.15
Coffee with sugar and cream	.05

Lunch specials include:

Meat, vegetables, potatoes, hot bread, butter and special dessert	.30
Sandwich	.15
Milk and Juices	.07
Cake and Pie a la mode	.10 .15
Salads	.15

All the work of operating the cafeteria is done by students in the hotel and restaurant management division.

College Wins Highest Victory Garden Award

Winning the highest honor given by the national Victory Garden Institute, San Francisco Junior College has been awarded the National Victory Garden Plaque in recognition of its distinguished record in encouraging Victory Gardens and home food preservation.

"We (the committee on Awards) were all impressed with the excellent job you did this year," stated Lester J. Norris, chairman of the board.

For the present, until the proposed new plots north of the football field are planted, victory garden work has been discontinued. However, the horticultural class, under the direction of Harry E. Nelson, has started a lawn on the east side of the men's gym. The lawn will be Highland Bent, Nelson said.

President A. J. Cloud is chairman of the San Francisco Victory Garden Council.

More About New President

Following a short prelude in the Naval Academy Preparatory School in Bainbridge, Maryland, he joined the infantry and went overseas again in August, 1944; this time to Guam with the Third Marine Division.

For one endless month in the battle of Iwo Jima, Sweet supervised fire direction control, and finally returned to Guam.

Civilian life seemed so near when he traveled back to the States in August, 1945, but it was not until after a period of V-E training, and exactly one year later to the day, when he joined the Third Marine Division, that he was a mister instead of just "G.I. Joe."

Perhaps this college's sphere of renown is wide, for there was only a time lapse of four short hours before Sweet was registered and attending classes here, continuing his pre-dental major.

Since that day in October his circle of friends has been ever-broadening and expanding, and now he's President, with many workable ideas for the welfare of the college to be put into effect. A man once said, "I'd rather be right than President." Someone should have informed him that Joe Sweet's both—he's President, and he's right for the job.

Registrar

Evening Division Enrollment Closes Next Monday Night

Registration for evening courses at the college will continue through Monday, March 4, Registrar J. P. Mohr disclosed last week.

Courses in English, history, foreign languages, and science will be given here and other places in the city, but they will count as college work. Evening courses are provided for those who desire to attend college but are unable to attend the regular daytime classes.

Registration is accomplished in the classes a student wishes to attend. To date a list of instructors has not been provided but the courses offered, the time, and rooms, are as follows:

Business Administration 26b, Room 207, Tues., Thurs., 7:15-9:15, Units 3. Chemistry 60, Room 229, Tues., Thurs., 6-10, Units 4. Economics 41b, at Jewish Community Center, Presidio and California streets, Mon., 7:15-8:15, Units 1. English A, Room 132, Mon., 7:15-9:15, Units 2. Floriculture 60a, Room 335, Mon., 7:15-9:15, Units 1. Home Economics 2, Room 108, Mon., 7:15-9:15, Units 1. Semetics 21b at Jewish Community Center, Presidio and California streets, Mon., 8:15-9:45, Units 1½. Spanish 21, Room 254, Tues., Thurs., 7:15-9:15, Units 4. Speech 21a, Room 309, Tues., Thurs., 7:15-9:15. Units 3.

Registration Books To Be Filed Next Week

Filing of registration books is scheduled to take place in the library Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, March 4, 5 and 6, according to Mary Jane Learnard, assistant registrar, who asked that students be guided by the date stamped on the cover of their individual registration books.

An example practice sheet is shown directly below to aid students in correctly filling in their books. Marred books have to be replaced by students and are obtainable at the registrar's office for ten cents.

Following the filing of books, change in program can be made by securing an official blue slip from the registrar's office on which it is imperative to secure the signatures of the instructors involved, as well as that of the adviser.

Who?

The 3750th Profile Now Identified

Although official college enrollment figures hit the mark of 3149 as of the close of registration last Thursday, 3150 "profiles" are actually on record.

Profiles, for those who don't yet know, are the "pictures" faculty advisers map of their charges from the results of their entrance tests.

One of them was illustrated at the bottom of Page A of the Freshman Special Edition of The Guardsman, distributed to Freshmen Friday, February 15.

The profile was recognized by only a few. Joe E. Brown or Frank Fay would have had no trouble at all.

The profile on Page A, bottom of column 2, destined to be no problem to advisers, is of Harvey.

"OWI" Release

Washington Leads Prep Enrollment

By Marge Whearty

The War of Registration ended last week with late registrants expected to push enrollment figures to 3500 by this Friday. As the smoke of battle clears, combat-worn veterans drag themselves from the fox-holes of official red-tape and sign the peace pact.

Despite all lines of defense, 3149 managed to defeat college lines and register. Of these, 1520 were returning veterans of previous registration warfare, and 1629 raw recruits. College ranks began the engagement last Monday, February 18, and conflict continued for four days. (Guerilla troops are still futily engaging late-comers.)

San Francisco high schools sent in the most men with a total of 729, the Washington High contingent winning the Purple Heart with 111 men. Balboa is the alma mater of 102 entering students, and Polytechnic claims 77 registrants; Lincoln, Galileo and Commerce each sent 76 students, while Lowell sent 73; Mission is the parent of 63 entrants, while Girls' High claims only 6 of the new co-eds.

Troops from the East Bay show an enlistment of 266, while other allies from other parts of the state and the Union helped win the victory with 266 registering.

All statistics are releases of the office of war information, or the office Registrar's Office, directed by Registrar J. Paul Mohr, chief of staff.

Administration

School Board Appoints Oscar Anderson Educational Coordinator, John Brady To Assistant Dean Of Men Position

With the early February promotion of Oscar E. Anderson and John T. Brady to administrative positions here by the Board of Education, two versatile instructors took over new duties and positions last week.

Oscar Anderson

Formerly mathematics and physics instructor at the college, Anderson now holds the post of Coordination of Educational Management, not filled since Louis "Dutch" Conlan was named principal of Mission High School.

Canada-born, Anderson started teaching at the college a year before the present site was opened.

Recently working summers on atomic energy at Berkeley, Anderson will now take over a year-round schedule of supervising bank activities, including sale of ear tickets and Associated Student cards, and responsibility for all physical properties of the college, namely lockers and equipment.

Named to the new post of Assistant Dean of Men in charge of student activities, John Brady, former physical education instructor, is determined to see that all dances, rallies and extra curricular student meetings are "tops" in college spirit and participation.

Answering questions on the sudden shifting of his activities by the Board of Education, Brady admitted that he wouldn't be falling into a rut from the athletic point of view. "I've been to some of those dances," he declared. "and you have to jitterbug to keep from getting knocked down!"

Brady also approved a list of rallies for the new semester, planned by Earl Lawrence, recently named rally head.
